New York, Sept. 15. Elias Smith, the correspondent of the Tribune at Atlanta, states that Gen. Sherman has ordered that all families, whose male representatives are in the rebel service, or who have gone South, shall also go South; also all citizens not connected with the army, who have not a permit from Gen. Thomas himself, shall go North at once. All persons failing to comply will be imprisoned. No person on any pretext will be allowed to go nearer Atlanta than Chattanooga.

Gen. Sherman's army fell back from Jonesboro' to Atlanta, and is disposed so as to command all the approaches.

New York, Sept. 15. The Herald's Mobile Bay correspondent, writing on the 4th inst., says the sunken rebel iron-clad Baltic still effectually blockades the main channel across Dog Liver Bar, but the double turreted monitor Winnebago has found a passage through the obstructions to a point where she can drop shell into the city.

The Metacomet, Sebago and Kennebec are also at the same place in line of battle, ready to shell the city at a signal from Admiral Farragut. Mobile is entirely at our mercy and can be leveled with the ground any time. The rebel rams and gunboats are in sight but make no demonstration.

The largest one of the three rebel launches hovering around the Mississippi Sound has been captured.

Gen. Granger's troops have constructed splendid fortifications at Cedar Point and other places, so if Hood's whole army should reinforce Mobile and attack our position, with the assistance of the gunboats we could easily keep them at bay.

An Army of the Potomac correspondent says our picktes and the rebels are only thirty feet apart. The utmost vigilance and ceaseless firing is displayed on both sides.

New York, Sept. 16. The World's correspondent at Gen. Grant's headquarters, 15th inst., says there is every reason to believe that the rebels have in contemplation and are already preparing for the evacuation of Petersburg and retiring their army within the defenses of Richmond.

An officer lately under fire at Charleston brings the report that Fort Sumter is rapidly sinking and the water will soon enter the lower tier of embrasures. It is supposed that our shells have disturbed the foundation, as the fort is built on a thin strata of sand which covers a soft pulpy mass of debris.

It is estimated that at least one-third of the slave element of the South has now been converted into the Federal service, military and civil, and that this element now constitutes nearly one-third of the Federal force employed, directly and indirectly, in the suppression of the rebellion. The colored element in our armies, particularly in the labor department, can hardly be realized outside of the army limits.

Denver, Sept 16. No Indians have been seen on the overland route for weeks. Stages will begin to run over it immediately.

ARKANSAS.—A Little Rock correspondent of the Chicago Tribune represents military affairs in Arkansas as in a very unsatisfactory condition. Gen. Steele's army of 30,000 is doing little or nothing, and the rebels are swarming everywhere. It is unsafe to go outside of any post.

Intelligence from Fort Smith, Ark., apprises us of an unfortunate affair that occurred near Van Buren on the 12th. A mail party of thirty-five men, under Lieut. Anderson of the 6th Kansas, were attacked at the Devil's Pass by three hundred rebels under Col. Adair, the mail captured and ten of our men killed. It is believed that several of them were shot after surrendering, as some are known to have surrendered who were afterward found dead.

A portion of Gen. A. J. Smith's forces from Memphis are making an expedition of great importance, with cavalry, infantry and artillery, into the White River region of Arkansas.

Bursting of Clouds.

A sad disaster recently occurred in Nevada Territory on the eastern slope of the Sierra range of mountains, near the line of California. A party consisting of Mr A. W. Glen, his wife and three children, his father, Mr. P. H. Medley and wife, and Mr. George Weston, left the town of Aurora on the 26th of July, for a trip to Bridgport, where they expected to arrive at 5 P. M., and where a portion of the party were to attend a ball in the evening. They started in a wagon drawn by four horses. The morning was fair and beautiful, but rain commenced falling. At three o'clock the team was traveling up a gorge or gulch in the hills about twelve miles from Aurora. At this moment a cloud burst at the head of the gorge and emptied itself into it, filling it to the depth of fifteen feet almost instantly.

When the party saw the deluge coming, they jumped out of the wagon and attempted to escape, the vehicle being covered delaying them some. Mr. Glen, Senior, succeeded in reaching the side of the hill and clung to some bushes until the torrent passed by, which was in about half an hour, leaving no water in the gulch. Mr. Medley threw his left arm around his wife and supported her until the resistless torrent tore her from his grasp, and her body was afterward found lodged in a tree six feet from the ground. Mr. Glen held up his little girls, five and eight years old, until he was dashed against a mass of rocks and stones, when both were lost and Glen narrowly escaped. Mrs. Glen was the last to leave the wagon. She jumped for the side of the hill, having a child eighteen months old in her arms. Weston, who was at that point, seized her and attempted to drag her up, but her dress giving way she was swept away and drowned with her child. The body of the mother was found near the spot, but the children were swept a mile down below. The impetuous torrent bore along in its course large trees and rocks weighing a ton. The wagon was dashed into small pieces and the four horses killed or drowned.

The locality of this occurrence is from five to seven thousand feet above the level of the sea, and the papers from which this account is condensed express the opinion that the cloud which burst, either came in collision with another cloud or with the top of the hill. At sea, when there is danger of their engulphing a ship, they are burst by means of a cannon. A similar case occurred a year or two since in the coast range of mountains near Los Angelos, California, when two or three persons perished. The historians of that State make frequent mention of clouds bursting. In Wilson's beautiful sketch entitled "The Baptism," in Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life, an occurrence of this kind is noticed, where some brutal soldiery who had come to arrest or murder the Covenanters were swept away.—Journal.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A Chicago correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer relates the following thrilling incident as occurring on Lake Michigan:

"The propeller Ontonagon, on her downward passage, while off Beaver Island, broke her shaft, and the huge mass of iron came crushing down through the timbers and stove a large hole through the bottom, through which the water rushed with fearful rapidity. The captain announced to the passengers, of whom there were about one hundred and fifty on board, that the boat would go down in ten minutes. A terrible scene of confusion and despair ensued. A boat was launched; it immediately filled and sunk, being worthless, as too many boats are found to be on such occasions. Another was lowered—the only remaining one—and the women and children put on board, with three men to row and steer it. Those remaining on the propeller having no means of escape quietly awaited coming events, looking around for whatever might buoy them up in the water. The vessel had been headed for the island, and when within about five miles began to surge and sink. She went down to her main deck, when, unexpectedly to all, she struck upon a bar of whose existence no one knew, and there she lay until help came and all the passengers were rescued."

☞ A correspondent of the Richmond Enquirer, in a description of the present condition of Charleston says: "In one of the widest and handsomest thoroughfares, a space just wide enough for the cart wheels is all that can be seen of the paving stones; all else is covered by tall grass and weeds, reminding you of a pathway through an old field in the country."

☞ In 1848, one-eighth of the whole population of England were paupers, and so relieved by Government.

ITEMS.

☞ Jeff. Davis' salary is nominally $25,000 a year; but by the depreciation of the confederate money, it is equal to but $1500; and on this practically he has to live, for the Federals have overtaken and destroyed nearly all his private property.

☞ There lives in Canada an old Dutch woman who received at her marriage from her husband a paper of pins. All of these with the exception of one or two she has preserved for thirty years, using them constantly all the while.

☞ A man died of intemperance in Philadelphia last week, and a post mortem examination revealed the fact that the membrane lining the stomach had been eaten through by the direct action of the poisoned liquor that caused his death.

☞ The rebels are said to be mining our works at Petersburg. A prisoner, recently captured, mentioned two points where they were engaged night and day undermining our works, and that countermining was going on at another place.

☞ Twenty thousand dollars in gold, belonging to the rebel government, was melted by a fire which burned an express car on the Danville road. The Petersburg Express says they have no mint to recoin it.

☞ There is a hospital for the insane of the Army and Navy at Washington, which contains two hundred and fifty persons from the Army and twenty from the Navy.

☞ It is reported that about fifteen thousand men are constantly working on the machinery of the hundred or more new vessels—wooden and iron-clad—now constructing for the Navy Department.

☞ The draft is ordered to commence in all States and districts, where the quota is not filled by volunteers, on Monday, the 19th, and will go on until completed.

☞ A telegram from Petersburg says that in view of the threatened condition of that city, last Tuesday was observed as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer.

☞ Through rebel sources confirmation is received that four of our gunboats now command Mobile city.

☞ Washington Territory is now in direct telegraphic communication with Washington.

☞ Another iron-clad French frigate, the Magnanime, has been launched at Brest.

☞ The tobacco crop in the Connecticut valley is the largest ever raised.

☞ An American newspaper has been started in Constantinople.

MARRIED.

At Bath, Me., Sept. 10th, 1864, by Eld. G. Douglass, Bro. GEORGE SEVERANCE, of Windsor, Vt., to Sr. MARTHA BOYNTON of the former place.

Notices.

Minnesota State Conference and Quarterly Meeting.

The Advent Christian Conference will hold its yearly session in connection with the Winona County Quarterly Meeting, at the Dudly and Perry school-house, in Utica Township, of said Co., beginning Oct. 7th, at two o'clock P. M.

Let every church send delegates, and every minister be in attendance if possible; otherwise be sure to report by letter. Churches and ministers who have not yet united, should be sure to do so this year, that we may move in order and harmony, and consequently with greater strength for good. Delegates should bring letters of appointment from churches, and ministers with whom we are not acquainted should bring with them letters of commendation. Eld. J. V. Himes is expected, and others will please to be with us. All that can come are invited to attend. Let us have a large and a good meeting. PHILIP RAMER.

Public Discussion

Between Miles Grant, of Boston, Mass., and Rev. J. G. Fish, of Michigan, of the following resolution: Resolved, That man has a spirit which exists after the death of the body in a conscious state, and communicates with the inhabitants of earth. Aff.—J. G. Fish. Neg.—Miles Grant.

Said discussion to be held in Bryan Hall, in Chicago, Ill., commencing Sept. 27th, 1864, and continue from evening to evening during the pleasure of the disputants.

Big Tent Meeting.

If the Lord will, the Big Tent will be pitched at Windham Centre, Me., about twelve miles from Portland, and meetings will commence Wednesday evening, Sept. 21st, and continue over Sunday, and as long as may seem duty. Any brethren in the region can have tent room enough if they will provide their own food and bedding. Bro. J. A. Libby is expected to be present. Pray for us.

The tent may be pitched in Canaan, Vt., soon after this meeting. May the Lord direct in all things. H. L. HASTINGS.

Notice.

Elder John Couch, of Warner, N. H., is on a visit West, and is preaching as the door opens to him to do good. We are glad for the brethren that he can visit and preach among them, as he will certainly do them good. Let all see to it, that they do not lose any of his meetings.

He will hold a meeting in Union Mills, Ind., of several days, to commence Sept. 29th, holding over the Sabbath.

He will also hold a meeting in Buchanan, Mich., to begin Oct. 9th, holding over the Sabbath. All are invited. J. V. HIMES.

Conference.

The Rhode Island and Eastern Connecticut Conference will hold its next session at Lafayette, commencing the first Wednesday in October, at two o'clock P. M. Let every church be represented, either by delegate or letter, or by both. Pray that God will pour out his Spirit upon this meeting, and that the church may be strengthened and sinners awakened.

A. C. GREENE, Secretary.

A Discussion.

A discussion between Eld. S. W. Bishop and Eld. A. Durfee will commence on Tuesday evening, Sept. 27th, and probably continue over the following Sunday, in Newmarket Hall, Providence, R. I.

Question for discussion, Resolved, That the Holy Scriptures teach that all men will have a resurrection to life. A. DURFEE affirms, S. W. BISHOP denies.

Meeting in Mt. Pleasant, Me.

The Lord willing, there will be a barn meeting in Mount Pleasant, in the east part of Stetson, commencing Wednesday, Sept. 28th, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the following Sunday. The first meeting is designed especially for prayer. Brethren from abroad are invited. Let the laborers come with the conviction that the Lord is able to save. S. HAMMOND.

Maine Eastern Quarterly Conference.

This Conference is appointed at Lincolnville Centre, Oct. 13th, at six o'clock P. M., and will continue till Sunday evening. We desire those intending to meet us in this conference, to come prepared to work for God's cause. Call on D. Fletcher, E. Blood, E. Caldenwood, and others, or the subscriber. M. YOUNG, Clerk.

To the Brethren.

Bro. E. McCullock, of Savoy, Mass., purposes to devote his time and labors in the gospel field as the Lord may direct and the way may open. We, the undersigned, cordially recommend him to the different churches as worthy of their confidence and support.

J. HEMENWAY.
C. GOODRICH.
H. PRATT.

Conference.

The Advent Christian Conference of Minnesota will be held in Utica, in the Chatham neighborhood, about sixteen miles from Winona, on the railroad. It will commence Sept. 24th, and continue a week or more. Meetings will be held in the Western Tabernacle, which will be pitched there for the occasion. J. V. HIMES.

Quarterly Meeting.

The next quarterly meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at Cascade, Dubuque, Co., Iowa, to commence Sept. 23d, and continue over Lord's day. PETER S. W. DEYO, Conf. Clerk.

Maine Advent State Conference.

This conference will commence in the Second Advent Hall, Congress Street, Portland, Thursday, Oct. 6th, at ten o'clock. Particulars hereafter.

I. C. WELLCOME, Secretary.

Maine Advent Ministerial Conference.

This conference will meet in connection with the quarterly conference in Portland.

[illegible] ROWARD, President.
C. H. [illegible], Secretary.

Notice.

I. C. Wellcome & Co. now have a good assortment of English Bibles, books, tracts, and hymn books for sale, at the regular prices. As the new hymn book is not to be published at present, we have contracted with Bro. Himes for the "Christian Lyre," so that we can supply those who want them in Maine at wholesale and retail. Prices according to the quantities wanted. Sent by mail or express. Address I. C. WELLCOME & Co., Yarmouth, Me.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $3.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

South Natick, Mass......Sunday, Sept. 25th
South Reading......evenings, Sept. 27th and 28th
Lynn, Mass......evening, Sept. 29th
West Abington, Mass......evening, Sept. 30th
Tremont, Mass., (as Bro. Benson may arrange), evening, Oct. 1st, and the following Sabbath, Oct. 2d, and through the week in the same town, with Bro. Davis.
Carver, Mass. Sunday, Oct. 9th, and through the week, except Saturday.
Holliston, Mass......Sunday, Oct. 16th
Will then answer to calls in R. I. and Conn., if the Lord will. H. K. FLAGG.

Lee, N. H......Sunday, Sept. 25th
Concord, N. H......Sunday, Oct. 2d
L. BOUTELL.

East Hartland, Methodist church)......Sunday, Oct. 23 and longer if desired. S. D. DANIELS.

South Windsor, Ct......Oct. 2d
S. P. BABCOCK.

Chester, Mass......Saturday eve, Oct. 1st
and over Sunday.
Walbridge, (School-house)......Oct. 16th and 23d
P. S. BUTLER.

Worcester, Mass......Sept. 25th
Palmer......Sept. 26th and 27th
Springfield, as Bro. A. R. White appoints......Sept. 28th
Hoosick Falls, N. Y......Sept. 30th, and Oct. 1st and 2d
Poultney, Vt......Oct. 4th and 5th
Castleton, Vt......Oct. 6th and 7th
Sandy Hill, N. Y......Oct. 8th and 9th
Brethren, pray for us. JOS. D. BROWN.

Bangor, (where Bro. L. Smith may appoint), Sept. 25th
North Searsport......Oct. 2nd
Searsport Village......Oct. 9th
Frankfort......Oct. 16th
A. MUSSEY.

South Windsor, Ct......Sunday, Sept. 25th
In the evening at South Manchester, as Bro. Hart may arrange. C. GOODRICH.

Sebec, Me., (school-house, near Bro. Joshua Livermore's), Friday and Saturday evenings, Sept. 23d and 24th, and Sunday the 25th. THOS. SMITH.

Farmington, N. H., (where Bro. Horn may appoint), Sept. 25th. NELSON HARTSHORN.

New Salem, N. H., (Daniel Robie's school-house), Sunday, Sept. 25th, at half-past ten o'clock.
C. RICHARDSON.

Unity, N. H., Friday afternoon, Sept. 30th, and over the following Sunday.
Dinsmore Hill, Hartland, Vt......Oct. 9th
Canaan Street, N. H......Sunday, Oct. 16th
A. SIMPSON.

Portsmouth, N. H......Oct. 16th
C. H. LEVERTON.

North Norway, Saturday evening, Sept. 24th, and over the Sabbath.
East Stoneham, Saturday evening, Oct. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Otisfield, (Gore school-house), Saturday evening, Oct. 8th, and over Sunday. J. T. JORDAN.

Leverett, Mass., Sept. 22d, every evening through the week, and over Sunday.
Northfield, Mass......Oct. 5th
West Brattleboro, Vt., (at Bro. Gage's), Oct. 6th and 7th
Whitakerville, Vt......Oct. 8th and 9th
Houghtonville, Vt., as Bro. O. D. Gibson may arrange), Oct. 11th.
Plymouth, Vt., (as the friends may arrange), Oct. 13th and every evening through the week, and over Sunday. Will the brethren and sisters in that region come and help us in the name of the Lord? GEO. A. STREETER.

Newport, N. H., (Bro. J. Hurd's District), Sunday, Sept. 25th.
Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)......Sunday, Oct. 2d
Pomfret, Vt., (Harrington school-house), Thursday and Friday evenings, Oct. 6th and 7th, and Sunday, Oct. 9th.
Also meet with other brethren at Newport, N. H., (Northville), Oct. 15th, two o'clock, P. M., and over the Sabbath, to assist in an ordination.
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Richmond, Me......evening, Sept. 22d
Litchfield, (near Bro. Howard Robinson's), eve., Sept. 23d.
Brunswick, Saturday eve., Sept. 24th, and Sunday 25th
Bath......evening, Sept. 26th
Yarmouth......evening, Sept. 27th
Biddeford......evening, Sept. 29th and 30th
Kennebunkport......Saturday evening, and over Sunday, Oct. 1st and 2nd.
I will attend these, if the Lord will, if they do not conflict with others. WM. M. INGHAM.

Hitchcockville, Ct......Sept. 24th and 25th
A. ROSS.

South Adams......Sept. 22d and 25th
Savoy, Mass., (where Bro. Sherman may appoint) Sept. 29th, and at Noah Merrick's Sunday, Oct. 2d.
B. WM. WILKINS.

Walbridge......Oct. 2d
A. M. HIGGINS.

Lovely Street, Ct......Sept. 25th
R. WILLIAMS.

Portland, Me......Sept. 25th
S. S. MOONEY.

Waterloo, N. H., (where Bro. James Davis may appoint......Sept. 25th
Chichester, New Dover, (school-house)......Oct. 2d
Suncook, N. H., (where Bro. Paine may appoint), Oct. 1st. Z. FORD.

Melvin Village, N. H......Sept. 25th
Brookfield Corner......Oct. 2d
T. W. PIPER.

Epping Corner, N. H......Sept. 25th
Manchester......Oct. 2d
C. C. STEVENS.

Augusta......evening, Sept. 24th, and Sunday 25th
H. B. SAVEY.

Agawam......Oct. 2d
BENJ. BUTLER.

Plainfield Pond, Mass......Sept. 25th
Newfane, Whitakerville, Vt......Oct. 21st
WM. J. BLANCHARD.

FOR PORTLAND, ME.

S. S. Mooney,......Sept. 25th

Forestville, Ct......Sept. 25th
Yalesville, Ct......Sunday, Oct. 2d
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Springfield, Mass., (Barnes' Block)......Sept. 25th
WM. A. FENN.

Portsmouth......Sept. 25th
Lynn......Thursday, Sept. 29th
Boston, (Lowell Street Chapel)......Oct. 2d
Cheshire Street, Ct......Oct. 9th
H. MUNGER.

Haverhill, Mass......Sept. 25th
A. SIMPSON.

Newport, N. H., (at Northville)......Sept. 25th and Oct. 9th and 23d. H. DEMING.
E. COTTON.

Worcester......Oct. 2d and 9th
Plymouth, Mass......Oct. 16th
J. S. WHITE.

Concord, N. H......Sunday, Sept. 25th
T. M. PREBLE.

ELD. C. P. DOW IN CANADA EAST.

Stanbridge, Burrough......Sept. 25th

Hoosick, N. Y., (Advent chapel)......Sept. 24th and 25th
North Bennington, Vt......Sept. 26th and 27th
Hawley, (at Bro. H. Barton's)......Oct. 1st
Plainfield Pond......Oct. 2d
Plainfield, (at Bro. Heley's)......Oct. 8th
Goshen......Oct. 9th
Dalton, or Plittstone......Oct. 14th and over the Sabbath. H. HADLOCK.

South Butler, N. Y.... forenoon and evening, Sept. 25th
Westcott, (school-house)......afternoon, Sept. 25th
Mannsville, N. Y......Oct. 2d
Wilcox Corners, N. Y......eve Oct. 6th
Barnes' Corners......Oct. 9th
Harrisburgh, (Bickford school-house)......eve, Oct. 11th
West Martinsburgh......Oct. 16th
Copenhagen......Oct. 23d
Bro. Fenn of Conn. will meet me at Mannsville, and help proclaim the gospel in the above places. Let there be an effort to get out the people. C. B. TURNER.

Savoy......Sept. 25th
North Adams......Oct. 2d
Griswoldville......Oct. 9th
Northfield......Oct. 16th
Brattleboro, Vt......Oct. 23d
Whitakerville......Oct. 30th
[illegible]

Warehouse Point, Ct......Sept. 25th
Scitico......Oct. 2d
L. E. POTTER.

Dorchester, N. H., (funeral sermon)......Sept. 25th
West Deerfield, N. H......eve, Sept. 28th
and over Sunday.
At the latter place expect Bro. S. Pinkham with me.
J. G. SMITH.

Bradford, N. H......Sept. 25th and remain as long as the interest demands.
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

West Brattleboro, Vt......Sept. 25th
Whitakerville, Vt......Oct. 2d
W. J. HALL.

Griswoldvill......Sept. 25th
Goshen......Oct. 2d
E. McCULLOCK.

Athol......Sept. 25th
Ashburnham, Mass......Sunday, Oct. 2d
S. S. BREWER.

West Stafford, Ct......Sunday, Sept. 25th
P. S. BUTLER.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State FROM which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Eliza A. Tuttle, Joseph Dudley, Polly King.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their POST OFFICE and STATE. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler.

Renel Willis wants his paper changed to East Auburn, but does not tell what office it is to be changed from. Will he give it?

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. F. Sweet—He is in Wisconsin. I have written to him.
C. P. Dow—Remittances for J. N. and A. R. T. received and credited; papers sent.
S. Woodruff—The $1.00 for N. W. was credited.
A. B. Cook—Not.
Mrs. P. Eastman—Received.
Nancy P. Pease "
J. A. Cole "
Enoch Pond "
C. Dennen "
M. G. Dunham "

CASH RECEIPTS.

The present No. of the Crisis is 463. The No. which follows your name, is the No. to which your money pays. Deduct the one from the other, and you will see how far you have paid in advance, or how much is due the office. Make a memorandum of the same, and you will be reminded when your subscription expires.

$1.00 each.—E Rogers 472, J Bust 497, W W Miller 481, P. Burnham 486, J Brackett 486, E. Kingsworth 486, T. L. Waugh 486, Mrs. J. H. Tomlinson 517, E G Greenleaf 487, A. H. Hatch 487, S A Coburn 490, J C Libby 461, J Sleeper 490, J. Davis 489, S. Calif 478, N Chase 490, F Eastman 468, M Knight 468, J Winn 480, B Simons 487, H H Stevens 473, G Hall 481, E M Mudgett 491, J Haley 489, R Heath 491, E J Towle 483, C H Hill 486, R. Morrill 500, H. E. Perkins 481, Mrs. S. Safford 485, W F Collier 468, M Blanchard 481, E Brundage 490, J Head 487, J Sullivan 489, J Inslee 443, S S Newgent 491, E A Shaw 489, P Blanchard 481, M Crabtree 484, J Warren 417, M Phillips 474, Mrs P Eaton 489, H. Baker 472, S (T?) J Rowe 489, D. Lawrence 535, A Grindell 535, B. Davis 535, H Farmer 470, S Bray 487, A C S Killin 470, S Snow 447, J Woodman 470, S Prescott (what P. O.?), W. H. Blaisdell 483, J. W. Marden 469, D French 470, E. A. Ricker 481, B Gray 455, E A Lake (what P. O.?).

$1.25 each.—J. Glidden (what P. O.?), S. A. Glazier 499, M. Summer 493, L C Glazier 510, W Walker 499, J. C. Young 492, W. C. Stewart 487, A J Hanson 484, J Russell 501, John Harlow 494, Allen Rice 491, A Baird 494, H P Mays 494, Wm Fleet 491, J Parker 491, E J Rice 494, J. C. Rice 494, J Peck 493, A J Iller 491, O Parker 494, J. Moore 497, E. H. Dennett 493, S Stone 494, J. Davidson 492, Jas. N. Clark 494, B. W. Hill 5 0, H. S. Peasley 491, C Twombly 494, H L Ellis (what P. O.?), C. H. Pickering (what P. O.?), A C Greene 4 0, C. P. Hays 492, J. G. White 492, S P Shepherd 481, C Ricker 492, J. Berry 484, J. H. Piper 458, F K Downs 463, O Davis 489, S Horn 83, S Boardman 494, E Whittier 492, Mrs N J Lonsley 483, M Belding 494, J Slager 501, M Cate 497, R C Jackman 494, J Ladd 494, J Kimball 494, A. Holt 493, H. F. Pray 492, E. A. Black 448, A Gordon 480, A. S Worth 493, O A Hartford 495, J H Hanscome 495, C H Nute 512, S Pike 507.

$1.50 each.—T. Williams 496, M B Gibson 478, C H Dudee 504, J L Prescott 494, Mrs L Bills 499.

$2.00 each.—W. Burnham 501, A Greeley 468, G W Rix 483, M. Hemenway 473, R Clark 493, J. Chapman 409, W S Kent 508, S J Blanchard 476, S Twitchell 468, E Hodsdon 478, D A Bean 500, J Nute 496, W Shapley 489, T. Williams 415, H J Estes 481, A B Hoyt 483, J Walker 472, E. M. Smith 392, ° Hall 501, J Drew 498, W Colbath 512, J Jones 496, C Haley 503, A Libby 501, E H Elliott 474, J. H. Osgood 489, G Brown 526, O H Emery 475, J M Jenness 489, W Simes 523, R F Wilson 494, R. R. Clark 500, C P Lyford 416, T. Wells 468, K Rowell 484, C Soper 477, J L Dwight 530, J E Roberts 510, H. Tuttle 505, Wm. Leaf 510, C H Whitman 509, J T Kimball 468, D Watson 497, P Tracy 489, J Morrill 491, R C Gray 468, S C Page 492, N Tibbetts 416, Mrs M. Gasper 475, L. J. B. Miller 474, I. Norton 440, J J Lougee 434, G W Lougee 495, G Jackson 493, J C Eates 482, S Turner 510.

$3.00 each.—J F Bush 525, S. E. R. Brock 510, B. G. Brown 312, J S Moulton 490, G H Cilley 474, W Parker 501, H Hyde 478, H H Watson 505, Mrs. H. Whipple 478, C H Myers 479, J H Morgan 468, Warren Gray 460, D. Gatchell 382, P. B. Millisin 461, M. A. Eaton (what P. O.?).

$4.00 each—Joseph Dudley 468, C. M. Gerritt 491, J. Sawyer 469, J Ring 503.

50c each.—T. H. Piper 476, T. Bailey 476, H. Adams 469, A P Chapin 516, C. Colomy 468, S O Carlton 477, A H Walker 470, S Copeland 477, Mrs. A. Stockbridge (what P. O.?).

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J R Best $2.00, A. Mishber $1.50, A C Green $3.07, J. K. Bellows $5.00, V. Frieze 25c, I. Kulp $2.15, P. Blanchard 10c, J. W. Taylor 22c, J C Good 25c, H Hall $1.00, J Metcalf $1.00, Mrs. G A French 25c, M Crabtree $2.00, C. Soper 27c, Mrs J. Keys 10c, J M Tosier 90c.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

P S W Deyo, M J C Pierce, O P Allen, G W Gillespie, P P Clay, H A Sinden, S Bradley, [illegible], Friese, M B R Straight, L R Otis, J W Taylor, J Chapman, A Fenton, L Scott, D F Newton, A Greely, E A Annable, T. L. Waugh, A. M. A., O. R. Fassett, I M Moulton, I. Brown, N Hartshorn, L. A. Osgood, D. L. Clark, J. M., W J Lombard, G W Thomas, P A Smith, J Sadler, I Kulp, J S Olive, E S Willard, H P Chase.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.
O. R. Fassett—Sandy Hill, N. Y.
L. C. McKinstry—Hatley, C. E.
Jas. S. Heath—Neponset, Bureau Co., Ill.
John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.
Dr. H. H. Brown, Allen, Allegany Co., N. Y.
A. W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.
Wm. Shepherd—Newark, N. J.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75, Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $3.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

VALUABLE BOOKS FOR SALE.

BUTTERWORTH'S CONCORDANCE. Rather less full than Cruden's Condensed, but superior to it in some respects, viz., it gives definitions of most of the words, and it gives also a Concordance to the marginal readings of the Bible, which are quite as important as the Text. Price $1.50, postpaid.

THE PARABLE OF DIVES AND LAZARUS: Does it teach that endless sufferings await the lost? By H. G. Storer. A valuable and interesting little pamphlet, by an eminent Congregational minister of Maine. 15 cents.

PROF. C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS. A complete assortment. 1. Debt and Grace, $1.25. 2. Christ our Life; cloth 60 cts., paper 35 cts. 3. Human Destiny and Tracts, 85 cts. 4. Human Destiny, in cloth, 50 cts., paper 30 cts. 5. Discussion with Cobb, $1.25.

ROY'S HEBREW DICTIONARY, in which every Hebrew word in the Bible is found, and its pronunciation given in English letters, with numerous references to places where it occurs, etc. Price $4.50.

ENGLISH REFERENCE BIBLES, a good selection. $1.00 to $4.50.

LARDNER'S WORKS, 10 volumes 8vo. Two copies of this, the ablest and most elaborate defense of Christianity ever published. It is an English book, and is scarce. It is worth at least $20 per set. These will be sold for less than they can be imported, viz., $16 per copy.

The above are to be sent by express at the purchaser's expense.

Address H. L. HASTINGS, Boston, Mass.

BOOK NOTICES.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid the troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, growing-in-nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present clash. By T. P. Tukesbury. Price, 6 cts.; postage 2 cts. [illegible]

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed [illegible]

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. [illegible]

Spiritualism. Discussion with J. S. Loveland. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom. [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church. [illegible] ITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION. [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man. [illegible] H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures. [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church......20c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man......20c.
Reasons for my Hope......20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion......20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly......20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul......10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life......10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church......10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single......10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY, BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal. [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an able [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and of the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a pleasant [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible] One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.50.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, can at once be found, [illegible] Leather binding $1.75, postage 25c.

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan House at Bristol, England, [illegible] Price $1.25.

Two Hundred Stories for Children. An excellent and entertaining book for young and old, compiled by T. M. Preble. Price 40c, postage 8c.

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, showing by copious extracts from History, the fulfilment of Christ's Predictions, and the Kingdom of God soon to come. By I. C. Wellcome. Price 25c, postage 5c.

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hall. 25c, postage 8c.

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah, showing its application to the United States of America in the present conflict, and of the dispensation. By O. R. Fassett. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the Kingdom of Satan, the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ. [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c, postage 2c.

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. 5c, postage 2c.

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ [illegible] By Mrs. Mary A. Reynolds. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. [illegible] By Phineas A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. R. W. Hand. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: [illegible] By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

Home Thrusts, and Home Thoughts. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life, [illegible]

Louis Napoleon, the Destined Monarch of the World, [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace, Or the Doctrine of a Future Life. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery, an occasion of Scepticism. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, a Evil Eternal? [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to [illegible]

Social Hymns.

Original and selected, by H. L. H. 10 cts. single, $1.00 per dozen, [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

FINAL RETRIBUTION.

Behold the Lord's Anointed One,
Jesus the King, will quickly come;
He'll come with his power and glory too,
[illegible]
The dead will rise at his command;
From sea, from ocean, and from land;
Both small and great together meet,
And stand before the judgment-seat.

The works of all will there be shown,
The deeds of each will then be known;
The Judge of all, in justice true,
Will give to each what is their due.

The just of every age and clime,
Who have obeyed his words in time,
Will all be welcomed by the Son,—
"Ye blessed of my Father, come,

"For you the kingdom was prepared,
[illegible]
I'll make you kings and priests to be,
And you on earth shall reign with me."

But on the wicked he will frown,
And unto dust will bring them down;
Destruction they will undergo,
Which is the end of every foe.

Oh! sinner, turn from sin away!
Now seek the Lord, make no delay;
For Jesus Christ will quickly come
To give reward to every one.

East Bloomfield, N. Y. ALMON HALL.

For the World's Crisis.

SOCIAL PARTIES.

We learn that ministers and church officers in some places, are encouraging social or neighborhood parties — recommending the members of their charge to meet occasionally, and spend an evening in friendly chitchat, have a supper, perhaps wind up with an innocent game of some kind, to promote a more general sociability and friendly intercourse.

Sociability is a good thing—we admire it, but we would respectfully ask, if there is not a better, and more scriptural way of promoting social and friendly feeling among the people? Why not appoint a weekly meeting in every church, on holiness, entire sanctification, the higher christian life. We know of no better or surer way to promote sociability, friendship, love and christian union. Nothing binds God's people so closely and firmly in the bonds of affection, and love, as the baptism of the Holy Spirit—the tongue of fire. This spirit, too, will banish all trifling, levity, foolish talking and jesting so common at many of these social parties.

It will also heal all divisions, backslidings, heartburnings, roots of bitterness, all envyings and evil-speakings. Besides it will qualify for active service, spiritual labor, holy zeal, self-sacrifice in the cause of God, in the salvation of souls.

These meetings for holiness, in our view, are infinitely superior to mere social parties, tea parties, picnics, soirees, oyster suppers, and holiday feastings, to increase and perpetuate sociability. We should rejoice to see them established in every church in the land; then hope would dawn and angels tune their harps afresh, "Glory to God in the highest." O, how numerous are the devices of Satan! How devilishly artful is he in decoying us from the path of duty, in cheating our souls, and making us hew out to ourselves cisterns that hold no water.

If these parties are not promotive of holy living, of advancement in the divine life, evil tendencies are sure to follow. "What is not of faith is sin." Christ attended social parties, so did the early disciples. But how was the time occupied at these social gatherings —in feasting to excess, in light-mindedness, in frivolity, in "foolish talking or jesting, which are not convenient," in "words to no profit"? Did they sit down to eat and drink and rise up to play?

The early christians associated, held religious festivals with the view of cultivating mutual affection and friendly intercourse among each other. The entertainment was prepared by the richer members, to which the poor were invited. There they testified their love by mutual acts of kindness, all partaking of the same plain, simple, wholesome fare; meanwhile liberally supplying the necessities of the indigent.

Concerning these feasts of charity, Pliny gives an account in a letter to the Emperor Trajan; "Their practice is," says he, "to meet before day, and sing a hymn to Christ, and bind themselves by a solemn oath to do no wickedness. These things performed, they separate, and meet again to partake of a common and innocent meal." Their conversation meanwhile, was such as became the gospel of Christ, being sanctified by the word of God and prayer. To glorify God, in their bodies and in their spirits, was uppermost invariably, from first to last.

Tertullian, in his Apology for the Christians, alluding to the same fact, says, "We christians look upon ourselves as one body, actuated, as it were, by one soul. When, therefore, we are at the charge of an entertainment, it is to refresh the bowels of the needy. We feed the hungry, because we know that God takes a peculiar delight in seeing us do it. Nothing earthly or impure has any admittance. Our souls ascend to God before we sit down to eat. We eat only what suffices nature. We sup like servants who know that we may awake in the night to the service of the Master; and we discourse as those who recollect that God hears them. When supper is ended, every one is invited forth to sing praises to God. As we begin, so we conclude, all with prayer, and depart with the same degree of temperance we came."

Are the social gatherings at the present day thus in accordance with gospel purity and order? thus promotive of singleness of heart, of christian benevolence, of entire consecration to God and his service? Are they a means of grace? Do they promote a spirit of prayer, of holy living, stimulate to acts of self-denial, in spreading divine light? If so, the Lord speed them, multiply them. Christ says, "When thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind, and thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee, for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

"Whatever dims the sense of truth,
Or stains the purity [illegible]
[illegible]"

The time was when religion was to be exterminated by the sword, the faggot and the inquisition; but in the nineteenth century, a more successful plan has been adopted. The spirit of compromise, is now at work. Satan transforms [illegible] and the [illegible] laudable objects will justify any means. A fancy fair, soiree, tea party, or a raffling match may be gotten up with much propriety if a church debt is to be paid, or a donation party, [illegible] with the follies of a whole night's revelling at the parsonage, if the proceeds are only given to the minister; secret combinations—professors and sinners, may exhibit all the folly imaginable with gorgeous expense of regalia, public dinners, etc.; while many honest debts are unpaid, and many poor are starving for bread; yet this is all sanctified by offering prayer at commencement, and taking along the Bible. The end sanctifies the means!

D. F. NEWTON, Author of Home Thrusts.

For the World's Crisis.

PLEASE READ.

BROTHER GRANT:—I have been meditating some of late on the sleepy doctrine, so called by people this way; thinking how it seemed to affect some of our professed christians; those, too, that believe in a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust; who also believe that Jesus is coming to judge the quick and the dead; yet these very persons will fight against—put far away the appearing of our Saviour. The sleep of the dead seems to be the rock on which they split. Sleep of the dead! an unconscious state! How absurd! They say reason teaches a man that he has a part in him that is immortal; a part that can never die; whether holy or unholy will live forever.

Well, to what does such a belief as this lead? Ask one where the saint goes to at death, he will answer at once, Gone to be with Jesus. But where is the sinner? Oh! he has gone to be with the ——, of course. Well, are they safe now? Not quite safe. And why? What more? The saint is at home, and likewise the sinner. What more is needed to be done? Judged. Oh! yes, they must be judged, must they? What for? Because the Bible says so. Jesus hath appointed a day in which he will judge all mankind according to the deeds done here in the body.

Now we can see what is to come. The saint must leave the bright realms of glory, the ungodly their place of torment, and appear before their Judge. Nothing seems to be sure till after the Judgment. We might suppose if we consider this subject, that there was a mere possibility that the saint, even, after enjoying the unspeakable glories of the better land, would be weighed in the balance and found wanting, and again some others that had been writhing in hell might find that there had been a mistake made in relation to their case, and that they had been wrongfully dealt with.

If we take this view of the Judgment the above thoughts are somewhat in place.

R. H. NYE.

For the World's Crisis.

PEN PICTURES OF BIBLE SCENES.

NUMBER THIRTEEN.

MOSES RECEIVING HIS COMMISSION.

Moses stands in exile upon the mount of Horeb, meditating upon the oppression of his kindred. He sighs over the burdens they are compelled to bear, and longs for some token of their deliverance. As he gazes out upon the strange solitude around him, the memories of his past life steal over him.

A mysterious providence seems to have preserved him thus far, for some wise purpose to him unknown. His mother has told him how the cruel king of Egypt had commanded that all the male children should be destroyed, but that she had concealed him a long time, till at last she was compelled to place him in a little ark of rushes, and commit him to the waves of the Nile and the care of God whom she feared. The king's daughter found him there in the innocence of babyhood, and his childish tears found sympathy in her heart. She adopted him as her son, and in selecting a nurse chanced to obtain his very mother, under whose care he grew up to boyhood, and was then received into the household of Pharaoh.

The glory of the court did not woo him from the love of his own people. The splendor of the monuments of art, the mighty pyramid, the gloomy Sphinx, and the lofty obelisk, pleased not his eye, dazzled not his heart; for they had been reared by the toiling hands of his oppressed brethren. He daily passed through the crowded streets of Memphis, or saw the new city of Rameses daily rise with increased beauty where his kindred toiled under the taskmaster. He looked upon their burden, and sighed for their relief. Yet he dreamed not that ere long he was destined to lead forth these oppressed hosts from bondage to freedom and triumphant victory. Yet there were times when he could no longer resist the opportunity of assisting his people against the oppressor.

On one occasion he slew the aggressing Egyptian and delivered the Hebrew. His life was endangered by this transaction, and he fled to the land of Midian for safety. It is in this life of exile that we now find him, tending the flocks of Jethro, his father-in-law.

As he meditates amid the solitude of Horeb, a bush, at a short distance, appears clothed with dazzling fire, yet unconsumed. Moses wonders at the sight, when a voice issues from the fiery bush, calling upon him to come not near, for the place was holy ground where he stood. The Lord informs Moses that He is the God of his fathers, that the affliction of the children of Israel has come up to heaven, that the time for their deliverance has come, when they should go forth into the land promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Now the Lord further says, "Come now, therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people, the children of Israel, out of Egypt." And Moses replies, "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?"

Moses feels unworthy to be the messenger of Heaven to his kindred, and he also fears they will not credit his words even if they are words of hope and freedom; and he further asks, if they should inquire who sent him, what he should say; and he is told, the terrible name of Jehovah—"I AM THAT I AM." He is told to say that the "I AM" has sent him on the errand of hope.

Then Moses receives signs from the Lord to perform before the people, that they might believe in his divine commission. His rod is transformed into a serpent; his arm becomes leprous, and is made sound again; and further, he is told to command the water to become blood, and that it should obey him. Now Moses complains that he is not eloquent, but slow of speech, as though God were not able to give him power to deliver his message. But the Lord bears with him and promises that Aaron shall be his spokesman; and further, to be with them and teach them what to say in the presence of the haughty court of Pharaoh.

Thus the sublime interview ends, the first between Jehovah and Moses of a long series that were to transpire in the wonderful future. Moses has now received his commission from the mouth of the terrible "I AM," and leaves the solitary wilds of Horeb to bid farewell to Jethro, and with his family seek once more the scenes of his boyhood and the oppression of Israel.

For the first time he had heard the voice of that God his mother had taught him to fear and worship. For the first time he had received sure words of hope that his people were to be made free; yet he was told they were to come out of bondage with a strong arm and after the scourging of the oppressor.

The future leader of the hosts of Israel, and their lawgiver, has now entered upon his sublime life of faith and trust. He has heard the voice that is to make the cloud-pavilioned summits of Sinai tremble; the voice that was to lead him and Israel through terrible scenes and triumphs, before the possession of Canaan. He has heard that there is hope for the captive and the down-trodden, and his heart is strengthened. His pulse beats with a new-found joy, for a brighter day has dawned. He sees not the long journeyings through the desert wastes. He listens not to the murmurings of the people in the wilderness, that would bring the anger of the Lord upon them even after they had tasted of the bounty of Heaven. He leaves all the great unknown to God, and goes forth to do his bidding with a lofty trust and a sublime faith in the God of his fathers.

ORRIN P. ALLEN.

For the World's Crisis.

A REVERIE ON OUR LAST TWO CAMPMEETINGS.

Campmeetings! The very word sounds novel. And yet it is not novel. They are quite common things. Are they good institutions? That is the question. Some good in them, certainly. Some bad, too; much bad. Well, people will have them. Some will. What is to be done? What is the good? Some are converted. Yes, many are. Will they endure? Some do; some do not. So in all reforms and all revivals. Such is humanity. Saints revived? Yes. Many can so witness. A good place to meet and greet friends. That is so. Great expense! True. "Might not this ointment have been sold for three hundred pence, and been given to the poor?" Judas. Who gives most to the poor; he who attends or he who refrains? That is the grave question.

Well, the great reaction. I know it. All human matters react. Stop acting at all, then. Not quite! I cannot tell as to all the good or bad. I am not in full favor of them. Yet I go? What for? To see friends. Partly that. No higher motive? Well, I would try to do some good in all places.

The time came. I went. How clear the sky! How fine the weather! How sweet the air! How beautiful the grove! I love rural beauty. O God, I see thee in the trees. I hear thee in the murmurs of mingled sounds. "God is love." Friends met. I love the smiling faces. What is life aside from such warm friendship as the heart covets? Go from me stiff, cold, lifeless dignity. Is not a quick succession of showers and sunshine more delightful than a clear, cold December sky?

Here they are. Old, young, all classes. Now the worship. The songs sound of heaven. Bold, strong, spiritual. Well, they seem so. Earnest and devotional praying. Some too long. Some too loud. Yes. A common fault, however, with many. What then? Shall we sternly rebuke them? Strike softly. The reed is tender. Would that all might pray even though the manner be faulty. God will pity the weakness of those sincere.

The preaching. Force meets force. Truth and error strive. O for the Holy Spirit! On they come to speak, one by one. Hear the strong young men. They mean well. It is somewhat broken. It is well, nevertheless. They are true and earnest. God help them. They will do some execution. David and his sling. Saul and his armor. The contrast.

Some wooden crafts. Some iron-clads. Let them fight for God. A sloop-of-war from the West. One, two, three whole broadsides! Ah! that last one. That was tremendous! Well done, feminine! I am your witness of its effect! See the enemy flutter. It is no use. Do not fire back. It is only a woman! Deborah and the nail and hammer. Let Barak praise God, too.

There is the old iron-clad from Chicopee. Slug after slug. Awful rough and ragged ones. But the enemy drew the fire. Why complain? Pour in grape, Vegetarian, on the old Roman Beast. Now is his death-hour. Well done, Tractman. A whole division following you from Jerusalem to Fort Advent. The enemy's retreat is cut off from Mystic Corner. Do what you can, Evangelist. Give the soldiers their rations from the great deposit.

Well, it did seem to move well. What! some malcontents? What for? O! grumbling is poor business. Surely it is not good soldiering. You do not agree with the General in command? But he knows best. Better not dispute his Word. It is hard to kick in some directions. Do not twist His orders. Let them stand as they read. Will disputation in a tent, or under a tree, or an isolated hobby, convert a rebel to a Union man? Be a gentleman. Not in a smooth dress and smiling face merely, but in ACTION! Begging the sympathy of the few is of less importance than seeking truth and the welfare of many. We are not the seed of Ishmael, but of Christ. If what you say is the truth —what then? Is it more important than all other truth? Come, man, the enemy first, disputes afterward.

I love broad minds. What a mean thing "I" is when isolated! Christian character, christian courtesy, christian co-operation, christian gentle manners. Pretty words. Prettier actions! When will we learn? You do not have liberty? I do. Yet I do not quite agree with my fellow-soldiers. But I will not fire away my ramrod to spite some one.

Avoid squabbling. The enemy, brothers, the enemy; not your fellow-soldier's musket. Stick to the orders, brother. Do not palaver. The orders, the orders! I do not care about your argument. What is the plain word of Gen. Immanuel? We have had too much argument. Give us plain words of God. Talk, talk, talk. It is sickening. "Shall a man full of talk be justified?"

O self! keep out of the question. Christ, Christ, Christ. That is the word. Do not, while the battle is raging, stand there and whine with that little clique. Up and do the soldier's work. Up, put it through! But "where the word of the King is there is power." The word of the Lord will triumph. Let the coward turn and flee. Let the discontented murmur. Some are true. God help the true.

EDWIN BURNHAM.

For the World's Crisis.

THE KING OF KINGS.

"Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and KEEP those things which are written therein; for THE TIME IS AT HAND." "Grace be unto you, and peace, from HIM which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven spirits which are before HIS throne; and from JESUS CHRIST, the faithful witness, the first begotten from the dead, and the PRINCE of the kings of the earth."

"Unto HIM that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to HIM be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen." "Behold! he cometh with clouds and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him, and all kindred of the earth shall wail because of him." "I was in the Spirit on the LORD'S day, and heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet, saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last."

To those who are well acquainted with the Bible, I need not say the above is taken from the first chapter of Revelation. Please turn to the Book and carefully notice whether there is any discrepancy between your book and this quotation, and then read the description of the KING as HE appeared to the beloved disciple. Then turn to the nineteenth chapter of the same book, and read from the eleventh verse to the sixteenth.

"And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS." "And he saith unto me, seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book for the time is at hand." "Surely I come quickly."

"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet HIM."

F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

W. Sutton, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

KEEP HOLD OF MY HAND.

Keep hold of my hand, O Father on high,
Hold me while wildly the tempests sweep by;
Let me not fall 'mid the hurricane's roar,
Bring me in safety to Canaan's blest shore.

Keep hold of my hand when others let go,
Let me thy care and thy tenderness know;
When others fail, do thou by me stand,
Ever my friend, guide me safe by thy hand.

Keep hold of my hand, O Jesus, I pray;
Lead me thyself over life's rugged way;
LOVE ME, O Savior, thy love is so pure,
Ever so tender and long to endure.

Keep hold of my hand till time shall be past,
And bring me to reign in thy kingdom at last;
Praise shall be given thee now, Lord, and then,
Father and Son, amen and amen.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

North Dana, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

ASHAMED OF JESUS CHRIST.

There are many people in this enlightened age who are ashamed of Jesus Christ. Young people have peculiar temptations to be ashamed of Christ. And some of this class may be considerably acquainted with the truths of the gospel, may have a respect for religion and for the worship of God; but why are you ashamed of Christ? Is it not in part on account of your irreligious companions? You love to be highly esteemed of them; you wish to be popular. But if you become christians, you fear you will lose their friendship and be made the subjects of their ridicule. You have at times, it may be, many serious thoughts about religion. You have deep impressions of your guilt as sinners, and are convinced that Christ is the only refuge from the wrath to come. But lest the world wonder, or vain ones deride, you carefully conceal your feelings, shun the company of pious friends, and seek to appear as thoughtless and as gay as any about you. You affect a boldness you do not feel, in sinning against God, and braving the warnings of his providence and Word.

Let me affectionately ask you is this either wise or reasonable? Depend upon it the fears you entertain of ridicule and opposition should you follow Christ are greatly exaggerated. Those whose opinions are worth regarding will only respect you the more for your piety—peradventure they will follow your example. But suppose it otherwise. Let the ungodly frown and the thoughtless utter their idle jests. Will you lose your soul to please them? Will their applause profit you when God shall enter into judgment with you? Mark the fearful consequences if you do slight all his warnings. Only confess his name on earth and he will not be ashamed to confess you as an heir of the Kingdom when he comes.

But if you go on rejecting the grace of Christ, a few days longer the day of reckoning will come, and then he will be ashamed of you. This world you now love so well will be wrapped in flames. The companions whose sneers and frowns you now so much dread, will stand with you, quaking with terror at their own expected doom; and the Savior from whom one smile of approbation would be worth worlds to you, will proclaim, Depart, ye cursed, I know you not!

I have written for my young readers this word of warning, that they may escape from such an end. O! yield not to this criminal weakness. Be not ashamed of Christ! Step boldly forth as friends of Christ. Do not sell your souls for the empty applause of the world, nor let an undue regard for the opinions of other people prevent your seeking salvation. Embrace the cross of Christ, and make it your glory and rejoicing. Then walking with your Saviour for a little season in humility and self-denial, he will come and receive you to himself, to be clothed in robes of white and to sit down with him in the Kingdom of God.

Yours, seeking to be ready when Jesus comes.

HANNAH.

Athol, Mass.

HOW TO GET RID OF MOSQUITOES.—Mosquitoes love beef blood better than they do any that flows in the veins of human kind. Just put a couple of generous pieces on plates near your bed at night, and you will sleep untroubled by those pests. In the morning you will find them full and stupid with beef blood, and the meat sucked as dry as a cork.

TO CLEAN KNIVES.—One of the best substances for cleaning knives and forks is charcoal, reduced to a fine powder, and applied in the same manner as brick-dust is used.

FORSAKING ALL FOR CHRIST.

"Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple."—LUKE 14: 33.

(Concluded.)

There is still another kind of christians, in a more advanced state of sanctification, who will make some sacrifice, and give at the expense of their small comforts, yet they do not approach the loving law,—"Let him that hath two coats give to him that hath none; and let him that hath meat do likewise," (Luke 3: 11), which is the law of the wholly sanctified, the wholly self-renounced, self-hating disciple. "For if any man come to me and hate not his own life also, he cannot be my disciple; for he that loveth his own life shall lose it, but he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal." John 12: 25, 26; Luke 14: 26–33. Fenelon truly observes, "If a man has forsaken his sins, he has not forsaken all, unless he has forsaken himself." To this we may add, that unless he has forsaken all, he cannot fully live up to this gospel measure of love, and this is really the reason why he cannot be a disciple, unless he has forsaken all. "For he that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is love." 1 John 4: 8. This is not love to friends, for that is but another form of self-love, loving them because they love us, and in Scripture is classed with heathen love. If we do no more than this, it may be truly said, what do ye more than others—do not even sinners the same? Matt. 5: 46–48.

This Godlike love, we see, is "love to enemies," "doing good to those who hate us, blessing those who curse us, and praying for those who despitefully use us." And this is not occasionally or seldom, but constantly and persistently. It implies not an act impelled by a sense of duty only, but a state of the heart as permanent, as lasting as life. "Long-suffering" is the most appropriate term, as it is also its most important characteristic. "Charity (which in this connection is but another name for love), is not easily provoked, but suffereth long, and is kind." 1 Cor. 13: 4, 5. Even forgiving seventy times seven. Matt. 18: 21–35; Matt. 5: 23–26. Each person must be forgiven this often. This, in connection with the injunction to do good unto them in all things, even while in the act of doing unkindness to us, would make a perpetual state of forgiving, long-suffering, loving kindness, like Him who forgave his enemies, even while in the very act of mangling the hand that was stretched out to save them: who forgot all self-pity and self-sparing, in commiseration for the more dreadful doom they were bringing upon themselves. He did not cry, Pity, save, and deliver me, but "forgive them, for they know not what they do." "And if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his," whatever else he may have. Rom. 8: 9.

Now self-love is utterly at variance and at enmity with this spirit, because it is one of the fruits of the carnal mind, which is enmity against this long suffering Godlike love, which is among the chief fruits of the spiritual mind. Gal. 5: 22. How, then, can a man possess this, without obedience to the Saviour's mandate not only to forsake all outward things that belong to the carnal mind, but all inward things that belong to self-love, and to become self-hating, as this is included in the mandate? Luke 14: 26, 27, 33. How otherwise can we bear a daily cross, without going around it, or turning aside? Self-love and self-indulgence are the antipodes of a self-denying, self-renouncing, cross-bearing spirit, and they cannot coalesce; but as they are to be at enmity, they must make war, where they dwell in the same heart, until one or the other is cast out. The carnal mind is at ease until the Spirit enters the arena of the soul—so to speak—then the conflict commences; "for the Spirit lusteth against (or opposeth) the flesh and the flesh lusteth (or warreth) against the Spirit. And these are contrary the one to the other." What is the conclusion? "This I say, then, walk in the Spirit." Why? Because "the Spirit lusteth against the flesh." "And ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh." Why? Because "the flesh lusteth against the Spirit."

Here it is plainly implied that we can by our walk assist the Spirit in the victory over the flesh. And if we can, we must; our obligation is imperative. And there is more implied in it than that. It is a life and death question. "For if ye do live after the flesh ye shall die." Why? Because "to be carnally minded is death." "But if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body ye shall live." Why? Because "to be spiritually minded is life." It is most remarkable, that in this very "walk of the Spirit," it is said, by love serve one another; for "all the law is fulfilled in this one word, even in this, love thy neighbor as thyself." (Gal. 5: 13, 14, 16.) As if love, and the kindly dispositions and acts emanating from it, are the principal part of the "walk of the Spirit." We see also from these Scriptures that our way of living is of vital importance, since he that "liveth after the Spirit shall reap life," and he that liveth after the flesh shall reap corruption. Rom. 8: 13, 14. Gal. 6: 7–9. In this last text all men are represented as sowers and reapers. Some sowing to the Spirit, and reaping life, and others sowing to the flesh, and reaping corruption.

This is a fearful fact, the awful importance of which it will be impossible to realize fully, until we appear at the judgment seat of Christ: that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. "Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."—2 Cor. 5: 10, 11. Then the smallest acts will be noted, and commended. We may think it a small thing to visit the sick, or to give a loaf of bread to the hungry, but it is not so in the divine estimate. And the ungodly may think it a small thing to neglect those duties, but it is not so there. For one receives as much importance in the scale of condemnation, as the other in the scale of approbation, and proportionate rewards to each. But to give only of our surplus means, is but half of the principle here illustrated; and to do good when no inconvenience or self-sacrifice is involved, is but a small part of that spirit of love by which we serve one another even as ourselves. Voluntary self-sacrifice, and consistent, and persistent self-denial are very rare in our day, but there must be more of it if we would succeed in resisting the evils of our age, and arresting, as much as lies within us, the tide of evil that is so freely flowing into, as well as out of, the church; the muddy stream of which is sufficient to befoul the world, if unresisted, and unwatered by grace. Self-denying examples are wanting, as well as self-denying work. Let us cite one or two examples among the eminent teachers of this doctrine in the past. We will transcribe a conversation recorded in Wesley's Sermon "On the danger of increasing Riches."

"Some years since I told a gentleman 'Sir, I am afraid you are covetous.'

He asked me, 'What is the reason of your fear?'

I answered, 'A year ago, when I made a collection, you subscribed five guineas; at the subscription made this year, you subscribed only a half guinea.'

He made no reply, but after a time said: 'Why do you live upon potatoes?' (Wesley did so between three and four years.)

I replied, 'It has much conduced to my health.'

He answered, 'I believe it has. But did you not do it likewise to save money?'

I said I did; for what I save from my own meat, will feed another that else would have none.'

'But, sir,' said he, 'if this be your notion, you may save much more. I know a man that goes to market at the beginning of every week; then he buys a pennyworth of parsnips, which he boils in a large quantity of water. The parsnips serve him for food, and the water for drink, the ensuing week. So his meat and drink together cost him only a penny a week.'

This he constantly did, though he had then two hundred pounds a year, to pay the debts which he had contracted before he knew God."

It requires a complete forsaking of self-love, in order to exercise this kind of self-denying love to others; and if a man can forsake all things, then the painful conflict between the flesh and the Spirit ceases; "For they that are (wholly) Christ's, have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts."

A. P. J.

THE SCOFFER SILENCED.

An infidel from Louisiana saw in a steamboat on the Mississippi a minister whom he heard deliver a discourse on infidelity. Gathering his associates to the table, he began to tell hard things about religion and religious people, the Bible and its ministers. The minister said nothing.

At length the infidel came up, and suddenly slapping him on the shoulder, said,—

"Old fellow, what do you think of these things?"

"Do you see that beautiful landscape?"

"Yes."

"If you were to send out a dove he would pass over it, see and delight in all that is beautiful and lovely; but if you were to send out a buzzard, he would see nothing to fix his attention, unless he could find some rotten carcass, loathsome to all other animals; on it he would light and gloat with exquisite pleasure."

"Do you mean to compare me to a buzzard?"

"I made no allusion to you."

The disciple of Tom. Paine walked off in confusion, and was called Buzzard the rest of the passage.—Sel.

HOW TO CUT GLASS WITH A PIECE OF IRON. —Draw with a pencil, on paper, any pattern to which you would have the glass conform; place the pattern under the glass, holding both together with the left hand—for the glass must not rest on any plain surface—then take a common spike or some similar piece of iron, heat the point of it to redness, and apply it to the edge of the glass; draw the iron slowly forward, and the edge of the glass will immediately crack; continue moving the iron slowly over the glass, tracing the pattern, and the clink in the glass will follow at the distance of about half an inch, in any direction, according to the motion of the iron. It may sometimes be found requisite, however, especially in forming corners, to apply a wet finger to the opposite side of the glass. Tumblers and other glasses may be cut or divided, very fancifully, by a similar means. The iron must be re-heated as the crevice in the glass ceases to flow.—Scientific American.

TREATMENT OF HENS.—Linseed meal is found to be a great promoter of egg-laying. Mixed with scalded meal or shorts, or with sour milk, it is readily eaten, and is a good substitute for animal food and insects. Hens like Indian corn better than any other grain, and it is their cheapest food. For confining hens, a covered room, with a dry earth floor, is much better than an open yard, which the rain keeps in a filthy state most of the time. With sand to roll in, hens may be confined under cover the whole season. Half an hour before sunset they should be let out to range over the yard and garden. They will then be too busy picking grass, gravel, etc., to scratch and do mischief, being always in a hurry to return to the roost before twilight. Hens thus kept will more than twice pay for their keeping, if not too old to lay well.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

FACTS ABOUT EATING.

If too much food is taken, the stomach can not convert it into a perfect blood material, hence no perfect blood is made, and that being mixed with the other blood in the body makes the whole mass of blood impure; hence, after an over-hearty meal a person "feels bad all over." If the over-eating is habitual, there is always some uncomfortable symptom complained of. Such persons are never well, and although they may eat heartily, they do not get strong nor fill up in flesh; it is because the stomach has been over-taxed and has not the power to extract the nourishment from the food.

When persons do not get strong, although they eat a great deal, they will get stronger by eating one half less; as a sickly servant in attempting to do a large amount of work, does none of it well, whereas, if the task were a light one, the whole of it would have been thoroughly done.

When any uncomfortable feeling is experienced after eating, it is because some article does not "agree with the stomach," that is, can not be digested by it. This always arises from quality or quantity, generally the latter. In such cases take less and less until no discomfort is produced; if no special change is observed, it is because the quality is unsuited to the condition of the stomach, or the general system does not require it.

An article may not agree with the stomach to-day, but may agree with it very well in a few days, weeks, or months afterward, because its distinctive elements may then be needed in the system. Most persons instinctively turn away from roast pork in midsummer—it would make them sick—but in winter time, when the thermometer is near zero, large quantities are eaten with a relish, and no specific discomfort follows. As a general rule, instinct is the best guide, and that which is most relished is the thing which should be eaten; but if some discomfort invariably follows, it should be omitted, at least, until a change of air, season, or occupation.

It is a physical and moral wrong to take a single mouthful, when really it is not wanted; the motive being merely to "eat even," to eat it out of the way, or feeling that if it is not eaten it will be thrown away by the cook. If thus thrown away, some worm, or insect, or animal may get it; if eaten by yourself, it only oppresses the system that much.

The finer food is divided or cut up before swallowed, the sooner, the easier and more perfectly it is digested, for like ice, it is dissolved from without, inwards, and the smaller the pieces the sooner are they melted.

"Bread and butter" and milk are the only two articles of food which have all the elements of nutrition; hence from childhood to extreme old age we are never tired of them.—Health Tract.

THE NATURE AND EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL.

BY REV. JUSTIN EDWARDS, D. D.

Alcohol, the intoxicating ingredient in spirituous liquors, is not the product of creation, or of any living process in nature.

It is the fruit of vinous fermentation; and is generated by a process which takes place in certain vegetable substances after they are dead.

It is not, as a beverage, needful or useful to men, in order to the enjoyment of the highest health, the greatest ability for bodily or mental effort, and the longest life.

It is, in the human constitution, a poison, the use of which as a beverage is always hurtful.

It powerfully counteracts the efficacy of the gospel, and of all means for the intellectual elevation, the moral purity, the personal benefit, and the public usefulness of men.

It tends to render diseases hereditary, and thus to deteriorate the human race.

It weakens the understanding, stupefies the conscience, and hardens the heart.

It often causes insanity, and produces a predisposition to that disease, in the offspring of those who use it.

It occasions the loss of a great amount of property.

It lessens and often destroys social enjoyment, and causes a great increase of domestic wretchedness.

It weakens the power of motives to do right, and increases the power of motives to do wrong.

It causes most of the pauperism and crimes in the community.

It produces many, and aggravates most of the diseases to which the human frame is liable.

It corrupts the public morals, and debases the public mind.

It endangers the purity and permanency of free institutions.

It shortens human life.

It tends powerfully to lead men to dishonor God, and forever to destroy their own souls.

Abstinence from the use, as a beverage, of intoxicating liquor, is safe and salutary. This is proved by the experience of hundreds of thousands, of various ages, conditions and employments.

Should all adopt and perseveringly pursue a similar course, drunkenness and its evils would universally cease. The gospel, and all the means for the promtion of the temporal and eternal good of men, there is reason to believe, would be crowned with greatly augmented success.

For men to continue to use it as a beverage, to make it or furnish it to be so used by others, is morally wrong and ought universally to be discontinued.—Anti-Tobacco Tract.

NEW METHOD OF MAKING BREAD.

Instead of protracted agony of twelve or eighteen hours, it will only be a pleasant exercise of a few minutes in making it—just two hours for raising—and baked in fifty minutes, and out come the loaves, so round and light, so tender and sweet, the whole household will be delighted. The first thing, and the last in fact, is proper temperature, both while making it and in process of raising. Without heat internal as well as external, fermentation cannot be rapid enough. Then heat two bricks to 100° or more, and place the pan you make the bread in on them, and so knead and work in the heat with the materials. And now, though the great army of bread-makers stand up in flour-y array against me, and even shake their doughy fingers at me, I shall not wince or 'abate one jot.' 'Success is the test of merit,' as the world goes, and this past delusive notion that after bread is light once, it must forsooth be molded over into loaves and set to work again, is all nonsense. It often induces sourness, certainly multiplies labor, and takes time. Well, then, have two tins well greased (butter is hopeless in these days) and divide the dough equally. I use two quart tins, which, of course, requires two quarts of flour and over for a loaf, and set them to rise by the stove on the hot bricks, with a piece of carpet over the bricks to moderate the heat, and then well cover with warm woolens. In two hours it will be rising like Aladdin's palace, and when fairly brimming full, place it in your oven and you will soon have as delicious bread to eat as one ought to expect out of Paradise.

I claim this as original, and only ask you to follow these directions and give us the result. Thus bread-making ceases to be the tax on time and patience it usually is, and the harrassing doubts and fears one usually goes through with while following the old method, are quite done away with. I could say much on the philosophy of baking bread, in adjusting the 'golden mean,' which, after all, is half. A peep into some of the closed ovens would, I fear, call out the exclamation of the dogs in Landseer's picture of 'too hot, too hot.'"—Cor. Agriculturist.

OUR CHAIRS.—An eminent physician, speaking of our chairs, remarks that they are too high and too nearly horizontal. We slide forward, and our spines ache. The seat should be fifteen or sixteen inches high in front for men, and from eight to fourteen inches for children and women. The back part of the seat should be from one to three inches lower than the front part. This last is very important. The depth of the seat from front to back should be the same as the height. The chair-back is likewise unphilosophical. The part which meets the "small of the back" should project further forward. Instead of this, at that point there is generally a hollow. This is the cause of much pain and weakness in the small of the back. The present seats produce discomfort, round shoulders, and other distortions.—American Artisan.

LINIMENT TO RELIEVE PAIN.—One of the most powerful liniments for the relief of severe pain is made of equal quantities of spirits of hartshorn, sweet oil, and chloroform; dip into this a piece of cotton cloth doubled, about the size of a silver dollar, lay it on the spot, so as to confine the fumes, and the pain immediately disappears. Do not let it remain on over a minute. Shake it well just before using, and keep the bottle very closely stopped. —Hall's Journal of Health.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—One year........$2.50; Six months........$1.25
If not paid within six months,—One year........$3.00; Six months........$1.50
Five copies, to one address, six months..........$5.60
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months..........$10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly:
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS:
[illegible]
Payable always in advance.
POSTAGE.—[illegible]

S. SWETT

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 469. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 2.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

IN MEMORY

Of Mrs. Ruth Webster Angell, who died in Braintree, Vt., Dec. 1863, aged twenty-three.

They say she is dead, but I see her now,
With her auburn locks and sunny brow,
And the pleasant smile she wore;
A smile that told of a spirit meek,
That ne'er for earthly fame would seek,—
O! the tender words she used to speak,
Can it be we shall hear them no more?

Can it be the smile, and the lovelit brow,
And the laughing eye are all darkened now,
Hid in the grave's dark gloom?
'Tis scarcely three years since the bridal wreath
Was fresh on the brow where the kiss of Death
Has left its dark impress, claiming the breath
Sweet as the rose in its bloom.

She was good, and we loved her passing well,
And bright young eyes weep as they tell
How her loving smiles they miss.
The aged loved her, and the young;
Her praises rested on each tongue;
To her the prattling children sprung
To claim the wonted kiss.

Alas! she has gone in her youthful bloom,
And I weep when I think of the stricken home,
And the lonely mourner there.
Yet I joy! though he drains the bitter cup,
With an eye of faith he is looking up,
Sorrowing not as those without hope,
Or the peace that is born of prayer.

Though he meets no more the sweet caress,
And the lips that ever spoke to bless
Are hushed and silent now,
And his heart is sad, yet he knows ere long
That dear loved voice the "glad new song"
Will swell with all the ransomed throng,
In strains immortals only know.

Soon she will rise with immortal bloom,
And bright as the sun, from the riven tomb,
When the King in his glory shall come.
Singing they'll come "from the enemy's land,"
Crowned with joy—the blood-washed band—
Arrayed in white the "Bride" shall stand
On earth, restored to its pristine bloom!

East Roxbury, Vt. A. E. McELLISTER.

THE LORD AT HAND.

AN ADVENT SERMON, BY JOSEPH A. SEISS, D. D.,
Author of "Last Times," "Parable of the Ten Virgins," "Gospel in Leviticus," "Day of the Lord," "Lectures on Hebrews," etc.

"Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice. Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand."—PHIL. 4. 4, 5

There are certain facts announced in these word, and certain admonitions with reference to those facts, to which I invite your present meditations.

The first of these facts is, that OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST IS TO COME AGAIN TO OUR WORLD. This is one of the fundamental articles of our faith. It is a point which no one can dispute or deny and yet be a christian. The Apostle John explicitly declares, that whosoever confesseth not that Christ is to come, (erkomonon,) is a deceiver and an Antichrist, having no part with them that believe. (2 John 7). The plain and unmistakable testimony was given to the disciples at the time of his ascension, that it is his purpose to come again in like manner as they saw him go into heaven. (Acts 1: 11). And the Church, to keep alive the expectation of his return, and to stimulate us anew each year to special preparation to meet him in that day, has from time immemorial set apart these several Sundays, and appointed their special lessons, with direct reference to this great inspiring doctrine. We therefore receive and hold it as one of the essential verities of Christianity, that, some time or other, the same Jesus who ascended from the Mount of Olives, shall again appear upon earth, as literally and really as he ever was in it. . . . .

The second fact set forth in the text relates to the question WHEN Christ is to come. There are some who seem to think that we have nothing to do with the subject of time, as related to this great event. But they are greatly mistaken. Nearly as often as the coming of the Lord is mentioned, it is somehow connected with allusions to dates, or events that indicate time, as well as circumstances. And to throw these out of our attention to the subject, would be to say that some Scripture is not profitable.

That some have been too confident, and have thus greatly brought the subject into disrepute, in fixing upon particular years and seasons, is to be admitted and regretted; but I cannot see how we can be faithful to God, or to ourselves, and yet pass by all references to the time.

It is indeed written that "the times and the seasons the Father hath put in his own power;" and we must necessarily remain in much uncertainty until the time comes or is close at hand; but it is just as clearly affirmed in the Scriptures, that there is no necessity for remaining in total ignorance on the subject. Daniel was indeed directed to "shut up the words, and seal the book" of his visions concerning it; but they were only to remain "closed up and sealed till the time of the end," when he assures us that "the wise shall understand," though "the wicked shall not understand." Jesus himself has described the signs which are to precede it, by which we may as infallibly judge of the nearness of the end as we judge of the proximity of summer by the budding of the trees. Paul says expressly that "the children of light" "are not in darkness, that that day should overtake them as a thief." And in the Apocalypse, which is specially devoted to the portrayal of the grand scenes of Christ's revelation and the events which are to precede and accompany it, the particular promise is given, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein;" which certainly implies the possibility of being able to understand these things with some degree of certainty if we investigate with proper attention and prayerfulness.

Luther also expressed it as his belief, that God would yet raise up some one who should be able to reckon up the times, and with certainty hit upon the very day.

I hold, then, that, instead of rendering ourselves chargeable with irreverent prying into the secrets of Deity by inquiring when Christ shall come, it is our hopeful duty so to inquire; and that, if any man lack wisdom to understand what the Scriptures have said upon this point, he may ask God and expect it to be given him as liberally as upon any other subject. It is noted, in commendation of the prophets, that they "searched what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify;" and why should not similar searching be commendable in us? When the disciples asked the Lord, "Tell us when shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the age," he kindly entertained their request; and now that we are bordering so near upon the time, will he be angry with us for pressing the same inquiry? And when the Pharisees and Sadducees came to him with their tempting skepticism, did he not rebuke them as hypocrites who could "discern the face of the sky," but would not put themselves to the pains to "discern the signs of the times?" Let men beware then how they scout this question of the time, lest they "fall through the same example of unbelief."

A careful searching of the Scriptures will show at least these several particulars:

1. Christ shall come in a period of abounding apostasy, unbelief and wickedness. Such was the condition of the world when the flood came; and Jesus says, "As the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Peter says, "There shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, where is the promise of his coming?" Paul says of "that day," that it shall not come until there come "a falling away first;" and that, in the last days perilous times shall come, for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." Christ will therefore come in a period of abounding guilt and faithlessness.

2. Christ shall come in a period of revolutionary troubles, political perplexities, and great national agitations. Jesus says, "There shall be upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves thereof roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory." According to the Revelation of John, the final advent is to be immediately preceded by the outpouring of sundry vials of wrath in quick succession, each one filling nations with trouble, anguish and desperation. The Psalmist says of the same period that God shall speak to the kings and rulers of the earth in his wrath, "and vex them in his sore displeasure." This point is also sufficiently plain and well settled.

3. The Son of man shall come before the Jews as an entire people shall be restored to Palestine. There will be a portion of Jacob restored before the Lord comes, but not the entire race. It is expressly said that when God assembles Jacob and gathers the remnant of Israel, "their King shall pass before them, and the Lord on the head of them:" (Micah 2: 12, 13). "The Lord will go before them, and the God of Israel will be their reward." (Isa. 52: 12). He must therefore be on earth before this general gathering of the Jews takes place. It is further evident from the twelfth of Zechariah, the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth of Revelation, that Christ is personally present when the terrible destruction occurs to the armies that invade Palestine; whilst it is plain from the sixty-sixth of Isaiah that it is only after that terrific overthrow that the great and triumphant assembling of Israel takes place. It is those who escape that awful destruction that are to go to the nations, and the isles afar off, and make known the wonders they witnessed; and only then shall the Gentiles bring all the children of Israel out of all nations, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift vehicles, to God's holy mountain Jerusalem, for an offering unto the Lord. (Isa. 66: 19, 20.) It is also explicitly stated that the time of Israel's deliverance is when Christ personally comes; not before. So Paul affirms in Romans 11: 26, which he says is the teaching of the prophets. So the Psalmist says: "When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory." And so Zechariah declares, when God shall "pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplication, they shall look upon him whom they have pierced." Christ will therefore come before the general restoration of Israel.

4. Christ shall come in a period when a far-sounding cry shall be made in slumbering Christendom that his advent is at hand. This is distinctly set forth in the parable of the ten virgins. That this parable portrays the condition of the Church in the period of the advent, there can be no room for doubt. Christ, in the preceding chapter, was engaged in a description of his coming, and the end of the age. And this is but a continuation of that discourse. "THEN,"—that is, in the time when what has just been said shall be fulfilled,—then shall the kingdom of heaven—community of Christians—be like the ten virgins. They shall sleep with regard to this great subject. And while they sleep the announcement shall go forth that the bridegroom is coming. The same thing is set forth in the Apocalypse, where, in connection with the scenes of the last days, the announcement of the blessed Saviour is, "Behold, I come as a thief; blessed is he that watcheth!" All this shows that in the period of the advent, a cry declaring his coming shall be poured upon the dull ear of Christendom, calling men to preparation to receive their Lord.

5. But, notwithstanding the cry, Christ shall come when but few will at all believe that his advent is near. He says himself, "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" "In such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh." "Evil servants shall say in their hearts, My Lord delayeth his coming." Some will scoff and say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" People will be saying, "Peace and safety," when sudden destruction shall come upon them. "As in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage,"—self-contentedly pursuing the vanities and pleasures of earth,—and knew not until the flood came and took them all away: so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

From these plain statement of the word of God, two things may be remarked. The first is, that there certainly is to be no thousand years of universal righteousness and peace previous to Christ's coming. The second is, that we need fix upon no other time for Christ's coming than the times in which we live.

But this brings us to the further statement of the text, viz, that the Savior's coming "IS AT HAND." You will observe that this was said eighteen hundred years ago; and it was said under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. And if such language was proper then, it is much more eminently so now that it is certain we are so many hundreds of years nearer to the event referred to. And if inspired apostles eighteen hundred years ago already spoke of the Lord's return as "at hand," are we at this late day to be branded, hissed at, and denounced for using similar terms with reference to the same subject? That this advent must occur some day, is settled beyond all cavil, and why may it not as likely occur in our day as in any other? With my present learning and convictions on the subject, I esteem it my solemn duty to preach to you, that the time is near, even at the door.

It has been commonly agreed by Christians, especially of the first ages, that the present order of things is to run out and conclude with the six thousand years from the creation of Adam. I have been at the pains of a personal examination to ascertain for myself, as far as can be known, in what year of the world we are now living. Eighteen hundred and sixty-three years it has been since the birth of Christ; five hundred and thirty-six it was from the birth of Christ back to the decree of Cyrus for the rebuilding of the Jewish Temple; and seventy years it was from that date back to the Captivity. These are all well-ascertained dates. No one disputes them. And if there should be here or there a year or two more or less, it matters not. More than a few years they cannot lead us astray. And from the commencement of the Captivity we have records of the reigns of the kings of Judah and Israel back to Samuel, in the books of Kings and Chronicles. Then we have the reign of the Judges back to the entrance into Canaan, given by Paul. From that back to the deliverance from Egypt, and to the covenant with Abraham, the dates are also given in the Scriptures. And from that back to the Flood, and thence to Adam, we have genealogical tables giving the number of years to each generation, fully recorded in the book of Genesis, and corroborated by other portions of the sacred records, old and new. And having taken these figures as we have them in the Bible, and counted them up carefully, the result would seem to place us in the five thousand nine hundred and ninety-second or third year of the world, that is, within seven or eight years of the close of the six thousand.

(To be concluded.)

For the World's Crisis.

THE SAINTS' ABODE.

"For, behold, I create new heavens, and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind."—ISA. 65. 17.

Here we have the promise of a new habitation, a new earth. Peter, in his second epistle, third chapter, thirteenth verse, says,—"Nevertheless, we according to his promise look for new heavens and a new earth." And St. John, in the twenty-first chapter of Rev., in vision, saw the new heavens and new earth; and Christ declares in the fifth chapter of Matt., fifth verse, "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." What greater promise should we look for? The earth restored to its Eden beauty, and man to his Eden happiness.

But what constitutes the new earth? Is it to be formed of new material altogether? or is it the same earth renewed and redeemed from the curse? I think it will be the same. Peter says in his second letter, third chapter, sixth and seventh verses, "Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished: but the heavens and earth which are now," and yet they are the same. Paul, in the first chapter of Hebrews, speaking of the same, says, "They shall wax old as a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed."

The promise of God to Abraham was the land of Canaan, which is on this earth; and the promise of the angel to Mary was that "he (Christ) shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever." The throne of David was on this earth, and if it is ever rebuilt, it will be rebuilt in the land of Canaan. John, in the eleventh chapter of Rev., fifteenth verse, says, "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Hence we conclude that the final abode of the redeemed, instead of being will be on this identical earth.

"Beyond the bounds of time and space,"

Solomon says in the tenth chapter of Prov., thirtieth verse, "The righteous shall never be removed, but the wicked shall not inherit the earth." Peter says that Lot's soul was righteous; hence it could never be removed. So those imaginary soul entities, that fly away at death, are not righteous as you suppose them to be. God said by the mouth of Isaiah, "But Israel shall be saved with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded, world without end. For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens, God himself, that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited." And the design of the Lord will not be frustrated, we may be sure.

How long before we shall participate in those joys? Ah! beloved, the time is drawing nigh. The eastern horizon is already illuminated by the dawning of that glorious day. A few more rising and setting suns, and Gabriel shall stand with one foot on the land and the other upon the sea, and swear by Him that liveth forever that time shall be no more; and the clarion notes of the trump of God will summon the sleeping millions from their dusty beds, and we that are alive and remain at that day shall be caught up together with them, to meet the Lord in the air, and accompany him to Mount Zion, where a feast of fat things will be prepared for us, and to drink the wine with him anew in the kingdom of God.

Job looked forward to that day with joy, when his Redeemer should stand upon the earth, assured that though he died he should live again (Job 19: 25, 26); for he knew if he was blessed of him he should inherit the earth. Ps. 37: 22. "For the righteous (or upright) shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it."—Prov. 2: 21.

O glorious hope! when the Lord shall stand on Mount Olivet, and it shall cleave asunder, and the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, shall descend from God out of heaven and take its place! Then shall they come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God; and the children of the kingdom shall be thrust out. Then shall the vision of John be fulfilled: "Blessed are they that keep his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city; for without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie. Then shall the Apocalyptic Satan marshal his resurrected dupes around the camp of the saints, and the fire that destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah shall descend from heaven and destroy them. Then shall the universe be clean, and all that is in heaven and in earth and under the earth, and those that are in the sea, will praise God. And I would like to have my orthodox friends let me know where the wicked are then!

When Christ left the world, his disciples asked him, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom of Israel?" And he answered them, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power."—Acts 1: 6, 7. They understood full well that he would restore it some time, but the time they did not know. And he in reply did not rebuke them, but, on the other hand, intimated that it should be restored in some future time. In the second chapter of Acts Peter says, "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne."

I shall never be satisfied with the "second advent of Christ" being spiritual, or any other way than that which he promised at his ascension; nor shall I ever believe that any other place but Judea is the place of Christ's kingdom. There is the land promised to Abraham; there is the throne of David; there is Mount Zion; and there is the designated spot for the second advent of our Savior. But the question has not been answered when we shall receive the promise? Of that day and hour "knoweth no man"; but there is one thing we do know, which is this: "When ye see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the door." These things have come to pass, and the church that loves His appearing is now lifting up her head and looking up; for she knoweth that her redemption draweth nigh. Daniel says, "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed."

We all know that the Babylonian kingdom has passed. The Medo-Persian also. The Grecian is numbered in the past. The Roman kingdom is divided, and the last remains are passing off the stage of time. What is left to be fulfilled? "In the last days there shall come scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation." These scoffers are among us, even in the popular church! Again, when they say, "Peace, peace, sudden destruction cometh upon them." Is not the peace cry going abroad in the doctrine of the world's conversion? Beware! it is dangerous. "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the coming of the Son of man." The world was not converted in the days of Noah, and I am afraid it will lack as much of it in the day of the revelation of Jesus Christ.

Brethren, let us have our lamps trimmed and burning, to be ready to go out and meet the Bridegroom at his coming, and inherit the kingdom prepared for us from the foundation of the world; to go and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God; to inherit the promise of God to the fathers, for which promise "the twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come." "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." "For the promise that he should be heir of the world was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. And if we are Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." The promise is through faith, and in order to inherit it we must have Abraham's faith, which looked not forward to an inheritance in the skies, but in the land of Canaan.

Chatham, Pa. J. W. TAYLOR.

For the World's Crisis.

"NONE OF THESE THINGS MOVE ME."

It is the christian's blessed prerogative to rest always in complete security. Peace was the legacy Jesus bequeathed to his disciples; a peace which, originating not with the world, is unaffected by the vicissitudes of life. At the present crisis of events in the world's history, when troubles seem gathering in every quarter, and "men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth,"—the child of God, in quietness and assurance, can "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

Like the light-keeper in a stormy night, who knows the angry waves in vain lash the everlasting rock on which his firm edifice is built, thinking only of the peril of the exposed mariner, his chief anxiety is to keep his lights well trimmed and burning. As he hears of "wars, and rumors of wars," and sees men fired by patriotism grasping the sword in hope of restoring peace, and securely establishing the governments of earth, it moves him not. He is too full of the temper of Christ to have room for the war-spirit. His citizenship is in Heaven; he knows the kingdoms of this world shall in God's appointed time become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and for that glorious day he waits.

Do the wicked triumph over him, and prosper at his expense? Patiently he suffers it. Like David he has learned their end. "Surely thou didst set them in slippery places." "For yet a little while and the wicked shall not be . . . but the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

Is he unfortunate in his social relations? Do little trials throng his daily life, and hindrances appear which threaten to utterly impede his christian progress? These things may try his patience, and test his faith, still he wavers not; for he is confident God will not suffer him to be tempted above that he is able, "but will with the temptation, also make a way to escape." The Red Sea divided before the Israelites when they advanced. There were saints in Cæsar's household. And if the religion of the cross could thrive in an atmosphere seemingly so uncongenial; if love, joy and peace could develop under Nero's baneful influence, like tender flowers blossoming beneath an Upas tree, will the modern christian count any circumstances too adverse for a life of faith?

Is poverty's pinching grasp upon him? Cheerfully can he bear this "light affliction." He does not expect to be above his Lord. He chooses to forego the pleasures and comforts of this life, and esteems the reproach of Christ better than all the riches and honors of the world; for he has a treasure in heaven, "an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away." And when that shall be revealed, he will be a prince, and reign with Jesus, the King of kings, on David's throne forever!

Does death deprive him of loved friends? He need not be overwhelmed with grief, for those which sleep in Jesus shall come forth from the dust, immortal and glorified. While to such as can claim no life-giving union with the Savior, our Heavenly Father in infinite mercy has appointed death, not eternal suffering.

Do men separate him from their company, and cast out his name as evil? He is unmoved, for he has this consolation, "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the LORD knoweth them that are his."

Like just Lot is his soul vexed from day to day, as the unceasing din of worldliness and godlessness salutes his ear? as the scoff of the unbeliever, and the finger of the scorner single him out for his faith in a coming Redeemer? He knows whom he has believed. When the proud, the rich, and the mighty ones cower before the glorious brightness of earth's revealed King, the righteous shall be in perfect peace. As angel hands led the patriarch out of the doomed city, so shall the attendants of Messiah gather his elect, and hide them, in safety, until the indignation rained upon the wicked be overpast.

Beloved, seeing God's exceeding great and precious promises are ours, let us "hold fast the beginning of our confidence, steadfast unto the end." Not much longer shall we "walk by faith;" there are joyful indications that our "redemption draweth nigh." But if as our hope approaches its consummation, our fiery trials increase, let us wonder not. Our blessed Lord has told us before that it shall be so. The blessings of that coming age will abundantly compensate for all the believer is now called to endure for Jesus' sake.

Then shall the glory of the Lord be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together. Then shall the righteous flourish, and peace extend like a river. Joy and gladness will prevail, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Death will be swallowed up in victory, and the rebuke of God's children be taken away from off all the earth; for "Behold a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." Amen and amen.

Lawrence, Mass. E. A. ANNABLE.

For the World's Crisis.

DAY OF JUDGMENT.

This is the last day of God's great week of seven thousand years. "But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."—2 Pet. 3: 8.

This day of judgment and promised Sabbath of rest, are both typified from the creation of the world.

First, the Sabbath. "It is a sign (shadow or type) between me and the children of Israel for ever: for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed." Ex. 31: 17. "Moreover also I gave them my Sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them." Ezek. 20: 12. When "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea, ... his rest shall be glorious" Isa. 11: 9, 10. "This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell, for I have desired it." Ps. 132: 14. These "sabbath days . . . are a shadow of things to come." Col. 2: 17. "There remaineth therefore a rest (margin, keeping of a Sabbath) to the people of God." Heb. 4: 9.

In 2 Thess. 1, Paul says, when the persecutors of the saints will be "punished with everlasting destruction," they, the saints, will be recompensed with "rest with us (the apostles); when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels . . . to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe in that day." In that day it will be said, "Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready." Rev. 19: 6.

Second. The day of judgment is typified from the "beginning." "The woman's . . . seed . . . it (Christ) shall bruise thy (the serpent's) head." Gen. 3: 15. "And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all," etc., etc. Jude 14. "Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet: and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies. . . . . For the Lord shall rise up as in mount Perazim, he shall be wroth as in the valley of Gibeon." Isa. 28: 17, 21. See the type. Josh. 10: 10, 11;—And the Lord . . . . slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and . . . cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword."

We now call attention to the antitype. Ezek. 13: 13;—"Therefore thus saith the Lord God: I will even rend it (verse 10, the wall built by one, and daubed by others) with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury to consume it." "And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great." Rev. 16: 21.

At the same time, "every man's sword shall be against his brother." Ezek. 38: 21. Thus by sword, and by the hail, "the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground." Jer. 25: 33.

Then comes "the supper of the great God" "unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field," "that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, . . . and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great," etc. Rev. 19: 17; Ezek. 39: 17. "And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go out to deceive the (risen) nations. . . . And fire came down out of heaven and devoured them." Rev. 20: 7, 9.

Thus ends "the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." "The day that shall burn as an oven." "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death." Nevertheless says Peter, God, "according to his promise" (by Isa. 65: 17), creates "new heavens and a new earth" out of the dissolved or melted mass of the former.

In Rev. 21, we have the tabernacle of God with men,—all things made new. "These words are true and faithful." In the Restitution, or Sabbath of rest, "the Lord God shall give him (Christ) the throne of his father David" (Luke 1: 32), in "the beloved city." Rev. 20: 9. In the new earth Christ's throne will be in the new Jerusalem, that will come down from God out of heaven, the city of pure gold, fifteen hundred miles square, gates of pearl, "as it were transparent glass."

"Watchman, in that golden city,
Seated on his jasper throne,
Zion's King, enthroned in beauty,
Reigns in peace from zone to zone."

In Christ's millennial reign the saints will inherit the kingdom prepared . . . from the foundation of the world," and "reign with him a thousand years." In the new earth "they shall reign for ever and ever." In the restored earth, when "the enemies of the Lord . . . shall consume: into smoke shall they consume away, . . . and they that be cursed of him (the deceived in the four quarters of the earth) shall be cut off." Ps. 37: 20, 22.

In the new earth "there shall be no more curse." The promised inheritance has been "purchased" by the blood of Jesus, and is now going to be delivered from the curse. But the new earth will require no redeeming, for sin and sinners will never enter there. At the end of the millennial reign, the restored earth will be defiled by the risen multitude of Gog, "the number of whom is as the sand of the sea." In the new earth "there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, . . . but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

1 Cor. 15: 25;—"For he (Christ) must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet." Verse 24;—"Then cometh the end (of the thousand years), when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father." "And he (God) that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." Rev. 21: 5.

The great day of God's wrath, to reward sinners, is near. And the rest of eternal glories, to reward the saints, is at hand. "Therefore, be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

New Glasgow, C. E. JAS. MORRISON.

For the World's Crisis.

SOMETHING TO REJOICE FOR.

DEAR FRIENDS:—I am so constituted that I cannot rejoice unless I have something to rejoice over. Many professed christians, who occasionally meet with us, and sometimes join with us in the service of the Lord, find fault with both ourselves and our speaker, because we speak so often of the coming kingdom. They like to see us happy, like to hear us say we rejoice, but are unwilling we should give our reason for rejoicing.

Said one, who professes perfection, to me not many months since, "If I should talk of the new earth, the coming kingdom, and such like things, as much as you do, it would spoil all my enjoyment." I could but be astonished. The thought came to mind, If I did not profess christianity, and that sister, aware of the fact that I rejoiced only over the good fortunes of this world, should call on me, find me greatly rejoicing, and should begin to talk the matter over with me, and I should tell her I did not wish to get into conversation concerning the cause, as it certainly would have a tendency to destroy all my enjoyment, she would certainly believe me not a little beside myself. Now if we may be considered beside ourselves for not giving our reasons for rejoicing concerning things pertaining to this life, why may we not if we give no reasons concerning things pertaining to a life to come?

I rejoice! and, as I have before said, have something over which to rejoice. I rejoice that when man had sinned and become subject to death, a Savior was promised, that through him we might have a resurrection from the dead. I rejoice that we have not the promise alone, but the fulfillment, that Jesus did come, died, and rose again; ascended upon high, and now sitteth at the right hand of the Father, to make intercessions for us. I rejoice that after our resurrection we may be real, literal beings, not phantoms. As we are to be something, I rejoice that we have a promise of a dwelling place,—the earth restored to its original beauty and purity. I rejoice that Jesus hath said, "I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go I will come again, and receive you to myself; that where I am there ye may be also." I rejoice that he has told us by what signs we might know that he was soon to come. I also rejoice that all things speak in thunder tones that time at hand.

Now, says the apostle, "Seeing these things are so, what manner of persons ought we to be," etc. I have not language to express my feelings concerning this thing. I am aware of the fact that every moment of our lives should be spent in preparation for that day. How blessed the sound! "Come, ye blessed of my Father." How awful the sound, "Depart, I never knew you"! How my heart is pained when I see those near and dear to me by the ties of nature shunning these things because it is unpopular to believe that Jesus is coming. Those friends who have kept a watchful eye upon me since a child, have never looked down upon me because of my poverty, but on the other hand have assisted me that I might not want, are near and dear, and their company is sweet to me here. Must we be separated when Jesus comes, and they not permitted to dwell upon the new earth? God forbid. My daily prayer to God is that I through Christ may be considered worthy, and that my daily walk and conversation may be such that I may be a help and not a hindrance to the cause of Christ.

We are differently organized. While my brethren and sisters fail in one thing, I fail in another. So you see the need of what God's word says we must have—charity. So when we see each other in fault, let us pity, not blame. Let us pray often one for another. If we are but faithful, we shall soon be made immortal, unchangeable, unerring.

Your sister in Christ, looking for his soon appearing, K. A. PAGE.

☞ Those who are contented with little deserve much; and those who deserve much are far the most likely persons to be contented with little.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 469. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 2.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

IN MEMORY

Of Mrs. Ruth Webster Angell, who died in Braintree, Vt., Dec. 1863, aged twenty-three.

They say she is dead, but I see her now,
With her auburn locks and sunny brow,
And the pleasant smile she wore;
A smile that told of a spirit meek,
That ne'er for earthly fame would seek,—
O! the tender words she used to speak,
Can it be we shall hear them no more?

Can it be the smile, and the lovelit brow,
And the laughing eye are all darkened now,
Hid in the grave's dark gloom?
'Tis scarcely three years since the bridal wreath
Was fresh on the brow where the kiss of Death
Has left its dark impress, claiming the breath
Sweet as the rose in its bloom.

She was good, and we loved her passing well,
And bright young eyes weep as they tell
How her loving smiles they miss.
The aged loved her, and the young;
Her praises rested on each tongue;
To her the prattling children sprung
To claim the wonted kiss.

Alas! she has gone in her youthful bloom,
And I weep when I think of the stricken home,
And the lonely mourner there.
Yet I joy! though he drains the bitter cup,
With an eye of faith he is looking up,
Sorrowing not as those without hope,
Or the peace that is born of prayer.

Though he meets no more the sweet caress,
And the lips that ever spoke to bless
Are hushed and silent now,
And his heart is sad, yet he knows ere long
That dear loved voice the "glad new song"
Will swell with all the ransomed throng,
In strains immortals only know.

Soon she will rise with immortal bloom,
And bright as the sun, from the riven tomb,
When the King in his glory shall come.
Singing they'll come "from the enemy's land,"
Crowned with joy—the blood-washed band—
Arrayed in white the "Bride" shall stand
On earth, restored to its pristine bloom!

East Roxbury, Vt. A. E. McELLISTER.

THE LORD AT HAND.

AN ADVENT SERMON, BY JOSEPH A. SEISS, D. D.,
Author of "Last Times," "Parable of the Ten Virgins," "Gospel in Leviticus," "Day of the Lord," "Lectures on Hebrews," etc.

"Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice. Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand."—PHIL. 4: 4, 5

There are certain facts announced in these word, and certain admonitions with reference to those facts, to which I invite your present meditations.

The first of these facts is, that OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST IS TO COME AGAIN TO OUR WORLD. This is one of the fundamental articles of our faith. It is a point which no one can dispute or deny and yet be a christian. The Apostle John explicitly declares, that whosoever confesseth not that Christ is to come, (erkomonon,) is a deceiver and an Antichrist, having no part with them that believe. (2 John 7). The plain and unmistakable testimony was given to the disciples at the time of his ascension, that it is his purpose to come again in like manner as they saw him go into heaven. (Acts 1: 11). And the Church, to keep alive the expectation of his return, and to stimulate us anew each year to special preparation to meet him in that day, has from time immemorial set apart these several Sundays, and appointed their special lessons, with direct reference to this great inspiring doctrine. We therefore receive and hold it as one of the essential verities of Christianity, that, some time or other, the same Jesus who ascended from the Mount of Olives, shall again appear upon earth, as literally and really as he ever was in it. . . .

The second fact set forth in the text relates to the question WHEN Christ is to come. There are some who seem to think that we have nothing to do with the subject of time, as related to this great event. But they are greatly mistaken. Nearly as often as the coming of the Lord is mentioned, it is somehow connected with allusions to dates, or events that indicate time, as well as circumstances. And to throw these out of our attention to the subject, would be to say that some Scripture is not profitable.

That some have been too confident, and have thus greatly brought the subject into disrepute, in fixing upon particular years and seasons, is to be admitted and regretted; but I cannot see how we can be faithful to God, or to ourselves, and yet pass by all references to the time.

It is indeed written that "the times and the seasons the Father hath put in his own power;" and we must necessarily remain in much uncertainty until the time comes or is close at hand; but it is just as clearly affirmed in the Scriptures, that there is no necessity for remaining in total ignorance on the subject. Daniel was indeed directed to "shut up the words, and seal the book" of his visions concerning it; but they were only to remain "closed up and sealed till the time of the end," when he assures us that "the wise shall understand," though "the wicked shall not understand." Jesus himself has described the signs which are to precede it, by which we may as infallibly judge of the nearness of the end as we judge of the proximity of summer by the budding of the trees. Paul says expressly that "the children of light" are not in darkness, that that day should overtake them as a thief." And in the Apocalypse, which is specially devoted to the portrayal of the grand scenes of Christ's revelation and the events which are to precede and accompany it, the particular promise is given, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein;" which certainly implies the possibility of being able to understand these things with some degree of certainty if we investigate with proper attention and prayerfulness.

Luther also expressed it as his belief, that God would yet raise up some one who should be able to reckon up the times, and with certainty hit upon the very day.

I hold, then, that, instead of rendering ourselves chargeable with irreverent prying into the secrets of Deity by inquiring when Christ shall come, it is our hopeful duty so to inquire; and that, if any man lack wisdom to understand what the Scriptures have said upon this point, he may ask God and expect it to be given him as liberally as upon any other subject. It is noted, in commendation of the prophets, that they "searched what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify;" and why should not similar searching be commendable in us? When the disciples asked the Lord, "Tell us when shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the age," he kindly entertained their request; and now that we are bordering so near upon the time, will he be angry with us for pressing the same inquiry? And when the Pharisees and Sadducees came to him with their tempting skepticism, did he not rebuke them as hypocrites who could "discern the face of the sky," but would not put themselves to the pains to "discern the signs of the times?" Let men beware then how they scout this question of the time, lest they "fall through the same example of unbelief."

A careful searching of the Scriptures will show at least these several particulars:

1. Christ shall come in a period of abounding apostasy, unbelief and wickedness. Such was the condition of the world when the flood came; and Jesus says, "As the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Peter says, "There shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, where is the promise of his coming?" Paul says of "that day," that it shall not come until there come "a falling away first;" and that, in the last days perilous times shall come, for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." Christ will therefore come in a period of abounding guilt and faithlessness.

2. Christ shall come in a period of revolutionary troubles, political perplexities, and great national agitations. Jesus says, "There shall be upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves thereof roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory." According to the Revelation of John, the final advent is to be immediately preceded by the outpouring of sundry vials of wrath in quick succession, each one filling nations with trouble, anguish and desperation. The Psalmist says of the same period that God shall speak to the kings and rulers of the earth in his wrath, "and vex them in his sore displeasure." This point is also sufficiently plain and well settled.

3. The Son of man shall come before the Jews as an entire people shall be restored to Palestine. There will be a portion of Jacob restored before the Lord comes, but not the entire race. It is expressly said that when God assembles Jacob and gathers the remnant of Israel, "their King shall pass before them, and the Lord on the head of them:" (Micah 2: 12, 13). "The Lord will go before them, and the God of Israel will be their reward." (Isa. 52: 12). He must therefore be on earth before this general gathering of the Jews takes place. It is further evident from the twelfth of Zechariah, the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth of Revelation, that Christ is personally present when the terrible destruction occurs to the armies that invade Palestine; whilst it is plain from the sixty-sixth of Isaiah that it is only after that terrific overthrow that the great and triumphant assembling of Israel takes place. It is those who escape that awful destruction that are to go to the nations, and the isles afar off, and make known the wonders they witnessed; and only then shall the Gentiles bring all the children of Israel out of all nations, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift vehicles, to God's holy mountain Jerusalem, for an offering unto the Lord. (Isa. 66: 19, 20.) It is also explicitly stated that the time of Israel's deliverance is when Christ personally comes; not before. So Paul affirms in Romans 11: 26, which he says is the teaching of the prophets. So the Psalmist says: "When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory." And so Zechariah declares, when God shall "pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplication, they shall look upon him whom they have pierced." Christ will therefore come before the general restoration of Israel.

4. Christ shall come in a period when a far-sounding cry shall be made in slumbering Christendom that his advent is at hand. This is distinctly set forth in the parable of the ten virgins. That this parable portrays the condition of the Church in the period of the advent, there can be no room for doubt. Christ, in the preceding chapter, was engaged in a description of his coming, and the end of the age. And this is but a continuation of that discourse. "THEN,"—that is, in the time when what has just been said shall be fulfilled,—then shall the kingdom of heaven—community of Christians—be like the ten virgins. They shall sleep with regard to this great subject. And while they sleep the announcement shall go forth that the bridegroom is coming. The same thing is set forth in the Apocalypse, where, in connection with the scenes of the last days, the announcement of the blessed Saviour is, "Behold, I come as a thief; blessed is he that watcheth!" All this shows that in the period of the advent, a cry declaring his coming shall be poured upon the dull ear of Christendom, calling men to preparation to receive their Lord.

5. But, notwithstanding the cry, Christ shall come when but few will at all believe that his advent is near. He says himself, "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" "In such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh." "Evil servants shall say in their hearts, My Lord delayeth his coming." Some will scoff and say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" People will be saying, "Peace and safety," when sudden destruction shall come upon them. "As in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage,"—self-contentedly pursuing the vanities and pleasures of earth,—and knew not until the flood came and took them all away: so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

From these plain statement of the word of God, two things may be remarked. The first is, that there certainly is to be no thousand years of universal righteousness and peace previous to Christ's coming. The second is, that we need fix upon no other time for Christ's coming than the times in which we live.

But this brings us to the further statement of the text, viz., that the Savior's coming "IS AT HAND." You will observe that this was said eighteen hundred years ago; and it was said under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. And if such language was proper then, it is much more eminently so now that it is certain we are so many hundreds of years nearer to the event referred to. And if inspired apostles eighteen hundred years ago already spoke of the Lord's return as "at hand," are we at this late day to be branded, hissed at, and denounced for using similar terms with reference to the same subject? That this advent must occur some day, is settled beyond all cavil, and why may it not as likely occur in our day as in any other? With my present learning and convictions on the subject, I esteem it my solemn duty to preach to you, that the time is near, even at the door.

It has been commonly agreed by Christians, especially of the first ages, that the present order of things is to run out and conclude with the six thousand years from the creation of Adam. I have been at the pains of a personal examination to ascertain for myself, as far as can be known, in what year of the world we are now living. Eighteen hundred and sixty-three years it has been since the birth of Christ; five hundred and thirty-six it was from the birth of Christ back to the decree of Cyrus for the rebuilding of the Jewish Temple; and seventy years it was from that date back to the Captivity. These are all well-ascertained dates. No one disputes them. And if there should be here or there a year or two more or less, it matters not. More than a few years they cannot lead us astray. And from the commencement of the Captivity we have records of the reigns of the kings of Judah and Israel back to Samuel, in the books of Kings and Chronicles. Then we have the reign of the Judges back to the entrance into Canaan, given by Paul. From that back to the deliverance from Egypt, and to the covenant with Abraham, the dates are also given in the Scriptures. And from that back to the Flood, and thence to Adam, we have genealogical tables giving the number of years to each generation, fully recorded in the book of Genesis, and corroborated by other portions of the sacred records, old and new. And having taken these figures as we have them in the Bible, and counted them up carefully, the result would seem to place us in the five thousand nine hundred and ninety-second or third year of the world, that is, within seven or eight years of the close of the six thousand.

(To be concluded.)

For the World's Crisis.

THE SAINTS' ABODE.

"For, behold, I create new heavens, and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind."—ISA. 65: 17.

Here we have the promise of a new habitation, a new earth. Peter, in his second epistle, third chapter, thirteenth verse, says,—"Nevertheless, we according to his promise look for new heavens and a new earth." And St. John, in the twenty-first chapter of Rev., in vision, saw the new heavens and new earth; and Christ declares in the fifth chapter of Matt., fifth verse, "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." What greater promise should we look for? The earth restored to its Eden beauty, and man to his Eden happiness.

But what constitutes the new earth? Is it to be formed of new material altogether? or is it the same earth renewed and redeemed from the curse? I think it will be the same. Peter says in his second letter, third chapter, sixth and seventh verses, "Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished: but the heavens and earth which are now," and yet they are the same. Paul, in the first chapter of Hebrews, speaking of the same, says, "They shall wax old as a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed."

The promise of God to Abraham was the land of Canaan, which is on this earth; and the promise of the angel to Mary was that "he (Christ) shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Most High: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever." The throne of David was on this earth, and if it is ever rebuilt, it will be rebuilt in the land of Canaan. John, in the eleventh chapter of Rev., fifteenth verse, says, "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Hence we conclude that the final abode of the redeemed, instead of being will be on this identical earth.

"Beyond the bounds of time and space,"

Solomon says in the tenth chapter of Prov., thirtieth verse, "The righteous shall never be removed, but the wicked shall not inherit the earth." Peter says that Lot's soul was righteous; hence it could never be removed. So those imaginary soul entities, that fly away at death, are not righteous as you suppose them to be. God said by the mouth of Isaiah, "But Israel shall be saved with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded, world without end. For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens, God himself, that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain; he formed it to be inhabited." And the design of the Lord will not be frustrated, we may be sure.

How long before we shall participate in those joys? Ah! beloved, the time is drawing nigh. The eastern horizon is already illuminated by the dawning of that glorious day. A few more rising and setting suns, and Gabriel shall stand with one foot on the land and the other upon the sea, and swear by Him that liveth forever that time shall be no more; and the clarion notes of the trump of God will summon the sleeping millions from their dusty beds, and we that are alive and remain at that day shall be caught up together with them, to meet the Lord in the air, and accompany him to Mount Zion, where a feast of fat things will be prepared for us, and to drink the wine with him anew in the kingdom of God.

Job looked forward to that day with joy, when his Redeemer should stand upon the earth, assured that though he died he should live again (Job 19: 25, 26); for he knew if he was blessed of him he should inherit the earth. Ps. 37: 22. "For the righteous (or upright) shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it."—Prov. 2: 21.

O glorious hope! when the Lord shall stand on Mount Olivet, and it shall cleave asunder, and the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, shall descend from God out of heaven and take its place! Then shall they come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God; and the children of the kingdom shall be thrust out. Then shall the vision of John be fulfilled: "Blessed are they that keep his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city; for without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie. Then shall the Apocalyptic Satan marshal his resurrected dupes around the camp of the saints, and the fire that destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah shall descend from heaven and destroy them. Then shall the universe be clean, and all that is in heaven and in earth and under the earth, and those that are in the sea, will praise God. And I would like to have my orthodox friends let me know where the wicked are then!

When Christ left the world, his disciples asked him, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom of Israel?" And he answered them, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power."—Acts 1: 6, 7. They understood full well that he would restore it some time, but the time they did not know. And he in reply did not rebuke them, but, on the other hand, intimated that it should be restored in some future time. In the second chapter of Acts Peter says, "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne."

I shall never be satisfied with the "second advent of Christ" being spiritual, or any other way than that which he promised at his ascension; nor shall I ever believe that any other place but Judea is the place of Christ's kingdom. There is the land promised to Abraham; there is the throne of David; there is Mount Zion; and there is the designated spot for the second advent of our Savior. But the question has not been answered when we shall receive the promise? Of that day and hour "knoweth no man"; but there is one thing we do know, which is this: "When ye see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the door." These things have come to pass, and the church that loves His appearing is now lifting up her head and looking up; for she knoweth that her redemption draweth nigh. Daniel says, "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed."

We all know that the Babylonian kingdom has passed. The Medo-Persian also. The Grecian is numbered in the past. The Roman kingdom is divided, and the last remains are passing off the stage of time. What is left to be fulfilled? "In the last days there shall come scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation." These scoffers are among us, even in the popular church! Again, when they say, "Peace, peace, sudden destruction cometh upon them." Is not the peace cry going abroad in the doctrine of the world's conversion? Beware! it is dangerous. "As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the coming of the Son of man." The world was not converted in the days of Noah, and I am afraid it will lack as much of it in the day of the revelation of Jesus Christ.

Brethren, let us have our lamps trimmed and burning, to be ready to go out and meet the Bridegroom at his coming, and inherit the kingdom prepared for us from the foundation of the world; to go and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of God; to inherit the promise of God to the fathers, for which promise "the twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come." "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." "For the promise that he should be heir of the world was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. And if we are Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." The promise is through faith, and in order to inherit it we must have Abraham's faith, which looked not forward to an inheritance in the skies, but in the land of Canaan.

Chatham, Pa. J. W. TAYLOR.

For the World's Crisis.

"NONE OF THESE THINGS MOVE ME."

It is the christian's blessed prerogative to rest always in complete security. Peace was the legacy Jesus bequeathed to his disciples; a peace which, originating not with the world, is unaffected by the vicissitudes of life. At the present crisis of events in the world's history, when troubles seem gathering in every quarter, and "men's hearts are failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth,"—the child of God, in quietness and assurance, can "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

Like the light-keeper in a stormy night, who knows the angry waves in vain lash the everlasting rock on which his firm edifice is built, thinking only of the peril of the exposed mariner, his chief anxiety is to keep his lights well trimmed and burning. As he hears of "wars, and rumors of wars," and sees men fired by patriotism grasping the sword in hope of restoring peace, and securely establishing the governments of earth, it moves him not. He is too full of the temper of Christ to have room for the war-spirit. His citizenship is in Heaven; he knows the kingdoms of this world shall in God's appointed time become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and for that glorious day he waits.

Do the wicked triumph over him, and prosper at his expense? Patiently he suffers it. Like David he has learned their end. "Surely thou didst set them in slippery places." "For yet a little while and the wicked shall not be . . . but the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

Is he unfortunate in his social relations? Do little trials throng his daily life, and hindrances appear which threaten to utterly impede his christian progress? These things may try his patience, and test his faith, still he wavers not; for he is confident God will not suffer him to be tempted above that he is able, "but will with the temptation, also make a way to escape." The Red Sea divided before the Israelites when they advanced. There were saints in Cæsar's household. And if the religion of the cross could thrive in an atmosphere seemingly so uncongenial; if love, joy and peace could develop under Nero's baneful influence, like tender flowers blossoming beneath an Upas tree, will the modern christian count any circumstances too adverse for a life of faith?

Is poverty's pinching grasp upon him? Cheerfully can he bear this "light affliction." He does not expect to be above his Lord. He chooses to forego the pleasures and comforts of this life, and esteems the reproach of Christ better than all the riches and honors of the world; for he has a treasure in heaven, "an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away." And when that shall be revealed, he will be a prince, and reign with Jesus, the King of kings, on David's throne forever!

Does death deprive him of loved friends? He need not be overwhelmed with grief, for those which sleep in Jesus shall come forth from the dust, immortal and glorified. While to such as can claim no life-giving union with the Savior, our Heavenly Father in infinite mercy has appointed death, not eternal suffering.

Do men separate him from their company, and cast out his name as evil? He is unmoved, for he has this consolation, "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, the LORD knoweth them that are his."

Like just Lot is his soul vexed from day to day, as the unceasing din of worldliness and godlessness salutes his ear? as the scoff of the unbeliever, and the finger of the scorner single him out for his faith in a coming Redeemer? He knows whom he has believed. When the proud, the rich, and the mighty ones cower before the glorious brightness of earth's revealed King, the righteous shall be in perfect peace. As angel hands led the patriarch out of the doomed city, so shall the attendants of Messiah gather his elect, and hide them in safety, until the indignation rained upon the wicked be overpast.

Beloved, seeing God's exceeding great and precious promises are ours, let us "hold fast the beginning of our confidence, steadfast unto the end." Not much longer shall we "walk by faith;" there are joyful indications that our "redemption draweth nigh." But if as our hope approaches its consummation, our fiery trials increase, let us wonder not. Our blessed Lord has told us before that it shall be so. The blessings of that coming age will abundantly compensate for all the believer is now called to endure for Jesus' sake.

Then shall the glory of the Lord be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together. Then shall the righteous flourish, and peace extend like a river. Joy and gladness will prevail, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Death will be swallowed up in victory, and the rebuke of God's children be taken away from off all the earth; for "Behold a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." Amen and amen.

Lawrence, Mass. E. A. ANNABLE.

For the World's Crisis.

DAY OF JUDGMENT.

This is the last day of God's great week of seven thousand years. "But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."—2 Pet. 3: 8.

This day of judgment and promised Sabbath of rest, are both typified from the creation of the world.

First, the Sabbath. "It is a sign (shadow or type) between me and the children of Israel for ever: for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed." Ex. 31: 17. "Moreover also I gave them my Sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them." Ezek. 20: 12. When "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea, ... his rest shall be glorious." Isa. 11: 9, 10. "This is my rest for ever: here will I dwell, for I have desired it." Ps. 132: 14. These "sabbath days . . . are a shadow of things to come." Col. 2: 17. "There remaineth therefore a rest (margin, keeping of a Sabbath) to the people of God." Heb. 4: 9.

In 2 Thess. 1, Paul says, when the persecutors of the saints will be "punished with everlasting destruction," they, the saints, will be recompensed with "rest with us (the apostles); when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels . . . to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe in that day." In that day it will be said, "Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready." Rev. 19: 6.

Second. The day of judgment is typified from the "beginning." "The woman's . . . seed . . . it (Christ) shall bruise thy (the serpent's) head." Gen. 3: 15. "And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all," etc., etc. Jude 14. "Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet: and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies. . . . . For the Lord shall rise up as in mount Perazim, he shall be wroth as in the valley of Gibeon." Isa. 28: 17, 21. See the type. Josh. 10: 10, 11;—And the Lord . . . . slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and . . . cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword."

We now call attention to the antitype. Ezek. 13: 13;—"Therefore thus saith the Lord God: I will even rend it (verse 10, the wall built by one, and daubed by others) with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury to consume it." "And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail; for the plague thereof was exceeding great." Rev. 16: 21.

At the same time, "every man's sword shall be against his brother." Ezek. 38: 21. Thus by sword, and by the hail, "the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground." Jer. 25: 33.

Then comes "the supper of the great God" "unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field," "that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, . . . and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great," etc. Rev. 19: 17; Ezek. 39: 17. "And when the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go out to deceive the (risen) nations. . . . And fire came down out of heaven and devoured them." Rev. 20: 7, 9.

Thus ends "the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." "The day that shall burn as an oven." "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death." Nevertheless says Peter, God, "according to his promise" (by Isa. 65: 17), creates "new heavens and a new earth" out of the dissolved or melted mass of the former.

In Rev. 21, we have the tabernacle of God with men,—all things made new. "These words are true and faithful." In the Restitution, or Sabbath of rest, "the Lord God shall give him (Christ) the throne of his father David" (Luke 1: 32), in "the beloved city." Rev. 20: 9. In the new earth Christ's throne will be in the new Jerusalem, that will come down from God out of heaven, the city of pure gold, fifteen hundred miles square, gates of pearl, "as it were transparent glass."

"Watchman, in that golden city,
Seated on his jasper throne,
Zion's King, enthroned in beauty,
Reigns in peace from zone to zone."

In Christ's millennial reign the saints will inherit the kingdom prepared . . . from the foundation of the world," and "reign with him a thousand years." In the new earth "they shall reign for ever and ever." In the restored earth, when "the enemies of the Lord . . . shall consume: into smoke shall they consume away, . . . and they that be cursed of him (the deceived in the four quarters of the earth) shall be cut off." Ps. 37: 20, 22.

In the new earth "there shall be no more curse." The promised inheritance has been "purchased" by the blood of Jesus, and is now going to be delivered from the curse. But the new earth will require no redeeming, for sin and sinners will never enter there. At the end of the millennial reign, the restored earth will be defiled by the risen multitude of Gog, "the number of whom is as the sand of the sea." In the new earth "there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth, . . . but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life."

1 Cor. 15: 25;—"For he (Christ) must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet." Verse 24;—"Then cometh the end (of the thousand years), when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father." "And he (God) that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." Rev. 21: 5.

The great day of God's wrath, to reward sinners, is near. And the rest of eternal glories, to reward the saints, is at hand. "Therefore, be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

New Glasgow, C. E. JAS. MORRISON.

For the World's Crisis.

SOMETHING TO REJOICE FOR.

DEAR FRIENDS:—I am so constituted that I cannot rejoice unless I have something to rejoice over. Many professed christians, who occasionally meet with us, and sometimes join with us in the service of the Lord, find fault with both ourselves and our speaker, because we speak so often of the coming kingdom. They like to see us happy, like to hear us say we rejoice, but are unwilling we should give our reason for rejoicing.

Said one, who professes perfection, to me not many months since, "If I should talk of the new earth, the coming kingdom, and such like things, as much as you do, it would spoil all my enjoyment." I could but be astonished. The thought came to mind, If I did not profess christianity, and that sister, aware of the fact that I rejoiced only over the good fortunes of this world, should call on me, find me greatly rejoicing, and should begin to talk the matter over with me, and I should tell her I did not wish to get into conversation concerning the cause, as it certainly would have a tendency to destroy all my enjoyment, she would certainly believe me not a little beside myself. Now if we may be considered beside ourselves for not giving our reasons for rejoicing concerning things pertaining to this life, why may we not if we give no reasons concerning things pertaining to a life to come?

I rejoice! and, as I have before said, have something over which to rejoice. I rejoice that when man had sinned and become subject to death, a Savior was promised, that through him we might have a resurrection from the dead. I rejoice that we have not the promise alone, but the fulfillment, that Jesus did come, died, and rose again; ascended upon high, and now sitteth at the right hand of the Father, to make intercessions for us. I rejoice that after our resurrection we may be real, literal beings, not phantoms. As we are to be something, I rejoice that we have a promise of a dwelling place,—the earth restored to its original beauty and purity. I rejoice that Jesus hath said, "I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go I will come again, and receive you to myself; that where I am there ye may be also." I rejoice that he has told us by what signs we might know that he was soon to come. I also rejoice that all things speak in thunder tones that time at hand.

Now, says the apostle, "Seeing these things are so, what manner of persons ought we to be," etc. I have not language to express my feelings concerning this thing. I am aware of the fact that every moment of our lives should be spent in preparation for that day. How blessed the sound! "Come, ye blessed of my Father." How awful the sound, "Depart, I never knew you"! How my heart is pained when I see those near and dear to me by the ties of nature shunning these things because it is unpopular to believe that Jesus is coming. Those friends who have kept a watchful eye upon me since a child, have never looked down upon me because of my poverty, but on the other hand have assisted me that I might not want, are near and dear, and their company is sweet to me here. Must we be separated when Jesus comes, and they not permitted to dwell upon the new earth? God forbid. My daily prayer to God is that I through Christ may be considered worthy, and that my daily walk and conversation may be such that I may be a help and not a hindrance to the cause of Christ.

We are differently organized. While my brethren and sisters fail in one thing, I fail in another. So you see the need of what God's word says we must have—charity. So when we see each other in fault, let us pity, not blame. Let us pray often one for another. If we are but faithful, we shall soon be made immortal, unchangeable, unerring.

Your sister in Christ, looking for his soon appearing. K. A. PAGE.

☞ Those who are contented with little deserve much; and those who deserve much are far the most likely persons to be contented with little.

For the World's Crisis.

THE ITALIAN MISSION.

My dear brethren and sisters:—I am grateful for the privilege of sending you my third report from Italy, commencing with the first of Aug., and closing with the first of Sept., during which time we have enjoyed much of the blessing of Heaven. During this time I have given thirty-six lectures, and been listened to with much interest. But the 25th of Aug., when our meetings were increasing in number and interest, our landlord ordered us to close them, saying he did not wish to make himself enemies of the ministers, and on the same account, I suppose, he advised me to get other apartments. The next evening, when I notified the congregation that my lectures must be discontinued for the present, several of my congregation, those who had attended them from the first, were affected to tears. The next evening I received a pressing invitation from one of them, to go to a private room and meet with a few who would assemble there. I went, and we had an excellent meeting; and I continue to meet with as many as the room will contain till the present time. The meetings increase in interest. The 26th, a gentleman from Turin, who is spending a few weeks in this vicinity, and who has attended my lectures regularly, came to me and advised me to move my family a mile across the river Pelice to St. Jean, where he has found apartments for us, and feels sure we shall be listened to with interest. As I have looked in vain for apartments on this side of the river, La Tour being quite a place of resort during warm weather, and all suitable houses, such as are convenient for meetings, being occupied, I look upon this as an opening of Providence in our favor. Our Post Office address will still remain La Tour Pelice, via Turin, Italy.

Already, through the blessing of Heaven, the way is opened for me to lecture in Turin, Genoa, Nice, Florence and Milan, and it seems to me it would be most advantageous for the mission, if I could spend the winter in those and other large towns, as God shall open the way. But it will be impossible for me, my dear brethren, as you can easily comprehend, to visit such places without means to pay traveling expenses and clothe myself respectably. Especially will it be necessary for me to be provided with our best tracts in the French and Italian languages. Already there is call for them, and I am informed by intelligent friends, who are interested in the spread of the gospel of the kingdom, that it is very necessary to success that publications should be spread abroad, to accompany the preaching of the word. Had we means to buy paper and a small hand press in Paris, we could go at once to the work of translating tracts and other publications.

The blessing of God has attended the efforts that have been put forth in weakness and poverty, and all that seems necessary in addition is means with which to prosecute the work already begun, till churches by the grace of God shall be raised up in this country able to support this glorious cause of the everlasting kingdom. The people of these valleys are generally very poor farmers, who work hard and have but very little money. The best workmen receive from thirty to forty sous per day, and board themselves, and work from four o'clock in the morning to eight o'clock at night. My time is occupied through the day in receiving visitors, who come to inquire in regard to the present truths I preach, calling upon the people, holding prayer meetings, and my evenings in preaching and prayers, so that if my health would permit me to work as a laborer here, I cannot use my time in such a way.

Beloved brethren and sisters, you who have done so much to assist us to come here and commence this great work by the order of God, as I believe, who has chosen North America to carry glad tidings of the coming kingdom to the nations, I entreat you to help us still, in the name of our dear Master, to carry it forward, that much good may be done in this long-neglected vineyard. As I wrote you in my last report, we are without money, obliged to live upon credit, which is very painful to us indeed, in the commencement of our mission, and a very great disadvantage to it. We have much to contend with in presenting these very important but unpopular truths in an entirely new field, and greatly need the sympathy and co-operation of those of "like precious faith" in your dear gospel-favored land. We have not even seen a paper from the United States since we left London, and much crave the sight of the Advent periodicals.* We cannot conceive why we are thus left to struggle with the difficulties that beset us in this new field of labor without sympathy in word or deed. Be so kind as to give us instructions at once in regard to the future, that we may know what to depend upon.

Yours faithfully, M. B. CZECHOWSKI.

* The Crisis has been sent to Bro. C. since the reception of his first letter from La Tour.

FOR THE ITALIAN MISSION.

"The widow's mite" pd.................. $20.00
T. P. Shepherd pd.................. 1.00

☞ The Italian mission calls for help. Brethren who wish to do good in this direction will do well to forward their contributions soon, as we shall be sending remittances to Bro. C. early in October.

THE DANISH QUESTION.

It appears that Napoleon has turned the Danish war to his own account, as he does almost every other political movement. He has so arranged matters that England is "left out in the cold," or without any sympathy from the belligerent power. The following, from an exchange will set the matter in a proper light before the reader:—[ED.

"The manner the Danish question was put in a way of settlement, was like this: The Cabinet of Berlin caused it to be announced to the Emperor Napoleon that the German allies, or that Prussia at any rate, were disposed to make peace with Denmark, and would readily offer such terms as the latter would accept, provided England was left wholly out of the affair. The plan was, for Denmark to deal directly with Prussia, and no sort of voice or interference from England was to be allowed. By this course, Napoleon became the friend of Denmark, instead of England, which had been trying to play that part from the first. Napoleon caused these overtures to be made known to Copenhagen, and the king at once dispatched his brother to Berlin to propose an armistice and a subsequent settlement of the affair at Paris. And so, if the plan works, England will be left out in the cold."

☞ Found on the camp-ground at Etna, Me., a dark calico bed comfortable. May be had by addressing Sarah E. Rundlett, Etna, Me.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1864.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

DELINQUENTS.

We have on our books about 400 subscribers who owe from $4.00 to $12.00 each; in the aggregate some $2600. To all these we have sent bills, and from most of them we have not yet heard. We are sorry to say to all such, that we shall be obliged to stop their paper IN ONE WEEK FROM THIS TIME, unless they are previously heard from. Write to us, then, at once, and send the amount of your indebtedness, or, if not able to pay all, send what you can. We want to hear from every one, and to know whether you wish the paper continued or not.

OUR FREE SUBSCRIBERS.

We want to hear from every one of them within another week. The larger portion of them have received the paper free for years, and we want to know whether they desire its continuance. If the donations to the Poor Fund should not be sufficient to meet the expenses of papers sent free, we shall be obliged, in accordance with the decision of the C. P. Society, to cut down our free list, so as not to exceed four hundred. We wish, therefore, to hear from all such at once, so that we may know who really need it and wish it continued.

WISCONSIN CAMPMEETING.

In our "Wayside Incidents," we parted with our friends at Madison, Wis., en route for the campmeeting at Okee, about twenty-three miles from M. Madison is the pleasantest city we have seen in the West. It is on an elevation of land, nearly surrounded by pleasant lakes and streams. The State House is in the centre of the city, surrounded by an abundance of shade trees. The Capitol is a fine building, worthy of its beautiful situation. It is not yet fully completed, but sufficiently so to be occupied.

On Saturday, Sept, 10th, we took the stage for the camp-ground. We were very much crowded, and took our seat on the baggage behind. We sat down, stood up, and walked, as we found it most convenient. After being three hours on the way, we were six miles from our starting point. Thus we went on, and at the end of eight and a half hours, we arrived at the camp-ground, and met a most hearty welcome from Bro. and Sr. Sheldon and many other dear saints. We found seven tabernacles erected, and things looking very much like a campmeeting.

On our way to the camp-ground we passed over a section of rolling prairie, of deep, rich soil; but the drought this year has spoiled their wheat, which is the staple crop on which the people depend for their support. Some cut it down when it was green, and fed it to their cattle. There is a small crop of oats, potatoes and corn. The greatest lack in that beautiful country is in wood and water. Many of the vast prairies are without wood, and have never had any timber on them, so far as known; hence it is difficult to get wood and building materials. In addition to this is a want of water, and when found, it is hard. On our way from Madison to the camp-ground we called at a house to get a drink of water. When we went to the well, we learned that it was one hundred and fifty-five feet deep, all but twenty feet of which was bored through a rock. It is a delicious sight to behold the rich farms spreading as far as the eye can reach; but all things considered, we prefer a home in New England, among the grassy hills, boiling springs, woodlands, noisy brooks, deep flowing streams, mountains and valleys, and the happy cottage homes. We met many noble-hearted people in the West, with whom we could not fail of feeling at home.

It costs them much to travel to get together for a campmeeting, as they are very widely scattered from each other. They have to travel two or three days to arrive at the point of meeting. We think they are more self-denying and ready to sacrifice for the cause of the Lord, than those who live in the eastern states; and, as a result, they reap greater blessings at their meetings. So far as our experience and observation go, we feel satisfied that the greater the sacrifice made for the Lord, the richer the blessings received. When men are unwilling to make any sacrifice for the Lord, they must not expect to feel rich in him. Those whom we met in Wisconsin did not appear to be among the selfish ones.

Our campmeeting was in one of the pleasant oak openings, so peculiar to Wisconsin, and other sections of the west. Our first meetings were held on the Lord's day, Sept. 11th. The weather was fine, the audiences of good size, and attentive. The cause of truth, where Bro. Sheldon has labored, is in a healthy condition. He is one of the faithful, prudent, self-denying watchmen, who has only to be known, to be esteemed and loved for his good works. He is the right man in the right place, and we hope the brethren in the west will see that he is well sustained, notwithstanding these are hard times.

Monday, Sept. 12th, we had no meetings till evening, when we preached in the Western Mission Tent, which will hold several hundred people. In the course of our discourse we took occasion to remark that the Spirit of Christ would not lead one to fight with carnal weapons. This led some who are very much opposed to the Southern rebellion, as we think every christian and true man should be, to think that we were in sympathy with the rebels. Without stopping to inquire, some became very angry at us; and at the close of the meeting attacked us personally with very bold threats that our life should be taken, and that the means were at hand for our execution; and but for the interference of some noble-hearted citizens, and the protection of the Lord, that might have been our last meeting upon earth. But during the entire scene, we felt perfectly calm, with undisturbed peace of mind, even when receiving a most violent thrust, which sent us reeling for several feet. To the Lord be all the glory. Once we could not have borne such treatment without resentment. Our Brn. and Srs. were much alarmed at the scene, but the Lord overruled it all for good. As some were too much excited to talk candidly about the matter that night, we arranged to meet those who were offended, the next day. About noon we met under the oaks, and after talking pleasantly for a little time, we parted with them as friends, praying earnestly that they may all become the followers of Jesus, and have a home in the coming kingdom. They afterwards attended the meeting, and treated us with much kindness.

The campmeeting continued to increase in interest from the commencement to the close. We think much good was accomplished. Several decided to serve the Lord, and backsliders were reclaimed. Our meetings were refreshing seasons. The brethren and sisters show much love for each other, and a readiness to share their comforts of life with their neighbors more cheerfully than we have often seen in the east.

On Saturday evening we had a calm in a storm. A severe thunder shower came up, which we expected would blow down our large tent in which we were assembled. The lightning flashed, the thunder roared, the wind blew, and the rain fell in torrents; but we had a most glorious meeting through it all. We were a very happy company, and had a great triumph of peace and joy. The unconverted were confounded at the sight, and convicted of the reality of the christian religion.

Sabbath day was a good one in the Lord. In our love-feast over one hundred testified in less than an hour. All was quiet and orderly during the day. We had a blessed season in the evening, closing with the sacrament of the Lord's supper, when over one hundred sat down to the table to commemorate the sufferings of our Savior. Many remarked that it was the most heavenly sacrament they ever enjoyed. At its close several requested prayers that they might be saved in the kingdom. Tears flowed as we parted, but we hope soon to meet where they will all be wiped away.

During our meeting twelve happy souls were buried with Christ in baptism. We trust the work begun will continue till others come into the fold. We shall remember the Wisconsin campmeeting with pleasure, and ever feel grateful for the many kind favors received. May the peace of God rest forever upon those dear friends in Jesus.

THE PROPHETIC PERIODS.

For some time there has been but little said or written on the prophetic periods. We have not spoken editorially, because we have seen no clear light on the subject; and we dare not venture on speculative evidence. It has been our increasing conviction for some years that the prophetic periods of Daniel and John will be clearly understood by the church of Christ before his second coming; and that this will be the last and clearest evidence of the coming of the Son of man. If we look at the arrangement of the evidences of Jesus' coming, from a common sense stand-point, we think we should expect first some signs, or events, showing that the day was drawing near; and that these signs and events would increase in number and clearness till the event was at hand; when, at last, the definite time would be given and understood.

For some time the signs of the coming of Christ have been so fully developed, and the corresponding events which should transpire in "the time of the end," that we have been anxiously waiting for light on the prophetic periods, showing that the seal was broken, and that the time had come for the wise to understand. One thing is certain, if we ever have light on the prophetic periods, it must come after the signs, because they are already before us. We dare not say the prophetic periods shall not be understood, because the angel declares the opposite. We shall not need them after Christ comes; hence, if ever understood, so as to be of any practical benefit to the church, it must be before the second advent. No candid person who reads the Scriptures, can fail to see that great importance is attached to these periods. The special inquiry of Daniel is in relation to the length of the vision; and it should also be observed, that it is on this point that special instruction is given; but Daniel is told that "the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end." Dan. 12: 9. Hence all efforts to read or understand the vision concerning the prophetic periods, before the seal is broken, will only prove to be but so many failures. But if we have come to "the time of the end," when the time seal is to be broken, then we shall certainly have the light, and have it too, we think, in season to spread it among those who are wise, because they love and obey the Lord.

Again, we are fully convinced that when the true light falls upon these periods, it will be so clear and simple that all the children of the Lord may read and "understand." Truth is noted for its simplicity, and error being blind and mysterious.

We would now inform the reader that a new work on chronology has appeared of a very interesting character. The following is upon its title page:—

"Our Bible chronology established. The sealed book of Daniel opened; or a book of reference for those who wish to examine the 'sure word of prophecy.' By William C. Thurman. Published by John Goodyear, N.W. Corner of Seventeenth and Pine Streets, Philadelphia." Price $1.50, postage 20cts. For sale at this office.

The author of this work is a German Baptist. For years he was a deist, and even doubted the existence of a God. When in this state of mind, he disposed of a considerable portion of his property for the purpose of purchasing works for and against the Bible and christianity. Having collected all he could find on both continents, he commenced a most thorough examination of the arguments on both sides. After examining the various writers on the subject of Bible chronology, he found such a variety of opinions and discrepancies, he thought this one of the strongest objections to the inspiration of the Scriptures; and finally concluded to devote his special attention to an investigation of the matter. He determined to receive nothing as truth in chronology but what rested on a firm basis. Being a thorough mathematician, he calculated the times for all the eclipses in the six thousand years of the history of our world. He then compared prophecy and history, and examined with great care the prophetic periods, and the result was, that he became most fully convinced of the truth of the Bible, and that Jesus will come within a few years.

Bro. Thurman has lived in Virginia., and had not seen any of those who are looking for the speedy coming of Christ, till very recently. He is said to be a very humble, unassuming man, but most thoroughly posted in all things connected with chronology. He is traveling and lecturing in the churches, speaking some two or three times a day. Those who have seen him, speak very highly of him; and those who have examined his work are satisfied that it demands the candid attention of all Bible students.

From a hasty glance at his work, we see evidence to believe that it contains a true exposition of Bible chronology, and the time for the termination of the prophetic periods.

As soon as we find time to give it a careful examination, we purpose to lay his arguments before our readers for their consideration. We think clearer light than ever before seen is about to shine upon our pilgrim pathway. Praise the Lord.

INQUIRIES.

BRO. GRANT:—Dear Sir,—I send you some three or four passages of Scripture to obtain your views on them through the Crisis. The passages I shall quote, I found in an article written by Dr. D. W. Clark, Editor of the Ladies' Repository, of May 1854. They are not passages commonly used to prove the immortality of the soul; and some of them I consider harder to reconcile with the sleep of the dead than those usually quoted, such as the rich man and Lazarus, and thief on the cross, etc. Will you please give an explanation of them through your valuable paper, and greatly oblige those that are seeking after truth as for hid treasure.

They are the following:—Heb. 12: 23, John 8: 56, Rev. 22: 9, 1 Thess. 5: 10, also 23d verse. Here seems to be a distinction between soul and body, and the spirit is spoken of as something that is responsible, or accountable, or might be blameable. How can that be made to harmonize with the idea that the spirit is the breath of life? Is the spirit a living principle, that exists somewhere until the resurrection? If not, how could the apostle with propriety pray that it might be kept blameless unto the coming of Christ?

Yours in hope of eternal life,
Ottawa, Minn. ALLEN LEWIS.

P. S. I wish to say here, that the Crisis is the best pilgrim's paper I have ever seen, although I am taking another religious paper. Yet I hail the weekly visits of the Crisis with joy. It is truly refreshing, after looking over so much trash in the popular periodicals of the day, to get hold of a paper with a "thus saith the Lord" in it.

God strengthen you in your labors of love, and hasten on the day when we shall see eye to eye, and be permitted to live for ever in the new earth, and the new Jerusalem shall be the capitol of the universe, and Christ is King over the whole earth. A. L.

ANSWERS TO THE FOREGOING.

The first passage mentioned, including the context, reads as follows:—

"Ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest; but ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel."

It is certain that "just men" are not "made perfect" before the coming of Christ, and the resurrection of the dead. Paul says "ye are come," speaking as though they were then there, but they were not then perfected in the kingdom of God; "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels, and THEN he shall reward every man according to his works."—Matt. 16: 27. Dr. Adam Clarke gives us light on the passage under consideration. He says:—

"The description in these verses does not refer to a heavenly state. . . . In heaven there is no need of a mediator or sprinkling of blood; but these are mentioned in the state which the apostle describes." The "first born," he says, are those who first receive the gospel of Christ, and who are elsewhere termed the 'first fruits,'—'the spirits of just men made perfect.'" He says, "We cannot understand these terms without the assistance of Jewish phraseology. The Jews divide mankind into three classes: first, the just perfect; second, the wicked perfect; third, those between both. The just perfect are those who have conquered all brutal appetites and gross passions; . . . the wicked perfect are those who never repent; . . . the intermediate are those who are influenced partly by the evil principle, and partly by the good. . . . The spirits of the just men made perfect, or the righteous perfect, are the full grown christians."

We see nothing in Heb. 12: 23 to sustain the doctrine of the immortality of the soul.

The next passage to be considered is in John 8: 56, as follows:—"Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day; and he saw it and was glad." The word it is not in the original, but supplied by the translators. The question arises, in what way did Abraham see Christ's day? Certainly by faith. He does not say Abraham is rejoicing now in seeing my day, but he "rejoiced" and "saw" in the past; that is, by the prophetic spirit. When he "saw," he "was glad," not is glad now. Daniel and John saw things in vision which have not yet transpired.

We turn now to Rev. 22: 9, which, with the context, reads as follows:—"I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel that showed me these things. Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not; for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book; worship God."

We are surprised that any one should resort to this passage for proof of the immortality of the soul. Those who do, try to make out that the one who instructed John was one of the prophets. Suppose it read so, then it might be either Enoch or Elijah, who were translated and did not see death. But it is expressly declared that it was an angel who showed John the things recorded in the Revelation, not one of the prophets. John "fell down to worship before the feet of the angel." When men die they do not take their feet with them, and the rest of their bodies.

The old version of Wm. Tyndal and Wordsworth reads, "I am thy fellowservant, and the fellow servant of thy brethren the prophets." This angel was not only a servant of John, but had been to the prophets also.

We now turn to 1 Thess. 5: 10, 23, which read as follows:—"Who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him. . . . And the God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ."

We see no proof in verse 10 of the popular view of the soul. It simply teaches that, as the result of the death of Christ, all who serve him will live with him; not that they do now. At his coming, some will be asleep in death, and others will be alive. Those asleep are to be awakened and caught up with those who are alive, and "so" they are to be gathered to meet the Lord, not when they die. Paul says, just before the verse under examination, "I would not have you to be ignorant concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope."—Why not?—"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first." The matter seems very plain, that the apostle is simply showing that the sleeping ones are to be raised and live with Christ, as well as those alive, when he comes.

Verse 23. We find nothing in this verse either to teach the immortality of the soul, or spirit. The apostle prays that not only the "whole spirit and soul . . . be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ," but the whole body also. Are the bodies of the Thessalonians now in a state of preservation from decay and dissolution? Who dares assume any such position? Why then assert that there is a spirit preserved as an entity, and a soul as another living being? One use of the word soul is to represent the desires of men; and one meaning of spirit is to indicate our feelings. Paul would have all these preserved "blameless"; or, as Mace renders the passage,—"May every part of you be preserved blameless." The latter, we think, is the apostle's meaning.

Until something of more weight than the foregoing passages afford is brought to prove the immortality of the soul, we shall feel safe in believing the Lord means what he says, when by his Spirit he moved a holy prophet to write concerning man, "His breath goeth forth, he returned to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."

"THE HOPE OF THE WORLD."

There is much said about the best means of establishing order in the confused state of our world, and many plans are proposed; but thus far they have all failed, and every experiment only shows more clearly that the efforts of men to introduce the millennial state of things by mere human means will only demonstrate more clearly the utter weakness and inability of all such agencies to bring about a better state of things before the coming of Jesus. But it appears one more grand effort is to be made through the advice of the demons to set all things right in our world. The following from the Banner of Light, Aug. 13, 1864, will speak for itself:—

"The hope of the world lies not in the establishment of false theology, unlinked with science. It lies in the regenerating power of wisdom-directed culture, as vouchsafed to earth from heaven through the inspirations of Spiritualism. Education and spiritualization are sufficient for the salvation of the world, and in these are we to discover all that man can ever require."

It will be observed that they do not look to the Lord to accomplish this work, but it is to be done by means of "Education and Spiritualism." We shall see how far success will attend the effort. If "the hope of the world" is is Spiritualism, we may expect strange times when that hope is consummated. It is evident from the signs of the times, that we shall soon see the demoniacal power predominating in the world; when the saints will be sure of their speedy deliverance by the coming of the Son of man.

Our Tract Column.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$256.28
Susan E. Teeple pd	.25
E. F. Treat pd	.20
S. M. Clark pd	.75
M. Treat pd	.25
H. Rockwell pd	.15
M. A. Small	3 55

THE POOR FUND.

TO SEND THE CRISIS TO THE POOR.

No. of free and non-paying Subscribers, 800.—$2000.00

"The widow's mite" pd	$5.00
"A poor sinner" pd	3.92
J. B. Walker pd	2.00
S. Butler pd	2.50
Geo. T. Adams pd	25.00
Maria Drury	.25
D. T. Taylor pd	.50
T. W. Piper pd	1.00
I. Chapman pd	2.00
J. W. Sharick pd	1.00
S. F. Hulburd pd	.25
Mrs. R. G. Ladd pd	10 00

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim is now published twice a month. It at present is under the editorial charge of H. L. Hastings. Hardly a week passes in which we do not see some of its articles copied into other papers far and near, thus showing that other editors appreciate its contents, and think them worth reading.

The price of the Pilgrim is very low—only thirty cents per year. This is really less than it costs. It needs a host of new subscribers to sustain it at this price. Shall the little paper live? Shall it be a feeble weakling, or shall it have a strong and vigorous growth?

Some of you have long wanted a children's paper; you have one now, and what are you doing to sustain it? Are you trying to circulate it? We look to you to push this matter. It needs attention. If the Pilgrim should go down, then there would be lamenting all around, and calls for a new paper free from fables, etc., as before.

But we do not expect the Pilgrim to cease its journeyings at present, and we want all the old folks to give it a warm welcome and a helping hand. Take the Pilgrim to read yourself, or to give away in your neighborhood. It is worth reading even by old folks. Get others to subscribe for it. Send on money for it, and also donations, and so keep the Pilgrim on his way. Direct all letters to "The Young Pilgrim," Boston, Mass.

IMPORTANT TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Now is the time for subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to save money. "How?"

By settling up their accounts, and paying in advance, with gold or Provincial bank bills.

A Canadian one dollar bill is worth two dollars here; and, FOR EVERY SUCH $1.00 SENT US, WE WILL GIVE $2.00 CREDIT, more or less, according to the current rates of premium.

The premium on gold and on Canadian bills, is falling. Not long since, the value of $1.00 of such money was as high as $2.87; it is now about $2.00. In a few weeks, it will doubtless fall very much below that, and a few more Union victories may bring it down to par.

Now is the time. Improve it! Pay up your indebtedness, with half the amount due; and, for two years in advance, with the price for one year; or, for one year, with the price for six months. Don't let the opportunity pass. You may never have another. W. B. H.

P. S. Since writing the above, gold has again declined. In the morning, yesterday, it was quoted at $1.92. At the latest quotations, at noon, it was $1.90.

A GOOD WORK.—A Sister sends $3.33 to have the "Signs of the Times" mailed to each of the ten ministers in the town where she lives. The books are sent, and are doing their work. Who else wants to supply ministers with books at the same rate? Send orders with the money to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass., and they shall be sent. Any other volumes of the Bible Student's Library in paper covers will be sent at the same price.

☞ The Tent meeting at Windham Centre, Me., still continues, and is interesting. Sinners are coming to Christ. When done here we go northward. Shall pitch the Tent at Mechanic Falls, Sept. 30th, the Lord willing. H. L. HASTINGS.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE LORD IS COMING."

"The present aspect of the world, both political and religious, shows conclusively that some awful crisis is approaching." "The nations are angry." The sword is glittering on every soil; the war-cry is wafted on every gale; and the shrieks and groans of dying are heard on almost every hand. The cries of widows and orphans are heard at almost every house. Mothers are called to take the parting hand of only sons; and wives to take the last glance at the companions of their hearts. The dark garb of mourning shrouds the world; the mantle of desolation is spread from pole to pole, and famine stares us in the face.

But are things always to continue thus? No, no, we answer. The darkest hours are just before day; and, methinks, with an eye of faith I can almost discern the dawning of redemption's morn. The golden rays of the sun of righteousness are already illuminating the eastern horizon; and the next breeze that sweeps across the plains of Palestine may bring to our ears the echo of the archangel's voice, and the trump of God. Glorious, stupendous thought! When the redeemed millions shall come forth from their dusty slumber to strike the key-note of redemption's song; to bask in the light of immortal glory forever.

And are we ready to meet that day? Are we ready to behold the emerald gates of heaven burst forth, and the mighty Conqueror descending in fiery clouds, to pour God's judgments on a guilty world? Or shall we call on rocks and hills to hide us from the face of him that sits upon the throne? Ah! the parting of to-day is but the bubble on the mighty deep, compared with the awful scenes of that heart-rending hour! There the last, farewell cry is uttered; the fleeting joys of this inconstant life are past, and cherished friends must part to meet no more. The lake of fire—the billows of annihilation, are become the awful receptacle of all whose proud hearts have kept in harmony with earth's deluding joys; whilst the offers of mercy, so long extended, have been rejected with scorn.

O Church of God! Thy trials soon are over! Lift thy head, and look up. Redemption draweth nigh! The vintage of the earth is ripe. The cup of iniquity is full. Earth is heaving her last groan. Deliverance is at hand. Then who would not pray "Thy kingdom come"? J. W. TAYLOR.

Chatham Valley, Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE CONFERENCE.

The eleventh session of the N. H. State Conference was holden at Alton Bay in connection with the campmeeting Aug. 31st and Sept. 1st, 2nd and 3d, 1864.

Pursuant to notice, conference convened in the beautiful grove in front of the preacher's stand. In the absence of the Moderator, the meeting was called to order by the Secretary, and Eld. Albion Ross of Exeter, N. H., chosen Moderator pro tem. After devotional exercises, the following ministers presented their names as members:—L. Allen, D. F. Leavitt, Noah Glidden, S. S. Mooney, Joseph Kimball, J. G. Smith, A. Ross, Andrew Simpson, L. C. Glazier, J. W. White, J. Knowles, L. Boutell, T. W. Piper, C. S. Emerson, and A. W. Sibley.

The minutes of the last session were then called for, read, received and adopted.

Moved, That a committee of three be appointed by the Chair to prepare business to come before this meeting. Carried.

The Chair then appointed A. W. Sibley, C. S. Emerson, and J. W. White, as that committee. Then the following officers were elected for the year ensuing:—A. Ross, President; A. W. Sibley, Secretary; J. Knowles, Treasurer. Adjourned till after the P. M. service from the stand.

Met as per adjournment. The President in the chair. As there was no business prepared by the committee, the meeting adjourned till to-morrow, 7 1-2 o'clock A. M.

Thursday, 7 1-2 o'clock A. M. Met as per adjournment, A. Ross presiding. After invoking the divine blessing, it was Moved, That our visiting brethren be invited to a seat and take a part in our deliberations. Carried.

Moved, That Bro. Geo. W. Brown, Portsmouth, N. H., become a member of this conference. Carried.

The committee on business were then called upon to report, when they respectfully reported the following: That whereas the present resolutions in the judgment of your committee are imperfect in their practical workings, or do not meet the demand of the cause in N. H. as a basis of operation, we therefore suggest the following amendments and additions to the former resolutions:

I. This conference shall be called the Advent Christian State Conference of N. H.

II. The members of this conference shall consist of ordained and unordained ministers in good standing, and delegates of churches co-operating with this conference.

III. Its officers shall consist of a President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer; all of whom shall be chosen annually.

IV. It shall hold its sessions annually, as may be appointed by the board of officers, at which the ministers shall report themselves personally or by letter, and the churches by delegates duly appointed thereby.

V. It shall hold its quarterly sessions at such places in the State as the cause may demand.

VI. It shall choose annually a committee of three or more, to advise with and give encouragement to such persons among us as, in their judgment, are called to the solemn and responsible work of preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God.

On motion, the amendments and additions made by the committee were received and adopted as the constitution of the N. H. State Conference, by a full and hearty vote.

Moved, That the following brethren be the ministerial committee for the year ensuing, viz:—J. Knowles, J. Couch, T. W. Piper, J. W. White, and D. F. Leavitt. Carried.

Moved, That Eld. T. W. Piper be Vice President of this conference for the year ensuing. Carried. Adjourned till after the P. M. service from the preacher's stand.

Met as adjourned. The President being absent, Bro. T. W. Piper, Vice President, took the chair. After asking the benediction of Heaven upon us, we proceeded to business.

Moved, That Bro. O. D. Eastman be a member of the N. H. State Conference. Carried.

Moved, That we invite the board of officers to move this conference and not hold it in connection with this campmeeting hereafter. Carried. Adjourned till 8 o'clock A. M.

Friday, 8 o'clock A. M. Met as per adjournment. Prayer by the President, after which it was Moved, That our annual State conference shall commence on Thursday at 1 o'clock P. M. before the third Sunday in October. Carried.

Moved, That those who wish to become members of the N. H. State Conference shall suggest, or have their names suggested, to the ministerial committee, and that they present their names to the conference. Carried. The meeting then adjourned till after the P. M. service from the preacher's stand.

Met after the P. M. service as adjourned. Prayer by Bro. S. S. Mooney.

Moved, That Brn. Charles C. Ramsey, Jos. Weeks, and T. E. Lang, Jr., become members of this conference. Carried.

We would here say that this P. M. Brn. Geo. W. Brown, Portsmouth, N. H., and Charles C. Ramsey, Exeter, N. H., were set apart to the work of the gospel ministry by the imposition of hands and prayers, and are commended to the confidence and fellowship of the church where they may be called to labor. Elds. H. L. Hastings, Edwin Burnham, T. W. Piper, J. W. White, D. F. Leavitt and J. Knowles officiating. Adjourned till Saturday, eight o'clock A. M.

Saturday, 8 o'clock A. M. Met as per adjournment. T. W. Piper in the chair. Prayer by Bro. C. S. Emerson, after which it was Moved, That Bro. John Pearsons be a member of this conference. Carried.

Moved, That the campmeeting committee be composed of seven instead of five. Carried.

Moved, That the chair appoint a committee to nominate a campmeeting committee to serve the year ensuing. Carried.

Accordingly the chair then appointed J. G. Smith, J. W. White and J. Knowles as that committee.

The committee, after retiring and consulting, returned and reported the following persons for campmeeting committee for the year ensuing, viz: J. G. Smith, Joseph Langley, Chas. H. Willey, L. Boutell, C. S. Emerson, Joseph Pinkham, and T. W. Piper. The report of the committee was accepted and adopted.

Moved, That we make an effort to raise a tract fund of $200, with which to purchase tracts for free distribution throughout the bounds of this conference. Carried.

Moved, That we tender our thanks to W. A. Sanborn and A. Wiggin, Captains of Steamers "Lady of the Lake" and "Chororua," and the Superintendents of the different railroads, who made a reduction in fares on the same, for their courtesy and kindness towards us, and especially to Geo. C. Kimball, Supt. of the Dover and Winnipissegee R. R., for his courteous and generous efforts to aid us in carrying our campmeeting through successfully. Carried.

Moved, That a copy of these minutes be published in the "World's Crisis." Carried.

The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the board of officers.

A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

East Boston, Sept. 24th, 1864.

Correspondence.

From Sr. N. Colburn.

BRO. GRANT:—Since I first became acquainted with your excellent paper, the World's Crisis, I have ever esteemed it a great privilege to peruse its pages, and hear from those of like precious faith through its columns; and if I could pay for it, I would feel it a privilege to send in my name as a subscriber; but as I have not the means to pay, and am the most of the time confined to my bed and room by sickness, and have no way of earning money, I dare not subscribe. I hope to receive a few papers now and then from dear Sister B. of Bolton, C. E., which will be cheering to me in my lonely hours. And I hope soon to meet the redeemed of earth in a land where we shall no more need the visits of a periodical, as a means of communion with each other.

I think if we are truly the followers of the blessed Redeemer, we shall soon walk and talk together in the paradise of God, where there will be no more separation from those we love; neither will there be any privations in that happy land; and we shall not feel like pilgrims and strangers, and that we have no continuing city or abiding place. No, thank God; we shall all enjoy the same like privilege in the heavenly kingdom, and know no fears of suffering or disease. For God himself will then dwell with his people, and be their God. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are past away." "And he that sat up on the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." "And he said unto me, write; for these words are true and faithful."

We have a sure promise that the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace, and that God will come to earth and dwell with his people. He that overcometh, saith God, shall inherit all things. "Such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him, shall be cut off." This is enough. We cannot ask for more than God has promised to the faithful soldier of the cross. And in a little while we shall see Jesus coming to fulfill the promise made to his people, and to give them the kingdom; that they may possess it forever, even forever and ever.

A word to my dear brethren and sisters scattered abroad. I would say to you all as one; be faithful, let us stand unmoved at our post; press the battle to the gate, and enter the kingdom. I am a stranger to the most of you in this life, but we are not strangers in the heavenly warfare; we all have the same enemy to contend with. And while we remain in this howling wilderness, we must fight against the wiles of the enemy. We must be in earnest. For Satan goeth about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour. We have the world, the flesh and Satan to grapple with; and while we are engaged in the heavenly warfare, we must be awake to duty; if we are not, we shall be defeated by the enemy, and taken captive at his will.

God forbid that we should grow weary or loiter by the way; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. The battle is almost fought, and the victory will soon be ours if we are faithful to our Captain's high command; and we shall soon enter the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem.

We are truly living in perilous times, but the Lord is at hand. Jesus will soon come and discharge each faithful soldier, and give his people rest. Praise God,

"There is rest for the weary, rest, sweet rest. How cheering to the worn pilgrim is the sound of rest, rest in the Kingdom, where the wicked will cease to trouble. How much we have to encourage us to go forward. The Lord help us to be faithful, that we may share together in the glorious rest which remains for the people of God. Your afflicted sister, NAOMI COLBURN.

Magog, C. E.

From Bro. C. N. Buzzell.

BRN. AND SRS.—Through the mercy of God I am still spared from the powers that be and can go occasionally to warn my neighbors that time will soon be ended. I work through the week in the saw mill, and try to labor in the vineyard, on the Sabbath, as the door opens.

I wish to say a few words in regard to Meriden Hill, Columbia, N. H. Some of the brethren are acquainted there, especially Bro. Hastings. As I learn he first preached the Advent in that vicinity and that under a tree near the meeting-house, taking all the congregation, and the minister listening at the window. Well, Bro. H., it did some of them good. I came in contact with one who had refused you the house, and found he could not stand the truth; so he left the meeting, wishing the setters forth of such strange doctrines all dead. The Apostle said the time would come when men would not endure sound doctrine.

Two years ago I had a few meetings there, and the tiny seed sown has brought forth fruit which I trust will continue till harvest. By request have had several meetings there this summer. Baptized one, seen others reclaimed, and still hope for good. Remember the place, brethren, in your prayers. There is a vast region where the Advent doctrine has never been preached. The nearest station is North Stratford, four miles. May God put it into the hearts of some of the watchmen to come and labor here.

And now, pilgrims, while the spirits of devils have gone forth to gather the nations to the last great battle, let us hold fast the beginning of our faith, even unto the end. O God! preserve thy people in these last perilous times. Your unworthy brother, looking for redemption when the Lord comes.

Berlin Falls, N. H. C. N. BUZZELL.

From Dr. W. J. Lambert.

BRO. GRANT:—I am a stranger in this country, having moved here with my family from N. York State about three months since. I have not become acquainted with any Second Advent believer since my arrival here, notwithstanding I have made frequent inquiry.

Should there be any persons of our faith, who are looking for that "blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ," I shall feel most most happy to make his or her acquaintance. My residence is at Lambert's brick yard, at Green River, two miles north of Genesee City, Henry Co., Ill.

Yours waiting for the kingdom and her eternal King, DR. WM. C. LAMBERT.

From Bro. J. W. Taylor.

BRO. GRANT:—I attended a meeting at —— Valley yesterday. We had a glorious time. There was a house full, and only six or eight but what took part in the meeting. I have attended meetings here once before, and gave one discourse on the promise to Abraham. Last Sabbath seven were baptized, and more are waiting another opportunity. To God be all the praise.

J. W. TAYLOR.

Knoxville, Pa., Sept. 5th, 1864.

Obituaries.

EMMA JANE MARSH.

Fell asleep in Jesus, of consumption, in Worcester, Mass., Aug. 13th, 1864, Emma Jane Marsh, aged twenty-six years, three months, fifteen days.

Her father died in 1844, a faithful disciple of Jesus, full of the faith of his immediate appearing, leaving a widow and five daughters, whom he committed to a covenant-keeping God.

Time has rolled on, and the Lord has been ever faithful to his promise, and the family have been kept together till that cruel tyrant Death has broken the chain and triumphed, bearing one lovely child in paleness to the grave. Emma Jane was amiable in her disposition, attractive in her demeanor, ambitious, and full of life. This gave her in domestic association many warm friends. In her childhood she yielded sweet submission to the Savior, looked for and loved his appearing, and was baptized in joyful hope. Thus the principles of the gospel grew up with her, and although the various isms and scattering divisions that have been among us had their effect upon Emma, yet when the truth shone out in its native loveliness, she was always ready to bear reproach in love for truth's sake; and while modest in pretension, yet her decision of character was readily seen in promptly giving her opinion on all subjects of importance. This gave her prominence in the family and elsewhere.

It became evident almost two years before her death that disease had fastened itself upon her with such strong hold as not easily to be eradicated. Now came the trial. Her activity in domestic life and strong desire to see the accomplishment of all her plans, without strength to carry them into effect, was a severe trial to Emma, but she yielded to the discipline of heaven, and brought forth fruit unto righteousness.

A few days before her death she had grace and strength to speak freely of her faith and love of Jesus, her calm reliance on him, and him alone, for salvation or life. Death's terrors had fled. She was ready with holy resignation to welcome sweet sleep, repeating these lines,

"I know that my Redeemer lives"; which she wished sung at the funeral. They were expressive of her feelings to the last.

Thus has the lovely daughter of Sister Marsh fallen in death, and is laid away among the jewels to be brought forth in the resurrection of the just, to be rewarded with life eternal. God grant that the mother, sisters and aunt, may all be comforted with the same blessed hope, and live so that it may be one unbroken family in the paradise of God.

Bro. A. Ross attended the funeral, and communicated words of comfort to them by preaching the resurrection of the dead. L. BOUTELL.

ANNIE THORP.

Died in Hawley, Sept. 13th, 1864, Mrs. Annie Thorpe, aged ninety-two years, three months, four days.

She was for many years a member of the Baptist church in Goshen, and a devoted christian. She was very poor in this world's goods, often suffering for the necessaries of life, but she never murmured or complained. She trusted alone in Jesus. Her last sickness was dysentery, from which she suffered very much, and as her end drew nigh, on being asked if she could trust Jesus still, she said, "Yes, he has been my friend many years, and will not leave me now." And as I stood by her dying bed I could but exclaim with one of old, "Let me die the the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

ABBIE H. SMITH.

WILLIS EMERSON.

Died in West Alton, N. H., Aug 1st, of diarrhea, Willis E., son of Walter G. C. and B. O. Emerson, aged five years, three months, and thirteen days.

Willis was the youngest child, and unusually good and affectionate, beloved by all that knew him. He used often to ask questions about Jesus' coming to raise the dead. He suffered very much in his sickness, but now sweetly sleeps, at rest from all pain and suffering. The parents sorrow not as others which have no hope, for they "believe that Jesus died and rose again," and that "even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." O, hasten the glorious day!

"When death divided friends at last Shall meet to part no more."

N. B. SLEEPER.

EMILY R. TANNER.

Died at Afton, De Kalb Co., Ill., of cholera infantum, Emily R., youngest daughter of Bro. and Sr. O. M. Tanner, aged one year, seven months, and nine days.

"Little Emily, thou art sleeping
In thy cold and silent bed,
Holy angels now are keeping
Sacred records of the dead.

We have parted—not forever;
Soon thy sacred dust shall rise,
Then we'll meet where none can sever,
Join the ransomed in the skies."

N. W. SPENCER.

The following children of Alexander Hunt, of Lawrence, Mass., died of diphtheria.

ROSIE O. E. HUNT, died June 9th, 1864, aged six years, three months, and three days.

ALONZO G. HUNT, died June 26th, 1864, aged two years, seven months, and sixteen days.

LILLIE D. HUNT, died June 28th, 1864, aged four years, five months, and five days.

Thus in three short weeks death claimed these three little ones. May the Lord comfort the afflicted family, and prepare both the parents and remaining children for an inheritance in that land where there shall be no more death. H. L. H.

Died, in Skowhegan, Me., of cholera infantum, Clara, only daughter of Alfred and Emeline Austin, aged nine months and three days.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

[Advices of the 7th inst.]

AUSTRIA.

The official Wiener Zeitung denies the rumor that Austria intends forming ten new infantry regiments.

THE DANISH QUESTION.

Prussian papers refer to hitches in the peace negotiations, and to the tenacity of Denmark on the financial question. A breaking off of the negotiations is threatened.

TWO DAYS LATER.

It is rumored that the Brazilian Government has rejected the propositions for a renewal of diplomatic relations with England as recommended by the Portuguese Government and accepted by the British Cabinet.

FRANCE.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says it was the general opinion that the Emperor's health is in a very unsatisfactory state.

It is rumored that Austria is about to recognize the kingdom of Italy.

Intelligence has been received at Lloyds, London, that two more Confederate cruisers had evaded the Federal war steamers and successively run out of the harbor of Wilmington, and since then had destroyed no less than thirty-three Federal merchantmen.

The London Gazette announces the Queen's order, that no war ships of either of the North American belligerents will in future be allowed to enter or remain in any British port for the purpose of being dismantled or sold.

DOMESTIC.

New York, Sept. 19. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Enquirer says: "Gen. Grant and Admiral Bailey will both go at once to New York, where they will be met by Gens. Dix and Franklin, Admirals Porter, Stringham and others. The design of the consultation cannot now be made public. I can only say that some very important movements are contemplated, associated alike with victory and peace."

New York, Sept. 20. The Herald's Mobile Bay correspondent says that an expedition sent out by Gen. Bailey had succeeded in destroying the largest salt works in the rebel limits, at Bonsecom Bay. Large quantities of resin and turpentine were destroyed by the rebels to prevent its falling into our hands. Immense amounts of cotton and turpentine have been sent to Selma in expectation that Mobile might be surrendered. The rebel Gen. Page had been brought to Fort Morgan, where he is to be tried on the charge of destroying the munitions of war in the fort after surrendering. The offense is punishable with death. Large quantities of secreted ordnance stores have been found by our expeditionary parties.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Commercial's special Washington dispatch says: "A Virginian reports that he had conversed to-day with an acquaintance from Richmond, who states that Lee has positively but 40,000 troops independent of Early's command."

New York, Sept. 21. A late Richmond Enquirer says:

"We are of the opinion that the next two months will witness the bloodiest conflicts this war has witnessed, and immediately around Richmond will be the theatre of the conflict. Are our people prepared? The army has the Government to look out for it, but are the people of Richmond prepared for a siege, with all the railroads destroyed? The immense population that now crowds the streets of Richmond had better betake themselves elsewhere. There will be suffering in Richmond this fall and winter which has not been witnessed during this war.

The city may be shelled, for its immediate lines require a vast army to defend it. Its very streets may be the scene of a bloody battle, for it will be defended as no other place has been. Upon the holding of Richmond depends for us everything. Success and a speedy peace, or failure and interminable war, are involved in the coming struggle for Richmond. All may be satisfied that the contest will be desperate, and all had better make provision for their comfort elsewhere. There are required for the defense of the city many thousand more men. The details must be revoked, and all men between the ages of 18 and 45 sent to the front. But a very short time remains for preparation. The railroads that connect with Atlanta are being rapidly repaired. As soon as they are finished the movements will begin, and in a few weeks the conflict will open."

Charlestown, Va., Sept. 22. Sheridan continues to drive the rebels, capturing every day more or less prisoners. The wounded are all being collected at Winchester, and put in temporary hospitals.

War Department, Washington, September 22.

Maj. Gen. Dix:—Dispatches down to 9 o'clock last night have been received from Gen. Sheridan. A portion of the rebel cavalry having turned off to Front Royal they were pursued, attacked and driven by our cavalry, which are still in pursuit. The rebel infantry made a stand at Flint Hill, a strongly intrenched position beyond Strasburg, which was attacked by our forces last evening and the crest carried and held by our troops.

There is reason to believe that later dispatches were captured last night by Mosby, near Winchester.

Gen. Stevenson reports that Sheridan's supply train arrived safely at Winchester last night.

(Signed) E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

Correspondence between President Lincoln and Lieut. Gen. Grant.

Washington, Sept. 22. The following is the copy of a correspondence which took place between the President and Lieut. Gen. Grant, and may prove interesting, as it furnishes an inside view of military affairs:

"Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C., April 30, 1864.

Lieut. Gen. Grant:—Not expecting to see you before the spring campaign opens, I wish to express in this way my entire satisfaction with what you have done up to this time, so far as I understand it. The particulars of your plan I neither know nor seek to know. You are vigilant and self-reliant, and pleased with this I wish not to obtrude any restraints or constraints upon you. While I am very anxious that any great disaster or capture of our men may be avoided, I know that these points are less likely to escape your attention than they would mine. If there be anything wanting which is within my power to give, do not let me fail to know it.

And now with a brave army and a just cause, may God sustain you. Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. LINCOLN."

"Headquarters Army of the United States, Culpepper C. H., Va., May 1, '64.

Mr. President:—Your very kind letter of yesterday is just received. The confidence you express for the future and satisfaction for the past in my military administration is acknowledged with pride. It shall be my earnest endeavor that you and the country shall not be disappointed. From my first entry into the volunteer service of the country to the present day I have never had cause of complaint, and have never expressed or implied a complaint against the Administration or the Secretary of War for throwing any embarrassment in the way of my vigorously prosecuting what appeared to be my duty. Indeed, since the promotion which placed me in command of all the armies, and in view of the great responsibility and importance of success, I have been astonished at the readiness with which everything asked for has yielded without even an explanation being asked. Should my success be less than I desire and expect, the least I can say is, the fault is not with you.

Very truly your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant-General."

New York, Sept. 23.—The Richmond Enquirer of Sept. 17th contains a telegram from Macon, Ga., dated 17th, which states that Gen. Sherman has sent an informal request to Gov. Brown, Vice-President Stephens and H. V. Johnson to come to Atlanta, and converse with him on the subject of peace.

The Richmond Dispatch of the 20th has a long editorial on the subject. It is very bitter, but does not believe that the request will be granted.

Washington, Sept. 23.

Maj. Gen. John A. Dix:—Sheridan's victory proves to be signal and complete. Nothing but the coming of night appears to have saved even a remnant of Early's army. The following dispatch of Maj. Gen. Sheridan's official report to Gen. Grant gives the particulars thus far received:

Headquarters Middle Division, Woodstock, Va., Sept. 23.

To Lieut. Gen. U. S. Grant, City Point:

I cannot as yet give any definite account of the results of the battle of yesterday. Our loss will be light.

Gen. Crook struck the left flank of the enemy, doubled it up, advancing along their lines. Rickett's division of the 5th army corps swung and joined Crook, Getty's and Wheaton's divisions, taking up the same movement, followed by the whole line, and attacking beautifully, carrying the works of the enemy.

The rebels threw down their arms and fled in the greatest confusion, abandoning most of their artillery. It was dark before the battle ended.

I pressed on after the enemy during the night to this point with the 6th and 19th corps, and have stopped here to rest the men and issue rations.

If Gen. Torbert has pushed down the Luray valley, according to my direction, he will achieve a great result.

I do not think that there ever was an army so badly routed. The valley soldiers are hiding away and going to their homes.

I cannot at present give you any estimate of prisoners. I pushed on regardless of everything. The number of pieces of artillery reported captured is sixteen.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Major-General.

New York, Sept. 23. The Herald's City Point correspondent, writing on the 21st, says Gen. Sheridan's great victory has inspired our men more than a reinforcement of twenty thousand men. It was received with uproarious enthusiasm. Gen. Grant telegraphed at once to Washington to make Gen. Sheridan a Brigadier in the Regulars, which was as promptly done. A salute of ten shotted guns from each battery was fired this morning, making over one thousand discharges upon the rebel lines.

The rebels have reinforced their mortar battery by four additional mortars, which are brought to bear on the Dutch Gap Canal workers. They keep up a continual fire but do no damage whatever. Pierce's (Conn.) battery of mortars has thus far been found sufficient to render the positions taken by the rebels so dangerous as to give them no chance to take accurate aim. The negro workmen on the Canal have become remarkably brave and courageous and work on without the slightest panic amid the shower of shell aimed at them.

The rebels are preparing another position for a battery to obstruct the river, when they have to abandon the Howlett House battery, on completion of the canal. They are working at other points like beavers, constructing new defenses.

News from Sheridan this afternoon created wild excitement. The capture of Fisher's Hill, the great stronghold and key to the upper part of the valley, in addition to sixteen guns and thousands of prisoners, is regarded as the destruction of the rebel army in the valley and the opening of the whole route to Lynchburg, which must bring about the evacuation of Richmond or the capture of Lee's whole army.

Other movements on our part are in progress which are not proper to disclose and which will tend to render this result inevitable in a few days.

It is stated that over three thousand rebel deserters have already availed themselves of Grant's proclamation assuring them of Union protection and employment.

News from Charleston to the 19th says firing on the city is continued, and deserters report immense damage done.

Commander Carter of the steamer Michigan telegraphed to the Secretary of the Navy, dating Johnson's Island, to-day, concerning the capture by the pirates of the steamers Parsons and Island Queen.

He says they were pursued by him and that he has got the principal agent a prisoner on board, and many accomplices. He adds: "All well and safe at present." Col. Hall has six of the pirate party on Johnson's Island.

The Herald's New Orleans correspondence of the 12th says it is reported that Forrest and Dick Taylor have joined forces, and number 20,000. Gholson's command is also said to have joined them. Great secrecy is maintained in regard to their movements, but a secessionist here said if Farragut took Mobile, forces would have to be sent from here to hold it, and then they (the rebels) would move either on New Orleans or Mobile.

Washington, Sept. 20. We have won a glorious victory in the Shenandoah Valley. Sheridan defeated Early yesterday in the vicinity of Halltown, capturing 2500 prisoners, five guns and nine stands of colors, besides killing and wounding nearly 3000 of the enemy. Early is in full retreat, with our cavalry close upon his heels. Our forces occupied Winchester yesterday afternoon. The rebels also lost two generals killed. Our loss is comparatively small. The fight was brought on by the rebels attempting to mass their forces on our left, in the direction of Leesburg.

September 23. It is ascertained that Early's shattered forces have abandoned the road to Staunton, and are retreating in disorder via Culpepper and Gordonsville direct to Richmond, leaving the road to Lynchville open; while Lee will be unable to spare another army of sufficient strength to oppose the progress of the victorious Sheridan.

Notices.

Minnesota State Conference and Quarterly Meeting.

The Advent Christian Conference will hold its yearly session in connection with the Winona County Quarterly Meeting, at the Dudly and Perry school-house, in Utica Township, of said Co., beginning Oct. 7th, at two o'clock P. M.

Let every church send delegates, and every minister be in attendance if possible; otherwise be sure to report by letter. Churches and ministers who have not yet united, should be sure to do so this year, that we may move in order and harmony, and consequently with greater strength for good. Delegates should bring letters of appointment from churches, and ministers with whom we are not acquainted should bring with them letters of commendation. Eld. J. V. Himes is expected, and others will please to be with us. All that can come are invited to attend. Let us have a large and a good meeting. PHILIP RAMER.

Maine Advent State Conference.

This conference will convene in the Second Advent Hall on Congress Street, Portland, Thursday, A. M., 10 o'clock, Oct. 6th, and continue over the Lord's day. All who come should go to the Hall, where they will probably find brethren who will direct them to places provided for entertainment. We hope all our ministers who are interested in, and sympathize with, said conference, will be there, and a goodly number of brethren and sisters also who love the work of God and the salvation of souls.

S. K. PARTRIDGE, President.
I. C. WELLCOME, Secretary.

Meeting in Barford, C. E.

The Lord willing, a meeting will be held at Barford, (Kinney school-house), commencing Oct. 4th, at 7 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Lord's day. Preaching brethren and all who love and look for the Lord, and are willing to labor for peace, harmony, and the salvation of men, are invited. Come in the name of the Lord.

L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Notice.

Elder John Couch, of Warner, N. H., is on a visit West, and is preaching as the door opens to him to do good. We are glad for the brethren that he can visit and preach among them, as he will certainly do them good. Let all see to it, that they do not lose any of his meetings.

He will hold a meeting in Union Mills, Ind., of several days, to commence Sept. 29th, holding over the Sabbath.

He will also hold a meeting in Buchanan, Mich., to begin Oct. 9th, holding over the Sabbath. All are invited. J. V. HIMES.

Conference.

The Rhode Island and Eastern Connecticut Conference will hold its next session at Lafayette, commencing the first Wednesday in October, at two o'clock P. M. Let every church be represented, either by delegate or letter, or by both. Pray that God will pour out his Spirit upon this meeting, and that the church may be strengthened and sinners awakened.

A. C. GREENE, Secretary.

Meeting in Mt. Pleasant, Me.

The Lord willing, there will be a barn meeting in Mount Pleasant, in the east part of Stetson, commencing Wednesday, Sept. 28th, at two o'clock P. M., and hold over the following Sunday. The first meeting is designed especially for prayer. Brethren from abroad are invited. Let the laborers come with the conviction that the Lord is able to save. S. HAMMOND.

The Discussion Postponed.

The discussion between Eld. S. W. Bishop and A. Durfee, at Newmarket Hall, Providence, R. I., which was to have commenced Tuesday, Sept. 27th, is postponed until Tuesday, Oct. 25th.

Notice.

The Michigan and Indiana Quarterly Conference will be held at the Orr school-house, Cambria, Hillsdale Co., Mich., commencing Oct. 7th, and continuing over the Lord's day. Eld. Miles Grant, of Boston, will be present to preach the word. Friends are invited to attend. A. N. SEYMOUR.

To the Brethren.

Bro. E. McCullock, of Savoy, Mass., purposes to devote his time and labors in the gospel field as the Lord may direct and the way may open. We, the undersigned, cordially recommend him to the different churches as worthy of their confidence and support.

J. HEMENWAY.
C. GOODRICH.
H. PRATT.

Big Tent Meeting.

If the Lord will, we shall pitch the Big Tent at Mechanic Falls, Maine, Friday, Sept. 30th, to hold till the next Tuesday, or as long as duty may require; and then go further north.

H. L. HASTINGS.

Conference.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at East Hall, No. 104 Hanover street, Boston, will hold a conference, commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th, and continue over the following Sabbath.

Per order of Society. O. CLAPP.

Maine Eastern Quarterly Conference.

This conference is appointed at Lincolnville Centre, Oct. 13th, at six o'clock P. M., and will continue till Sunday evening. We desire those intending to meet us in this conference, to come prepared to work for God's cause. Call on D. Fletcher, E. Blood, E. Caldenwood, and others, or the subscriber. M. YOUNG, Clerk.

Maine Advent State Conference.

This conference will commence in the Second Advent Hall, Congress Street, Portland, Thursday, Oct. 6th, at ten o'clock. Particulars hereafter.

I. C. WELLCOME, Secretary.

Notice.

I. C. Wellcome & Co., now have a good assortment of English Bibles, books, tracts, and hymn books for sale, at the regular prices. As the new hymn book is not to be published at present, we have contracted with Bro. Himes for the "Christian Lyre," so that we can supply those who want them in Maine at wholesale and retail. Prices according to the quantities wanted. Sent by mail or express. Address I. C. WELLCOME & Co., Yarmouth, Me.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Hiram Munger.......Sunday, Oct. 2d

Lynn.......Sunday, Oct. 9th
C. F. HUDSON.

East Boston.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
ELAM BURNHAM.

Stanstead, C. E., (Hard Scrabble).......Oct. 2d
Barford, (Kinney school-house), evening, Oct. 4th, and over the following Lord's day. (See notice in another column.)
Melbourne, (as Bro. Wetherell may appoint), Oct. 16th
Danville, (Claremont).......evening, Oct. 18th
Little Warwick.......evenings, Oct. 19th and 20th
Warwick.......evening, Oct. 21st
Danville, (as Bro. Porter may appoint).......Oct. 23d
Bro. James Webb's.......Oct. 25th
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Scitico.......Oct. 9th
R. E. LADD.

Warner, N. H., (Union Hall).......Sunday, Oct. 9th
Concord, N. H.......Sunday, Oct. 23d
T. M. PREBLE.

New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house).......Oct. 2d
North Canton, Ct.......Oct. 16th
SETH WOODRUFF.

Bath, Me.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
R. R. YORK.

Foster, R. I., (Stone school-house).......Oct. 2d
Danielsonville, Ct.......Oct. 9th
D. O. HOPKINS.

Brewster's Station.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
WM. SHEPHERD.

Plainfield Pond, Mass.......Sunday, Oct. 9th and at Henry Barton's in the evening.
Plainfield, (Bro. E. Healy's).......Oct. 13th
Goshen, Mass.......Oct. 16th
Shelburn Falls, Mass., (as Bro. Cressy may arrange), Oct. 20th.
Northfield, Mass.......Oct. 22d
B. WM. WILKINS.

Otisfield, (Gore school-house).......Oct. 2d
Livermore.......Thursday eve., Oct. 6th
Green's Ferry, (Union Chapel) Friday evening, Oct. 7th
Dixfield Centre.......Saturday eve., and over Sunday, Oct. 8th and 9th
Mexico, (where Bro. Collins may appoint), Monday evening, Oct. 10th.
Byron, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, (where Bro. Taylor may appoint). Oct. 12th and 13th.
Roxbury, (where Bro. Johnson may appoint), Friday evening, Oct. 14th.
Greenwood City, (at the school-house) Sunday, Oct. 16th
Pray for us that our labors may be blessed.
J. C. WHEELER.
J. WHITMAN.

Lynn, Mass.......evening, Sept. 29th
West Abington, Mass.......evening, Sept. 30th
Tremont, Mass., (as Bro. Benson may arrange), evening, Oct. 1st, and the following Sabbath, Oct. 2d, and through the week in the same town, with Bro. Davis.
Carver, Mass., Sunday, Oct. 9th, and through the week, except Saturday.
Holliston, Mass.......Sunday, Oct. 16th
Will then answer to calls in R. I. and Conn., if the Lord will.
H. K. FLAGG.

Concord, N. H.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
L. BOUTELL.

East Hartland, Methodist church).......Sunday, Oct. 2d and longer if desired.
S. D. DANIELS.

Souch Windsor, Ct.......Oct. 2d
S. P. BABCOCK.

Chester, Mass.......Saturday eve, Oct. 1st and over Sunday.
Walbridge, (School-house).......Oct. 16th and 23d
P. S. BUTLER.

Scitico.......Oct. 2d
I. B. POTTER.

West Deerfield, N. H.......eve, Sept. 29th and over Sunday.
Expect Bro. S. Pinkham with me. J. G. SMITH.

Whitakerville, Vt.......Oct. 2d
W. J. HALE.

Goshen.......Oct. 2d
E. MCCULLOCK.

Ashburnham, Mass.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
S. S. BREWER.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y.......Sept. 30th, and Oct. 1st and 2d
Poultney, Vt.......Oct. 4th and 5th
Castleton, Vt.......Oct. 6th and 7th
Sandy Hill, N. Y.......Oct. 8th and 9th
Brethren, pray for us. JOS. D. BROWN.

North Searsport.......Oct. 2nd
Searsport Village.......Oct. 9th
Frankfort.......Oct. 16th
A. MUSSEY.

Unity, N. H., Friday afternoon, Sept. 30th, and over the following Sunday.
Dinsmore Hill, Hartland, Vt.......Oct. 9th
Canaan Street, N. H.......Sunday, Oct. 16th
A. SIMPSON.

Portsmouth, N. H.......Oct. 16th
C. H. LEVERTON.

East Stoneham, Saturday evening, Oct. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Otisfield, (Gore school-house), Saturday evening, Oct. 8th, and over Sunday. J. T. JORDAN.

Northfield, Mass.......Oct. 5th
West Brattl boro, Vt., (at Bro. Gage's), Oct. 6th and 7th
Whitakerville, Vt.......Oct. 8th and 9th
Houghtonville, Vt., as Bro. O. D. Gibson may arrange), Oct. 11th.
Plymouth, Vt., (as the friends may arrange), Oct. 13th and every evening through the week, and over Sunday. Will the brethren and sisters in that region come and help us in the name of the Lord?
GEO. A. STREETER.

Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill).......Sunday, Oct. 2d
Pomfret, Vt., (Harrington school-house), Thursday and Friday evenings, Oct. 6th and 7th, and Sunday, Oct. 9th.
Also meet with other brethren at Newport, N. H., (Northville), Oct. 15th, two o'clock, P. M., and over the Sabbath, to assist in an ordination.
WM. W. SUTHERLAND.

Kennebunkport.......Saturday evening, and over Sunday, Oct. 1st and 2nd.
I will attend these, if the Lord will, if they do not conflict with others. WM. M. INGHAM.

Savoy, Mass., (where Bro. Sherman may appoint) Sept. 29th; and at Noah Merrick's Sunday, Oct. 2d.
B. WM. WILKINS.

Walbridge.......Oct. 2d
A. M. HIGGINS.

Chichester, New Dover, (school-house).......Oct. 2d
Suncook, N. H., (where Bro. Paine may appoint), Oct. 1st.
E. FORD.

Brookfield Corner.......Oct. 2d
Moultonborough Centre.......Oct. 9th
Concord, N. H.......Oct. 16th
T. W. PIPER.

Agawam.......Oct. 2d
BENJ. BUTLER.

Newfane, Whitakerville, Vt.......Oct. 21st
WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Yalesville, Ct.......Sunday, Oct. 2d
New Britain, Ct.......Sunday, Oct. 9th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Cheshire Street, Ct.......Oct. 9th
H. MUNGER.

Worcester.......Oct. 2d and 9th
Plymouth, Mass.......Oct. 16th
J. S. WHITE.

Hawley, (at Bro. H. Barton's).......Oct. 1st
Plainfield Pond.......Oct. 2d
Plainfield, (at Bro. Heley's).......Oct. 3th
Goshen.......Oct. 9th
Dalton, or Flintstone.......Oct. 14th and over the Sabbath. H. HADLOCK.

Mannsville, N. Y.......Oct. 2d
Wilcox Corners, N. Y.......eve, Oct. 8th
Barnes' Corners.......Oct. 9th
Harrisburgh, (Bickford school-house).......eve, Oct. 11th
West Martinsburgh.......Oct. 16th
Copenhagen.......Oct. 23d
Bro. Fenn of Conn. will meet me at Mannsville, and help proclaim the gospel in the above places. Let there be an effort to get out the people. C. B. TURNER.

North Adams.......Oct. 2d
Griswoldville.......Oct. 9th
Northfield.......Oct. 16th
Brattleboro, Vt.......Oct. 23d
Whitakerville.......Oct. 30th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Manchester.......Oct. 2d
C. C. STEVENS.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State FROM which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Eliza A. Tuttle, Joseph Dudley, Polly King.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their POST OFFICE and STATE. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler.

Reuel Willis wants his paper changed to East Auburn, but does not tell what office it is to be changed from. Will he give it?

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Eld. D. R. Mansfield—A letter addressed to him, in our care, remains in this office for re-direction.
C. Hodges—Received $2.00 last April.
D. Kinsman—Right. $1.50; pays to No. 487.
H. Bailey—Eld. A. Ross, Exeter, N. H.
J. S. Morgan—Credited on book to 510.

☞ Edwin O. Newton.—You will find the most information about dark days, etc., etc., in S. S. Brewer's "Last Day Tokens," which can be purchased at the Crisis office, or of S. S. Brewer, Ashburnham, Mass. See catalogue in the Crisis. H. L. H.

CASH RECEIPTS.

The present No. of the Crisis is 469. The No. which follows your name, is the No. to which your money pays. Deduct the one from the other, and you will see how far you have paid in advance, or how much is due the office. Make a memorandum of the same, and you will be reminded when your subscription expires.

$1.00 each.—S. R. Smith 474, P. Farnsworth 489, J. Crawford 509, H Thackray 509, E F Rowand 486, J Gildersleeve 484, Wm Trask 472, S Bricker 486, D Neisley 486, S. Griffin 433, Wm. J Poor 455, M V Meader 477, O R [illegible] 463, J Ballard 484, J M Rannels 485, Z Ford 313, A Ford 463, [illegible] Knowlton 476, G Hunt 451.

$1.25 each.—A Eaton 474, S Hardin 471, A Hook 499, A Lord 481, B Moody 485, B Perham 427, Wm Pullen 499, T C Low 473, J C Townsend 482, E D [illegible] 492, J L W Marshall 483, D B Rogers 491, J M Miner 485.

$2.00 each.—S. O. Westcott 519, B Ray 460, N Fogg 499, A H Laswell 499, R. Tabor 502, J T Adams 481, S T Fellows 520, O Clapp 468, J Moore 503, J Taylor 475, J G Leavitt 520, N A Brooks 489, J. Vickery 513, Geo. McElwain 475, E A Sacket 493.

$2.25 each.—W S Howden 494, D Perry 494, T Weeks 494. J Davis, Jr., 499, L A Janvrin 468, B Lord 495, Mrs. I Rindal 493.

$2.50 each.—H. M. Blackmer 518, P. A. Roberts 518, S B Meloon 518, N. Dorman 518, S R Davidson 499, S Ladd 514, J M Taylor 561, T Chase 520, J L Robie 478, L. French 520, J. L. Hersey 520, F U Granbom 510, N. Stevens 518, L. Lougee 496, A. Twombly 523, Mrs J M Cate 518, S. R. Ward 488, S Clark 520, J F Davis 496, J G Munsey 520, A. M. Locke 524, L J Sargent 515, J J Bartlett 473, S H Clark 518, N H Reed 520, S J Finley 519, M Fisk 537, D Jones 520, J Deut 526, M Foster 520, R Scott 518, M Keys 511, J S Rundlett 520, J Brackett 499, J U Piper 478, Geo. S. Kimball 477, John Morrill 526, E Williamson 513, Wm. Harrington 507, J Smith (what P. O.?), E Whitney 531, M Drury 520, S P Dixon 517, Anna Scovil (what P. O.?) E P Cummings 520, F Wheeler 520.

$3.00 each.—Eli Smith 470, C C Ramsey 468, N Raymond 510, W R Halt 468, A Bliss 468.

50c each.—S Didier 477, D. Steis 477, S W Hildreth 476.

J. Buzzell $6.00, 489; H. Woodard $3.50, 468; C. H. Locke $ [illegible] 475; I Smith Jr., $2.82, 529; S Bemis $2.41, 494; F. W. Dow $1.50, 520; J Sadler $5.00, 536; Mrs. H H Kneeland $1.50, 516; A K P Dudley $6.00, 468; G. C. Smith $2.62, 468; S A Kamerling $3.16, 489; N. Hartshorn $2.20, 440; G E Smith $1.70, 494; M Nason $1.50, 511; D. D. Rice $2.10, 465; Mrs. S. Sawyer 40c. 467, J Ross 63c. 479, C C Jones 63c. 479, Hannah Lewis 63c. 479, Melvin Trafton 63c. 479, M Hanson 63c. 479, A W York 35c. 457, W Chamberlin 63c. 481, D P Smith 63c. 489; M Kimball 75c. 469; H Wyeth $4.50, 520; D Wilson $1.50, 495; S. M. Mann $1.40, 494; N. Pack $3.50, 520; E E Pettingill $1.12, 520; M. Brogs $5.00, 473; J. Burch $1.95, 494; W. H. Albro $3.58, 468; G. Phillips $2.13, 468; M D Allen $1.33, 468, Seth Cotton $5.50, 520; W. W. Parsons 58c, 468; H Spalding $1.42, 498; B F Carpenter $1.45, 468, W H Wheeler 50c. 469; J E Locke 50c. 471, M H Edwards 50c. 464; E M Gilson $1.40, 494.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

E P Conser $2.55, F H Bruce $3.00, O N Brooks 75c, L L Howard $1.50.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.

Eld. Wm. S Shears, A Rennie, B H Webb, D Comstock, H Rockwell, Fred. H. Bruce, S A Griffin, Ezra F Treat, I. Kulp, N S Bastion, E M Adams, J. Douglas, S. J. Twing, D Williams, B Perham, Eld. D M Kinter, S F Green.

BY EXPRESS.—Eld. D M Kinter, W H Shackford.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

L Boutell, E W Hatch, J Taylor, G Dillabaugh, L E Saulpaugh, S E Teeple, A E McEllister, G H Emery, D F Newton.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.
O. R. Fassett—Sandy Hill, N. Y.
L. C. McKinstry—Hatley, C. E.
Jas. S. Heath—Neponset, Bureau Co., Ill.
John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.
Dr. H. H. Brown, Allen, Allegany Co., N. Y.
A. W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.
Wm. Shepherd—Newark, N. J.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instruction; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. New and condensed edition. Edited by John Eadie, D. D., L.L.D. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.80. Sheep, 2.00; by mail, $2.30.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $2.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jas. T. Curry. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

Spiritualism. Discussion with J. S. Loveland, "On Spiritualism and Immortality." [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single. [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell. [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments. [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the Bible. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES. [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible]

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE. [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and MAN: Its Origin, Progress, and End. With the Millennial TRACTS. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church.	25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man.	25c.
Reasons for my Hope.	20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion.	20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly.	20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Taut by Paul.	10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life.	10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church.	10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single	10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome. [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller. [illegible]

Two Hundred Stories for Children. An excellent [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God, [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 13, [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

Home Thrusts, and Home Thoughts. The Golden Rule [illegible]

Louis Napoleon, the Destined Monarch of the World, [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, Is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Beecher. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to critics [illegible]

Social Hymns. Original and selected, by H. L. H. 10 cts. single, $1.00 per dozen, $6.00 per one hundred, postpaid. Address H. L. HASTINGS, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

MOTHER.

Loved mother, how many bright years have known
Thy caresses and counsels, which prompted by love,
Thou, in joy, or in grief, in my path hast oft strewn,
To check me if wandering, when right to approve.

For thou gavest thy heart in thy youth to the Lord,
And thy children to him did'st thou consecrate too;
And the prayer of thy soul was, in deed and in word,
That early our minds He to wisdom should woo.

So "by faith" thou did'st watch for our souls' chiefest good,
With yearnings which none but a mother's soul knows;
And so oft as thy hand for our needs prepared food,
Thy voice brought the nurture "God's Bible" bestows.

But thy voice is now hushed in the stillness of death,
Thy face wears no smile, and thy loved cheek no bloom;
And the hand of the Lord hath now gathered thy breath,
An enemy's carried thee down to the tomb.

Dear mother, thy children will still by His grace,—
On whom thou hast trusted, in whom thou dost sleep,—
Seek truly to live, so to run in life's race,
That he will translate us where none ever weep.

There we'll meet thee, dear mother, in glory we'll meet,
On mountains of life; and the vales of repose
Shall be ever our home, while at Jesus' dear feet
We cast our bright crowns, ever safe from our foes.

And the prayer of our heart shall ascend in His name,
That father, and mother, and children may come,
And be spotless and happy, all free from sin's shame,
And there re-united dwell ever at home.

Yes, through Jesus we hope soon to come to the land
Where saints of all ages with singing will dwell;
And with joy and great gladness behold the blest hand
That "brought their salvation," and "did all things well."

Brockport, N. Y. JOS. D. BROWN.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD; OR, CHRIST AND BELIAL.

"While men slept the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way."—MATT. 13: 25.

(Concluded.)

TESTIMONIALS.

CONFORMING TO THE WORLD.—TESTIMONIAL No. 5.—From Rev. B. T. ROBERTS:

"That the church is rapidly conforming to the spirit and pleasures of the world none can deny. The most alarming feature is that prominent preachers lead the way; and the people blindly follow. The New York papers contain an account of

A TIN WEDDING.—Tuesday evening being the tenth day of the Rev. . . . of the . . . church, he gathered his friends together, to the number of over eight hundred, in the spacious lecture-room of his new church. As the visitors poured in, they brought all manner of TIN presents, from the toot-horn of the street boy to the great old-fashioned Dutch oven of ancestral days. Rev. and Mrs. . . . began to enjoy the sport, although his deacons thought it considerable of a good thing, half-a-dozen of them being required to stow away the articles that were presented. On some unusual or valuable article in the tin line being given, the Reverend gentleman would feel impelled to make a speech. His remarks would call out replies, which were listened to with great good humor by all present, who enjoyed the keen sallies of lay or clerical wit. It is impossible to give our readers an idea of the tin ware exhibited after all the presents had been received. Some of the sharp ones endeavored to count the separate articles, but gave up after reaching a thousand. The evening passed away merrily. "We know that God's Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts," the necessity of avoiding evil of every kind.

[NOTE.—Touching the disgraceful scenes of this "tin wedding," the half has not been told. Those familiar with the facts in the case assure us that the whole proceedings were ridiculous, in the extreme, shockingly disgusting, enough to cause angels to weep and Satan to blush! How is the gold become dim! how is the most fine gold changed . . . The precious sons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, how are they esteemed? as earthen pitchers.—ED.]

What would John Knox or Jonathan Edwards have thought of a scene like this in the house of God? The Chicago Tribune gives a full report of a

BANQUET TO BISHOP . . .—The supper given to Bishop . . . at the Sherman House, last evening, was a pleasant affair, attended by upwards of one hundred of the ministers, laymen and other prominent members of the —— church of this city." After giving a list of the officers of the evening, the report says: "The company, at 9 o'clock, proceeded to the Ladies' Ordinary, where was displayed a bounteous supply of the good things of earth, very tastefully arranged, in the peculiar way that mine hosts of the Sherman have of doing up matters of this kind. The Divine blessing was implored by Rev. Dr. . . after which the company proceeded to discuss the merits of the matter before them. The evening was filled out with toasts and responses."

In respect to this affair, a beloved minister, in the travelling connection, writes us, "My soul sickens within me, at the sight and the terrible consequences that must follow from such examples. Can anything be done? I beg you to raise your warning voice louder and stronger than ever against this popular sin, which is sweeping millions to eternal ruin. Is not conformity to the world, by professed christians, the soul damning sin of the age?

Would not John Wesley have denounced, far more strongly than we are capable of doing, the conduct of a Bishop and popular minister in consenting to a banquet being given to honor him, in a genteel rumselling, gambling hotel, where hundreds of young men are ruined, and that too in the neighborhood of his own house? Would not the cost of this banquet have been far more appropriately expended in relieving the wants of the many widows and children left destitute by the devastations of the war? Turn to the twentieth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, commencing with the seventeenth verse, and read the account of the manner in which a primitive bishop took leave of his flock. We do well to heed such examples, not forgetting the words of St. Peter, for the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revelings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries.

[NOTE.—Think of it, reader, grave bishops, elders, teachers of the meek and lowly Jesus, assembling at a gambling, rum-selling hotel, feast to repletion, drink toasts, crack jokes, make funny speeches, have a jolly time! Could anything please Satan better?—ED.]

Objection 4th.—He objects to them from the fact they are a special hindrance to revivals. Often when God is near to bless, revive his work, pour out his Spirit graciously, convict and convert sinners; when inquiring souls are weeping between the porch and the altar; just at this crisis Satan comes in, stirs up the people, cold, formal backslidden church-members* for a fair, donation, tea or strawberry party, a picnic, oyster supper, a feast of some kind, to turn away the attention from things pertaining to life eternal, hope everlasting! Thus the Holy Spirit is grieved, takes his flight, the revival is scattered to the four winds!

Who knows how many precious ones are lost, forever lost, by this devilish stratagem? And yet these fires of the pit are kept burning all over the land!

President C. G. FINNEY, the revivalist, alluding to these revival killers and soul destroyers, remarks thus:

"Often when it comes the time of year to work, when the evenings are long, and business is light, and the very time to make an extra effort, at this moment, somebody in the church will give a party and invite some christian friends, so as to have it a religious party. And then some other family must do the same, to return the compliment. Then another and another, till it grows into an organized system of parties, that consume the whole winter.

This is the grand design of the Devil, because it appears so innocent and so proper to promote good feeling, and increase the acquaintance of christians with each other. And so, instead of prayer-meetings, they will have these parties. The evils of these parties are very great. They are often got up at great expense; and the most abominable gluttony is practised at them.

But it is said they are christian parties, and that they are all, or nearly all, professors of religion who attend them. And furthermore, they are often concluded with prayer. Now I regard this as one of the worst features about them; that after the waste of time and money, the excess in eating and drinking, the vain conversation and nameless fooleries, with which such a season is filled up, at attempt is made to sanctify it and to palm it off upon God, by concluding it with prayer! Say what you will, it would not be more absurd or incongruous, or impious, to close a ball or a theatre with prayer.

But I shall advise any congregation who are calculating to have a circle of parties, in the meantime to dismiss their minister, and let him go and preach where the people would be ready to receive the Word and profit by it, and not have him stay and be distressed and grieved, and killed, by attempting to promote religion among them, while they are engaged, heart and hand, in the service of the devil! Professors should never get up anything that may divert public attention from religion. In relation to giving parties, say what you please about their being an innocent recreation, I appeal to any of you, who have ever attended them, to say whether they fit you for prayer, or increase your spirituality, whether sinners are ever converted in them, or christians made to agonize in prayer for souls.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.—1. "Are we to renounce all mirth, be dull and melancholy?" Answer. Seriousness and solid happiness are inseparable. "I said in my heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure; and behold this also is vanity. I said of laughter it is mad, and of mirth, what doeth it?" Ec. 2: 1, 2. "Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful, and the end of that mirth is heaviness." Prov. 14: 13.

2. "Is there not time for all things?" Answer. There is no time for sin and folly.

Objection 6th.—Young people love sport, worldly excitement, fun and frolic, and these they will have more or less, why not then seek something to gratify this natural propensity less objectionable than the theatre, the ball-room or opera-house, choose the least of two evils? Answer. That is, "do evil that good may come," meet the tempter half way. Commit a little sin, to prevent a greater. Serve Satan a little to keep our children from serving him a great deal! What doctrine is this? Whence is it? "If the Lord be God follow him; but if Baal then follow him." 1 Kings 18: 21. "Wo to them that call evil good and good evil."

But why is it, friends, that your sons and daughters are thus given to these unholy propensities, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God? slaves to lust, passion and appetite? Is not the secret of this downward course to ruin owing to parental neglect? The sin of omission in not obeying God in training them "in the way they should go," in the fear and wisdom of God? Children rightly disciplined from early infancy, on Bible principles, will have no relish whatever for these carnal festivities, unholy excitements, fun and frolic, but will turn from them with perfect hatred and disgust.

"The love of God flows just as much
As that of ebbing self subsides."

Objection 7th.—Says one, "we will have a decent or respectable festival, tea or strawberry party to raise funds to meet our necessities in the church and Sabbath school. It shall be opened and closed with religious exercises, reading the Scriptures and prayer. Everything objectionable shall be excluded, foolish talking and jesting, the post office, grab boxes, ring cakes, lotteries, gambling, nightly revelings, intemperance of every kind."

Answer. "Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots?" "Can a man take fire in his bosom and his clothes not be burned?" Why not talk of a decent or repectable theatre as a "fancy fair?" The thing is wrong in itself. No good cause can ultimately prosper or succeed, that is not founded on christian principle, the authority of the Most High. "Wo to them that go down to Egypt for help." The Religious Herald says:

"The fact that 'fairs' make the procurement of means to pay for a house of worship or to purchase a Sunday school library, simply a matter of buying and selling, resolves itself into a weighty objection to their propriety. They are departures from the New Testament method of meeting the pecuniary necessities of the church, and so far forth, must operate against the spirit of self-denial, liberality and faith which that method calls into action.

2. Whatever is done by a church, or by a portion of the members for it, should be so done as neither to sacrifice nor to obscure that which distinguishes the church from the world. How totally fairs or tea parties fail to meet this requirement, we need not tarry to depict. They are scenes of mirthfulness and levity, in which men can trace nothing that distinguishes the church from the world."

Besides, the precedent of making God's house a house of merchandise, is a dangerous one. When we see the whole world on fire with sin and Satan, shall we add fuel to the flame by our example? "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!"

* Is it not invariably true that none but backsliders, having a name to live and are dead, ever dream of pushing these cars of Satan?

"The course of evil
Begins so slowly, and from such light source,
An infant's hand might stop the breach with clay;
But let the stream get deeper, and philosophy,
Aye, and religion too, shall strive in vain
To turn the headlong current."

"Abstain from all appearance of evil."

ANNUAL FAIRS, AGRICULTURAL.—Are these promotive of temperance and virtue? Are they not frequently if not always gotten up by speculators, selfish, money loving men? A beloved minister of the gospel in Madison county, N. Y., informs us that these fairs are exceedingly corrupting and demoralizing. And strange to say not a few professing christians lend their hands in sustaining this iniquity in high places. Intemperance, licentiousness, Sabbath desecration and gambling in various forms. Hear this beloved minister in his own words:—

"DEAR BRO. N.—There is a very great and popular evil in our midst, which you and other good men, it seems, have failed hitherto to expose. I allude to annual fairs in nearly every county town. They are the curse of the land! Their demoralizing influences are shocking! God defying! The people are gulled; many of them swallow a sugar coated pill of Satan, greedily and in some cases innocently. Above all I regret to inform you that church-members unite in sustaining these fairs, gotten up chiefly by rum-sellers and gamblers to line their own pockets. I care not how pure the motive in the outset these annual gatherings may have been introduced, they are now mainly in the hands of ungodly men. Drinking to drunkenness, gambling, horse racing, circus ridings, puppet showings, lewdness and profanity are the order of the day, go hand in hand. I beseech you, in the name of God, raise your voice like a thunder-clap against this increasing abomination."

NEW YEAR'S VISITATIONS.—The custom of visiting from house to house on the first day of the new year, partaking to surfeiting of rich and costly dainties, whence is it? Whence these unwholesome viands spread out temptingly to the lust of the eye, to the gratification of the carnal appetite, from above or from beneath? Aside from the enormous expenditure on these pernicious condiments, worse than lost, look at the frequent accompaniments, the intoxicating bowl, the sparkling death and distilled damnation! How many young men see (when too late) this stratagem of Satan? How many date their downward course to ruin from these New Year's visitations; become dissipated sots, and go down prematurely to a drunkard's grave!

This mischievous custom of eating and drinking to excess, this criminal waste of God's bounty is not confined to the world or to the men of the world, but to very many professing godliness. "Wo to him that giveth his neighbor drink." Who suffers like woman from intemperance? Who drinks to the dregs the cup of bitterness like the drunkard's wife? And who is the drunkard's wife but the delicately reared daughter of her who controlled the fashions, and would have wine at her parties? There is not a lady who sets before young men the intoxicating cup, concerning whom we may not say, Father, forgive her, she knows not what she does. When the destinies of men are unfolded, in the final day, how many of the lost will reflect with anguish on female influence!

"Oh shun the bowl—as thou would'st leave
The poisoned spot where reptiles tread,
Lest widows' hearts for thee should grieve,
For thee untimely tears be shed."

IN CONCLUSION.—We are commanded not to love the world, neither the things of the world. "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed."

"Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." "Ye are the salt of the earth." "A city set on a hill."

"Ye are a chosen generation, a priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people." "Lively stones; a spiritual house to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God." "Be ye holy, for I am holy."

"Art thou a christian? Dost thou say thou art?
High is thy destination. Oh! act well thy part,
And be Christ-like, and follow thy great head,
In all things hear his voice, and by that voice be led,
Though at his requisition shrinking nature tremble,
Still follow on,—in all things Christ resemble."
—Religious Tract.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BEST SIDE OUT.

One of the prime curses of this age is its hypocrisy and its boasting. Men want to tell a good story, whether they are able to live one out or not. Hence from the first dawning consciousness of what wonderful babies they are, to their rest beneath the lying tombstones which record virtues to which they were strangers, aye, even to their biographies which record their saintship but not their sinfulness, there is a constant effort to put "the best side out."

Churches put the best side out when they try to make their righteousness public, and forget to lament in dust and ashes their sins and follies and vanities. When they publish in the papers the particulars about their fine meeting houses, splendid organs, and great congregations, and say nothing about their pride, and worldliness, and sin, and rascality.

Pharisees put the best side out when for a pretence they make long prayers, while they devour widows' houses; and when they think that every time the dead men's bones emit their natural odor, the only remedy is to put an extra coating of whitewash on the outside of the sepulchre.

Societies and corporations put the best side out when they make smooth reports and tell of great prosperity, and hide meanwhile all kinds of fraud, waste, meanness, peculation and rascality from the gaze of their innocent and unsuspecting supporters.

Politicians put the best side out when in the convention they talk of patriotism, and in the caucus plot for plunder; when in public they stand for the right, and in private plan for the spoils.

Ministers put the best side out when they tell what great things they have done and what good times they have had, and omit all mention of the dull days when their brains would n't work; of the sermons bought, borrowed, or stolen, and preached for their own; of the empty discourses; of their covetous hankerings for collections and subscriptions; of the efforts to please rich men for the sake of their money; of their laziness, their gossiping, their indiscretion, and all their other faults.

How many men, who exhibit their excellences to the world, would be willing to have their true history written and the whole of it go out before the eyes of men? How many would go bareheaded if you could read the true record of their whole lives upon their foreheads? How many would want broad-brimmed hats well pulled down over their eyes? How many men would speak of others' faults if their own were written on their backs in plain letters?

How many men would like to have God's prophets write their biographies and put in good and bad just as the facts demand? How many persons think they know a more excellent way. The truth must not be spoken. You may displease or discourage some one. You may encourage the enemies of God.

"For the good of the cause" the good must be all told and the bad all left out. Amiable and excellent persons are these, no doubt. If they had written the Bible we should never have heard that Noah drank too much wine, that Lot became drunken and debauched, that Abraham deceived, that Moses spake unadvisedly, that David was an adulterer, that Solomon talked wisely and acted foolishly, that Eli's sons were debauchees, that Peter cursed and swore and dissembled, that Paul and Barnabas quarreled, and that all the men that have lived, save the man Christ Jesus, were men of like passions as we are, instead of being these improbable and impossible human angels, always doing right and never doing wrong, as they would have been if our Bible, instead of being an honest, straight-forward, truth-telling book as it is, had been full of lying, deceptive, hypocritical whitewashing, in order to put the best side out and build up the interests of the crafty authors.

Away with this squeamish folly! Give us the truth! We do not wish our hurts healed slightly by men who say "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." We need to know the worst of our case, the plague of our own hearts, the apostasy of the church, the perdition of the world. We want the truth, if it sinks men, measures, and causes, to the depths of the bottomless pit.

"The best side out" is a hypocritical dodge. "The best side out" is a cowardly evasion of the real state of the case. "The best side out" is a living lie. "Dig," said the Lord to Ezekiel, and he dug till he found idolatries and abominations on every hand. God wants men now willing to know the worst at once. And while some will daub the tottering wall with untempered mortar, others, thank God, will "dig" and get down through "the chambers of imagery" till they strike the great foundations of eternal truth, and there can rest and be safe.

What avails concealment? The "great white throne" is not far distant, and every work must come into judgment, with every secret thing. Better put the worst side out here. Better have our sins open beforehand, confessed, and going to judgment, than to be whitened like the whitest of sepulchres here, and there blackened with eternal infamy and doomed to shame and everlasting contempt.

Beware of this great sin of a hypocritical age, this putting "the best side out." Be clean inside. Live a life that will bear scratching through the surface, aye, cutting through the very centre. Beware of hollowness. Be yourself, even if you are a scamp, or a nobody. Let the truth come to the surface, and if it does n't look good, clean out the fountain, and then the water will be pure. May God help us to be sincere and without offence until the day of Christ. H. L. H.

Sept. 19th, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

TWO-HORNED BEAST OF REV. 13.

IS IT PAST, PRESENT, OR FUTURE?

BRO. GRANT:—With your permission, I wish to present a few Bible facts in relation to the proposed question.

John commences this chapter, by giving a description of his stand-point and what he saw. "And I stood upon the sands of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and ten crowns upon his horns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy." "And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard (in color), and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion. From whence came this beast? Up out of the sea. And what territory does this sea symbolize?

Let us turn to Daniel seventh, where he says "he saw the four winds of the heaven strive upon the great sea;" and the result was, "four great beasts came up out of the sea, diverse one from the other." And the angel told Daniel in the seventeenth verse, that these beasts were kings, and in the twenty-fourth verse that the fourth beast is a kingdom.

Let us turn to Daniel's second chapter, thirty-eighth verse and onward, and we find Daniel saying, "Wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of heaven, hath he (God) given into thine hand and hath made thee ruler over them all." The following verse says of the next two kingdoms that they were to "bear rule over all the earth," that is, the then known world of nations. Then what does or did the sea symbolize? The then known world, with its nations.

Whether these kingdoms exercised their power to hold all tributary to them or not, God gave that power to them. And of the fourth beast we have the testimony of Luke that "Augustus Cæsar sent forth a decree that all the world should be taxed." Amen.

Here we have then the four great beasts bearing rule over the Great Sea, or the then known world of nations. Now if the sea in prophecy represents the then known world of nations, does it not mean the same in Revelation, when as yet no other portion of the globe had been discovered? But I think we have in the symbol that which proves this beast covers the same territory, for he partakes of the Grecian, the Medo-Persian, and the Babylonian, in his most striking features, while he is the fourth beast divided; or this singular beast came out of this great sea or nationalities.

Now for the two-horned beast. From whence came he? Out from the old Roman sea, says one. Not so, says the Scriptures; "and they cannot be broken," said our great Teacher. Nor does Inspiration confound two prophecies in one, or divide one symbol up into two, in the same chain of events. And that it is one chain of events may be seen by reading the whole chapter. But from whence did he come, and when does he enter into prophecy? John said he saw him coming up out of the earth. Then if I have the mind of the Spirit he did not rise out of the Roman kingdom, for we read in the seventh verse that the leopard beast with the mouth given him, "had power given him over all kindred, and tongues, and nations." Then there was no place for the two-horned beast to hold sway.

But as our earth stands in connection with our sea, so the earth in the prophecy under consideration stands in connection with the symbolic sea. So we find the leopard beast filling the entire Roman sea or kingdom, bearing iron rule over all kindred, tongues and nations; hence we must find some other territory for another beast to rise on.

But it is not my intention to locate this two-horned beast, but to speak of some facts connected with him. When does he enter prophecy? After the wounded head is healed. See Rev. 13: 12. What will he do? Form an alliance with the wounded healed head. What besides that? He will alter their or his constitution, or form of government, and make it like unto that of the wounded healed head form of goverment, and he will cause a mark of distinction to be put on all his loyal subjects. Has the church ever stood like Peter and said, this is that spoken by John? If so, let us have the facts.

GEORGE A. BARKER.

(To be concluded.)

THE BUSYBODY.

A PARODY.

How doth the busybody's tongue
Misspend each passing hour,
And gather slander all day long
From all within her power.
How artfully she seeks for news,
How pleased when bad prevails,
"And labors hard" no time to lose
To spread censorious tales.

In works of malice, words of ill,
She doth each day pursue,
For Satan finds some mischief still
For such to say and do.
So busybodies run their way,
So gossips' time is past,
Who'll have to give for every day,
A bad account at last.
—English paper.

For the World's Crisis.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS.

I speak what I do know, and testify what I have seen. Last winter I took a tour north, and attended a missionary meeting in the township of ——. The school-house was filled at an early hour. The presiding elder was very active in seating the congregation, told the little boys to sit upon the benches and make room for the man that was there last year (calling his name); said he expected a double speech from him this year, for he had got him a wife. A chairman was chosen. They were pleased to have a man to preside over the meeting that understood twelve languages.

After a short speech from the chairman, the peasant was called upon; said he had spread his wings and arrived at dinner time at a certain brother's. "You know," says the peasant, "an Englishman don't like to go without his dinner. (Applause.) On examining the turkey which the brother had brought from market, found it stuffed with buckwheat." (Loud applause.) The speeches were of a light and trifling character. Jesting and joking, Paul says, are not convenient.

The main object of all this performance was to get a good collection; for I saw in the notice the index pointed to this paragraph—"A collection will be taken up at the close of the meeting." Very little was said about the poor heathen. It was "Hail, fellow, well met." Now comes the tug of war. The collection was taken up, and in counting over the money it was found there was a ring, and a screw, and a nail. The one that was counting the money said he was very sorry the boys should be so roguish, and commenced reproving them.

"Hush," says the presiding elder, "we will make it turn to good account"; and told the following anecdote:

"Wesley was going to his appointment. His horse broke the harness. What to do he could not tell in such a predicament, when he thought of a present that had been given him. He found it to be just what he needed,—a shoemaker's awl and waxed end,—and thus mended his harness, went on to his appointment, and got there in season."

The ring went for sixpence, screw for fourpence, and nail for twopence,—quite an addition to the collection to send the gospel to the heathen to convert them. I thought of the old proverb, "Charity begins at home." See the idol worship at these missionary meetings. A platform erected for the Rev. speakers, and the chapels decorated in the finest style. My spirit was stirred within me, and I groaned. Heathen at home! Is this the way the world will be converted?

I have attended concerts, public auctions, and other places of amusements. I never heard more sport, funny anecdotes, jesting and joking than at that so-called missionary meeting. Religious festivals are very popular here in all the nominal churches.

O brethren, lift up your voices like trumpets; cry aloud and spare not. Do not sleep as do others, but watch and be sober. The Lord is coming! H. McCLARY.

Hatley, C. E.

ADMIRABLE REPLY.

An admirable reply was once made by a careful reader of the Bible to an infidel who attacked him with such expressions as these: "That the blood of Christ can wash away sin is foolishness; I don't understand or believe it."

The Bible student remarked, "You and Paul agree exactly."

"The infidel replied with much surprise, "How is this, that Paul and I agree?"

Said the student, "Turn to the 1st chapter of 1st Corinthians, and read at the 18th verse"

The infidel read, "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish, foolishness, but unto us which are saved, it is the power of God."

The infidel hung his head, and ever after studied the Bible, and he soon believed it to be God's power unto salvation.

ABLE AND WILLING.—"We can all earn our own living, father," was the remark made in a family by one of several young ladies, a short time since.

"That is right, my daughter," was the reply of the parent; "that fact I regard as the point of triumph in your education. Able and willing are the two words which, when the occasion comes, will ensure you success, and vindicate the principle that women should be educated for business and usefulness as well as for ornament and attractiveness. Never fear to work for your support, nor fail to encourage others in so doing."

ANGELS DON'T SMOKE.—A preacher not long since asking to stay all night at a country house, was forbidden by a lady. Knowing her to be a member of the church, and generally pleased to entertain ministers, he began to quote Paul to her, hoping that she would understand by this that he was a preacher. He hardly got out, "for thereby some have entertained angels unawares," when she said, "I know, sir"; but angels would not come with tobacco stuck in their mouths." The preacher left without further ceremony.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the World's Crisis.

A LETTER FOR THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

DEAR CHILDREN:—One beautiful Sabbath morning not long since, we seated ourselves in a carriage and drove to the city of Concord, N. H., (a distance of seven miles), to attend meeting at the Advent Chapel, on the corner of Green and Centre streets. Our drive was a delightful one on account of the rich scenery that everywhere greeted us. The parched earth, which had looked so drear and desolate before, was all radiant with beauty. Every blade of grass, tree and shrub, was glistening with rain drops that fell in a shower the evening before.

Well, in due time we were comfortably seated in the chapel. Directly in front of us there came in a gentleman with three beautiful children, the eldest a boy, I should think about nine years of age. The two younger were girls; one might be seven, the other five. The boy and the eldest girl had black eyes, with auburn hair; the youngest girl had eyes as blue as the sky, with a skin as fair as a white lily, and light, curling hair, that hung in ringlets over her neck. Truly, thought I, she is the prettiest little girl I have ever seen.

The children were all very pretty in their looks; but what made them seem so very beautiful was their good behavior, combined with their regular features and their fair complexions. The little girls were ladies. The gentleman who came in with them we took to be their father. He was a nice looking man, and seemed so cheerful and happy, that I thought he must be a christian, and before the meeting closed we were sure of it.

After singing the first time, there came a very pale, sickly looking boy walking up the aisle with a crutch, (the sexton was not present then.) He looked so very, very pale and thin, I think you would have pitied him if you had been there. We think this good man and his children did, for as soon as he saw that poor boy, he gave him the nearest and the best seat in the slip, and asked one of his little girls for her fan, which he gave to the sick boy. The little girl very readily gave up her fan, and sat watching him while he was fanning himself with such a look of pity that I thought she was too pure for this earth. At noon I saw these good children in the Sabbath school.

On my way to a friend's house in the city, I overheard the little girl ask a larger girl if she thought that poor little boy who came into the meeting in the morning would walk with a crutch in the kingdom. The elder girl replied that she did not know. I told her it was evident that the little boy's lameness was caused by disease, and that disease was first brought on all by sin, and that there would be no sin in the kingdom of God; that we should be as free from any traces of sin there as were our first parents, Adam and Eve, in the garden of Eden.

"Oh," said the little girl, "I hope that little lame boy will go into the kingdom; he will be pretty then, won't he, Hattie?"

Mast Yard, N. H. MARY LAMPREY.

THE HARD WAY.

Bob Winslow was the worst boy in the village. His father never checked him, but let him have his own way, till he had grown to be the terror of the neighborhood. He particularly loved to make sport of old, lame, crippled persons. There was one poor woman, bent down by age and infirmities, that Bob used especially to make game of. She came every day, leaning on her crutch, to draw water from the well near her house, and just within the play-ground of the school-house. Bob would sometimes follow close behind her, pretending to be lame, and hobbling along on his umbrella for a crutch, and mimicking her motions. "Only look at her," he would say, "isn't she like the letter S with an extra crook in it?" One day when he was doing this the old woman turned round, and, looking at him reproachfully, said, "Go home, child, and read the story about Elisha and the two bears out of the woods."

"Shame on you, Bob!" said Charles Mansfield, one of the best boys in the school. "Shame, I say, to laugh at the poor woman's misfortune! I've heard my grandmother say that she became a cripple by lifting her poor, afflicted son, and tending him night and day."

"I don't care what made her so," said Bob, "I would'nt stay in the world if I was such an ugly-looking thing as that. Do look!"

"Shame, shame on you!" said Charles, and, "shame, shame!" echoed from each of the boys present. "You may get your own back broken one of these days, Bob—who knows?"

Charles Mansfield sprang to the old woman, and said, "Let me help you, grandmother." Then he kindly took her pail, filled it at the well and carried it home for her, and the boys made an arrangement for one of them to come every day and fetch her a pail of water. "God bless you! God bless you all, dear boys!" said the old woman, as she wiped away her tears and entered her poor, lonely home.

Bob Winslow's conduct was reported to the master. He was much grieved, and sentenced him to stay in school and study, instead of going out to play at recess, for a week. This was pretty hard punishment, for Bob had but very little love for study, but was prodigiously fond of play. Yet this was a slight punishment compared with what he was soon to receive.

On the second day of his confinement he sat near the open window, watching the boys at their sports in the playground. Suddenly, while the master was occupied in another part of the room, he rose and jumped from the window into the midst of the boys, with a shout at what he had done. "Now let him punish me again, if he can!" cried he. As he said this he ran backwards, and threw up his arms in defiance, and shouting, when—suddenly his voice ceased; there was a heavy plunge, and a loud groan burst on the ears of his startled companions.

It so happened that the well of which we have spoken was being repaired. The workmen were at a distance collecting their materials, and had carelessly left the opening of the well uncovered. As Bob was going backward at the very moment of his triumph, he stepped into the mouth of the well, and down he went. There was a cry of horror from the boys. They all rushed to the spot. Charles Mansfield, the bravest of them all, was the first to seize the well rope. He jumped into the bucket, and got the boys to lower him down. The well was deep, but fortunately there was not much water in it; and Bob lay motionless at the bottom. Charles lifted him carefully, and with one arm around his apparently lifeless body, the other on the rope, he gave the signal and was slowly raised to the top. The pale face of the wicked boy filled his companions with horror. Without saying a word they carried him to the house of the poor woman whom he had treated so cruelly. She had seen the accident from her window, and was hobbling along on her crutch to meet them. Poor Bob was taken into her humble home, and laid upon her bed. The kind-hearted old woman, forgetful of his ill-treatment of her, got out her bandages, her camphor bottle and other things; and while one of the boys ran for the doctor, and another for their teacher, she sat down by his side and bathed his hands and forehead as tenderly as if he had been her own son. After the doctor had dressed his wounds, he was carried on a litter to his own home, surrounded by his sorrowing companions, but still insensible.

A few hours later in the day a group of boys met on the play-ground. They talked to one another in a low voice. They looked pale and sad. Presently Charles Mansfield came up.

"Well, boys, how is poor Bob now? Have any of you heard?"

"O, Charlie!" cried several at once, as they gathered round him. "O, don't you know? Haven't you heard? Why, he has opened his eyes and is able to speak; but his back is broken, and he will be a cripple and a hunchback for life."

Charles clasped his hands without uttering a word, and burst into tears. At last, with the tears still streaming down his pale cheeks, but with a manly voice, he said, "Boys, I hope we shall never forget the lesson we have learned to-day. The Bible says, 'The way of the transgressor is hard;' and poor Bob's experience proves how true that is."—Pittsburg Advocate.

THE BOY WHO CONQUERED.

Some few years ago a lad who was left without father or mother, of good natural abilities, went to New York, alone and friendless, to get a situation in a store as errand boy, or otherwise, until he could command a higher position; but this boy had been in bad company, and had got in the habit of calling for his "bitters" occasionally, because he thought it looked manly. He smoked cigars also.

He had a pretty good education, and on looking over the papers he noticed that a merchant in Pearl street wanted a lad of his age, and he called there and made his business known.

"Walk into the office, my lad," said the merchant. "I'll attend to you soon."

When he had waited on his customer, he took a seat near the lad and espied a cigar in his hat. This was enough.

"My boy," said he, "I want a smart, honest, faithful lad; but I see that you smoke cigars, and in my experience of many years I have ever found cigar smoking in lads to be connected with various other evil habits; and, if I am not mistaken, your breath is an evidence that you are not an exception. You can leave; you will not suit me."

John (this was his name) held down his head and left the store; and as he walked along the street, a stranger, and friendless, the counsel of his poor mother came forcibly to his mind, who upon her death-bed called him to her side, and placing her emaciated hand upon his head, said, "Johnny, my dear boy, I'm going to leave you. You well know what disgrace and misery your father brought on us before his death, and I want you to promise me before I die that you will never taste one drop of the accursed poison that killed your father. Promise me this, and be a good boy, Johnny, and I shall die in peace."

The scalding tears trickled down Johnny's cheeks, and he promised ever to remember the dying words of his mother, and never to drink any spiritous liquors; but he soon forgot his promise, and when he received the rebuke from the merchant he remembered what his mother said, and what he had promised her, and he cried aloud, and people gazed at him as he passed along, and boys railed at him. He went to his lodgings, and throwing himself upon his bed, gave vent to his feelings in sobs that were heard all over the house.

But John had moral courage. He had energy and determination, and ere an hour had passed he had made up his mind never to taste another drop of liquor nor to smoke another cigar as long as he lived. He went straight back to the merchant. Said he, "Sir, you very properly sent me away this morning for habits that I have been guilty of; but, sir, I have neither father nor mother, and though I have occasionally done what I ought not to do, and have not followed the good advice of my poor mother on her death-bed, nor done as I promised her I would do, yet I have now made a solemn vow never to drink another drop of liquor, nor to smoke another cigar; and if you, sir, will only try me, it is all I ask."

The merchant was struck with the decision and energy of the boy and at once employed him. At the expiration of five years this lad was a partner in the business, and is now worth ten thousand dollars. He has faithfully kept his pledge, to which he owes his elevation.

Boys, think of this circumstance as you enter upon the duties of life, and remember upon what points of character your destiny for good or for evil depends.—Northern Farmer.

☞ Boys, hold on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie, speak harshly, or say an improper word.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,— One year .... $2.50; Six months $1.25

If not paid within six months,— One year .... $3.00; Six months $1.50

Five copies, to one address, six months .... $5.60 —same rate for any larger number under ten.

Ten copies, to one address, six months .... $10.00 —same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE, Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper, FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS.—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMMENCE [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS [illegible] addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

MOTHER.

Loved mother, how many bright years have known
Thy caresses and counsels, which prompted by love,
Thou, in joy, or in grief, in my path hast oft strewn,
To check me if wandering, when right to approve.

For thou gavest thy heart in thy youth to the Lord,
And thy children to him did'st thou consecrate too;
And the prayer of thy soul was, in deed and in word,
That early our minds He to wisdom should woo.

So "by faith" thou did'st watch for our souls' chiefest good,
With yearnings which none but a mother's soul knows;
And as oft as thy hand for our needs prepared food,
Thy voice brought the nurture "God's Bible" bestows.

But thy voice is now hushed in the stillness of death,
Thy face wears no smile, and thy loved cheek no bloom;
And the hand of the Lord hath now gathered thy breath,
An enemy's carried thee down to the tomb.

Dear mother, thy children will still by His grace,—
On whom thou hast trusted, in whom thou dost sleep,—
Seek truly to live, so to run in life's race,
That he will translate us where none ever weep.

There we'll meet thee, dear mother, in glory we'll meet,
On mountains of life; and the vales of repose
Shall be ever our home, while at Jesus' dear feet
We cast our bright crowns, ever safe from our foes.

And the prayer of our heart shall ascend in His name,
That father, and mother, and children may come,
And be spotless and happy, all free from sin's shame,
And there re-united dwell ever at home.

Yes, through Jesus we hope soon to come to the land
Where saints of all ages with singing will dwell;
And with joy and great gladness behold the blest hand
That "brought their salvation," and "did all things well."

Brockport, N. Y. JOS. D. BROWN.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD; OR, CHRIST AND BELIAL.

"While men slept the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way."—MATT. 13: 25.

(Concluded.)

TESTIMONIALS.

CONFORMING TO THE WORLD.—TESTIMONIAL No. 5.—From Rev. B. T. ROBERTS:

"That the church is rapidly conforming to the spirit and pleasures of the world none can deny. The most alarming feature is that prominent preachers lead the way; and the people blindly follow. The New York papers contain an account of

A TIN WEDDING.—Tuesday evening being the tenth day of the Rev. . . . of the . . . church, he gathered his friends together, to the number of over eight hundred, in the spacious lecture-room of his new church. As the visitors poured in, they brought all manner of TIN presents, from the toot-horn of the street boy to the great old-fashioned Dutch oven of ancestral days. Rev. and Mrs. . . . began to enjoy the sport, although his deacons thought it considerable of a good thing, half-a-dozen of them being required to stow away the articles that were presented. On some unusual or valuable article in the tin line being given, the Reverend gentleman would feel impelled to make a speech. His remarks would call out replies, which were listened to with great good humor by all present, who enjoyed the keen sallies of lay or clerical wit. It is impossible to give our readers an idea of the tin ware exhibited after all the presents had been received. Some of the sharp ones endeavored to count the separate articles, but gave up after reaching a thousand. The evening passed away merrily. "We know that God's Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts," the necessity of avoiding evil of every kind.

[NOTE.—Touching the disgraceful scenes of this "tin wedding," the half has not been told. Those familiar with the facts in the case assure us that the whole proceedings were ridiculous, in the extreme, shockingly disgusting, enough to cause angels to weep and Satan to blush! How is the gold become dim! how is the most fine gold changed . . . The precious sons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, how are they esteemed? as earthen pitchers.—ED.]

What would John Knox or Jonathan Edwards have thought of a scene like this in the house of God? The Chicago Tribune gives a full report of a

BANQUET TO BISHOP . . .—The supper given to Bishop . . . at the Sherman House, last evening, was a pleasant affair, attended by upwards of one hundred of the ministers, laymen and other prominent members of the —— church of this city." After giving a list of the officers of the evening, the report says: "The company, at 9 o'clock, proceeded to the Ladies' Ordinary, where was displayed a bounteous supply of the good things of earth, very tastefully arranged, in the peculiar way that mine hosts of the Sherman have of doing up matters of this kind. The Divine blessing was implored by Rev. Dr. . . after which the company proceeded to discuss the merits of the matter before them. The evening was filled out with toasts and responses."

In respect to this affair, a beloved minister, in the travelling connection, writes us, "My soul sickens within me, at the sight and the terrible consequences that must follow from such examples. Can anything be done? I beg you to raise your warning voice louder and stronger than ever against this popular sin, which is sweeping millions to eternal ruin. Is not conformity to the world, by professed christians, the soul damning sin of the age?

Would not John Wesley have denounced, far more strongly than we are capable of doing, the conduct of a Bishop and popular minister in consenting to a banquet being given to honor him, in a genteel rumselling, gambling hotel, where hundreds of young men are ruined, and that too in the neighborhood of his own house? Would not the cost of this banquet have been far more appropriately expended in relieving the wants of the many widows and children left destitute by the devastations of the war? Turn to the twentieth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, commencing with the seventeenth verse, and read the account of the manner in which a primitive bishop took leave of his flock. We do well to heed such examples, not forgetting the words of St. Peter, for the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revelings, banqueting and abominable idolatries.

[NOTE.—Think of it, reader, grave bishops, elders, teachers of the meek and lowly Jesus, assembling at a gambling, rum-selling hotel, feast to repletion, drink toasts, crack jokes, make funny speeches, have a jolly time! Could anything please Satan better?—ED.]

Objection 4th.—He objects to them from the fact they are a special hindrance to revivals. Often when God is near to bless, revive his work, pour out his Spirit graciously, convict and convert sinners; when inquiring souls are weeping between the porch and the altar; just at this crisis Satan comes in, stirs up the people, cold, formal backslidden church-members* for a fair, donation, tea or strawberry party, a picnic, oyster supper, a feast of some kind, to turn away the attention from things pertaining to life eternal, hope everlasting! Thus the Holy Spirit is grieved, takes his flight, the revival is scattered to the four winds!

Who knows how many precious ones are lost, forever lost, by this devilish stratagem? And yet these fires of the pit are kept burning all over the land!

President C. G. FINNEY, the revivalist, alluding to these revival killers and soul destroyers, remarks thus:

"Often when it comes the time of year to work, when the evenings are long, and business is light, and the very time to make an extra effort, at this moment, somebody in the church will give a party and invite some christian friends, so as to have it a religious party. And then some other family must do the same, to return the compliment. Then another and another, till it grows into an organized system of parties, that consume the whole winter.

This is the grand design of the Devil, because it appears so innocent and so proper to promote good feeling, and increase the acquaintance of christians with each other. And so, instead of prayer-meetings, they will have these parties. The evils of these parties are very great. They are often got up at great expense; and the most abominable gluttony is practised at them.

But it is said they are christian parties, and that they are all, or nearly all, professors of religion who attend them. And furthermore, they are often concluded with prayer. Now I regard this as one of the worst features about them; that after the waste of time and money, the excess in eating and drinking, the vain conversation and nameless fooleries, with which such a season is filled up, at attempt is made to sanctify it and to palm it off upon God, by concluding it with prayer! Say what you will, it would not be more absurd or incongruous, or impious, to close a ball or a theatre with prayer.

But I shall advise any congregation who are calculating to have a circle of parties, in the meantime to dismiss their minister, and let him go and preach where the people would be ready to receive the Word and profit by it, and not have him stay and be distressed and grieved, and killed, by attempting to promote religion among them, while they are engaged, heart and hand, in the service of the devil! Professors should never get up anything that may divert public attention from religion. In relation to giving parties, say what you please about their being an innocent recreation, I appeal to any of you, who have ever attended them, to say whether they fit you for prayer, or increase your spirituality, whether sinners are ever converted in them, or christians made to agonize in prayer for souls.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.—1. "Are we to renounce all mirth, be dull and melancholy?" Answer. Seriousness and solid happiness are inseparable. "I said in my heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure; and behold this also is vanity. I said of laughter it is mad, and of mirth, what doeth it?" Ec. 2: 1, 2. "Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful, and the end of that mirth is heaviness." Prov. 14: 13.

2. "Is there not time for all things?" Answer. There is no time for sin and folly.

Objection 6th.—Young people love sport, worldly excitement, fun and frolic, and these they will have more or less, why not then seek something to gratify this natural propensity less objectionable than the theatre, the ball-room or opera-house, choose the least of two evils? Answer. That is, "do evil that good may come," meet the tempter half way. Commit a little sin, to prevent a greater. Serve Satan a little to keep our children from serving him a great deal! What doctrine is this? Whence is it? "If the Lord be God follow him; but if Baal then follow him." 1 Kings 18: 21. "Wo to them that call evil good and good evil."

But why is it, friends, that your sons and daughters are thus given to these unholy propensities, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God? slaves to lust, passion and appetite? Is not the secret of this downward course to ruin owing to parental neglect? The sin of omission in not obeying God in training them "in the way they should go," in the fear and wisdom of God? Children rightly disciplined from early infancy, on Bible principles, will have no relish whatever for these carnal festivities, unholy excitements, fun and frolic, but will turn from them with perfect hatred and disgust.

"The love of God flows just as much
As that of ebbing self subsides."

Objection 7th.—Says one, "we will have a decent or respectable festival, tea or strawberry party to raise funds to meet our necessities in the church and Sabbath school. It shall be opened and closed with religious exercises, reading the Scriptures and prayer. Everything objectionable shall be excluded, foolish talking and jesting, the post office, grab boxes, ring cakes, lotteries, gambling, nightly revelings, intemperance of every kind."

Answer. "Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots?" "Can a man take fire in his bosom and his clothes not be burned?" Why not talk of a decent or respectable theatre as a "fancy fair?" The thing is wrong in itself. No good cause can ultimately prosper or succeed, that is not founded on christian principle, the authority of the Most High. "Wo to them that go down to Egypt for help." The Religious Herald says:

"The fact that 'fairs' make the procurement of means to pay for a house of worship or to purchase a Sunday school library, simply a matter of buying and selling, resolves itself into a weighty objection to their propriety. They are departures from the New Testament method of meeting the pecuniary necessities of the church, and so far forth, must operate against the spirit of self-denial, liberality and faith which that method calls into action.

2. Whatever is done by a church, or by a portion of the members for it, should be so done as neither to sacrifice nor to obscure that which distinguishes the church from the world. How totally fairs or tea parties fail to meet this requirement, we need not tarry to depict. They are scenes of mirthfulness and levity, in which men can trace nothing that distinguishes the church from the world."

Besides, the precedent of making God's house a house of merchandise, is a dangerous one. When we see the whole world on fire with sin, and Satan, shall we add fuel to the flame by our example? "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!"

* Is it not invariably true that none but backsliders, having a name to live and are dead, ever dream of pushing these cars of Satan?

"The course of evil
Begins so slowly, and from such light source,
An infant's hand might stop the breach with clay;
But let the stream get deeper, and philosophy,
Aye, and religion too, shall strive in vain
To turn the headlong current."

"Abstain from all apearance of evil."

ANNUAL FAIRS, AGRICULTURAL.—Are these promotive of temperance and virtue? Are they not frequently if not always gotten up by speculators, selfish, money loving men? A beloved minister of the gospel in Madison county, N. Y., informs us that these fairs are exceedingly corrupting and demoralizing. And strange to say not a few professing christians lend their hands in sustaining this iniquity in high places. Intemperance, licentiousness, Sabbath desecration and gambling in various forms. Hear this beloved minister in his own words:—

"DEAR BRO. N.—There is a very great and popular evil in our midst, which you and other good men, it seems, have failed hitherto to expose. I allude to annual fairs in nearly every county town. They are the curse of the land! Their demoralizing influences are shocking! God defying! The people are gulled; many of them swallow a sugar coated pill of Satan, greedily and in some cases innocently. Above all I regret to inform you that church-members unite in sustaining these fairs, gotten up chiefly by rum-sellers and gamblers to line their own pockets. I care not how pure the motive in the outset these annual gatherings may have been introduced, they are now mainly in the hands of ungodly men. Drinking to drunkenness, gambling, horse racing, circus ridings, puppet showings, lewdness and profanity are the order of the day, go hand in hand. I beseech you, in the name of God, raise your voice like a thunder-clap against this increasing abomination."

NEW YEAR'S VISITATIONS.—The custom of visiting from house to house on the first day of the new year, partaking to surfeiting of rich and costly dainties, whence is it? Whence these unwholesome viands spread out temptingly to the lust of the eye, to the gratification of the carnal appetite, from above or from beneath? Aside from the enormous expenditure on these pernicious condiments, worse than lost, look at the frequent accompaniments, the intoxicating bowl, the sparkling death and distilled damnation! How many young men see (when too late) this stratagem of Satan? How many date their downward course to ruin from these New Year's visitations; become dissipated sots, and go down prematurely to a drunkard's grave!

This mischievous custom of eating and drinking to excess, this criminal waste of God's bounty is not confined to the world or to the men of the world, but to very many professing godliness. "Wo to him that giveth his neighbor drink." Who suffers like woman from intemperance? Who drinks to the dregs the cup of bitterness like the drunkard's wife? And who is the drunkard's wife but the delicately reared daughter of her who controlled the fashions, and would have wine at her parties? There is not a lady who sets before young men the intoxicating cup, concerning whom we may not say, Father, forgive her, she knows not what she does. When the destinies of men are unfolded, in the final day, how many of the lost will reflect with anguish on female influence!

"Oh shun the bowl—as thou would'st leave
The poisoned spot where reptiles tread,
Lest widows' hearts for thee should grieve,
For thee untimely tears be shed."

IN CONCLUSION.—We are commanded not to love the world, neither the things of the world. "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed."

"Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them." "Ye are the salt of the earth." "A city set on a hill."

"Ye are a chosen generation, a priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people." "Lively stones; a spiritual house to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God." "Be ye holy, for I am holy."

"Art thou a christian? Dost thou say thou art?
High is thy destination. Oh! act well thy part,
And be Christ-like, and follow thy great head,
In all things hear his voice, and by that voice be led,
Though at his requisition shrinking nature tremble,
Still follow on,—in all things Christ resemble."

—Religious Tract.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BEST SIDE OUT.

One of the prime curses of this age is its hypocrisy and its boasting. Men want to tell a good story, whether they are able to live one out or not. Hence from the first dawning consciousness of what wonderful babies they are, to their rest beneath the lying tombstones which record virtues to which they were strangers, aye, even to their biographies which record their saintship but not their sinfulness, there is a constant effort to put "the best side out."

Churches put the best side out when they try to make their righteousness public, and forget to lament in dust and ashes their sins and follies and vanities. When they publish in the papers the particulars about their fine meeting houses, splendid organs, and great congregations, and say nothing about their pride, and worldliness, and sin, and rascality.

Pharisees put the best side out when for a pretence they make long prayers, while they devour widows' houses; and when they think that every time the dead men's bones emit their natural odor, the only remedy is to put an extra coating of whitewash on the outside of the sepulchre.

Societies and corporations put the best side out when they make smooth reports and tell of great prosperity, and hide meanwhile all kinds of fraud, waste, meanness, peculation and rascality from the gaze of their innocent and unsuspecting supporters.

Politicians put the best side out when in the convention they talk of patriotism, and in the caucus plot for plunder; when in public they stand for the right, and in private plan for the spoils.

Ministers put the best side out when they tell what great things they have done and what good times they have had, and omit all mention of the dull days when their brains would n't work; of the sermons bought, borrowed, or stolen, and preached for their own; of the empty discourses; of their covetous hankerings for collections and subscriptions; of the efforts to please rich men for the sake of their money; of their laziness, their gossiping, their indiscretion, and all their other faults.

How many men, who exhibit their excellences to the world, would be willing to have their true history written and the whole of it go out before the eyes of men? How many would go bareheaded if you could read the true record of their whole lives upon their foreheads? How many would want broad-brimmed hats well pulled down over their eyes? How many men would speak of others' faults if their own were written on their backs in plain letters?

How many men would like to have God's prophets write their biographies and put in good and bad just as the facts demand? How many persons think they know a more excellent way. The truth must not be spoken. You may displease or discourage some one. You may encourage the enemies of God.

"For the good of the cause" the good must be all told and the bad all left out. Amiable and excellent persons are these, no doubt. If they had written the Bible we should never have heard that Noah drank too much wine, that Lot became drunken and debauched, that Abraham deceived, that Moses spake unadvisedly, that David was an adulterer, that Solomon talked wisely and acted foolishly, that Eli's sons were debauchees, that Peter cursed and swore and dissembled, that Paul and Barnabas quarreled, and that all the men that have lived, save the man Christ Jesus, were men of like passions as we are, instead of being these improbable and impossible human angels, always doing right and never doing wrong, as they would have been if our Bible, instead of being an honest, straight-forward, truth-telling book as it is, had been full of lying, deceptive, hypocritical whitewashing, in order to put the best side out and build up the interests of the crafty authors.

Away with this squeamish folly! Give us the truth! We do not wish our hurts healed slightly by men who say "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." We need to know the worst of our case, the plague of our own hearts, the apostasy of the church, the perdition of the world. We want the truth, if it sinks men, measures, and causes, to the depths of the bottomless pit.

"The best side out" is a hypocritical dodge. "The best side out" is a cowardly evasion of the real state of the case. "The best side out" is a living lie. "Dig," said the Lord to Ezekiel, and he dug till he found idolatries and abominations on every hand. God wants men now willing to know the worst at once. And while some will daub the tottering wall with untempered mortar, others, thank God, will "dig" and get down through "the chambers of imagery" till they strike the great foundations of eternal truth, and there can rest and be safe.

What avails concealment? The "great white throne" is not far distant, and every work must come into judgment, with every secret thing. Better put the worst side out here. Better have our sins open beforehand, confessed, and going to judgment, than to be whitened like the whitest of sepulchres here, and there blackened with eternal infamy and doomed to shame and everlasting contempt.

Beware of this great sin of a hypocritical age, this putting "the best side out." Be clean inside. Live a life that will bear scratching through the surface, aye, cutting through the very centre. Beware of hollowness. Be yourself, even if you are a scamp, or a nobody. Let the truth come to the surface, and if it does n't look good, clean out the fountain, and then the water will be pure. May God help us to be sincere and without offence until the day of Christ. H. L. H.

Sept. 19th, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

TWO-HORNED BEAST OF REV. 13.

IS IT PAST, PRESENT, OR FUTURE?

BRO. GRANT:—With your permission, I wish to present a few Bible facts in relation to the proposed question.

John commences this chapter, by giving a description of his stand-point and what he saw. "And I stood upon the sands of the sea, and saw a beast rise up out of the sea, having seven heads and ten horns, and ten crowns upon his horns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy." "And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard (in color), and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion. From whence came this beast? Up out of the sea. And what territory does this sea symbolize?

Let us turn to Daniel seventh, where he says "he saw the four winds of the heaven strive upon the great sea;" and the result was, "four great beasts came up out of the sea, diverse one from the other." And the angel told Daniel in the seventeenth verse, that these beasts were kings, and in the twenty-fourth verse that the fourth beast is a kingdom.

Let us turn to Daniel's second chapter, thirty-eighth verse and onward, and we find Daniel saying, "Wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of heaven, hath he (God) given into thine hand and hath made thee ruler over them all." The following verse says of the next two kingdoms that they were to "bear rule over all the earth," that is, the then known world of nations. Then what does or did the sea symbolize? The then known world, with its nations.

Whether these kingdoms exercised their power to hold all tributary to them or not, God gave that power to them. And of the fourth beast we have the testimony of Luke that "Augustus Cæsar sent forth a decree that all the world should be taxed." Amen.

Here we have then the four great beasts bearing rule over the Great Sea, or the then known world of nations. Now if the sea in prophecy represents the then known world of nations, does it not mean the same in Revelation, when as yet no other portion of the globe had been discovered? But I think we have in the symbol that which proves this beast covers the same territory, for he partakes of the Grecian, the Medo-Persian, and the Babylonian, in his most striking features, while he is the fourth beast divided; or this singular beast came out of this great sea or nationalities.

Now for the two-horned beast. From whence came he? Out from the old Roman sea, says one. Not so, says the Scriptures; "and they cannot be broken," said our great Teacher. Nor does Inspiration confound two prophecies in one, or divide one symbol up into two, in the same chain of events. And that it is one chain of events may be seen by reading the whole chapter. But from whence did he come, and when does he enter into prophecy? John said he saw him coming up out of the earth. Then if I have the mind of the Spirit he did not rise out of the Roman kingdom, for we read in the seventh verse that the leopard beast with the mouth given him, "had power given him over all kindred, and tongues, and nations." Then there was no place for the two-horned beast to hold sway.

But as our earth stands in connection with our sea, so the earth in the prophecy under consideration stands in connection with the symbolic sea. So we find the leopard beast filling the entire Roman sea or kingdom, bearing iron rule over all kindred, tongues and nations; hence we must find some other territory for another beast to rise on.

But it is not my intention to locate this two-horned beast, but to speak of some facts connected with him. When does he enter prophecy? After the wounded head is healed. See Rev. 13: 12. What will he do? Form an alliance with the wounded healed head. What besides that? He will alter their or his constitution, or form of government, and make it like unto that of the wounded healed head form of goverment, and he will cause a mark of distinction to be put on all his loyal subjects. Has the church ever stood like Peter and said, this is that spoken by John? If so, let us have the facts.

GEORGE A. BARKER.

(To be concluded.)

THE BUSYBODY.

A PARODY.

How doth the busybody's tongue
Misspend each passing hour,
And gather slander all day long
From all within her power.
How artfully she seeks for news,
How pleased when bad prevails,
"And labors hard" no time to lose
To spread censorious tales.

In works of malice, words of ill,
She doth each day pursue,
For Satan finds some mischief still
For such to say and do.
So busybodies run their way,
So gossips' time is past,
Who'll have to give for every day,
A bad account at last.

—English paper.

For the World's Crisis.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS.

I speak what I do know, and testify what I have seen. Last winter I took a tour north, and attended a missionary meeting in the township of ———. The school-house was filled at an early hour. The presiding elder was very active in seating the congregation, told the little boys to sit upon the benches and make room for the man that was there last year (calling his name); said he expected a double speech from him this year, for he had got him a wife. A chairman was chosen. They were pleased to have a man to preside over the meeting that understood twelve languages.

After a short speech from the chairman, the peasant was called upon; said he had spread his wings and arrived at dinner time at a certain brother's. "You know," says the peasant, "an Englishman don't like to go without his dinner. (Applause.) On examining the turkey which the brother had brought from market, found it stuffed with buckwheat." (Loud applause.) The speeches were of a light and trifling character. Jesting and joking, Paul says, are not convenient.

The main object of all this performance was to get a good collection; for I saw in the notice the index pointed to this paragraph—"A collection will be taken up at the close of the meeting." Very little was said about the poor heathen. It was "Hail, fellow, well met." Now comes the tug of war. The collection was taken up, and in counting over the money it was found there was a ring, and a screw, and a nail. The one that was counting the money said he was very sorry the boys should be so roguish, and commenced reproving them.

"Hush," says the presiding elder, "we will make it turn to good account"; and told the following anecdote:

"Wesley was going to his appointment. His horse broke the harness. What to do he could not tell in such a predicament, when he thought of a present that had been given him. He found it to be just what he needed,—a shoemaker's awl and waxed end,—and thus mended his harness, went on to his appointment, and got there in season."

The ring went for sixpence, screw for fourpence, and nail for twopence,—quite an addition to the collection to send the gospel to the heathen to convert them. I thought of the old proverb, "Charity begins at home." See the idol worship at these missionary meetings. A platform erected for the Rev. speakers, and the chapels decorated in the finest style. My spirit was stirred within me, and I groaned. Heathen at home! Is this the way the world will be converted?

I have attended concerts, public auctions, and other places of amusements. I never heard more sport, funny anecdotes, jesting and joking than at that so-called missionary meeting. Religious festivals are very popular here in all the nominal churches.

O brethren, lift up your voices like trumpets; cry aloud and spare not. Do not sleep as do others, but watch and be sober. The Lord is coming! H. McCLARY.

Hatley, C. E.

ADMIRABLE REPLY.

An admirable reply was once made by a careful reader of the Bible to an infidel who attacked him with such expressions as these: "That the blood of Christ can wash away sin is foolishness; I don't understand or believe it."

The Bible student remarked, "You and Paul agree exactly."

"The infidel replied with much surprise, "How is this, that Paul and I agree?"

Said the student, "Turn to the 1st chapter of 1st Corinthians, and read at the 18th verse"

The infidel read, "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish, foolishness, but unto us which are saved, it is the power of God."

The infidel hung his head, and ever after studied the Bible, and he soon believed it to be God's power unto salvation.

ABLE AND WILLING.—"We can all earn our own living, father," was the remark made in a family by one of several young ladies, a short time since.

"That is right, my daughter," was the reply of the parent; "that fact I regard as the point of triumph in your education. Able and willing are the two words which, when the occasion comes, will ensure you success, and vindicate the principle that women should be educated for business and usefulness as well as for ornament and attractiveness. Never fear to work for your support, nor fail to encourage others in so doing."

ANGELS DON'T SMOKE.—A preacher not long since asking to stay all night at a country house, was forbidden by a lady. Knowing her to be a member of the church, and generally pleased to entertain ministers, he began to quote Paul to her, hoping that she would understand by this that he was a preacher. He hardly got out, "for thereby some have entertained angels unawares," when she said, "I know, sir"; but angels would not come with tobacco stuck in their mouths." The preacher left without further ceremony.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the World's Crisis.

A LETTER FOR THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

DEAR CHILDREN:—One beautiful Sabbath morning not long since, we seated ourselves in a carriage and drove to the city of Concord, N. H., (a distance of seven miles), to attend meeting at the Advent Chapel, on the corner of Green and Centre streets. Our drive was a delightful one on account of the rich scenery that everywhere greeted us. The parched earth, which had looked so drear and desolate before, was all radiant with beauty. Every blade of grass, tree and shrub, was glistening with rain drops that fell in a shower the evening before.

Well, in due time we were comfortably seated in the chapel. Directly in front of us there came in a gentleman with three beautiful children, the eldest a boy, I should think about nine years of age. The two younger were girls; one might be seven, the other five. The boy and the eldest girl had black eyes, with auburn hair; the youngest girl had eyes as blue as the sky, with a skin as fair as a white lily, and light, curling hair, that hung in ringlets over her neck. Truly, thought I, she is the prettiest little girl I have ever seen.

The children were all very pretty in their looks; but what made them seem so very beautiful was their good behavior, combined with their regular features and their fair complexions. The little girls were ladies. The gentleman who came in with them we took to be their father. He was a nice looking man, and seemed so cheerful and happy, that I thought he must be a christian, and before the meeting closed we were sure of it.

After singing the first time, there came a very pale, sickly looking boy walking up the aisle with a crutch, (the sexton was not present then.) He looked so very, very pale and thin, I think you would have pitied him if you had been there. We think this good man and his children did, for as soon as he saw that poor boy, he gave him the nearest and the best seat in the slip, and asked one of his little girls for her fan, which he gave to the sick boy. The little girl very readily gave up her fan, and sat watching him while he was fanning himself with such a look of pity that I thought she was too pure for this earth. At noon I saw these good children in the Sabbath school.

On my way to a friend's house in the city, I overheard the little girl ask a larger girl if she thought that poor little boy who came into the meeting in the morning would walk with a crutch in the kingdom. The elder girl replied that she did not know. I told her it was evident that the little boy's lameness was caused by disease, and that disease was first brought on all by sin, and that there would be no sin in the kingdom of God; that we should be as free from any traces of sin there as were our first parents, Adam and Eve, in the garden of Eden.

"Oh," said the little girl, "I hope that little lame boy will go into the kingdom; he will be pretty then, won't he, Hattie?"

Mast Yard, N. H. MARY LAMPREY.

THE HARD WAY.

Bob Winslow was the worst boy in the village. His father never checked him, but let him have his own way, till he had grown to be the terror of the neighborhood. He particularly loved to make sport of old, lame, crippled persons. There was one poor woman, bent down by age and infirmities, that Bob used especially to make game of. She came every day, leaning on her crutch, to draw water from the well near her house, and just within the play-ground of the school-house. Bob would sometimes follow close behind her, pretending to be lame, and hobbling along on his umbrella for a crutch, and mimicking her motions. "Only look at her," he would say, "isn't she like the letter S with an extra crook in it?" One day when he was doing this the old woman turned round, and, looking at him reproachfully, said, "Go home, child, and read the story about Elisha and the two bears out of the woods."

"Shame on you, Bob!" said Charles Mansfield, one of the best boys in the school. "Shame, I say, to laugh at the poor woman's misfortune! I've heard my grandmother say that she became a cripple by lifting her poor, afflicted son, and tending him night and day."

"I don't care what made her so," said Bob, "I would'nt stay in the world if I was such an ugly-looking thing as that. Do look!"

"Shame, shame on you!" said Charles, and, "shame, shame!" echoed from each of the boys present. "You may get your own back broken one of these days, Bob—who knows?"

Charles Mansfield sprang to the old woman, and said, "Let me help you, grandmother." Then he kindly took her pail, filled it at the well and carried it home for her, and the boys made an arrangement for one of them to come every day and fetch her a pail of water. "God bless you! God bless you all, dear boys!" said the old woman, as she wiped away her tears and entered her poor, lonely home.

Bob Winslow's conduct was reported to the master. He was much grieved, and sentenced him to stay in school and study, instead of going out to play at recess, for a week. This was pretty hard punishment, for Bob had but very little love for study, but was prodigiously fond of play. Yet this was a slight punishment compared with what he was soon to receive.

On the second day of his confinement he sat near the open window, watching the boys at their sports in the playground. Suddenly, while the master was occupied in another part of the room, he rose and jumped from the window into the midst of the boys, with a shout at what he had done. "Now let him punish me again, if he can!" cried he. As he said this he ran backwards, and threw up his arms in defiance, and shouting, when—suddenly his voice ceased; there was a heavy plunge, and a loud groan burst on the ears of his startled companions.

It so happened that the well of which we have spoken was being repaired. The workmen were at a distance collecting their materials, and had carelessly left the opening of the well uncovered. As Bob was going backward at the very moment of his triumph, he stepped into the mouth of the well, and down he went. There was a cry of horror from the boys. They all rushed to the spot. Charles Mansfield, the bravest of them all, was the first to seize the well rope. He jumped into the bucket, and got the boys to lower him down. The well was deep, but fortunately there was not much water in it; and Bob lay motionless at the bottom. Charles lifted him carefully, and with one arm around his apparently lifeless body, the other on the rope, he gave the signal and was slowly raised to the top. The pale face of the wicked boy filled his companions with horror. Without saying a word they carried him to the house of the poor woman whom he had treated so cruelly. She had seen the accident from her window, and was hobbling along on her crutch to meet them. Poor Bob was taken into her humble home, and laid upon her bed. The kind-hearted old woman, forgetful of his ill-treatment of her, got out her bandages, her camphor bottle and other things; and while one of the boys ran for the doctor, and another for their teacher, she sat down by his side and bathed his hands and forehead as tenderly as if he had been her own son. After the doctor had dressed his wounds, he was carried on a litter to his own home, surrounded by his sorrowing companions, but still insensible.

A few hours later in the day a group of boys met on the play-ground. They talked to one another in a low voice. They looked pale and sad. Presently Charles Mansfield came up.

"Well, boys, how is poor Bob now? Have any of you heard?"

"O, Charlie!" cried several at once, as they gathered round him. "O, don't you know? Haven't you heard? Why, he has opened his eyes and is able to speak; but his back is broken, and he will be a cripple and a hunchback for life."

Charles clasped his hands without uttering a word, and burst into tears. At last, with the tears still streaming down his pale cheeks, but with a manly voice, he said, "Boys, I hope we shall never forget the lesson we have learned to-day. The Bible says, 'The way of the transgressor is hard;' and poor Bob's experience proves how true that is."—Pittsburg Advocate.

THE BOY WHO CONQUERED.

Some few years ago a lad who was left without father or mother, of good natural abilities, went to New York, alone and friendless, to get a situation in a store as errand boy, or otherwise, until he could command a higher position; but this boy had been in bad company, and had got in the habit of calling for his "bitters" occasionally, because he thought it looked manly. He smoked cigars also.

He had a pretty good education, and on looking over the papers he noticed that a merchant in Pearl street wanted a lad of his age, and he called there and made his business known.

"Walk into the office, my lad," said the merchant. "I'll attend to you soon."

When he had waited on his customer, he took a seat near the lad and espied a cigar in his hat. This was enough.

"My boy," said he, "I want a smart, honest, faithful lad; but I see that you smoke cigars, and in my experience of many years I have ever found cigar smoking in lads to be connected with various other evil habits; and, if I am not mistaken, your breath is an evidence that you are not an exception. You can leave; you will not suit me."

John (this was his name) held down his head and left the store; and as he walked along the street, a stranger, and friendless, the counsel of his poor mother came forcibly to his mind, who upon her death-bed called him to her side, and placing her emaciated hand upon his head, said, "Johnny, my dear boy, I'm going to leave you. You well know what disgrace and misery your father brought on us before his death, and I want you to promise me before I die that you will never taste one drop of the accursed poison that killed your father. Promise me this, and be a good boy, Johnny, and I shall die in peace."

The scalding tears trickled down Johnny's cheeks, and he promised ever to remember the dying words of his mother, and never to drink any spiritous liquors; but he soon forgot his promise, and when he received the rebuke from the merchant he remembered what his mother said, and what he had promised her, and he cried aloud, and people gazed at him as he passed along, and boys railed at him. He went to his lodgings, and throwing himself upon his bed, gave vent to his feelings in sobs that were heard all over the house.

But John had moral courage. He had energy and determination, and ere an hour had passed he had made up his mind never to taste another drop of liquor nor to smoke another cigar as long as he lived. He went straight back to the merchant. Said he, "Sir, you very properly sent me away this morning for habits that I have been guilty of; but, sir, I have neither father nor mother, and though I have occasionally done what I ought not to do, and have not followed the good advice of my poor mother on her death-bed, nor done as I promised her I would do, yet I have now made a solemn vow never to drink another drop of liquor, nor to smoke another cigar; and if you, sir, will only try me, it is all I ask."

The merchant was struck with the decision and energy of the boy and at once employed him. At the expiration of five years this lad was a partner in the business, and is now worth ten thousand dollars. He has faithfully kept his pledge, to which he owes his elevation.

Boys, think of this circumstance as you enter upon the duties of life, and remember upon what points of character your destiny for good or for evil depends.—Northern Farmer.

☞ Boys, hold on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie, speak harshly, or say an improper word.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—{ One year............$2.50 / Six months..........$1.25 }
If not paid within six months,—{ One year....$3.00 / Six months...$1.50 }
Five copies, to one address, six months..........$5.50
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months..........$10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS.—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMMENCE [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS [illegible] addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 470. BOSTON, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 3.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

"LOOK TO JESUS."

Art thou forsaken? Cold and dark indeed,
The fate unsoothed by sympathetic tears!
And well the stricken heart unstanched may bleed,
With no soft, pitying voice to lull its fears.

"Look up, thou poor forsaken!" Jesus sped,
All trustful, through a lot as dark as thine;
And know'st thou not that wheresoe'er he led,
The path tends onward to a rest divine?

Art thou reviled? Do foes ensnare thy feet?
Do proud ones mock thee, and thy friends betray?
Thou canst not drain the bitter from the sweet,
Nor pluck the rose and thorn away.

But, like thy Savior, turn the other cheek
When one is struck, and say, "thou art forgiven!"
Like him be faithful, and like him be meek,
And speed as he sped, hopefully towards heaven!

Kennebunk, Me. —Com. by Laura J. Swett.

THE LORD AT HAND.

AN ADVENT SERMON, BY JOSEPH A. SEISS, D. D., Author of "Last Times," "Parable of the Ten Virgins," "Gospel in Leviticus," "Day of the Lord," "Lectures on Hebrews," etc.

"Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice. Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand."—PHIL. 4: 4, 5

(Concluded.)

But apart from this, in whatever direction we look, we find evidence that—

"The tide of pomp
That beats upon the high shore of this world," is ebbing fast. As Cowper sung,—

"Six thousand years of sorrow have well-nigh
Fulfilled their tardy and disastrous course
Over a sinful world; and what remains
Of this tempestuous state of human things
Is merely as the working of the sea
Before a calm that rocks itself to rest.
. . . . . . The world appears
To toll the death-bell of its own decease,
And by the voice of all its elements,
To preach the general doom."

Gathering together, then, all the light within my reach, I have no hesitation in saying, that I believe there are some listening to me now who will never taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. You may take the announcement, or you may despise it as folly; but, in the name of Jesus, I declare to you that THE COMING OF THE LORD IS AT HAND.

WHAT, THEN, IS TO BE DONE? is the next question. Shall we throw up our avocations, and give ourselves to dejection or the silly conceits of wild enthusiasts? No, no! We must only stand the firmer to our posts. The command of Jesus is, "OCCUPY TILL I COME." We must keep steadfastly to the duties of our places, and do with our might what our hands find to do, and work and wait, and wait as we work, until Christ shall call to us from the heavens, "Well done, good and faithful servants; enter ye into the joy of your Lord!"

The first thing noted in the text upon this point is, that we should rejoice; yea, and rejoice always. God never meant that the promise of his coming should frighten us, or depress us, or make us unhappy. He meant it for the comfort of his people in their trials, to inflame their zeal, to inspire their hopes, and to serve as a sort of present compensation for their toils and sufferings. Instead of being discomfited, then, as we see the time drawing near, let us rather be joyful, and lift up our heads, and press for the crowns that are drawing so close. The faithless and the impenitent may well be alarmed, and moved to cry for mercy; but for those who have laid up their treasures in the world to come, the scenes at hand are full of gladness.

Jesus says, "When these things begin to come to pass, then LOOK UP AND LIFT UP YOUR HEADS: FOR YOUR REDEMPTION DRAWETH NIGH." Hear and consider, O ye of little faith. "Are you so enamored of sickness that you have no longing for the resurrection body and the beauteous robes of incorruption and immortality? Are you so enamored of aches, and ills, and losses, and bereavements, and pains, and battles, and famine, and plague, and pestilence, that you do not wish them to be done with? Why, every statement in this blessed book leads us to the otherwise delightful conclusion, that the nearer the great issue comes the happier God's people should feel. The sound that rings sweet and audible from the skies amidst the crash of nations, the overturning of thrones, the dissolution of dynasties, and wars and rumors of wars, is, Lift up your heads,—your redemption is near! And if I should be able only to point out a few weeds floating upon the sea that indicate we are approaching the great continent of glory,—if I should be able only to give an Alpine flower here and there, however fragile, yet a sweet messenger of the coming spring,—every true Christian ought to rejoice and be glad that there are tokens of a day when a genesis shall pass upon the earth better and brighter than the first, and a paradise come in, as the coronal of time, more glorious than that which was its dawn." Luther once held in his hand a necklace of agates, and said, "I would cheerfully eat up this to-day for the judgment to come to-morrow." And "how cheering the hope, amidst the din of war, the shout of false joy, the yell of idolatry, and the groans of creation, that a period is hastening when peace shall stretch its shady wings over the sons of men, when rivers of joy shall water this vale of tears, when cherubim shall cry, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory!"

But we need to be temperate as well as joyous. It is a solemn subject, and one which must be allowed to have its due weight in restraining our appetites and passions, and in keeping us within the bounds of soberness and watchfulness. The Saviour himself has given the command, "Take heed, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares."

It would seem as if great heat, passion and violence were specially to characterize the period of the end, and that moderation will then of all times be most needed. Paul also elsewhere exhorts us, in view of the nearness of that day, to "cast off the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light;" to "walk honestly as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying; and make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof." The warning has been given by the Saviour himself, that if any servant of his shall say in his heart, "My Lord delayeth his coming," and shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken, the Lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, and shall cut him off, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites, where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Therefore, as the Apostle says, "Let us watch and be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation; that whether we wake or sleep, we may live together with him."

Brethren, there is but one way of safety for man. We must take the gospel—the simple gospel as Christ has given it—and make it reality in our experience and our hopes, or we must take death and everlasting despair. The decree of the Eternal has gone forth, and we must be hid in Christ or perish. We are hemmed in to this, and there is no escape. All other dependence is vain. The very ground beneath our feet is quaking and gliding away, and, unless we plant ourselves firmly and at once upon the Rock of Ages, we shall soon find ourselves tossing upon the boisterous flood of a starless and rayless eternity.

And especially does this subject appeal to those who have as yet taken no steps for their safety and salvation. It speaks like the sailors to Jonah, "Awake, O sleeper, and call upon thy God, if so be that thou perish not!" Thy race, O man, will soon be run. The day when God will put his judgments in force will soon arrive. It is stealing upon thee as a lion crouching to spring upon his prey. The great day is close at hand. Already we hear the mutterings of the approaching tempest. Before you think it possible, the Lord will arise and say, "It is done." Why, then, sleep, and sport, and fold thy arms in indifference? "Behold, now is the accepted time! Behold, now is the day of salvation!" Careless soul, awake, I entreat thee. By the awful perils that surround thee—by the untold peace and blessings of a happy eternity,—do not waste thy time, nor neglect thine opportunities. Haste to the arms that are stretched out to save thee. Fly to the refuge set before thee. Take sanctuary in Jesus, who now offers to save thee. And may he who came into the world to save sinners, and will soon come again to redeem saints, be thy portion forever, as he is the portion of all his people! Amen, and Amen!

For the World's Crisis.

TWO-HORNED BEAST OF REV. 13.

IS IT PAST, PRESENT, OR FUTURE?

NUMBER TWO.

But is that all he does? "And he doeth great wonders," "And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth by the means of those miracles which he had power to do." Who do we find him connected with? With "the beast who had a wound by a sword and did live," or with the head that was wounded to death, and his deadly wound was healed. See Rev. 13: 4; 12: 14. When was that head healed? We go back and take the history of those seven heads associated at separate times with the Roman church, and not but one, as I find, was ever wounded, so but that they existed as a king, or were killed entire, never to return in the sense of the prophecy.

But one was dethroned, and an oath taken that none of his blood should ever reign on that throne again. "But the Scriptures cannot be broken," and Napoleon the Third stands the wounded head healed. Although John saw this two-horned beast coming up, yet he does not begin the work assigned him until this wounded head is healed. Is he past? Then many other things are past, and we as a people ought to stop advocating them as in the future. We will mention some of them.

First, the "mark of the beast" is in the past, and the church must know what it is, or otherwise they walk in darkness. If it be in the past, then is the "angel flying through the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people." Where do the nations, kindreds, tongues, and people dwell? Not on the symbolic earth, for he preached it to them that dwell on the earth, and these others besides. But what did he say? "Fear God and give glory unto him; for the hour (or time) of his judgment is come." Shall we say this is past? Nay, verily, but is now being done. Then if the two-horned beast is past, the next angel's message is in the past, saying, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen." Then if Babylon has fallen another event has taken place, recorded in Rev. 19: 1—9. But we have not yet been made partakers of the marriage supper of the Lamb.

If this beast is in the past, then the third angel's message is in the past. For his message was, "If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God." Have all of these been delivered to the church and world? Does any say they have? When and where did God's ministers go forth with this last message? Give us the history, and we will say Amen.

But if these are in the past one thing is not—that recorded in Rev. 19: 11—21; and if not, then the beast or head (for he is called both) healed, and the two-horned beast, or, as he is called, the false prophet in this chapter, (which can be no other than the two-horned beast, for he does the very work assigned to this beast,) are in existence to-day, or otherwise they are in the future.

Let us hear John 20th verse: "And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast and them that worship (or serve) his image; these both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone." 21st: "And the remnant were slain with the sword of him who sat upon the horse, which sword proceedeth out of his mouth." Is all this in the past? Then the two-horned beast must be in the past; but if not, then his destruction is yet in the future.

The Lord cannot come in some time then. Let it be longer or shorter, he must come when these two powers are alive, or in being as nationalities. But do not limit the Almighty and have him crowd everything into one twenty-four hours. Let the sure word of the Lord stand, and learn by our past haste that his ways are not our ways. Read again Rev. 19: 11—20 and Rev. 17: 14, and see that there is something to be done at and after the Master comes.

May the spirit that John said he was in on the Lord's day be the spirit that shall guide our minds as we study and our pens as we write; then shall we be taught of God and all see eye to eye, with no hobbies or preconceived notions to sustain. If I have not the truth on this subject show me a more excellent way. Yours for the truth,

GEORGE A. BARKER.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH DUTIES.

STAYING IN AND STAYING OUT.

"When for thy blessed Savior's sake
Reproaches on thee rest;
And of his sufferings thou partake—
The will of Christ is best."

Stay in? Yes, stay in if you can do your whole duty, clear your skirts of blood, open your lips wide for truth and salvation. Some remain in a backslidden, corrupt church organization and lose their grace, fall into the popular current, bow to a sickly charity. Very many, for fear of giving offence, or of being turned out of the synagogue, put their light under a bushel.

We knew a brother once in good standing, who stood erect, walked erect, bright and shining, till he succumbed to a time-serving, man-fearing policy. What now? Where now? Gone. Gone? Yes, gone! He is now on a level with the fattest of them,—"hail fellows well met." Instead of reproving sin, a pro-slavery spirit, worldly conformity, the fashions and follies around him, as he once did, he apologizes for them! The things he once abhorred and reprobated he winks at.

So it is, so it will be. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." "How can two walk together except they be agreed?" Can righteousness fellowship unrighteousness? or light commingle with darkness?

If we are in a sickly region, impure, contagious, and do not resort to immediate remedies to purify this malaria or pestilential atmosphere, are we not sure to sicken and die with the multitude? The only safety, morally speaking, is God,—God now, God always, God forever!—God in the soul, and God manifest out of it. "I have not hid thy righteousness in my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation."—Ps. 40: 10.

The light must shine, else it goes out into utter darkness. And "if the light that is in you be darkness, how great is that darkness!" The salt must purify and preserve, else it loses its savor. What then is it good for? "It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill" (Luke 14: 35); but to be cast out and to be trodden under foot of men.

Are there not multitudes in these worldly-minded, popularity-seeking churches, where "the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint," that feel and know they are in danger? and unless they do their whole duty, "cry aloud and spare not," come out from among them, they are sure to be partakers of their sins, and receive of their plagues?

Friend, gentle reader, are you here, in this contagious atmosphere, and still hold your peace? When the house is on fire, and the elements melt with fervent heat, what now? Die? Yes, you will die the death, surely, unless you escape for your life—run, look not behind you.

"Do my duty"? Yes, brother, do your duty; if these apostate churches with which you are conected consent to listen to the thunder's crash, the lightning's flash of the gospel, the fire and hammer of God's truth, against all sin; allow you to reprove, rebuke with all long-suffering and doctrine; make salvation from sin ring in their ears; suffer you to point to them specifically and definitely the sins of the flesh and of the spirit, of omission and commission, naming them one by one unmistakably, as Nathan the prophet said to David, "Thou art the man"; then the question is settled—go in peace.

But where is there a proud church that receives glory one of another, and seeks not the glory that cometh from God only, that will listen thus to gospel teachings and receive you graciously?

Has persecution ceased? Try it, brother; try it, sister; storm the fort of Satan; show the people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins; describe the nakedness of the land glowingly; tell affectionately and meltingly, in the spirit of Jesus, that the popular churches have lost their power by shaking hands with the world and Satan—that their Sabbath desecrations are proverbial—that intemperance in eating and drinking is voluptuous, bordering on gluttony and wine-bibbing—that novels and romances, the "Harper's," the "Godey's," the "Peterson's," the fashion plates and comicals, are the curse of the land, the work of Satan and his imps.

Tell them with tears in your eyes, weepingly, that their houses of worship are popish—houses of merchandize, and frequently a place of speculation, if not "a den of thieves." See Matt. 21: 13. Tell them that secret, oath-bound societies are next door to perdition, one of Satan's baits. Declare to them meekly that these New Year's visitations, the custom of going from house to house on the first day of the new year, partaking of God's bounties to surfeiting and drunkenness, and that raising money for benevolent purposes by fancy fairs, tea and strawberry parties, soirees, and oyster suppers, are the strategems of the devil.

Tell them the adorning of their persons in gay and fashionable costume, in gold, pearls, and costly array, is a species of heathen idolatry, and that they are heaping to themselves teachers having itching ears, who wink at these abominations, heal slightly, daub with untempered mortar, cry "peace, peace," when there is no peace. What now? any sparks flying? any fire in the camp? any rising up of old Adam? any bubblings of the pit bottomless?

The spirit of persecution is not confined to the man of sin, the mother of harlots, to popes, pontiffs, cardinals, or Romish inquisitors. Churches called Protestant have drunk deeply at this bitter fountain. This wicked, persecuting, sectarian spirit is at our very door.

Let a brother or sister presume to change his or her communion from the purest motives—leave one sect and unite with another—what the result? Any popes, pontiffs, cardinals inquisitors, to wield the sword of vengeance? Any fire and brimstone, the spirit of the pit bubbling? Inquisitors and inquisitions, the piercing steel, the drawn sword, the bayonet, the burning faggot, are not more to be dreaded than a vituperous, slanderous tongue, set on by the fires of hell! "The tongue that deviseth mischief, like a sharp razor, worketh deceitfully." "My soul," says the psalmist, "is among lions, and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword." This little unruly member, which no man can tame, more terrible to endure than a drawn dagger, is the chief instrument of persecution of a corrupt, sectarian, idolatrous church of the present day.

Try it, friends, be faithful, do your whole duty, stand boldly for Jesus, fight manfully the good fight of faith in the midst of a "crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world," and see if the half has been told. What the reply of the Savior to these fire-consumers? "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of; the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." John 9: 54.

"O world! how deeply fallen from thy sphere!
O mind! how lost thy noblest wing of thought!
O soul! how base thy form—how lost art thou
To God's similitude—how deep thy stain!"

"He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad." Matt. 12: 30. "How long will ye halt between two opinions? if the Lord be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him." 1 Kings 18: 21.

"Truth is earnest, Truth is fearless,
Ever dwelling in the light;
Still by Error's frowns undaunted,
Striving only for the Right.
Truth is strong and noble ever,
And no power its course may stay;
No dark mists of Persecution
Long can veil its blessed ray."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

I'M WEARY.

This dreary old earth looks dark and cold. Sorrows and griefs are all the way strewn in our pathway. One perfect scene of sickness and death. Hear the groans and cries of God's afflicted ones—

"How long shall death, the tyrant, reign?"

My heart is sick. Griefs and tears are my constant lot. O! when will it be morning, bright morning, when all these scenes shall have passed away? Then there will be no more watchings around the sick and dying beds of those we hold so dear. Our heart-strings are often torn, and we mourn in deep sorrow; often refuse like one of old to be comforted, because our loved ones are no more.

Earth's night of weeping has been long and tedious; our sorrows have been many. Wave after wave of affliction has swept over me, until my heavy heart is almost torn asunder; but I must hope on, looking for a brighter day to dawn, when earth's tears and sorrows will all be wiped away by the soft hand of Jesus. Amen.

My heart leaps high for the immortal land, where "the inhabitants will never say, I am sick." Hasten that day, O my Savior; bring in the resurrection morn; let the sleepers arise; let the captives go free; let life's trials and sorrows end in the consummation of our blessed hope; let the cruel tyrant, death, be destroyed; let the pilgrims find a peaceful home, far from a world of grief and sin. And oh! blessed thought, the day is nearing. Signs tell us it is even so. The land is in full view. Methinks I almost see the shining ones. O! hear their songs of praise, their shouts of joy. See them as they receive the crown of life and glory! Hear the sound as the harps of gold are given them! All heaven is in one united shout of praise to Him who hath redeemed us from all iniquity. Blessed thought! Glorious anticipation! I long to be there. Savior, hasten thy glorious reign.

Let us take courage, for we are almost there. We have passed every light-house, and now the port is in full view. Courage, lonely ones. Cheer up, ye sorrowing ones. Death may rob you of your little buds of promise for awhile, but the grave must yield up its prey. Be patient just a little longer. The morn is breaking. Nerve thyself for the conflict.

"We have but an hour to fight."

Let us be bold-hearted men and women. Be faithful. The bright rays of morning are plainly seen in the horizon. Then gird thine armor close about thee. The day is soon to dawn. Glory, hallelujah! Amen.

No. Dana, Mass. LUTHERA P. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CHRISTIAN'S SONG.

How sweet 'twill be, when time is o'er,
And we have reached fair Eden's shore,
To rest at last in Jesus' arms,
With every sin forgiven!
How sweet to join the heavenly throng,
And sing with them the new-made song,
While ceaseless ages glide along
In that eternal heaven!

How sweet to lay our armor down,
Our battle fought, our victory won,
And hear our Savior's voice proclaim—
"Well hast thou done! thy foe is slain,
Thy sins are all forgiven!"
Sweet will it be to hear His voice,
'Twill make our hearts anew rejoice,
That we in time did make the choice
Of an eternal heaven.

MELISSA A. WILBUR.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CONTRAST.

In the one meeting the Holy Ghost was represented as having lost his identity in the written word,—that there is no Holy Spirit separate from the written word.

This meeting was spiritless. Not a response through it all; while some were compelled to leave it from very weariness. When the longed-for moment came that the speaker took his seat, a sister called for the return of the grieved and dishonored Spirit in singing the hymn—in which all joined with a hearty good will; thus practically condemning the doctrine advocated. Thank God for this. Liberty was then given; but not a word was said, nor a prayer offered. Each looked on the other as if to say, Can you speak or pray after this? At length one brother slowly arose, saying, "I do not know as I have anything to say," and with a few words took his seat,—then closed the meeting, every one looking dissatisfied and murmuring one to the other. Now for the contrast.

"Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove," &c.,

Another servant came, honoring the Holy Spirit. He acknowledged the guidance of this Spirit in his coming into this State, and His guidance in his coming to this place, and that he looked to Him now to assist in his services, and without His help he could do nothing. Soon the power of the Spirit rested upon him. We all felt it. The hearty response, the moistened eye, the overflowing soul, all told His presence; and when the speaker was through, and liberty given, three persons rose at a time to testify for God; and this was repeated three times in a little company of about thirty-five hearers.

Why the difference in these two meetings? They were held in the same place, and before the same congregation, only there were not so many together in the first as in the second, but the cream of the second meeting was in the first, but not a word could they utter at its close, except they had turned the holy service of God into a polemic; therefore they held their peace for Jesus' sake. But why this difference? It was a demonstration of the practical effects of the two positions, and shows which one the Lord delights to honor.

All glory to the "Comforter," that he still lives as perfect in and of himself as the Father and the Son! That he no more lost his identity in the written word than our Lord himself lost his identity in speaking those words. So far from this, he was promised, by our departing Lord, to his sorrowing disciples as the Comforter who was to abide with them forever, to minister to them in his stead. "Nevertheless, I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart I will send him unto you. And when he is come he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. Of sin, because they believe not on me," &c.

Say not that he has no power to convince the world of sin. Woe be to the world when this power ceases to act upon the consciences of men! Ye servants of the most high God, your work will then be done. Your prayers, and tears, and sighs, and groans over a perishing world for whom Christ died, will then have ceased forever. The last soul will have been gathered in, the last heir of salvation sealed.

O that some power could reach the benumbed consciences of some of our beloved brethren on this vital point! I am constrained to cry out for them—"Father, forgive them, they know not what they do!" Could they see that they are annihilating the last hope of the church and the world, and were they left to their naked theory they would perish themselves,—I think they would stand appalled at their position! Who is to open their eyes? Father, have mercy! is my daily prayer in Jesus' name. Amen.

They certainly do not see that they are saying of the Holy Ghost what the fool saith in his heart concerning God the Father—"There is no God"! There is no Spirit. This first is called atheism, and is considered the highest insult to the Supreme Being. What shall we say of the second? Is it not atheism against the Holy Spirit to say he has lost his identity? That there is no Spirit? If to say "there is no God" is the greatest sin against God, surely to say "there is no Spirit" is the greatest sin against the Spirit, and must be the sin against the Holy Ghost, which is the greatest sin noted in the Scriptures of truth, and hath never forgiveness, neither in this world, nor in the world to come.

My beloved brethren, beware, while yet there is hope! Flee from this heaven-grieving theory as you would flee from the deadly Upas; for it must as certainly perish as all sin and sinners must perish! I most heartily concur that the Spirit and the word agree in one; that is, one purpose to glorify God and save men; just as the Father and the Son agree in this oneness of purpose, and just as the saints of God are exhorted to be one. But I do demur with my whole soul at the position that the Holy Spirit loses its identity in this great work of redemption any more than that the Father loses his identity, or the Son loses his, or the saints of God lose theirs. The married pair are said to be one flesh; but does the husband lose his identity in his wife, or the wife in her husband? Are they not just as distinct persons after marriage as before? Just so is the Holy Ghost as distinct from the word as he was before the word existed. Shall the less swallow up the greater—the cause be lost in the effect—the maker in the thing made? O consistency, thou art a jewel!

What should I do without this sure, unerring guide,—left in this dark world with nothing but the general principles that the word must, of necessity, set forth! Jesus knew his people's need, and he kindly supplied it by sending the "Comforter" to minister to them, in his stead, until the end of time. Not an intimation in the written word that when it was completed this holy Comforter would expire in it, as the silk-worm in its cocoon! The Lord save his people from this sacrilegious theory. Amen. Your sister, saved from its baleful influences.

E. S. WILLARD.

Hammonton, N. J., August, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

"YOU ARE A SECTARIAN."

Oh! yes. It may be so. What then? Suppose I am a Sectarian. Is that wrong? Perhaps you do not know what constitutes a Sectarian. Some suppose it pertains to one who has a bitter, bigoted, vindictive, seclusive spirit, refusing to fellowship christians who differ from him in opinion. Now if these qualifications make up the proper elements of a Sectarian, I would deny being one at once. Or if I found myself of such a spirit, I would repent and ask for mercy of God to obtain a better heart.

But let us see if Sectarianism necessarily possesses these qualities. We will look at Webster first. He says: "Sectarianism: One of a sect, one in a party in religion which has separated itself from the established church, or which holds tenets different from those of the prevailing denomination in a kingdom or State." "Sectarianism: The disposition to dissent from the established church or predominant religion, and to form new sects." Now let us look at the Bible use of these terms, and the question is settled.

In Acts 5: 17, we find an account of a "Sect of Sadducees." In Acts 15: 5, a "Sect of Pharisees." Acts 26: 5, Paul says, "After the straitest sect of our religion I lived a Pharisee." In Acts 28: 22, we read of the followers of Christ on this wise: "For as concerning this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against."

"Sect: A body or number of persons united in tenets, chiefly in philosophy or religion, but constituting a distinct party by holding sentiments different from those of other men."—Webster. Here, then, we have it. Now those who belonged to either of these sects were sectarian.

We will only remark on the "sect everywhere spoken against." This was made up of the holy apostles, and their brethren and sisters in Christ, who held to the teachings of Christ in distinction from the vain traditions of the Jews, and who constituted a sect separated from the established and predominant religion.

Were they wicked for taking this position? So thought the established church. Thus they were everywhere spoken against, belied, ridiculed, held up to public scorn as followers of the despised Nazarene. And what right had they to become sectarian? Ah! The truth of God as it unfolded attracted their attention, gained their affections, became the foundation of their faith, and drew them out from the old dead body which refused to follow on in "the path of the just." They were obliged to occupy a distinct position, or reject Christ. Yet they sympathized with their former associates, and labored with great zeal to bring them to see the newly developed truth.

But they could not go back without sinning. Had they been like some "putter men," they could have yielded to the priests' command, and been united with the Jews in their prayer meetings and religious associations, and commended the piety of their priests, and so been honored, only ceasing to speak any more in the name of Jesus. They might have been united with "Alexander, the Coppersmith," and saved having trouble about their religion. Paul might have followed Demas in his worldly projects, and so gained a share of his filthy lucre by puffing him, as a shrewd fellow.

The apostles might have gone along hand in hand with the Jewish church after the excitement of the crucifixion was over, had they left off witnessing that God had raised Jesus from the dead. What need was there of keeping that subject constantly agitated? It only disturbed the union and peace of the church, and made them sectarian. All christians can answer this question.

Time ran on. "The mystery of iniquity" did its work in the christian sect, and it spread over the world, united with State, became apostate. What now? Some dissented, refused to follow in apostasy, and became a new sect, and were obliged to flee to the wilderness for being sectarian, and then to be hunted and slain by millions.

What need of all this affliction? The old church taught "many good things in which all could unite." They observed all the sacraments of the apostles, and more. Why not slide along in peace, and talk as they talk, "commend them for their good deeds," and carefully mention our private views in a manner that will give no offense? This could not be done without disobeying God, and dishonoring Christ, and losing his Spirit.

In time, God let the light shine in upon the "cage of unclean birds," and some honest, youthful, starving souls saw the truth which had been long hid by the established church. They were true to it and became "sectarian." What an uproar followed. Thousands left the church of Rome. Why not keep quiet and live in peace? All Protestants can answer. The old established church rejected much important truth, and substituted vain traditions and false notions.

But man is the same vacillating, erring mortal; and truth is not all developed at once. While many claimed to have all the truth, others looked for more. Hence the rise of new sects. The Baptists on baptism, the Congregationalists on independent church government, the Methodists on free salvation and holiness of heart, and others by cause of some peculiar views which made them sects. The necessity has arisen from the "folly and slowness of heart to believe all the Scriptures have spoken."

Truth is still onward, developing every hour. "Knowledge" is being "increased." Now, as all are sectarians who do not adhere to the predominant church, is it wisdom, is it courteous, is it charity, to cry out "sectarian" to those who still take positions different from your own? You are as sectarian as they. Or else you are "putter," or "putty" men, not suitable to be in any cause because of your disposition to please all, to gain the honor of all, or to gain some worldly advantage of all, and thereby render yourself unworthy the confidence of any.

Yarmouth, Me. I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

HOOKS AND VELVET, OR PAWS AND CLAWS.

There are two aspects in which you may view a cat's paw. In one condition the hooks predominate—it presents to you a set of articles which can hardly be matched for purposes of scratching and tearing. At another time puss is in a more placable mood, and lo! the claws are turned into paws, and the hooks are exchanged for the softest pads of velvet that you ever felt. And yet they are the same identical feet, and it depends upon the disposition of puss whether you have paws or claws, hooks or velvet.

Here is a man who has both of these elements in him,—most men have. Now to his neighbors, customers, and the world in general, he is all velvet; but when he gets at home, with his wife and children, how the claws stick out! Would'n't it be well for you, my friend, to try the velvet principle at home? You would not like to treat others as you do your own family. Suppose you carry a little of your velvet home, and see if you cannot find a market for it there.

Here is a man who tries to save sinners, and he is wise and careful. How gently he works! how softly he treads! how diligently he labors! And he has his reward, for he sees many souls gathered to the Savior's arms.

Another man wants to see men saved, but he works with hooks, and claws, and files, and rasps, and saws. He uses hard words, and scolds, and frets, and drives, and when all is done he never gains his end, but rather makes himself a public pest, and religion and truth both suffer through his bitterness of spirit. He serves God very much as we might expect a man to serve the devil, provided he was frank and used no deception. And yet he has good motives, purposes, and desires; but all is spoiled by his spirit of hooks and claws. He would do much better if he would try the velvet principle a little.

There are preachers who are gentle, and neither quench the smoking flax, nor break the bruised reed; but there are others,—oh, how they tear and rend things! how they desolate and destroy!

Out of the true believer flow rivers of living water, and their course is marked by verdant banks, and fertile vales, and fruitful trees, on either hand; but the track of these men is marked by blackness, darkness, ruin, division, and dismay. They are more like rivers of burning lava, than they are like rivers of living water. Clouds are they without water, trees whose fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead and plucked up by the roots. They may brag of being the best trees, and plats of excellent culture, and may practise grafting, and use all other appliances, but where is the fruit? "Trees whose fruit withereth." So be it. If they do not serve God, harshness and bitterness befit their case,—such is their element.

But christians can do better. They can try the velvet principle. They can catch more flies with a spoonful of molasses than with a barrel of vinegar. They can show all meekness to all men. They can speak the truth in love. May God help us so to do.

Sept. 20th, 1864. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

NEW WORK.

REDEEMER AND REDEEMED. An Investigation of the Atonement and of Eternal Judgment. By CHARLES BEECHER. Boston: Lee & Shepard. 1864. Pp. xii., 357.

This book is published on a controversial occasion, touching the ecclesiastical position and privileges of a minister of great ability and exemplary piety. Appearing at such a time, it has of course been assailed with partisan feeling by those who deem its author heretical, while those who tolerate his views without embracing them, have spoken kindly of the book, not always knowing how to praise it.

Professing no special skill in this matter, we have far more heart to praise the book than to criticize it. It has plenty of heterodoxies not our own,—not the least of which is its orthodoxy in the question of eternal suffering, or immortality out of Christ. And its reasonings on this matter seem to us so generally loose, and ever inconclusive, that we apprehend nothing of them. Every orthodox thinker who gets a new view of God's character and government, will reach a corresponding view of the anguish of the lost, and the justice of their doom. Yet he may do this without adding any substantial argument for the eternity of that which God deplores.

But we recommend even the discourses on this head, and much more the rest of the book, not for its special tenets, but for its grand theological ethics. It is preeminently a book of noble utterances by the wayside, which reduce its heterodoxies to fancies, which the author may highly prize, and we will let him do so if he will let us feast at our discretion at his richly furnished table. And he is no churl, to tell us we must try this dish or none. If we think he has not found the philosopher's stone, he will not grieve if we accept the gold he has discovered, or minted anew. And when the smoke of the ecclesiastical battle has passed away, we shall not wonder if some of those who voted the preacher a heretic are found sipping some sweets from his book.

The most noted theory of the author is that of pre-existence, beautifully told in the discourse on "Heavenly Fatherland," which would easily persuade if it only convinced us. But a far more prominent and important topic is the history of Satan and the relation of atonement and redemption to his devices and doings. In the discussion of various theories of the Atonement,—ancient, modern, Socinian, Old-school, New-school,—it is shown that the Great Adversary has gotten himself a good deal out of sight, and thereby much less heartily abhorred and deservedly hated. The Arch-rebel and deceiver has from the first, and long before his dethronement and downfall, managed to get sympathy for himself, and suspicion of God, as if he were incapable of grief, and nothing but a serene, heartless Potentate and Lord. This calumny could not be answered by a thunderbolt, smiting down the deceiver. It could only be met, and the sympathy of the universe be enlisted aright, in a method of forbearance and long-suffering, and that revealing the true heart of God and of all godlike and noble created beings. This revelation of the divine character culminates in the self-sacrifice and death of Christ, the effect of which is to sunder the last hold of Satan on the wavering confidence of angelic minds, and he falls, as lightning, from heaven.

This is during the second stage of "an ever deeper downfall" of the great Accuser. "Satan is cast out of heaven to earth, where he exercises yet free power. . . . The third period embraces the millennium. The enemy is bound, and as he was cast out of heaven to earth, so he is now cast into the bottomless pit and rendered harmless. After having been let loose awhile, he is, fourthly, judged, and cast for ever into the lake of fire." (Cited from Auberlen, on pp. 136, 137.)

In these discussions appears one most valuable feature of the book. It quickens and freshens the sense—sadly waning in too many minds—of personality in all real moral relations. Abstract truths or principles are inseparable from all theology, and they appear constantly in the book. But speculative theology, however true, may linger and languish in generalizations. Then it tries to die genteelly, and crystalizes in a splendid Pantheism, with its glittering, frosty light. By this light it appears that sin and holiness are equally blameless and praiseless, and then comes Naturalism, and what not.

Adventists say much of God's personality. And though we do not accept some of their definitions of personality, their expectation of events which signally indicate God's personal providence, plans, designs, government, and final reign, tabernacling with redeemed and sanctified men,—this expectation, if it appear with a godly life and conversation, must remind thoughtless or dreaming men of personal responsibilities to God which they are too ready to forget. This is one special mission of Adventism.

Such an Adventist is Mr. Beecher. And for vivid pictures of the beauty, grace, condescension, patience, justice, and love of God—all that is subduing and glorious in the divine character, we think not only Adventists but all who read this book must prize and love it.

C. F. H.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH, by D. T. Taylor. Within this volume of 416 pages are collected nearly seven hundred extracts, choice, pointed, argumentative, pathetic and pithy, selected from the writings of some four hundred of the greatest and most learned and pious men that the world has known in all ages. Their testimony here shows that Christ is to come, and that speedily; that he will reign on the new earth; that the modern churches have departed from the faith of their own founders and fathers on this point; and that the world's conversion is a modern fable. The books used in preparing this volume would cost thousands and thousands of dollars. A few copies of the seventh edition remain on hand. Price in elegant cloth $1.00, paper 50 cts., or with the other four volumes of the Bible Student's Library for $4.50 cloth, and $2.25 in paper, post paid. Those who want this book should order soon, as the edition is nearly gone. Three copies in paper will be sent to ministers or inquirers for $1.00. Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY.—I regard this work as an able exposition on the subject of which it treats, and think it ought to be in the hands of every family in this country; yes, in the world. GEO. H. EMERY.

Concord, N. H.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1864.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Our call upon subscribers in arrears has brought in a goodly number of responses the four weeks past. Many have paid up in full for past indebtedness, and in advance for the year to come, and have now the satisfaction of feeling that they are reading their own paper. But we have not heard from all.

In accordance, therefore, with previous notice, we shall, in a few days, commence the work of striking off the names of all persons owing $4.00 or more, from whom we have not heard. It will be an unpleasant task for us, but we shall have to do it, that the interests of the office and the paper may not suffer. They have received the benefit of its weekly visits for a number of years, without payment; and now, after so long a time, making no response to our repeated calls, we shall conclude that they do not wish the paper any longer, and are unable or unwilling (No! we take that back; we can not and do not believe there is one subscriber unwilling) to pay us that which is justly our due. They are merely dilatory,—that is all.

Come, friends and brethren, take your pen and write,—now. It may not be too late yet. It will, perhaps, be some days before we reach your name (in a list of seven thousand). Shall we not, in the meantime, hear from you?

THE TRACT FUND.

We are rejoiced to see so much interest in the tract fund. It is worthy of all the attention it has received. We have heard of great good already accomplished by means of these tract messengers. Let us keep them flying as angels of mercy. There is an increasing interest to read our tracts, and let us double our efforts to meet the demand. In a little while our money will be of no value. Let us devote a portion of our means for the special good of our fellow men; or, in other words, lend it to the Lord.

When we go where our tracts have been circulated, we always find some who are anxious to hear more. We have met many who have seen the light by the aid of the tracts. A few dollars scattered in tracts may be the means of turning many from the fables of these last days, and lead them to prepare for the future life. Dear reader, have you done all you can? Come, lend a helping hand, and let us do our whole duty in assisting to enlighten the darkness of these hours of peril. While many are giving liberally to sustain the war against the rebels, let us be as earnest to sustain the christian warfare against sin, and give as freely for its support. No sacrifice is too great to make for the eternal salvation of our fellow men. Let us see to it that the blood of none be required at our hands, because we withheld our gifts from the Lord. "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again."—Luke 6: 38. What a blessed promise,—"good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over." That is just like the Lord. He loves to see us liberal, and give cheerfully of what he intrusts to our care. Our Lord is very benevolent. Let us try to be more like him in this respect, and our blessings will be sweeter and richer.

We hope every reader will do something for the tract fund this year. Our time for work is nearly ended. Thousands are crying for the blessed truths we love so well; and which are of more value to us than all the world beside. Shall they have them?

VISIT TO DUBUQUE, IOWA.

We left the Okee campmeeting at 4 o'clock A. M., Sept. 19th, in company with Eld. P. W. Hough, of Canada, Iowa, Bro. and Sr. Dickenson, and Sr. Allen of the same place, and traveled by private conveyance twenty-three miles to Mazo Manie, where we had a nice breakfast at Bro. Daniel Warren's. There was a sharp frost on the night of the 18th, and we had quite a chilly ride, which made Bro. Warren's pilgrim home all the pleasanter. At Mazo Manie we were joined by Eld. J. R. Preston, Bro. Warren, Bro. and Sr. Pilcher, who traveled with us that day to Dodgeville, fifty-four miles from the camp-ground. Bro. Preston lives at Floyd, Floyd Co., Iowa. Our readers have noticed a letter from him in the Crisis of Sept. 6th. He formerly preached for the United Brethren, but is now rejoicing in the hope of the coming kingdom. He went one hundred and fifty miles to attend the Okee campmeeting, and mostly by private conveyance, excepting a number of miles on foot. We formed a pleasant acquaintance with him, and think him a true man, whose labors will be blessed in the vineyard of the Lord. It makes new men of those who see the "blessed hope;" and when they see it, it is so plain, they wonder they did not see it before.

Because of the light he has received and confessed, he has been pushed aside by his former brethren; but he loves the truth too well to give it up for a comfortable living. We trust the children of the Lord, who love his appearing, will give Bro. Preston their warm sympathies and hearty support. He who starts out now to preach the coming and kingdom of our Savior finds the cross a heavy one, even if he is well sustained by the church. Those who wish to enjoy a rich peace must be willing to practise self-denial and sacrifice, as well as those who leave all to sound the alarm to this last generation. He who withholds what he should give will find himself growing poor in spiritual things.

The Lord "loveth a cheerful giver." Let every one see that he does his part to sustain the faithful watchman; lest, when the Lord comes he shall say, "Depart from me, ye cursed, . . . for I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink; I was a stranger and ye took me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not." We shall not wish to be found in this sad condition at the coming of the Lord; but there is but one way of escape.

On our way from the campmeeting to Dubuque, we talked of sleeping in the woods, as do many others in the west during their long journeys. Some of our company did so; but as the nights were quite chilly, and we had only a shawl for covering, it was thought not best; but we had a good night's rest in a barn. We learned from Bro. Sheldon that he had more than once been obliged to sleep in the woods when going to his appointments. Our preaching brethren east know but little of the privations of those who labor in the new fields in the west. It is an excellent place for the true missionary, who really loves the Lord, and is willing to suffer with him; but no place for a "hireling." The field is all white for the harvest, and faithful men are very much needed. Who will go?

We stopped one night at Dodgeville, where there are lead mines of good quality. At Mineral Point, eight miles from Dodgeville, there is much activity in the lead mines. We took our second breakfast at this place, in a grove, by the road side. We had a nice time eating our unleavened bread, mush, milk, sugar and apples. Mineral Point is the pleasantest village, all things considered, that we have seen in the west. It is at the terminus of the Madison and Mineral Point R. R. It is a village in an elevated grove, and bids fair to become a place of much business, on account of its lead mines.

Beyond this we passed through a fine farming district of rolling prairie; but the crops are short this year. We spent our second night at Smeltzer Grove, and preached to a good audience on the inheritance of the saints. We received kind treatment and urgent requests for more meetings. We found none there who were looking for the coming and kingdom of Christ.

At about 5 P. M. we went on our way to Dubuque, the principal city of Iowa. We went up hill and down for thirteen miles, and arrived at the "Father of Waters"—the Mississippi—at 8 o'clock. The river is very low at the present time, and the steamboats are often run aground, occasioning much delay, and dissatisfaction to the travelers. We crossed the river at Dunleith, and found a pleasant home at Bro. T. E. Cooks, on the bluff, where we had a fine view of the river, the city, a portion of Wisconsin, Illinois, and Iowa. We felt quite at home in that romantic spot.

Considerable attention is paid to the working of lead mines in the vicinity of Dubuque. The city has about fifteen thousand inhabitants, some fine buildings, especially the custom house, which is not yet completed inside. There is no wood work employed in its construction.

We commenced our meetings Wednesday evening, in Globe Hall, on Maine street. We did not have a large audience the first evening, but an intelligent one, that listened with marked attention. Among them were two ministers and prominent members of churches.

Thursday morning we received a call from Bro. Himes, who was on his way up the river from a meeting at Burlington to a conference at Winona, Minn. He spoke of having an encouraging meeting at B. He found it a tedious journey up the river, on account of delays occasioned by low water. He was in good health, and in earnest about the work of his Master.

Our meetings continued to increase in interest from the commencement to the close. Some ministers and professional men came in, and other intelligent persons from different churches, as well as those who made no profession. Several asked questions on the subjects presented, and thus assisted in bringing the truth out more clearly. The great excitement in political and war matters keeps many from attending to their future interests, and causes many others to backslide from the Lord. We learn that christianity is in a very low state in Dubuque, as well as in most other places.

On Saturday evening we spoke on the subject of Spiritualism. Several asked questions on the subject, which added to the interest. Among the questioners was a Mr. Pinkham, the California delegate to the Chicago national convention of Spiritualists. He was under the influence of demons and spoke very earnestly. He is wholly given up to the control of the spirits. The spirit endeavored to terrify us, but made a great failure. Mr. Pinkham was out to hear during the next day, but his familiar spirit made no further manifestations through his medium. At noon, Mr. Pinkham came to us to apologise for his manner of speaking the night before, stating that it was not himself that was speaking, for in his natural state he was very mild; which appeared to be true, so far as we could judge. We gained some interesting information from him relative to the political organization which is soon to take place under the direction of the spirits. He is now traveling through our country to prepare the way. He claims to be acquainted with the man who is to stand at the head of affairs in this nation, but would not give his name. He says he is in New York, and is under spiritual teaching, preparatory for his coming high station. Mr. Pinkham claims to have had communications from Christ, and all the higher order of spirits. He is evidently a favorite among the demons.

A deep interest has been awakened in the minds of many in Dubuque, and very urgent requests were made by church members and prominent citizens for more preaching on the reasons of our hope. These were the first meetings of the kind that have been held in the city; but we trust they will not be the last. Although it was a hard spot to begin, especially at this time of the great political and war excitement, yet, before we finished our meetings, we met with warm sympathy from many noble hearts. We trust Satan will not uproot all the seed sown.

FEARFUL HEARTS.

Many are greatly troubled at the state of things in the world. Instead of the "good time coming," of which they have said so much, they find it receding further away. Their bright hopes are all blasted. They do not see these tokens as signs of the end of this dispensation, and the coming of Christ, as taught in the Scriptures. They wonder why there is such a sad state of things in our world. As they will not take heed to the "sure word of prophecy" in the Bible, they must go on wondering in darkness, till the day of the Lord bursts upon them as a thief.

Said H. B. Storer, when speaking in Lyceum Hall, Boston, "Darkness has gathered over the minds of the people, distrust and uncertainty everywhere prevail, and at the present moment, depressing fears creep over the hearts of many true but timid souls." This is in harmony with what Jesus said should transpire in the last days. Every jot and tittle of the prophetic scriptures are being most accurately fulfilled, thus giving unmistakeable evidence that Jesus is soon coming. But as the great event draws near, men are becoming more and more indifferent to religious interests. The same spirit that characterized the antediluvians and Sodomites is prevailing at the present time. The nearer we come to the end, the more the careless indifference increases, on the part of the masses, so far as obedience to the word of the Lord is concerned; yet they tremble at the signs of the times. If men would stop and think candidly, more might be reached; but Satan's policy is to keep them excited with passing events, so that they will have no time to attend to their future interests. Jesus has a special caution for these times,—"Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares."—Luke 21: 34. Let us who see the signs, take heed to the instruction of our Lord, and be ready to meet him in peace. If we take heed to the "sure word of prophecy," we shall not walk in darkness, neither will that day overtake us as a thief.

What a solemn hour is the one in which we are living. Soon it will be decided who shall live for ever and possess the heavenly kingdom.

THURMAN'S CHRONOLOGY.

The Chronology of Bro. Thurman is one of thrilling interest to the Bibel student, and especially to those who believe in the speedy, personal coming of Christ. We are delighted with its thoroughness and simplicity. It is no mere echo of some one else. He has been to the very bottom of the subject, pointed out errors in other chronologies, where none suspected them, which has thrown great light upon the subject. The beauty and strength of his system lies in the fact that he does not have to make a crooked road through the history of the past in order to arrive at his conclusions. He did not go to work to sustain any one's theory of chronology, but examined the subject as though nothing was ever known about it before. As he expected, when he began, to overturn the Bible by finding chronological contradictions, he resolved to believe nothing but what could be clearly proved by the most reliable evidence. His is no speculative system of guess work, but one based upon careful astronomical observations in the calculation of eclipses, and a very thorough examination of the historical evidences connected therewith.

Another remarkable feature of this chronology is the exactness of the commencing and terminating points of the prophetic periods. There is no chance for any sliding scale as in other systems. Every date seems to be fixed, so as to leave no chance to put it any where else. And then, what is better still, it is based on a harmonious arrangement of the Scripture, such as we have never before seen. And besides all this, there is a deep vein of common sense in his arguments, which commends the whole to the candid understanding.

After reading this work, we are led to wonder at past mistakes, when the truth, as it now appears, is so much more simple and plain; but the whole is accounted for on the principle that the time had not then come for unsealing the prophetic periods.

No one will be able to overthrow, or correct, Bro. Thurman's Chronology but an astronomer, who can carefully estimate all the eclipses; because he has pointed out errors in other systems by making these calculations himself, and by detecting errors in Ptolemy's Canon, which has been received as the basis of the different systems of chronology, made out by modern writers. What they have considered as their Gibraltar rock, and invulnerable defense, he proves to be entirely unreliable, and erroneous; and when the errors of Ptolemy's Canon are corrected, every thing comes into harmony, so that the seventy weeks of Daniel 9: 24, and the twenty-three hundred days in Daniel 8: 14, begin at the same time.

Soon we propose to lay the argument before our readers. We hope all will get the book and examine it for themselves. For sale at this office. Price, $1.50. Postage, 20 cents.

Our Tract Column.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$261.43
A friend pd	1.00
J. C. Hall pd	.18
C. S. Sherman pd	100.00
Emma Devinnay pd	.25
Enoch Woodruff pd	.50
Sarah Proctor pd	.25

DEAR BRO. GRANT:—I see by the Crisis that you are receiving subscriptions for a new Tract Fund; also for the Poor Fund, to pay for sending the Crisis to the poor. Enclosed you will find draft for $110.00. For the Tract Fund, $100.00; for the Poor Fund, $10.00.

The Lord has been both merciful and good to me and mine, and prospered us, and is constantly laying me under new obligations to sustain his cause; and, having given me means instead of talents, I must give of such as he has given. Truly your Bro. in Christ,

Castleton, Vt. C. S. SHERMAN.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$53.42
Louis Reimer pd	2.00
L. Tuttle pd	.50
J. Q. Moulton pd	.25
W. F. Knowlton pd	4.00
C. S. Sherman pd	10.00
Emily L. Marsh pd	2.50
L. S., a free subscriber pd	1.00
G. L., " " pd	.63

HOW SHALL IT BE RAISED?

A Fund of $1000 or $2000, to pay for the 800 papers sent to the Lord's poor. How shall it be raised? The plan suggested by us some months since, appears to embrace the best possible means of accomplishing this object that we know of.

1. Let every church ascertain the number of worthy poor within its own bounds who receive the paper without charge; and then, by quarterly, half-yearly, or yearly contributions, raise enough to pay for the same.

2. As the larger part of our free subscribers are isolated and alone, in places where there are no churches to aid them, let funds for such be raised in each State by each State Conference, at its quarterly or annual sessions; and

3. Let the balance, which shall not be provided for in these two ways, be met by individual donations from the brethren at large, to the general fund.

Let this plan be promptly and faithfully acted upon, and the office will be relieved from the unpleasant necessity of cutting off the worthy poor; and they who generously and liberally contribute from their abundance to the spiritual wants and comfort of their less favored brethren, will enjoy the pleasure that springs from doing good, and be rewarded with a multitude of thanks and blessings from a thousand grateful hearts, and the "Well done!" of the Master when he comes.

To enable the faithful and kind-hearted stewards of the Lord's money to carry out the plan proposed, we give below, for the information of churches in this State, the number of free papers (130 in all) sent to the poor in Massachusetts, and shall follow with other States hereafter. Shall we not have, at once, a hearty and liberal response to the wants of the Lord's poor?

The Massachusetts Free List.

Amherst	1	Lynn	4
Adams (North)	4	Mattapoisett	1
Attleboro (North)	1	Middleboro (South)	1
Ashleyville	1	Natick	1
Athol	1	New Bedford	2
Athol Depot	1	Newburyport	1
Ashburnham Depot	2	Newton Upper Falls	1
Acushnet	1	Northfield	2
Boston	6	Norton	1
Blackstone	1	Northbridge Centre	1
Boston (East)	4	Otis Centre	2
Brimfield	1	Oxford (North)	1
Brighton (East)	1	Palmer	3
Cambridge	1	Plainfield	1
Chelsea	2	Pelham	1
Carver	1	Princeton (East)	1
Chester	1	Plymouth	2
Chester (North)	1	Raynham	1
Chelmsford	1	Reading	1
Chicopee Falls	2	Rehoboth	1
Clinton	1	Royalston	1
Coleraine	1	Salem	3
Cold Spring	1	Savoy	4
Dana (North)	3	Sandisfield	2
Essex	1	Sheffield	1
Fairmount	1	Springfield	2
Feeding Hills	1	Stoughton	1
Feltonville	1	Three Rivers	1
Fitchburg	1	Townsend	1
Greenfield	1	Truro	1
Groton	1	Truro (North)	1
Hadley (South)	1	Upton	1
Haverhill	1	Ware	2
Hadley Falls (South)	1	Wales	1
Hawley (West)	1	Walpole	2
Holden	3	West Wareham	1
Holliston	1	Westfield	1
Holliston (East)	1	Westford	2
Holland	1	Wrentham	1
Huntington	1	Wilbraham	2
Jenksville	1	Winchendon	1
Lawrence	1	Worcester	5
Lowell	5	Worthington	1

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

In response to our call upon our free subscribers to hear from them, we are receiving many interesting and touching letters from the poor, the sick and the infirm, the lame and the blind, full of thanks for the favor of the Crisis so many years without charge, and praying for its continuance. They speak of the good it has done them, and the good which they are trying to do and have done with it. They are, most of them, alone, among strangers to their faith, with no sympathizing brethren near to commune with and take counsel together; and the Crisis gives them comfort and strength, and cheers their weary pilgrimage with light and joy. Read their letters, brethren, and say—shall we be compelled to stop the source from which they receive so much good, or will you be the Lord's almoner to them, and have it said to you at last,—"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

FROM AN AGED BRO. IN VERMONT.

I am an old man in my seventy-fifth year. I commenced taking the Crisis when it was first issued, and paid for it until about five years ago. Then I wrote to you, saying my circumstances were such that I was not able to take it unless you could afford to send it on the free list. The paper continued to come, so I concluded it was sent free. I am a poor man, hardly able to support my family, and am not able to pay for the paper; yet it has ever been a welcome visitor in my family, and I have always taken pains to let my neighbors read it, so that, perhaps, through my humble endeavors, it might do good. But, however much I may regret my inability to pay for it, I desire you to understand that, unless it comes free, it must be discontinued.

Yours respectfully, GEORGE ——.

FROM A POOR SISTER IN BETHANY.

I thought it my duty to write and let you know that I would most gladly pay if I could, but I see no way that I can. I love the Crisis; it is all the preaching I have. I do not know how to get along without it, but, if you cannot send it free, I must try to do without it. My husband is lame, not able to work. Last summer I took my babe of seven months and went out washing, to help feed my family. Last winter stern necessity compelled me to cut the most of my wood. This summer I have the rheumatism in my arms so I can scarcely do my own work. I sometimes feel discouraged, but not forsaken, for I trust I have a Friend who has promised he will never leave nor forsake me.

As I wrote you before, I thought if I was too poor to pay for the Crisis myself, it was my duty to try to get others to take it who could pay for it. I have lent my papers, and have said, "When you have read it, hand it to your neighbor." In that way each of my papers has been through three or four families. I have scattered the tracts you so kindly sent to me. I remembered that Paul planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase, and I prayed that God would accompany each little messenger of truth. I am happy to say that three of our Methodist brethren are reading the Bible, as they term it, "in a common-sense light." Bless the Lord! One of them has promised to take the Crisis the next volume. I hope to send all three of their names.

Your sister in affliction, ELIZA ——.

FROM A SISTER IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

I see by the last Crisis that you want to hear from your free subscribers within a few weeks. I am one of the number. You have sent it to me without price for a year, for which I feel very grateful, and thank you with all my heart. I wish I was able to send the money for the past, and also for the future. I cannot, neither can I expect you to send it to me any longer at the rate it has come. Yet I do not see how I can part with it, for I have taken it ever since it was started, and we have been friends for so many years, we hate to part with it. Mother says she cannot do without it. She is seventy-one years old, and not able to go out to meetings, and this is all the preaching she has. But I am not able to take it now; hope I shall be some time. But whether it be sent or not, it shall have my prayers. I do hope and believe the Lord will prosper it; he always has, and always will. Yours with the best of wishes, MARY ——.

FROM A SISTER IN BURLINGTON.

A sister writes in behalf of a poor brother thus:—"Bro. H.'s circumstances are such that he cannot pay now. He is poor, and has but one hand. He lost his hand two years ago in a threshing machine, yet he has managed to take care of his family since, and wants the paper very much, and says he will pay for it as soon as he can. He is one of the Lord's poor. He lives in a place where there are no meetings, and the Crisis is all the preaching he has. It does seem as if he ought to have the paper, but if he cannot have it free, he says you may stop it."

FROM A FREE SUBSCRIBER in Suffolk County, who wishes now to become a paying subscriber:

BRO. GRANT:—Through the influence of Bro. S—, you have sent me the World's Crisis the past year and a half free, for which I send you my thanks, and one dollar besides. Please take my name from the free list, and add it to the paying one, as I wish now to become a paying subscriber. Will send more soon. Gratefully yours, L——.

FROM ANOTHER IN MICHIGAN.

Jesus says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things [that is, food and raiment] shall be added unto you." Now, believing as I do that the Crisis is a help in attaining unto the kingdom of God, and obtaining the righteousness of God, I have concluded it duty to pay for it, and trust the Lord for the fulfillment of the promise, "All these things shall be added." The times are hard, but it does not cost the Lord any more to feed his children now than it did five years ago. O, for more faith! We shall need more faith to endure unto the end. (Enclosed $2.50.)

IMPORTANT TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Now is the time for subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to save money. "How?"

By settling up their accounts, and paying in advance, with gold or Provincial bank bills.

A Canadian one dollar bill is worth two dollars here; and, FOR EVERY SUCH $1.00 SENT US, WE WILL GIVE $2.00 CREDIT, more or less, according to the current rates of premium.

The premium on gold and on Canadian bills, is falling. Not long since, the value of $1.00 of such money was as high as $2.87; it is now about $2.00. In a few weeks, it will doubtless fall very much below that, and a few more Union victories may bring it down to par.

Now is the time. Improve it! Pay up your indebtedness, with half the amount due; and, for two years in advance, with the price for one year; or, for one year, with the price for six months. Don't let the opportunity pass. You may never have another.

Gold, at the latest quotations to-day (Monday), is $1.90. Canada Bank Bills $1.85.

For the World's Crisis.

GOOD NEWS FROM W. NEW YORK.

Bro. P. A. Smith writes from Rochester, Sept. 27th:—"I have just returned from holding a meeting of one week in Orleans county, noticed in my last, and as I had reason from appearances to expect great results, I am not disappointed. The power of God was manifest; the strongest infidel minds were made to yield to the claims of the Bible, and give an experience that was startling to all who heard it. There is no undue excitement, but a deep, melting, powerful work of the Spirit of God pervades the whole community. All, small and great, old and young, are sharing in the blessings of the converting power of God.

The work is so powerful and universal, that a deacon in the Baptist church, after having forbid the minister to give out my appointment and said some hard things against me, was prevailed on to come and hear. The second evening he came. So many sinners rose for prayers (a sight to make devils quake and angels rejoice), he was so convicted of his wrong course, that he came to the meeting the next morning at 9 o'clock, and there, with sobs and tears, confessed that he had done wrong, and asked my forgiveness and the Lord's. O what a heavenly, melting time that was!

In the same meeting, a very influential man, one of the most prominent in the place, who has been an infidel for years, reading infidel books, taking infidel papers, arose and spoke. He had been building a castle, he said, in which he had taken refuge, and which he had supposed would stand all that could be brought against it; but now all was gone, demolished,—the hay, wood and stubble he had been building for so many years. Now, he saw something to live for; and then, with tears and entreaties, he called on his neighbors to come along with him and help get into the kingdom.

We have the Baptist church. Almost all the members have come out into the work, and taken hold in earnest, speaking, praying, rejoicing, and throwing open their houses to the pilgrims engaged in the work.

The work in this place is the most remarkable of any that I ever saw. The people hear the word of the kingdom gladly, and believe and rejoice in it. I go back again Monday, Oct. 10th, to continue the meetings. My health is very poor, yet the Lord does bless the word and me, and I do hope yet to see many more converted to God. Pray for me."

ITALIAN MISSION.

Mary Christenson pd	$1.00
F. B. Jones pd	3.00
Mrs. M. Litchenthaler pd	1.00
D. Cogswell pd	5.00
J. Ingersoll pd	1.00
L. M. Stedman pd	.50
Cyrus Rowe pd	1.00
G. W. Johnson pd	3.00

FROM ITALY

[EXTRACT from private letter to Bro. H. L. Hastings.]

BRO. HASTINGS:—I learn by news received from the U. S. a few days since that the price of gold is now $2.60. I suppose it is for this reason that contributions of the brethren have not been sent me. We are in great need of assistance, having been living entirely on credit since our arrival here; and the mission will suffer much unless I receive it very soon. Had I $100 in gold, I could start the business here of Photography, and work at it for the present during the day, and thus help much and preach at the same time in the evenings. Will not some good Bro. who has the ability advance me immediately this amount, to free us from the embarrassment of our present bad situation, and wait for the contributions of dear brethren to be reimbursed?

I am your Bro., M. B. CZECHOWSKI.

La Tour Pelice, via. Turin, Italy, Sept. 1st, 1864.

☞ Let us hear what the brethren have to say about this matter. Two hundred dollars in greenbacks will now purchase about $100 in gold. We wish to remit soon whatever the friends desire to bestow. H. L. HASTINGS.

☞ The Tent meeting at Mechanic's Falls, Me., continues this week. We then pitch the Big Tent in Norway, near So. Paris, Me., next week, and go to Canaan, Vt., the week following, if the Lord will. H. L. H.

CORRECTION.—In Bro. Green's communication of Sept. 20th, second paragraph, twelfth line, read—"That Lazarus came forth dead, and was raised from the dead afterwards, is rendered certain," etc.

Correspondence.

From Bro. S. C. Wellcome.

DEAR BRN. AND SRS.—I am still striving to do the will of my Master, though it is in weakness that I climb the rugged hills of time; yet I have an ever present Helper, one who is my stay and staff, my comforter in affliction, my refuge in the storm, and my hope in the end of the race. Thus supported my faith fails not, but looks upward to the beacon light held out for the weary pilgrim, and through all the thick gloom now hovering over the earth, sees the smiling face of the Lamb of Calvary, and seems to hear him say, "Behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me." This faith cheers my sometimes almost desponding heart, and I am led to look up and rejoice that my redemption draweth nigh.

I praise God for the signs laid down in his word by which we may plainly understand the near approach of the coming of our blessed Savior. But the solemn question comes home to the heart—Am I prepared to meet him? Have I the wedding garment, and am I standing ready to see the last sign of the Son of man in heaven, when, as with a lightning's flash, the world shall be lit up with his glory, while a voice is heard throughout earth's wide domain—"Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him"? How many times have I asked myself these solemn questions, and my cry is, "Lord, help, or I perish!" The flesh is weak but the spirit is willing. But thou art my hiding-place in the time of thy indignation. Here I rest and with confidence look upward and say,

> Come, O my Savior, come,
> And bid my heart rejoice:
> I long to see my palace home,
> And hear my Father's voice.

Again my heart is cheered by the weekly communications in the Crisis, while I find that there are so many in these perilous times that can look through the thick darkness and see the light betokening the coming of Jesus, and thank God that their numbers are increasing, that many are waking up to this subject. O that God would sanctify his people and touch the tongues of his servants as with a live coal from off his altar, that as they speak their words may burn, till the hearts of the perishing are reached, and they flee to the ark of refuge for safety.

Truly we are living in perilous times, and my heart is often made sad beholding the situation of the professed church of God. All is darkness. Scarce any that sigh and mourn on account of the desolations that have come upon us. The godly man has ceased. The church and the world are wedded together. They can eat, drink, and frolic at their feasts, but cannot pray, cannot find time to attend the social prayer or conference meeting. May God pity them and open their eyes to see their true condition.

Our numbers in this place that are looking for the blessed hope are few, and we are so scattered we cannot often meet together. We have had no Advent preaching until Bro. Wm. Sweet came here last winter. He labored faithfully and preached some twelve sermons,—searching and powerful they were, and many were made to feel. But it is an unpopular thing to come out in these days and follow Christ. The good seed was sown, and I trust will bring forth much fruit to the glory of God.

I superintend a Sunday school and try in my weak way, with God's help, to get light before the rising generation. We have about one hundred scholars, and I hope that many of them will be found looking for Jesus when he comes. Brethren and sisters, let us have on the whole armor of God and fight manfully in the cause of God a little longer. Soon all our toils will cease.

S. C. Wellcome.

Garden City, Minn., Aug. 8th, 1864.

From Bro. S. and Sr. L. Bragg.

To all the dear saints scattered:—As we can not write you all separately, will say to all, through the Crisis, we are about to leave for England. We may have enjoyed our last interviews together in this state of things; yet we feel it duty to go, so we will try and obey the Lord in all things, and gain the blest reward. It is hard to leave you all behind, but we are not the first that have experienced this sadness. But we part with the expectation of meeting again soon to part no more forever. Things are speaking in thunder tones that the Lord is soon coming to take the weary pilgrims home.

"O let us be ready to hail the glad day!"

We are thankful that in the providence of the Lord we came to this country and received the light and truth of Jesus' coming in '44, and still new light in '54 (thank the Lord for the light on the kingdom, and many other precious truths contained in the Bible); and now have the privilege of going to our native land to preach those truths, where they are earnestly calling, Come over and help us! The Lord help.

Dear children, you will do well to give heed to the sure word of prophecy, until the day dawn and the day-star arise in our hearts; when commences the morning watch, in which all the dear children will receive deliverance. We are now having the last signs. Zeph. 1: 14–18; Luke 21: 25, 26; Rev. 11: 18. Daniel's time of trouble is coming. Dan. 12: 1. It is just before us. Let us be courageous, and never look back; but heed the counsel of Christ, to remember Lot's wife. Luke 17: 32, 33; Luke 21: 34, 36. Let us not be forgetful. Please read Heb. 10: 32–39; Jas. 5: 7–12; Rom. 13: 11, 14, 17. This belongs to us. We would meet you in the kingdom, but, to be numbered with the saved, we must be found living out Peter's instructions. 2 Pet. 1: 3–11. Pray for us.

Direct letters to St. Meryn, near Padstow, Co. Cornwall, England. In much love,

Samuel & L. W. Bragg.

Camden, Aug. 10th.

From Bro T. L. Waugh.

Bro. Grant:—* * * I mean to take the Crisis every year, as it is in all respects the best, and the cheapest, (containing the amount of reading matter it does), of any paper I know of. Its principles are pure gospel truth, which I love, and not the fables of these last days. I am sick of reading nothing but war, war, in other papers, encouraging men to go and fight and kill their enemies, when Christ has commanded us to love them. And I love the Crisis because it takes the word of God for our guide and shows us plainly where we are. I consider it next to the Bible, and wish to have its circulation largely increased. I will try to get one or more subscribers. I sympathize with you in your labors of love, and pray God that Heaven's richest blessings may descend upon you while engaged in your arduous labors for the salvation of souls and welfare of mankind.

I had the blessed privilege of attending for the first time the Wilbraham campmeeting. I felt it was a good place. Had the opportunity which I never had elsewhere of commemorating the sacrament, which affected me to tears, as I thought of the sufferings and death of the dear Savior. I shall look back to Wilbraham with pleasant recollections, and if we never should meet there again I hope we shall meet on the new earth, never to give the parting hand to friends we hold dear. By the grace of God I will endure unto the end, come what may. I have counted the cost, and I am bound for the kingdom. I have determined to serve God purely from principle, if I never have feeling, although I can not say I really enjoy religion only at times. I believe the devil is trying to make me think I am deceiving myself, as I have sometimes feared, but I will take your advice to "give my fears to the winds and my heart to God."

Morris, Ct. T. L. Waugh.

From Bro. W. A. Sawin.

Bro. Grant:—I am a young follower of Christ, looking and hoping for the eternal home of the saints. I have been traveling the good road nearly three years. Have met with trials and temptations, and have fallen under some of them, but the good Lord called after me and raised me upon the solid rock, Christ Jesus. How good the Lord is! I praise him with all my strength, and hope I shall have an entrance into his holy kingdom, where I shall sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to go no more out forever, and where I shall walk the golden streets of that holy City, New Jerusalem, where I shall see Christ, and be made like him. O, brethren and sisters, who are looking forward to that heavenly kingdom, be faithful, watch and pray, and be of good cheer; for we shall soon be gathered into rest to go no more out forever. Your brother in Christ,

Jamaica Plain. Wm. A. Sawin.

From Sr. S. E. Teeple.

Bro. Grant:—I would say to the children, the battle goes well, and I am bound for the kingdom, and mean to be faithful till the Master appeareth, that he may say, Well done!

We are living in perilous times, and it stands us in hand to be watchful and prayerful, and not drink into any spirit but the Spirit of Christ. Many spirits there are in the world, but none bear the spirit of the Master but those that possess the fruits of the Spirit, and oh! how often my heart is made sad when I see how fast wickedness is on the increase. How little vital godliness there is in the land. I mean to be among the pure in heart, for only such will see the King in his beauty, and be made like him. I enjoy the peace the world knows nothing of, and have the evidence I am a child of God. Blessed thought! Praise the name of Jesus, for his mercy and goodness to me. Although alone and not much to comfort and encourage, Jesus is with me. I feel his presence round about me. I love his word and truth. I value the Crisis, even if it cost a little more. Amen. I must have it, and will, as I have many times said, if I have to go without one meal a day. And then there are the poor. Well, here is my mite to be put in the "poor fund;" and I know the Lord loveth a cheerful giver, and it is accepted, according to what a man hath, not what he hath not.

The Lord bless you, dear children, and help you to do the will of the Master. Your sister in Christ,

Susan E. Teeple.

From Bro. J. Watkins.

Bro. Grant:—I have read about one dozen of your papers. I like them very much,—the best religious paper I have ever seen. I would be pleased to attend one of your meetings. If any of your preachers ever travel on the Little Miami R. R.,* and can conveniently stop at Morrow, will please let me know a short time before, and I will get a house for them to speak in. I am a member of the Christian church, commonly called Campbellite. The nearest church is twelve miles distant. I also attend our meeting occasionally at New Antioch, Clinton Co., O. Some of our members are readers of your paper, and are very much interested with it, especially those that believe in christians standing aloof from engaging in war. Yours in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes,

Jas. Watkins.

Morrow, Warren Co., O.

* The Little Miami R. R. runs from Columbus, O., to Cincinnati.

From T. W. Piper.

Bro. Grant:—Knowing that you and others who were to the Alton campmeeting will be anxious to hear from any of the dear youth who there for the first time made up their minds to seek and serve God, I would say that among them was my son, a daughter of Bro. Ladd, and a daughter of Bro. Hodsdon, all of whom I had the pleasure yesterday of burying in the likeness of Christ's death and raising in the likeness of his resurrection. Blessed fruits of our meeting! May God bless all that started then, and help them to be faithful. Yours in hope,

T. W. Piper.

Melvin Village, Sept. 26th.

Fron Bro. T. W. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—We have just finished a meeting at Alden, (Iowa.) Had good congregations. One lady was baptized into Christ for remission of sins. The cause is prospering, but the prospect of doing much good looks dark. The war engrosses all minds. O that the Prince of Peace would come. We have no sympathy with the war spirit, and cannot look for its death till Christ comes.

Your Bro. in Christ, Thos. W. Smith.

Sept. 1st, 1864.

Obituaries.

Mary Reynolds.

Died in Lee, N. H., Aug. 26th, 1864, of a good old age, Sister Mary Reynolds, aged ninety years.

For years in the past you could see at George E. Durgin's, four generations living quietly together. Grandma Reynolds was one of that generation that are not to pass away till the coming of the Lord. She saw the sun darkened in 1780, and did not expect to sleep in Jesus before she saw the Savior coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. She was one of the lovers of Jesus' coming, and it was her pleasure to talk about and anticipate the glorious consummation of "that blessed hope" which will give immortality and rest. She was like a shock of corn fully ripe.

But the tyrant death has conquered, and she has been buried with her fathers to wait till the warfare of the church is over, when the angels in gathering the elect from the four winds will find grandma among the jewels, and life eternal will be given her.

The funeral was attended by the writer, in the Union meeting-house, Sunday afternoon, where a large congregation listened attentively to a discourse from 2 Tim. 4: 6–8.

I would commend the children and grand children to the same heavenly Instructor, hoping they will experimentally learn the same blessed lessons of faith, patience and endurance on the pilgrimage, and be welcomed to the same christian's rest.

L. Boutell.

Freeman K. Parsons.

Died in Fremont, Sept. 10th, Freeman K. Parsons, son of Levi and Lydia E. Parsons, aged thirteen years, three months, and twenty-four days.

His disease was diphtheria, assuming its worst form. He was sick about two weeks, in which time he suffered a great deal of pain; but he bore it all without a murmur. Freeman was a good boy, of a naturally sober, reflecting turn of mind. Had a great regard for religious matters, and took much delight in reading the Bible, "Pilgrim," "Crisis," etc. He was taken sick in my absence from home, and died about nine hours before my return. It seemed hard to be denied the privilege of seeing the dear fellow before his death, but so it was to be. He retained his reason throughout his entire sickness, and his mind was quite clear in regard to the future. His mother commenced, in the early part of his illness, to direct his mind to the Savior as the only source of pardon and peace; and, with words suited to his capacity, counseled him as to a state of preparation. As a result, he expressed a hope in the Redeemer, and said if he should get well he meant to live a christian.

But he had to go. A family circle of six children must be broken, and friends left to weep. But we sorrow not without hope. We hope soon to meet again, no more to part forever.

L. Parsons.

Cora Fogg.

Died in Morris, Aug. 31st, Cora, youngest child of Nicholas H. and Maria A. Fogg, aged two years and eight months.

Little Cora was the pet of our household, but the enemy has been here, and she is not; truly we feel,

"The fairest, brightest, best of earth,
Are labeled for the tomb."

She had always been a very healthy child up to the hour she was taken sick. She was soon after taken with convulsions, and lived about four days and a half. I have heard of patient suffering, but in her I saw a living example of it. Not once did she cry, not once did she refuse to take any medicine. We humbled ourselves before God. We agonized in prayer, but no faith was given. I had hoped to so live and serve God that my little ones would be spared till Jesus comes; but I now look forward to the resurrection with renewed fervor, for I have a treasure there. "The wicked flourisheth like a green bay tree. But he whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and he scourgeth every son and daughter whom he receiveth." This is our consolation in this our affliction. M. A. Fogg.

Eddie Bates.

Died in South Livermore, Me., July 27th, 1864, Eddie G., only child of Thomas A. and Frances Bates, aged one year, ten months, and twenty-seven days.

The family are deeply afflicted, yet they have hope that he will come again from the land of the enemy. Words of comfort in the occasion by the writer. E. M. Haggett.

Freddie Boothby.

Died in South Livermore, of diphtheria, Sept. 15th, 1864, Freddie D., son of Charles H. and Betsey W. Boothby, aged eight years, three months, twenty-three days.

He was a good child, and much loved by those who knew him. He said to his parents just before he died, "I think the Lord has forgiven my sins, and I am willing to die." May the hope of the gospel sustain the parents, grandparents, and children, and when the Savior comes, find them all prepared to meet him. Text used on the occasion, 2 Kings 4: 26.

"Sleep on, dear Freddie, take thy rest,
Till God shall bid thee rise;
No mortal cares shall seize thy breast,
Nor tears bedim thine eyes."

E. M. Haggett.

Asa Delano.

Died in Livermore, Sept 12th, 1864, of heart disease, Asa G., youngest son of Jesse and Sarah Delano, aged fourteen years and five months.

He was a boy that I never heard speak an unkind or wicked word. His death was peaceful, a smile lighting up his countenance. The family are deeply afflicted, but they sorrow not as those that have no hope. They expect to see him again when he awakes in the resurrection morning. Discourse by the writer from John 11: 25.

"When those we love are snatched away
By death's resistless hand,
Our hearts the mournful tribute pay
That friendship must demand.

O! let us to that Savior fly
Whose arm alone can save;
Then shall our hopes ascend on high,
And triumph o'er the grave."

E. M. Haggett.

Ebenezer G. Curtis.

Died in Goffstown, N. H., Sept. 7th, 1864, of cholera, Ebenezer G. Curtis, aged sixty-three years, nine months, and eleven days.

He was willing to lie and sleep awhile. He praised the Lord many times the day he was sick. But he is gone, and a wife and six children are left to mourn. O, may the good Lord help us all to meet him on the new earth, where death will be known no more.

S. E. Saulpaugh.

Israel Potter.

Died suddenly in Ashland Village, Scituate, R. I., Sept. 10th, Israel Potter, in the sixty-first year of his age.

Funeral discourse by the writer, from 1 Sam. 20: 3,—"There is but a step between me and death."

Wm. S. Devereux.

MARRIED.

In Salem, Mass., August 23d, by Eld. Rufus Wendell, Mr. George W. Peach to Miss Lizzie J. Thompson, both of Salem.

Also, by the same, in Salem, Aug. 28th, Mr. Francis A. Ballard to Miss Hannah J. Clark, both of Salem.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

[Advices of the 15th inst.]

It is stated that Denmark, encouraged by the Western Powers, refuses the cession of North Schleswig unless sanctioned by the votes of the people.

The resignation of the Spanish Minister has been accepted.

TWO DAYS LATER.

It is stated that Napoleon is about to join the Empress Eugenia in Germany, which would probably lead to an interview between the French, Russian and Prussian Sovereigns.

Captain Speke, the African traveler, has been accidentally killed.

The Wazeze Zeitung affirms that the supposed privateer, "New Alabama," at Bremerhaven, has been purchased by Prussia for the navy.

A late telegram states that the government of Montevideo has refused the ultimatum addressed to it by Brazil with a view to the pacification of the republic of Uraguay, and that armed intervention by Brazil was consequently expected.

The Daily News says there can be no cordiality in the future relations of France with the United Sates if McClellan is elected, as he is known to be a strong anti-imperialist.

JAPAN.

The Paris Moniteur reports that the English government in Japan had summoned the Japanese government to remove within twenty days all obstructions to the navigation of the Straits of Suoniske, caused by the fortifications which Prince Nagate constructed. If the command is not complied with the fortifications would be attacked.

THREE DAYS LATER.

Paris intelligence is to the effect that it seems certain that arrangements have been made between Paris and Italy for the solution of the Roman question.

The Czar of Russia would visit the Emperor of the French at Schulmalbach on the 21st.

SPAIN.

The new ministry has been formed. It announces a conciliatory policy.

SCHLESWIG.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Allies in Schleswig has issued a proclamation against the circulation of signatures under the penalty of rigorous martial law. This is to prevent the getting up of addresses from the northern Schleswigers praying against a separation from Denmark.

AUSTRIA.

The Emperor has gone to Hungary on a military visit.

ITALY.

The Turin journals were discussing the question of the removal of the Italian capital to Florence. The Opinione says if a removal is necessary to the solution of the Roman question, the Government cannot refuse.

DOMESTIC.

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—On the recommendation of the Mayor Gen. Rosecrans has suspended all business after 12 o'clock to-morrow, to organize the citizens for defense. Exempts are invited to join.

Gen. Rosecrans has also issued an appeal to the citizens of Missouri to take up arms in defense of their homes and to repel the invaders. All the employees in the Quartermaster's Department are to be armed and organized, and the entire militia of the State is to be called into the field.

The Tribune's Harper's Ferry correspondent of the 27th says the completeness of the surprise of the rebels at Fisher's Hill may be imagined from the fact that the guns were all loaded to the muzzle with grape and canister, but Gen. Crook's charge was so impetuous and rapid that the rebels did not get time to discharge them. The losses of the rebels in the recent fight, as reported by a government official sent to ascertain the facts, are as follows:

Arrived at Harper's Ferry, including 203 officers, 3100; wounded at Winchester, 2200; captured between Fisher's Hill and Woodstock, 2200; wounded carried off by the rebels estimated at 1700; wounded at roadside houses estimated at 1000; killed and wounded by cavalry in Luray Valley, 350. Total, 10,550.

New York, Sept. 27. Speaking of the reported peace negotiations in Georgia, the Evening Post says: "Gen. Sherman, we are authorized to say, will not negotiate except upon terms precedent of an unconditional submission of the rebels to the Government of the Union, the fullest acknowledgment of its rights, and an open admission that the war against the Union was what Alexander H. Stephens declared it would be in 1860, 'a blunder and a crime.'"

The Post says if Georgia will agree to these preliminaries, Sherman will meet them frankly and cheerfully.

The Post's Washington special dispatch says: "Dispatches from Luray Valley report Early's army thoroughly demoralized. The inhabitants of that region were extremely confident that Fisher's Hill could not be taken. Since Sheridan's battle the rebels despair of recovering the Valley."

Headquarters, Chapin's Farm,
10.45 A. M., Sept. 29, '64.

To Maj. Gen. Halleck:

Gen. Ord's corps advanced this morning and carried the very strongly fortified line of entrenchments between Chapin's Farm, with some 15 pieces of artillery, and from 200 to 300 prisoners.

Gen. Ord was wounded, though not dangerously. Gen. Birney advanced at the same time from Deep Bottom, and carried the New Market road and entrenchments, and scattered the enemy in every direction, though he captured but few. He is now marching on toward Richmond.

I left Gen. Birney where the Mill road intercepts the Newmarket and Richmond road. This whole country is filled with field fortifications thus far.

(Signed) U. S. Grant,
Lieutenant-General.

(Signed) E. M. Stanton,
Secretary of War.

The Herald's Headquarters Army of the Potomac dispatch, dated 29th, says that the army is in motion and that its operations for the next few days will be of a most important character. The men are in the finest spirits and feel equal to a strong undertaking.

Gen. Banks is succeeded in command by Maj. Gen. Stephen N. Herbert.

New York, Sept. 30. The Herald's Harper's Ferry correspondent of the 29th says: At last accounts received here Gen. Sheridan's advance was near Staunton, picking up Early's men. They no longer show fight, but are completely dispirited, and consider the confederacy used up. They say Early narrowly escaped capture at Fisher's Hill in trying to rally his men against Gen. Crook's charge.

Gen. Devin, with three small regiments, pursued the flying rebels all night and also next day, capturing prisoners constantly.

New York, Sept. 30. The World's Washington dispatch says it is believed there that Petersburg has been or is being evacuated, and that Gen. Grant has taken advantage of this fact to make his movement on the right. He has succeeded in effectually deceiving Lee as to his real intentions.

He made every possible demonstration on his left, massing troops, holding the Weldon railroad, and running the City Point railroad close up to the new line, making the rebels look for the next movement in that quarter.

Suddenly the programme is changed, Gen. Grant masses troops on the right, surprises the enemy and carries an important point ten miles from Richmond. Chapin's Farm is directly opposite Fort Darling. The seizure of this advantageous position by Gen. Ord flanks Ball's Bluff Fort, just below Chapin's Bluff.

Birney's success on the New Market road places him within ten miles of Richmond and secures another advantageous position.

New York, Sept. 30. The Post's Washington dispatch says Gen. Fry has decided that persons who paid commutation in February and March, are exempt from the draft for one year from the time of payment.

New York, Sept. 30. There is a prospect of peace between St. Domingo and Spain. Over 12,000 Spanish soldiers have been sacrificed during the trouble there.

New York, Oct. 1. The World's Army of the Potomac correspondent says the rebels have recently moved away their heavy guns from Petersburg.

New York, Oct 1. The Charleston Mercury says Beauregard has accepted the command of the army under Gen. Hood.

Washington, Oct. 1. Ex-Gov. Dennison was this afternoon sworn into office, and entered upon his duties as Postmaster-General.

War Department,
Washington, Oct. 1st, 1864.

To Major General Dix:

The following dispatches from Maj. Gen. Sheridan, detailing his successful operations since the last report, have just been received:

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 29, 7.30 P. M.

To Lieut. U. S. Grant, City Point, Va.:

In my last dispatch I informed you that I pressed Early as closely as I could through New Market. At the same time sending cavalry around his flank, that he gave up the valley and took to the mountains, passing through Brown's Gap.

I kept up the pursuit to Point Republic, destroying 75 wagons and four caissons. I sent Gen. Torbett, who overtook me at Harrisonburg, to Staunton with Wilson's division of cavalry and one brigade of Merritt's. Torbett entered Staunton on the 26th, and destroyed a large quantity of rebel government property: harness, small arms, hard bread, flour, repair shops, &c.

He then proceeded to Waynesville, destroying the iron bridge over the small branch of the Shenandoah, seven miles of track, the depot building, Government tannery, and a large amount of leather, flour, stores, etc., etc.

At that place he found the tunnel defended by infantry, and returned via Staunton.

My impression is that most of the troops which Early had left, passed through the mountains to Charlottesville. Kershaw's division came to his assistance, and I think passed along the west base of the mountains to Waynesboro'.

I am getting from 25 to 40 prisoners daily, who come in from the mountains on each side and deliver themselves up.

From the most reliable accounts, Early's army was completely broken up. Kenshaw had not reached Richmond, but was somewhere in the vicinity of Gordonsville, where he received orders to rejoin Early.

The destruction of the grain and forage from here to Staunton will be a terrible blow to them. All the grain, forage, &c., in the vicinity of Staunton was retained for the use of Early's army. All in the lower part of the Valley was shipped to Richmond for the use of Lee's army. The country from here to Staunton was abundantly supplied with forage, grain, &c.

(Signed) P. H. Sheridan,
Major-General.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, 29th, P. M. Reports from Gen. Butler's department say the 10th and 18th army corps crossed the James River at Deep Bottom, and advanced against the enemy's works at Chapin's Farm, taking the first line of rifle pits without resistance. At 10 A. M. the enemy's stronghold at Chapin's Bluff was carried by assault, and three hundred prisoners taken, with sixteen pieces of artillery, flags, etc.

The division of the 18th corps is said to have suffered considerable loss, but to what extent is not known. Our troops hold the position, which is about seven miles from Richmond.

The latest reports from the front of that part of our army on the north side of the James river represent everything highly encouraging. Our forces were within four or five miles of Richmond this morning, and have driven the enemy before them in confusion.

Rebel deserters report great consternation in Richmond. The citizens are packing up their household goods and departing, having lost all confidence, and even Davis himself has gone to Georgia, ostensibly to visit Hood.

New York, Oct. 3. The Herald's special dispatch giving an account of the fighting north of the James river on Friday says:

"Three desperate efforts were made by the enemy to retake the captured works. Lee in person commanded, but they were driven back with much loss. The enemy massed in the woods opposite their works and charged with wild yells in three heavy columns. The rebel rams opened at the same time and our line was enfiladed by a battery on the river. The men however stood steady, and received the rebels with so hot a fire that they broke and fled to the woods. Twice again were they rallied, but only to meet with the same result, leaving the ground covered with dead and wounded. The fight is pronounced the most desperate of the war. Prisoners report at least 1000 killed and wounded."

"The Tribune's dispatch says of the operations below Petersburg on the 29th, that Gregg's cavalry, supported by two brigades of infantry, made a reconnoissance towards the Lynchburg Railroad and found no enemy in force. The next day a force was sent out beyond Poplar Spring Church, and found the enemy in a strong position. Gen. Griffin decided to carry the works by storm, and forming his force into three lines, the assault was made and proved a brilliant success. The whole line was taken, including the forts, two or three guns and fifty prisoners. Our loss will amount to one hundred and fifty killed and wounded.

Charleston has suffered considerably lately from the fire of our 100 pounders, which are more effective than the 30 pounders. Two thousand five hundred men are at work strengthening the old and new defences of Charleston.

It is believed that Admiral Farragut will be immediately transferred from the command of the West Gulf to the North Atlantic blockading service, and that Admiral Lee will take command of the fleet in Mobile bay.

A dispatch from Gen. Sheridan, dated at Harrisonburg, Oct. 1st, says: "I have been to Staunton and Waynesboro' with the cavalry, destroyed the iron bridge on South river at Waynesboro', throwing it into the river, also the bridge over Christiana creek, and the railroad from Staunton to Waynesboro'."

Forrest's Operations.—Athens, which the rebel Gen. Forrest is reported to have captured, and Pulaski, against which he was moving at last accounts, are not on Sherman's line of communication, but are outposts on the Tennessee and Alabama road, southwest of Nashville, which is used only to supply these places. The Chattanooga road, over which Sherman receives his supplies, runs in a southeasterly direction from Nashville, passing through Tullahoma, and intersecting the Memphis and Chattanooga road at Stevenson.

☞ A letter from New Orleans dated 8th inst., says: "Potatoes imported from the North were selling here two days ago for $14 a barrel, and retailed at five cents apiece. Tomatoes are selling at the rate of two for twenty-five cents. There is not an apple in the market that can be bought for less than five cents."

☞ A detachment of the 13th Missouri Cavalry, which captured several guerrillas and their horses near Fayette, Mo., recently, found the scalps of white men fastened to the bridle of one of the horses.

☞ Gov. Dennison has accepted the Postmaster-Generalship.

ITEMS.

☞ The papers generally throughout the country speak of the potato crop as coming in first-rate. No signs of rot have appeared.

☞ Maine is to have the largest potato crop she has had for many years.

☞ A lady has computed that if the women of America would dispense with the extra twelve-inch piece to their dresses a saving of $1,000,000 would be effected.

☞ A mason in Limerick, Ireland, lately hammering a stone, chipped out what he supposed to be a lump of glass. It proved to be a diamond worth $5000.

☞ The Express says the largest coffee-house in Brazil, with connections here and in Baltimore, has failed, owing to the heavy fall in sterling exchange, of which they were large holders.

☞ The Paris papers already begin to talk of the Prince Imperial as Napoleon IV.

☞ Saturday last was the Jewish New Year's day, it being the first day of the month Tisri, and of the year 5625 of the Hebrew chronology.

☞ Gen. Philip H. Sheridan was born in Perry county, Ohio, in 1831, and graduated at West Point in 1853.

Notices.

Big Tent Meetings.

If the Lord will, our Tent meetings will be held as follows:—

Mechanic's Falls, Me., from Saturday, Oct. 1, to Monday, Oct. 10th.

Norway Village, (or near South Paris), Me., Monday evening, Oct. 10th, to Sunday evening, Oct. 16th.

Canaan, Vt., from Tuesday evening, Oct. 18th, onward over Sunday, as the Lord will.

We shall be glad to see friends from abroad at these meetings, though at new places, such as Norway, we cannot ensure provision for strangers. The Tent will lodge all who can furnish bedding and board for themselves. We shall have stoves if the weather is cool. Pray for us, that the word of God may have free course and be glorified. Eld. James Albert Libby is expected to be present at these meetings and assist in preaching the word.

H. L. Hastings, Tent Master.

The Chicago Discussion Postponed.

On our arrival at Chicago from Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 26th, we found that it was decided to defer our discussion with Mr. Fish, the Spiritualist, till some future time. Two reasons were presented for so doing; first, that as our opponent was somewhat unknown to the Spiritualists of Chicago, they were not willing to risk their cause in his hands till they knew more of him; and secondly, the political and war excitement were unfavorable, and calculated to prevent the people from coming to hear.

Conference.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at Kast Hall, No. 104 Hanover street, Boston, will hold a conference, commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th, and continue over the following Sabbath.

Per order of Society. O. Clapp.

Advent Churches in Boston.

For the information of brethren abroad, and in reply to inquiries, we would say that there are in Boston four societies of Second Advent believers, as follows: The church worshiping at Lowell Street Chapel; the Kneeland Street Church; the church in East Boston; and the church at Kast Hall, known as non-believers in "the resurrection of the unjust."

Minnesota State Conference and Quarterly Meeting.

The Advent Christian Conference will hold its yearly session in connection with the Winona County Quarterly Meeting, at the Dudly and Perry school-house, in Utica Township, of said Co., beginning Oct. 7th, at two o'clock P. M.

Let every church send delegates, and every minister be in attendance if possible; otherwise be sure to report by letter. Churches and ministers who have not yet united, should be sure to do so this year, that we may move in order and harmony, and consequently with greater strength for good. Delegates should bring letters of appointment from churches, and ministers with whom we are not acquainted should bring with them letters of commendation. Eld. J. V. Himes is expected, and others will please to be with us. All that can come are invited to attend. Let us have a large and a good meeting.

Philip Ramer.

Maine Eastern Quarterly Conference.

This conference is appointed at Lincolnville Centre, Oct. 13th, at six o'clock P. M., and will continue till Sunday evening. We desire those intending to meet us in this conference, to come prepared to work for God's cause. Call on D. Fletcher, E. Blood, E. Caldenwood, and others, or the subscriber.

M. Young, Clerk.

Notice.

The Michigan and Indiana Quarterly Conference will be held at the Orr school-house, Cambria, Hillsdale Co., Mich., commencing Oct. 7th, and continuing over the Lord's day. Eld. Miles Grant, of Boston, will be present to preach the word. Friends are invited to attend.

A. N. Seymour.

The Discussion Postponed.

The discussion between Eld. S. W. Bishop and A. Durfee, at Newmarket Hall, Providence, R. I., which was to have commenced Tuesday, Sept. 27th, is postponed until Tuesday, Oct. 25th.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Miles Grant .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
D. R. & M. S. Mansfield .... Sunday, Oct. 23d

Salem, Mass. .... evening, Oct. 6th
Boston (Kast Hall) .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
Mrs. N. M. Henry.

Lunenberg, at Bro. Burredge's .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
S. S. Brewer.

New Britain, Ct. .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
Forestville, Ct. .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
Yalesville Ct. .... Sunday, Oct. 23d
O. D. Woodruff.

Charlemont, Mass. .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Gloyd's) .... Oct. 23d
Wm. J. Hale.

Holliston, Mass. .... Sunday, Oct 9th
L. F. Benton.

South Natick, Mass .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
J. N. Sherman.

South Butler, N. Y. .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
Westbury, N. Y. .... Sunday, Oct. 23d
Seneca Falls, N. Y. (as Bro. G. Dillebaugh may appoint) Sunday, Oct. 30th.
C. F. Sweet.

Concord, N. H. .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
L. Boutell.

Suncook, N. H., (where Bro. Paine may appoint), Oct. 9th.
Z. Ford.

River Point .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
Joseph Northup.

Litchfield Station, Conn. .... evening, Oct. 8th
Wrightville, Conn. .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
Wallingford, Conn., (near Bro. Young's), eve., Oct. 15th
Wallingford Farms, Conn. .... Oct. 16th
B. Hitchcock.

New Durham Corner, N. H. .... Oct. 16th
South Farmington .... Oct. 23d
Moultonborough Centre .... Friday evening, Oct. 28th
Plymouth, (where Bro. Emery may appoint), Oct. 30th
N. Hartshorn.

We will commence a series of meetings in New Boston, N. H., (at the school-house near Bro. Joseph Andrews), Saturday evening, Oct. 8th, and hold as long as seems duty.
J. G. Smith.
J. Pinkham.

Atkinson, Sunday, Oct. 23d, and Saturday evening, 22d, at Bro. James Ayer's. Also the 24th, 25th and 26th, at the same place, and over the following Sunday, Oct. 30th, if desired.

Sebec, Me., (school-house, near Bro. Joshua Livermore's), Sunday, Nov. 6th.
Thomas Smith.

Portland, Me. .... evenings, Oct. 11th and 12th
Biddeford, Me. .... evenings, Oct. 13th and 14th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
Exeter, N. H. .... evenings, Oct. 17th and 18th
Lawrence, Mass. .... evenings, Oct. 19th and 20th
Concord, N. H. .... evening, Oct. 21st
Should the above appointments conflict with others, please give notice in time to change.
D. R. & M. S. Mansfield.

East Boston .... evening, Oct. 14th
A. Ross.

Cheshire Street, Ct. .... Oct. 9th
H. Munger.

Worcester .... Oct. 9th
Plymouth, Mass. .... Oct. 16th
Lynn, Mass. .... Sundays, Oct. 23d and 30th
J. S. White.

Plainfield, (at Bro. Heley's) .... Oct. 8th
Goshen .... Oct. 9th
Dalton, or Flintstone .... Oct. 14th and over the Sabbath.
H. Hadlock.

Barnes' Corners .... Oct. 9th
Harrisburgh, (Bickford school-house) .... eve, Oct. 11th
West Martinsburgh .... Oct. 16th
Copenhagen .... Oct. 23d
Bro. Fenn of Conn. will meet me at Mannsville, and help proclaim the gospel in the above places. Let there be an effort to get out the people.
C. B. Turner.

Lynn .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
C. F. Hudson.

Melbourne, (as Bro. Wetherell may appoint), Oct. 16th
Danville, (Claremont) .... evening, Oct. 18th
Little Warwick .... evenings, Oct. 19th and 20th
Warwick .... evening, Oct. 21st
Danville, (as Bro. Porter may appoint) .... Oct. 23d
Bro. James Webb's .... Oct. 25th
L. C. McKinstry.

Newfane, Whitakerville, Vt. .... Oct. 21st
Wm. J. Blanchard.

Griswoldville .... Oct. 9th
Northfield .... Oct. 16th
Brattleboro, Vt. .... Oct. 23d
Whitakerville .... Oct. 30th
J. K. Bellows.

Scitico .... Oct. 9th
R. E. Ladd.

Warner, N. H., (Union Hall) .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
Concord, N. H. .... Sunday, Oct. 23d
T. M. Preble.

North Canton, Ct. .... Oct. 16th
Seth Woodruff.

Danielsonville, Ct. .... Oct. 5th
D. O. Hopkins.

Plainfield Pond, Mass .... Sunday, Oct. 9th
and at Henry Barton's in the evening.
Plainfield, (Bro. E. Healy's) .... Oct. 13th
Goshen, Mass .... Oct. 16th
Shelburn Falls, Mass., (as Bro. Cressy may arrange), Oct. 20th.
Northfield, Mass .... Oct. 22d
B. Wm. Wilkins.

Dixfield Centre .... Saturday eve., and over Sunday, Oct. 8th and 9th.
Mexico, (where Bro. Collins may appoint), Monday evening, Oct. 10th.
Byron, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, (where Bro. Taylor may appoint), Oct. 12th and 13th.
Roxbury, (where Bro. Johnson may appoint), Friday evening, Oct. 14th.
Greenwood City, (at the school-house) Sunday, Oct. 16th
Pray for us that our labors may be blessed.
J. C. Wheeler.
J. Whitman.

Carver, Mass., Sunday, Oct. 9th, and through the week, except Saturday.
Holliston, Mass. .... Sunday, Oct 16th
Will then answer to calls in R. I. and Conn., if the Lord will.
H. K. Flagg.

Walbridge, (School-house) .... Oct. 16th and 23d
P. S. Butler.

Sandy Hill, N. Y. .... Oct. 8th and 9th
Brethren, pray for us. Jos. D. Brown.

Searsport Village .... Oct. 9th
Frankfort .... Oct 16th
A. Mussey.

Dinsmore Hill, Hartland, Vt .... Oct. 9th
Canaan Street, N. H .... Sunday, Oct. 16th
A. Simpson.

Portsmouth, N. H .... Oct. 16th
C. H. Leverton.

Otisfield, (Gore school-house), Saturday evening, Oct. 8th, and over Sunday.
J. T. Jordan.

Whitakerville, Vt. .... Oct. 8th and 9th
Houghtonville, Vt., as Bro. O. D. Gibson may arrange) Oct. 11th.
Plymouth, Vt., (as the friends may arrange), Oct. 13th and every evening through the week, and over Sunday. Will the brethren and sisters in that region come and help us in the name of the Lord?
Geo. A. Streeter.

Pomfret, Vt., (Harrington school-house), Thursday and Friday evenings, Oct. 6th and 7th, and Sunday, Oct 9th.
Also meet with other brethren at Newport, N. H., (Northville), Oct. 15th, two o'clock, P. M., and over the Sabbath, to assist in an ordination.
Wm. W. Sutherland.

Moultonborough Centre .... Oct. 9th
Concord, N. H .... Oct. 16th
T. W. Piper.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State from which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Eliza A. Tuttle, Joseph Dudley, Polly King.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their Post Office and State. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler.

Reuel Willis wants his paper changed to East Auburn, but does not tell what office it is to be changed from. Will he give it?

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. L. Soule—The Chart can be sent by express.
D. C. Tourtellott—To No. 468.
C. Dennen—The $2.00 of Aug. 1st were received and credited.
G. S. P.—See another column.
O. F. Cain—The $1.00 in March was received; also the $2.00 in '63. Gave you credit for both.
S. P. Clark—You will find it acknowledged in this paper.
E. [illegible]evens—$1.00 for Pilgrim received.
J. A. Stowe—No paper was issued Sept. 13th, and we are out of the 20th.
M. Garland—All right.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 470. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

$1.00 each.—J Buckingham 508, R J Whitehead 497, O F Cain 497, R R Dore 484, R. Benner 489, P Tandy 489, N W Spencer 489, Mrs J Felton 489, H F Dewolf 510, G R Stocking 471, M Patterson 468.

$1.25 each.—S. Bradley 494, P J Hall 493, A Kingsbury 520, A. Cummings 495, C. J. Brown 495, J. W. Houghton 494, W. C. Phillips 493, N. R. Weikes 468, S. Phillips 493, D. M. Kellogg 493, M. Tarbox 494, G. Christianson 494, Wm. Shaw 494, S. Tucker 494, L. M. Eccleston 490, J. M. Corliss 494, S. C. Johnson 494, L. Whitman 492, A A Pavey 473, J B Mooney 494.

$2.00 each.—J. H. Horton 470, Mrs. C. Faber 489, H Hadlock 506, J W Cheever 468, L Longfellow 503, Mrs E Pearson 489, M L Clark 510, I Kenney 520, G R Tyzzer 507, L. H. Bryant 468, J. Gray 510, H N Bliss 482, Mrs John Ray 502.

$2.50 each.—R Pine 520, Mrs L P Russell 520, Mary Holden 520, C Tower 519, M Davis 511, W H Mitchell 520, Geo. Smith 517, W R Andrews 520, B. Beach 520, T Pendleton 518, C Watson 501, I Card 511, S P Clark 520, H Vincent 520, H W Perkins 520, M Christenson 520, A Miller 518, E H Case 520, D Hoskins 510.

$3.00 each.—C B Peck 464, A. Boothby 541, B Little 477, H G Smiley 520, R Urich 518.

$5.00 each.—C. Starr 504, Mrs. A. Chamberlain 468, P Ramer 531.

Mrs. G. L. Hodgdon $1.25, 494; Mrs. E. K. Lemont $3.25, 494; W. F. Knowlton $1.33, 494; H. M. Leach $2.70, 468; A Bunnell $3.00, 504; Mrs S Barton $6.00, 593; W. S. Hays 50c, 468; A Bryant 63c, 481; P Blake 50c, 492; S. C. Smith $1.46, 468; E Brown $3.44, 468; J Bemis $1.70, 468; A. Dalsill $1.85, 468; V. N. Davis $3.12, 468; J Spenser $3.45, 484; Mrs J W Vanarsdell $1.50, 457; C. Richardson 25c, 480; J. Kelly 25c, 467; D W Vining $1.50, 492; F W Elmore $4.00, 502.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

H. W. Norville $3.00; M. Smith 90c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—W S Devereux, W Wright, W. Willcutt, Jr., T W Smith, F M Reynolds, A. Spear, M B Cyphers, S D Daniels.

By Express.—J K Bellows.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

I C Wellcome, C Hill, B Spaulding, J A Libbey, J D Merriam, M A Spriggs, J Elkins, E Hutchins, G Wells, S S Brewer, J W Taylor, L Stevens, Mrs C Hall, C L Percival, J B Cook, J D Brown, Mrs Knowles, E Burnham, C F Hudson, I C Wellcome, J Elkins, L B Weaver, E. F. Sergisson, W L Huntley, H M Blackmer, E. Jones, S A Gilman, N B Sleeper, H L H, N W Spencer, A H Smith, L A Davis, M B Elkins, W P Sawin, O P Allen, D F Newton, D W Hall, H L Hastings, S J Buswell, L J Swett, J Baston, T W Piper, C Case, B Perham, R G Ladd, C H Leverton, E S Willard, D & L P Hastings, D Wheeler, I K Lombard, L Parsons, E M Haggett, J N Berry, M A Fogg, W Shepherd, I. Reimer, A L Forrester, L Tuttle, C W Low.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.
Wm. Fairman—Eddyboro, N. Y.
John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to
MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Eld. T. Carey. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal conscious suffering of the Wicked?" [illegible]

Spiritualism. Discussion with J. S. Loveland, "On Spiritualism and Immortality." [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts, 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES [illegible]

For the set—[illegible]

Single Copy—[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE [illegible] SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsey, D.D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man; Its Origin, Progress, and End. [illegible] by H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church .... 25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man .... 25c.
Reasons for my Hope .... 20c.
Spiritualism a Satanic Delusion .... 20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly .... 20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul .... 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life .... 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church .... 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single .... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.
BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—[illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, covers, and enlarged. Price 4 cts. By mail, 5 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 45 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

Cruden's Complete Concordance to the Holy Scriptures. New and condensed edition. Edited by John Eadie, D. D., L.L.D. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.80. Sheep, 2.00; by mail, $2.30.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

Why the Shoe Pinches. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. Diamond, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. Pearl, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $3.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

VALUABLE BOOKS FOR SALE.

Butterworth's Concordance. Rather less full than Cruden's Condensed, but superior to it in some respects, viz., it gives definitions of most of the words, and it gives also a Concordance to the marginal readings of the Bible, which are quite as important as the Text. Price $1.50, postpaid.

The Parable of Dives and Lazarus: Does it teach that endless sufferings await the lost? By H. G. Storer. A valuable and interesting little pamphlet, by an eminent Congregational minister of Maine. 15 cents.

Prof. C. F. Hudson's Works. A complete assortment. 1. Debt and Grace, $1.25. 2. Christ our Life; cloth 60 cts., paper 35 cts. 3. Human Destiny, and Tracts, 85 cts. 4. Human Destiny, in cloth, 60 cts., paper 30 cts. 5. Discussion with Cobb, $1.25.

Roy's Hebrew Dictionary, in which every Hebrew word in the Bible is found, and its pronunciation given in English letters, with numerous references to places where it occurs, etc. etc. Price $4.50.

English Reference Bibles, a good selection. $1.00 to $4.50.

Lardner's Works, 10 volumes 8vo. Two copies of this, the ablest and most elaborate defence of Christianity ever published. It is an English book, and is scarce. It is worth at least $20 per set. These will be sold for less than they can be imported, viz., $16 per copy.

The above are to be sent by express at the purchaser's expense.

Address H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

Likeness of Wm. Miller, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

For the World's Crisis.

TO J. T. DIXON.

Art thou a stranger? Christ is nigh
Forever, though he walks unseen;
And though no other friends are by,
On Him thou canst forever lean.

Do men revile? then "blest" art thou;
Doubt not the Master's written word;
Gird thou the sadness from thy brow,
For great shall yet be thy reward.

Shouldst thou be homeless, think of One
Who had not where to lay His head,
Who, when the work of day was done,
Oft vainly sought some sheltered bed.

Yet he was King and Lord of all,
Still never claimed on earth his own;
And now awaits until the fall
Of Satan's kingdom yields his throne.

Art full of sorrow? has not He,
The Man of Sorrows, often said—
"Let all thy care be cast on me,
And I will bear them in thy stead"?

Art thou a wanderer? so was He;
From place to place, from day to day,
Without one look of sympathy,
Or word of cheer, to bless his way.

Though foes assail on every side,
Fear not, they never can prevail;
Cling closely to the Crucified,
His might can quell the fiercest gale.

Remember, in a few more days
The wicked shall no longer be;
But those who love the Lord, shall praise
Him through a long eternity.

Then look with pity on thy foes;
Their poisoned arrows cannot harm
The soul that does in peace repose
Upon Jehovah's mighty arm.

Pascoag, R. I. MRS. C. A. KNOWLES.

For the World's Crisis.

PEN PICTURES OF BIBLE SCENES.

NUMBER FOURTEEN.

THE PLAGUES OF EGYPT.

There was joy among the Hebrew slaves when the sweet tidings of coming deliverance fell from the lips of Moses and Aaron. The night of their bondage had been long and dreary, and they hailed with joy the dawn of freedom. But for a time their sudden hopes were blighted with delay and disappointment. Their burdens were increased; their toil was made so irksome that life itself was a burden indeed, so cruel and exacting were their task-masters. But God suffered all this for a time that the punishment of their enemies might be the more signal.

Moses and Aaron pleaded the cause of their brethren before Pharaoh, that he might let the Hebrews go and serve the Lord their God in the wilderness. But he would not listen to the appeal, that God might show his wondrous power by signs that the world had not yet seen. Moses sought to impress the king with the truthfulness of his mission by a miracle. Aaron cast down his rod and it became a serpent; the magicians did the same, but the rod of Aaron devoured their rods. Yet Pharaoh would not believe, nor let the people go.

And now began to fall the judgments of Heaven upon the devoted land of the obdurate king. The next morning, as Pharaoh went forth upon the banks of the river, he met the same appeal, "Let my people go, saith the Lord." But he still scorned the message. The mysterious wand of Aaron was stretched out, and the lordly Nile rolls along its tide of blood and death. Crimson was every pool and reservoir in Egypt. For seven days the gory waves went rolling by, and the heart of the king was not softened.

Again the prophets of woe stood before the king with the same solemn message, "Let my people go." But severer judgments were needed. The rod was lifted out upon the bloody flood, and frogs innumerable covered the land and filled hut and palace. For the first time the king relented and promised to let the people go if the plague might be removed. But when the danger was past, the same strange obduracy returned.

Then was the dust smitten with the rod of Aaron, and it was turned to lice that covered all living things. The magicians sought to do the same, but could not, and were forced to acknowledge that the hand of God was in it. After the plague of the lice came grievous swarms of flies, filling all the land with their tormenting presence. But they went not into Goshen where the people of God dwelt.

Once more Pharaoh relented and besought Moses to take away the plague and the people should go; but he desired they should not go, for he still wished to detain them as slaves when the danger was past.

The judgment was stayed, but the king forgot his promise. Then the Lord destroyed the cattle, and horses, and sheep. But the Hebrews lost not,—a protecting hand was around them, and they suffered not. After this Moses sprinkled ashes towards heaven, and all the inhabitants were smitten with grievous sores; from the slave to the king none were exempted. But Pharaoh still resisted God with a proud heart.

Again Moses lifted the rod of wrath toward the skies, and blackest clouds like whirlwinds rolled in anger along the heavens, blotting out the light of day. The awful thunder bellowed and shook the earth. The pyramids trembled on their broad bases. Terror filled every heart, for such a sight was unknown in Egypt. Then poured down the hail like an avalanche of ice, and the livid lightning blazed fiercely along the earth. The elements fought with awful fury, and seemed to threaten to overturn the city walls and palaces.

And still the mighty strife thundered on, destroying man and beast and every growing thing in the madness of its tempestuous power. From the black heavens rolled down the hail, the lightning leaped from cloud to earth and earth to cloud. But amid this warring there was the calmest sunshine in the land of Goshen, where the storm came not and the heart was unterrified; for the angel of God had spread his wings of peace over the chosen ones.

In the midst of the raging tempest Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron and said, "Entreat the Lord, for it is enough, that he send no more mighty thunderings and hail, and I will let you go." Moses prayed, and the strife ceased. The soft sunshine poured its golden light upon a scene of waste and desolation, where the tempest of God had swept and marred the earth. The danger had passed, and the king would not obey.

Another woe fell upon the land. The very air was darkened, and the earth was covered with swarms of locusts, that devoured all that had been left by the hail. The king called in haste for the prophets of judgment to drive away the locusts, and they might lead the people to sacrifice.

Again he broke his promise, and another judgment followed. A darkness strange and mysterious stole over the land of Egypt. All the light of heaven was obscured by its deep, impenetrable gloom. It was a darkness that could be felt. For three days it hung like a mantle of sepulchral terror and death over all the obscured scene. No mortal stirred from his place. Each heart was lost in wonder and dread alarm at the awful exhibition of the power of the Hebrew deity. But there was light with the children of Israel, as there ever is with God's people when gloom and terror fall upon others. After the third day the mantle of gloom was lifted from the land, that a more awful woe might fall upon it.

The cup of Pharaoh's iniquity was full. He had long resisted the voice of God, had long hardened his heart and broken his solemn promises. A last and awful judgment was now close at hand, that would cause him to drive forth the children of Israel from his presence.

The last night of Israel's sojourn in Egypt had come. It was the night of God's passover, ever to be memorable in the annals of Israel. The Egyptians had retired to rest. A terrible silence brooded over the land. But amid this silence the angel of the Lord was abroad performing his mission of death. A victim fell in every household where was not seen the blood-sprinkled door.

At midnight there was a cry in all the land of wailing and despair. The first-born in every house was dead! The palace had been invaded as well as the humble abode of the slave. None had escaped; all had given a victim to the terrible messenger. Such a cry of anguish never went up from earth before or since as on that dread night which filled Egypt with mourning. God had been scorned and mocked by a proud king and people, and at last they drank the bitter cup of desolation and woe in the death of the loved of each household. This proved enough.

The stony heart of Pharaoh and his people was at last subdued, and the Hebrews were urged to go. The judgments of Heaven had fallen too heavily upon them to be longer borne. They had fought against a high and mighty power, and had been conquered at last of their folly, only, alas, to turn to it again when they found their slaves had gone.

What a picture of sinful folly is exhibited in the history of God's dealings with Pharaoh. He is many times convicted of God's power and of his own sin, yet when that power is for a time withdrawn he returns to his former course, presuming, perhaps, that God has become wearied with his conduct and will leave him. And such to-day is the natural heart of sinful man. Time after time will God send his afflictions to warn man of his danger in living in sin, and time after time will the heart in affliction promise to serve God, only to return to its former course.

Let all such read the fate of Pharaoh, and ponder well their conduct. A closing scene must come, a climax must be reached, and justice be vindicated. Let not the heart that has often been convicted of sin pride itself upon its obduracy; for the arrow will pierce it with anguish at last, when the closing scene shall come. ORRIN P. ALLEN.

For the World's Crisis.

A NEW COMMANDMENT.

"A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." St. John 13: 34, 35.

Says Christ also in Matt. 5: 43—48: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy: but I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? And if he salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so? Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

These are all included among the commands of Christ to us. In order to keep these commands, we, like Paul, must die daily, to sin reckon ourselves dead, indeed must crucify the deeds of the body, that we may live; not only in the sanctuary on the Sabbath, but on Monday, when a multiplicity of cares come upon us like an avalanche, we are to overcome, to crucify the deeds of the body, which are impatience, fretfulness, hatred, etc., etc. Let us not be ignorant of the devices of our enemy, who goeth about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. He is so subtle, he sees when cares press upon us in quick succession, we should be more liable to yield to impatience and hatred, which are contrary to love. If he can succeed in injecting into our minds anything contrary to love to God and man, thus causing us to disobey the commands of Christ, and fall into condemnation, his point is gained. Lookers on are ready to say, "What do ye more than others?"

Christ tells us to love our enemies and bless them that curse us, which we cannot do without the grace of God to assist us, without entire consecration, giving up all for Christ, our wills among the rest, so that we can say from the heart, Not my will, Father, but thine be done.

Christ says furthermore, "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Says one, He has treated me so meanly, wronged me so many times, I cannot overlook it; I cannot forgive him. Has he sinned against you five hundred times? Christ tells Peter in Matt. 18: 22, "I say not unto thee, till seven times, but until seventy times seven." Let us count up and see if they have sinned against us over four hundred and ninety times. That is a great many times, you know.

Mark 11: 25, 26: "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses. But if ye do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive your trespasses. So likewise shall my Heavenly Father do also unto you if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Is it so, dear brethren and sisters, that God will not hear us if we attempt to pray with the least grudge, the least unforgiving feeling towards a single individual in the universe, however much they may have wronged us? It is even so, according to God's word.

Christ taught us to pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," in the same proportion; so if we pray thus, while at the same time we forgive others but in part, we ask in reality to have but part of our sins forgiven; and as nothing impure can enter that heavenly kingdom, we are sure to be shut out. O! let us fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into that rest, after all we come short of it.

Not every one that says "Lord, Lord," shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but "he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven." It is his will, even our sanctification, that we should be cleansed from all sin, so that we can obey all these commands however crossing to human nature; and instead of trying to shape the word to our lives, let us take the word of God, lay it down, and bring our lives to it in every sense of the word, without which we can have no share in the kingdom. And while we are anxious to understand all prophecies, let us see to it that our hearts are right, so that we can be ready to hail our coming King with joy, remembering we are sanctified through the truth, the whole truth, practical as well as doctrinal. May God help us, is the prayer of an unworthy, waiting sister, CHARLOTTE CASE.

North Canton, Ct.

For the World's Crisis.

"LET US PRAY."

When the rosy light
Of the morning bright
Reveals the new-born day;
When the sun's first beams
On the hill-tops gleam,
Then let us pray.

When the sun rides high
In the deep blue sky,
Triumphant king of day;
When bathed in the light
Of the noonday bright,
Then let us pray.

When our work we leave
At the dewy eve,
'Mid the hush of the closing day,—
God's starry floor spread
Out over our head,
Then let us pray.

LAURA A. DAVIS.

For the World's Crisis.

"GOD WILL TAKE CARE OF BABY."

A little boy just learning to talk was taught by his parents to say this. During a prevailing epidemic they were both prostrated by it, and before their restoration to health the little one was stricken down with no hope of its recovery. They tottered to the bedside where their little sufferer lay, almost gone to his last sleep, and whilst the mother, in her bitter sorrow, bent over that little pale countenance, her blinding tears falling upon it, the sweet little one opened his eyes, and gazing up in his mother's agonized face, whispered, with his remaining strength,

"God will take care of baby!" and thus died. Sweet thought! there is none to compare with it. To think of that darling whom we loved almost as our own life, whose dear little face nestled in our bosom and would rest there in peace for hours; whose footsteps tottling over the floor, memory brings before us now, though years on years have rolled away, since they ceased to fall so gently on the ear; the little lips that pressed our cheeks in childhood's happy hours, at death's command grew white and cold; the starlit eyes, that oft gazed in our own, in childhood's confiding trust, became dim, and closed in darkness; the dear little winsome, prattling voice, hushed to a long, long silence, no more to call "mamma," "papa"—in tones so long—so well remembered. Those tiny hands that clung to our fingers in playful, happy moments, cold and stiff in death's relentless grasp; and now perhaps all that we have of the lost one is a treasured lock of hair, a little shoe, or some toy, clasped once by little fingers now mouldering back to dust; or a little picture to remind us, in memory's never-dying love, of the dearly loved one in all its beauty, ere we laid it away in the grave so lonely.

And what a dread silence comes over the sickened heart as we stand beside that little mound, and gaze so wistfully down as if we longed to see through the cold ground to where our loved one lies sleeping; and how much we miss that sleeping one then, and imagine we almost hear that gentle voice again,—but, no! all is silent there! and sorrow too bitter for words to tell, and sobs too deep for utterance may rend our hearts, and they would break, were it not for the hope of another life to come,—where no little graves will be, where buried hopes are resting,—but where "OUR OWN" dear little ones will all come from "the land of the enemy," and shine like stars of the morning, and bloom in unfading loveliness, "to die no more!"

Then we will not mourn in hopeless sorrow, poor lone ones, but seek a home beyond night's sorrowing hours, and be with the loved ones, now lost to sight, who will awaken on that joyful morning, that will dawn over midnight's gloom; trusting, believing, and feeling that with us, also,

"God will take care of baby!"

J. N. BERRY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DARIEN MEETING.

This meeting was one of the best I have been privileged to attend for over two years. It commenced on Friday evening, Sept. 9th, in the Baptist church. Bro. Low spoke a short time from 1 Pet. 1: 5, followed by Bro. Turner, and others who came with an abundance in the heart, and when they opened their mouths words of comfort and joy flowed out like a full flowing stream.

Saturday, 10 1-2 o'clock. Bro. Sweet spoke from Rom. 1: 16. A good sound discourse. At 1 1-2 P. M., Bro. Turner spoke from Lev. 17: 11, on the Atonement. Bro. T. handled this subject in a workmanlike manner, and presented some ideas which no doubt were new to some. In the evening we enjoyed a short time in prayer and conference, after which Bro. Burr spoke from Rev. 19: 7,—showed the history of the apostate church, "the mother of harlots," followed her through the Napoleonic rule, "the beast that was, is not, and yet is,"—Napoleon III., who now carries the old harlot; also showed the position of the TRUE church, that they do not belong to the governments of earth, but are making themselves ready for the marriage of the Lamb, which event is very near at hand. O that all might realize it more than they do!

Sunday morning we had a glorious love feast. It reminded us of by-gone days, when love prevailed, and men did not seek to be the greatest, and to rule some party, and to drive some hobby question till the flock of Christ is scattered as they now are.

At 10 1-2 o'clock, Bro. Turner spoke from Isa. 24. Showed God's plan in redeeming the world, removing the curse that now rests so heavily upon it, which will commence when Jesus Christ comes and takes the throne of his father David, which event is at the door. At 1 1-2 P. M., Bro. Burr spoke from Gal. 6: 14. Showed the importance of being crucified to the world and the world unto us. Few can endure this testing ordeal, but they who will shall secure for themselves the white robes of righteousness, which will be without spot or wrinkle or any such thing; and will give us an honorable admittance to the marriage of our coming King and his bride.

After this discourse, over one hundred partook of the emblems of our Lord's broken body and shed blood. We then went to the water, and one, trusting in the Lord, went forward and made manifest her faith in his death and resurrection, by going down into the watery grave. May she henceforth walk worthy of the new life to which she was raised.

In the evening Bro. Low spoke from Dan. 12: 4. Showed the increase of knowledge in everything that could be named within the last twenty-five years, scientifically, politically, wickedly, and a searching of the word of God, learning his great purposes, which have been found to be very different from the commonly received theology of the day.

Here the labors of this annual gathering closed. The most had come a long distance, some over one hundred and thirty miles; but we think none could say that they were not richly paid for coming, and received fresh strength to endure to the end. We think that if some of our brethren east had been there, they would have learned there were some here engaged in a better work than driving hobby questions and dividing the flock of Christ.

I cannot do justice in closing this article if I did not mention the labors of love of our Bro. Simonds and his wife, on whom the burthen of the meeting came. They did not miraculously feed the multitude, like our Lord, for they had provided plenty, and everything was done cheerfully by Bro. and Sr. S. Their big christian hearts would not let them do otherwise. If all who have the means would help on the cause as Bro. S. does, there would not be so many weak and sickly ones. Brn. and Srs., demonstrate to the world your faith by your works. Stand firm on the promises of God.

We hope and pray that all those brethren and sisters and the neighbors at Darien, who so kindly ministered to the wants and care of the scattered pilgrims who came up to that feast, may be amply rewarded at the resurrection of the just ones. The reward will soon be given. Toil on a little longer. Let none cast away their confidence, which hath so great a recompense of reward. Soon He who hath promised to come WILL COME. Amen. Even so, come quickly, my Lord.

Seneca Falls, N. Y. G. DILLABAUGH.

For the World's Crisis.

NEARER HOME.

It is sweet to feel amidst the distressing scenes of these last days that we have right to a city which hath foundation, and that we are nearing the time when we shall enter that city. Yet how much there is to be done! The day of the Lord cometh; it hasteth greatly; and how few are aware of the fact. Mighty events are transpiring, yet the world and church dream on. God speaks to them in thunder tones, and their ear seems heavy.

The professor and non-professor seem to have gone to sleep, and what can we do to awaken them? They are nearing the maelstrom of ruin, yet are careless of each offer of mercy; and it is a lamentable fact that many of their watchmen are as fast asleep as the people. Still there are a few who, being guided by Bethlehem's star, are watching for the morning, and, seeing the sure tokens of day, are warning the people; but it falls mostly on dull ears, and they feel many times to inquire, like one of old, "Lord, who hath believed our report?" To such we would say, Go on; cry aloud, spare not; warn them faithfully; cry day and night.

"Blow, watchman, blow a certain sound,
For dark and dangerous is the night."

Then, when the sword cometh, if they are slain your garments are clear of their blood. Be steadfast, and you will soon enjoy the rest you have labored for, and be forever with the Lord. Surely it is worth striving for; and this is for the faithful. Who will not be faithful? It is for the pure in heart. Who will not be pure? It is for the meek, and it is for us if we do whatsoever He commandeth. Is it not enough for poor, sinful mortals that we are? A few more trials, a few more crosses, a few more day journeyings, and we shall gain the land of rest for which the pilgrim sigheth. Nearly the last sign is past. The morning star is arising, and we are already in the twilight of morning. Soon we shall behold the city. Very soon we shall be at home.

"One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er;
I am nearer home to-day
Than ever I was before.
Nearer my Father's house,
Where many mansions be,
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the jasper sea;
Nearer the bounds of life,
Where we lay our burdens down,
Nearer leaving the cross,
Nearer getting the crown."

Mannsville, N. Y. D. L. CLARK.

For the World's Crisis.

MISSIONARY LABOR.

Since writing my last report, I have visited Burlington, Lowell, and Lee; in which places I labored a number of weeks last fall. I found that there was still an interest among the people to hear the truth, and the brethren generally were ready to work for the salvation of their fellow men.

I remained in this region about nine weeks. We held our meeting in the Baptist house, Lee village. But the same spirit that existed anciently was as work here; and doubtless the same question was propounded, "Have any of the rulers believed?" We understood that the Orthodox minister used his influence against the meeting, hence we had only a few out. We challenged him to discuss certain questions of our faith, but received no answer.

We held a number of very interesting meetings in Lowell, and visited some among the poor, and those who were unable to get to our meetings. We always find it to be a blessed work to call upon the sick, and converse with them about salvation, and speak to them of a land where "the inhabitant shall not say 'I am sick.'"

In July, the haying season came on, and we could not hold many evening meetings; so we took leave of the brethren in this region the last of July, and returned to Surry. Here I held a meeting July 31st. The next Sunday I had arranged to be in Blue Hill, an adjoining town; but my companion being sick, I was unable to go. The next week I preached in Orland two evenings, and held a meeting on the following Sabbath at Frankfort Mills.

Next I attended the conference held in North Searsport. We think this meeting resulted in good, although at first the prospect looked dark. There were but a few laborers, but they could labor in harmony and unitedly. After this conference I returned to Surry, and held a few meetings.

Sunday, Sept. 4th, held a meeting in Orland. There does not seem to be so much interest manifested in these places as there was a year ago; but we have tried to interest them in the work of salvation by presenting from time to time the solemn truths of the gospel.

Indeed, it seems to me that in these times it is far more difficult to interest our fellow men in religion than formerly. Men are lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; seeking their treasure here, rather than in the kingdom of God; interested more in war and political matters, than in the soul-stirring truths of the Bible. Hence it is no easy matter to reach the minds of the people. But still we must labor for the welfare of our fellowmen while time lasts, or till our Lord bids us lay off the armor.

Since attending the Etna campmeeting, we have visited some places in the western part of the State. In Augusta we held one meeting, which we enjoyed much. Went to Richmond and held a number of interesting meetings. We intended to have held a meeting too in Brunswick, but the appointment was not given out when we arrived, and so we could have no meeting.

May the blessing of the Lord rest upon the Israel of God; may we have grace here whereby we may serve the Lord acceptably, and glory hereafter in which to dwell eternally. Your brother, C. H. LEVERTON.

Yarmouth, Me.

PERILOUS TIMES.

BY REV. B. T. ROBERTS.

Fore-warned is fore-armed. To refuse to look at dangers that impend us, is not courage, but folly and cowardice. "The prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but fools pass on and are punished." He who shuts his eyes and walks off a pier, will drown just as surely as if he went into the water seeing the peril. To borrow trouble about the future, is distrusting the providence of God; to rush madly, or suffer ourselves to be borne quietly into calamities against which he has warned us, is wicked presumption.

The greatest dangers are those which peril the final salvation of the soul. A christian need not fear anything that cannot send him to hell. You may rob him of his gold and silver, but these are not his treasures; you may torture his body, but this does not disturb his peace; you may take his life by the lingering torments of the inquisition, but this will only give him a more glorious recompense at the resurrection of the just. "Fear not," says our Savior, "them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." Any threatened evil that leaves us this side of perdition, should never keep us a moment from the discharge of duty.

Paul tells us that "in the last days perilous times shall come."—2 Tim. 33. But what makes them perilous? Is it because mighty armies shall be marshalled against each other? Is it because "the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog—the number of whom is as the sand of the sea—shall be gathered to battle?"—Rev. 20: 8. Is it because the most terrible engines of destruction shall be employed, and blood shall flow "even unto the horses' bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs?"—Rev. 14: 20. Will the peril arise from internal commotions, bloody riots, sanguinary civil wars, "a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great?"—Rev. 16: 18. Do any or all of these elements enter into the calculation of the holy apostle, when he bids us know that in the last days perilous times shall come? None of these things, which ordinarily so excite the fears of men, appear to have had the slightest influence in prompting him to sound so faithfully in our ears the notes of warning! The peril against which he would have us so sedulously guard, does not arise from the clash of contending armies, or from the weakness or instability of human governments, nor from the persecutions of religious bigotry intensely inflamed, or from any physical torments to which we may be exposed, but from the danger we shall be in, from the influences around us, of losing our souls! The times are "perilous," because, unless we offer a stout and constant resistance, the prevailing currents will sweep us to hell. The gales which many court as so propitious, and which waft so smoothly a gay and laughing throng, as they suppose to the heavenly haven, will, unless we make head against them, inevitably dash us upon the unseen rocks of dark damnation, and drown our souls forever in destruction and perdition.

The perilous times arise from the prevalence of formalism,—from the influence of those who have the form of godliness, but deny the power thereof.

Against the influence of false doctrines, the church is always upon her guard. As in times of war, there are always soldiers who love the bloody fray for the excitement afforded, and the glory promised; so there are always religious knight-errants, who delight in nothing more than a fierce logomachy—a war of words. The church has never more apologists and defenders ready to do battle for truth, with pen and tongue, than when she has fewest saints to illustrate the purity of her doctrines, by humility of spirit and godliness of life. The first apostolic church that fell, was still, in her fallen condition, so orthodox in doctrine, that she "could not bear them which were evil; and had tried them which said they were apostles and were not, and had found them liars."—Rev. 2: 2. At the present time, the churches are most tolerant in respect to the lives of their members, and most exacting in respect to their opinions. A zealous, paying adherent is tolerated in almost any irregularity that does not conflict with the current morality; but woe to him, however fervent in piety, who should venture the opinion that grace can do more for us than is expressed in the acknowledged formulas of the church! He will be a hopeful candidate for the highest ecclesiastical anathemas that the civil law will permit to be inflicted.

The dangers arising from fanaticism are comparatively trifling. The heavenly fire could burn Moses' bush without consuming it; but the false fires of religious phrensy soon exhaust themselves from the destruction of the materials upon which they feed. Fanaticism is the devil arrayed in the righteousness of the saints; and he wears the robes so awkwardly, that the cloven foot is soon discovered. Happy for those imposed upon, if, in the height of their indignation, they merely reject the deceiver, but do not throw aside the garment so indispensable to all, in which he practised his deceptions!

Temptations that present an attractive appearance, under the garb of sanctity, are dangerous. The forbidden fruit, the taste of which Brought death into the world,

And all our woe.

"was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise." Formalism exhibits itself to the eyes of the beholder in the most bewitching guise. The study is, how to make religion so attractive to the natural man that he will be beguiled into the church without any supernatural influence,—such as struck down, on his way to Damascus, the fiery persecutor. Nothing is omitted that can dazzle the intellect, soothe the senses, or captivate the imagination. Architectural beauty and grandeur, the fine-spun theories of metaphysics, the precise statements of logic, the flowers of rhetoric, the charms of poetry, enticing strains of music, social mirth and festivity, the splendors of fashion, and the honors of respectable and genteel society—all that wealth can purchase or ingenuity devise, are resorted to in order to induce the votaries of worldliness to take upon them the responsibilities of a religious profession.

Formalism is dangerous, because it is contagious. The most healthy cannot long associate with the dead without becoming themselves exposed to death. The strongest christian that ever obtained mercy of the Lord, cannot long affiliate with the carnal and worldly minded, without a consequent loss of spirituality. The only way he can live at all, will be as Lot did in Sodom, by "vexing his righteous soul from day to day, with their ungodly deeds." The miasma of the marsh is invisible and intangible; the nicest chemical tests fail to detect any difference between it and the pure mountain air, yet, wherever it flies, death rides upon its poisoned wings. So from the lowlands of religious experience, there emanates a subtle influence which carries death to vital godliness wherever it goes. Associate with formalists in seeming fellowship, and you will become formal. You will drink in the spirit that prevails around you. The apostle Peter, strong as he was, and the holy Barnabas had not power always to withstand the influence of formalists, but on one occasion, at least, were "carried away with their dissimulation,"—Gal. 2: 13; and were sharply reproved by the uncompromising Paul.

—The Earnest Christian.

(To be concluded.)

DUTY OF VISITING THE AGED.—"I solemnly charge you," said a venerable minister, "to remember the aged members of the church. The duty of visiting the aged and infirm members of the church of Christ is not peculiar to ministers only. The aged love to receive attention from the young; they are pleased to know that they are not forgotten." Unless we are watchful, this duty will be neglected. In their retirement they are easily forgotten. We must make an effort to bear them in mind. The friends of their youth have gone and left them lone pilgrims in this vale of tears. Solitude, decaying vigor of mind as well as of body, commend them to our sympathy. Let us remember them. Let us cheer their lonely hours by friendly visits. Let us talk with them about the better world which they are soon to enter. The performance of this duty will be most acceptable to the Savior. He regards all the kindness as shown to himself. What action will receive a surer reward?

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

EFFECTS OF SALERATUS AND CARBONATE OF SODA,

WHEN USED FOR DIETETIC PURPOSES.

BY DAVID FRASER.

Fifty years ago very little alkaline matter was used in cooking food, except common salt, and in preserving animal food salt and saltpeter were used. But since that period, alkaline compounds which had previously been mostly confined to the soap factory, the dye house, drug establishments, chemical laboratories, and to the manufacture of glass, have found their way into common and daily use at our tables. And to such an extent are they now used, that if the total amount consumed yearly in this country was presented to the reader, the statement would be deemed incredible. Even the adulteration of but one article (saleratus) is carried on to an extent almost beyond belief.

Adulterations of the necessaries of life have excited a good deal of attention in Great Britain, and are beginning to attract attention here. At Boston a convention was held in September, 1859, termed "A Convention on Home Adulterations." M. C. T. Carney, on the part of the Committee appointed by said Convention to investigate the matter of frauds and adulterations, presented a report on the subject. The following is a verbatim extract from the report: "Specimen No. 7 is cream of tartar. This article is used largely, both as a medicine, and in the preparation of food; it is worthy of careful consideration, and your committee have given considerable attention to it. Cream of tartar is very largely adulterated. Some of the articles for that purpose are, in one sense, harmless,—that is, not injurious to health—but many of them are decidedly pernicious, and all of them are to be condemned, because sold to deceive the community and enrich the adulterant. Cream of tartar is adulterated with tartrate of lime, chalk, finely powdered white marble, sulphate of lime (plaster of Paris), sand, nitrate of potassa, alum, sulphate of soda, potassa, and chloride of potossium. It has been found to contain as impurities, iron, copper, lead and arsenic. The addition of starch and other amylaceous substances is well known; and the specimen under examination is only remarkable from the fact, that it contains sixty-three per cent. of farinaceous substances. Specimen No. 8 is acid sulphate of soda. This is the residium from nitric acid manufacturing. It is used largely to adulterate cream of tartar, and this specimen, No. 9, is one which contains this adulteration. This acid sulphate may be considered one of the injurious adulterations. There is one drawback to its use as a substitute for cream of tartar, and that is, its deliquescence, or property of taking moisture from the atmosphere. It was once attempted to substitute it for cream of tartar in a "yeast powder," but after having been put up, it destroyed the cans. Query: will the human stomach bear it better than a tin can? Specimen No. 10, is plaster of Paris, the great adulterative. As this substance is almost insoluble, any one can judge of the benefit to health that might arise from a long continued use of the article in the daily food. The specimen of cream of tartar under examination contains twenty-five per cent. of the "great adulterator."

Professor Charles T. Jackson who had listened to the reading of the report, made some remarks about some adulterations that had come within his notice, and stated, "the cream of tartar used in making bread is made up in part of ground rice and alum." Mr. Hollis of Boston, stated, "that soda ash was sold for saleratus;" and Mr. Dix of New York said, "that it was within his knowledge that one firm in that city used annually one hundred tons of soda ash in manufacturing saleratus, and other establishments used smaller amounts."

The following list contains the leading chemicals used in food especially in bread and cakes.

Saleratus—the bi-carbonate of potash. Soda powders—the bi-carbonate of soda. Cream of tartar—super tartrate of potash. Magnesia—a metallic alkaline earth. Alum—sulphate of alumina—sulphuric acid and pure clay. Blue vitriol—sulphate of copper—sulphuric acid and copper. Liquid ammonia, and also the carbonate of ammonia are used. Liquid ammonia, is made from urine, and is one of the products in the making of coal gas.

Baking powders, yeast powders, and the chemicals mixed with flour, called self-raising flour, are composed of acids, acid compounds, and carbonated alkalies. The following is a specimen of what baking powders are: Two table spoonfuls of cream of tartar, one table spoonful of bi-carbonate of soda, add them to two pints of flour. Here we have three table spoonfuls of slow poison to two pints of flour.

We will now inquire into the composition of these chemicals. Saleratus is composed of potash and carbonic acid gas. The base of potash is a metal called potassium. This substance added in certain proportions to warm tallow will form soap in a short time, hence we know that it possesses great power over animal matter. Potash, when put into an atmosphere of carbonic acid gas, becomes highly carbonized; this compound is called saleratus. Bi-carbonate of soda is of the same nature as saleratus; soda will make soap also. Its base is also a metal. Cream of tartar is a compound of tartaric acid, soda, and potash. It is used as a medicine; in small doses it is aperient, in large doses it produces copious watery evacuations. Magnesia is a metallic compound, its base is a bright shining metal. It is used in the form of a white earthy powder; a sulphate of this article is called epsom salts. Alum, as already stated, is sulphuric acid and clay. Unprincipled bakers use it to impart whiteness to their bread, and being a cheap article, and its effects on flour well known to bakers, doubtless it is used to some extent. Those who make use of self-raising flour, yeast powders, etc., subject themselves to continual drugging, for alkaline matter acidified, is aperient, cathartic, and diuretic. Surely alkaline matters and their acid combinations, (to say nothing of alum, magnesia, and plaster of Paris,) were never intended by the Divine mind to be served up at our tables. And the use of ammonia in cakes and bread is a great departure from simplicity, and evidence of progression in a wrong direction. Such a powerful agent should never, under any condition, be brought into contact with food, and when rendered energetic by heat, as in the process of baking, bad is made very bad.

Good yeast is the best agent generally known, at present, with which to raise bread; and when the sponge is set, it should be placed in a temperature as far below eighty degrees as practicable, and freely exposed to the air in a suitable place, so as to allow the carbonic acid gas to escape with facility. Fermentation proceeds slowly at sixty degrees, rapidly at seventy, and very rapidly at eighty degrees; the higher the degree of heat, the shorter in all cases should the period of fermentation be. Over fermentation makes sour bread. A great deal of bread is made which has undergone fermentation at between eighty and ninety degrees of heat, and then left to ferment over night. Under such conditions, the delicate, sweet aroma of flour is destroyed, and its nutritive value other ways lessened. In our variable climate, a thermometer might be considered indispensable to the making of good bread. A cheap and durable one might be got up for that purpose, and made to be inserted in the dough, and so as to be easily cleaned. It need not range higher than eighty degrees. Such a thermometer in a large establishment, skilfully used, would be worth its weight in gold many times over, not only in the superior worth of the bread as a life-sustainer, but in healthfulness, to say nothing of the gustatory part of the subject, which, with us all, is a matter of some importance.

A thorough kneading of the dough is also of great moment. It should be kneaded till it is flaky. The common practice, however, is to knead it very slightly and over ferment it—two fatal errors. As soon as the fermentation has reached a certain point which bakers call light, the kneading should be commenced. A certain degree of heat in the process of baking changes the starch of grain into dextrine, and gives (we presume) that peculiar and agreeable flavor which well-baked, lively bread has; dead, doughy bread is wanting in flavor, the heat of the oven being too low to develop the dextrine. Dextrine is soluble in water, starch is not; hence well-baked bread is easier of digestion than ill-baked bread.

HOW TO GET UP.

No one need ever get up without a bath, who can get a basin of water and a towel, and the modus operandi is on this wise:

On rising, strip off your night dress, rinse your mouth, drink a swallow of water, then fill your basin and dip your face till eyes, ears, nose and neck are well washed; wet one of your towels, (if you have two, if not, wet one corner of the one,) and with it rub briskly, arms legs, breast and chest; then place the basin on the floor, and continue the ablution with the hand instead of the towel; then put your feet in it, one after the other; drying the body meantime with the other towel, breathing hard and fast all the time, finishing by clapping and rubbing all parts of the person till a glorious reaction takes place—when dressing at your leisure, you may defy the weather, hot or cold, for one day at least, and enjoy your breakfast or a walk before it as no other man can.

N. B. Do not use a very rough towel or a flesh-brush on any account.—Herald of Health.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—One year..........$2.50; Six months..........$1.25
If not paid within six months,—One year..........$3.00; Six months..........$1.50
Five copies, to one address, six months..........$5.60
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months..........$10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS.—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMMENCE [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS [illegible] THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 471. BOSTON, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 4.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

JOY TO THE WORLD!

Joy to the world! a King doth come,
Whose rule shall be in righteousness;
Mighty in power, he comes to break
The oppressor's yoke from every neck;
He comes to bring the troubled peace,
He comes the waiting soul to bless,
Joy to the world! a King doth come.

Joy to the dwellers "in the dust"!
He comes, the great life-giving King!
And ye in Him who long have slept,
In anguish waited for and wept,
Now soon shall hear, "Awake and sing."
He waits for thee, the Bridegroom King!
All joy to thee that he doth come!

Joy to the lone and mourning flock,
Long bowed in heart and sorely tried;
Look up, rejoice, redemption's nigh,
Your groans and sighs are wafted high,
Unto the ears of Him whose bride
Ye are, and to his side
To take thee, lo! the King doth come!

Long scattered Israel, joy to thee!
Judah, rejoice! thy King doth come!
Long waited for, once crucified;
Cast off blind unbelief and pride;
His voice soon bids thee cease to roam,
Together come to thy loved home,
Then shout for joy, thy King doth come!

Ye nations, joy! the oppressor's power
Must yield unto His sovereign sway,
And laws all dark and foul with wrong,
By power of greedy lust made strong,
With judgment shall be purged away,
And one bright, glorious, golden day,
Ever abide—thy King doth come!

And our dear, groaning mother Earth,
Thy children's sins have bound thee long,
Thy comely face was rent and seared
For them, and all thy beauty marred;
Yet One shall heal thy every wrong,
And lift thee up with joy and song,—
Joy! joy to thee, thy King doth come!

Rejoice, oh Earth! ye heavens, rejoice!
Sun, moon, and stars glad anthems raise
Again for her, whom once ye sang
At her first birth, and high praise rang
Heaven's arches through; unite in praise,
All heaven and earth, to endless days;
Earth's King doth come! earth's King doth come!

So. Sodus. CARRIE HILL.

DIRECTIONS FOR CHRISTIANS

WITH REFERENCE TO CHRIST'S SPEEDY COMING.

No warnings of the New Testament are more often repeated than those relating to the return of our Lord. It is brought before us in many of the parables; our Lord and his apostles again and again renew their admonitions to be looking for and be always ready for his coming. We give a few practical directions for the fulfillment of these divine inculcations.

1. Exercise faith in the divine testimony concerning the Lord's coming, as a certain, approaching, and now near event. The personal coming of our Lord from heaven, where he now is, in glorified humanity, to this our earth, is absolutely certain. Nothing in heaven and earth can be more so. Our Lord pledges his veracity for it in the most solemn manner: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away." (Matt. 24: 35; Mark 13: 31; Luke 21: 33.) It is often mentioned with a special call to attention, thus, "Behold, I come quickly: surely I come quickly:" as if to remove any lingering doubts that the delay might occasion. It is one of the surest of all truths that our Lord will return from heaven in like manner as he ascended. (Acts 1: 11.) The whole voice of the Church in its creeds, is harmonious. And as it is certain, so it is ever approaching nearer and nearer. Each year, each month, each Sabbath, each day and each hour, shortens the intervening time. Each sacrament, as it is repeated, tells us of its approach. The Lord's Supper is appointed to "show forth the Lord's death till he come." Each baptism is a figure of the coming regeneration of the earth. Even in the days of the apostles he tells the Roman converts, after they had believed but a few years, "Now is our salvation nearer than when we believed: the night is far spent, the day is at hand." It ought, then, by us now especially to be viewed as very near; yes, considering the magnitude of the event, and all its issue, and the shortness of the interval as compared with the past 1800 years, as close at hand, even at the doors. Our chief guides here are the prophecies of Daniel and the book of Revelation, connected with the signs of the times. And let any one diligently read the opening out of these books in the writings of those faithful men who have patiently studied the subject in our own day, and whatever differences, more or less material, there may be in their views, he must see that they agree that little yet remains to be fulfilled before the Lord's appearance.

Many who have deeply studied the subject fully believe, and I cannot but concur with them, that we are in the last period of the fourth great empire, just previous to the Lord's return as revealed to Daniel; that six out of the seven seals of Revelation have been opened, six out of the seven trumpets have sounded, six out of the seven vials have been poured out. The Lord's return is also, as many of us believe, nearly connected with the seventh seal, the seventh trumpet, and seventh vial. We believe, also, that the chief prophetical dates that were to intervene, have either run their course or are nearly closing. In the strength, then, of all these prophecies, and in the manifest peculiar signs of the times, continually awakening general attention, but needing the sure word of prophecy, shining in our dark world, to give us true light; we call you, my brethren, to exercise faith in the Lord's coming, not only as certain and approaching, but also as near. We believe that we may, with a strength of emphasis that could not before have been used, say to all, "Stablish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Behold, the Judge standeth before the door." * * *

Let us confess this hope of our Lord's coming before the world. Why has it yet had so little influence? We have been too much ashamed of our hope, and have hid our light under a bushel. Why has it not yet roused, to any great extent, the mocks of the scorner and the revilings of the world? The voice of testimony has hitherto been so feeble that the world has had no occasion to trouble itself about it: the world has not been disturbed in its false peace. Why is it carefully excluded from the mass of our religious periodicals and journals? The testimony to it, from those who hold it, has hitherto been so indistinct, that the conductors of such publications have no idea of the strength of conviction with which it is held by the faithful servants of Christ. We must be more open, bold, and decided in our profession, if we would make a real impression on the whole Church of Christ.

Our blessed Master has told us, "Let your lights be burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord." This implies an open confession of our hope of his return. "With the mouth confession is made unto salvation." This is one purpose which he has in view in our attendance on the Lord's Supper; to testify to others our hope that he who died for us will come again. And be it so that we meet with ridicule and reproach from even professing christians for this confession; let us take up this cross also. No doubt Noah had many a scoff and many a mockery to endure, while engaged for one hundred and twenty years in building the ark; yet "by faith Noah, being warned by God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." All the extravagances which, through the special enmity of Satan against this truth, any who may have professed it, may at any time have mingled with it, will be very possibly laid to our charge. There is no doctrine against which that malignant adversary seems to have had more hatred, nor any which he has more striven to mix up with human infirmity. But the holy Bible ever leads us to combine true sobriety and moderation with the Lord's being at hand. "Let us who are of the day be sober, putting on the breast-plate of faith and love, and for an helmet the hope of salvation." Again, we are told," "Wherefore be sober, and hope to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." And again, "Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand." Thus entirely separated from all enthusiasm, and thus intimately associated with all truth and sober-mindedness, in the holy Scriptures, is that doctrine of the Lord's speedy return and our waiting for him which we have now set before you. Let us not, then, be ashamed of our hope. Let us avow it before all men.

Indeed, these are the truths eminently suited to the very times through which we are passing; exactly calculated to meet all the errors and iniquities, the Infidelity, the Popery, and the lawlessness of these days. If God have given us this sure light in a dark place, let us lift it on high, and "shine as lights in the world, holding forth the Word of life." This is the seasonable truth for the people of Christ himself, in a voice from heaven, in the account of the sixth vial, under which we are living, "Behold, I come as a thief; blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked and they see his shame." It is, then, clearly according to the mind of Christ that it should be distinctly announced and fully proclaimed. I call upon all his servants then, in the name of the great Lord and Master of all, to testify their hope of his return. "Confess him before men, and he will confess you before the angels of God;" yea, before his Father in heaven. Thus, "when he shall appear, you shall have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming."—Bickersteth.

For the World's Crisis.

THE ONE-SIDED QUESTION.

About the moral or christian character of those holding the non-wicked-resurrection question I have nothing to say. They may be the best of christians, and the most honest of saints, for aught I know. Why not? Do we not know that in all times it often comes to pass that the most devoted people of God hold the most wild, unaccountable, strange and foolish notions?

I must declare, moreover, that for some of those who hold this notion I have the greatest respect and christian esteem; and for some of them I have none at all! But that matters not here or there. It is the thing itself I now write about.

I cannot set myself satisfactorily to conceive what kind of a mind that must be which first imagined this most singular idea. Some questions are like a spider, with legs all around; but this has no legs at all. Some questions are like a crab, crawling sidewise; but this does not crawl any way. Some questions are blest with two sides; but this has but one, a fearfully short and crooked one. I cannot see in it good sense, good philosophy, or one grain of Scriptural truthfulness; for the good reason that not one or the other of these elements is in it any where.

What good, on earth or in heaven, can the hobbying on this idea do? What good did it ever do? Has it converted a soul to Christ any where? Does it quicken and revive the saints? Where? Who? If it is "the plain truth of God," why did not some one, at some time in the past, have or give a most distant hint of it? How wise we are in this age!

But it is said that the "Pharisees did hold this doctrine." Well, let it be so. I admit that there is some proof of that. But they did not seem to hold it as now it is held. They were not materialists. So did the wicked Sadducees hold it, and more too. So did the French infidels hold it, and more too. But must we take them for our guides in theology?

Some questions seem foolish. Some questions seem more foolish. Some questions seem most foolish. But this seems, to speak out of correct grammar, superlatively most foolish. It challenges the most simple, positive, and direct testimony of God. It laughs to scorn and contempt the most guarded and unequivocal words of the Lord of truth. There stands the word in all its shining beauty: "All that are in the graves shall come forth." What is the use to pull, haul, and wriggle? There it stands yet! That word is of more importance than all the pretty talk of all the smirking, smiling talkers under heaven.

Friends, who teach this, I tell you, in all kindness, this warfare you are engaged in is a most unequal one. You will fail. God will triumph. This will die with all other monstrosities and abortions. You are making a most bold advance in the wake of exploded French infidelity. It will be of no use to rail and say bitter things. That has, to me, from the first only manifested a want of argument. I tell you in the name of Christ, you will find it hard to kick against the holy goads of the Bible.

I have, with others, waited and waited long for an argument on this question. I have seen none, heard none. That which is called such, to me does not even deserve the name of a distant inference. O! why not believe the simple Bible? "All that are in the graves"—"both the just and unjust."

EDWIN BURNHAM.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SPIRIT.

How much we have heard some say having the Spirit was the main thing, thus reasoning to evade submission to the word. To be in possession of the Spirit without submission to the requirements of the gospel, is a doctrine to which I am a stranger. May God keep me so.

By the aid of God's grace, we will collect a few passages in proof of the necessity of having the Spirit and walking after the Spirit, if we would inherit the world to come.

That we can be "filled with the Spirit" is evident by the high moral purity and perfection of christian graces, essential to our salvation, attributed to the Holy Spirit; I do not mean independent of faith in, and obedience to, the word of God. The Spirit and the word agree. With the apostle, we believe there is "one Spirit, even as ye are called," etc. Eph. 4: 4. It is by this Spirit the Father draws us unto Christ. "It is written in the prophets, . . . Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned (submitted to the striving of the Spirit) of the Father," etc. "And the Lord said, My Spirit shall not always strive with man." John 6: 44; Gen. 6: 3.

In John 7: 38 Jesus says, "He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water. But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believed on him should receive." This last quoted accords with Peter, in Acts 2. When his audience "were pricked in their heart" (giving credit—believed), then, on condition that they "repent and be baptized," they had the promise of "the gift of the Holy Ghost."

The above scripture is plain proof that "the one Spirit" first strives with those who do not resist it, but have their heart opened, as Lydia's was, to "attend unto the things which were spoken of Paul." By that same "one Spirit" is sealed for "incorruption," or, "immortality, eternal life." 2 Cor. 1: 21, 22;—"Now he which establisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God; who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts." Also in Eph. 1: 13, it is declared that they trusted in Christ "after that ye heard the word of truth. . . . in whom also, after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory."

Again, in 2 Thess. 2: 13, we are told that we are chosen to salvation "through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth: whereunto he called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ." In 1 Pet. 1: 2, we have the fact of our "sanctification of the Spirit," clearly expressed; and in Rom. 15: 16, we are informed "that the offering (mar.—sacrificing) up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost." Rom. 8: 14,—"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received (see 1 Cor. 2: 12,) the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, (Many misapply adoption, quoting it to be fulfilled at conversion; whereas, the Spirit is the earnest of adoption—or, redemption. Ver. 23; Eph. 1: 13, 14; chap. 4: 30,) whereby we cry, Abba, Father." And hence, said Paul to the Galatians (chap. 4: 9), "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father."

Therefore, the terms by which a state of high perfection of christian graces is designated, are as follows: "Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he (Christ) is pure." "He that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous."—1 John 3: 3, 7. Again, "Because as he is, so are we in this world,"—perfect in love produced by the Spirit. "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as He walked."—1 John 2: 6. "Follow peace . . . and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."—Heb. 12: 14. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification"; and hence the mortification of the deeds of the body, upon which life depends. Rom. 8: 13, with many others, one more of which I will mention. "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."—Matt. 5: 48.

Now it is evident that a state of moral purity like that taught in these texts, and upon the attainment of which our salvation depends, can be reached only by the assistance of God's Spirit. We can only "abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost." Rom. 15: 13. And certain it is that we can "wait for the hope of righteousness" only "through the Spirit." Gal. 5: 5.

Hence, how are we to be "purified"? We answer, "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren," etc. In Phil. 1: 11, we read of "being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ." And in Eph. 5: 9, we are informed that the fruit of "the Spirit is in all . . . righteousness," and of course we can never have the fruit of the Spirit without the Spirit to produce it. True indeed it is that, "if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness."—Rom. 8: 10.

Again, "to walk after the Spirit (Rom. 8: 1, 4,) is to be led and guided by His counsels and motions; to regulate and order our conversation by the rule and direction of God's word and Spirit, which every one will confess would be walking as Jesus walked; and we are required not only that, but in Gal. 5: 16, to "walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh," etc.

This high moral purity and perfection of christian graces, so clearly enjoined upon the church, upon which the salvation of each member depends, should lead us to conform to the requirements of the gospel, and "be filled with the Spirit."

Dear Brn., we can obtain more of the Spirit by asking. Every one who prays, in prayer exhibits faith in the Spirit's teaching, if he denies it not when he riseth up. Therefore, let us be holy in heart; prove it by our lives, living prepared for the coming of the Just One. Let every one remember that he or she must give an account of themselves to God; then, if not ready, get ready for it. Some will be deceived when Jesus comes, who by rejecting the truth and resisting His Spirit will receive the awful sentence, "I know you not." Then they are undeceived; but it is too late.

Where is that moral power which characterized the primitive church? Where is that "light of the world," that "city set on an hill, that cannot be hid"? Matt. 5: 14. Have we on the whole armor of God, and does our life prove that we are victorious? There is need of more praying, not so much making prayers. No! but, look to God with living faith, and the blessing will come. Let each, Jacob like, hold on. Faith and obedience, through the Holy Spirit, will give success.

Then come! ye weary ones, look down no longer; faint not; the prize is just before you. A short while will bring us there. Where? Home in the kingdom; when we through the blood of the Lamb shall have gained eternal life in glory, honor, and immortality. Let all determine to walk with God. Hence, "trust in the Lord with all thy heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

It is certainly our privilege to attain this, and as He has promised to do it, he will; but not unless we live for it. O! then, let us determine to follow Him closely, and "be filled with the Spirit," "praying in the Holy Ghost." M. H. MORRISON.

New Glasgow, C. E.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUE LITERALISM: WHAT IS IT?

Is it true literalism to interpret the Scriptures figuratively? If so, then I must confess that I do not understand language. Some people harp on "true literalism" and "divine principles," just as though they alone were able to introduce them.

Is it true literalism when Christ says, "The hour is coming in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation,"—to say he meant "the hour was coming when all the world would hear the gospel"?

Is it true literalism to say that "Paul taught the non-resurrection of the wicked," when he says, "But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all that is written in the law and in the prophets; and have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust"? Paul said he believed all that was written in the law and in the prophets. Most people consider Job a prophet, and he said, "The wicked are reserved to the day of destruction; they shall be BROUGHT FORTH at the day of wrath." Job 21: 30. Did Paul believe that?

Paul said he had "hope toward God, which they (the Jews) also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust." Did Paul know as much about "divine principles" as modern theorizers do? If Paul argued from "divine principles," then it is a divine principle to raise the wicked!

Is it true literalism to say that the wicked will never be raised, when the Revelator says he saw the dead, small and great, STAND before God? And were they all good, when he says, "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life, was cast into the lake of fire?" Shocking indeed!

"Principles" that teach such a doctrine as that, I apprehend, are more human than "divine." J. W. TAYLOR.

Chatham Valley, Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HIGHER LIFE—ITS EFFECTS.

"Oh, love, thou bottomless abyss!
My sins are swallowed up in thee:
Covered is my righteousness,
Nor spot of guilt remains on me,
While Jesus' blood, through earth and skies,
Mercy, free, boundless mercy, cries!"

Light! light! LIGHT! Holiness is light, light from heaven, spiritual light. "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. . . . If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."—1 John 1: 7.

Nothing so enlightens, invigorates, sends a thrill of ecstatic joy through the whole being, as holiness—the cleansing, purifying power of the Holy Spirit. The moment the follower of Jesus receives the pentecostal baptism—the tongue of fire,—that moment new light dawns, beams forth like the noon-day star! He sees with new eyes, hears with new ears, rejoices with new joy. "Behold, all things become new." He is now prepared, as never hitherto, to face the enemy, "fight the good fight," storm the fort of Satan.

The fresh impetus given to the soul is marvelous on the reception of this superlative grace, the renovating, purifying of the whole being. This was true of Isaiah when the live coal from God's altar was applied to his lips, his iniquity taken away, and his sin purged. There, when the call was made for help in the battle-field, Isaiah could say with a hearty good will, "Here am I; send me."—Isa. 6: 1-8.

Holiness is both light and power. It was so under the old dispensation, it was so under the new. It is so now. It will be so forever. Glory to Father, Son, and the Holy Spirit.

New light and strength are received; wonderful! The change is wonderful! The very moment an individual receives the baptismal fire, the burning coal from God's altar, that moment new light is imparted. Previously to these sealing, sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit, the Bible (to many) is comparatively a sealed book, a dead letter; but now the true light shineth brightly; the Scriptures open with new beauty, new grandeur, new glory; wondrous things appear out of God's law. The individual receiving the witness of entire sanctification exclaims with the Psalmist, joyfully, "O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day. . . . I have more understanding than all my teachers, for thy testimonies are my meditation. . . . How sweet are thy words to my taste, yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth."

The Bible becomes a new book. A Congregational minister, after embracing the doctrine of perfect love, remarks thus: "It seems that I obtain a clearer knowledge of more Scripture in one day than I could before in a month. And then what a conviction of the truth! The Bible, O how inestimably precious! It is my meditation day and night. How full it is! It meets my every want, answers all my difficulties, solves all my perplexities."

How was it with the primitive disciples previous to the pentecostal baptism? They were blind, ignorant, timid, fearful, doubtful. The way of salvation to them was obscure. They saw men as trees walking. How was it after Pentecost, when the tongue of fire was given, the Spirit poured out? Darkness disappeared, fled away; new light, new hope, new joy burst forth gloriously.

The Holy Spirit now took of the things that belonged to Christ and showed them unto them. They now went forth with renewed boldness, like a strong man armed. One could chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight. The previous teachings of Christ came home with redoubled light and power. The way of salvation through Christ's mediation and sacrifice shone brightly. "Holiness to the Lord" was written on their banners henceforth and forever!

Very many previously to this special unction from on high could see no passages bearing directly on the subject of entire sanctification or perfect love in this life; but on the reception of this gospel fulness, almost every page was radiant with the blessed doctrine. Proof texts on proof texts loomed up brightly, gloriously. "Now with open face they behold as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." O, what a blessing! what a blessing!

Furthermore, God graciously answers the prayers of those embracing heartily this full salvation. Ministers, that toiled on for years without any visible or apparent success attending their labors, and every thing around them appeared barren as the barren fig tree, on the application of this burning coal, this fire celestial, went forth with renewed strength of purpose, new faith, new zeal, new hope. God very soon literally poured out his Spirit, and multitudes of sinners rushed to God's altar, crying out, "Lord, save, we perish." Their prayers were answered almost miraculously in the conversion of their friends and neighbors. God set his seal of approbation smilingly to this inner life or entireness in his service.

We might fill volumes delineating facts on facts illustrative of the efficacy of the blood of Jesus in cleansing from all sin in this life, and the glorious results which are sure to follow.

The history of the church in all ages is a living testimony of the truths herein delineated, and especially that holiness is power. It is so, must be so. Heaven ordains it that whenever and wherever God's people take him at his word, arise, shine, put on strength, lay aside every weight and the sin that doth easily beset them, run with patience the race set before them, looking to Jesus continually, the author and finisher of their faith, resisting unto blood (if need be), striving against sin, then and there salvation streams overflowingly; angels tune their golden harps afresh—"Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will to man."

Beloved, why tarry a moment when God is urging, commanding every soul naming the name of Christ to "come out from the world and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing"; to "wash and be clean"? An high way shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein."—Isa. 35: 8.

"Wake up, brother! wake up, sister!
Seek, O seek this holy state;
None but holy ones can enter
Through the pure celestial gate."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH ORGANIZATION.

Dear Brethren of the Advent churches: I have learned some very important lessons, by forty-two years' experience, in being a member of some church a good part of the time since I enlisted under Prince Immanuel; and I have been in a few church meetings, and seen some things that were rather disagreeable, and some things that were agreeable. When I saw the leaven of malice manifest itself, it was rather disagreeable; but when I saw the leaven of sincerity, truth and love, manifest itself, then it was very agreeable.

But, dear brethren, is it not too often the case that church organizations are got up for the very purpose of gratifying a few members who wish to have the pre-eminence, or like very much to be officers in the church? Now I wish to speak with the utmost tenderness and kindness, for I do not wish to hurt the feelings of any one in the least. I sincerely love my Advent brethren and sisters, and want them all to foresee the evil, and hide themselves, and not pass on to be punished.

Church organizations are sometimes necessary, and perhaps for the best in some places, especially in cities; but, look out, and be very careful to avoid the leaven of malice and hypocrisy, and get as much of the leaven of sincerity, love, humility, honesty and kindness into the church as you possibly can; and where every member of a church is faithful in prayer for God's Spirit and wisdom to guide the church aright, those lovely christian graces will be manifested in a prominent degree, and then all will be well.

But I have heard and known it to be a fact, that in some places where they have organized a church, or churches, they soon get into trouble, and have to disorganize; and why? Because those who were chosen as officers of the church assumed the place of rulers over it, instead of servants to the church, which was entirely wrong. Now it is a pity that those who espouse the cause of our precious Redeemer do not study the Bible more, and learn what the teachings of the Spirit and Word are. For I positively believe that if the professed followers of the Redeemer would thoroughly study the teachings of Christ and the apostles, and store their minds with the rules of the gospel, there would never be any jars or schisms in a church.

The good Apostle Paul informs us in Gal. 3: 28, 29, that there is neither male nor female, bond or free, Jew or Gentile, but we are all one in Christ Jesus; and if we be Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. Here, you see, the apostle makes no provision for officers to rule over the church, but all are one in Christ. But the church as a body holds the government over its own affairs, and is, or should be, under Christ as its head, and should be governed by him alone; and if one, two, three, or more, are chosen to manage the affairs of the church, they should be leaders or ensamples to the flock, and not usurp authority over the church.

Some of the cautions I have alluded to are recorded in the New Testament, as follows: Luke 12: 1,—"Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy." 1 Cor. 5: 7,—"Purge out the old leaven of malice." 1 Cor. 5: 6, tells us that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump"; and also in Gal. 5: 9 it is repeated.

All churches should be on their guard, and not let Christ dividers get into the church and poison its members, and so bring a grievous wound on the church. I must say I am afraid there are a number of such among the Advent brethren, and I positively know I have seen some of them myself.

May the good Lord keep the Advent brethren from all needless hobbies, which tend to the sowing of discord and strife among the brethren. I once heard of a reformation in a certain neighborhood, where there were fifty brought out in religion, and met together for a long time, and had very good meetings. Five ministers of five different denominations came among them, each saying his church was the best, or the most respectable; and each of them got away ten of the converts, which divided them into five parts; after which there was no more union, no more happy meetings. Were not these men Christ dividers?

May the divine Spirit keep us all in peace and harmony till our King comes to reign. Amen. B. PERHAM.

Brattleboro, Vt.

☞ Do the right thing always, for it will be beneficial to yourself and others.

THE TENDENCY OF THE AGE.

BY REV. [illegible]

1. There is a strange tendency among men to turn from deep and thorough renovation, and seek in external polish that which is wanting in internal worth. Rigorous discipline made ancient Greece and Rome the terror of the world in their respective ages, but this fatal tendency snared them in its delusive net, and, yielding that rigid, self-denying, thorough discipline which had made them conquerors, they sought to awe the world into reverence and submission by ostentatious display of wealth and power. Their massive ruins attest the lamentable error they committed. These are not exceptions, or solitary examples, in the constellation of nations. This tendency is the mighty, hidden spring that first dismembers and then annihilates.

2. Neither is it confined to the political world. Social regulations, whether originating in law or in the special operation of organized bodies of men, are subject to the same fatal delusion. Public opinion is too much the lever that moves society. What will the world think?—not, What is right?—is the great question with multitudes at the present day, and thus the sentiments of corrupt mankind become the (false) means of social advancement. As a consequence, there is a looseness, a vague indefiniteness, in regard to right and wrong, which opens wide the door for the easy entrance of immorality, and vice, and crime. Under the superficial reign of public opinion, society is now rushing with constantly increasing velocity toward the dark shades of total demoralization. Men are forgetting that they are surrounded by beings like themselves, who have the same rights, the same nature, and the same interests; and the selfishness of the age, upheld by the tacit consent of the popular voice, is transforming society into a vast engine of robbery, where, supported by the complacent smiles of the multitudes, gigantic schemes of fraud, and alluring vices of monstrous deformity, are engulfing thousands in utter ruin.

3. But, more to be deplored than aught else is the startling fact, that even in Zion, "the perfection of beauty," this "mystery of iniquity doth (already) work." How terrible the departure from primitive simplicity and holy living! The old landmark is, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world," Gal. 4: 14. Now, Christ crucified is a "stumbling-block" and "foolishness" to many nominal Christians. The cross-bearing way has been exchanged for the easier track of selfish gratification. An unholy compound has been substituted for simple faith in Jesus. Instead of the separating knife to sever the cords of jointure with the world and the flesh and the Devil, now we see the grappling irons by which a union is sought to be formed between Christ and Belial—between God and Mammon. In place of "the fruit of the Spirit," which "is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance," we find hatred, moroseness, strife, resentment, harshness, evil acts and thoughts, infidelity, anger and intemperance fostered and pampered in the so-called church of the first-born. The address of Paul to the Galatians—"Having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?"—is an inquiry applicable to many of this day. Pride for humility, worldly-conformity for imitation of Jesus, carnal gratification for holy self-denial, disputing pomp for worship in Spirit and in truth, foolish questions which gender strife, instead of the unvarnished story of the cross, a rest in forms and ceremonies in place of the life and power of godliness; these changes are the result of the tendency to superficiality which exists among men.

4. Yet there is sometimes a partial awakening of some portions of mankind to the magnitude of existing evils, and a consequent effort to remedy them. But these very efforts show how complete is the bondage of the age to this tendency. Look at the evil of intemperance, for instance. Here is an evil general in its character, breathing desolation upon soul and body, whose effects will be written in terrible characters upon the ever-during archways of Eternity, which has for its cause those withering soul diseases—avarice, and sensuality; and which is connived at by legislative sanctions. Met in what way? By a few secret societies. And whence came secret societies? They had their origin in the hot-beds of infidelity, and, (those of comparatively modern date), with the evident design of undermining the christian religion, by opening a door into a labyrinth that might appear, to the unsuspecting and unthinking world, equal in utility and grandeur to the christian temple, but without the so-called opprobrium of the cross. They have become numerous, and many are their ostensible objects; but they are local in their character, external in their remedial application, and altogether the creatures of circumstance. The remedies of the age for giant evils are, in the main, altogether inadequate to their superficial nature and the indefinite manner of their application.

It is not difficult to perceive that the true reformer has to meet and contend against this tendency, and that it constitutes a most wily foe. But although it is subtle, and woven intimately not only into the framework of society, but into the very heart of corrupt humanity, and, in consequence, a real Gibraltar, impregnable to any common assault, yet it must be overcome before aught else can be done. Deep, thorough discipline is an all-essential preparatory step to be taken by him who would be a successful soldier, statesman, philanthropist, or Bible christian.

There is but one antidote for this tendency of the human heart, and this remedy is a sure one. And here we wish to urge the claims of the christian religion as the remedy, and of the Bible as the guide-book to lead to the thorough discipline.—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

ACTS 24: 15.

Acts 24: 15 is an irrefutable proof of Paul's belief in a general resurrection: "And (I, Paul) have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust."

The above text is a compound sentence, consisting of three simple sentences, namely: 1. I (Paul) "have hope toward God;" 2, "which they themselves (a part of the Jews) also allow"; and 3, "that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." The first sentence, which contains the person or thing spoken of (Paul), is called the subjective sentence; the second, commencing with the relative pronoun "which," is a mere parenthesis, thrown in here by Paul to show that there was another party besides him who believed the same as he (Paul) did, and which sentence may at any time be left out without altering the sense of the principal sentence in the least. The third and last sentence, which contains the object of the person spoken of in the first sentence, is called the objective sentence.

Now every school-boy, who knows something about the grammatical construction of a compound sentence, will tell you, my dear reader, that every thing which is said in an objective sentence, like the one before us, must by all means be applied first to the person or thing spoken of in the subjective sentence; after that to the second party spoken of in the parenthetic sentence. The little word "also" denotes that both parties believe the same thing. If we leave out the parenthetic sentence, "which they themselves also allow," which, according to all grammatical rule, may be done at any time without altering the sense of the principal sentence in the least, the text reads thus: "And (I, Paul) have hope toward God, that there will be a resurrection of the dead, just and unjust." The subjective and objective sentences are two necessary parts of a compound sentence, but a relative or parenthetic clause is not; it is merely an addition to a compound sentence, which may sometimes be of importance, but it never alters the thing spoken in the objective sentence.

To make the thing as plain as possible, I present to the reader a compound sentence similar to the above, and I am convinced that every intelligent and unprejudiced mind will and must see at once that Paul and the "they themselves," in Acts 24: 15, believed one and the same thing, namely: the resurrection of the just and unjust.

The Methodists believe, which the Presbyterians also allow, that a christian can both fight and pray. Now in this sentence will it do to apply the "fight" in the last or objective sentence to the first party (Methodists), and the "fight and pray" to the second party (Presbyterians) contained in the second or parenthetic clause? or must we not rather apply the "fight and pray" to both parties? Every honest and intelligent mind will say at once, Undoubtedly to both parties.

Well, then, do likewise with the text in question, and you will doubt no more that Paul and a portion of the Jews ("they themselves") believed one and the same thing, namely: the resurrection of the dead, both just and unjust.

L. REIMER.

For the World's Crisis.

ACTION!

Time hastens. Probation shortens. Wickedness increases. Men are dying. The awful crisis is coming. Men's hearts are failing them. Iniquity is abounding, and the old enemy is crowding men the broad road to ruin with a rush hardly to be withstood. Some stand still and wonder, and they will wonder and perish!

But this is the time for action. The word from headquarters is, Up and onward! and in the strength of Israel's God do valiantly. It is no time for sloth and inactivity; no time for indolence or indifference; no time for careless, half-made effort, but for bold, progressive, energetic and decisive movement, on to victory.

Meetings can be held now. The evenings are of good length, and there seems to be an ear to hear the truthful doctrine we preach, although it brings reproach. Meetings of days and conferences should be held in all directions in new places. The people should have the privilege of hearing, Behold He cometh! The watchmen should not hold their peace day or night now. Light shines on our pathway. My confidence is increasing. The word is fulfilling, infidelity spreading, and the Lord coming!

Brethren, be strong in faith, heads uplifted, and work while the day lasts. Save men out of the fire. Let all be up and doing.

Lee, N. H. L. BOUTELL.

For the World's Crisis.

HOME RELIGION.

The hardest place in all the world to live religion, say the most experienced christians, is at home.

Were the saints of God all gathered in one vast ampitheatre, and I standing in the lowest place, (which most befits me), and should look up and with a trumpet tone ask all whose religion stood the test of home to hold up the right hand, I wonder how many hands would go up?

Of one thing I am certain, my own hand would hang down if the question were (as it is), does it always stand the test at home? Were there any latitude given, I could hold up my hand, but there is none. Does it always stand the test? This is the standard. It is a high mark, I know, but I think it is the "mark for the prize." Amen.

Your sister, with her eye upon the mark,

Hammonton, N. J. E. S. WILLARD.

For the World's Crisis.

MR. BAXTER IN IRELAND.—A correspondent says that Mr. Baxter "is preaching with acceptance in Ireland to congregations of from one to five thousand. He writes that he finds much genuine fruit of the Irish revival in the north of Ireland (Protestant Ireland), and that all he had heard of the piety of that people is verified. There are some young men who attend closely to their business through the week, who devote their Sabbaths and spare time to preaching and teaching the gospel, wherever they can find an audience, either publicly or privately. Some accept the Advent doctrine. The advent is much more preached in England than in America, and meets with more ready and general acceptance."

We are glad to hear so good news from across the Atlantic. May God speed the truth.

There are many shining lights, which are not also burning lights.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1864.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

WRITE AT ONCE.

We would urge those who have received bills to write at once if they wish their papers continued. We think there has never been a time when our paper was more needed than now; hence, we do not like to part with any of our friends, whose pleasant acquaintance we have so long enjoyed. But if they request us to make them no more visits, we shall be obliged to submit, though reluctantly. These times are very ominous of great events, and especially the crowning one of all,—the coming of Jesus. New light is bursting forth on the prophetic periods that all should see.

Instead of dissolving our happy acquaintance through the paper, let us renew it; and unite heart and hand for the short time that yet remains of our pilgrimage. Let us all double our diligence in the great work before us. These times call for men who have true christian courage. Let every soldier of the cross see that he has "on the whole armor of God."

THE SEALED BOOK.

Whenever a letter is sealed, we understand its contents cannot be known till the seal is opened. The same is true of a book, or any other reading matter. In Dan. 12: 4, we read, "O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end." Then it follows that no one can understand that which is sealed in the book of Daniel till "the time of the end." The great point of interest, in Daniel's mind, was the length of the vision,—"How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" The question is repeated, "O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things? And he said, Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end." The angel then goes on to say, "The wise shall understand." Understand what? Evidently that which is sealed up. And what is that? The time mentioned in the vision of Daniel, about which he makes such earnest inquiries. As that is sealed till "the time of the end," it is certain that it cannot be understood till that period arrives; hence all efforts to understand it before "the time of the end" must prove a failure.

Another point should not be overlooked in the examination of this subject, and that is, that any system of chronology based on a foundation laid before "the time of the end" must be incorrect; otherwise it would not be sealed till "the time of the end"; for if we could settle on the right time to begin the prophetic periods, any school-boy could tell where they would end. But all systems of chronology, for several hundred years, have been based on Ptolemy's canon, made out in the second century; and if Ptolemy's system was correct, then of course the periods in Daniel were unsealed in the second century, which could not have been "the time of the end."

That we have now come to "the time of the end" appears very evident from the signs of the times; for near the end of this dispensation, certain events were to transpire which would show that the coming of Christ is at hand, as clearly as budding fig-trees show "that summer is nigh." Those events, we believe, are accomplished,—the darkening of the sun and moon, and the falling stars,—and now we begin to witness "upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity," which are among the last indications that "the time of the end" has come, and that the Savior will soon appear, therefore we are where we may expect the seal to be removed from the prophetic periods. How can this be done? We think of but two ways: either show that the periods have been applied to the wrong events, or that Ptolemy's canon is wrong. We can see no chance to show the first, because the events are so definitely specified. For instance, in Dan. 9: 25 we read,—"Know, therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks." These sixty-nine weeks can be applied to no other period but the one here mentioned. They must reach from the specified commandment "unto the Messiah." It is certain that these must be weeks of years, because no commandment went forth "to build Jerusalem" within sixty-nine literal weeks of the first advent of our Messiah. Besides, Jerusalem had been built for centuries before Christ came, and hence a commandment to rebuild it when it was already built would be ridiculous.

We now see no other way to unseal the book of Daniel but for some one to show in "the time of the end" that Ptolemy's canon is incorrect. This can be done only by an astronomer, or one who can calculate eclipses, and point out Ptolemy's errors, if he has any. It should be kept in mind that, according to Ptolemy's canon, we can find no "commandment to restore and build Jerusalem," that was given sixty-nine weeks, or four hundred and eighty-three years before the birth of the Messiah. The one given by Cyrus is the one that corresponds with the prophecy; but Ptolemy makes that commandment five hundred and thirty-six years B. C.; but we can have only four hundred and eighty-three. Prideaux, when speaking on the subject, says:—"None, who understand this prophecy to relate either to the cutting off, or the coming of the Messiah, do begin from the first of Cyrus; for, according to this computation, no chronology can reconcile them." Let us read the commandment given to Cyrus: "Thus saith the Lord thy Redeemer, . . . that confirmeth the word of his servant, and performeth the counsel of his messengers; that saith to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Judah, Ye shall be built; and I will raise up the decayed places thereof." Who shall do this? "That saith of CYRUS, He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure." What shall he do?—"Even saying to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be built; and to the temple, Thy foundation shall be laid."—Isa. 44: 24–28. "Thus saith the Lord to his anointed, to Cyrus." What does he say?—"He shall build my city and he shall let go my captives, not for price nor reward, saith the Lord of hosts." —Isa. 45: 13. This prophecy was given more than a hundred years before the birth of Cyrus.

When speaking of the captivity of the Jews at Babylon, Jeremiah says:—"These nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. And it shall come to pass when the seventy years are accomplished, that I will punish the king of Babylon, and that nation saith the Lord, for their iniquity, and will make it perpetual desolations."—Jer. 25: 11–12. "For thus saith the Lord, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10.

Let us now look for the accomplishment of these prophecies. In Ezra we read:—"Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth; and he hath charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel, (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem. And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, besides the freewill offering for the house of God that is in Jerusalem. Then rose up the chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests, and the Levites, with all them whose spirit God had raised, to go up to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem. And all they that were about them strengthened their hands with vessels of silver, with gold, with goods, and with beasts, and with precious things, besides all that was willingly offered. Also Cyrus the king brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem, and had put them in the house of his gods; even those did Cyrus king of Persia bring forth by the hand of Mithredath the treasurer, and numbered them unto Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah."—Ezra 1: 1–8.

The foregoing just fills the prophecy, but the trouble has been, that Ptolemy's canon dates it 536 B. C., hence the sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, could not be made to extend from this commandment "unto the Messiah the Prince." If it can be proved that Ptolemy's canon is wrong, then we may expect the time to be unsealed. This has been most successfully accomplished by Bro. W. C. Thurman; who has also very clearly proved that the commandment of Cyrus went forth B. C. 488. Sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, from this date bring us to B. C. 5, just where chronologers prove that "Messiah the Prince" was born. Praise the Lord for the light that now shines on the prophetic word.

COMMENCEMENNT OF THE PROPHETIC PERIODS.

For several years we have been fully satisfied that the prophetic periods of Daniel must be understood before the second coming of Christ; otherwise, the Scripture would be broken; but Jesus says, "The Scripture cannot be broken." John 10: 35. We have seen no light on the prophetic periods for the past nine years, till now; hence we could not write or preach on them. We have been anxiously waiting for the light to appear, feeling ready and willing to embrace and publish it when seen, regardless of the frowns of a scoffing world, and a lukewarm church. We have but little hope that those who do not truly love Jesus and his appearing will receive the light on this important subject. They will at once refer to past mistakes and failures, and conclude that the result will again be the same; hence many treat the matter with more contempt than ever; for at the present time, a very large number of the unconverted have come to the conclusion, through the teaching of the spirits and their followers, that the Bible alone is poor authority to establish any doctrine. They frequently say, "If the Bible is true, you make out a very good case, but we don't believe your book." But if the true light has at last shone upon the prophetical periods, "the wise shall understand;" and they will rejoice in the truth, and prepare for "the marriage of the Lamb."

But we took up our pen this time to make a remark concerning the "commencement of the prophetic periods" in Daniel. In another column will be seen an article on "the sealed book;" in which we show that, according to Thurman's Chronology, the sixty-nine weeks, of Dan. 7; 25, begin at the decree of Cyrus, B. C. 488, and end at the birth of the Messiah, about four years before the commencement of the christian era, at the point established by the best authorities. But he does not make the sixty-nine weeks a part of the seventy weeks in Dan. 9: 24; neither does he make the sixty-two weeks of verse 26, and the one week of verse 27, parts of the seventy weeks of Dan. 9: 24, but shows clearly that all the four periods are distinct from each other. The seventy weeks begin with the 2300 days of Dan. 8: 14, because they are cut off from them. The sixty-nine weeks, as already shown, begin 488 B. C. with "the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem;" the sixty-two weeks begin at the time the wall was finished, which Bro. Thurman shows was B. C. 406, and the "one week" begins at the end of the seventy.

We purpose to give his arguments on these points soon.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

A Bro. from Parma, Michigan, writes:—"Enclosed please find five dollars for the Tract Fund. I love money, but I love the cause of Christ more. I have but little of this world's goods. I am at work on a farm by the month, but I cheerfully give a portion of my earnings for the cause I love so well."

Who else will imitate this noble example? Cannot a thousand of our readers give five dollars to the tract fund, and never miss it? while many others can do as some have done, give their tens, fifties, and even hundreds? When Jesus comes, we think those who have put money into the tract fund will find it returning to them a very large interest. Come, try it.

THURMAN'S CHRONOLOGY.

As before intimated, we purpose soon to give our readers a digest of Bro. Wm. Thurman's noted work on Bible Chronology. It is destined, we think, to work a complete revolution in this department of biblical study; He overturns Ptolemy's Canon, which has been the basis of chronological dates, and, by so doing, has introduced order and harmony into the before confused state of this portion of the Scriptures. It should be a cause of much rejoicing among Bible students, to know that the seal on the periods in Daniel's vision is at last broken, and that light is now shining brightly on that portion of Scripture.

Bro. Thurman remarks in the preface to his work, "The truth-testing powers of astronomy having removed the seal and opened the book, that all important question,—'Is the Bible the book of God?' is ANSWERED NOW; or, at least, the author, who was not only a deist, but even doubted the existence of a God, can now truly say,—not that 'I believe,' but—'I KNOW that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth.'" Job, 19: 25. The following truthful remarks, found in his work, are worthy of a candid consideration:—"The prejudice even of the deist is not so impervious to the light of truth, as that of those whose god is the custom of the age in which they live, and whose faith is but an assent to the religion of their fathers."

We think no one can read this chronology without being impressed that the writer is master of the subject, and also convinced with the correctness of his conclusions. Eld. J. Litch, editor of the Advent Herald, when speaking of the work says:

"We have been more than gratified with the lucid and forcible manner in which the chronology of the world is taken up and analysed. As we have already said, he lays violent hands on the canon of Ptolemy, on which all chronological writers have based their respective theories, and shows numerous errors in eclipses given by that celebrated writer, of sufficient number and magnitude to invalidate his system, and render all systems based upon it unreliable. . . . Admitting the astronomical facts to be as he (Thurman) asserts them, he has gained the day; Ptolemy is fairly disposed of, and we must look elsewhere for a basis for our chronological faith."

The New York Chronicle, an able weekly of the Baptist denomination, when speaking of Bro. Thurman's work, says:—

"The primary object of the author seems to have been to establish a correct chronology, and by a careful investigation, we are convinced that he has succeeded in so doing. It is indeed remarkable to see how sacred and profane writers are reconciled; and it is the only work on chronology, in which it is clearly shown that one but substantiates the other. It is truly sublime to observe the harmonizing of those prophetic dates which have never before been properly explained. . . . The work contains more original matter, and does more to reconcile the Scriptures, and explain the prophetic dates than any other yet published. The infidel, atheist or deist cannot, with a mind free from prejudice, make himself master of its contents without being compelled to confess that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God; and the christian, by doing the same, is inspired with the faith which fills the soul with ecstasies of joy, enabling him to 'look up,' knowing that his redemption draweth nigh."

His work is no echo from some author, it is original; and yet he confirms some of the best established points in chronology, and introduces harmony for the confusion of other chronologers, whose systems depended on Ptolemy's canon. According to Ptolemy, the decree of Cyrus, (Isa. 44: 28, 45: 13; Ezra 1: 1–4,) restore and build Jerusalem, went forth B. C., 536; but Bro. Thurman shows that it was B. C. 488, at which point the sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years begin, ending B. C. 5, when our Savior was born. It is claimed, we think, by all chronologers, that the christian era, or our A. D., began about the fifth year after the birth of Christ, so that we are now about 1869 years from the time he was born.

ONE FOR THE KING OF KINGS.

The following was clipped from the Chicago Daily Tribune, of Sept. 9th, 1864:

"FOR NEXT PRESIDENT.—Straws best show which way the wind blows. Yesterday a vote for the next President was taken on the Michigan Central train from this city to Detroit, by Mr. S. M. Bush, with the following result: Votes polled, 182; for Lincoln, 104; McClellan, 59; no choice, 9; the King of kings, 1."

The one for "the King of kings" was our own; and we are purposed to give none for any other candidate. While others are making gigantic efforts to secure the election of their candidates, will the friends of Jesus be indifferent to the interests of his cause; and, instead of being filled with his Spirit, allow themselves to be baptized in the filth of political mud? Remember one part of "pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father, is this; . . . to keep" ourselves "unspotted from the world." Now is the time for prayer and watchfulness.

"THE LAST ISM."

There have been a great many isms in our world's history, but it is said the last one has come, which is Spiritualism; so the Spiritualists say; and we are inclined to think they are correct in this statement, because there is good reason to believe that Spiritualism will absorb all the systems of error in the world.

The following are some of the sayings of Spiritualists:—

"The true church of God is the whole family of humanity, every single soul of which is a true and faithful member. Every man and woman that now lives on this earth, and ever has lived here, is, and was, each one, a true, faithful, dutiful member of the true church of the ever living, infinite God. . . . Every poor devil, I mean so esteemed by the sects, shall be recognized as a true, lawful and faithful child of the same God that is our God, . . . Spiritualism, the Christ, cannot die; its work is to destroy the literal church, . . . and reveal the new church, the spiritual temple. . . . It sweeps away the mischievous arbitrary distinctions which have been drawn between sacred and secular, between saints and sinners, between the elect and condemned, and places us all on the equal footing of simple brotherhood."—Banner of Light.

In the Banner of Light, Feb. 27, 1864, a spirit says:—"We believe that the human spirit, as an individuality, never was created. Therefore it must have always been in existence, and we believe must continue on throughout the eternity of the past."

"The spiritual dispensation is the fourteenth religion which has appeared in the world, and being the last, it is, of course, the highest. It is the new, great religion of divine, everlasting law."—Banner of Light.

"Religion consists in nothing more nor less than the knowledge and observance of the laws of nature. . . . If the nature of men requires their frequenting the dram shop, their keeping a dram shop shows more religion than being a temperance man. If his nature calls for it, then is the daily beating and bruising of the horse religion. Only fall in with all the claims of nature, and you will then fall in with all the claims of religion. . . . The great need of men is to return to the religion of nature."

[From a discourse by Gerrit Smith, delivered in Peterboro, April 14th, 1861, and published in the Herald of Progress, May 25th, 1861.

What can be further removed from the teaching of the Scriptures than the foregoing? and yet this "natural religion," as advocated by the Spiritualists, is becoming very popular.

PROPHECY OF THE SPIRITS.

In the Banner of Light, of Aug. 22nd, 1863, we find some prophecies uttered by the spirits through Uriah Clark, a prominent Spiritualist lecturer. Among others is the following: "Before another 4th of July is ushered in, the 'Olive Crown of Peace' shall adorn our Capitol."

The 4th of July, 1864, is passed, but we have not heard that the "olive crown of peace" is adorning our Capitol, neither is there prospect that we shall see such a result at present. We think there is good evidence to believe that the "false prophet" is embodied in Spiritualism. The "false prophet" is to be known, not only by false prophecies, but by working "miracles," which is a special characteristic of Spiritualism.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT.—We are informed by the publisher that the first edition of the "Emphatic Diaglott" is exhausted, and that a second edition, revised and corrected, will be issued about Jan. 1st, 1865. Orders will be received in the meantime, and supplied in the rotation received. All orders must be accompanied by cash.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Ministering brethren visiting this place, will hereafter communicate with BRO. ELISHA SLAGER, chairman of committee.

For the World's Crisis.

IN AFFLICTION.

BRO. GRANT:—Death, the enemy of mankind, has invaded our little family circle, and Francis, our only child, has fallen a victim to his relentless grasp. Instead of being, as usual, at the campmeeting this year, we were called to minister to the wants of our sick, suffering child. He was severely attacked with dysentery and suffered extremely for ten days, when he fell asleep, Sept. 1st, 1864, aged fourteen years, one month and twelve days, to wake no more till the trump of God shall bid the sleepers awake.

Our hearts' affections were entwined around him, and it did not seem that we could spare him, and earnestly did we beseech the Lord that he might be spared to us; but, for wise reasons, no doubt, our request was not granted.

He wanted to live, though he said he did not fear to die, that he might live for Christ. We have reason to think that he loved the Savior, and did try to be a good boy. Though he was not free from the faults of childhood, yet we have reason to be thankful that he was so kind and affectionate.

A few days before he died, he said, "It seems as though I loved everybody." He prayed. From his earliest speech he was taught to pray, and always before going to bed at night, he would bend his knees in prayer to God. A day or two before he died he called Carrie (the girl who lives with us) to him, and told her, he did not know as he should get well, and wanted she should forgive him all he had done wrong to her, and that she should be good, and meet him in the kingdom. He sent a similar message to Nettie, Bro. Piper's daughter, who was away at the time.

Were it not for the blessed hope of the resurrection of the dead, our sorrow would be overwhelming. I have followed two sisters and a brother, father and mother, and a little infant child to the grave ere this; but this bereavement seems greater than them all.

Why it should be thus, we can hardly see the reason now; but as not a sparrow falls to the ground without the notice of our kind Heavenly Father, so we trust and believe it will be seen in the end, that this is all for the best.

Our daily prayer is, that this affliction may draw us nearer to Jesus. Our desire is, to be remembered by the saints, in this time of our affliction. We can also more deeply sympathize with those in like circumstances.

The funeral was attended by Bro. S. S. Brewer, who spoke words of comfort and consolation. Our hearts are longing for the time to speedily come when the conquering King shall come, and spoil death of his victims, and gather the ransomed home. Yours in hope, D. MERRIAM.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$363.61
A friend pd	1.00
H. R. Smith pd	5.00
S. Marsh pd	.50
Z. Whitney pd	5.00
H. Rockwell pd	.50
D. T. Corey pd	1.00

PLEDGES PAID.—Sidney Hall.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$74.30
Mrs. M. Smith pd	3.00
"Without name" pd	.30
Mrs. J. T., free subs. pd	1.00
F. P. H. pd	.50
J. D. pd	1.00
P. T. pd	1.00
W. S. B. pd	5.00
S. M. T. pd	1.00
Jane J. Austin pd	.50
H. A. Smith pd	2.50
J. C., free subs. pd	1.00
M. S. pd	2.50
R. L. R. pd	1.00
M. F. G. pd	1.25
Mrs. O. Stetson pd	.50
H. G. T. pd	2.50
L. T. C. pd	2.00
M. F. H. pd	2.50
Joseph Freed pd	2.00
H. B. Sevey pd	5.00
B. H. A. pd	.50
S. T. pd	1.00
N. S. B. pd	1.00
L. A. W. pd	1.00
J. W. Higgins pd	1.00
D. Miner (for the Sr. in Middlesex Co.)	2.00
E. P. R. (for the poor Sr. in Bethany)	2.00

Maine Free List.

Athens	1	Levant West (?)	1
Albion (South)	1	Livermore	1
Alton	1	Machias	3
Augusta	2	Machiasport	1
Bangor	2	Medway	1
Bath	1	Mexico	1
Berwick	1	Moluncus	1
Biddeford	4	Mount Vernon	1
Bowdoin	1	Newport (East)	2
Boothbay (No.)	1	Newport	1
Buxton	1	Orrington	1
Brunswick	1	Portland	6
Carmel	1	Poland	3
Carmel No. (?)	1	Plymouth	1
Castle Hill	1	Presque Isle	2
China (South)	1	Ripley	3
Corinna	2	Richmond	1
Cornville	1	Rome	1
Cooper's Mills	1	Saco	1
Dexter	1	Sangerville	1
Dixmount N. E. (?)	1	Saccarappa	1
Dover	1	Sebec (South)	1
Exeter (So.)	1	Somerville	1
Eddington	1	Stoneham (East)	1
Frankfort Mills (?)	2	St. Albans	1
Fayette	1	Starks	1
Foxcroft	1	Stetson	1
Gardiner	3	Stockton	1
Garland	1	Surry	2
Hallowell	3	Sumner (East)	1
Hartland	1	Swanville	1
Hope	1	Topsham	1
Hollis	1	Washington (West)	1
Islesboro	1	Wellington	1
Jonesport	1	Weeks Mills	1
Kennebunkport	1	Windham	1
Kennebunk Depot	1	Woodville	1
La Orange	1	Woodstock	1
Lewiston	1	Yarmouth	2
Levant (?)	1	Total	107

New Hampshire Free List.

Alton	1	Lake Village	2
Alton (West)	1	Loudon Ridge	1
Barnstead Centre	2	Mast Yard	1
Charlestown	1	Meredith Village	2
Chichester	1	Melvin Village	2
Concord	3	Milton Mills	1
Concord (East)	2	Nashua	2
Claremont	1	Newburg	1
Danbury	1	New Durham	2
Derry	1	New Durham Ridge	1
Dorchester	1	Newport	2
Eaton Centre	1	Northwood Narrows	1
Epping (West)	1	Ossipee (West)	1
Exeter	1	Portsmouth	2
Franconia	1	Pittsfield	3
Great Falls	2	Sunapee	1
Gilmanton (Lower)	2	Woodstock	1
Goffstown	1	Weare (East)	3
Haverhill (East)	1	Warner	2
Horn's Mills	2	Wilmot Flat	1
Lime (?)	1	Whitefield	1
Lyme (East)	1	Total	62

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

A few more letters from the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom. We have received already several hundred such. Read them, brethren; you to whom the Lord has entrusted means to do good with, and remember—"Blessed is he that considereth the cause of the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Blessed promise! May its truth be realized by MANY of our readers.

FROM AN AGED BROTHER IN NEW HAMPSHIRE, writing from a sick bed.

For the last seven years, by your liberality, we have received the rich benefit of reading the Crisis free. For which, may that God who moved you to that generous act reward you with an hundred fold in this present life, and in the world to come with life eternal, is the prayer of this poor old man's heart. Standing, as I do, on the last crumbling sands of mortal life, I am earnestly waiting for my dear Redeemer to change this vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. There I shall be free from wants, and pain, and distress, of which I have suffered so much the last year, the eightieth of my pilgrimage in mortal life.

Now we wish to express our heartfelt thanks for the benefit we have received by the perusal of the World's Crisis for the last seven years; and especially my dear Sarah, who thinks more of the Crisis than of all other papers in the world, for here she gets her spiritual food from week to week. She was a true-hearted Advent believer before I married her, twenty-one years ago; and she still loves and believes the doctrine, and knows not how to do without the Crisis. No paper that I read is better adapted to the times in which we live, and as to its spirit none can be better. Ask God, Bro. Grant, as I trust you do, whether it is duty to continue the Crisis to this infirm old man any longer. As God says, so do. The most of the time the last year I have been confined to my room, never happier in God than now, with all my distress and pain. Your brother looking for redemption soon. N.

Be comforted, Bro. Samuel; the Crisis shall still come to you, to cheer your weary pilgrimage, and Sarah's too. If we can't pay for it, some brother will.

FROM A SISTER IN WORCESTER CO., MASS.

This sister writes that she is poor as to this world's goods, and in very feeble health. Has been out of health over two years, not able to do any hard work. Does not often enjoy the privilege of hearing the gospel preached; about all the preaching she has is the Crisis. Her companion is a Spiritualist, and she is surrounded with Spiritualists and with opposition on every hand. Advent meetings are two miles and a half from where she lives, but her health is so poor that she cannot walk to them, and is obliged to stay at home.

Under these unfavorable circumstances she writes: "I don't know what I should do without the Crisis. I need it very much, as that and my Bible are about all the preaching I have. I am trying in my feeble manner, with trials and temptations on every hand, to serve the Lord. I feel that it would be bestowing upon me a very great favor and blessing, if you will continue to send me the Crisis, and when I do get anything that I can spare I will send it to you. "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord." O that the Lord would open the hearts of those who have enough and to spare, to give to the Poor Fund, so that the poor may have the gospel preached to them." H.

He will. Some good brother who reads this will gladly lend to the Lord enough to pay for sister H.'s paper. Do it, brother. Money in the Lord's Bank, for the good of the Lord's poor, is well invested. It will bring interest now, and interest upon interest by-and-by.

FROM A BROTHER IN PENNSYLVANIA.

I have received your paper free for some time, but I cannot ask you to continue the favor longer. It is true I am poor in one sense. I am a poor preacher, away down here in the southern part of Pennsylvania, receiving but a small salary for these hard times, but perhaps still have more in the world than others who would like to have your paper, and cannot. And though I would love to have it, I cannot conscientiously ask for it longer. I, however, thank you for your kindness to me, and shall continue still to proclaim the near approach of the great God and our Savior. Yours in love, S.

Preach on, brother; we shall not take the Crisis from you while you are heralding the Lord's coming. The money will come in for it in some way. Some able brother in your own State will see to that.

FROM A SISTER IN SOMERSET CO., ME.

Eight years ago her husband fell asleep in Jesus, leaving her in reduced circumstances, with five little children looking to her for support, and two of them cripples. She writes as follows:—

"I have seen some trying times, but the good Lord has never forsaken us, and through his goodness I have been enabled to keep my little family together. Two years ago, by the kindness of Bro. Chas. Stratton of Cornville, I obtained the Crisis, and each week it has come to gladden our hearts and cheer us in our lonely pilgrimage. The year of subscription has nearly run out, but we are loth to part with our paper, the perusal of which has strengthened us in our determinations to meet the dear companion and father on the new earth. We want the paper, but can recompense you only with our prayers; and those you have, that the Lord may bless you in your labors of love, and at last grant you a seat in his kingdom with all the saved ones."

MRS. W—.

One of God's ancient ones could say,—"I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy." Can you say it, brother? Will you? and make the fatherless glad, too?

Assuming the Responsibility.

A Sister in Massachusetts writes:—

"I have for a long time felt a desire to aid you in your enterprise; but, the wife being the weaker vessel, I have hitherto submitted all matters of this kind to my better half. But of late I have felt a strong impression of duty to assume some responsibility for myself. I therefore enclose $10.00 for the Poor Fund, or any other use your judgment may direct." R.

No doubt there are many other sisters who would be glad to assume a similar responsibility, and thus do good to the poor, and at the same time help the office. We shall be happy to hear from them.

The way to do it.

A brother in —— writes as follows:—

"In the free list for ——, I notice two. Please give me their names, and I will inquire about them, and if they are found worthy poor, something shall be done for them. I had flattered myself there were none in ——. My wife says if you will give her the full address of "Eliza of Bethany," she will send her a dollar or two." C.

We will do so.

Another way to do it.

"I enclose $2.00 to pay for 'the poor sister in Bethany.' I would joyfully pay for all the poor, if I could do so, for truly it is more, yea, THRICE more blessed to give than to receive." E. P. R.

Another.

A brother in Hallowell writes:—

"I enclose five dollars; $2.00 to pay for the Crisis for the 'Poor Sister in Bethany.' If she is provided for, apply it for the 'Sister in Middlesex county'; and if she is provided for, then let it pay for the Crisis for the maimed brother spoken of by the sister in Burlington. The other $3.00 is for the Tract Fund."

We have applied it for the Sister in Middlesex Co.

ITALIAN MISSION.

A friend pd	1.00
L. F. B. pd	5.00
A Sister pd	5.00
A friend to missions pd	8.00
Mrs. C. Cottle pd	3.00
Cash pd	2.00
R. Whitney pd	5.00
Anonymous	.50
S. W. Higgins ($2.50 in gold)	4.88

From Bro. D. Cogswell.

DEAR BRN. AND SRS.:—I ask you to read Bro. H. B. Czechowski's appeal for help in the Crisis of Sept. 27th, a stranger in a strange land, preaching the gospel. Think, for one moment, of the sacrifice which he has made, and then think that he is poor and out of money, in a new place, where he cannot expect help until he has been there long enough to get the people interested, and the car of truth moving. Now, brethren, let us send our mites at once to Bro. Grant, and he will see that the money is sent to him immediately. Do not delay. Think whose cause it is, and then remember "that inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." May the Lord help us to be up and doing. Time is short. D. COGSWELL.

Dansville, N. Y., Sept. 30th, '64.

IMPORTANT TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Now is the time for subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to save money. "How?"

By settling up their accounts, and paying in advance, with gold or Provincial bank bills.

A Canadian one dollar bill is worth two dollars here; and, FOR EVERY SUCH $1.00 SENT US, WE WILL GIVE $2.00 CREDIT, more or less, according to the current rates of premium.

The premium on gold and on Canadian bills, is falling. Not long since, the value of $1.00 of such money was as high as $2.87; it is now about $2.00. In a few weeks, it will doubtless fall very much below that, and a few more Union victories may bring it down to par.

Now is the time. Improve it! Pay up your indebtedness, with half the amount due; and, for two years in advance, with the price for one year; or, for one year, with the price for six months. Don't let the opportunity pass You may never have another.

Oct. 10th. The price of gold to-day is $1.95. Canada Bills, $1.90.

Correspondence.

From Sr. N. Colburn.

Bro. Grant:—It is now about two years and eight months since I have been a daily sufferer, and the most of the time have been obliged to keep my bed and room. I have been wholly confined to my bed for the last eleven weeks, but amid all my affliction and suffering, can truly say, God is good. I know "He doeth all things well." At times the enemy comes in like a flood and seeks to destroy my peace, but the Spirit of the Lord is present to lift up a standard against him, and I am thus delivered in the hour of temptation. "I said, I will take heed to my ways that I sin not with my tongue. I will keep my mouth with a bridle while the wicked is before me." "Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me; for my soul trusteth in thee; yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge until these calamities be overpast. I will cry unto God Most High; unto God that performeth all things for me. He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth. . . . . My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise." And when Jesus comes I hope to meet with all those who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity, and join with them in noble praise to our great Deliverer, who where there will be "no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither any more pain; for the former things are past away." O, blessed hope! It buoys us up while passing through this wilderness of woe. I love God with all my heart. I love his cause and people. I love to hear from the dear pilgrims scattered abroad, through the columns of our much loved paper. The Crisis to me is a welcome visitor. I love it, and would be glad to contribute something for its support, but at present my prayers are all I can give. God's children have no need to be idle. If we cannot labor with our hands we can pray; and although it should be my lot to lie prostrate on a sick bed till Jesus comes, I expect to find something to do each day for my blessed Lord until the Master appears and presents me with a lawful discharge, and bids me come home to the land of rest, to dwell with the saints on the earth renewed. Pray for your unworthy and afflicted sister. I expect to meet you soon in the kingdom. Praise the Lord. Brethren and sisters, be faithful.

"Brought us through grace to the Eden of love,"

Naomi Colburn.

Magog, C. E., June, 1864.

From Sr. M. E. Streeter.

Beloved Brn. and Srs. in Christ:—Through the mercy of God I am still a spared monument of his love and care, and am still striving for the blessed inheritance, and a crown of unfading beauty and glory. Thank the good Lord for such a blessed hope. It cheers my aching heart while struggling against the waves of adversity to know of a surety that we are almost into harbor. There the weary will ever be at rest. No sick bed scenes, no death, no tears will ever fall from our eyes, for they will all be wiped away by the soft hand of our blessed Savior. I do long to be there, where we shall not see our loved ones sick and suffering upon beds of pain and distress. I want to have Jesus come and end our sorrows, griefs and tears.

For the past four months my time has been nearly taken up in watching by the side of my dear sister, who has not been off from the bed but twice in all this time. O! how I have longed for the coming of Christ, when I have heard her groans, her cries for deliverance; heard her pray most fervently for death, her sufferings were so severe. O! what a relief to that dear, suffering one. Methinks she would have rejoiced with joy unspeakable and full of glory. And still she suffers for some wise purpose. Dear brethren and sisters, pray for her. Where is the faith that was once delivered to the saints? Why cannot we see the sick raised now by the prayer of faith? It is our privilege to live where we can claim the promises of God for our own. Lord, help us to live just right, and bear all patiently. What if cold-hearted professors think we are not on the right track? What do I care, if I have the approbation of high Heaven? I have never felt the presence of my Savior as I have for a few months past, and how good it has been to me, while my cares have been so hard, to have Jesus to help bear them.

Dear friends, accept my sincere and heartfelt thanks for your kind remembrance of me while I have been by day and night watching with a dear sister. Your letters have been like cold water to a thirsty soul. They have cheered me in the lonely hours of the night; and may God bless you and reward you for all your words of consolation. Let me still have your prayers and words of cheer. Many thanks to you, dear Sister M——, for your generous gift. God bless you and give you an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom. How good it is to trust in the Lord.

May the Lord bless us one and all, and bring us at last to dwell forever in the everlasting kingdom, is the prayer of your sister in Christ,

Mary E. Streeter.

North Dana, July, 1864.

From Sr. S. H. Dunn.

Brn. and Srs.—When I look out upon the world and behold the sin and wickedness daily on the increase, my soul is disquieted, sad and cast down. When I think of the awful state our nation is now in, I fear and tremble for the safety of those who have said, Let us make war with our brother. Is it not enough to hang all heaven in mourning, and make angels weep, to look down upon our fellow men, bleeding, groaning, dying? How many hearts to-day are bleeding with inward grief, for loved ones slain in battle. How many widowed mothers and orphan children suffering because of this unholy war. I, with other mothers, have been called to part with a darling son by this cruel war. But I mourn not as one without hope; for Christ has promised to bring up our loved ones from their graves, at the resurrection, in the last day. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.

Friends, I am looking forward with you to the day when the last enemy shall be destroyed. When dark clouds lower, and adverse winds blow, and your bark is tossed upon life's raging sea, trust thou in God, for he will deliver thee. Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." And let us not be "weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." "Bear ye one another's burdens; and so fulfil the law of Christ." Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, for remember whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

O! how my heart longs to see more of the fruit of the Spirit among the sons of men,—love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: "against such there is no law." "Bless the Lord, oh, my soul, and all that is within me praise his holy name." Let us lay up in store for ourselves a good foundation against the time to come, that we may lay hold on eternal life. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen. Your sister, in hope of a resurrection to a better life,

Sarah H. Dunn.

From S. & L. W. Bragg.

Beloved Pilgrims in the Lord:—As we are unable to write to all separately, we will inform you of our prosperity through the Crisis. We found the Captain and all very pleasant and kind, with good living. Had pleasant weather with fair wind for about ten days, when we had quite a gale for three days, with wind ahead, and were tossed to and fro by the mighty billows, that rose mountain high. It was the grandest sight we ever beheld. Truly in it we could see the work and power of a mighty God. With Christ in the vessel, we could smile at the storm and feel as calm in the Lord as though we were on the land, knowing our life was hid with Christ in God, beyond the reach of harm. Have been quite sick, and some homesick when thinking of the saints and friends we have left behind; but as we near the English shores, and my health improves, I feel still like going to see if there are a few who love the truth in England. But how much wisdom and power we need with truth in this day of infidelity. O Lord, impart as we need, is my daily prayer, and help us to hide behind the cross, and present Jesus as the only Life-giver to a dying world. We earnestly request an interest in the prayers of all the saints of God, that salvation may come to the people through a belief of the present truth.

Sept. 9th finds us in St. George's Channel, with the heaviest gale of wind the Captain ever knew in its waters. We are in jeopardy of our lives, yet feel the Lord governs the winds and the waves, and all is well; whether we live or die, we are the Lord's. Thank the good Lord for peace in believing and joy in the Holy Ghost.

Saturday eve, the 10th, found us safely landed in one of the English docks. With grateful hearts we could raise our voices in praise to the Lord for a safe though perilous voyage. We learned by the papers that we very narrowly escaped the privateers twice on the passage. Thank the Lord for salvation from the fowler's hands!

Sunday, the 11th. Pilgrims and strangers in a strange land. Hoping soon to gain a land far surpassing in glory this land of delight, yours in the gospel hope and love,

S. & L. W. Bragg.

St. Meryn, near Padstow, Co. Cornwall, England.

From Bro. I. K. Lombard.

Bro. Grant:—I am about leaving the West to travel eastward with my horse and buggy, preaching on the way. I design to go as far east this fall as New York State, and spend the winter there as the Lord shall direct. In the spring, I propose to take my buggy and go on to Maine, arriving there sometime next summer.

I have been laboring in several places during the four weeks since the Amboy campmeeting. I find the state of the churches rather discouraging than otherwise. A few are trying to hold on in faithfulness, but the mass seem without carefulness, and without holiness. Some places are blessed with "pillars," who keep up prayer-meetings almost alone. Other places lacking such support are barren regions, indeed. In some places a few love the gospel of peace. In other places we can hardly number a "few" of this class. In these regions, I fear that we have about as many fighting Adventists as praying Adventists, if we are to judge who are Adventists by the names in the church book. Church organization amounts to about the same with us that it does with others; it gathers all, rejecting none who can be obtained to swell the number of the Advent church in ——.

In view of the sad state of the church in spiritual things, I feel it duty to preach almost wholly on practical truths,—teaching and admonishing brethren how we ought to live more than what we ought to believe.

If any in southwestern New York should desire my labors about the last of November and onward, they may please address me at Edinboro', Penn., by the middle of November, and I will endeavor to attend. Yours in the love of Christ,

I. K. Lombard.

Ottawa, Ill., September, 1864.

From Sr. F. L. Bradford.

Bro. Grant:—It gives me so much pleasure to read the letters from the brethren and sisters of our blessed hope, which are published in the Crisis, and I feel so comforted and strengthened thereby, that I sometimes ask myself the question, "Where art thou, Adam," that the readers of our paper so seldom hear from you? And perhaps some dear one is inquiring, Has her light gone out? No; by the grace of God "I still live," and feel that I have great cause for thanksgiving and praise to God; inasmuch as he has blessed me, even me, in the recent conversion of a dear child. Bless and praise his holy name!

Brethren and sisters, have you converted children? Yes, yes, I seem to hear you respond. Then you know the joy of a mother's heart when she sees her beloved firstborn bowing to the sceptre of Jesus, and daily living unto him. But that I in my unworthiness should be so richly blessed! I who have received the "cold shoulder" from the professed followers of Jesus (from whom I came out), and have borne the reproach of men, and have known that my name was cast out as evil because I must believe the word of God, if it proves every man a liar. But our Heavenly Father has promised by the lips of his Son, that his followers shall receive an hundred fold in this world, with persecution. Then let persecution come, and let us have the hundred fold. But that is not all of the promise. But in the world to come—life everlasting. Who can ask for anything more? We want the whole promise, and a full realization of it. Then let us bless God for persecutions, and rejoice that we are counted worthy to suffer for Christ. A glorious reward awaits the faithful. Let us have it! Waiting for the Lord,

Fannie L. Bradford.

Plympton, Mass.

Obituaries.

Hattie M. Higgins.

Fell asleep in Jesus in Worcester, Mass., Sept. 22nd, Sr. Hattie M. Higgins, wife of Bro. Francis W. Higgins, aged twenty-four years, five months, and twelve days.

She had been seriously indisposed for several weeks with the whooping cough, which eventually caused her death. Her strong affection and glowing love for her loved and loving companion, her two children, one four years, the youngest an infant five weeks old, and the love for and the reciprocity on the part of all who had formed an acquaintance with her, caused an intense struggle on her part to obtain a perfect resignation over those strong ties that entwine around the tendrils of such a true, warm, and friendly heart.

In the early part of her sickness death appeared frightful, and she looked upon the monster with dread. But on Sunday, Aug. 28th (the last day of the campmeeting at Wilbraham, while the saints were rejoicing on the Mount), dear Hattie by the grace imparted to her through the precious virtue of a mighty Savior's all-atoning blood, was enabled to overcome "all fear that hath torment." From that day a calm submission settled down deep in her heart, which she was enabled to maintain until she fell asleep. Her infant died the sixteenth of September. This was the severing of a strong tie.

She selected the hymns she desired to be sung on the occasion of her funeral, also the text:

"Come, ye disconsolate, where'er you languish."

And

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep."

And the words of John 14: 19;—"Because I live, ye shall live also." Words of comfort to her weeping family and friends were tendered on Sunday, Aug. 25th, in compliance with her dying request, by the writer, who felt more like taking a seat and mingling his sympathies and tears in silent grief with the kind relatives that mourned the dear and early dead.

Praise to the all-conquering and soon-coming Life-giver, Hattie sleeps in Jesus! O how precious is the "hope of the gospel."

O! can it be that thou hast left us,
Must we to the mandate bow?
Ah! death the monster hath bereft us—
'T is hard to bear this stunning blow.
Burdened hearts pulsate with anguish,
Tears are streaming from the eyes
Of friends who round her cold form languish,
As she sweetly sleeping lies.

Ah! our love is round thee clinging,
As we mourn thee early dead;
Memory is ever bringing
Happy scenes forever fled.
Soon will cease our night of weeping,
Soon the morn of joy will break,
Soon will rise the dear ones sleeping,
Soon immortal they shall wake.

Farewell, till that morn of gladness,
Till our conflicts here are o'er,
Then will cease all pain and sadness
On bright Canaan's happy shore.
Glorious hope! it ever brightens,
Omens thicken all around;
The Bible all our pathway lightens,
Soon the jubal trump will sound.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Amen and amen. Hallelujah.

S. S. Brewer.

Mary Rebecca Hook.

Died in Lee, N. H., Sept. 29th, 1864, of consumption, Mary Rebecca Hook, aged twenty-nine years.

Sister Hook lost her husband four years since, when she was left a poor widow with two small children. Owing to a fall, she had almost lost the use of one of her limbs, so as to be unable to get about but with the help of two canes. When I first became acquainted with Sister Rebecca, she resided in New Market, and was tugging along with these obstacles and embarrassments to take care of her children. But she was always hopeful and joyful, with strong faith, giving glory to God. She had learned the secret of living by faith from day to day; thus when unable to provide for her wants, she would go directly to her Father in heaven and ask for the things needed, and they always came. This gave her the blessed assurance that the promise of God was "yea and amen" to those who believe. She did the best she could to get her faith proclaimed where she was, for she fully believed in the sleep of the dead, and that they were not rewarded till the coming of Jesus, and it was her joy to know that he was soon coming.

A few months before she fell asleep in Jesus she came to Lee for the special purpose of spending the remnant of her days with Bro. Davis. While there she was very sick, and disposed of her children, giving them to Bro. Davis, with directions also about her burial. After a few weeks she was so much better as to be carried to Dover on a visit of a few days. When she returned to Lee, called to visit her friends at Samuel Wilson's, where she was taken worse and could not be removed, till she fell asleep sweetly in Jesus, to sleep till the trump of God shall wake the dead, when in her flesh she shall see God.

She requested me to attend her funeral, selecting the text from Job 19: 25; 6: 7. Her funeral was held at the meeting-house Sunday afternoon, Oct. 2d. The weather being very stormy, but few gathered to follow the sleeping one to her silent resting place, there to wait till called forth to her reward by the trump of God, when life, glory and immortality will be hers eternally.

L. Boutell.

Philipp Pfeil.

Fell asleep in Jesus, Sept. 22d, 1864, Philipp Pfeil, aged fifty-one years.

Our dear brother was sick seven days. He bore his pain with christian fortitude, and died with the blessed hope sustaining him. He had strong faith in the immediate coming of Christ, and was constantly seeking for light on the same. He has left a godly example for his three children to follow.

He was formerly a Methodist, but hearing Bro. P. A. Smith, of Rochester, N. Y., he seemed overjoyed with the truth that he preached; it seemed like a second conversion. He believed in letting his light shine, that others by seeing his good works might be led to glorify God. He had a desire to live to see our blessed Savior appear, but death has laid his icy hands upon him, and his friends have laid him in the cold grave. But Jesus has the keys of death and the grave, and those dear saints will soon come forth clad in immortality, to part no more. May the grace of God remain with his children, and the Spirit of Christ lead them to repentance.

W. Vreeland.

Sarah Barton.

Died in New Bedford, Oct. 1st, of consumption, Sarah Barton, daughter of Bro. Jeremiah and Sr. Rebecca P. Tripp, aged twenty-one years, and one months.

She was sick many months; in her last hours was a great sufferer, but her mind was calm, for that peace which Jesus gives filled her heart. She was conscious to the last. Had no fear of death, for the Lord was with her. Called her weeping friends to her bedside, gave them a token of remembrance, shook hands with them, and bade them prepare to meet her in the kingdom. We trust she sleeps in Jesus, and if we love and serve God we shall meet her in the heavenly kingdom.

S. B. T.

James M. Spriggs.

My dear husband has departed this life. On the 30th day of Aug. he performed a hard day's labor, and went to his bed well as ever. In the morning we found him a lifeless corpse. He was a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus for a number of years, and spent a portion of his time in proclaiming the gospel of Christ to sinners. His age was fifty-three years and fifteen days.

Mary A. Spriggs.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

[From Queenstown 25th ult.]

The Franco-Italian convention for the evacuation of Rome by the French troops, etc., is fully confirmed.

Hostile demonstrations had again occurred at Turin on the evening of the 22d. Seditious cries, and shots were fired in front of the royal palace. The military again fired on the people killing and wounding twenty; several soldiers were severely wounded. Tranquility was resumed on the 23d. It was generally thought that it would not again be disturbed. The King had summoned Gen. De La Marmora to form the new Cabinet.

The Danish question was unchanged.

The Prussian semi-official Journal says the Government is prepared and armed for a renewal of the struggle on internal questions with the opposition.

The Spanish Congress had dissolved. An amnesty was granted for press offenses.

New York, Sept. 5. Advices from Brazos state that the French who advanced from Bagdad were badly whipped by Cortinas. The rebels appeared on the Texas side of the river and covered the retreat of the French.

One of Juarez's special agents brings word to the Union commander that, during the absence of Maximilian, Miramon, backed by the Archbishop of Mexico and the clergy issued a pronunciamento, declaring against Maximilian. Half of the City of Mexico had been taken by Miramon, and he had appealed to the people to sustain him and drive out the invaders.

The French left Monterey to co-operate with the forces from Bagdad, leaving only a small garrison.

The Liberal General Quiroga took the garrison prisoners and began to fortify.

The French at Bagdad are fortifying within range of their ships.

Cortinas is confident of holding out against all opposition.

The French have one frigate and two corvettes off the Rio Grande. Admiral Bosse refuses to allow a messenger to pass his lines to our Consul at Matamoras. His orders are to shoot everybody who approaches his lines after dark.

About sixty Mexicans are at Brazos, released from a French prison. They refuse to take the oath to support the empire, and can enter Mexico upon no other terms.

New York, Oct. 5. Advices from Valparaiso and Callao to the 13th.

Resolutions were passed in the Peruvian Congress that war be declared against Spain as the last measure to obtain honorable satisfaction by the surrender of the Chincha Islands, and a salute of the flag of the Republic by Spain. A resolution was pending to seek intervention from European powers, to enable Peru to cope with Spain on the seas.

The news from Ecuador is interesting. Ex-President Urbina, with a revolutionary force of 400, had landed in the province of Machala with the intention of overthrowing Garcias Moreno's Government. The government dispatched two steamers to the scene, but they failed to effect a landing, and retured to Guayaquil, where the government has 1500 troops. The Ecuadian Government holds rather a precarious position, owing to the opposition of other republics. The Peruvian Government is said to be concentrating troops on the frontier.

It was announced in Panama officially on the 16th that the blockade of the Mexican coast had been raised, and that the ports of that country were open to all the world.

DOMESTIC.

"Carr's Station, Oct. 1.

To Gen. Schofield:

We arrived here about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and found the enemy, under Gen. Vaughn, strongly intrenched on both sides of the river. After heavy cannonading and skirmishing all the afternoon and until noon to-day, the enemy were driven out of his forts, and fled toward Zollicoffer. I will burn the bridges and destroy the railroad from this point, and prevent the resources of East Tennessee from being used in support of the rebellion. Our artillery fired upward of two hundred rounds.

(Signed) A. C. GILSEN."

Gen. Schofield also received information that Gen. Burbridge had captured the salt works near Abingdon, Va., with little resistance.

The Times' Army of the James correspondent, writing under date of the 2d, says: "It was found that a number of rebels just captured are all boys of 18 and under. Only one full grown man was found among them. They were glad of their capture, as they had been conscripted. Gen. Lee yesterday sent a flag of truce to exchange the prisoners, captured in the last movement, man for man. Gen. Grant refused to make the arrangement, and referred Lee to Gen. Butler, who is duly authorized to act as Exchange Commissioner."

The Herald's correspondent with the 15th corps, writing under date of the 4th, says: "The rebels are in a great hurry. A number of the soldiers of a North Carolina regiment crept down yesterday to bag the pickets of the 2d colored cavalry. The tables were turned on them and they themselves were bagged. The number of rebel flags captured by this corps has already reached nine.

Washington, Oct. 5, 1864.

The guerrillas are very active in Sheridan's rear, and the route from Harper's Ferry is said to be very dangerous. Sheridan, however, has supplies enough to last him until the opening of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, which will be very soon.

During the month of September nearly four hundred soldiers have died in the hospitals of this city.

Since the first of this month the exhumation of bodies of soldiers buried in the Soldiers' Cemetery here has been very frequent. Parties from almost every State are busy carrying home the remains of their loved ones. Such exhumation will be allowed until May, 1865.

New York, Oct. 5. Gen. Grant's orders to Sheridan:

"Do all the damage you can to railroad and crops, carry off stock of all descriptions, and negroes, so as to prevent further planting. If the war is to last another year let the Shenandoah Valley remain a barren waste.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT."

The destruction done by Custer's and Merritt's divisions was on the largest scale. In one day wheat enough to subsist the whole rebel army a year was destroyed, besides collecting 1500 head of cattle and 300 sheep. The work continued.

New York, Oct. 6. The Times' Washington dispatch says Gen. Wilson, who is just from Sheridan's headquarters at Harrisonburg, represents that the destruction and capture of rebel property by our cavalry were on a colossal scale. Over one hundred miles had been destroyed, the Central Railroad was badly cut up and 2400 head of cattle and sheep brought to Harrisonburg.

New York, Oct. 6. A special dispatch to the World says intelligence from the front to-day is quite different from what was anticipated. Passengers by the boat state that the incessant rain for the past three days has effectually put an end to all military operations for the present. There has been no fighting on our left or right in front of Petersburg since Saturday. The entire loss on our left is 2000, and on our right 1800.

Headquarters Dept., Va. and N. C., 7th. Lieut. Gen. U. S. Grant:—Gen. Birney has regained Kautz's old position, and holds the enemy in the inner line of entrenchments around Richmond, extending from the Darbytown road and to connect with Gen. Weitzel on the left, near Fort Harrison. There has been no movement at Petersburg today. We have much the best of this day's work. A thousand, at least, of the enemy were killed and wounded, and 100 prisoners taken. They met with a bloody repulse.

B. F. Butler,
Major General.

New York, 7th. The Tribune's Washington dispatch says Hon. W. F. Kellogg, who has just arrived from Gen. Sheridan, says our forces have gathered an immense amount of grain, forage and supplies of every kind for man and beast. Rebel reports of Union disasters are all unfounded.

There are no signs of the rebels between the Gaps of the Blue Ridge and headquarters. The Gaps are held by rebel cavalry, and it is supposed that Early has gone to Richmond with the remnant of his force, leaving his cavalry to dispute an advance.

New York, Oct. 10. The World's 10th Corps correspondent gives the following account of Friday's operations:—

The point selected by the rebels to attack was held by two brigades of cavalry, under Cols. West and Spear. When first seen, the rebels were coming across the country from Charles City road moving for the right flank. Col. West had hardly got in position to meet them, when in overwhelming numbers they dashed upon him and Col. Spear's command simultaneously. Our men fired steadily, but could not stay the rushing masses. To avoid wholesale capture retreat was inevitable, and they moved off on the Darbytown road. Suddenly they were checked here, as the rebels had flanked Spear, and had possession of this line of retreat. They therefore cut across the country, the 4th Wisconsin and 1st U. S. Batteries following. Soon the forward piece mired, blocking the remainder—eight guns in all—and they were captured.

Having driven the cavalry, the rebels now turned their attention to the infantry, and moved on the flank of the 10th Corps, held by the invincible old first, or Terry's division. Gen. Birney, however, was up and doing, prepared for an attack. The rebels, flushed with victory over the cavalry, came down with all the confidence of victory. Abbott's 2d Brigade sustained the brunt of the attack. Armed with repeating rifles they made ghastly records in the rebel ranks. The rebels moved steadily forward determined to force the position, but the unerring volcanic firearm more than equalized the game. Onward they pushed. More dense grew the fire. Still they advanced until within 100 paces of our crouching death dealers. At last they wavered, and finally fled Richmond-ward.

Gen. Terry ordered a pursuit, which was kept up until dark.

Our loss has been small, but the rebels suffered horribly. Prisoners report Gen. Gregg killed.

Jeff Davis has returned to Richmond.

MARRIED.

In Gloucester, R. I., Sept. 18th, by Eld. M. R. Phetteplace, Mr. Reuben Davis, of Oxford, Mass., to Miss Josephine L. Tinkcom.

Notices.

Big Tent Meetings.

If the Lord will, our Tent meetings will be held as follows:—

Norway Village, (or near South Paris), Me., Monday evening, Oct. 10th, to Sunday evening, Oct. 16th.

Canaan, Vt., from Tuesday evening, Oct. 18th, onward over Sunday, as the Lord will.

We shall be glad to see friends from abroad at these meetings, though at new places, such as Norway, we cannot ensure provision for strangers. The Tent will lodge all who can furnish bedding and board for themselves. We shall have stoves if the weather is cool. Pray for us, that the word of God may have free course and be glorified. Eld. James Albert Libby is expected to be present at these meetings and assist in preaching the word.

H. L. Hastings, Tent Master.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. Butler, for the Church.

Conference.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at Kast Hall No. 104 Hanover street, Boston, will hold a conference, commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th, and continue over the following Sabbath.

Per order of Society. O. Clapp.

Advent Churches in Boston.

For the information of brethren abroad, and in reply to inquiries, we would say that there are in Boston four societies of Second Advent believers, as follows: The church worshiping at Lowell Street Chapel. The Kneeland Street church. The church in East Boston. The church at Kast Hall, known as non-believers in "the resurrection of the unjust."

Maine Eastern Quarterly Conference.

This conference is appointed at Lincolnville Centre, Oct. 13th, at six o'clock P. M., and will continue till Sunday evening. We desire those intending to meet us in this conference, to come prepared to work for God's cause. Call on D. Fletcher, E. Blood, E. Caldenwood, and others, or the subscriber.

M. Young, Clerk.

The Discussion Postponed.

The discussion between Eld. S. W. Bishop and A. Durfee, at Newmarket Hall, Providence, R. I., which was to have commenced Tuesday, Sept. 27th, is postponed until Tuesday, Oct. 25th.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Miles Grant ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
D. R. & M. S. Mansfield ....Sunday, Oct. 23d

Pittsfield, N. H., Thursday evening, Oct. 20th, and over the following Lord's day, 22nd. Miles Grant.

Walbridge, (School-house) ....Oct. 16th and 23d
Goshen, Mass. ....Sunday, Nov. 6th
Agawam ....Sunday, Nov. 13th
P. S. Butler.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall) ....Sunday, Oct. 30th
Augustus Durfee.

Lee, N. H ....Oct. 23d
C. T. Emerson.

Pomfret, Vt ....Friday evening, Oct. 21st and hold over the following Sabbath
Sutton, N. H., (Mill Village) ....Oct. 30th
J. Couch.

Dinsmore Hill, Hartland, Vt ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Salmon Cook.

South Hope, Me ....Oct. 23d
S. K. Partridge.

South Norfolk ....Oct. 16th
Expect Bro. Tatro to be with me.
New Preston, Ct ....Oct. 23d
South Windsor, Ct ....Oct. 30th
Goshen, Mass ....Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange), Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's ....Oct. 9th
Griswoldville ....Nov 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass ....Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me ....Nov. 27th
C. Goodrich.

Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill) ....Oct. 23d
East Canaan, (where Bro. Jos. Eastman may appoint), Oct. 30th. Joseph Kimball.

North Canton, Ct ....Oct. 16th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house) ....Oct. 23d
Seth Woodruff.

East Bowdoinham (with Bro. H D Reed) ....Oct. 16th
Windham Centre ....Sunday, Oct. 23d
Bath (Music Hall) ....Sunday, Oct. 30th
R. R. York.

Brockport, N. Y ....Oct. 16th
J. D. Brown.

Forestville, Ct ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Yalesville, Ct ....Sunday, Oct. 23d
O. D. Woodruff.

Charlemont, Mass ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Gloyd's) ....Oct. 23d
Wm. J. Hall.

South Butler, N. Y ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Westbury, N. Y ....Sunday, Oct. 23d
Seneca Falls, N. Y. (as Bro. G. Dillebaugh may appoint) Sunday, Oct. 30th. C. F. Sweet.

Plymouth, Mass ....Oct. 16th
Lynn, Mass ....Sundays, Oct. 23d and 30th
J. S. White.

Dalton, or Flintstone ....Oct. 14th and over the Sabbath. H. Hadlock.

West Martinsburgh ....Oct. 16th
Copenhagen ....Oct. 23d
C. B. Turner.

Melbourne, (as Bro. Wetherell may appoint), Oct. 16th
Danville, (Claremont) ....evening, Oct. 18th
Little Warwick ....evenings, Oct. 19th and 20th
Warwick ....evening, Oct. 21st
Danville, (as Bro. Porter may appoint) ....Oct. 23d
Bro. James Webb's ....Oct. 25th
L. C. McKinstry.

Newfane, Whitakerville, Vt ....Oct. 21st
Wm. J. Blanchard.

Northfield ....Oct. 16th
Brattleboro, Vt ....Oct. 23d
Whitakerville ....Oct. 30th
J. K. Bellows.

Concord, N. H ....Sunday, Oct. 23d
T. M. Preble.

Goshen, Mass ....Oct. 16th
Shelburn Falls, Mass., (as Bro. Cressy may arrange), Oct. 20th.
Northfield, Mass ....Oct. 22d
B. Wm. Wilkins.

Roxbury, (where Bro. Johnson may appoint), Friday evening, Oct. 14th.
Greenwood City, (at the school-house) Sunday, Oct. 16th
J. C. Wheeler.
J. Whitman.

Newport, N. H. (Northville), Oct. 15th, two o'clock, P. M., and over the Sabbath, to assist in an ordination.
Wm. W. Sutherland.

Plymouth, Vt., (as the friends may arrange), Oct. 13th and every evening through the week, and over Sunday. Will the brethren and sisters in that region come and help us in the name of the Lord?
Geo. A. Streeter.

Holliston, Mass ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Will then answer to calls in R. I. and Conn., if the Lord will. H. K. Flagg.

Frankfort ....Oct. 16th
A. Murry.

Canaan Street, N. H ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
A. Simpson.

Portsmouth, N. H ....Oct. 16th
C. H. Leverton.

Concord, N. H ....Oct. 16th
T. W. Piper.

River Point ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Joseph Northup.

Wallingford, Conn., (near Bro. Young's), eve., Oct. 15th
Wallingford Farms, Conn ....Oct. 16th
B. Hitchcock.

New Durham Corner, N. H ....Oct. 16th
South Farmington ....Oct. 23d
Moultonborough Centre ....Friday evening, Oct. 28th
Plymouth, (where Bro. Emery may appoint), Oct. 30th
N. Hartshorn.

Atkinson, Sunday, Oct. 23d, and Saturday evening, 22d, at Bro. James Ayer's. Also the 24th, 25th and 26th, at the same place, and over the following Sunday, Oct. 30th if desired.

Sebec, Me., (school-house, near Bro. Joshua Livermore's), Sunday, Nov. 6th. Thomas Smith.

Portsmouth, N. H ....Sunday, Oct. 16th
Exeter, N. H. ....evenings, Oct. 17th and 18th
Lawrence, Mass ....evenings, Oct. 19th and 20th
Concord, N. H ....evening, Oct. 21st
Should the above appointments conflict with others, please give notice in time to change.
D. R. & M. S. Mansfield.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State from which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Eliza A. Tuttle, Polly King.

The following persons send money for the Crisis but do not give their Post Office and State. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. Smith—Out of Discussion with Loveland. Have sent you another work instead.
R. Scoville—Paid to No. 490.
B. H. Straight—All right. P. W. D.'s address, Strawberry Point, Iowa.
Wm. H. Connell—They were received.
C. Barnes—The papers were sent, and money credited.
E. S. Gurney—Credited you to January.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 471. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

☞ The acknowledgments below are for monies received up to Sept. 27th. All receipts since, will be acknowledged in due time.

$1.00 each.—E. F. Sergisson 489, B. Pilcher 464, N Hake 489, W. Cate 485, J Whitaker 486, R. M. Hicks 487, J Elkins 511, L Stevens 485, N G Ridley 489, M B Huntley 496, J. Craig 489, S D Daniels 489, R S Rugg 342, M. A. Harris 442, Betsey Seabring (old acc't), J. Hanson 480, S Page 489, W Whitgood 511, J Geer 492, E W Hatch 413, S Ferren 423, L Peck 492, E W Agen 486, D. S. Hammond (what P. O.?), J. Minton 487, J Eels 480, Mrs E Merrick 485, A Rennie 489, S Alderman 494, T Frost 489, L J Twing 3.6, N S Bastion 4 9, Mrs. John Sprague 490, S N Bates 490, J Hopkins 488, J Baker 457, Jas Smith 3d (what P. O.?), Wm Bradbury 447, Mrs M J Gray 491, S W Foss 305.

$1.25 each.—Mrs. F Allecott 487, Mrs. E. Marquand 496, W. S. Huntley 488, E C Swain 494, E P Brownell 494, Mr. Justice 496, L. Buffum 505, H J Chamberlain 494, C L Huling 494, Miss M P Hough 494, E Case 495, S Case 473, Mrs A Case 4 2, H H Mix 453, M M Hazard 495, S M Todd 495, M. Thorp 488, E Bolles 488, N Buckingham 494, H. M. Bolles 514, E Jones 494, Mrs. A S Whitney 494, S E Teeple 499, C Willoughby 493, R Harmon 500, S. A. Cramer 492, C F Treat 496, M F Goodwin 494, R Curtis 503, G Sherman 492, N Merrow 494, S A Griffin 494, H A Way 494, O Ormsbee 494, E Green 494, Mr. Hutchinson 492, A Estes 499, J Herrick 499, E D Stiles 499, R Williams 494, M C Tucker 492, L M Plummer 494, S Carrington 494, C Hanny 494, D T Fones 494, B Morton 494, J H Edmands 494, C Lovis 487, T D Bailey 494, M. Morehouse 494, H. Tripp 510, T I Munroe 495, H. Burroughs 492, A Hogg 494, N R Gould 494, R. Taylor 494, Mrs. S. A. Macomber 502, H. Tower 481.

$2.00 each.—A. Stacy 468, Mrs. S. Burchard 426, E. Barnes 510, J. McGregor 475, H. Campbell 505, J. McKellar 468, J P Barrows 468, A. Elliott 351, C M Reynolds 4.8, J Ackerman 501, N Thompson 468, T P Smith 508, L Green 4.7, A B Waterbury 495, H H Hemmenway 510, L B Miller 44., I Chapman 510, J McGregor 520, C Sweeney 491, W L Morrison M. D. 510, Dr. C [illegible] Buzinger 468, L. T. Cunningham 503, T. J. Hill 502, J. Snow 491, A Payson 4.1, C W Bemis 4 2, L R Barber 464, S. P. Vickery 482, Mrs. P. Bosworth 513, Samuel Hooper —.

$2.50 each.—George Strong 520, M. A. Mathews 510, J. E. Milton 520, H. Rockwell 520, G. M. Lewis 517, J Ames 526, A Gale 510, J M Strong 520, L W Spaulding 520, W Bartholomew 507, F Tibbals 509, H Drake 509, H J Baldwin 513, L Stocking 520, G F Burroughs 520, C C Chase 520, Mrs C S Belding 502, M Perley 520, Geo R Baker 518, F S Mills 520, G. Converse 525, M Sheldon 520, S F Small 520, H. A. Williams 520, W H Cornell 529, A. A. Lawrence 530, P Bush 520, O S Knapp 523, E. S. Barber 523, D. Hastings 517, W. Harris 503, M. Comiskey 511, Mrs. D L Hall 520, L A Wheeler (what P. O.?), G T Stacy 520, Wm A Munroe 522, S McDaniel 488, W S Moulton 499, L Tuttle 520.

$3.00 each.—W L Slade (what P. O.?), M Tuttle 469, A. Phinney 468, A. Darling 496, E M Hogan 508, J W Sharick 517, J M Hobart 497, E Weston Sen. 509, G L Raymond 494, C L Lougee 499.

50c each.—D Harry 471, J M Carter 478, J N Snyder 506, W Jackson 501, G Douglas 506.

D H Warren $3.50, 494; Mrs S M Hasty $1.15, 486; W. S. Shears $5.00, 540; G. W. Stewart $1.50, 464; J. Thompson $2.25, 494; E. Leonard $2 10, 520; Mrs. L. Fogg $2.62, 520; Mrs. W. C. Bartlett $2.30, 412; G. L. Rice 25c, 494; S. R. Parkhurst $7.25, 467; H. H. Davis $3.50, 512; A. M. Tyrrell 66c, 481; B Reynolds $2 42, 470; E. C. Clifford 64c, 481; Miss H. Watt 25c, 492; S. Coverly 25c, 502; Ira Quimby $2.35, 468; S. Boothby $1.50, (what P. O.?); I. Kulp $1.75, 520; J. Lyle 75c, 510; M R Taylor 25c, 492; W W Parsons 58c, 468; M. A Taylor 25c, 499; S. P. Goodsell $2.25, 514; L D Morrill $4.50, 536; A. S. Sheldon $10.00, 485; D Comstock $2.45, 517; S. J. Price $1.88, 4.8; M. A. Weaver $2.45, 477; F. Eaton $1 50, 520; F. K. Stratton $1.50, 499; C M. Polly $3.25, 491; E. S. Barber 65c, 476; A. Ricker $1.07, 484; S. Morse $5 00, 520; H. F. De Wolf $1.50, 541; J. G. Burnham $1.78, 468; Mrs J Ray 52c, 471; S F. Hulburd 75c, 499; R. Hitchcock $5.00, 429; Mrs. E. Buckland 40c, 464; L Parsons 75c, old acc't; Jane Morrill $6.50, 531; B F Carpenter $1.45, 469; H Spaulding $1.42, 527; W S Wheeler 60c, —.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

A Mussey 50c, D. S. Morse $7.20, Ira Quimby 38c, I Kulp 75c, E F Treat 30c, N S Bastion $2.35, H Rockwell $1.00, D Comstock 65c, B H Webb 20c, W L Morrison M. D. $4.00, L J Twing 25c, J Douglas 20c, S F Green 50c, N S Bastion $1.50.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—G. A. Streeter, W. P. McCarmack, H. B. Eaton, T E Wilson, J F Myers, L A Davis, C S Jones, G W Thomas, J Smith, S D Daniels, G F Locke, J B Goodrich, F B Jones, A Taft, M Bradbury, C Bunnell, H Rockwell, J Barnes, W Kirby, C S Bourne, W Roworth, Lucy Chamberlin, T W Piper, Mrs. T B Northrup, A W Griggs.

By Express.—W. H. Fisher.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

D Newton, P J Canney, W A Grant, L B Miller, J Stevenson, J C Rice, D Cogswell, M A Butman, E Abbey, N Keene, E A Annable, R R York, J D Brown, E Nelson, A Bean, C Case, J Croffut, S & L W Bragg, B Perham, W Pratt, D Taylor, A Mussey, M Lamprey, E. Merrick, N. S. Bastion, J. W. Taylor, C. P. Dow, F. Burr, H. L. Bradley.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.
Wm. Forrester—Eddytown, N. Y.
John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.
A. W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. Diamond, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. Pearl, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $3.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jos. T. Curry. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, [illegible] SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsey, D.D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man; [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church.......... 25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man. 25c.
Reasons for my Hope.......... 20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion.......... 20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly.... 20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul.. 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life. 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church. 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single..... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7 [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology vs. Bible [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, can at once be found [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England [illegible]

Two Hundred Stories for Children. An excellent and entertaining book for young and old, compiled by T. M. Preble. Price 6c, postage 5c.

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. Price 10c, [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hall. 25c, postage 6c.

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ [illegible] By T. M. Preble. 13c, postage 2c.

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 8c, postage 2c.

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. 5c, postage 2c.

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By G. F. Sweet. 25c, postage 2c.

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Phineas A. Smith. 10c, postage 2c.

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. Price 10c, postage 2c.

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. 5c, postage 2c.

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-12. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 5c, postage 2c.

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. Price 13c; by mail, [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. Price 13c, postage 2c.

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. Price 5c, postage 2c.

Home Thrusts, and Home Thoughts. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life, and in the Family Circle. [illegible]

Louis Napoleon, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Anti-Christ. [illegible] By M. Baxter. [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Mansel. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to [illegible]

Social Hymns,

Original and selected, by H. L. H. 10 cts. single, $1.00 per dozen, $6.00 per one hundred, postpaid. Address H. L. Hastings, Boston, Mass.

Likeness of Wm. Miller, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

For the World's Crisis.

PRESS ON!

Press on! pilgrims, faint and weary,
Lift ye up those tearful eyes
To the radiant bourne and blissful,
Whitherward your journey lies.
To the land which groping reason
Views but dimly and afar,
While to faith's clear gaze it shineth,
Like a fixed, unwavering star.

Tears now tremble on the lashes,
In affliction's keenest hours;
But no sorrow e'er shall enter
Eden's peaceful, happy bowers.

Press on! for the goal is nearing,
Promised land thou'lt soon descry,
Where the verdure fadeth never,
And the odors never die.

Music, softer and diviner
Than from earthly lyres rolls,
There shall float on air ambrosial
From the harps of ransomed souls.

Joy shall thrill through every bosom,
Robes of spotless white be worn,
Gleaming crowns adorn each forehead,
By the thorns of sorrow torn.

Press on! press on! time is fleeting;
Cast away thy trembling fears;
Thou shalt reap in joy a harvest
Which was sown in many tears.

Biddeford, Me. JULIA A. LIBBY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SECT OF ADVENTISTS.

"What! Do you own up that Adventists are a sect?"

Certainly I do. Is there any evil in that?

"Oh! I thought this class did not believe in sectarianism, for that makes divisions."

But, perhaps you do not use the term properly, when applied to us. Do you mean that we should not be bigots, self-willed, disfellowshiping other christians? If so, we agree that it is sinful to be sectarian. But not in the true sense of the word—"to dissent from the popular, or established church, or predominant religion."

If this be sin, then it was sin for Tyndale, Huss, Luther, Melancthon, and a host of others, whom we highly respect for their faith and works, in believing the word of God instead of the pope and priests, and in leaving the established church. It was also sin in Bunyan, Wesley, Coke, Romane, Whitefield, Randall, and many others, who dissented from the established church, and from the prominent sects which came out of the church of Rome. Do you admit they were wrong in dissenting? No, you honor them for being true to their convictions of truth.

You admit that truth is progressive in its development. Also that the human heart is retrograding in its tendencies while coming in contact with a world of error and superstition. This is proved in the history of the Romish Church, and as clearly in the history of the Protestant churches.

We are as really disgusted as you can be with the many strifes, contentions and bitter words between sects; for the conduct of bigots, knaves and fools who profess great christian charity. Glad would we be had there been no occasion for sects to take names peculiar to their leading points of doctrine; but this now seems unavoidable, therefore we find no fault with their names.

But why be sectarian? Can't avoid it. The predominant sects do not retain the most important theological points of christian doctrine, nor practise the most important gospel precepts. It then becomes our duty, as men of God, after trying to call them back to the true gospel position, and using all means to do so without accomplishing it, to dissent from them in position as well as in faith, and form another sect. In no other way can we practise what we believe. All sects holding to prominent important truths rejected by others, have been obliged to do the same. But when we follow that proper and good example, they are ready to cry out "Sectarianism," as though we committed some great evil.

How came the Orthodox, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Baptists, Methodists, and other sects, to be each separate sects? Is it worse for us to be a sect than for either of them? Each in turn talk so. But, no; each would be as much opposed to the other having existence could they prevent it. Yea, they have tried, but the others grew strong in spite of them.

We are less, and it is thought we ought not to live. "Why, you had no need to have left the churches," say they. But we believed in important truths which they would not allow us to preach, write or advocate. We tried it, carefully, judiciously, patiently, faithfully, and were forbidden, chided, threatened, ridiculed, traduced, belied and persecuted in thousands of instances, yea, nearly universally so.

"Oh! you might have stayed and let your hobbies alone, and talked as the church did, or talked your faith so as not to give offense."

Yes. We might if we had cared more to have popularity with men than with God; more to have "honor of men than the honor that cometh from God only."

Men can believe one thing and talk another, if they are hypocrites. They can also believe and talk the truth in a manner that will not challenge the faith or attention of others. But what good can this do? It benefits nobody. Did Christ, his apostles, or the martyrs, so talk? Did they not stir up the unbelief and hatred of unbelievers, and also call out the interest and faith of all who wished to be for God, and to obey him?

"Faith without works is dead." Faithfulness to important truth calls out opposition and stirs up inquiring minds to investigate. Putty men and women may do to stick wooden heads together, but they never give a martyr's crown, nor accomplish much for Christ's cause.

But, say some, "You ought to labor in other meetings just as freely as in your own."

This we have tried to do the world over, and are ready to do when permitted; but we must do it as we understand God would have us,—"Not shun to declare all the counsel of God." In no other way can we be "clear of the blood of all men."

"Oh! but I love the members of other sects just as well as yours," say some.

Yes, perhaps you do much better, and it may be natural love, or love of affinity because they love you, or indulge in what you do, practise as you do, etc. But we think we love other sects for Christ's sake, and love them well enough to tell them the truth in love, even if it cools their love for us, hoping to make them better.

"But you don't fellowship those who do not believe as you do."

God shall be the judge. We have fellowshiped them, labored with them, offered to continue with them, asked to preach to them, for them, hold union meetings with them, Bible classes, etc., all over the land, and in most instances been refused, only on the condition of keeping our faith to ourselves; while we freely invite them to preach to us, unite with us in prayer and other meetings, to discuss views, unite in Bible classes, Sunday schools, or anywhere, without abridging their faith or doctrine.

Who, then, is the Sectarian in the bad, or modern, use of the term? We claim to be sectarian in the true sense: separate for Christ's sake, and love them still.

I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUTH, OR TRADITION?

BRO. GRANT:—The blessed hope grows brighter and brighter; and as we have opportunity to contrast it with the teaching of the day, how blessed it appears, how brilliantly it shines forth. What a life-giving power there is in it, causing the heart to rejoice with joy unspeakable. Such a hope is worth a world. Praise the Lord.

Last Lord's day I had occasion to withdraw one of my appointments and go to attend the funeral of a friend, who had been bitten by a snake and had fallen under the power of the enemy. The deceased was a member of the Methodist body, and a local preacher. Rev. Dr. P— was sent for to preach a discourse and comfort the mourners. His text—"In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also,"—was turned from its true import (which is indeed comforting, for it brings to view the blessed hope of Christ's coming, and of course a bringing to life of the sleeping ones), and made to teach that heaven was a literal place for disembodied spirits; that Jesus had gone to prepare mansions for them; that the prophets were there (then they got there before Christ went to prepare the place); that the saints of all ages and martyrs were there; that death was the coming of Christ to the deceased, a dispensation of divine providence—

"'Tis but the voice that Jesus sends
To call us to his arms";

and sung—

"Is not e'en death a gain to those
Whose life to God was given?
Gladly to earth their eyes they close,
To open them in heaven.

Their toils are past, their work is done,
And they are fully blest;
They fought the fight, the vict'ry won,
And entered into rest."

Thus they would rob the enemy of his prey, and transform the blessed Jesus into an angel of death. "Christ came not to destroy men's lives, but to save." Has he reversed the order? He took part or was made a partaker of flesh and blood, "that through death he might destroy him that hath the power of death, that is, the devil." Has he done it and taken the power into his own hands? We would think so by the preaching.

Then why fear the devil if he is dead? Satan once appeared in the form of a serpent to deceive, and through that deception came death. Does Christ now appear in the form of a serpent to inoculate poison into the veins of man, and thus transform him into the spiritual ("disembodied"); or take him from this tabernacle of clay to the mansions above? Is that the way he robs death of his victim? Is that the victory gained? And is that the coming of Christ, and the hope of the church: Then why hate snakes, and death, and destruction? Why shun them? Why send for the doctor to arrest disease? Why not long to die "and enter into rest"?

O my God! enlighten the minds of the D. D.'s of this age in the blessed tidings of thy dear Son. Amen. S. K. GIBSON.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO IS A CHRISTIAN?

Are all men christians? I think not, for I learn from the Bible that we are all by nature carnal, sold under sin, and that the natural man is not subject to the law of God; neither indeed can be. Who then can be saved, since the penalty of sin is death? The declaration of God is, I have found a ransom. Now "Behold! what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, even while we were enemies, in that he hath given his only begotten Son, who knew no sin," to die an ignominious death on the cross, for our sins, thereby opening a way whereby we sinners can come to God, through faith, and find remission of all our sins.

Jesus Christ, then, is the only way by which we can go to the Father and obtain pardon of sin. Jesus Christ is the propitiation for our sins, and the only advocate between us and the Father. To whom, then, is his throne of mercy accessible? To all, as many as are willing to break off from their sins, and come by Jesus Christ to God, and ask for mercy and grace. Jesus said while he was here upon earth, just previous to his leaving to go to the Father,—"Nevertheless, I tell you the truth. It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you: but if I depart, I will send him unto you. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. Howbeit, when the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth, for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will show you things to come." Now if any man will not receive the holy spirit of truth, which will lead into all truth, and sanctifies through obeying the truth, which is the word of God, then he has not the mind and spirit of Christ; therefore he is none of his. And if we are none of his, to whom shall we then go for salvation? for he alone hath the words of eternal life.

The Bible plainly declares that there is no salvation out of Christ; then, fellow-sinner, whoever you are, except you come to God, by Jesus Christ, you are irrecoverably lost; lost in sin in the present tense, and in death to all eternity, which is the penalty of sin. Oh! sinner, be wise and repent, while Jesus is on the mercy seat pleading in your behalf before the Father. Will you not be persuaded to listen to his gentle voice, so full of love, inviting you to come and accept him as your Savior? He has sent his Holy Spirit into the world to win your affections to himself, to guide you into all truth, to sanctify or set you apart for his service through obeying the truth, his word. Be entreated to forsake every sin, which is a transgression of God's righteous law, and submit yourself to be led by his Spirit, which will take of the things of God and show them unto you; and take the Bible for your guide, Christ for your example, cease from the love of the world, and set your face like a flint towards Mount Zion. Then will the peace of God dwell in your heart richly, shed abroad by the Holy Spirit. Then you will show to the world that you are a christian, for the Spirit of God will bear witness that you have passed from death unto life; for you will then bring forth the fruits of the Spirit; which are "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law." "They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh, with the affections and lusts." If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. For then shall we know that we love God, if we keep his commandments, and if we keep his commandments, then shall we have love to all of the children of God, and if we love God we shall not walk in darkness, but shall walk in the light, and have fellowship with one another; and the blood of Jesus Christ will cleanse us from all unrighteousness. Then will all men know we are the children of God, if we love one another.

It is great consolation to know the richness of Jesus' love, filling the hearts of all his people. To his fullness, I commend you, that he may be greatly glorified in you when he shall come from heaven.

Now he that hath the keys of death and the grave says, "Behold! I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give to every one as his work shall be." Who is or will be a christian? Fellow-sinner, this question appeals to you. Are you a christian? can you answer to God in the light of divine truth? Oh! then, be entreated to give your heart to God, and become reconciled to him. He will help you to be conformed to his will, that you may be Christ-like, or christian, and in the day of his coming he will save you from death, and bestow eternal life.

Brethren and sisters, are we that are looking for the coming of Christ like him? It is very important that we examine ourselves, and see to it that we are living before the world the true gospel faith; for by our works we prove ourselves to God and the world. May the Lord help us to be subject to him in all things. The old ship Zion is sailing swiftly into port. Soon she will land in the haven of eternal rest, where sin and death, war and bloodshed, toil, care and pain, and every other evil consequent upon sin, will be forever ended. Then, afflicted children, dry your tears. There will be no more weary years of suffering upon beds of sickness, languishing in pain. Praise the Lord! Your tears will then all be wiped away by the soft hand of your Heavenly Father.

"And the glory of God, like a moulten sea,
Will bathe that immortal company."

My longing heart cries out, Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly! and gather home thy weary bride. In tribulation, longing for rest at the appearing of Jesus,

MARY A. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

It has been some time since I have been free to go out without cares at home demanding my attention; but the last day of August I sold my mill, and am at liberty to go again where the people want to join in working for God's cause. There are many invitations, but few calls. An invitation is heard; a call is felt. When a people feel like uniting in effort to have a meeting and sustain it, this makes a call which a preacher will feel.

My five months' trip is out, and God is yet willing to work when the people will work with him. Working for a position is working for ourselves, and not for God, or the good of his cause. Working to pull down a false position is like pulling up tares; it always injures some of the wheat. We must expect tares will be sown in the wheat field, and not in the woods. The Devil is not a fool. He knows that when the ground is broken up for wheat, his tares of false doctrine will grow best. Hence, where the work of God is going on, and the hearts are young, and the affections tender, like the good mellow wheat field, there we always see some new hobby started. There is no guess work about it. Where a pretended truth is presented, it always divides, and causes strife, and the fruit will be tares. But a certain class will rejoice in making division, saying the truth always did cause division.—Not among christians, if you please, sir.

Come, Mr. Hobby-rider, let us divide our work, and you go out into a new field, and commence preaching the non-resurrection of the wicked, or the Age to come, or the gift of tongues. Drive as hard as you can, and if you convert wicked, swearing, drinking men, and other sinners, so that the whole community is weeping and praying, we shall think you are working for God's cause instead of your own.

But when you fail in your attempts, and only go where some one else has taken a new field, and cut the hard oaks clear to the heart, and they have fallen before God, the good seed has caught, and fruits appear. If you step in then with your hobby, you act just like the Devil in the wheat field. So Jesus has told us, and I believe it, for I have seen it demonstrated and suffered much in my feelings, knowing the fruit of the labors of good faithful men was almost lost thereby.

I must speak, Bro. Grant, for I am responsible. You have suffered in the same manner, and mourned over it. The cause of God demands that His innocent children should be shown the difference between a sheep and a goat, a shepherd and an hireling. These are the bad things I noticed by the way, (as well as good ones,) and why not speak a word of warning? Many of my brethren will say Amen! and I hope say it out loud too. Bro. Paul thought disloyal copperheads, or coppersmiths ought to be published in the New Testament, which has a larger circulation than the Crisis. And I am glad the writers of the Bible exposed such characters.

Now one of the better things was the campmeeting at Wilbraham this year. It was one of the best I ever attended there, which was the twenty-first. One reason was, the distracting elements were crippled. This had been made a subject of prayer by many. When love and unity prevailed, those that rejoiced in contention left, or kept quiet; meanwhile concocting plans for a separate meeting, which was a relief to many. There was less disputing and more praying on the ground than had been for years. This God blessed as usual, and the heavy burden which lay on the committee was lifted in a christian manner. Thanks to the friends who helped do this. How much better we feel, and how much better you looked, coming up with your money, saying, "I will help you bear this burden." God blessed the offering; for what a meeting we had after the debt was lifted!

But Monday—O how lonesome I felt after our little city was desolated. All gone! No singing, no praying, no greeting no shouting, but all alone and still, gathering up what had been left in the hurry to get away. I thought I heard the preacher's stand groan, and the great oaks bowed their heads, looking disconsolately upon the vacant seats. How powerful this sensation. I left at 3 o'clock for home, tired and weary, and loving God's people better than ever.

Next to Alton Bay, where the care was on others; yet we sympathized with them in desiring the meeting might prove a blessing. We saw but little effort made to draw off the mind from the main object. There was enough of agreement to hold other elements in check. When we left for Portland it looked fair for having a good winding up, which was the case.

Found the Advent church at Portland holding on to the truth by a living and working faith. Next to Poland, unexpectedly. A new place, but God gave the word edge. The work started and spread all round the town. The interest was so great, and the attendance so good, that I was compelled to take up seven of my other appointments, which I hope the brethren will forgive. God worked in Poland. After fifteen days' labor among them, our attachment became very strong, especially for the young converts. Their faces shone with the peace of God in their hearts. Many came into the truth and light, and rejoiced in the glory of God that is so soon to be revealed, at the coming of Jesus Christ. Men that had professed religion for years, and occupied high stations in other churches, were converted to this last-day truth, and owned it boldly, and were greatly blessed. I expect to hear better news from Poland yet, for the church is in good working order with plenty of work to do.

Next to Windham, to Bro. Hastings' Tent meeting. By request preached to a great gathering of all sorts. Threw a bomb shell into the camp of the immortal-soulists, and made a fuss before Horace arrived. One prominent man, a preacher and doctor, said he knew he had an immortal soul that caused him to act and think. If you had seen how he acted and talked you would not have coveted his immortal soul. He was raving with anger.

Next to Portsmouth, one of the best places on earth. Had a good time for three days. God blessed us all, some within an inch of eternal life. Such shouts of glory and victory as would try old hopers.

In Lynn two evenings, before another good company in true working order. Have had their eyes opened about hobby riding. Next at Lowell St. Chapel, Boston, where hobby riders do not get in. Had a good time. Am now at home. HIRAM MUNGER.

"THE SUM OF VILLANIES."

Thoughts on Slavery, selected from various sources.

BY REV. R. DONKERSLEY.

I would not have a slave to till my ground,
To carry me, to fan me while I sleep,
And tremble when I wake, for all the wealth
That sinners bought and sold have ever earned.
—Cowper.

Our Father.—Christ.

As ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them likewise.—Jesus.

God hath made of one blood, all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.—St. Paul.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.—July 4th, 1776.

No man desires more earnestly than I do to see slavery abolished. There is only one proper way to do it, and that is by legislative action, and for that my vote shall never be wanting.—Washington.

One hour of American slavery is fraught with more misery, than ages of that which we rose in rebellion to oppose.—Jefferson.

Slavery is an atrocious debasement of human nature.—Franklin.

Slavery is a dreadful calamity, imbecility is ever attendant upon a country filled with slaves. —Madison.

Slavery has preyed upon the vitals of community in all the States where it has existed. —Monroe.

Natural liberty is the gift of the beneficent Creator of the whole human race.—Hamilton.

It (slavery) ought not to be introduced, nor permitted in any of the new states.—John Jay.

Consenting to slavery is a sacrilegious breach of trust.—John Adams.

It perverts human reason, and induces men endowed with logical powers to maintain that slavery is sanctioned by the christian religion. —John Quincy Adams.

Slavery is a curse; a curse to the master; a wrong, a grievous wrong to the slave; it is all wrong, and no possible contingency can make it right. They must blow out all the rural lights around us, and extinguish that greatest torch of all, which America presents to the enlightened world, pointing the way to their rights, liberties and happiness. And when they achieve all these purposes, their work will yet be incomplete. They must penetrate the human soul and eradicate the light of reason and the love of liberty. Then, and not till then, when universal darkness and despair prevail, can you perpetuate slavery, and repress all benevolent efforts among freemen in behalf of the unhappy portion of our race doomed to bondage. So long as God allows the vital current to run through my veins, I will never, never, by thought, by mind or will, aid in submitting one rood of free territory to the everlasting curse of human bondage.—Henry Clay.

Sir, I envy neither the heart nor the head of that man, from the north, who rises here (in Congress) to defend slavery from principle. —Randolph.

Our opposition to the further extension of local slavery in this country or to the increase of slave representation in Congress, is general and universal. It has no reference to limits of latitude or points of compass. We shall oppose all such extension and all such increase, in all places, at all times, under all circumstances, even against all inducements, against all supposed limitation of great interest, against all combinations, against all compromises.—Daniel Webster.

It (slavery) impairs our strength as a community, and poisons our morals at the fountain head.—Judge Gaston of N. C.

The evils of this system, (slavery,) cannot be enumerated.—George W. Summers.

The sweat of a slave poisons the soil upon which it falls; his breath is mildew to every green thing, his tear withers the verdure it drops upon.—H. Mann.

The world has seen thousands of years and not learned the first two words of the Lord's prayer; not until all tribes and nations have learned these, will his kingdom come and his will be done on earth as it is in heaven.—Mrs. Harriet B. Stowe.

We do not believe with Mr. Calhoun, the Declaration of Independence to be "a rhetorical flourish!" We do not believe it to be what Mr. Pettit pronounced it, "a self-evident lie." We do not believe it to be, "an eloquent and passionate manifesto of a revolutionary war," "mere glittering and surrounding generalities of natural right." We believe it to be a living truth, from the pages of the New Testament, expressed in the Declaration of Independence, and embodied in the Constitution of the United States. We believe the maintainance of that truth everywhere under the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress, to be the constitutional and imperative duty of Congress.—H. Wilson.

Slavery is a system of outrage and robbery. —Socrates.

Slavery is a system of the most complete injustice.—Plato.

Not only does the christian religion but nature herself cry out against the state of slavery.—Pope Leo X.

We further reprobate by our Apostolic authority, all the above offences (traffic in slaves and holding them in slavery) as utterly unworthy of the christian name.—Gregory XVI.

Those are men-stealers who abduct, keep and sell or buy slaves or freemen.—Grotius.

Every man has a property in his own person; this nobody has a right to but himself. —Locke.

It (slavery) is so odious that nothing can be sufficient to support it but positive law.—Lord Mansfield.

It is injustice to permit slavery to remain for an single hour.—Wm. Pitt.

Slavery is contrary to the fundamental law of all societies.—Montesquieu.

Slavery in all its forms, in all its degrees, is a violation of Divine law, and a degradation of human nature.—Brissot.

Slavery is detrimental to virtue and industry.—Bettie.

While men despise fraud and loathe rapine, and abhor blood, they will reject with indignation the wild and guilty phantasy that man can hold property in man.—Brougham.

Slavery is a state so improper, so degrading, so ruinous to the feelings and capacities of human nature, that it ought not to be suffered to exist.—Burke.

No man is by nature the property of another. —Dr. Johnson.

A system (slavery) which is not only opposed to all the principles of morality, but, as it appears to me, is pregnant with appalling and inevitable danger to the republic.—Baron Humboldt.

American slavery! the vilest that ever saw the sun.—Wesley.

Slavery—that is holding men and women—is a crime. Slavery ought to be abolished; slavery must be abolished; slavery shall be abolished; slavery will be abolished by this war. If to believe that and work for it is abolitionism, then I am an abolitionist.—Dr. Tyng.

"O, from the fields of cane,
From the low rice-swamp, from the trader's cell,
From the black slave ship's foul and loathsome hell,
And coffle's weary chain;
Hoarse, horrible, and strong,
Rise to heaven that agonizing cry,
Filling the arches of the hollow sky,
How long, O God, how long?"—WHITTIER.
—Exchange.

PERILOUS TIMES.

BY REV. B. T. ROBERTS.

(Concluded.)

No class of persons are so difficult to be brought under the dominion of the saving grace of God, as conscientious formalists. It was to them our Savior declared, "Verily, I say unto you, that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you." —Matt. 21: 31. Under the labors of the apostles, the worst of characters were saved, —idolaters and adulterers, thieves and drunkards "were washed, and sanctified, and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God,"—Matt. 6: 9, 11; but I do not remember of reading in the whole New Testament of the conversion of but a single Pharisee, and that was effected by an overwhelming miracle. Formalism begets self-complacency. He who is thoroughly satisfied with himself, is not easily brought to renounce his valued righteousness—the fruit of the labor of years,—and led to follow Christ in the way of humility, and reproaches, and self-denials, and persecutions. He chooses an easier path. The Laodiceans were rigid, christian formalists. No errors of doctrine had crept in among them; no immoral practices had been indulged or countenanced; their profession was up to the highest requirements of orthodox standards; they said they were "rich, and increased with goods, and had need of nothing." To call in question, at the present day, the piety of such a church, would be considered the extreme of uncharitableness. They were lukewarm professors, respectable in the eyes of men, but objects of loathing to God. "I would," said our Savior, pathetically, "thou wert either cold," for then you might be brought to repentance; "or hot," for then you would be safe; but as they were, he evidently almost despaired of their salvation.

What class of persons in our country are, as a class, so inaccessible to gospel truth as the Papists? It is next to impossible to bring them out from under the shadow of their imposing rites, where the sun of righteousness can shine upon them. A hundred common sinners are probably converted to God, to one Roman Catholic. And Protestant formalists are no better, and but little more likely to yield to the claims of God. When deeply convicted by the Spirit, they often shake off their convictions and call them temptations.

To have "the form of godliness, and deny the power thereof," is to be in the sure way to hell. Terrible is the self-deception that many practice upon themselves. "To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me?" saith the Lord.—Isa. 1: 11. Our offerings, upon which so much stress is laid, our contributions to ministers and missions, cannot save us. We must have inward and outward righteousness, purity of heart, and holiness of life. Mere professions and external observances of forms, however excellent, will not answer. We must be controlled by a spirit of active obedience. "Not every one," says Jesus, "that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."

The extreme danger we are in from formalism is seen from the directions that the Holy Spirit gives us, that we may avoid coming under its influence. "From the examples of our Savior, and from the precepts of Holy Writ, we are authorized to go among publicans and sinners to labor for their salvation. The openly wicked we must reprove and warn. We may reason with those who oppose the truth, and instruct them in meekness. He who is overtaken in a fault, we must endeavor to restore. "The spirits" we may "try whether they be of God!" And even Satan himself we need not run from, but we are taught to "resist the devil, and he will flee" from us! But "from those who have the form of godliness, but deny the power thereof," we are commanded to turn away. We must get out of the reach of their influence as soon as possible. In a precipitate retreat is our only safety. Parley with them, and we become ourselves exposed to ruin. Contend, and we are overcome. Such is the nature of their disease, that an attempt, on our part, to administer remedies, cannot benefit, them, but will expose us to the fatal contagion. The leper becomes aware of his terrible condition when every one studiously avoids him. The formalist can never be saved until he sees his peril, and pity for him as well as regard for our own safety, should prompt us to obey the apostle's direction. No other treatment will answer.

We ask, dear reader, are not these "perilous times," spoken of by Paul, upon us? Do you know your danger? If not, then is your peril most imminent. You sleep as do others. The soft influences that soothe to destroy, are prevailing against you. A most determined, vigorous effort is demanded. Your case admits of no delay. If a week, or even a day has passed without your heart's being melted down under the purifying influences of the Holy Spirit, there is cause for alarm. If your prayers are cold and formal, composed of stereotyped phrases and expressions, repeated until they have lost all meaning,—if they are the studied productions of the intellect rather than the warm effusions of the heart, do not think to make any compensation for their dryness by their length or frequency. No increase of speed can take you along any faster while you remain in this treadmill. You need the Holy Spirit. Here is your lack. Without you obtain this, you will remain essentially the same, going over the same round of ceremonies without any benefit other than the satisfaction afforded by the indulgence of a habit good enough of itself, but possessing no saving character.

You must begin anew. There is a consecration which, if you would honestly make it, would bring light to your soul. There is a confession which would go to the bottom of and break up the great deep of your hearts. You must have the "power of godliness," or you are undone forever. Rest no longer in forms. Arouse thee in good earnest. Look to have Christ, your life, manifest himself to your poor, dead soul. Say not, "I am as safe as others." Their damnation will not help you. You must live or die for yourself. Will you, beloved, escape from bondage into the glorious liberty of the sons of God? Then give him your undivided heart. Make no reserve. He will give you victory over the world. Become his true worshiper; and remember, "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him, must worship him in spirit and in truth."—The Earnest Christian.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

"DON'T TELL MOTHER."

"Don't tell Mother," I heard a bright looking boy say, as he ran with nimble feet to join a crowd who were accompanying a returning fire-engine. The excitement, the eager comments of the boys and men as they passed, and perhaps the strange desires for forbidden pleasures, which are inherent in our sinful natures, drew the boy away from home, but as he went, he remembered the prohibition, and uttered those works, "Don't tell mother."

A good mother is a gift to thank God forever. A mother's kiss, a mother's gentle word, a mother's tender care, what have they not done for us all? Eliza Cook's beautiful lines, "To an Old Arm-Chair," have thrilled through many hearts:

"I love it, I love it, and who shall dare
To chide me for loving that old arm-chair?
'Tis bound by a thousand chords to my heart;
Not a tie will break, not a link will start;
Would you learn the spell? a mother sat there,
And a sacred thing is her old arm-chair."

When I hear young lips exclaiming, "Don't let mother see this; hide it away; don't tell mother where I am going," I tremble for the safety of the speaker. The action which will not bear the kind scrutiny of a mother's love, will sink into shame at the look of God. Little feet that begin life by going where a mother does not approve, will not easily learn to walk in the narrow way of the Lord's commandments. "Don't tell mother," has been the rallying cry of Satan's best recruits for hundreds of years. From disregard of the mother's rule at home, springs reckless disregard of the laws of society. The boy who disobeys his mother will not be likely to make a useful and law-honoring citizen. "Don't tell mother," is a sure step downward—the first seat in those easy cars of habit, which glide so swiftly and so silently, with their freight of souls, toward the precipice of ruin.

The best and the safest way is always to tell mother. Who so forgiving as she? Who so faithful? Who so constant? Who so patient?—Through nights of wearisome watching, through days of wearing anxiety, through sickness and through health, through better and through worse, a mother's love has been unfailing. It is a spring that never becomes dry. Confide, dear young readers, in your mother; do nothing which she has forbidden; consult her about your actions; treat her ever with reverential love. It has been the crowning glory of truly good and great men, that, when hundreds and thousands bowed in admiration at their feet, they gave honor to their mothers. Mother-love has dared dangers from which the stout heart of the warrior has shrunk appalled. Happy they who early learn to appreciate its priceless worth.

A mother's prayers gave John Newton to christianity; a mother's loving effort dedicated John Wesley to the cross. What mothers have done for the work of evangelizing the world; what they have written in letters of light upon the page of history; what the pen of the recording angel has registered for them, in the open book above, is known alone to God. Boys and girls, never go to a place where a "Don't tell mother" is necessary to cover your footsteps. Sunday-school scholar, in your every-day life show the pure teachings of your Sabbath home, by obeying the mother who endears and blesses your whole life.—Merry's Museum.

WHICH IS THE NOBLEST?

Frankie walked out one cold morning; he was the son of a very rich man, and his mamma took great pride in dressing him very fine. At the time we saw him, he was just five years old; he had on nice little blue pants with shiny buttons on them, and a beautiful zouave of crimson velvet. Thus walking along with his little soldier-cap on, he began to think himself quite a man, if not indeed a soldier, quite fit for the service.

The ground was all covered with sleet, which had frozen the day before, and the wind blew bitter and cold. Just at that moment little Annie Williams was walking along the street with a basket of shavings in her hand, which she was carrying home to her mother from the cabinet shop. Her little foot slipped upon the icy pavement, and in the effort to save herself from falling, she upset the basket, and a gust of wind blew the shavings hither and thither all over the surface of the ice.

"Capital!" said Frankie, and fairly danced with amusement. While the crowd were watching the movements of the beautiful boy, his gilt buttons glistening in the sunshine, little Annie began to cry.

Just then a boy, who had been watching the whole movement from a shop across the street, came out. He was a tall, slender-looking boy, about nine years of age, in rather tattered garments.

"Ho! little lady, what's the matter?" said he, walking up to her. Annie looked up into his generous face,—a smile of hope mingling with her tears,—but before she had any time to reply, the boy had taken her basket, and was down on the glassy ice gathering up the shavings as fast as possible, and placing them back in her basket.

"Now, my little readers, I wish to ask you which was the noblest? Which was indeed the best soldier, he who was dressed fine like one, or the ragged boy, who dared to venture to little Annie's assistance when all the rest were laughing at her? To be a true soldier is to dare to do right; and he who will not venture to another's assistance, when he sees him in need, is a coward!—Juvenile Instructor.

THE POWER OF ONE GOOD BOY.

"When I took the school," said a gentleman, speaking of a certain school he once taught, "I soon saw there was one good boy in it. I saw it in his face. I saw it by many unmistakable marks. If I stepped out and came suddenly back, that boy was always studying, just as if I had been there, while a general buzz and the roguish looks of the rest showed there was mischief in the wind.

I learned he was a religious boy, and a member of the church. Come what would, he would be for the right.

There were two other boys who wanted to behave well, but were sometimes led astray. These two began to look up to Alfred, and were much strengthened by his example. Alfred was as lovely in disposition as he was firm in principle. These three boys began now to create a sort of public opinion on the side of good order and the master. One boy, and then another, gradually sided with them. The foolish pranks of idle and wicked boys began to lose their popularity. They did not win the laugh which they used to. A general obedience and attention to study prevailed. At last the public opinion of the school was fairly revolutionized; from being a school of ill name, it became one of the best behaved schools anywhere about, and it was that boy, Alfred, who had the largest share in making the change. Only four or five held out, and these were finally expelled. Yes," said the teacher, "it is in the power of one right-minded, right-hearted boy to do that. He stuck to his principles like a man, and they stuck to him, and made a strong and splendid fellow of him."—The Little Crusader.

LOVE WORDS.

A little head with its golden hair,
A little face so sweet and fair,
A little hand with its dimpled grace,
It wanders lovingly over my face,
And a sweet voice whispers, soft and low,
"I love you, sister—I love you so."

Ah! what is fame but an empty show,
Luring us on through fields of snow;
Ah! what is wealth but a glittering chain,
Linking our hearts to the weak and vain,
If we hear not murmured, soft and low,
The sweet, fond words, "I love you so"?

"I love you, sister!"—ah! murmur it o'er,
They're the echoed words of another shore,
Where the streets are gold and the robes are white,
Where there comes no storm with its bitter blight,
Where many hearts we have missed, you know,
Will murmur still, "We love you so."
—Youth's Companion.

A WARNING TO CHILDREN.

We hope all our young readers "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," and that they do not neglect the Sabbath school.

We will tell you about a little boy in England who disregarded the Lord's word, and led his sister astray. Instead of going to the Sabbath school, they went to rob the nests of the pretty sea-gulls. When these little transgressors came to the high cliffs between the Cove and Land's End, the boy reached over the edge of the steep rock to get some eggs out of one of the nests, and the little girl had hold of him. His foot slipped, and the affrighted girl held him as long as she could, but her strength failed her. There was no one nigh to hear her cries, and come to her aid. Sad to relate, she was obliged to let go her hold, and the poor boy fell down the fearful depth of from two hundred to three hundred feet, and was dashed to pieces on the rocks beneath!

If these children had reverenced the Lord's day, or been to Sabbath school, this very sad affair would not have occurred, and little William Penrose might have been now alive, and his sister would have been saved from the painful feelings which she must have all her days.

"God spake these words and said, Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.—Youth's Visitor.

HOPING FOR A HOPE.

A dying man, from thirst, stands before a fountain.

"Have you drank?"

"No! but I hope I shall."

"Do you wish to drink?"

"No! but I hope I shall wish to drink!"

"Do you see that you are just ready to die for want of water?"

"No! but I hope I shall see it"

Why does he not drink? Because he has no desire to. Why, then, does he stand there? Because he hopes he shall have such a desire. But if the promptings of a dying agony and the sweet gushing streams before him leave him without that desire, what does his life amount to?

So stand we, poor sinners, by the fountain of the water of life. We look at the waters, and look at those that are drinking, and look at the invitation "whosoever will," and then stand there still and hope that we shall drink. What is such a hope good for? Why not "take the water of life freely?" This hoping for a hope is often the devil's opiate for a partially awakened sinner. God's direction is "Lay hold upon the hope set before you."—Juvenile Presbyterian.

☞ Censure is most effectual when mixed with praise. So, when a fault is discovered, it is well to look up a virtue to bear it company.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—{ One year..........$2.50 / Six months..........$1.25

If not paid within six months,—{ One year..........$3.00 / Six months..........$1.50

Five copies, to one address, six months..........$5.00 —same rate for any larger number under ten.

Ten copies, to one address, six months..........$10.00 —same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 472. BOSTON, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 5.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

ADVENT HYMN.

See Titus 2: 13; Phil. 3: 20, 21; Rom. 8: 19–23; 2 Tim. 3: 1–5; Luke 21: 28.

Eternal Father, hear!
Haste to fulfill thy word!
Let Israel's Hope appear!
Reveal to earth her Lord!
We wait for Jesus from the skies,—
When shall his glories greet our eyes?

How long shall death yet reign,
And hell our race oppress?
When shall earth bloom again
In Eden's blessedness?
We wait for Jesus from the skies,—
When shall his glories greet our eyes?

The waves of ill are high;
The world with trouble reels;
All lands and creatures cry,—
Speed Judgment's chariot-wheels!
We wait for Jesus from the skies,—
When shall his glories greet our eyes?

The times are prophets now;
They preach impending doom;
Let each, repentant, bow,
And saints prepare for home.
We wait for Jesus from the skies,—
Soon shall his glories greet our eyes.

Hail to the dawning day,
By holy seers foretold!
Hail to Messiah's sway,
And coming Age of Gold!
We wait for Jesus from the skies,—
Soon shall his glories meet our eyes.

—J. A. Seiss, D. D.

HEIRS OF "THE WORLD TO COME" SHOULD NOT FIGHT FOR THIS WORLD.

Shall christians fight? It is a question of vital importance to christians at present to ascertain their duty on this point,—for many for want of a clear perception of it, have gone into this war to the serious injury of their own souls. The case is so clearly stated in the following text, it would seem next to an impossibility to misunderstand it. "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight that I should not be delivered to the Jews." John 18: 36. "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." John 17: 16.

This remarkable declaration would appear sufficient of itself, if there was not another passage concerning it, to answer the question, shall christians fight, in the negative.

There are two principal reasons, among many others, why they should not.

First, because, according to the law of christian love, they cannot plunge into the work of human slaughter.

Secondly, because the unworldly nature of our faith precludes contention for the things of this world. This was the reason given by our divine Lawgiver, why his servants "could not fight." He could not approve their fighting for that which he had commanded them to forsake.

They were to forsake all that they had in this world, even their own lives. Luke 14: 26, 27, 33; John 12: 25, 26. This doctrine, which he taught through his whole life, gave a peculiar significance to his last parting declaration on this subject.

Surely, if they ever could have been permitted to fight for this world, it would have been in defense of their divine Master.

It may be said, it was because his death was decreed as an atoning sacrifice, that they were not permitted to defend him; but this was not the reason that he gave. It was upon the ground of the unworldly nature of his kingdom, and their consequent unworldly position. "My kingdom is not of this world; for if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight," is the plain and definite reason. Add to this, the parallel declaration, "Ye are not of this world, even as I am not of this world," and it would seem impossible to draw any other inference from it. This vein runs through the whole of the New Testament Scriptures; all, in effect, teaching that "the weapons of our warfare are not carnal; for though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh." 2 Cor. 10: 3, 4.

"Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," is often cited,—but this related to a civil transaction, and was in no sense the transgression of any divine law. Render unto Cæsar faithfully the things that are Cæsar's,—but Cæsar has no more right to command me to murder, than to rob or steal. That war was permitted in the old dispensation, is nothing to the point, since we are not under that; and since we are prohibited under the christian dispensation from retaliation, which was permitted under the Mosaic law; which prohibition was proclaimed in the very first sermon the Savior preached. It is important to remember that the law of retaliation was abrogated in the very first public announcement of the Savior's precepts. This peace proclamation breathes nothing but peace on earth, and good will to men.

It may seem strange to some who have not considered the unworldly nature of our dispensation, that the law of retaliation, which was not only permitted, but regulated by special legislation under the old dispensation, should be rigidly forbidden in that which succeeded it; and that even the privilege of self-defense should be denied us. Matt. 5: 38–48. When the Savior said, in allusion to Lev. 24: 20, and Exod. 21: 24, 25, "Ye have heard that it hath been said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," etc., "but I say unto you that ye resist not evil," we naturally inquire the reason of this astonishing change. Why, under one, are we commanded to do a thing, which we are commanded not to do in another? But the Savior does not leave us without a reason. We find it in the change of dispensation; which is one of grace. "For the law was given by Moses, but grace came by Jesus Christ." John 1: 17. And as we are the recipients of grace—unmitigated grace—we are to bestow the same upon others, as illustrated in the parable of the ten thousand talent servant. This contains a very remarkable principle. Here we see that this servant was actually under grace,—he had been pardoned all; but because he did not extend the same grace to others, he was taken from under the law of grace, and put back under the law of judgment. His Lord addresses him as a "wicked servant." But where was that wickedness? It was a perfectly legal debt, legally collected. Where then was there cause for such a charge? Had he not a right by the law of the land, to collect a lawful debt in the manner appointed by law? Certainly, if he had been under the law. But he was not; he was under grace. And this is another proof, that we are "not of this world;" and have nothing to do with their governments, only so far as meek submission to their civil law is concerned. We are no longer even citizens of this world; but are "translated into the kingdom of His Son," of which we are "heirs by promise,"—and if we would gain it, we must be "diligent followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises." Heb. 6: 11, 12; Rom. 8: 17; Heb. 11: 9.

Since we must follow them to inherit the same promises, let us inquire into the nature of their example. The most distinguishing feature of it we find to be that of unworldliness. The words "strangers," "sojourners," and "pilgrims," constantly occur in Paul's history of that example which we must follow. They dwelt even in the land of promise in tents—for they "looked for a city whose builder and maker is God; for here we have no abiding city, but seek one to come." "They that do such things declare plainly that they seek a better country." Heb. 11. 8, 16.

If these Bible Christians, whom Paul sets before us as our examples, were citizens of another country, even while inhabiting this, and had their hearts so set upon "the world to come," that they dwelt as temporary residents even in the land which was theirs by promise,—notice, by promise, not by possession, even while in it, but still by promise, not in this dispensation, but in the "world to come whereof we speak," Heb. 2: 5, should we not also recognize our pilgrim state and unworldly position? And if pilgrims, then are we neutrals; as much so as the citizens of England and France would be in this country while traveling through it. And if neutrals, we cannot take up arms to fight for a foreign country. And, according to this doctrine, we are foreigners everywhere out of heaven. For Paul declares that "our citizenship is in heaven."

If a citizen of England should abandon his neutrality and take up arms for either of our belligerent parties, what would be the consequence? Would he not forfeit the protection of his king? Would we not also forfeit the protection of our heavenly King, by taking up arms for earthly governments? He himself has declared that if we take up the sword we must fall by the sword. "For with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again." "He that killeth with the sword, must be killed with the sword." Rev. 13: 20. It is useless for a christian to put himself in an unscriptural position, and pray for protection in it. It is when we "run in the way of his commandments," not against them, that we may expect to have our prayers answered.

The Apostle John says, "Whatsoever we ask we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight." 1 John 3: 22. And this is one of his commandments: "Put up thy sword." However just a man may be, it is not for those who have been pardoned many and all sins, "through the forbearance of God," (Rom. 3: 25), to deal rigidly with others. If they had been dealt with according to the law of justice, instead of grace, every sin would have been punished; but, as they have been pardoned by grace, they must extend the same grace to others that has been extended to them. "I forgave thee all, shouldest thou not also have had compassion on thy fellow-servant, even as I had pity on thee? And his Lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him. So, likewise, shall my Heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one their trespasses. "Verily, thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing." Matt. 18: 32—35; Matt. 5: 26. "Judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come." He reserves avenging judgments for himself. "Vengeance is mine, I will repay saith the Lord." 1 Cor. 4: 5; Rom. 12: 14—21; 1 Pet. 2: 19—23.

Again, christians cannot on the principle of christian love plunge into the work of human slaughter. The law of love is their special law, without which man cannot know God—for God is love. "And he that loveth not knoweth him not." 1 John 4: 8. And war not only transgresses this law in its spirit and general principles, but in every special and distinctive part of it. It not only breaks the whole law of love, but every other law. "For all the law is fulfilled even in this; thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Why? Because, "love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Gal. 5: 14; Rom. 13: 10. But war works all kinds of ill. Murder, rapine and plunder, with all their kindred evils and miseries, follow in its train. Therefore, if love is the fulfilling of the whole law, "because it worketh no ill to its neighbor," war, which works every ill, must be the breaking of the whole law. And consequently, we find the scriptural description of christian character, and that of the warrior wholly at variance. That of the christian is described as "first pure, the peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy, and good fruits," accompanied with the declaration that "the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace." But in contradistinction to this, it is said of the carnal man: "Ye lust, ye kill, ye fight and war." James 3: 17, 18. James 4: 1—4. And to designate war as more unmistakably belonging to the character of the carnal man, it is expressly declared that all wars and fightings come from the flesh. This cannot possibly be a description of christian character: "For they that are Christ's, have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts." "For the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, meekness," etc. "Blessed are the peace-makers." There are no blessings on the peace-breakers.

We meet with many wayside testimonies, of fearful import, to the demoralizing effects of war.

It is frequently observed with sorrow, by godly ministers, that wherever the spirit of war goes, the spirit of religion declines.

In one of the Methodist papers, an old minister of sixty years' experience writes: "The war and its claims upon all classes of people, (preachers, as well as others), seems to engross the minds and conversation of nearly all; hence there is not much religious interest among any of the denominations. I have been acquainted with the Methodists in the West for nearly sixty years, and I have never known that denomination so entirely destitute of revivals, as they have been for the last two years. Many of their best revival preachers have left preaching and gone to the war." Another editor remarks: "So far as we can learn, but one result follows the spirit of war, and that is like the foregoing, moral death." Why this result if it is right for christians to fight? Remember, it is the spirits of devils" that are to gather men to the battle of the great day. Rev. 16: 14. Ought not christians to shrink from such a gathering?

It is still a mystery to us, how any one who knows anything of experimental religion, and the Spirit of Christ, can think it is right for christians to go to war, and there slaughter each other. Is this loving one another as Christ loved them? He laid down his life for them instead of destroying their lives. A new commandment I give unto you; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Can we kill a man whom we love?

The following testimonials are equally as decided in reference to the soul-destroying effects of war.

An army correspondent of a Baptist paper, says: "War is atheistic, infidel, devilish—that many go there almost saints, and come back almost fiends." We might multiply such extracts to many pages, from the religious newspapers of the different denominations, and also to the generally demoralizing effect of war upon all classes. The demoralizing effects of camps, even upon the youth of the surrounding neighborhoods, as well as upon those within them, was brought before one of the Presbyterians very recently; and the subject of devising ways and means to stay the flood of evil was gravely discussed,—in which it was said, "One step farther and we will have a reign of terror and atheism, with the Bible dragged through the streets, as in infidel France."

These are startling and alarming facts. In the face of such fearful evidences of its demoralizing influence, we cannot but wonder to hear some of the ministers of our pulpits urging their members to enlist, when they know into what a vortex of temptation it will plunge them: "Do violence to no man." "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 11: 14.—New Tract.

CONSISTENCY.

Are we, as christians, consistent with our profession? We profess to have received a new heart filled with new desires, hopes, and joys; we profess to be separate from the world, and to be saved from the love of it, from all conformity to it, from the love of its applause, and the fear of its reproach. We profess to be saved from sin, its pollution, its stain, from all its infection. Well, all this is right, for this is professing no more than the word of truth enjoins upon us: this is consistent Biblé profession. But let us be thorough in the examination of our own hearts. If our desires are all new, they are tending toward heavenly things; upward, upward they will mount, and refuse to be satiated with earthly good. If we are consistent, there will be deadness to the world, not recklessness, nor insensibility, for we shall be keenly awake to all the devices of Satan, but our souls will be kept hidden in the cleft of the rock, and we shall have victory over the world, the flesh, and the devil.

But are there not too many that profess to be saved from the world and its maxims, that are afraid to lift up one word against it? They even crouch to the opinion of the milliner or mantau-maker, fearing they will think them whimsical, too particular, odd, or without taste; there they yield, just a little, and ponder, and strive to quiet the stirrings of conscience, and thus almost imperceptibly sacrifice the principle of consistency. Do we never see persons, who seem to get powerfully blessed, in class or prayer meeting on the Sabbath, when perhaps the little annoyances of the following washing day will entirely throw them out of that happy state? They yield to impatience and fretfulness, and their peace is all gone. O consistency! where art thou? O come and adorn the heart of every earnest christian!

We want a religion of consistency, not one that shouts and sings in meetings alone; but one that glows, and warms, and burns in the heart, preparing us for little duties, home duties, neighborhood kindnesses, soft words of love to the down-trodden: one that binds up the broken, and keeps that which is lame from being turned out of the way. Do not some go to the anxious seat to be prayed for, and receive, they say, a new blessing, but they are no sweeter in their spirit, no softer in their mould, no more filled with yearning of soul for the salvation of men, no more sensitive to the approach of sin, no more self-denying, no more self-sacrificing, no more religious in the family, and, as far as we can see, no better Bible christians than before? Now what kind of a blessing is it that increases our ardency but does not increase our love in the same ratio? O let our love, long-suffering, forbearance, be increased, with every blessing, then our religion will be one of Bible symmetry and consistency.—Ex.

For the World's Crisis.

ALL HAIL!

The valleys and the mountain tops
Echo the grand refrain,
Sung by creation's joyous hosts,
Of welcoming again
The Son of God, the Prince of Peace,
On earth to reign and dwell,
And plant therein a tree which will
The King of Terrors quell.

Hosanna to Thee! rightful heir
To earth's deserted throne,
The throne whereon thy Father ruled,
And which is now thine own.
Throughout thy reign we, who remain
Now faithful to the end,
Shall share thy glory and thy throne,
And ever thee attend.

All hail! Messiah, King of kings,
All hail! thy blissful reign
O'er earth restored to paradise,
As when God dwelt with men.
Creation groans no more, but joins
In songs of praise to Thee,
And evermore will celebrate
The day of jubilee.

Eddytown, N. Y. A. L. FORRESTER.

For the World's Crisis.

SAWYER'S TRANSLATION.

Not being acquainted with the original Greek, I am unable to say how correct this new translation may be; yet for the benefit of those interested in the subject, the following extracts are made.

Paul, speaking to the church at Rome, says, "And I commend to you Phebe, our sister, who is a minister of the church in Cenchrea, that you receive her in the Lord worthily of the saints, and assist her in anything in which she may have need of you, for she has been an assistant of many, and of myself also."

Phebe is called a "minister." But what is it to be a minister? Among men, it means to be a laborer in the gospel, a divider of the word, an exhorter, a teacher, a PREACHER. But among women, to be a "minister of the church" (according to popular opinion), is to serve tables, to keep a good lookout for the food and raiment of the "gospel ministers." And when the apostle Paul came to Cenchrea, hungry, tired, and ragged, if Phebe got his supper, showed him his bedroom, which was always in order, whether the minister came or not; and then, while Paul was sleeping, if Phebe got his stockings and darned them nicely, just as the sisters in Rome would, had they an opportunity; why, the next letter he writes to Rome he tells the saints to receive Phebe, calls her a minister, says she assisted him and many others in the gospel, and also asks them to assist her in whatever she may need.

Reader, this is not the specific work of a minister, else thousands of females who never did the first work of a christian minister are as really such as Phebe was.

"Salute Mary, who labored much for us." Rom. 13. Here Mary is said to have labored for the apostles, while Mary labored WITH them.

"For every man praying or prophesying with his head covered, disgraces his head. But every woman praying or prophesying with her head uncovered, disgraces her head." What is it to prophesy? Is it simply to rise up in the social meeting and tell how you "feel?" Whatever it may be, it was foretold by the prophet Joel, and Peter used it for a "sign" to convince men that we are in the "last days." For says the prophet, "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy. . . . And upon my male-servants, and upon my female-servants, in those days, will I pour out of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy." And while the "female servants" may not make church laws, or "usurp authority over the man"; and although on account of inability and non-requirement they are not to officiate in the church, by breaking of bread, administering the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper, yet as regards speaking to edification, exhortation or comforting of the saints, she has liberty. The Spirit of God has been poured out, and his female servants have been called to labor in the gospel. The call, "Go work in my vineyard," has not come to the "mothers in Israel" more than to the weak, trembling children of the Lord.

I am acquainted with those who never spoke twenty words at a time in public, yet who, after this Spirit came upon them, have talked an hour, bold, free, and instructive. What made such a change? I could refer you to one weak, trembling, doubting soul, but eighty years of age, who confessed had she known before her conversion that God would require public labor of her, would have remained in the world. So few had been her words, so stammering her speech, so confused her testimony in the assembly of saints, that a Bro., who believed in female preaching, and wished to encourage her, said, "You can but fail, and it's best to try." The Spirit that was in her spoke through her, surprising herself and those that listened. Next day the Bro. referred to said, "She has a wonderful tongue!"

Why may not christians speak by the Spirit's aid? Is it not given to guide them and to "help their infirmities"? Look at the Spiritualist trance speakers. Little, timid girls, with no great amount of linguistic talent, will rise up before the multitude and talk like real orators. This was never done till we got into the "last days," where God's Spirit was to cause his women to speak. Then the Devil sent his spirit among his "female servants." Did the Lord's children ever do anything and the Devil not imitate them?

For the world, I would not be found teaching my sisters to resist the Spirit when it calls them to labor. As Bro. D. T. Taylor has said, "If any of our Advent sisters have been called to preach, they had best up and do it."

O! ye who oppose "these women that labor in the gospel," remember it has not been their choice. Gladly would they be excused; but the Spirit of the Lord has constrained them. They walk in the Spirit, lead where it may. Not one of them would thus expose herself to public condemnation or to the opposing influence of brethren and sisters who have no sympathy for them or their work, unless their peace with God and their future welfare demanded it. Some have refused to obey when the Spirit came, and the following is the language of one whom I know.

"In reviewing the matter recently, I asked myself, What have I gained by yielding my own convictions of duty to those of another? by forsaking the peculiar path for the common way? Why, I have gained sorrow of heart, darkness of mind and an abiding consciousness of the Divine disapproval. . . . . O! I am but a wreck of what I once was. I have sorrows that few know. They wear upon my sensitive nature. They irritate my nervous system. . . . ."

Sisters, some of you must fulfill God's prophecy. God requires it. The times demand it. Labor for God. Be faithful with the talent he has given you. The reckoning will come. How does your account stand? Have you been true to your trust?

Brethren, we are near the judgment. I am as conscious as can be that I speak to you on a subject lightly esteemed. But the sorrowing ones who give me their experience, who come to me for sympathy, have moved me to write thus. I would remove the stumbling-block. It is want of sympathy from you that causes such sorrow among them, and your unbelief prevents their obedience.

Sinners are to be saved. What difference can it make who saves them? The harvest is great, and while on bended knee with tearful eye you "Pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers into his vineyard," whomsoever he sends, "receive in the Lord, worthily of saints," whether it be the strong man, or the weak, but true-hearted woman. Ruth gleaned the sheaves of the field. Phœbe gleaned souls in the world, and ministered to them in the church. And ye that remain in Rome to labor for the meat that perisheth, when Paul, or Phœbe, or any other servant visits you, assist them in whatever they need, for there is neither male nor female, but all are one in Christ Jesus. Amen.

M. M. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRIST AT THE HELM.

May the friends of the Crisis pardon me if I take too much liberty; but as Christ is at the helm, and as I am almost in sight of the harbor, if my boat should rock a little as the waves beat upon it, I will do as the Psalmist David did. "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help; my help cometh from the Lord. He will not suffer my feet to be moved." Look at his gracious promises. He calleth his people to witness His omnipotency. He saith, "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee. When thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burnt; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee." Christ is at the helm, lonely pilgrims. Art thou disconsolate? Christ said, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." David said, "If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say, if it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us; then they had swallowed us up quick; when their wrath was kindled against us; . . . . our soul is escaped as a bird out of the snare of the fowler; the snare is broken, and we have escaped." "Praise ye the Lord. Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him with the timbrel and dance. Praise him with stringed instrument and organs. Praise him upon the loud cymbals. . . Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

If our friends should think and even tell us our minds are not right, we will tell them Christ is at the helm; he can make the "crooked straight, and the rough places plain." If they think us in eminent danger, we will try to look out in time, and raise an ensign with the inscription written: "The sword of the Lord and Gideon." Christ is at the helm, and he is a tried stone, a sure foundation; and will not fail to bear our burden, for he, our Savior, was tempted in "all points like as we are, yet without sin." Let us go to him, therefore, "without the camp, bearing his reproach;" for here we have no "continuing city," but we seek one to come; whose "builder and maker is God."

I have often heard it reported of the holy Mr. Dodd, that when a man, enraged at his close, convincing doctrine, assaulted him, smote him on the face, and dashed out two of his teeth, that meek servant of Christ spit out the teeth and blood into his hand and said,

"See! here you have knocked out two of my teeth, and that without any just provocation; but on condition I might do your soul good, I will give you leave to knock out all of the rest." Here was exemplified the excellency of the true christian spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price. By cherishing this spirit we may gain the victory over our enemies. Thus David gained such a victory over Saul, his persecutor, "that Saul lifted up his voice and wept." Daniel ceased not to pray to his God three times a day with all his windows open, and for so doing his enemies cast him into a den of hungry lions. Did they devour him? O no. Well, then, we will praise God that one of his children has been preserved even from the den of hungry lions. Were the three worthies burned in the flames? No. The form of the fourth was in the midst. Christ was at the helm.

S. BECRAFT.

For the World's Crisis.

EXHORTATION.

When and by whom it is to be obeyed, is as plainly taught in the New Testament as any doctrine contained therein. What is the cause of so much indifference to this one and only rule and command given for the growth of the body of Christ? It appears to us there is but the one barrier in the way, viz: the human will. As Bro. Z. Campbell has written in a former Crisis, "Some professors do not believe in the second coming of Christ, and contend that the Scriptures do not teach it. True, the Scriptures do not teach it to them," etc. He says, "Others cannot read the unconscious state of the dead in the Bible, because their will is to live while they are dead," etc. And so the will of many is to have the ungodly system (I call it ungodly because unscriptural) of a pastor to say all when they assemble. No doubt some may satisfy themselves that their will will answer for God's; that is, after closing the meeting, those who wish can remain, and have opportunity of telling how they feel, etc. Dear Brn., it is love for you, and for the truth's sake, causes me thus to speak. I beg to be borne with.

The church of God is one body, having many members, under one living Head. This great Head has said,—"I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me." Are we not apt to blame any who oppose truths, viz., baptism, the kingdom, the one hope, and destruction of the wicked, etc., just because we see their will is not to have them so? Now if our will shut our eyes to other truths of God's will, are we not as guilty as they? Take heed, and beware of the human will. In all our religious exercises we cannot be too careful to keep it under. We have nothing to do but to walk by the truth in righteousness, and leave God to bless it according to his own will. O brethren, let us honor the Rock of our salvation, by humbly keeping our own appropriate position as unworthy sinners.

Before God I now ask all who are looking for so great and glorious things, prayerfully to examine our position on this important point. As children of God, we must diligently examine whether we are fashioned after the ancient models dictated by the Holy Spirit and fully carried out in the organization of the first churches by the apostles. This is no light matter, and God has not treated it lightly. In the given rule, nothing is left to be a matter of taste, and to be fashioned according to the ever changing opinions of professed christians carried about with every wind of doctrine.

If, then, we are prepared to do our duty, and in doing it are privileged to rise to greater perfection in holiness, let us take God's word into our hands, having this for our motto, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." John 15: 14. See Paul's commendation of the church's ability in this grand work. "And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that ye also are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another."—Rom. 15: 14. And 1 Cor. 1: 4, 5; Col. 3: 16; 1 Thess. 2: 13; 1 Cor. 14: 31. Then let us hear the voice of our heavenly Teacher in all things, discarding the unscriptural cant of essentials and non-essentials in all matters of faith and practice. Mark this comprehensive word, "whatsoever." It cannot imply a part. No, no. All truths claim our obedience alike; not because they are great or small, but because they are His.

These words of our heavenly Master point out an unerring path to christian unity; they define the extent of christian obedience, and leave neither choice nor discretion to man. They effectually disclaim the generalizing spirit, so boastfully avowed, and falsely called liberality.

Now, my dear Brn. and Srs., having put our hand to the plough, we must not look back, nor become alarmed. If our profession leads us into direct conflict with the world, we cannot complain that we have been deceived by Him under whose banner we have enlisted. The great Captain has fully warned us what we have to expect; for, saith he, "I have given unto them thy word, and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world," etc. Thus we see the effect of obeying the word is to raise the affections from earthly things, and to expose us to the hatred of the world.

I now invite you to consider whether we as the church of Christ fulfill our duty to our Master and one another in the important matter of mutual exhortation and edification. This is the duty of every member of the church, according to the gift of the Spirit bestowed on them, when they come together on the first day of the week, which is in no case to be set aside in order to be attended to in a prayer or conference meeting. We have no such example. We have assembling and exhortation joined together by the pen of Inspiration. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, . . but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as we see the day approaching." This passage, though there were no other, plainly shows the example of exhortation.

See Eph. 4: 15;—"But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things. . . . From whom the whole body fitly joined together . . . by that which every joint (member) supplieth . . . . maketh increase of the body, unto the edifying of itself in love." 1 Thess. 5: 11—"Wherefore comfort yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do." And the following verses teach, "To know them (plural) . . and to esteem them (not a pastor) very highly in love for their works' sake." And the church at Ephesus had its plurality of elders. Acts 20: 19. And the church at Phillippi is addressed by Paul and Timotheus in all the essential branches of its organization, viz: saints, bishops (plural) and deacons. [illegible]'s ideas are in accordance with the above, both as regards a plurality of elders (or bishops), and the nature of their duties. "The elders (plural) who are among you, I exhort," etc. "Feed the flock of God that is among you," etc. "Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock."—1 Pet. 5. The office in the church, of bishops, is quite different from preaching to the world.

I would add a few remarks on the ordinance of our Savior's dying love. Our Redeemer instituted this ordinance to be observed by his disciples until he should come to receive us to himself in his kingdom. 1 Cor. 11: 23–26. His design was the continual "remembrance" in our too forgetful hearts. That the disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ, at Troas, came together every first day of the week to break bread, etc., we read in Acts 2: 42. It is a fact worthy of our serious consideration that, although the disciples, when they assembled on the first day of the week, attended other ordinances in general, the breaking of bread is the ordinance which is mentioned as the special object of their coming together. They "came together to break bread."—Acts 20: 7; 1 Cor. 11: 20. Can it be right to omit three-fourths or more of the time, leaving our only rule of faith and practice? From 1 Cor. 11: 33, we learn that the Supper was first observed after assembling. Is not this institution the memorial of the Father's love, in the unspeakable gift of his Son to die for us, and his love in laying down his life for us? Is it not the memorial of the great fact which constitutes the foundation of all our hope,—immortality in the promised kingdom of God?

What shall we say to these things? Shall we cleave to one and all of them, knowing that they are the appointment of our great Head? Let each of us endeavor by the light of his word to be what we profess (christians), cultivating the spirit of love, holding fast unto Him from whom the whole "body by joints and bands having nourishment ministered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God"; thus obeying the commands of our Master, having our wills wholly lost in the will of God; having our whole deportment such as becometh the gospel of Christ. By doing thus, we may pray—"Thy kingdom come." Then all shall be well.

M. H. MORRISON.

New Glasgow. C. E.

For the World's Crisis.

MONEY-MAKING CHURCH-GOERS.

If in naming the causes why men struggle for wealth, I have been somewhat of an apologist, it has been with a reservation. I have always aided in the cry against the inordinate love of money. This I think is right, and I will continue to do so. When I see a wealthy man in the full possession of a fair intellect, with a good education, with a fair character, with every avenue of knowledge open before him, loudly proclaiming himself "a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus," while he continues to grasp at money, and grind the faces of the poor, I feel it my duty to denounce him as an enemy to the faith he pretends to hold, Judas-like, traitor to his Master.

What a farce we see enacted every Sunday in fashionable churches, of all denominations! Men and women who riot in wealth, and still struggle for more, sit and coolly listen to curses pronounced upon themselves by one whom they profess to believe the Son of God! If these people believe there is a God at all, they carry their hypocrisy to a terrible extreme. I cannot bring myself to think that they believe in the divinity of Christ, or believe that even as a common mortal he told the truth. He poured more denunciations upon the inordinate love of gain than upon any other sin. He employed a comparison by which he made it absolutely impossible for such men to enter the kingdom of heaven. The only act of violence mentioned in his history, was against the worshipers of Mammon. He told the woman taken in adultery to go and sin no more; but he grappled with the money-changers, overturned their tables, and drove them from the temple, and the Son of God is soon to come and drive them to destruction.

Go, then, ye rich men, weep and howl for the misery that shall come upon you. O, that such men might have their eyes opened before it is too late!

C. M. SWART.

☞ Martin Luther says:—Let the christian reader's first object always be, to find out the literal meaning of the word of God; for this, and this alone, is the whole foundation of faith, and of christian theology. It is the very substance of christianity; it is what overcomes the gates of hell, and triumphs to the praise and glory of God.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

To the readers of the Crisis:—My last way-sketch was written while in Brislol, Conn. From thence to Collinsville, Sunday, Aug. 7th, in a lovely grove; good attendance, and much freedom in preaching the word; but a sprinkling of rain in the afternoon caused a scattering. We had a prayer meeting at Bro. Hodges' house, which was one of love and union, and I trust will never be forgotten by the few who tarried to worship God.

Sunday, Aug. 14th, went to Waterbury, by invitation of a Bro., and spoke in a hall to quite a number, and the Lord gave me great freedom in sounding out the last note of warning, and in comforting the scattered flock. God has some precious jewels in that region that will never bow the knee to Baal, and they "shall walk with me in white," says Jesus. That little prayer meeting at Bro. Marrigold's,—who that was there has forgotten it? Never did I feel that I loved Jesus better than while praying with that little band of five, around that family shrine. When I ceased praying, Sr. M.'s musical voice was raised in singing a verse of that lovely hymn,

"I love thee, I love, I love thee, my Lord."

We all chimed in with her, and well could we sing with the Spirit,

"I love thee, my Savior, I love thee, my God."

O how sacred the place, how sweet the memory still! The Spirit of peace settled down; saints rejoiced, and God was pleased. It seemed as though the angels were hovering o'er the place. After singing, praying was again resumed, and each heart felt the assurance that God heard and answered prayer.

Tuesday, Aug. 16th, attended a Methodist campmeeting. Quite a good meeting. The Spirit of the Lord was there, but the blessed hope we prize so highly was lacking, and the sound of Jesus' soon coming was not heard. So I must still mingle with those that are giving the cry, "Behold he cometh!" My labors in Conn. being ended for the present, I bade farewell to my many kind friends, brethren and sisters, and started on my way to Mass. Wednesday, Aug. 17th, and stopped in Springfield for a tarry over the coming Sabbath. A meeting was already appointed for the evening at Bro. Morgan's, No. 5 Oak St. There, to our inexpressible joy, we found some spiritual children, who had found Jesus to be precious to their souls. God had heard and answered prayer. Five young men and women had been saved from sin, and had put on Christ by baptism by Bro. H. Pratt. Praise the Lord for his mercy in saving sinners. Our meetings in Springfield were good. God has a humble, praying few that worship on Oak street, and has added to their number such as we hope will be saved. One young man from Chicopee was hopefully converted on Sabbath evening.

Tuesday morning we left the friends in Springfield to attend the campmeeting at Wilbraham. We arrived at the sacred spot, and (as usual when climbing the hill) heard the sound of singing which echoed through the tented grove. The meeting with the many tried friends who were looking for Jesus was truly refreshing. Friends gather from east, west, north and south, to worship the God they love. Some brethren came from Nova Scotia, who had never enjoyed such a privilege before. Among those I met was my dear son and his little family. Praise the Lord! How faithful has he been to his promise. I was sure he told me if I would labor to save others' children, he would save mine. He has done it. He has saved them, glory to God's blessed name. I met my children as christians, who a few years ago were living in sin. Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, praise his holy name.

This is the fourth time I have met with the saints on the Wilbraham hill. What a privilege! Now we part. Shall we all meet there again? No, never! Shall we all meet in the kingdom? Some will, some will not. Who will be there? Those that endure to the end. God save us.

From Wilbramam I went to Boston, and from thence to Lowell for a few days. Met my dear aged mother once more. I parted with my children, and then away to Alton Bay campmeeting. What a lovely place for worship; what a privilege to meet with old and tried friends again from New Hampshire, Maine, and Mass. What good prayer meetings; what powerful preaching. Lord help me to treasure it up, so that I can talk better myself when I go out again to labor in the vineyard alone. Two days at Alton Bay.

Monday comes, the meeting closes, and then the separation. When will the morning come that we shall be gathered, never to be parted any more? Lord speed the day.

One night on Badger Island, at Portsmouth. Made my home with Sr. Clark. Next, away down east to the Etna campmeeting. The morning train from Boston bears us away eastward, and the evening train brings us to our desired haven. Morning dawns, and we find ourselves again in the tented grove among the pilgrim songsters, in the State of Maine. God is here as at other places. Well, our meeting in Etna was a good one. Kind friends supplied all our wants, for which we thank them, praying God's blessing to attend them. Being kindly solicited to tarry awhile and labor, I consented. I shall go as doors may open, praying God's Spirit may attend wherever I may be. A. MUSSEY.

North Searsport, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

A WANDERER RETURNED.

Bro. H. B. Chapin writes from Worth, N. Y.:

"Some fifteen or eighteen years since I embraced the second Advent faith and rejoiced in it. After a while I fell away, became absorbed in things of this world, and consequently sinned against God. Through his mercy I sought his face and favor, and trust I found pardon. I ran well for a season, but to my shame, fell again into sin, and became worse than ever before. But I went to God and cried mightily unto him, that he would for Christ's sake forgive my sins and cleanse me from all unrighteousness. In trying to do my duty as a Christian, I find some joy and peace in believing. But oh, what pain and distress I experience, in reflecting upon my past life. I hate sin in all its forms, and every appearance of evil. I want to be fully restored to the joys of God's salvation. My soul pants after God, as the heart pants after the water-brooks. I want to know the heights and depths of perfect love, and then I shall long for Christ's appearing and kingdom."

☞ A family without prayer is like a house without a roof, exposed to all the injuries of the weather, and to every storm that blows.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1864.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

INFORMATION.

At a meeting of the Christian Publication Society, held at Wilbraham, Aug. 26th, 1864, it was voted as follows: "That as Bro. Grant desires to be relieved of the duties of the Business Agent, Bro. Geo. T. Adams be appointed Business Agent of the C. P. Society."

All letters, communications, and remittances, should be addressed to the Editor as heretofore, as the Agent does not wish to have the office correspondence intermingled with that of his own; and as the Clerk opens the letters, he will pass to the Editor, or Agent, any communication designed for either. All drafts, or bank checks, designed for the office, should be made payable to the order of Geo. T. Adams; otherwise, they cannot be used in absence of the Editor.

WESTERN VISIT.

Our Western tour has been varied and pleasant in its aspects. We have formed many agreeable acquaintances, which we hope to renew in the coming kingdom. We reported last from Chicago, Ill., where we arrived from Dubuque, Iowa, Monday, P. M., Sept. 26th, and stopped at the Lloyd House, where we met a very hospitable reception. We came to the city for the purpose of discussing the subject of Spiritualism with Mr. J. G. Fish, of Ganges, Mich.; but we learned after our arrival that it was decided not to have the debate at present, and that Mr. Fish would not be in Chicago at the time appointed,—Sept. 27th. We remained till the 28th, made some pleasant visits with the friends of Jesus, and by special request left for Union Mills, Ind., where we spent eight days, and had interesting and profitable meetings. The attendance was large for the place, notwithstanding there was much excitement upon war and political matters. The country about Union Mills is a very rich prairie, with a good supply of wood, and other comforts of life. We have seen no flat prairie land in our travels where we would settle as soon as in the vicinity of Union Mills. We found a good home at Bro. Freeman's, one of the early settlers in Indiana. He and his family love the blessed hope, and are looking for its speedy consummation. The truth met a hearty welcome from many who attended the meetings; while others remained unmoved, showing signs that they had decided to reject all the offers of salvation.

During our meetings at Union Mills, Mr. W. F. Jamieson, of Michigan, a prominent Spiritualist, attended our meeting two evenings. He was one of the Secretaries of the Chicago National Convention of Spiritualists. It is said he was the one who was the means of turning Eld. Hull into Spiritualism, by means of the discussion. He is an intelligent man, of pleasing address. While at Union Mills he presented us the following resolutions for discussion, which we accepted:

1. Resolved, "That departed human spirits have communicated, and do communicate, with the inhabitants of earth."

2. Resolved, "That the phenomena of modern Spiritualism can be satisfactorily and philosophically explained and accounted for without admitting the agency of departed human spirits."

He affirms in the first resolution, and we in the second. The time and place of the discussion are yet to be determined.

Thursday, Oct. 6th, we bid adieu to our friends at Union Mills, and went to Jonesville, Mich., where we met a hearty welcome at Bro. A. E. Babcock's, a preacher of the gospel of the kingdom. In the evening, we had a very interesting meeting in the Universalist house. There is a good interest awakened in J. by the labors of Brn. Babcock, Dixon, and others. Some have just decided to serve the Lord, and others are inquiring the way.

Friday morning we went to the conference at Cambria, about twelve miles from Jonesville. In consequence of rain, but few were out that day. While at the conference we had the pleasure of enjoying the society of Bro. and Sr. A. N. Seymour, Bro. J. T. Dixon, of R. I., Bro. A. E. Babcock, and other noble-hearted brethren and sisters. Our conference was an excellent one. Some eight or ten requested prayers, and many were made to rejoice anew in the Lord. The Holy Spirit was powerfully with us. The field seemed to be all white for the harvest. We shall expect to hear more good news from that place. We left Bro. Dixon to go on with the work, and returned to Jonesville, Lord's day afternoon, and preached in the evening in the First Presbyterian meeting-house, which was kindly offered for our use. A goodly number were present to hear on the evidences of the speedy coming of Jesus. The best of attention was given, and we trust that some more in J. will yet believe on the Lord, and be saved.

Monday morning, Oct. 10th, one was baptized by Bro. Babcock, and others intend to go forward soon. In the afternoon, we left for home, where we arrived Thursday evening, Oct. 13th. We have been much pleased with our Western tour, and have formed many new acquaintances, which we hope to renew in the coming kingdom.

THE SIXTY-NINE WEEKS OF DAN. 9: 25.

In this article we purpose to give Bro. Thurman's reasons for beginning the sixty-nine weeks of Dan. 9: 25, at B. C. 488. The text reads,—"Know, therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks."

In last week's "Crisis" we presented some evidence to show that the sixty-nine weeks began B. C. 488; but did not specify what time in that year the commandment went forth, and consequently the precise time in that year when "Messiah the Prince" was born was not shown. There is one peculiarly interesting feature in Bro. Thurman's chronology, and that is the definite exactness of the commencement and termination of the periods. He has no sliding scale. The eclipses and historic events will not allow him to begin them any earlier or later, without throwing the whole into confusion like the one introduced by following Ptolemy's canon. This fact gives great strength to his system.

We will now give some evidence to prove that the sixty-nine weeks began "on the 10th of the fifth month, Aug. 15th, B. C. 488," at which time the seventy years' captivity ended, and the commandment went forth from Cyrus, "to restore and to build Jerusalem." The Bible student is aware that Zedekiah's reign began with the captivity, and continued eleven years.

We will first prove from the Scriptures that his reign commenced on the 10th of the fifth month, which Bro. Thurman shows was in the year B. C. 558, and in that year the 10th of the fifth month was Wednesday, Aug. 8th. "And it came to pass the same year," (that Nebuchadnezzar carried the Jews captive to Babylon.) See Jer. 27: 20–22, "in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year," (of the Jewish cycle of seven) "and in the fifth month."—Jer. 28: 1. It is certain that the expression, "in the fourth year" cannot mean the fourth year of Zedekiah's reign, because "the beginning" of his reign could not be after he had reigned three years. But all is clear when we understand the Jewish mode of reckoning. Hence when we read,—"It came to pass . . . in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, and in the fifth month," it means that he began his reign "in the fifth month of the fourth year from their last Sabbatical year of release."

That Zedekiah began his reign on the 10th day of the fifth month appears clear from the following facts: The noted captivity of the Jews commenced in the eighth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, when Jehoiachin was king, who reigned only "three months and ten days in Jerusalem." Eleven years from the beginning of the seventy years captivity, (which would be in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar,) ended the reign of Zedekiah, when Nebuchadnezzar carried away some more Jewish captives. In Jer. 1: 3, we read that "the word of the Lord came" to him "in the days of Josiah," "in the days of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the carrying away of Jerusalem captive in the fifth month." And in Jer. 52: 12, we learn that this same event took place place "in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon." If Zedekiah's eleventh year ended on the tenth day of the fifth month, then his reign began on the tenth day of the fifth month, B. C. 558, in the eighth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar.

We will now proceed to show that the captivity began at the same time.

"And Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came against the city, and his servants did besiege it. And Jehoiachin the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon, he, and his mother, and his servants, and his princes, and his officers: and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign. And he carried out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house, and cut in pieces all the vessels of gold which Solomon king of Israel had made in the temple of the Lord, as the Lord had said. And he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the mighty men of valor, even ten thousand captives, and all the craftsmen and smiths: none remained, save the poorest sort of the people of the land. And he carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his officers, and the mighty of the land, those carried he into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon. And all the men of might, even seven thousand, and craftsmen and smiths a thousand, all that were strong and apt for war, even them the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon. And the king of Babylon made Mattaniah his father's brother king in his stead, and changed his name to Zedekiah. Zedekiah was twenty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem."—2 Kings 24: 11–18.

The foregoing shows that the captivity and the reign of Zedekiah both began in the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. We will now quote from Bro. Thurman's chronology, p. 103.

"The captivity commenced on the 10th of the fifth month, Aug. 8th, B. C. 558, which was the eighth year of Nebuchadnezzar. (2 Kings 24: 12.) The reign of Zedekiah began on the same day, in proof of which it is said in 2 Kings 25: 1:—'And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it.' Ezekiel, who dates from the commencement of the captivity, places the time at which Jerusalem was besieged on the same day, thus:—'Again in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, Son of man, write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem this same day.'—Ezek. 24: 1–2. From Ezekiel 40: 1, we learn that the beginning of the twenty-fifth year of the captivity was on 'the tenth day of the month;' and this 'tenth day of the month' was that on which the 'city was smitten,' and 'in the fourteenth year.' Now the city was smitten on the tenth of the fifth month (Jer. 52: 12.) in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar,' which was B. C. 547; hence, the thirteenth year after ends on the 9th of the fifth month, B. C. 534; and the fourteenth year commences on the 10th of the fifth month of the same year, which was the 'self-same day the . . . city was smitten.'—(Ezek. 40: 1.) This being 'the beginning or the . . . five and twentieth year of the captivity,' it follows, therefore, that it commenced on the 10th of the fifth month, just twenty-four years before; which, reckoned back from that time, brings us to the 10th of the fifth month, B. C. 558, for the beginning of the captivity."

From the foregoing, it appears plain that the reign of Zedekiah, and the beginning of the seventy years captivity, commenced at the same time, on the 10th of the fifth month of some year; and, consequently, must end on the 10th of the fifth month, where we should expect "the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem," from which will be just sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, to the birth of the Messiah the Prince." And if the seventy weeks of captivity began on the 10th of the fifth month, Aug. 8th, B. C. 558, as shown by Bro. Thurman, they will end on the 10th of the fifth month, Aug. 15th, B. C. 488. As the decree of Cyrus was to end the seventy years of captivity, the date of that decree should correspond with the day on which the captivity ended,—the 10th of the fifth month, Aug. 15th, B. C. 488. At this latter date, then, we must begin the 483 years, which will reach "unto the Messiah the Prince" 483 years "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem" bring us to the 10th day of the fifth month, Aug. 14th, B. C. 5, as the time when the Messiah was born a Prince. E. Robinson remarks:—"The birth of Christ cannot in any case be fixed later than the autumn of B. C. 5." Dr. Hale's, a very noted astronomer, says:—"Christ's birth . . . . could not have been earlier than B. C. 6, nor later than B. C. 5."

In relation to the time of the year in which Christ was born, there have been a great variety of opinions. It is said that different writers have placed his birth in every month of the year. We think our Christmas, Dec. 25th, as observed specially by the Catholics, is one of the most improbable dates for his birth. Luke says there were "shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night" (Luke 2: 8) at the time the Messiah was born. History informs us that it "was the custom among the Jews to send out their sheep to the deserts about the passover, and bring them home at the commencement of the first rain;" hence it is concluded that the birth of the Messiah was not "earlier than April, nor later than September."

INQUIRIES AND ANSWERS.

TO THE REV. MILES GRANT:—Dear Sir:—I have just read your answers to my inquiries in your last issue. For which, please accept my sincere thanks. As I am a seeker after truth, and as you are noted for being ever ready to enlighten the mind, and to unravel the mysteries of the Bible, I presume you could have no objection to my examining your answers, and making some further inquiries, as the subject is very interesting to me.

I cannot comprehend your meaning in the first five answers, from the fact that I do not know what meaning you wish to attach to the word BEING in the first answer. You say as follows: "By the word man, we mean a being made of the dust of the ground, in the likeness of his Creator." According to Webster, the word being has six definitions. Please give us a definition with precision, if you can. This I consider absolutely necessary, seeing you use the word man as the basis of your explanations in five answers.

I cannot understand the eighth and ninth answers, for the want of a clear definition of the word being as expressed above; for man is a being, etc.

Ans. 10. You say yes. In this answer I think you are not correct, for the following reasons: The Greek word in Cor. is athanasia, meaning immortality, endless life, ever living, never dying; whereas in Romans the word is aphtharsia, meaning incorruptibility, incorruption, immortality.

I have heard you say that if man is immortal, it is nonsense to exhort him to seek immortality, as expressed in Rom. 2: 7. So it would be, if it was the same. But it appears not to be the same word. Now it seems to me perfectly proper for us to seek this kind of immortality, that is, incorruptibility. What say you?

Ans. 11. You say "he must be wholly mortal, or wholly immortal." I cannot see the philosophy of this statement. I wish you could make this plainer by offering some reasons or illustrations.

In answer fifth, you say that the spirit that leaves man at death is the "breath of life." How do we know that spirit always means breath? You know, and I know, that the same word in the original is rendered variously in the Bible. As an instance, the word pneuma has thirty-six definitions in Jones' Greek Dictionary. Now, why do you take breath instead of some others? Give us reasons.

I indulge the most sanguine hope that you may feel sufficiently interested in your humble correspondent's inquiries as to give him light and knowledge from time to time.

Corinna, Me. I. H. SAWYER.

Answers. Our brother will please excuse us for not answering his inquiries at an earlier date. A multitude of necessary duties have prevented us from doing as we would.

By the phrase living being, we mean a living personal organism, and the term may be applied to every thing having animal life. We would not apply the term to any thing in the vegetable creation. We mean the same by "living being" that we do by "living soul."

Dr. Adam Clarke, when remarking on the original words nephesh chaiyah, rendered "living soul," says, it is "a general term to express all creatures endued with animal life, in any of its infinitely varied gradations." When we say, "man is a being made of the dust of the ground, in the likeness of his Creator," we speak of him as an individual either with or without life; for he is called man before he lived, and after he is dead.

In reference to our answer to the 10th inquiry, we would say, it is true that the word rendered "immortality" in 1 Cor. 15: 53, 54, is athanasia, and the one in Rom. 2: 7 is aphtharsia, but both signify immortality; for when a being becomes incorruptible, he is also immortal; hence aphtharsia is rendered both "incorruption" and "immortality." We do not see how one can seek for incorruptibility without seeking for immortality; or how we can have the one without the other.

"WHOLLY MORTAL OR WHOLLY IMMORTAL." In answer to the 11th inquiry, we said men must be either "wholly mortal, or wholly immortal." To us it seems to be absurd to suppose that a being can be both mortal and immortal at the same time. Mortal applies to that which is liable to die; and immortal to that which can never die. How can both terms be applicable to the same being at the same time? Without further remark on this point, we think it is self-evident that man is either "wholly mortal, or wholly immortal." In the Bible we read, "Shall mortal man be more just than God," hence we conclude that man is mortal, and must obtain immortality in the way pointed out in the Bible, which is "by patient continuance in well doing."

SPIRIT. In answer to the inquiry, "How do you know that spirit always means breath?" we would say, we never advocated such a position. The words ruach in Hebrew and pneuma in Greek, are used in four senses: 1, to represent a being; 2, an influence proceeding from a being; 3, a state of mind; 4, the air we breathe, called "the breath of life." "The breath of life" is in the "nostrils." "Cease ye from man whose breath is in his nostrils."—Isa. 2: 22. "The Spirit of God is in my nostrils."—Job 27: 3. "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul."—Gen. 2: 7. "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled; thou takest away their breath, they die and return to their dust."—Ps. 104: 29. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it."—Eccl. 12: 7. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. We claim that "spirit" in Job 27: 3, "breath" in Ps. 104: 29, Ps. 146: 4, and Eccl. 12: 7, all from the same Hebrew word mean the same thing. Then it follows that there is one spirit taken from man at death, which is in his nostrils, without which he cannot live. We now inquire is there still another spirit which is taken away also at death? Of this we find no proof in the Bible; hence we conclude that nothing leaves man at death, but "the breath," or spirit of life, which is in his nostrils.

A CORRECTION.—In our article on "the prophetic periods," published in the Crisis of Sept. 27th, we said Bro. Thurman "calculated the times for all the eclipses in the six thousand years of the history of our world." We should have added which were connected with the chronological dates.

IMPORTANT TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Now is the time for subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to save money. "How?"

By settling up their accounts, and paying in advance, with gold or Provincial bank bills.

A Canadian one dollar bill is worth two dollars here; and, FOR EVERY SUCH $1.00 SENT US, WE WILL GIVE $2.00 CREDIT, more or less, according to the current rates of premium.

The premium on gold and on Canadian bills, is falling. Not long since, the value of $1.00 of such money was as high as $2.87; it is now about $2.00. In a few weeks, it will doubtless fall very much below that, and a few more Union victories may bring it down to par.

Now is the time. Improve it! Pay up your indebtedness, with half the amount due; and, for two years in advance, with the price for one year; or, for one year, with the price for six months. Don't let the opportunity pass. You may never have another.

RESPONSES.

Responses from Canada are coming in. A brother in Waterloo, C. E., writes:—

"In answer to your call, I enclose $3.00 in Canada money, which, according to your announcement, you will please credit to my account for the Crisis as far as it goes.

D. C. B."

Have done so. On the day it was received (Oct. 14th), that $3.00 was worth here $6.25, paying up arrearages, and nearly two years in advance.

Tuesday, Oct. 18th.—Gold is selling to-day for $2.12; Canada Bank bills, $2.07.

For the World's Crisis.

A RAY OF LIGHT.

Bro. Armstrong, who publishes the "Day Star of Zion," and is gathering a community at Celesta, Pa., admits his position,—that "the Gentile dominion ended in 1844," and several grave points resting on that assumption,—is demonstrative; and in his second issue, states that if government fails to collect taxes of them, his position is established. I wish to inform him, and others who are looking to him for light, that I have received two numbers of his paper, each of which had a two-cent government stamp tax on it. I doubt not that Bro. Armstrong is obliged to pay government post tax on all transient papers in order to have his "Star" shine on our minds; also on letters sent to friends. Therefore it is already clearly demonstrated that "Gentile dominion over the saints" is not ended; or that they at Celesta are not the church. I think the former is not ended. Yours for the light, I. C. WELLCOME.

"THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY."—Every Bible student ought to have a set of "The Bible Student's Library," by H. L. Hastings, in five volumes, worth $6.00 at present retail prices of books, but sent by mail, postpaid, for $4.50, or in paper covers for $2.25. By express, cloth, $3.75; paper, $1.75. The cheapest and handsomest set of books we have. No man could manufacture and sell them at such low prices and make a living by the operation. But the object is to spread light, and let the Lord take care of the living, rather than to hinder the spread of truth by trying to make money out of it. Those who have the "Voice of the Church," can have the other four volumes, in cloth, for $3.75; paper $1.75, postpaid. Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$376.61
C. S. Bourne pd	3.00
Chloe pd	.25
J. C. Atkins pd	1.00
J. Stockwell, Jr., pd	1.00
D. Miner pd	3.00
R. I. Kendall pd	1.00
Ralph Devereux pd	.75

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$119.35
J. C. Atkins pd	1.00
A friend pd	.50
Q. S. pd	5.00
C. S. Bourne pd	2.00
Eliza H. Alden pd	.50
Windsor Locks pd	7.65
Mrs. B. Jennings pd	2.00
A. Persons pd	1.50
S. T. Palmer pd	1.50
R. I. Kendall pd	1.00
The widow's mite pd	12.00
Lucinda F. Bacon pd	1.00
S. H. pd	1.00
Mrs. H. Stone pd	1.00
P. T. pd	1.00
S. H. pd	2.00
A friend pd	1.00
Lydia Pierce pd	1.25
J. M. Churchill pd	3.90
Mrs. H. Trecartin pd	1.00
H. B. T. pd	.50
S. A. Jenness pd	1.00
S. C. M. pd	2.50

Connecticut Free List.

Ansonia	2	Middlebury	1
Bethany	1	Morris	2
Birmingham	1	Moore Meadow	1
Bristol	1	Naugatuck	1
Brooklyn	1	New Britain	1
Bridgewater	1	New Hartford	1
Brickland	1	New Milford	1
Canton	1	Northfield	1
Campville	2	Pleasant Valley	1
Cheshire	1	Plainville	1
Cheshire (West)	1	Somerville	1
Danbury	1	Stafford (West)	1
Fairhaven	2	Stepney Depot	1
Forrestville	1	Torrington	1
Guilford	1	Terryville	1
Glastenbury (So.)	1	Unionville	1
Greenville	1	Waterbury	2
Hartford	2	Warehouse Point	1
Killingly (East)	1	Wigsted	1
Killingly (West)	5	Winsted (West)	3
Killingly South	1	West Haven	1
Meriden	3	Wallingford	1
Meriden (West)	1	Total	59

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

THE PRAYER OF THE LORD'S POOR.—"If it be possible, let me not be deprived of the precious food which the Crisis brings to my table. I cannot do without it."

THE PROMISE OF THE LORD.—"He that giveth to the poor shall not lack." "That which he hath given will (the Lord) pay him again."

Have you faith in the promise, brother, sister? The Lord gives you an opportunity now to show it by your works in the form of one, two, three, five, or ten dollar bills, for the benefit of the Lord's poor. Their cry comes up from every quarter—"Continue the Crisis to me, if you can." Shall their cry be heard?

FROM A SISTER IN VERMONT.

For two years past I have received the Crisis. As I had no money to pay for it, my name is doubtless on the free list. I would gladly send the money to recompense you, if I had it, but I am one of the poor of the flock, and I often think it is not my Father's will that I should ever be otherwise. We have a large family of little ones. Husband and I are obliged to labor hard for food and raiment. Our lot in life is very humble, yet I hope we shall not murmur, as did ancient Israel, at God's dealings with us, but rather love this earth less and less, and labor more earnestly for God and for a treasure in heaven.

I had long been sick and lame so as to be obliged to use crutches, suffering severely; with no religious privileges, and none of like precious faith within several miles. I wanted the Crisis so much, I made it a subject of prayer that the Lord would open the way for me to have it. About this time a young friend wrote to you to send it to me, although I had said nothing to her about it, and only learned of it by accident several months afterwards. How its weekly visits have gladdened my heart! I have felt to pray God to recompense you at the resurrection of the just, for your labor of love; and if, of necessity, it must cease its visits, I shall miss it most sadly, but I do not wish to be selfish. You must, therefore, do as you think best about sending it to me longer. W.

FROM A SISTER IN OSWEGO CO., N. Y.

I received the bill of what I am owing for the World's Crisis, and find it to be $13.08. I wish I could pay it up at once, but can not without distressing myself very much. My health is poor, and I have neither father nor mother, brother nor sister, to befriend me in any way, and my only son has been two years a soldier, and where he is now I know not; he is missing; has not been heard from since the battle of Monocacy Junction. Money which he had sent me before being lost on the way, I was obliged to borrow money to buy my wood for winter. When I got money from my son again, I paid up what I had borrowed, paid my house-rent, and bought my daughter a pair of rubbers, which she very much needed, and when I had done that, I had only money enough left to get me a sack of flour. Since that time I have got along the best that I could. I have picked up my wood for three months, and have carried a good deal of it in my arms a mile. I have a little garden which I planted and hoed all myself, and I am now selling my cucumbers to get money to buy something to make bread of. I do not get me any clothes, for I cannot. I have got to leave where I am the first of November, and have nothing to pay my rent with. I was depending upon my son for money to pay my rent and buy my winter's wood; but now the future looks dark. Yet I will trust in God.

"The World's Crisis"—I love it dearly. It seems as if I could not do without it; but I shall have to, for I cannot pay for it. Last night I laid awake a long time thinking about my good paper, and how much I should miss it, and even now my eyes are blinded with tears while I write these lines.

I have tried to find some of our faith here, but cannot. The most of the people here are hard on those who are looking for the Lord soon to come. I have not heard an Advent sermon for two years and a half. You will not wonder that I am attached to my paper. If I had any thing that I could sell to pay for it I would do it, but I have not unless I sell my garden, and then I should have nothing to live on. From your sister, looking for Jesus. LYDIA ——.

FROM A SISTER IN THE WESTERN PART OF THE STATE.

I have long taken the Crisis free, but it has always been a severe trial to me to receive it thus, and not be allowed to pay for it. I am not so poor that I cannot pay. I can, and gladly would, if I was allowed to. It has been a source of comfort that I shall ever praise the Lord for. It has cheered me in my lonely pilgrimage, soothed my heart when sorrow's waves have rolled, sustained me in fiery trials, and kept me in hours of temptation. Although I cannot send the money to pay for it, I will return my humble thanks for the good I have derived from reading it; praying, if you have to stop it now, that the time may come when I shall receive it again, and be permitted to pay for it. S."

A Widow's Mite.

A Sister in Rensselear Co., N. Y., writes: "As I have a little more of the Lord's money, I thought I would send you $12.00 as a widow's mite to pay for papers sent to the poor. I hope they will all take comfort in reading it, as I do. It is fifty-one years last Sabbath week since my Savior appeared to me the chiefest among ten thousand and the one altogether lovely; and he hath grown lovelier and lovelier every day. Pray for me, that my faith fail not." ELIZABETH ——.

For the World's Crisis.

A REQUEST.

BRO. GRANT:—If you have a spare corner in our excellent paper, I want you to make this request of mine known: If any Bro. has a knowledge of the verses composed on Abraham's offering up Isaac, commencing with these words:—

"The morning sun rose bright and clear,
On Abraham's tent it gayly shone;
And all within was calm and clear,
All, save the patriarch's heart alone.
When God's command arose to mind,
It forced into his eye a tear;
Although his soul was all resigned,
Yet nature fondly lingered there."

Your Bro., waiting for Christ,
Cascade, Iowa. P. W. HOUGH.

ITALIAN MISSION.

S. L. Cole pd	.50
Eliza H. Alden pd	.50
A. Persons pd	1.50
A. M. Locke pd	2.00
M. Merrill pd	1.00
R. Allen pd	1.00
Anonymous pd	1.00
A friend pd	1.00
S. A. Jenness pd	1.00
Moses Smith pd	1.00

CRISIS OFFICE, Oct. 13th.

We have this day forwarded to Bro. Czechowski, La Tour Pelice, via. Turin, Italy, a Bill of Exchange on Paris for 321 francs, being the amount of donations to date ($149.38 less exchange) received at the offices of the World's Crisis and Advent Herald for the Italian Mission.

For the World's Crisis.

WILL THERE BE SLAVES WHEN THE LORD COMES?

It would be somewhat strange if there was not slavery on earth when the Lord comes, viewed from the stand-point of morality. The Bible informs us men will be very wicked in the last days, and guilty of the worst of crimes; hence, the inference might be fairly drawn that slavery would exist as an institution when the Lord comes, seeing men are bent on wickedness and slavery is one of the wickedest institutions that God ever suffered to exist. And unless the Devil and demons and their agents are killed off, we shall have that God-dishonoring system when the Lord comes to judge the world.

It does not, however, necessarily follow, because these agents exist, and are determined on wickedness, and have grown gray in their downward course, that they should be permitted to exert their power in all parts and systems of wickedness in our age, or last days. If so, then why are we not suffering the tortures of the Pagan and Papal persecution? The fact is, wickedness moves in a certain direction till it finds the end of its chain, or brings up against God's fiat.

Evil is constatly shifting. The judgments of God stops its course in one direction, then it breaks out in another, and continues till it is again brought up by divine interposition, or elements that God controls to secure the desired object. The children of Israel were in bondage till God took the matter in hand; then it took more than Pharoah's host to hold them in bondage, or to stop them. The time had arrived for God to work and go they must.

Our fathers ran away from an impure moral atmosphere and bondage, and Divine Providence smiled on their efforts and gave them success in the pursuit of right and freedom. However, it is lamentable to say that we had scarcely secured our freedom from despotism, and got the strong hand unclinched from our own throat, before some depraved ones, taking the advantage of the times and circumstances, clinched their fellow-men by their throat, and cried out, You shall serve me all your life without one dime of reward for your labor. We are free from despotism and slavery ourselves, and we mean to use our freedom; and instead of having servants, as we have been, we will have slaves. We have labored hard long enough; now we are going to have slaves to do our work, and we will live in pleasure and nourish our hearts as in the day of slaughter.

Is it strange that the Lord should bring a judgment on our nation for such hypocrisy and wickedness? The only thing that looks strange to me is, that the judgment did not come before. I had given up the idea of special judgment on our nation before the Lord comes, (the event being at hand) until this rebellion broke out. Three years ago this fall, I became satisfied the system of slavery would go down before the Lord came, according to prophecy, and I have never seen any reason to change my mind. The only thing I regret is, that I did not publish a tract on the subject at that time. The time has come and go down it will, and if our nation clings to like old Pharaoh to the Egyptian bondage, it will carry it with it to destruction.

I did not commence this article to discuss this subject, but simply to say the proof text that is used to show the system of slavery will exist when the Lord comes, is not sufficient for a basis of faith. The text so often quoted for this purpose is found in Rev. 6: 15. The term doulos, from which we have bondman translated in this place, occurs in the New Testament 121 times.

1st. It is translated, servants to God—Jesus Christ—to one another, one hundred and fourteen times.

2d. It is translated bond six times, in the following places: 1 Cor. 12: 13, Gal. 3: 28, Eph. 6: 8, Col. 3: 11, Rev. 13: 16, 19: 18.

3d. It is translated bondman once in Rev. 6: 15.

All can see from the foregoing, the word doulos is the common word used in the New Testament for servant. If we serve God, we are in the sense of this word (doulos) a bondman. If we serve man in any way, we belong to the (doulos) bondman. Thus we see this text has no direct bearing on the subject in question. W. PRATT.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SLEEP OF DEATH.

Is there any difference between being asleep in death, and being literally and really dead, which is a complete extinction of life? To me there seems to be no difference. I sincerely believe if a saint falls asleep in Jesus he or she is as really dead as the sinner who dies in his sins.

But can it be said that any part of a person is alive any where in the universe, if he is declared by inspiration to be dead? We will take, for instance, the case of Lazarus of Bethany. Was any part of him alive in heaven, or any where else, when the Savior declared plainly that he was dead? We think that it would be charging the dear Jesus with a lie to say that Lazarus had an immortal soul, as a separate entity, alive in heaven and praising God with the angels. Were there any circumstances in the great miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead, that would show our Savior called the immortal soul of Lazarus out of heaven to enter the dead body before he called him forth from the grave? Examine the subject thoroughly, and answer from an honest heart.

We will now turn to the book of Joshua 1: 2, where God declares to Joshua, "Moses, my servant, is dead." Reader, would you dare assert that any part of Moses was alive, after the Supreme Being had declared that he was dead? But, says the objector, his spirit returned to God who gave it. Very well; but what is the spirit which returns to God who gave it? I hope the objector will not call it the immortal soul, for in that way he would make out that the soul of Moses lived with God before he was born into this world, and by this rule we must conclude that God has a reservoir of immortal souls, which are put into infants as soon as they are born; and of course the souls would be pure from the hand of God, and must be put into sinful or impure bodies to be polluted; and if they grow up and die in their sins, their souls, if immortal, must live in misery to all eternity.

Now according to what I can learn, the average number of infants born each day is between eighty and ninety thousand. Then I would ask the candid reader, if we can come to any other conclusion than that God either has a great reservoir of souls, or he makes eighty thousand every day; and God of course knows that not one in ten will ever get to heaven. What shall we say of this dreadful picture? Must we think for a moment that God creates eighty thousand souls every day, and knows at the same time that one half of the infants that receive them will die in infancy; and if the other half live to grow up, nine-tenths of them will go to endless woe, if they are immortal? Must we harbor such revolting thoughts of our Father in heaven? No, indeed! But let us understand the matter as it is. What is the spirit, and what is the soul? From all we can learn of the facts in the case, the word soul is translated from a Hebrew word, which signifies life, or person, and is so translated from the original Greek, and means life, or person. The word spirit is translated from an entirely different Hebrew word, and signifies breath, or air, and is sometimes translated mind, or heart; and the Greek word from which spirit is translated conveys the same idea. So you see the spirit and the soul are distinct.

But what does the Lord call the soul? In Gen. 2: 7, the Lord positively declares man to be a "living soul," if he is alive; and Paul declares all the persons on the vessel where he was shipwrecked to be souls; which plainly shows us that persons are souls, and of course are mortal souls, and can die.

There is plenty of scripture to prove that all living animals are living souls; even the fish in the sea are living souls, if alive, and if they are not alive they are dead souls. Rev. 16: 3, and the following scriptures plainly show that souls are propagated from father to son, and of course are mortal souls; so that, when a person is dead, the soul is dead; and when he sleeps in death, there is no part of him alive. Gen. 46: 26, 27. Also the fifteenth verse of the same chapter, and many other passages might be produced, showing that man is wholly mortal, and when he is dead, there is no part of him alive.

With regard to the sinner who dies in his sins, it is positively declared that the soul dies. Please read the whole of the eighteenth chapter of Ezekiel. And the Scripture plainly declares that the soul of Christ died. Read Isa. 53: 10–12, and Ps. 16: 8–10; and then turn to Acts 2: 27, and see if Christ did not go into hades, or the grave, soul and body.

Let us hereafter look to the resurrection, when the saints will be raised to eternal life, and then put on immortality, and live for ever in the kingdom of God's dear Son. But the sinner who dies in his sins can not come into Christ's kingdom, but must come forth to judgment, to receive his sentence, which is the "second death." There is no other punishment for those who die in their sins.

Brattleboro, Vt. B. PERHAM.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—Praised be the Lord, I live to praise him. I live to proclaim the truth of his word. My strength is so far restored, that I have started out on a tour into Maine. The Lord has heard the voice of my prayer, and raised me up from the side of the grave, and my life which is spared awhile, I consecrate to him. My health and strength is daily improving, and I think I shall be better than I was before I was sick. I came to Kennebunkport at first, and stopped there three days. The sea air I found very much improved me. I gave two discourses on Sunday, and attended a social meeting. They have quite a company of those who love to hear the truth; but from what I see I judged they were rather lukewarm, and needed stirring up to more engagedness. But to their credit let me say, they helped me on my way after a godly sort. They remembered the servant of God could not sustain himself long without the aid of the church, and that his fares must be paid. This, certainly, was a redeeming trait in their character. Bro. Mitchell has well trained his people. I never saw a more orderly, attentive audience, and they have full attendance generally.

From Kennebunkport I went to Bro. Town's. They called it five miles, but to me it was seven. I was burdened with a heavy overcoat, and a large bundle of papers and tracts, and the road was muddy with a clayey soil, sticking to my boots, the weather warm. I dragged heavily along, for my strength was weakness. I was three hours going that distance; yet by one o'clock, I had measured off that road step by step, and arrived at Bro. Town's tired and hungry; but my wants were soon supplied, and their hospitality was enough to pay me for my tiresome walk.

I had an appointment for that evening, and had a school-house full, with first rate attention. I held forth the restitution of all things, and the subject took well. O it is a glorious idea, this earth to be restored back to its original state of beauty and fertility, when there will be no briars, thorns and evil weeds; no sickness, sorrow, pain, or death; and the inhabitants will not say, I am sick; when the devourer will be rebuked, and no longer devour the fruits of the ground; when the animals will be all harmless, and live on herbage, and God himself will dwell with man, and the new Jerusalem shall have come down, with its golden streets, and gates of pearl, and walls of all manner of precious stones; when we shall see Jesus as he is, and be fashioned like his glorious body. No wonder these ideas should interest the people. I was hospitably cared for, and helped on my journey, and arrived at Biddeford, and had a meeting every evening. Here is quite a company of believers, and things look encouraging for an increase of numbers, and their graces, too, we hope will be increased. Yes, and their knowledge of the truths of God's word. I have enjoyed my visit among them, for I find hospitality is used here without grudging. Thank the Lord for this grace. It makes the servant of God and the church feel very comfortable, and better prepares him for his duty. The calls for meetings in this country are numerous, and more than can possibly be filled; and God is raising up more young men to go forth and feed his people with knowledge and understanding. The inquiry is very general, "What is truth?" I have given four discourses here, and found a good hearing, good order, and I enjoyed it. My heart is in the work, and I love it. O let me live, that I may declare God's truth, is my prayer. I have lost all the campmeetings by my sickness; but I trust I have profited by my affliction, and can say it is good for me that I have been afflicted. We learn more in one hour of adversity, than in many days of prosperity. The Lord has done great things for me, whereof I am glad. I feel I am his, and all my powers I consecrate to him. I would write much more, but I fear I shall trespass upon you and your paper. Yours, still looking, watching, waiting, and expecting the King to come in all his Father's glory,

Biddeford, Me. B. SPAULDING.

From Bro. J. B. McClellan

BRO. GRANT:—I am much pleased with the Crisis, and should feel lost without it. I also take the "Voice of the West." I feel it my duty to support both papers, what I call healthy papers, and which demand the support of all true Adventists.

The little church in this place is still wading through trials. We sustain our regular meetings and partake of the Lord's Supper every four weeks. We feel determined to maintain the truth until the Master returns, or we shall have to meet the enemy death. I was much interested in your last visit at Montreal. May the Lord prosper that church, and may they be kept from false teachers coming among them to scatter the flock.

We should like to have Bro. and Sr. Mansfield visit us on their return home. We are twelve miles west from the Suspension Bridge, nine miles from Thorald's Station, and the same distance from St. Catherine's Station.

If you are or any brother passing through Canada will give us a call, giving us due notice, we will be happy to meet you or them at the above stations and carry them to my house, within short distance from our chapel. Pray for us that the Lord may support us under our trials, that our faith fail not. Very truly yours, JOHN McCLELLAN.

Fonthill, C. W.

From Sr. P. P. Clay.

BRO. GRANT:—I returned home from the Alton Bay meeting last night. This morning my heart is filled with gratitude to God for his many mercies, and for the privilege I had of attending that meeting. My mind goes back to that place of prayer and praise with desire. May we all keep the unity of the Spirit which we enjoyed there. I am anxious for the dear youth who started anew to serve the Lord. May my dear brethren and sisters who are personally acquainted with them, be faithful in the discharge of your duties to them. Do not be like the one we read about, who forgot his fellow-prisoner when he found favor himself. Keep the good subjects before you: "Search the Scriptures"—"Walk as children of the day"—"Be filled with love"—"Be patient towards all men," &c.

I thank the Lord for the light I received on Spiritualism. I had seen mysterious manifestations, and heard much that was strange indeed. It is now clear to my mind that evil spirits communicate, and not the spirits of our dead friends. Pray for those who have been seduced by them. Your aged sister, who enjoyed so great a privilege with you in the "Strangers'" tent, P. S. CLAY.

Piermont, N. H., Sept. 6.

From Sr. L. P. Hastings.

BRO. GRANT:—I do rejoice that the gospel of Jesus offers us a home where all is peace. War is now the ruling spirit, but the servant of God must not strive, but be gentle toward all men. Surely the spirit of Christ and the spirit of war are perfectly unlike. Oh! for a more perfect armor of Paul's description. Eph. 6: 13–18. Heaven's armor is full; dear brethren and sisters, why may we not be perfectly armed? We shall need it, and must have it to stand in this evil time, and through the last conflict with the enemy.

> We're fighting for a kingdom,
> And our Leader'll surely win,
> He'll ope the golden portals,
> And bid us enter in.
> Then we'll sing our Captain's praises,
> How he conquered every foe,
> How he gained for us the vict'ry,
> And he brought us safely through.

Morenci, Mich. L. P. HASTINGS.

TRACTS ON PROPHECY.—"Why don't you get your prophetical and practical tracts bound?" I do. I have put them with the "Great Controversy," and have made a volume of over four hundred pages. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cts. Five volumes, paper, $2.00; cloth, $4.00. Three copies sent, postpaid, to any of your friends for $1.00, by H. L. HASTINGS.

☞ If you have been once in company with an idle person, it is enough. You need never go again. You have heard all he knows. And he has had no opportunity of learning any thing new; for idle people make no improvements.

Obituaries.

E. A. SINCLAIR.

Fell asleep in Jesus, in Holderness, N. H., Sept. 24th, 1864, of consumption, Sister Eliza Ann Sinclair, aged thirty-four years and eight months.

Our lamented Sister experienced religion some seventeen years since, and was buried with Christ in baptism by Eld. James G. Smith, after which she ever adorned her profession with a well-ordered life and a godly conversation. It may truly be said of Eliza, "She hath done what she could." Possessing good natural abilities, she early made rapid progress in her studies, and soon became well qualified to act in the capacity of a school teacher, in which sphere of usefulness she continued to labor even after her strength was so far exhausted that she was not able to sit up all day. At times her mind was beclouded. She then would doubt her acceptance with God. This was doubtless owing to the state of her bodily health.

A few days before her death she was impressed with the duty of confessing her faith in and love for Christ, by partaking with her friends of the Lord's Supper. Preparations were made, and the ordinance administered while she lay upon her dying bed. The Holy Spirit rested upon our Sister in an especial manner, whose mind became clear, faith strong, and hope secure; and thus she remained to the last, expecting to awake with His likeness in the resurrection morning. God bless the surviving friends, and prepare them to meet the loved one in the kingdom.

Funeral services attended by the writer.

ALVAH BEAN.

DAVID SPARKS.

Died in Bath, Me., Sept. 30th, 1864, Bro. David Sparks, formerly of Bowdoinham, aged forty-five years, eleven months.

By the death of Bro. David, a large circle of friends are left to mourn, for none knew him but to love him. His faith in the truth of the soon coming of the Lord to give immortality to all his saints, brought him to associate with many of the "pilgrims and strangers," and his business gave him access to many others. His sacrifices for what he considered to be right, were many and great; believing most firmly that Jesus would come in 1854. His faith was somewhat weakened after the passing of that time. For a few years he was apparently unsettled in his views of the future, and made no pretentions to enjoy the blessed hope. But sometime previous to his decease, his faith took a new and strong hold on God and his word. Many were the regrets he expressed in relation to his departure from the truth, remarking to those who visited him, "Do not do as I have done." He made arrangements for his funeral with the greatest composure, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus, in hope of soon awaking to everlasting life. May the consolations of the gospel sustain and cheer the bereaved widow and children, together with all the mourning ones. R. R. YORK.

S. R. BUTMAN.

Died in Lynn, Sept. 9th, of typhoid dysentery, Sewall R., only child of Edwin T. and Mary A. Butman.

Sick but one week, his sufferings were very great, but he was as patient as a lamb. He was always a frail child, yet we hoped to keep him with us by the watchful care we had always bestowed upon him. But all that kindness and love could suggest was of no avail. The day before he died he said the Lord's prayer, and as his father stood over him weeping, he looked up to him, saying, "Papa, pray 'Our Heavenly Father.'" He said many things that are of great consolation to us. Just before he breathed his last he looked up with the most beautiful smile I ever beheld, and then closed his eyes and died.

The blissful hope that Jesus will triumphantly deliver all that sleep in him at his second coming, cheers our hearts. May the Lord hasten the day when we shall all meet on the redeemed earth, to part no more.

Bro. Higgins attended the funeral, and spoke words of comfort from Jer. 31: 15–17.

M. A. B.

ELLEN M. MATHEWS.

Died in North Dana, Mass., Sept. 25th, 1864, of congestion of the lungs, Ellen M. Mathews, wife of Edwin C. Mathews, aged twenty-six years, six months, twenty-three days.

The subject of this notice professed religion when at the age of eleven years, and joined the Baptist church. Since then she has been cold and lukewarm, until her last sickness, when she covenanted with God anew, and calmly fell asleep in Jesus. She said she should rest until Jesus comes. She leaves a husband and two small children, who deeply feel her loss. May this affliction be sanctified to them.

> "Soon will the trumpet
> Peal the glorious sound;
> All the saints will then awaken
> From beneath the cold, cold ground."

The writer endeavored to offer words of comfort on the occasion. GEO. A. STREETER.

TIMOTHY TRIPP.

Died in Solon, Me., Sept. 19th, Eld. Timothy Tripp, aged seventy-eight years.

He bore his sickness with christian patience, and was ready and willing to go. T. & F. TRIPP.

ELLA F. POTTER.

Died, in Scituate, R. I., Oct. 6th, 1864, Ella F. Potter, only child of Harriet Potter, aged nine months and six days.

WM. S. DEVEREUX.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

[Liverpool Oct. 4th, Queenstown 5th.]

It is stated that the Franco-Italian treaty will not be ratified until the capital of Italy is removed to Florence.

The betrothal of the Crown Prince of Russia and the Princess of Dagmar of Denmark, is officially announced.

Liverpool Oct. 5th, Queenstown 6th.

Another political meeting was held at Milan on the 2d. A resolution was passed expressing a conviction that the Franco-Italian Convention was a sign of great progress and of the resurrection of Italy. A convention was also considered necessary to present the means of realizing the national programme, which cannot be accomplished out of Rome.

A slight popular demonstration had taken place in Rome against the French troops. Seditious cries were raised, but order was quickly restored and the leaders arrested.

The Turin Official Gazette publishes the programme of the new Ministry. The Cabinet accepts the convention recently stipulated with France for the evacuation of the Pontifical territory by the French; as also the transfer of the Capital to another locality, and compensation to Turin.

It was asserted at Paris that the ratification of the Treaty has been delayed, and will only take place after the transfer of the capital of Italy to Florence.

M. Drouyn L'Huys, in a dispatch, explains reasons why France desires the evacuation of Rome. He says: "The act of the occupation of Rome constitutes an act of intervention contrary to the fundamental principles of the French public law, and it is difficult to justify it, inasmuch as the object of lending the armed support to Piedmont was to free Italy from foreign intervention. The consequence of this state of things places the two sovereigns face to face, on the same territory, and frequently gives rise to serious difficulties and inconveniences that result from different practical points of view. Our conscience obliges us too often to give advice which the court of Rome believes itself bound to decline. In witnessing acts at variance with our social condition and the maxims of legislation, we escape with difficulty responsibility of a policy we cannot approve."

END OF THE CHINESE REBELLION.—On the 19th of July last the troops of the Emperor of China succeeded, after several days' hard fighting, in capturing the city of Nankin. Tien Wang, the rebel Emperor, killed himself a few days previously by eating gold leaf, determined by suicide to avoid personal capture. The body was found by the conquering troops lying in the position in which the rebel had died. The other leading rebel chiefs were taken, and one of them, Chung Wang, has determined to write his life if allowed to live long enough for the purpose.

DOMESTIC.

A Cairo dispatch of the 7th says the rebels occupy both St. Genevieve and Whittenburg, Mo., but do not molest either the people or passing steamers. In other parts of Missouri they have not been so lenient. A gentleman just returned to St. Louis from an unsuccessful attempt to reach his family on the Southwest Branch Railroad, says a portion of the country he passed through presents a frightful picture of desolated villages, burned depopulated farm-houses, barns and fences consumed, and population scattered in every direction. Even the disloyal did not escape the ravages of the enemy.

On the 8th inst. 750 Union exchanged prisoners were brought down from Richmond in addition to 620 the day before. Col. Ould, the rebel Commissioner of Exchange, fell overboard on the 8th, and was nearly drowned before he was rescued.

Rebel prisoners and deserters continue to come in daily.

The Herald's correspondent at Gen. Butler's headquarters, writing on the 9th inst., says he has been throughout the lines of the army of the James, and believes that several large armies, united with the object of dislodging this army, would not only suffer immensely, but would seriously risk a defeat. These works and their maintenance are a necessity to the taking of Richmond, and the country may congratulate itself that the army of the James has won the position.

An order will be issued by Gen. Grant to shoot every guerrilla, burn every house and drive out the men, women and children from the guerrilla-infested region of the Shenandoah valley.

New York, Oct. 12. A special dispatch from Montreal to the World, dated yesterday, says: "A resoulution was passed to-day in the Conference at Quebec affirming the confederation of the Provinces."

New York, Oct. 12. City of Mexico dates to the 26th ult., and Vera Cruz the 1st inst., report that 500 French with 100 Mexican troops had attacked 4000 Mexicans, defeated them and took 20 cannon and 130 prisoners; 500 were killed and wounded.

The report also says the Mexicans blew up the remainder of their artillery on the retreat. There is no mention of the place where the above fight took place. It was also reported by Frenchmen in Vera Cruz on the 1st inst., that Matamoras had been occupied by the French troops. Vicario is reported to have taken Chelapa and expected to take Chilpaucingo, and thus open communication with the Acapulco expedition.

New York, Oct. 13. The World's correspondent with Sheridan says the victory over Rosser's cavalry was one of the most complete ever won. Among the guns captured was the famous Baltimore battery, with its gunners. The prisoners captured were mostly of the best class of the rebel army.

New York, Oct. 14. The World's Washington dispatch states that Gens. Meade and Warren have been removed from their commands. It is said that Gen. Grant ordered these Generals to assault the enemy's position in front of their commands, but as they considered the works too strong they protested against the assault, and for this cause they have been removed.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 16. About 2000 rebels, with two pieces of artillery, under Jeff. Thompson, attacked Sedalia at 2 P. M. yesterday, and drove the militia out of the place.

THE SITUATION IN GEORGIA.—All the efforts of the rebels to break Sherman's communications have proved fruitless. Henceforth Hood will be compelled to desist from all attempts to interfere with Sherman's rear. The weather in Georgia is now clear and cool, and Sherman can move when he pleases. Of Hood's position the Nashville correspondent of the Chicago Journal writes as follows:

"Hood's forces are not concentrated, but occupying the railroad, a division in a place, from above West Point to near Montgomery, Alabama. The object in this movement is to enable him to secure supplies. His wagons were nearly all destrroyed by Sherman during the siege of Atlanta, and the rolling stock on the railroad is so much reduced that he cannot subsist his army all in one place. If Sherman advances, it is probable that Hood will fall back to the vicinity of Montgomery, where he will make a stand, relying upon the river for supplies, as there are several small steamboats plying between that town and Mobile.

When our forces advance to Opelika, the communication between Hood and Lee, by railroad, will be completely severed. The rebel commander is endeavoring to defer the fatal hour as long as possible, and is therefore tearing up the track between West Point and Atlanta, as far as he dared go.

We have now settled down here to the conviction that we shall have no active work for some weeks, at the front; and hence all are turning their attention to Virginia.

☞ It appears that Capt. Speke, the African explorer, whose death has already been announced, was killed while out shooting. He was getting through a hedge, when his gun went off and shot him through the heart.

☞ The Atlantic cable about to be laid will bear four times its own weight.

☞ It is estimated that at least one-third of the newspapers published in the United States four years ago have suspended publication.

☞ Chief Justice Taney died at Washington, Oct. 12th, after a few days illness.

☞ The treaty between France and Cochin China is completed. France maintains her foothold there, and receives $20,000,000 besides.

☞ Of the seven million Jews in the world, the United States has two million.

MARRIED.

In Charlestown, Mass., on the evening of Oct. 16th, by Eld. A. W. Sibley, Mr. JOHN W. SIBLEY, of Wakefield, N. H., and Miss LIZZIE A. BALDWIN, of Charlestown.

In Scituate, R. I., Sept. 27th, 1864, by Eld. Wm. S. Devereux, Mr. HENRY SUNDERLAND, of Scituate, to Mrs. ANNA N. WARNER, of Providence.

Notices.

Lectures on Chronology.

J. Stevenson, of Toronto, C. W., will deliver a series of lectures on Chronology, in connection with the coming of our Lord, in Chapel Hall, Seneca Falls, commencing on the evening of Oct. 20th, and on Sunday, at 10 1-2 A. M., 2 P. M., and evening, and during the week, as may be intimated.

These lectures will be illustrated by a chronological chart of time, about 240 feet long by three feet eight inches wide, three-eighths of an inch to a year; on which is represented the systems of Shimeal, Clinton, Jackson, Scaliger, Petavius, Usher, Marsham, Jarvis, Bliss, Hales, and Stevenson; thus showing how and where these authors differ; also the amount and result of such differences; together with the era of the Olympiads; years of Rome, Nabonassar, Philipp, Seleucidæ, Julius Cæsar, Augustus, Diocletian, &c. During these lectures the following points will be made plain, ocular demonstration being given for each:

1st. That 6000 years from Adam end in A. D. 1866.

2nd. That seventy jubilees, or the amount of time contained in 70 × 50—3500 years from the institution of the jubilee, or the Israelites entering the land of Canaan, end in 1866.

3d. That a jubilee of jubilees, 50 × 50—2500 years from the great Passover, in the 18th year of King Josiah, end in 1866.

4th. That the 2300 days (years) of Dan. 8: 13, 14, end in 1866, reckoned from the 20th of Artaxerxes, as bound by the Canon of Ptolemy.

5th. That the 1335, 1290, and 1260 days (years) of Dan. 12, all end in 1866.

6th. That, supposing the Mosaic ritual had been brought down to our times, a jubilee year would begin in the fall of the year 1866, vulgar era.

SYNOPSIS OF LECTURES.

Lecture 1st, on Thursday evening, Oct. 20th, specimens illustrative of the difference between the Hebrew and Septuagint varieties, working peculiarities of the Julian period, &c.

Lecture 2nd, on Friday 21st, general introduction, with remarks on the long and short varieties of understanding the book of Judges, &c.

Lecture 3d, Sunday, at 10 1-2 A. M. The jubilee, its location in time, demonstrated from the Bible, independent of any other book or author whatever.

Lecture 4th, Sunday, 2 P. M., the jubilee; its location in time demonstrated from historians entirely independent of the Bible; the admission of chronologists, &c.

Lecture 5th, Sunday evening, the 2300 days (years) of Daniel 8, and the seventy weeks of Dan. 9, identified and defended.

Lecture 6th, Wednesday evening 24th, the 2300 days and seventy weeks continued and illustrated by a large diagram, from which will be demonstrated that we are now living in the year 1845, true time, and hence the coming year 1866, vulgar era, is the true year 1847; thus showing that Daniel's numbers, as formerly understood, are true to-day, and brings us to the cleansing of the sanctuary; year of release, or year of redemption.

It is my purpose to visit other places, of which due notice will be given. But in the mean time, letters may be addressed to John Stevenson, care of Thos. G. Newman, Seneca Falls, N. Y.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend. N. WHITE.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

The Discussion Postponed.

The discussion between Eld. S. W. Bishop and A. Durfee, at Newmarket Hall, Providence, R. I., which was to have commenced Tuesday, Sept. 27th, is postponed until Tuesday, Oct. 25th.

To the Brethren.

Bro. E. McCullock, of Savoy, Mass., purposes to devote his time and labors in the gospel field as the Lord may direct and the way may open. We, the undersigned, cordially recommend him to the different churches as worthy of their confidence and support.

J. HEMENWAY.
C. GOODRICH.
H. PRATT.

Notice.

I. C. Wellcome & Co., now have a good assortment of English Bibles, books, tracts, and hymn books for sale, at the regular prices. As the new hymn book is not to be published at present, we have contracted with Bro. Himes for the "Christian Lyre," so that we can supply those who want them in Maine at wholesale and retail. Prices according to the quantities wanted. Sent by mail or express. Address I. C. WELCOME & Co., Yarmouth, Me.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

D. R. & M. S. Mansfield ....Sunday, Oct. 23d

Pittsfield, N. H., Thursday evening, Oct. 20th, and over the following Lord's day, 22nd. MILES GRANT.

Hickory Grove, Lake Co., Ind ....Oct. 20th
Centerville, Ind..............Oct. 21st
Green Garden, Ill. ....Oct. 22d
and over Lord's day.
Near Eld. C. W. Smith's, Kendal Co., Ill ......Oct. 24th
Shabbona Grove..............Oct. 25th
Killbuck, Ogle Co..............Oct. 28th
and over Lord's day.
Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day.
I am traveling with my team, and shall fill appointments unless bad weather prevents.
P. S. W. DEYO.

Exeter, N. H ....Oct. 23d
Dover, N. H., Back River..........Oct. 28th to 30th
A. ROSS.

Holderness, N. H., Brick school-house, (formerly called the Kimbal school-house) ....Sunday, Oct. 30th
JOHN EMERY.

New Durham Corner, N. H..............Oct. 23d
J. G. SMITH.

Warner, N. H., (Tory Hill school-house), Sunday, Oct. 23d.
Concord, N. H..............Sunday, Oct. 30th
Manchester..............Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass..............Sunday, Nov. 13th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

West Hoosick, N. Y., (Advent Chapel) ....Oct. 29th
and over the Sabbath. WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Copenhagen, N. Y..............Oct. 23d
South Butler, N. Y..............Sunday, Oct. 30th
Edinboro, Pa..............Sunday, Nov. 6th
C. B. TURNER.

Nottingham, N. H..............Oct. 23d
Baptism will be administered. S. S. MOONEY.

APPOINTMENTS FOR MAINE.

Kendall's Mills..............evening, Oct. 27th
Augusta..............Sunday, Oct. 30th
Lewiston..............evening, Nov. 3d
Yarmouth..............Sunday, Nov. 6th
Biddeford..............Sunday, Nov. 13th
A. MUSSEY.

Worcester, Mass..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
Z. FORD.

West Stafford..............Oct. 23d
Hadley Falls..............Oct. 30th
Walbridge (communion day) ....Nov. 6th
Lynn..............Nov. 13th–20th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Brimfield, (West Brick)..............Oct. 23d
S. J. HIGGINS.

Roxbury, Ct., (at Bro. Leavenworth's), Wednesday evening, Oct. 26th, and Thursday evening, Oct. 27th, as the brethren may arrange.
Pawling, N. Y., Saturday evening, Oct. 29th, and over Lord's day, 30th, and longer if interest demands.
L. F. BENTON.

Lynn, Mass..............Friday evening, Oct. 21st
North Abington, Mass., (where the brethren may appoint), Saturday evening, Oct. 22d, and Sunday, 23d.
Truro, Cape Cod..........Sunday, Oct. 30th, and Nov. 6th
WM. M. INGHAM.

Bristol, Ct..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
IRA MORGAN.

Holliston, Mass..............Sunday, Oct. 22d
Some to be buried in baptism.
Bristol, Ct..............Sunday, Oct. 30th
Forestville..............Monday evening, Oct. 31st and every evening through the week.
Will fulfill my arrangements at New Britain and Plainville as the Lord directs.
Brethren will please meet me at Bristol Oct. 30th. Can stop but three weeks in vicinity, and will preach every evening, if the Lord will. H. K. FLAGG.

Springfield, (Corner of State and Walnut Streets), Oct. 23d. H. PRATT.

Agawam..............Sunday, Nov. 13th
P. S. BUTLER.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall)..........Sunday, Oct. 30th
AUGUSTUS DURFEE.

Lee, N. H..............Oct. 23d
C. T. EMERSON.

Pomfret, Vt..............Friday evening, Oct. 21st and hold over the following Sabbath.
Sutton, N. H., (Mill Village)..............Oct. 30th
J. COUCH.

South Hope, Me..............Oct. 23d
S. K. PARTRIDGE.

New Preston, Ct..............Oct. 23d
South Windsor, Ct..............Oct. 30th
Goshen, Mass..............Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange), Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's..............Oct. 9th
Griswoldville..............Nov. 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass..............Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me..............Nov. 27th
C. GOODRICH.

South Farmington..............Oct. 23d
Moultonborough Centre..........Friday evening, Oct. 28th
Plymouth, (where Bro. Emery may appoint), Oct. 30th
N. HARTSHORN.

Atkinson, Sunday, Oct. 23d, and Saturday evening, 22d, at Bro. James Ayer's. Also the 24th, 25th and 26th, at the same place, and over the following Sunday, Oct. 30th if desired.
Sebec, Me., (school-house, near Bro. Joshua Livermore's), Sunday, Nov. 6th. THOMAS SMITH.

Concord, N. H..............evening, Oct. 21st
D. R. & M. S. MANSFIELD.

Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)..............Oct. 23d
East Canaan, (where Bro. Jos. Eastman may appoint), Oct. 30th. JOSEPH KIMBALL.

New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house)..........Oct. 23d
SETH WOODRUFF.

Windham Centre..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
Bath (Music Hall)..............Sunday, Oct. 30th
R. R. YORK.

Yalesville, Ct..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Gloyd's)..............Oct. 23d
WM. L. HALE.

Westbury, N. Y..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
Seneca Falls, N. Y. (as Bro. G. Dillebaugh may appoint) Sunday, Oct. 30th. C. P. SWEET.

Lynn, Mass..............Sundays, Oct. 23d and 30th
J. S. WHITE.

Warwick..............evening, Oct. 21st
Danville, (as Bro. Porter may appoint)..........Oct. 23d
Bro. James Webb's..............Oct. 25th
L. C. McKINSTRY.

Brattleboro, Vt..............Oct. 23d
Whitakerville..............Oct. 30th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Concord, N. H..............Sunday, Oct. 23d
T. M. PREBLE.

Northfield, Mass..............Oct. 22d
B. WM. WILKINS.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State FROM which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Eliza A. Tuttle, Polly King.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their POST OFFICE and STATE. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J S Morgan—It was mailed by mistake to So. H. Falls. Corrected.
Clark Slack—Received. See No. 470.
A D Thoits—39 cents on the last volume, due.
John Renshaw—It was received. See this week's acknowledgments.
A S Sheldon—See last number.
P Tandy—Have none on hand in paper covers now. Will send as soon as they come.
R C Russell—You have paid to No 501.
S A Chaplin—The fault must be in the Post Office. It is mailed regularly.
S Harper—Paid to No. 468.
M L Blodgett—Yours of the 1st of Aug. was received.
W H Berryman—Paid to No. 450. Due to close of last volume, 70c.
G. R. S.—All right.
D H Warren—The money is received.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 472. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

The following acknowledgments are for monies received up to Oct. 5th. Monies received since will be acknowledged in due time. Letters, for several weeks past, have been coming in at the rate of fifty, sixty, and seventy a day. So large an increase of business, and the absence of usual help, has put us some behind in our cash acknowledgments. Brethren will understand that monies cannot be acknowledged until they are credited on the books; and when, from any cause, letters accumulate faster than the monies can be credited, they have to wait their turn until we can get to them. We hope to catch up soon.

$1.00 each.—S. Sanford 483, A B Swift (on old acc't), J Dick 456, H G Thompson 482, H White 295, Mrs. C Goodridge 479, J Barton 490, A D Thoits 458, C E Burke 487, W F Baker 491, D S HAMMOND (what P. O?), T L Carl 475, T J Redlon 482, R. Hatch 489, T. Perry 477, W. Farrow 490, Z. Snow 489, J W Taylor 488, J. Lindsey 458, O King 338, S N Langley 499, J D Merriam 473, J N Hines 463, C Stanley 468, J E CAPENER (what P. O.?), E S Harding 485.

$1.25 each.—E A Pratt 496, G M Estey 491, E Slager 491, J Johnson 495, D Perry 494, J Davidson 492, C W Richards 572, E. Williams 505, L. C. WHITNEY 494, O Toothaker 494, J. Palmer 494, H S George 483, A B Smith 495, C. H. Randall 501, M. A. Gardner 507, J E Westcott 491, E R PERKINS (what P. O.?), S. Bassford 490, J S James 498, W Prothero 494, W. Bragdon 491, S Mayberry 491, S W Bartlett 494, J Stevens 491, J Robinson 496, J B Paine 491, J K Paine 488, R Morgan 495, C Merwin 494, D Parsons 494 L Williams 494, C A Merrill 494, H M Oyer 502, H Haskins 448, B Weston 495, M Gage 504, R Hinkley 494, M K Drury (right) 480, W Lester 487, L Welch 490.

$1.50 each.—G. W. Huntoon 469, J T Edson 470, C. Allen 470, J Shipman 491, R F Rowell 499, E Woodrull 505, N M Pierce 494, H Kier 500, A Thompson 530, F Schellinger 499, R Taber 495.

$2.00 each.—Mrs M Waldorf 490, W M Cleveland 445, S Ayers 506, S R Stewart 562, S Rogers 510, W Allen 484, W Stewart 510, A M Hollis 504, G S Peterson 483, S Hitchcock 510, W S CARR (what P O?), G S Gordon 489, F. D. Field 459, W. Demyer 485, A. Hunt 465, J. Richardson 495, E Lillie 498, S Ryder 489, C L Gilbert 468, F House 498, G. H. Hartson 411, T Yager 480, J. Jenkins 571, G. Hall 502, S. Barker 442, Wm. (or Jas.) Bothwell 490, S Smith 520.

$2.50 each.—Mrs. J. Clark 520, Mrs S. L. Searle 520, D Bump 510, F Gasper 452, W G Mc Nary 518, Mrs M Leavitt 510, S. B. Wait 546, C. W. Wyley 521, Mrs. L. Matthews 520, F Devinney 520, L R Gilman 556, G Durkee 487, W. Burrows 520, S. Sheldon 516, T. Marshall 507, A W Bethel 520, M Molyneux 520, W Dutton 520, Mrs E L Marsh 532, M. Christenson 520, Mrs. E Slocum 517, P S Rich 520, A Whitcomb 520, A Haskell 521, S M Dudley 517, C P Hutchins 502, A. G. Brown 514, Mrs L C Taylor 520, R Harrington 531, G L Turner 520, D S Morse 520.

$3.00 each.—W. C. Flanagan 416, O. Ryder 554, D Brewster 510, R Hurlbert 372, L F Clark 474, R C Russell 501, A Spears 517.

$5.00 each.—S. Goodhue 493, A. L. Chamberlain 468, W Wright 572, W G Soper 476, G Dyson 533, I Fellows 520, G Storer 481, C P Hutchins 502, D W Miller 470, M A Norton 431, W H Marigold 479, J B Estey 469.

50c. each—J M Pierce 479, E Sears 473, J Sharp 439 M. S Hall 469 J. C. Moulton 504, A Smith 472, F. P. HUNT (what P. O.?), H E Twing 326.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J K Bellows $7.00, W. Willcut Jr. $1.00, A. Spears 25c F M Reynolds $1.00, C E Burke $1.00, R C Russell $1.00, J. N. Snyder $2.00, W Wright $4.50, G. S. Peterson $5.00, D C TOURTELLOT 25c, M B Cyphers 50c, F H Stevens $2.05, S D Daniels 25c, G A Streeter $1.00, H B Eaton $1.70, T E Wilson $1.70, L A Davis 40c, M P McCormack $2.18.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—C. Gardner, B. Bancroft, A Raymond, A P Smith, A E Babcock, A Fries, G S Cordon, S Harper, G W Burnham, R S Kendall, G French, W Forrester.
BY EXPRESS.—F H Stevens, J K Bellows.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

A. Friese, M. D. W., C. Bond, P. H. Lawrence, P. Tandy, H. Munger, L. M. Collins, N. P. Jolliffe, L. M. Brittan, J. N. Berry, D. M. Kinter, C. H. Sweet.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.
J. D. Brown—Brockport, N. Y.
J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.
Wm. Forrester—Eddytown, N. Y.
John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.
A. W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. New and condensed edition. Edited by John Eadie, D. D., LL.D. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.80. Sheep, 2.00; by mail, $2.30.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 3 cts. on every three copies.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Social Hymns, Original and selected, by H. L. H. 10 cts. single, $1.00 per dozen, $8.00 per one hundred, postpaid. Address H. L. HASTINGS, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jno. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" Phonographically reported by E. P. Weston. [illegible], postage [illegible].

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal, conscious suffering of the Wicked?" [illegible], postage [illegible].

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible], postage [illegible]. Bound [illegible], postage [illegible].

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible] cents per dozen, $[illegible] per hundred. Postage [illegible] cents for each package of four tracts or less.

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew [illegible], Genesis [illegible], &c.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES ([illegible] pp. each.)

For the set—{By express—cloth, $[illegible]; paper, $[illegible]. By mail—cloth, $[illegible]; paper, $[illegible].}

Single Copy—cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cts. [illegible] off per dozen for cash.

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, or [illegible]; and SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. [illegible], D. D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and MAN; its Origin, Progress, and End. With the following TRACTS:—The Church not in Darkness; The Three Worlds; The Last Days; Plain Truths; [illegible]; Important Questions; One Thing; Outline of the Contest, etc. By H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, The Old Paths, Retribution, and Will all Men be Saved? By H. L. Hastings. With The State of the Dead, by Milton; Man in Death, by Bishop Law; Papal Decrees; Extracts from Justin Martyr, Luther, Jeremy Taylor, etc.

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church.........	25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man.	25c.
Reasons for my Hope......................	20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion...........	20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly....	20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul..	10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life.	10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church.	10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single.....	10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.
BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible] Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.00; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood, illustrated with engravings, [illegible]. Per dozen, by mail, [illegible] cts. Single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. [illegible] "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, [illegible] cts. Single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and [illegible] of the Leopard Beast with Popery during the 42 prophetic months [illegible]. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Papacy to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.50. Single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the Kingdom of God, Matt. 21: 43; [illegible] Signs of the Times, [illegible] of the Great Day of the Lord, &c., &c. Per dozen, by mail, $1.25. Single, by mail, 10 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible] Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts. Single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, [illegible]. The Harvest ripe, The End of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.00. Single, by mail, 25 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; Meteorological Wonders, Fearful Sights and Great Signs in the Heavens—Blood, Fire, and Pillars of Smoke, &c., &c. [illegible] Per dozen, by mail, $2.25. Single, by mail, 25 cts.

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible]. Per dozen, by mail, [illegible] cts. Single, 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, [illegible] per dozen, by mail, [illegible] cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, can at once be found, and every place where any word occurs in the English Bible, can be seen at a glance. Price $1.50, postage 32c. Leather binding $2.00, postage 36c.

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England, under whose care more than a thousand orphans are fed day by day on bounty obtained by prayer and faith in God. Price $1.75, postage 24c.

Two Hundred Stories for Children. An excellent and entertaining book for young and old, compiled by T. M. Preble. Price 40c, postage 8c.

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, showing by copious extracts from History, the fulfillment of Christ's Predictions, and the signs of God soon to come. Price 25c, postage 2c.

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. Price 15c, postage 2c.

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hall. 25c, postage 4c.

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. of Isaiah, showing its application to the United States of America in the present conflict, and end of the dispensation. By G. B. Russell. 5c, postage 2c.

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. Vividly representative of the present-day professors of religion. Price 6c, postage 2c.

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ; or, a view of this world as it was, as it is, and as it is to be. By T. M. Preble. 15c, postage 2c.

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c, postage 2c.

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. 5c, postage 2c.

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. Sweet. 25c, postage 2c.

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. 5c, postage 2c. $4.00 per 100.

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Simeon A. Smith. 25c, postage 2c.

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated Health Institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. Price 25c, postage 2c.

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. 5c, postage 2c.

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 31, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-12. By H. K. Flagg. 5c, postage 2c.

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 5c, postage 2c.

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. Price 75c; by mail, 85c. [illegible] off per dozen.

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. Price 15c, postage 2c.

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. Price 5c, postage 2c.

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. [illegible] Jesus Christ. 1 vol. 12 mo., pp. 482, price $1.25—post paid.

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. 160 pp. In cloth, 60c. Paper, 50c.

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. Cloth, 50c. Paper, 35c. With the following and Mr. H.'s other Tracts, 225 pages in all, 65c.

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. 5c, postage 2c. $2.50 per 100.

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 5c, postage 2c. $2.50 per 100.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. 5c, postage 2c. $2.50 per 100.

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Manuel. 5c, postage 2c. $2.50 per 100.

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, January, April, and [illegible], and April and October, 1862. (Price 10c, postage 2c.)

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, clasps and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75. Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $3.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CHRISTIAN ARMY.

AIR—"Annie Lisle."

Down where the christian army
Bravely holds its post,
See the gathering hordes of Satan,—
Wicked mighty host!
See their banners proudly streaming
With defiant air,
And their eyes in hatred gleaming
With Satanic glare.

CHORUS.—Up, christian! up! arouse thee!
Gird your armor on;
Grasp your sword and fight for Jesus,
Victory must be won.

Now, if ever, now be faithful,
All your duty do;
Shrink not from it, live for Jesus,
For he died for you.
In the hour of temptation
Tell him every woe;
He will help, he'll not forsake you;
Never, never, no!

Up! then, up! the foe is coming!
Meet him face to face;
Hand to hand will be the conflict,
But you have God's grace.
Strike! then,—'tis Jehovah's battle,—
With his own sharp blade,
And though deaf'ning thunders rattle,
Be not thou dismayed!

On! ye saints, to vict'ry on,
Our Commander's nigh;
Hark! oh, hark! 'tis Jesus' voice,
Look! the rebels fly!
Come, rejoice! the conflict's over;
Satan's put to rout;
Shout for joy! oh! shout in triumph!
Hallelujah! shout!

Sing, christian, sing for gladness,
Let the echoes ring;
No more war, no pain, no sadness,
Jesus is our King!

J. N. BERRY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE MAN OF SIN.—2 Thess. 2: 3.

1. If this chapter had been thoroughly understood by all, no man would have set the time of Jesus' coming in the past.

2. The man of sin is not the papacy, neither Louis Napoleon, nor any other individual, but a system to be very soon fully developed.

There has been so much written upon the subject (and in my judgment the subject is of so much moment), that I am compelled to be very analytical. Paul says "the day of Christ shall not come until a falling away" (apostasia), a defection, apostasy. This we have fulfilled to the letter. Then he adds, "And that man of sin be revealed" (kai apokaluphthee ho anthroopos tees hanomias), a literal rendering of which may be; And shall be revealed that certain spiritual frame, or character, the lawless, or not law-abiding. This I apprehend to be the same that is described by John the apostle. 1 John 2: 18;—"And as ye have heard that antichrist shall come." "And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh, is not of God; and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come." Observe, he must have referred to our text. Now we proceed to show that this is not the papacy.

We understand it to be a conceded point that the eleventh horn of Dan. 7: 8, 24–26, has reference to the papacy. This being established, we proceed to notice the characteristics of both, and the landmarks by which each one is known. We learn from Dan. 7: 25, that he (the eleventh horn) "shall speak great words against the Most High," which we understand to mean Jehovah. By this we readily understand that the papacy acknowledges there is a God; while on the other hand, the man of sin claims to be the God, as we will show hereafter.

Again, the papacy was to have a long run of a "time, times, and the dividing of a time," which we believe is generally understood to be about 1260 years, during a portion of which he was to persecute the saints of the Most High. And some time during these years, "The judgment (a court of justice, tribunal) shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy unto the end." A literal rendering; To abolish and to destroy utterly until the end. From this data we learn that the papacy is to be in a state of consumption at the end or coming of the Lord; while on the contrary the man of sin is to be revealed about three and a half years before the coming of the Lord, and to be in his full strength at his arrival, and to be rendered powerless by the brightness of his coming, as we shall show hereafter.

Now let us return to our text again, and notice closely the characteristics of the man of sin, and the landmarks by which we are to know about the time of his development. In the fourth verse we have some of his characteristics. "Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped." Now I am not satisfied with this rendering. I translate the whole verse thus: "Who occupieth an opposite position, and exalteth himself over all that is addressed as God, the proper object of religion, worship, and veneration; so that he sitteth in the dwelling of God, proclaiming himself that he is God." Observe, the clause "or that is worshiped" is not in the original; but the simple idea is, that the man of sin makes himself the object of worship. This, I believe, the pope never claimed. Now we will try to ascertain the time of his development.

In verses sixth and seventh we learn that there is a withholding power which keeps him in check until the proper time. The Greek rendered withholdeth (katekon) is thus defined; "to hold, keep back, to check, restrain, hinder." I think the seventh verse might be rendered thus: "For the concealed power doth already work the lawless, but he who restrains, or holds in check, will hold in check until out of the midst he be taken." Now the question very naturally suggests itself, who, or what, is the restraining power? I answer, there is but one in earth, and that is the Holy Spirit. See John 16: 8;—"And when he (the Holy Spirit) is come, he shall reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment to come." As long as he is permitted to remain and convince the consciences of truth, this system of iniquity cannot obtain complete supremacy over the minds of men.

Now, methinks no one can fail to see that Paul has no reference to Louis Napoleon in the seventh verse, and yet he is speaking with reference to the man of sin. But let Him be removed, and nothing remains to hinder a full development.

Now have we any teaching which shows that the Holy Spirit as a reprover and sanctifier of truth will be taken away? I answer, we have. But not until the close of probation, which will be about three and a half years before the resurrection of the just. The law dispensation closed about three and a half years before the final sacrifice for sin. See Luke 16: 16,—"The law and the prophets were until John;" [illegible] preaching about three and a half years before the crucifixion of Christ. This is one argument, but not the greatest. See Matt. 28: 20,—"And, lo, I am with you until the end of the age." What age? Gospel age. By the Holy Spirit, to seal truth. With whom? Simply the eleven? I think not; if so, the gospel never would have reached the end of the earth. See Acts 1: 8,—"But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me, in Jerusalem, and in Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Not simply the eleven, but those who should believe on him through their teaching. See John 17: 18, 23.

Now turn to Rev. 11: 3;—"And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall proclaim one thousand two hundred and threescore days (years), clothed in sackcloth (but mark, their testimony does not close then, only the sorrowful state); and when they shall have finished their testimony,"—which cannot be until the close of probation, or until the gospel shall have been fully preached; at which time the Holy Spirit will cease to enlighten the minds of men.

The world will then be under the control of the man of sin, and a persecution of the saints (witnesses) will follow. How long? Three and a half years. See eighth verse;—"And their dead bodies (carcasses, corpses, not old and new covenants), shall lie in the street of the great city." I offer a translation of this clause for the critic: "And their carcasses shall lie upon the broad places of the loud-sounding commonwealth, or free state." "And they of the people, and kindred, and tongue, and nation, shall see their dead bodies three and a half days (years), and shall not suffer their dead bodies to be put in graves" (sepulchres, the proper place for a corpse.) Eleventh verse;—"And after three and a half days (years), the spirit of life from God entered into them (these dead bodies, see Ezek. 37: 1–12), and they stood upon their feet, and great fear fell upon them which saw them." Twelfth verse;—"And they heard a great voice from heaven, saying, Come up hither." (Comp. 1 Cor. 15: 51–52, 1 Thess. 4: 16, 17.) This can be nothing short of the resurrection of the just. Mark, this is not in symbols, but instruction of the angel. See 11: 1.

Now to our text again, 8th verse;—"And then shall that wicked be revealed." When? Answer. When the restraining power is removed. What will be done with the man of sin? "Whom the Lord shall consume (analoosei, to use up, lavish, squander), with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy (katarfeesie, to make useless, void, abolish) with the brightness of his coming." This will be the most natural result in the world. Why? Because it will then be proved by ocular demonstration that the whole system is one of the grandest humbugs the world ever beheld.

Now it would be a grand achievement, would it not, to destroy one man, though he were a Bonaparte? But Napoleon III. will not be destroyed at the coming of the Lord. He must lead the ten kings, who have received no kingdom as yet, against the Lamb. Rev. 17: 11–14.

G. W. RATHBUN.

Cordova, Ill.

For the World's Crisis.

PEN PICTURES OF BIBLE SCENES.

NUMBER FIFTEEN.

THE EXODUS.

The time for Israel's sojourn in Egypt was accomplished. The four hundred and thirty years of waiting and bondage had passed away, and the year of deliverance to the captives had dawned at last. The ever memorable night of God's terrible passover had come, the beginning of a new era to Israel. The last awful judgment had fallen upon the oppressor, and in the midst of death, and lamentation, and wild despair, the terror-stricken king drove forth the hosts of the Hebrews from his presence, that the hand of God might be turned from the devoted land, which had felt the judgments of heaven so signally.

While the destroying angel was passing over the land, filling each unconsecrated household with forms of death, the Hebrews were eating in haste the solemn feast of the passover, with loins girded for the exodus. In the darkness of that terrible night they were urged to go; their late masters were even willing to load them with presents of gold and jewels to hasten their departure. Long ere the returning light of day a million of slaves shook off the chains of bondage, and began the most wonderful exodus the world ever saw.

As the mighty host began its march, a mysterious pillar of fire led the way, which was a heavenly guide through all the future wanderings in the desert; a pillar of fire by night to give light in the darkness, and a pillar of cloud by day to guide the footsteps of God's chosen people. The Israelites followed their guide till it rested by the margin of the Red Sea, and there they encamped to await the salvation of God.

When the rumor was brought to Pharaoh that the people had gone from under the yoke of his bondage, he was angry that he had consented to their release. All his former blindness darkened his understanding. The awful judgments of Heaven had even then failed to convince him of his folly; he still thought to baffle Heaven and destroy the escaped multitude or bring them again into bondage. He gathered his chariots and horsemen, and the armies of Egypt thundered on after the fleeing Hebrews. A sudden terror seized the Israelites when they beheld the host of Pharaoh gathering behind them, cutting off every seeming avenue of escape; for the sea rolled its stormy tide before them, and the armies of their former masters swarmed down upon them in their rear.

The people murmured, as the weak in faith ever murmur when the sweet sunshine of prosperity is obscured even for a moment by a passing cloud. In that hour of peril they even expressed a desire that they had remained in Egypt to serve as slaves, rather than find graves in the desert as freemen battling for God and right. The foe pressed nearer, as the eagle prepares to swoop upon its prey; but the leader of the tribes was undaunted; he trusted in that God who thus far had performed every promise. In that time of gloom and peril, he doubted not, faltered not in his faith, but with a lofty trust waited for the exhibition of God's glorious power. To the murmurs of the people Moses said, "Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will show to you to-day; for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to-day, ye shall see them again no more forever."

The cloudy pillar removed and stood between the two hosts. It shed its benign light upon Israel, giving them assurance of heavenly favor, but it was a pall of darkness to the Egyptians, boding dire disaster and overthrow in the coming conflict. The rod that had summoned down such direful woes and plagues upon the sinful land of Pharaoh, was then lifted above the stormy sea, and its rolling tide was stayed in its wild career. The flood rolled back upon its waves and left a passage, with watery walls on either hand, for the Hebrew host to pass dry shod through the midst of the sea. The tide rolled up to the passage and stopped, as if beaten back by a rock-bound coast, for the finger of God had touched its billows, and they obeyed.

The tribes passed on between the miracle-reared walls of the tidal flood, and the boastful foe pressed on behind them, eager to overwhelm them even where the sea obeyed the torch of the mysterious wand of their leader, but they blindly rushed on to death. And when the Lord looked through the fearful pillar upon the Egyptian host, a sudden fear and dismay fell upon them. The truth flashed upon their minds that a mighty Deity was warring for Israel, and they turned to flee from the awful presence of the divine majesty. The Hebrews were safely marshalled on the further shore, and in the tumult of the fear-stricken foe the rod of Moses was stretched over the sea, and the pent-up billows surged and roared with voice of raging storms, and whelmed the chariots and horses and the vast host of Pharaoh in the watery abyss. Not a foe escaped to tell the tale of signal overthrow, but the Red Sea shores were strewn with broken chariots, shields and bows, and gory corpse of rider and horse.

But when the peaceful sea once more swept the passage where the faithful had walked unharmed, and the enemies of God had perished, a shout of triumph rose from the hosts of Israel, a song of victory went up to the Lord of Sabaoth. The desert coast trembled with the sublime song of exultation:

> "I will sing unto the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea. . . . Pharaoh's chariots and his host hath he cast into the sea; his chosen captains also are drowned in the Red Sea. . . . Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power; thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy."

Thus rose the song on high, and rolled in echoes over the desert plain, till its myriad-toned music was caught up by Miriam and the daughters of Israel, and softened in sweetness as they went forth with timbrels and dances and answered—

> "Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and its rider hath he thrown into the sea."

Thus closes the drama of God's dealings with Pharaoh, in the triumph of divine justice, and Israel was left to enter upon a journey whose future was to transcend the boldest flight of fancy in its sublime and wonderful incidents.

ORRIN P. ALLEN.

For the World's Crisis.

THE WORD HELL.

How long was the world without the word "hell"? When did it originate? And, is it not a heathen production?

I heard a sermon on Luke 13th: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" Mr. N. preached eternal torment from it. I told him that he should have explained his text; that it referred to temporal death, and not to eternal torment. He said, "The doctrine is true." I agreed with him, but said, "That text does not prove it."

I examined Dr. Adam Clarke's Commentary for proof of hell, but was left in doubt of such a place, till I read "Death not Life," by Jacob Blain, which fully convinced me that "the wages of sin is death"; that "the soul that sinneth it shall die"; and that "death and hell will be cast into the lake of fire, which is the second death."

Dr. Clarke on Ezek. 32: 21,—"Out of the midst of hell." Sheol, the catacombs, the place of burial. 27th verse,—"Gone down to hell with their weapons of war." Are buried in their armor, and with their weapons lying by their sides. Matt. 11: 23,—"Thou Capernaum . . . . shall be brought down to hell." The original word is "hades." Among other things he says: "The word hell conveys now an improper use of the original word. * * * The word hell comes from the Anglo-Saxon helan, to cover or hide. * * * This prediction of our Lord was literally fulfilled. * * * These cities were totally destroyed."

Ps. 16,—"Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." As to leaving the soul in hell, it can only mean permitting the life of the Messiah to continue under the power of death; for Sheol signifies a pit, a ditch, the grave, or state of the dead."

J. Wesley on Matt. 5: 22;—"Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire." "Hell fire, in the valley of Hinnom, where the word in the original is taken. The children were used to be burned alive to Moloch. It was afterward made a receptacle for the filth of the city, where continual fires were kept to consume it."—Wesley's Notes. Dr. Clarke says: "Our Lord alludes to the valley of the son of Hinnom. The Jews in our Savior's time used the word for hell." He might have said, "as many do in the present day." A. Barnes in his Notes agrees with other torment teachers, that "hell" comes from the valley of Hinnom.

Dr. Clarke on 2 Pet. 2: 4;—"For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell"—Tartarus. He refers to heathen writers for a definition of the word, who say, "The bounds or verge of this material system; the place where the giants who rebelled against Jupiter and the souls of the wicked were confined; a vast pit or gulf in the bowels of the earth," etc.

The Presbyterian catechism says,—"The wicked in hell will curse, roar, and blaspheme God." The Methodist catechism says, "Hell is a dark and bottomless pit, full of fire and brimstone." If it has no bottom, would not every thing in it fall through?

The great Spurgeon says,—"They will go down, down, down, forever, forever, forever, ne'er to find a resting place for the sole of their feet." If this be so, it has no bounds. Mr. A. compared sinners to "maniacs walking over an eternal hell without apprehension or alarm." Does he not believe in the settlement underground? Mr. H., in facing the communion table, called eternal misery one of the doctrines of the gospel. Is it good news, or glad tidings? Any person to examine the witnesses for the lower region will find as little agreement among them as there was in the witnesses against our Savior. As hell is said to be without a bottom, so its advocates have no foundation in truth to build upon; therefore error, confusion, inconsistencies, and absurdities characterize their imaginations founded on it.

The leading minds of the church, prophets, apostles, reformers, etc., have been agreeably with Peter: "We, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." When death, sorrow and pain will be passed away, and all things made new, and he that overcometh inherit all things (Rev. 21: 4, 5), there will be no place left in this earth for hell, nor any inhabitants for it.

It is evident that most men do not live in preparation for the kingdom of God. Jesus says, "Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. . . . Narrow is the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Can we believe that God's principal design in making man was to keep a majority alive in eternal torment? Is that either the purpose or the condition on which man was formed by a God of justice, mercy, goodness, and truth, knowing the end from the beginning? Is it according to his character, his attributes, or his oath? Ezek. 33: 11;—"Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked." If he has no pleasure in the sinner's death, can it be possible that he will have pleasure in eternally tormenting the sinner? I say impossible, let defamers say what they will. But if man having incurred the penalty, and under the sentence of death is offered eternal life on the condition that God has provided, and will not accept of it, the sentence will be justly executed; the worst of men will have no cause to complain, having enjoyed the blessing of life for a time and rejected the great salvation; justice will return him to where he came from, to dust, and to be as though he had not been. Obad. 16th.

Some Catholics almost idolize purgatory, and many Protestants appear to regard hell equally with the church to which they belong. They would exclude any that did not believe in it. The common opinion of sin is like a heathen idea that there are two eternal principles; one good, and the other evil; but we read when God finished the work of creation he saw every thing that he had made, and behold it was very good. Sin had a beginning, and will have an ending. It only exists in rebellion against God. It is the transgression of the law. 1 Jno. 3: 4. When probationary time will be ended, what law will there be to keep? what law to break? what necessity for sin? what possibility for sin to exist? Its wages is death, and we may rest assured that it will receive its reward at the judgment day. By its temporary existence in several instances, the attributes, perfections and glory of God were more fully manifested in the remedies provided for the evils, than they would have been had not the evils existed; so Jesus Christ was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil. John. 3: 8. He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself (Heb. 9: 26); that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil (Heb. 2: 14). The devils asked Christ, "Art thou come to destroy us?" Mark 1: 24.

Who can vindicate the justice or character of God, and think that he will keep a majority of his intelligent creatures alive in eternal torment, where they can do nothing but sin eternally? God can be under no necessity to continue sin eternally. It is contrary to his nature. It has no right to reside anywhere. It is an intruder in God's creation that was very good; a rebel against God and his government, a criminal, an enemy that cannot be reformed; therefore it must be banished, extirpated, and executed; when He shall have put down all power, all authority, and all enemies under his feet (1 Cor. 15: 25); before the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign for ever and ever (Rev. 11: 15); before the saints receive the kingdom and possess it for ever, even for ever and ever (Dan. 7: 18); before His kingdom will come and His will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

ROBERT O'BRIEN.

For the World's Crisis.

A PRAYER WORTH $60.00.

Bro. R. E. Ladd has found the sixty dollars of money which he lost out of his pocket on the Wilbraham camp-ground. This will be good news to his friends, as also the remarkable way in which it was found.

His wife, after praying over it, had the impression that it was still on the camp-ground. She spoke of her impression to Bro. Ladd a number of times, and he consented to take her out to satisfy her, not having the least confidence in the operation. They started at four o'clock in the morning, that no one might see them raking over the leaves to find what was lost three weeks before.

On arriving, he asked her how long time she wanted? "Not over thirty minutes," was her reply. And, to his astonishment, in less than half the time, she poked it out of the leaves under one of the seats on the women's side, where he had not sat or been. It must have been kicked there by people going down the broad alley. She went by impression to the spot. It was lost on Saturday, and ten thousand people were on the ground the Sunday following, and a meeting was held there the second Sunday after; and yet the money, after being kicked about for three weeks, was found, and put into the Lord's treasury, as both agreed.

Here was profit in praying. See John 21: 15. These facts were told me by Bro. Ladd, and I think them worth a notice. They are not believers in spirit communications, but they do believe that God mysteriously answers prayer. I hope this will stimulate others to pray, if not for lost money, for something else that can be found by praying.

H. MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

A WORD TO MOTHERS.

Christian mother, are you ever sad, almost discouraged by the trials of the way? Do you sometimes feel that a mother's responsibilities are more than you can bear? As you have seen each child laid quietly at rest for the night, and, wearied with the cares and labors of the day, have laid your own head on your pillow, (and the dear little one at your side nestled closely to you as if half conscious, even in its slumbers, that mother was near;) have you ever at such a time let busy, faithful memory go back and recall the scenes of the day? And then has conscience brought to mind some, aye, it may be an impatient word, or the indulgence of a wrong spirit toward your children? Have the bitter tears of repentance fallen at such times, and would you not have resolved to make greater effort to do right, if the thought of broken resolutions had not hindered you? And have you not almost in despair felt that by your own short comings in duty you might be the cause of your children's destruction? Come, then, and let us mingle our sorrows, and together look to the "everlasting hills, whence cometh our help." God is our all sufficient aid. It is reliance on human power which makes you so weak. You feel that you cannot do your duty? But what is His name who has promised to be righteousness, strength and wisdom to his people? Is is not an Almighty arm on which you are invited to lean, who has said, "Without me ye can do nothing?" Put your whole trust in God; strive continually to feel that Christ is more than able to help you, and your feeble efforts will meet an abundant reward.

H. G. WHITMAN.

HYMN.

Let all who love the Lord, arise
And trim their lamps anew,
Go forth to win the heavenly prize,
And keep the end in view.

Why do so many idle stand?
The laborers why so few?
Come, let us lend a helping hand,
And gird our loins anew.

The Lord of harvest bids us rise
And to the labor haste,
While clouds of mercy fill the skies,
And fields are open vast.

The soil at first must be prepared,
The seed must then be sown;
An hundred fold, oh! may it bear,
The Lord can call his own.

In speaking of his church, the Lord
The good to wheat compares,
And those who disobey his word,
Likens to useless tares.

The time for sowing soon will pass,
The harvest time will come,
The angels must go forth at last,
And reap the harvest home.

The righteous then shall as the sun
In glorious splendor shine;
Lord, who this heavenly race have run,
Shall shout the glory thine.

—Selected by Charlotte Case.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.

There never was a time when christianity flourished more, spread faster, extended farther, than when the line of demarkation between the church and the world was most clear and distinct; than when to be a christian was to be despised, persecuted, killed. In those days men were not ashamed of their religion; for, if they were religious at all, their piety was of so sterling a stamp that it was unconcealable; it shone like the sun, it was seen in every act, it was heard in every word, it was felt in every presence; there was that about a man, which, without a word or act, said, "He is a christian." On the other hand, in proportion as the great line is indistinct; in proportion as there is an amalgamation between the church and the world, a commingling of views and policies and practices; in proportion as the spirit of accommodation prevails; in such proportion is piety weak, watery, empty. As observant men grow old, they who are not specially under the influence of religious principle, their motto is, more and more "policy." For this they suppress personal independence, suppress opinion, suppress conscience. It is the same with communities and nations. Thus, an unchristianized civilization is pretence without reality, is form, is ceremony, is a grand sham; words are used to conceal ideas, and Talleyrandism is the order of the day. The price of liberty is eternal vigilance, and by no other means can a sound practical christianity prevail in any family, or community, or nation. Hence, it behooves the best friends of religion to exercise a ceaseless vigilance against the commingling of sentiments and practices, as between the church and the world.

In a heroic independence the church is found largely wanting in the present age; and, by an assumption of the principle that they who are in Rome must do as Rome does, there is no distinction, in a general way, between the dress of the church and that of the world. Our wives and daughters do not "adorn themselves in modest apparel," but "with embroidered hair, and gold, and pearls, and costly array;" they greedily catch up the extravagances of hollow courts abroad; and the question as to dress is not whether it is appropriate, but, "Is it fashionable? Does it prevail in foreign courts?" And, up to this time, there is no absurdity or indecency of dress practiced at the Court of the Tuileries, that is not forthwith adopted here; and the habiliments at the altar of devotion are the same as those worn in the salons of royalty. This subject is antiquated and threadbare, and is dismissed with the single suggestion, that the true and old nobility of England is distinguished by its plain, convenient, and useful attire, leaving it to the servants of the household to glory in extremest fashion. The children of the great King would do well to take a lesson therefrom, and, at least, let the medium of fashion be their guide.

Truthfulness is a defect among christians. The most expressive adjectives, the fullest expletives, the strongest forms of speech, are brought into constant requisition in the most trivial affairs of life. A little dust, an inconvenient wind, a slight shower, makes the weather "horrid." The muttering of distant thunder is "awful;" and "outrageous," and "disgusting," and "to contemptible for any thing," leap to the lips of our daughters, with the facility of the most endearing expressions. "I am pleased to meet with you," is too tame a phrase in case of an ordinary introduction;" "I am extremely happy to make your acquaintance," is the uniform utterance. Half the letters begin and end with a mechanical lie, instead of a conscientious guage of phrase. If all are treated thus alike, where is the encouragement to virtue? Where is the wholesome frowning on vice? The true rule should be, meet the humble, working christian, whether in rags or ermine, with the cordiality and equality of a brother; but meet the roue, the gambler, the defrauder, the Sabbath-breaker, and the out-law, in whatever direction that outlawry may exhibit itself, with a dignified distance, yet warmed with compassion. In shorter phrase, make virtue feel that it is encouraged, and vice that it is frowned upon. Let justice and truth be exhibited in every act of life.—Selected.

RESTRAINT FOR THE YOUNG.

The eldest son of President Edwards congratulating a friend on having a large family of sons, said to him with much earnestness, "Remember there is but one mode of family government. I have brought up and educated fourteen boys, two of whom I suffered to grow up without the rod. One of these was my youngest brother, and the other Aaron Burr, my sister's only son—both of whom had lost their parents in their childhood—and from both my observation and experience, I tell you, sir, maple-sugar government will never answer. Beware how you let the first act of disobedience go unnoticed in your little boys, and, unless evidence of repentance be manifested, unpunished."

Of all the sermons I ever heard, long or short, this has been the most useful, so far as this world is concerned. It is a solemn lesson, to be prayerfully pondered by all parents and guardians. The Bible lays down four great rules, involving the four great elements of the successful religious training of children—prayer, instruction, example and restraint. In vain will be your prayers, instruction and example, if, when your children do wrong, you "restrain them not."—Ex.

MY FATHER'S RICHES.

Some years ago a band of worn foreign missionaries met together to consider what they should do in view of an imperious call, just received from home, to curtail their expenditures still further, on account of the great and continued financial reverses in this country. It was to them a season of unspeakable perplexity. They had already curtailed, as they thought, till they could curtail no further without nearly abandoning their work. One after another sorrowfully expressed his views and feelings, and seemed nearly ready to sink down into hopeless despondency. At length one of the veterans, who had been silently lost in thought, was called upon to express his views of the great emergency. He was a man whose piety was remarkably apostolic. "Brethren," said he, "I cannot help it, and I have come to the decision to give myself no further concern about it, for my Father is as rich as ever."

This was the only refuge of the desponding missionaries in that day of trial, and it was a sufficient refuge. And so, as far as anxious care is concerned, it should be always in the christian's experience. Trying as may be the discipline of God's providence, let no christian ever forget to say from the depths of a grateful and rejoicing heart, "My Father is as rich as ever."—Congregationalist.

THE VERSATILITY OF PAUL.

"He that winneth souls is wise." This wisdom is from above, and is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy. No person ever possessed more of this excellency than Paul. His prudence appears in the selection and variation of the means he employed to accomplish his end. He considered the circumstances, the tempers, the prejudices of his hearers. He addressed every principle, and every passion of his human nature. He reasoned; he declaimed. He reproved; he admonished; he warned; he encouraged. He compassed sea and land to furnish himself with illustrations and assistance. He borrowed from the institutions of Judaism. He borrowed from the institutions of heathenism. He borrowed from the manners of the age. He borrowed from the festive games. Not a wrestling or a race passed by unnoticed or unimproved. Any occurrence, however accidental or transitory, he seized, to guide the attention which it awakened to some wise and important purpose.—Wm. Jay.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

COLDS.

Colds are simply obstructions to exhalations or excretions of the body, and therefore the system becomes more or less charged and oppressed with poison; charging the system still further with poisons is only overloading the already jaded organism and adding fuel to the flames that are already raging. But colds disturb the vital functions and produce more or less of pain and suffering, and lead not unfrequently to developments that produce a fatal result. The exhalations or excretions being interrupted in their exit from the body, become sources of irritation and disease in different parts of the system, according to the constitutional peculiarities of the patient, or his previous state of health. Hence a cold produces in one person a cough, in another feverish symptoms, in another a sore throat; in one it may produce diarrhea, in another rheumatism, in a third pneumonia, in a fourth a general soreness and stiffness of the muscles, and in a fifth a great derangement of the nervous system. In all cases it interferes more or less with the nutritive process, diminishing the patient's power for digestion and assimilation.

But in speaking of colds, we will take only those forms, for the present, which manifest themselves in cough, feverish symptoms, and in general irritation with more or less debility or loss of strength.

TREATMENT.

The treatment is easy, very simple, and very readily managed in domestic practice. In many cases, indeed, the patient, whether child or adult, will need little other treatment than being kept from undue exposure to atmospheric changes. To effect this, it may be necessary in winter, especially, to keep the patient for a certain time in a comfortable, but well ventilated apartment, and to use a little additional clothing. In most cases of taking cold, additional clothing is necessary by night and by day. Thousands of cases have been dosed and drugged, day after day, that needed no other treatment than the above. The human race have never yet been taught to put any confidence or trust in nature. The prevailing idea is that, even in cases of trivial disease, something extraordinary or extra-natural must be done, or these poor bodies of ours will be in danger of caving in and giving up the ghost. Little do we ever dream that the great conservative powers of our physical nature lie deeply buried within us, instead of having their existence in outside elements and influences, and above all in drug poisons.

In other cases it will be best or perhaps necessary, to give some further treatment. We will suppose the patient has a severe cough with more or less of feverish symptoms and loss of appetite. In this case, what we have already suggested should be observed. As additional management a very good treatment would be to give a full warm bath by immersion at one hundred degrees for five or eight minutes in the middle of the day, and follow it immediately, or immediately after wiping dry, as might be thought most comfortable, by cold hand rubbing or cold towel rubbing of the chest, using water at seventy degrees; it might be used a little warmer or a little colder, according as the patient might be sensitive or otherwise, or according to his fancy. A bath of this kind administered in a room of comfortable temperature, of seventy or eighty degrees, but well ventilated, will always be found exceedingly pleasant for child or adult. The temperature of the room should be made warmer for very sensitive patients than for others.

At night, if further treatment should be deemed necessary, the patient might have a warm foot bath at one hundred degrees for three to five minutes, followed by one at eighty for one minute, and have a cold compress laid upon the lungs on going to bed. The compress for an adult should be about two thicknesses of common linen toweling for the wet part, covered by about the same thickness of dry cloth or flannel, and should be large enough to cover the whole front part of the chest as low down as the nipples or lower. A simple towel can often be so folded and applied as to answer the purpose of both the wet and the dry part.

A more convenient arrangement for this part of the treatment is the wet jacket, which is to be covered by a dry one. The whole of the jacket may be wet, or only a part of it, as the case may require. Usually, I direct that the front part only shall be wet. If there should be pain under the shoulder blade, or in any part of the chest, wet the corresponding part of the jacket. A warmed room for the patient to retire in will always be best, but it must always be so ventilated that the out-door air may have free access.

In case the patient is chilly and inclined to have cold feet, a small jug filled with water at from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and thirty degrees and applied to the feet will be found both comfortable and useful. A warm towel or sponge bath at one hundred to one hundred and ten might be substituted for the bath by immersion, when the latter would not be found convenient, and this can be made readily available in every family.

A very great variety of water and other hygienic appliances can be made available in treating common colds and their results, but the above is very simple, easily administered, and in most cases would be found exceedingly effective. It might usually be repeated for several days in succession, if found necessary, with the best results.—Dr. W. T. Vail.

BABIES.

Time was, if we can believe the traditions which have come down to us from our great-grandmothers, when mothers knew how to care for their babies. But now baby-tending, like bread-making, seems to be among the lost arts. God and nature have given the females of the human race the same instincts and the same intelligence, to understand and provide for the wants of their offspring, that have been vouchsafed to the "lower animals." But, practically, the animal creation seldom err in this respect, while with human beings error is the rule. Not one child out of ten who is born into this breathing world, escapes being seriously damaged for life by the injudicious management of its mother or nurse during infancy or early childhood. In traveling thousands of miles on railroads or steamers, we have never seen a dozen children (unless they belonged to parents of our school) who were not fed in such a way as to ensure more or less disease in childhood, and predispose to consumption before the period of maturity. Nearly all who have come under our observation while traveling, were stuffed continually on sweet-cakes and candies, and such abominations for infantile stomachs as dried-beef and stale cheese; and even ham-sandwiches, are no uncommon articles. And almost every one is taught to eat butter on almost every thing that is not spoiled with sugar. Mothers not unfrequently bring their children to us, whose tastes are so depraved that they crave butter, salt, and vinegar as any "old toper" craves rum and tobacco. If mothers knew what miseries they were laying the foundation for in after life, they would no more fasten these morbid appetences on their children than they would teach them to be sick and die.

We must, as physiologists and reformers, take the ground that a woman who does not know how to feed, bathe, and clothe a child, and to medicate its ordinary ailments without sending for a doctor, is unfit to have a child. We were called the other day to see an interesting little girl of some ten or eleven years of age, now a miserable wreck, probably a cripple for life. Indeed, we see such cases every week in the year. And they have all one common history, only varying in the non-essential details. The child was fed in the usual manner, and, of course, its bowels were always constipated. Occasionally it would have colic or "sick spells," and the mother, instead of giving it proper food to remove the cause, would send for the doctor to give it poisonous purgatives. Under this plan of bad feeding and worse doctoring the child grew pale and feeble. Then the doctor said it must have "blood-food," and he dosed it with preparations of iron. After a few months it began to have neuralgic pains, and quinine was added to the medication. It grew more and more feeble; other physicians were consulted, and alcoholic stimulants were added to the other drugs. In a few months the back became weak and the spine incurvated. A council of eminent physicians was called, including two professors of medical colleges, and it was concluded to make running sores on the back. The physicians suspected "softening of the spinal cord;" and they could think of no better way to harden it than to destroy the skin with caustics. Not a word was said about diet, bathing, air, exercise. No inquiry was made in relation to personal habits. For months and years the physicians made their regular visits, charged their regular fees, dealt out the regular drugs, and all went on as regularly as clock work. Before commencing with the cauterizing treatment, somebody had whispered a strange doctrine in the ears of the parents, and we were sent for. We could not do otherwise than tell them that all they had been doing for the child, during several years of medication, had only effected the ruin of its constitution.

But why all this? Why are mothers so foolish, so stupid, so like "insane idiots" in all matters pertaining to the health of their children? Alas! the fault is not theirs, though the misfortune is. They too, were perverted in childhood, and have been miseducated through life. The medical profession has educated them out of their common sense. They have vital and parental instincts; but they do not exercise them. They dare not. The murderous system of Drugopathy has taught them that they must not think, reason, nor know anything, so far as the maladies of their children are concerned. These matters must all be left to the doctor.

In the case we have alluded to, had the mother—who was a more than ordinarily intelligent woman, and who all along had fears and apprehensions concerning the result of what the physicians recommended—had she exercised her own judgment or intuitions; had she been obliged to do so; had there been no doctors within a thousand miles, the probability is that her darling child would now have been the great joy instead of the inconsolable grief of its fond parents.—Herald of Health.

☞ Pure air is the best medicine.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—One year........$2.50; Six months........$1.25

If not paid within six months,—One year........$3.00; Six months........$1.50

Five copies, to one address, six months........$5.60 —same rate for any larger number under ten.

Ten copies, to one address, six months........$10.00 —same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE, Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS;

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 473. BOSTON, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 6.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

AIR.—Bendish.

Our Lord is risen from the dead,
He lives again, our glorious Head,
Ascended up on high;
He conquered for us death and pain,
And we with Him shall live again,
And meet Him in the sky.

Love triumphs o'er the sullen tomb,—
Hope lives for those within its gloom,
Who sleep the years away.
Soon will the tyrant's reign be o'er,
And we shall meet to part no more,
In one long gladsome day.

The unjust, too, shall live and rise,
To see their Judge with weeping eyes,
And feel His vengeful breath;
To condemnation they come forth,
And execution of God's wrath,
To die the second death.

For death and hell shall yield them all,
And good and evil, great and small,
That solemn day must see;
The final parting scene takes place,—
The good forever see His face,
The evil shall not be.

It comes, the day of perfect peace,—
Creation's long, loud groans will cease,
And all shall be made fair;
The curse will vanish here below,
Old mother Earth forget her wo,
Her Eden robes to wear.

And He who sits upon the throne
Of that new world shall say, 'Tis done!
Old Time's sad years are past;
Behold the fair new heavens and earth!
Sing, ye redeemed, your heavenly birth:
The Kingdom's come at last.

D. T. TAYLOR.

PREPARE TO MEET THY GOD.

READER,—I have an important message to you. Whoever you may be, you have the deepest interest in it. It matters not whether you are young or old, rich or poor, bond or free, learned or ignorant, you have more concern in it than anything you can imagine besides.

Jesus Christ, "the Son of God," has plainly and unequivocally declared, that when certain specified signs should be seen, his people might KNOW that his second coming was NIGH, EVEN AT THE DOORS.

These foretold signs are now fulfilled. The Sun has been darkened—the Moon has withheld her light—the stars have fallen from heaven. The perils—selfishness—pride—impiety—blasphemy—incontinency—want of confidence—hypocrisy—deception—etc., of the last times, are flooding the world. (2 Pet. 3). The next great event now to be looked for, is the coming of the Son of Man in the clouds of heaven, to gather his elect from the four quarters of the earth, and by the brightness of his coming, to DESTROY THE MAN OF SIN, AND THEM THAT DESTROY THE EARTH.

O! Reader, are you aware how near you are to "THE END OF ALL THINGS?" Do you know that these are "the LAST DAYS?" The signs of the times clearly prove this. And if you do not so see it, it is high time that you wake from your slumbers, and commence, in good earnest, a prayerful investigation of the evidences of this unutterable truth. We are living in an important period—a time of the completion of all the prophecies concerning this sin-polluted world.

Now, reader, if you are not ready, let it be your first work to prepare for this great event. Your ignorance of it—your indifference to it—your unbelief—ridicule—opposition—and unreadiness for it, will not prevent its coming. Oh, then, do not waste the few precious moments yet allotted to you—for, "in a little while He that is to come WILL COME, and WILL NOT TARRY." Are you prepared for the fearful events which God is about to bring to pass? Do you feel ready to see Christ in the clouds,—the heavens rolling together as a scroll, and passing away with a great noise,—the elements melting,—the earth and the works thereof burning,—all faces turned into paleness? "Can thine heart endure, or can thine hands be strong in the day when God shall thus deal with thee?" "Thus saith the Lord God; Howl ye, Wo, worth the day! for the day is near, even the day of the Lord is near." (Ezek. 30: 2, 3).

Are you a minister of the gospel? Have the people of the land taken you from their coasts, and set you as a watchman over them? Have you been carefully watching that you might see when the sword was coming; and have you faithfully blown the trumpet, and warned the people? If not, when the wicked shall be taken away in his iniquity, his blood shall be required at thine hand. Are you joining in the delusive cry, "My Lord delayeth his coming?" and promising the world long centuries of unexampled and uninterrupted peace, when the mighty God declares, "My determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger; for all the earth shall be devoured in the fire of my jealousy!" Your Lord shall come in a day that you look not for him, and in an hour that you are not aware of."

Are you a man of wealth, hoarding the Lord's silver and gold, and leaving it to rust in your coffers, or squandering it upon your lusts; when it is needed to spread abroad light and truth, and wake up a slumbering world, as the wrath that is coming upon them makes haste, that they may turn to the strong hold, while prisoners of hope? Then weep and HOWL for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire; a witness that you have hid your Lord's talent, instead of faithfully appropriating it to arouse the perishing, and pull them out of the fire. Oh, I should be afraid to be a rich man, when Christ appears!

Are you an oppressor, keeping back by fraud, the hire of the laborers that have reaped down your fields? Remember, the cries of them that have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth,—and that his high command is, "Deliver the spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor, lest my fury go forth like fire, and burn, that none can quench it, because of the evil of your doings." That fire will be kindled soon.

Are you a scoffer, saying, Where is the promise of his coming? We are foretold that there shall be such as you in the last days. You stand as a witness, that the end of all things is indeed at hand. Beware!

Are you a stupid, hardened sinner? "He that being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy."

Are you a worldly-minded professor of religion? Your worldliness will soon have an end. God grant that your own end may not be destruction.

Are you one that trembles as you think of the approaching terrors of the Lord? See! there is Christ, who died that you might live. Confess all your guilt, put away all your sins, throw yourself into his arms. "He will in no wise cast you out." Take him, as he is of God, made unto you wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and REDEMPTION. Then fear not. Confess him as your Savior now, and he will confess you before his Father and the angels, when he appears. Oh, stay not,—haste,—haste, lest thou be consumed. Remember Lot's wife. Look not behind thee.

Let go of the world, and cling to Christ. Tremble not at the frown of the haughty, or the ridicule of scoffers, but tremble at God's word.

Do you say we mistake in expecting Christ's coming so soon? We have gained our belief from the study of God's word. If, in view of this belief, we prepare for his coming, it will be safe for us to wait and watch, even should it not be. But if YOU are mistaken, and Christ, coming on you like a thief, shall find you unprepared, THERE IS NO REMEDY. For "the Lord of that servant" who loves not his appearing, and is not expecting his return, "will come in a day when he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers." (Luke 12: 46).—From Thurman's Chronology.

For the World's Crisis.

THE VIRGIN BRIDE AND THE HARLOT WOMAN.

A certain man once asked Christ which was the greatest commandment? and the reply was, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," etc., showing that the keeping of the Mosaic ritual in its times, and for its purpose, was only a legitimate consequence of supreme love to God. The dispensation in which we live is not the Mosaic, but the gospel age; and God speaks to us by his Son, whom he has appointed heir of all things. And we find that supreme love to God in this age links us to Christ, by a peculiar relationship. In Moses' day the church was the wife, and the law was the husband. In the body of Christ the law was crucified and thus became dead. The purpose of this was that the church should be married to another, even a risen Jesus; for the law could give neither life nor righteousness, but a risen Savior would give both. See Rom. 7: 1–6, and Gal. 3: 22–29. The subject presents itself thus:—

1st. CHRIST IS A BRIDEGROOM.

PROOF. "Can the children of the bridechamber fast while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days."—Mark 2: 19, 20. "He that hath the bride is the bridegroom; but the friend of the bridegroom which standeth and heareth him rejoiceth greatly, because of the bridegroom's voice; this my joy therefore is fulfilled."—John 3: 29.

2nd. THE CHURCH IS HIS BRIDE.

PROOF. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him that is raised from the dead."—Rom. 7: 4. "For I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ."—2 Cor. 11: 2. See also Eph. 5: 23–32. In Rev. 21, the bride is shown as within the city New Jerusalem, after the marriage, that city being her home.

Also, from the above and other scriptures it may be shown that the true church is a virgin; that the gospel age is the time of her espousal; that the marriage will take place at Christ's second advent; that she never unites with any other husband. But there is another woman mentioned in Rev. 17th, 18th and 19th chapters. That woman is called a Harlot. Did you, dear reader, ever stop to think why she is called thus? It is because she committed fornication by marrying the "kings of earth," when she professed to be espoused to Christ! She united with and blessed earthly governments, and they supported her. Could such an one be the bride of the Lamb? No! no! His bride must be a "chaste virgin."

The subject sums up thus:—

1st. The church has no business with any other king but Christ.

2nd. That in making common cause with any other government, she commits fornication.

3d. That in so doing, she becomes a harlot daughter, and an adulteress.

If, then, one would commit spiritual adultery before God, let him go and vote and fight; for, by doing the first, he identifies himself with an earthly gove[illegible] by the second, he fulfills his [illegible] The question is often asked, "[illegible]stians to vote? ought they to fig[illegible] there is a question beneath these, which, when answered, solves the whole. It is, "What is the relationship of the church to earthly governments?" And as in the Mosaic ritual every act was suspended on supreme love to God, so now, every act of christian obedience springs from our holy vows of chastity to Christ. God help us to be found pure when the voice is heard saying, "The marriage of the Lamb is come, and the bride hath made herself ready."

Dansville, N. Y. F. BURR.

For the World's Crisis.

IS IT SO? ARE WE UNDER THE LAW?

I recently listened to a discourse on the two covenants, from one I highly esteem for his piety, and devotion to the cause of Christ, but who has embraced the view that we are required to observe the seventh day Sabbath.

In justification of this position, he preached the discourse alluded to, which we take the liberty to criticise, by bringing it to the test of the only infallible standard, viz., the Word of God. We do not purpose to examine every point we deemed untenable, but a few of the most prominent.

He took the position that the old and the new covenants were based upon the law of ten commandments. These, said he, were the foundation on which Moses builded his house under the former dispensation—they are also the foundation on which Jesus Christ establishes his house under the new dispensation. Such a declaration as this; one having so important a relation to the subject under consideration, ought, in our judgment, to have been "established" by the testimony of at least "two or three witnesses," produced from the Sacred Oracles. But not one, even, was brought forward—not one text of Scripture quoted in proof.

Question. Can one such be found? When this was asserted, the following text occurred to our mind. "And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief Corner Stone, in whom all the building, fitly framed together, groweth into an holy temple in the Lord, in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." Here the church of the new dispensation is represented as a building, and it is declared to be built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets. Not as some understand it, that they are the foundation, but the foundation laid by the prophets and apostles—the foundation on which they builded constitutes the basis of the christian church.

On what foundation, then, did they rest? By reference to 1 Cor. 3: 9—11, we find Paul saying to the church, "Ye are God's building," and declares that as a wise master builder, he hath laid the foundation, and plainly states what that foundation is. "Other foundation," says he, "can no man lay than is laid, which is"—the ten commandments? Nay, verily! "Which is JESUS CHRIST!" Here, then, we have a witness, even the testimony of an inspired apostle, that the church is built on Jesus Christ, and that none other can be laid for a foundation.

Now we will see if we can find another witness, whose testimony will substantiate this fact.

Turning to Isaiah 28: 16, I read thus: "Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation, a stone, a tried stone, a precious Corner Stone, a sure foundation; he that believeth shall not make haste." Can we ascertain anything more respecting this "tried," precious Corner Stone? The sweet singer of Israel, in prophetical language says "The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner; this is from (margin) the LORD, it is marvellous in our eyes." Ps. 118; 22, 23.

For further testimony respecting these predictions of the prophets, we will now refer to the commentary of inspired apostles. Peter, in his first epistle to the church, speaks of them as being lively, or living stones, built up a spiritual house, having first come to a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious. He then makes an application of the prophecy of Isaiah respecting this chief Corner Stone, elect and precious; and says, "He that believeth on him shall not be confounded." Isaiah says, "He that believeth, shall not make haste." He then makes an application of the prediction of David, to the same person: "Unto you therefore which believe, he is precious; but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner."

Is further testimony desired, we have it at hand—two more witnesses shall substantiate the fact, that Jesus Christ is the "tried," "precious" and chief Corner Stone, the "sure foundation" of the prophets and apostles. Turn to Acts 4: 10—12. Here we find Peter, "filled with the Holy Ghost," declaring unto the rulers and elders of Israel a fact which he deems so important that he wishes it known unto them all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of JESUS CHRIST of Nazareth, whom they crucified, an impotent man stands before them whole. "THIS IS THE STONE WHICH WAS SET AT NOUGHT OF YOU BUILDERS, WHICH IS BECOME THE HEAD OF THE CORNER; neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved:" "None other foundation, can any man lay, than that is laid, WHICH IS JESUS CHRIST."

In addition to the unimpeachable testimony already adduced we will add that of Him who spake as none other man spake. Jesus had been relating a parable respecting a householder who let out his vineyard to husbandmen, and who sent to them servants at the time of fruit gathering, that they might receive of the fruits. He shows what manner of treatment these servants received from the husbandmen. Last of all, the householder sent his son, but him they ill-treated and killed. Then Jesus makes an application of the prophecy of David respecting the stone rejected by the builders.

We did not need all this testimony to establish the fact that Jesus Christ is the stone set forth by the prophets, as the "sure foundation" for the "house of God" under the new covenant; but we thought we would place this harmonious array against the evidence shall I say? No, we cannot truthfully say this; but against the bare assertion of our beloved, but erring brother, that the christian church is based on the law of the ten commandments!

Again we question in our own mind the correctness of the assertion that the ten commandments formed the basis of the old covenant. In Ex. 34: 28 we read: "And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant—the ten commandments." Here the ten commandments are called the covenant, and not the basis of the covenant. Our brother said the ten commandments were sometimes called the covenant, sometimes "the ark of the covenant," and again, "the book of the covenant." We think the ark of the covenant referred to the ark containing the tables of covenant, and the book of the covenant contained the written record of the commands, by the hand of Moses.

This covenant is denominated by Paul, in his epistle to the Cor., "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stone"; and he says that this ministration "was glorious," and that this glory was to be done away. The Sabbatarian says, "O yes, we admit that the glory of that ministration was to be done away, or superseded by the excelling glory of the ministration of the Spirit; but deny that the ministration itself was to be abolished."

We will criticise the language of the apostle, and see if it will bear such an exposition as the above. A contrast is drawn between the ministration of death and the ministration of righteousness and life. "If the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory. If that which is done away be glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious." What is done away? The glory of the old ministration? No, but that which had the glory,—that which was itself glorious. The glorious ministration of death written and engraven on stones, was done away by the establishment of a ministration of excelling glory—a ministration of the Spirit—of righteousness—of life, engraven on the fleshly tables of the heart. Heb. 8: 10.

How clear the argument of the apostle in the eighth, ninth, and tenth of Heb., touching this covenant! How evident in the tenth verse of the eighth chapter that he is contrasting or putting in opposition the old covenant engraven on stones, with the new written on the mind and heart. The first had ordinances of divine service which were types or shadows of good things to come. Not only are these abolished, but the covenant itself has waxed old and vanished away.

One more point of importance we will briefly notice. The speaker took up the seventh of Romans, and argued, or rather endeavored to do so, that the apostle does not teach in that chapter that the law is dead, as stated in verse sixth, but, resting on the marginal rendering, stated that we are dead to the law; which, to our mind, is a distinction without a difference. But admit the application for the time. The figure introduced is that of a wife, bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; if he die, she is free from that law, and may be married to another man.

The speaker said the law was not dead to us, but we are dead to the law. The law respecting marriage is not abolished, but the wife is dead to that law; she is no longer bound thereby, and may be married to another man, and yet be no adulteress! The husband living, the law in force, but the wife is free!!

We ask, Is not the wife equally free from the law, or marriage covenant, whether that freedom be acquired by the abolishing of the law—the death of the husband, or the death of the wife? If the law be dead, it is no longer binding; if the husband be dead, the wife is no longer wedded; and if she be dead, the law has no further claims upon her.

According to the argument of the apostle, in the illustration presented, the christian church is fully released from the law; the schoolmaster to whom the Jewish church was wedded died when the the heavenly Bridegroom came and gave himself a ransom for the church; and now she can be married honorably to him, which could not be the fact if the former husband were living. It does not change the relation of the church one iota whether she be dead to the law, or the law be dead to her; for Paul declares her to be "delivered from the law," that she might be married to another, even Jesus Christ. It cannot here be said that "Paul is talking of the ceremonial law," for in verse seven he quotes the tenth command, thus plainly showing that he refers to the law engraven on stone.

He proceeds to show the wretched condition of a man convicted of sin by the law, and vainly seeking deliverance therefrom by the deeds of the law, and cries out, Who shall deliver me? He answers, with grateful heart, "Through Jesus Christ our Lord"! This point our brother entirely passed over, and very hastily glanced at a few passages in the following chapter. In the second verse of the seventh chap., Paul tells us how the deliverance comes to us. "For the law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." How clearly he has previously shown that "the law of sin and death" is the old covenant written on tables.

In conclusion, we will answer the inquiry at the head of this article, by quoting the language of an inspired apostle: "YE ARE NOT UNDER THE LAW, BUT UNDER GRACE."—Rom. 6: 14. "What then? Shall we sin, because we are not under the law but under grace? God forbid! How shall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? Now being made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life."

M. D. WELLCOME.

Re-published by request.

DARE TO BE RIGHT.

Dare to be right, dare to be true,
You have a work that no other can do;
Do it so kindly, so bravely, so well,
As to gladden all heaven and silence all hell.
Dare to be right, dare to be true;
Cowards and bigots dread every thing new;
If you can't stand at your post in a storm,
How can you fight in the ranks of reform?

Dare to be right, dare to be true;
Foes may be many, and friends may be few;
Truth and her champions are often disowned;
Stand by your banner, although you're alone.
Dare to be right, dare to be true,
Other men's failings can never save you.
Stand by your Bible, your conscience, and faith;
Stand like a hero and battle till death.

Dare to be right, dare to be true;
Keep the great judgment-seat always in view;
Look at your work as you'll look at it then,
Stand by Jehovah, and angels, and men.
Dare to be right, dare to be true,
Love may deny you its sunshine and dew,
Let the dew fail, for the shower shall be given,
Dew is from earth, but the showers from heaven.

Dare to be right, dare to be true;
God who created you cares for you too,
Bottles the tears that his sighing ones shed,
Counts and protects every hair of your head.
Dare to be right, dare to be true,
Cannot Omnipotence carry you through?
City and mansions and thrones all in sight,
Can you not dare to be true and be right?

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN SYMPATHY.

If one so good as St. Paul was fearful that after he had preached to others himself might be a castaway, may we not, after once having been true followers of Christ, be so surrounded by circumstances as to be diverted from the right way and be lost at last? We have always been taught that such was the case. If it is so, why do we hear so much in meeting and out about a christian's always remaining a christian; no matter how much the old sieve is shaken, wheat will be wheat for aye? I cannot reconcile the two ideas.

It cannot be right to disregard our brother's interests. A christian feels a wound more deeply than others, because he has a higher sense of right; and if he does not lose his religion thereby, that circumstance does not justify the offender.

If we injure the feelings of a brother or sister, it does not seem quite right to say, It will not hurt him if he is a true christian. If we are members of the body of Christ, and have the bona fide connection with him and each other, there will be a real sympathy through the whole body.

The very best way to forget what is behind and press forward is, to make all in the past just as near right as possible. Then we can forget, and others can do the same. If we can make no other reparation, we can confess and be forgiven. May the Lord help us to be humble enough to do so.

MARY STRATTON.

For the World's Crisis.

SETTING UP THE KINGDOM.

Would the kingdom have been set up if the Jews had accepted Christ at his first advent? I answer, no. I assert that God was not dependent on the accepting or rejecting of Christ by the Jews for the right and time to set up the kingdom. The time for this event was foretold by the prophets before Christ was born; and there is not a single prophecy in the Bible that Christ was to set up his kingdom at his first advent. It would have been prophesied of if the event was to have taken place then. It looks to me like childish nonsense, and ought long ago to have been set aside, that if the Jews had received Christ as the Messiah and King, he would then have set up his kingdom. As there is no prophecy in the Bible like this, of course it is far from the truth. Every prophecy in the Bible shows the setting up of his kingdom to be at his second advent, and not till then; and there are no conditions as to the time when Christ was to do it. God purposed when it should be, and revealed it to the prophets, all the holy prophets from the beginning of the world; and as they all testify that it was to be at his second coming, God's eternal plan would not have been changed if the Jews had owned his Son Jesus Christ at his first advent. For instance, we will suppose the Jews were to own Christ, and did own him at his first coming, his kingdom could not have been set up then, for the prophecies were all against it. It would only have put them on the same platform as the one on which the Gentiles stood; namely, to acknowledge Christ and his gospel, and to wait by faith for the kingdom to come, when Christ comes in the clouds of heaven, as the Gentile nation profess to, as far as they have heard the gospel.

I will now refer to a prophecy in Daniel, to show that the kingdom could not possibly have been set up at the first advent. The angel shows Daniel that the stone, which means Christ, strikes the image on the feet; then the time comes for him to set up his kingdom. If the Jews had wanted Christ to set up his kingdom, he could not have done it, because the history of this image in Daniel had not been finished. Christ was born in the early part of the Roman government, but the angel tells Daniel that the stone should strike the image on the feet, meaning the same as if he had said strike it on the end of the toes; for when the stone strikes the feet, the toes share an utter destruction with the rest of the image. All show that the history of the image is told forever, and the stone is Christ and his government, which fills the whole earth. All human governments were to pass away before the government of Christ could be established. If the kingdom of Christ had been set up at his first advent, then but a little part of the Roman government would have showed itself; but we see the image, every part of it, must run its whole length of time; no cutting short of any of it; and at the extreme end of the Roman government, the kingdom of Christ is established.

I do hope all those that preach the gospel will see this one thing, that the whole of the image must pass away, and was to pass away in God's plan, before his Son could be the acting king on David's throne. If it is seen, they will no more assert that the kingdom would have been set up if the Jews had owned him as Christ their King.. Many more prophecies might be brought forward, but this may suffice. I think it ought to.

HENRY L. BRADLEY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE WATCH-WORD FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

"Arise ye, and depart; for this is not your rest; because it is polluted, it shall destroy you, even with a sore destruction."—Micah 2: 10.

These words came to me with such force this morning that, ere I was dressed, I sought them out, and learned them for the table; for, through the influence of a pious brother, whom the Lord has graciously sent to us, we have adopted this practice of reciting a verse before we eat. I can recommend it to others. I was glad to find them to be the words of my faithful prophet Micah. He and I are on excellent terms. How I long to see him and tell him how the following words of his, from the mouth of God, comforted me two years ago;—"Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a guide; keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom. For the son dishonoreth the father, the daughter riseth up against her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; a man's enemies are the men of his own house. Therefore I will look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me."

These words came to me as the sudden light strikes the benighted traveler, and I laid hold of them as my timely guide, and they have proved to me no ignis fatuus. If the words standing at the head of this article, from the same prophet, prove to be as timely to me for the two years to come, as these already quoted have for the past two, I shall have cause to thank God, and take courage. It just now strikes my mind that these are sister quotations, and are peculiarly timely for the children of God. Is this our rest? is it not polluted? will it not prove our destruction if we settle down, and are at ease at home?

Again. In whom can we trust? Dare you trust your minister, your husband, your wife, your son, your daughter, your friend, or an angel from heaven? I dare not. All these may be mistaken and lead us astray. In whom then can we trust? In God alone, in Jesus Christ, as he has revealed himself in his word, illumined by the gift of the Holy Ghost, as the promised Comforter. I would also add as a means of knowledge to the saint of God, that which has been of great comfort to my own soul; viz., the providence of God. He is to regard with watchful eye the voice of God in his providence. This is particularly noticeable by our God as evidenced by David, Ps. 28: 5. "Because they regard not the works of the Lord, nor the operations of his hands, he will destroy them, and not build them up."

Beloved saints of God, it will not be displeasing to him for you to look back upon all the way in the which the Lord our God hath led us since 1843. Did he not then woo our hearts as the bride for his Son? Has he not subsequently brought us out and made us a distinct people, loving his appearing? Then has he not separated us in spirit from the governments of earth, waiting for his Son from heaven, as the lawful heir to the diadem of earth? Now what next? Beloved, look out for the next step in providence. Your sister, on the lookout.

E. S. WILLARD.

Hammonton, N. J.

FAITH IN CHRIST'S COMING.

A reverend correspondent in New York writes:—"That Louis Napoleon will by and by develop himself into the Man of Sin, I am strongly inclined to believe. If I do not greatly err in judgment, there are those living now who will be alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord. It does seem to me as highly improbable that the present generation should pass away before the occurrence of that sublimely awful and glorious event. Nor am I ashamed to own my convictions on every fitting occasion, both in public and in private. Nay, I feel prompted, by a deep sense of duty, to make them known. If I know my own heart, I do love the Savior's appearing, and do ardently long for it. It does my soul good when I think I can see in the signs of the times herald-tokens of his coming."

The experience of our brother is like that of many, many others. We have had assurances again and again from advanced christians and ministers, that they had never learned really to appreciate the gospel, and never so fully enjoyed its transporting and comforting power, until they were taught to give the doctrine of Christ's speedy coming its proper place in their thoughts. Like a magnet, it lifts the heart of the believer out of the world, and out of his low self, and enables him to stand with Moses on the Mount, and transfigures him with the rays of blessed hope and promise which stream upon him in those sublime heights. It is the most animating and sanctifying subject in the Bible. It is the great driving-power of christianity. It is the soul's serenest light amid the darkness and trials of earth. And the Scriptures are everywhere full of special benedictions upon those who wait for the Lord, and watch for his coming, and love his appearing. No wonder, then, that the church is so feeble and comfortless, when the doctrine embodying its most vivifying hopes and consolations is trampled under foot, or cast aside as the dream of childish ages.—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

SPURIOUS TESTIMONY!

How patent such a defense! Who dare attempt to disprove one's notions by collecting testimony from history, when one grand statement of his sanguine opponent pronounces his collection of historical facts "spurious testimony"? Had we never heard the like before, and not learned the cause, we might become discouraged. As it is, we proceed, after assuring our friends that the few quotations we gave from Ignatius, Irenæus, Dionysius, Clement, Barnabas, Constantine, and Mosheim, to show that the early christian church observed the first day of the week as their day of worship, are said, by our seventh-day Sabbath brethren, to be "spurious."

Is this hard argument? Let us not believe that they are so ignorant of history as to venture their reputation on saying that Constantine's record of law about observing the first day is spurious, or that the statement of Mosheim, that "in the first century all christians were unanimous in setting apart the first day of the week for public worship," is "spurious," or based on spurious evidence. Neither that the statement of Prof. Stuart to the same point is based on spurious testimony; nor that Irenæus and Tertullian's statements are not their own.

But then, we confess that in reference to what is attributed to Ignatius and to Barnabas, on the first day of the week, is believed by many historians to be "spurious"; that is, it is believed by many that those fathers did not write the epistles which appear on the pages of history accredited to them, because there is said to be evidence that their names were not attached to the original manuscripts. Yet many other good historians believe that Ignatius and Barnabas did write them.

But what weight has the remark that their epistles are spurious, when arguing the question of evidence on the early christians keeping the first day of the week? Just nothing at all, only with the inconsiderate and the willful. For a large number of the best and most creditable writers of the first centuries bear us full and clear testimony to the same facts as are stated in these epistles said to be spurious. Thus, while somebody else may have written these, all current history of the genuine writers gives the same facts.

The same game has been attempted by infidels, relating to the epistle to the Hebrews, and several books of the Old Testament, because no names were found attached to them; and they have been called "spurious." But do not the statements there found agree with what are known to be facts from other sources? All intelligent christians say, Yes.

We now proceed with testimony that the first day of the week was observed by all christians in the first centuries.

Pliny, the younger, who was governor of Bithynia, A. D. 107, not ten years after the death of the apostle John, writing to the emperor Trajan, says, "They (the christians) were accustomed on a stated day to meet before daylight, and to repeat hymns to Christ, as to a God, and to bind themselves by a sacred obligation not to commit any wickedness, * * * after which it is their custom to separate, and meet again at a promiscuous and harmless meal,"—that is, to partake of the Lord's Supper. That this was the first day of the week, is clearly shown by the christian writers of that time.

Justin Martyr, in his "Apology for the Christians," addressed to the Emperor Antoninus, A. D. 147, says, "On the day called Sunday there is a meeting of all the christians that live in either the town or in the country, and the memoirs of the apostles (the four gospels), or the writings of the prophets, are read to them as long as is suitable. When the reader stops, the president pronounces an admonition, and exhorts to an imitation of those noble examples, after which they arise and begin to pray. Then they celebrate the Lord's Supper, and take a collection for the poor."—Apology 1, chap. 67.

This testimony cannot be turned aside by the cry of "spurious." Let us keep our eyes open, and the vail off our hearts,—own the truth, if our theories suffer.

I. C. WELLCOME.

☞ Knowledge does not comprise all that is contained in the term education. The feelings are to be disciplined, the passions are to be restrained, true and worthy motives are to be inspired; a profound religious feeling is to be instilled, and pure morality inculcated under all circumstances. All this is comprised in education.

BREVITY.—Peter the Great, when at Saardam, wished to hear rather a famous preacher. The latter consented to preach before the Czar. Having ascended the pulpit, he said with solemnity and dignity, "Think well, speak well, and act well. Amen."

For the World's Crisis.

THE ITALIAN MISSION.

Dear Bro. Grant, and all Brn. and Srs. in Christ Jesus:—According to my obligations, I cheerfully send you again my monthly report closing with Oct. 1st. During the last month of September I have delivered thirty-six public lectures, besides having many private conversations with those who have come to me for instruction in the doctrines of our faith, visiting the people, and holding prayer meetings. The people in this new location (St. John) seem much interested in the doctrines of Christ's second coming and kingdom, and our meetings are very solemn and interesting. Hundreds testify that what I preach is truth and truth only. I hope that many will show their love of the truth by obedience to it, and that Christ at his coming will find many of the Vodois martyrs, who will be the "first fruits unto God and to the Lamb." By the grace of God, even Catholics treat us with kindness and respect, and listen attentively to our preaching. I am very happy in having the privilege of preaching again to my dear European brethren, and especially in teaching them the pure doctrines of the gospel instead of the mixture of truth and error which I ignorantly announced in former years.

We are more than ever convinced that our coming here was in accordance with the will of God, and we believe that you, dear American brethren and sisters, who assisted us so liberally to reach this harvest field, will be abundantly rewarded and blest of Heaven; and your christian kindness will be remembered by us with gratitude till we meet in that happy land where we shall enjoy the society of each other and of our dear Savior for ever.

To the present time we have had no public opposition from any source; it may be because we preach the Bible and the Bible only; and they, professing to believe in its sacred teachings, know not how to assail us. We have have been, and will still, by the grace of God, be very careful to preach only what is clearly taught by the inspired Word, and to influence our hearers to become christians first of all.

As an ambassador of the Prince of peace, we wish to beware of every thing that will cause unnecessary dissension, and add to the confusion that unfortunately already exists among the people of God. We have however no reason to suppose that the national Vodois ministers and "consistory" have any sympathy with our mission; for with sadness of heart we are compelled to say that they seem to have but very little regard for the spiritual welfare of the people. Early Sunday morning the children are taught the catechism, and the churches are open on that day between ten and twelve o'clock A. M.; and there are no other religious services during the week, no prayer or social meetings of any kind; the people seem quite ignorant in regard to such assemblies. But with the assistance of God, we are trying to awaken them to new spiritual life and activity.

We have already opened a Bible class, and hope that God will bless it to the good of many children and youth. We are very thankful to Bro. Grant for sending us all the numbers of the Crisis from the first of May, and to Bro. Himes for all the numbers of the Voice of the West, and we cherish the hope of seeing also, ere long, the "Advent Herald" and "Advent Review." Separated as we are from all the brethren and sisters of like precious faith, it is very refreshing to read your communications in the papers and learn what you are doing for the advancement of this cause which lies so near our heart which we are laboring with you to forward.

We acknowledge with much gratitude the following donations to the Italian mission during the past month: From Bro. C. A. Thorp, Leeds, Eng., two pounds sterling; and from Dr. Sandel, Kingdom of Wurtemberg, Germany, 20 fr. May kind Heaven reward them abundantly for their very timely christian offerings. Dear Brn. and Srs., pray for us, as we do for you.

Your faithful Bro. in the vineyard of the Lord, M. B. Czechowski.

La Tour Pelice, via. Turin, Italy, Oct. 1st, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

WINTER CAMPAIGN.

MODE OF OPERATION.

It is time for the winter campaign to commence, and a few suggestions may not be amiss. There are many places where a few poor sheep are crying for help in vain. Suppose you make an effort on this wise: see how many in your vicinity will pledge a certain sum to sustain a protracted meeting from four to six days.

While I am writing there is an effort being made in the mountains of North Adams as follows: The church on meeting appoint two suitable persons to canvass the place, and get pledges. Some pledge one dollar, some two, and tell how many they will board and lodge, etc. Some do not pledge, but will keep two during the meeting. That is good. Some cousins agree to attend and pay, if hobby riding is kept out of the meetings. Another says, "I will board three, if I can get such as I know have come to labor for our good cause; but I will not slave myself, as I have done, for lazy pretenders, who make it a rule to attend all such meetings to get their board and horse-keeping, and do nothing for God's cause,—come to visit and see how the work is going," etc. Well, I do not blame you, sister; who can?

Now, brethren, if you get up a meeting, first start your pledges, at least one half what you need, select your preacher to take charge; to save confusion and strife invite such to come as will work, and no others, and God will work with you. Then will be the time to collect the other half you need for the expenses of the meeting. Nearly all these isolated places can get up a protracted meeting, unless you are cursed with most of your number being five to ten cent professors; if so, apply to outsiders that have got souls, and God will help you. H. Munger.

For the World's Crisis.

A GOOD COOK STOVE

Is a good thing. It ought to be known to all whom it may concern, that Morrison and Colwell, 205 River St., Troy, N. Y., sell to clergymen of all denominations their splendid "Home Comfort Stove" at wholesale prices, which is twenty per cent off the regular retail price. It is a very superior stove, and not a whit behind "Stewart's," "The Pride of the West," or, the "Good Samaritan." Send for their Circulars, pamphlets and terms, brethren in the ministry, if you are buying a cook stove. This is Pro publico bono. D. T. T.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, Oct. 25, 1864.

A WRONG IMPRESSION.

We are sorry to learn that a wrong impression has been made upon the minds of some who were not at the last meeting of the "Advent Christian Association," held at the Wilbraham campmeeting, Aug. 23d, 24th, 25th, 1864. This has arisen from a misapprehension of the object to be accomplished by said Association, which is simply to take care of the publication interests intrusted to its care. In other words, it is solely a business Association, and not an ecclesiastical one; consequently, it does not require its members to subscribe to any articles of faith in order to belong to it. All that is required is, that the members be preachers, or delegates from churches "CO-OPERATING" with the objects of the society.

In case a portion of the members of any business association separate themselves from a new body, antagonistic to the one they left, it needs no argument to show that it would be contrary to all business regulations for the members of either society to interfere in their respective business meetings; for as the majority must rule, the larger body could vote all the funds and other business matters out of the hands of the others, and appropriate them as they pleased, and thus destroy the business of the smaller association. Such a course is never taken by business men, and all such action would be illegal.

No members of any business association are ever allowed to vote in the business meetings of another. Suppose, for instance, that a portion of the members of a manufacturing company became dissatisfied with the management of the business, and withdraw and form a new company; would any one claim that they had a right after that act to vote in the business meetings of the company they had left? The question admits of but one answer. This is precisely the principle on which the "Advent Christian Association" acted at its last annual meeting, at Wilbraham, when it decided that it would not be proper for the members of the "Life and Advent Union," to vote in their business meetings.

A copy of the foregoing has been forwarded to the Herald of Life, for publication. We trust the kindness of Bro. Storrs will allow its insertion.

THE FIRST KINGS OF PERSIA.

We have always found a difficulty in harmonizing the kings of Persia, as given in history, with the Bible record, till we read Bro. Thurman's chronology, which has set our mind at rest on the subject, as it has on many other points that were before in a state of confusion. The more we examine his work, the more we are delighted and instructed. We read the Bible now, on the subject of Chronology, with the same feelings as do those who first find that the Bible means what it says in relation to the sleep of the dead and the destruction of the wicked. The crooked ways are made straight.

We will now present what appears to be a correct view of the subject, relating to the first four kings of Persia.

In Dan. 5: 30, 31, we read, "In that night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain; and Darius the Median took the kingdom, being about threescore and two years old. This event marks the end of the Babylonian kingdom, and the beginning of the Medo-Persian kingdom, and the end of the seventy years' service of the Jews to the kings of Babylon. According to Bro. Thurman's chronology, the death of Belshazzar took place about the 10th of the fifth month, B. C. 491.

"Darius the Median," called also Cyaxares, was the uncle of Cyrus, and reigned with Cyrus about two years. At the death of Darius, B. C. 488, Cyrus reigned alone for seven years. Ptolemy makes the reign of Cyrus nine years, but it is evident that he reckons from the death of Belshazzar, including the joint reign of Darius and Cyrus. Such cases frequently occur in chronology, where a king has a joint reign, with another king, before his sole reign. It is reasonable to believe that Cyrus did not give his commandment for the rebuilding of Jerusalem till after the death of Darius, when he became sole king of the Medes and Persians. Says Xenophon:—"At the conclusion of the first year of Darius, Cyrus assembled his army together at Babylon, and undertook the expedition in which he is reported to have subdued all those nations which lie from the entrance into Syria, as far as the Red Sea." We think Ezra does not commence the reign of Cyrus before the conquest. For where he speaks of "the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia" (Ezra 1: 1), Cyrus says:—The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth."—Ezra 1: 2. According to Xenophon, Cyrus reigned seven years from the acquisition of his empire.

At the beginning of the sole reign of Cyrus, he issued "the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem," on the 10th of the fifth month, B. C. 488. The object of this commandment, as stated by Cyrus, was "that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled" (Ezra 1: 1), which reads as follows:—"After seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10. The Lord says by the prophet Isaiah, "And Cyrus shall perform all my pleasure; even saying to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be built; and to the temple, Thy foundation shall be laid." Isa. 44: 28. Josephus says:—When Cyrus read this, having an earnest desire to fulfill what was so written, he called for the most eminent Jews that were at Babylon, and gave them leave to go back to their own country, and to rebuild their city Jerusalem."—Josephus' Ant. b. xi, c. i. s. 2.

Before the death of Cyrus, Cambyses, his son, was associated with him, while his father was engaged in the Scythian war. When speaking of this war, Herodotus says:—"Cyrus then formally delegated his authority to his son Cambyses." It is evident also from the writings of Xenophon that Cambyses was associated with his father some time before his death; for at the close of his life he said to his son, "Do you, therefore, Cambyses, hold the kingdom as allotted you by the gods, and by me."—Xen. p. 48.

According to Herodotus, Cambyses reigned "seven years and five months." Cyrus is said to have died in the fifth year of Cambyses, B. C. 481. According to Josephus, the one whom the Greeks called Cambyses is the one called Artaxerxes by Ezra, 4: 11. Herodotus says this Cambyses of the Greeks was the son of Cyrus, and so was the Artaxerxes of Ezra.—Ezra 4: 15; 1 Esdras 6: 21.

According to Thurman's chronology, Cambyses—Artaxerxes—commenced his reign in April, B. C. 486, and "died about the 8th of September, B. C. 479," about two years after the death of his father Cyrus. The date of the death of Cambyses is made to appear quite certain from the records of eclipses. According to Ptolemy, an eclipse of the moon happened in "the seventh year of Cambyses." Bro. Thurman shows that "there was a total eclipse at Babylon on Mar. 14 at 32 m. after five in the morning B. C. 479." Furguson says:—"An eclipse of the moon was followed by the death of Cambyses." According to Thurman, "there was a total eclipse of the moon at Babylon on September 7th, at 15m. after nine in the afternoon, B. C. 479."

We come next to "the reign of the Magus." Herodotus says:—"After the death of Cambyses, the Magus, by favor of his name, pretending to be Smerdias, the son of Cyrus, reigned in security during the seven months which completed the eighth of the reign of Cambyses."—Herod. b. iii. c. 67. Ezra calls this Magus "Ahashuerus."—Ezra 4: 6. This brings us to the spring of B. C. 478, for the beginning of the reign of Darius, the next king of Persia. Herodutus says he was "the son of Hystaspes." According to Josephus, the temple was completed in his reign. This is not "Darius the Median," who was associated with Cyrus, and died B. C. 488.

On account of the opposition of "the adversaries of Judah" (Ezra 4: 1), when Cambyses (called Artaxerxes in Ezra 4: 7) was about leaving for his "expedition against Egypt," he gave a commandment that the Jews should stop building the city, until they heard from him again; that is, on his return. "Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem. So it ceased unto the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia."—Ezra 4: 24. "Then the prophets, Haggai the prophet, and Zechariah the son of Iddo, prophesied unto the Jews that were in Judah and Jerusalem. . . . Then rose up Zerubbabel . . . and Jeshua . . . and began to build the house of God which is at Jeruralem; and with them were the prophets of God helping them."—Ezra 5: 1, 2. The enemies of the Jews gathered around again and said, "Who commanded you to build this house, and to make up these walls?"—Ezra 5: 9. The Jews answered,—"In the first year of Cyrus, the king of Babylon, the same king Cyrus made a decree to build the house of God."—Ezra 5: 13. The Jews' enemies said:

"Now therefore, if it seem good to the king, let there be search made in the king's treasure house, which is there at Babylon, whether it be so, that a decree was made of Cyrus the king to build this house of God at Jerusalem, and let the king send his pleasure to us concerning this matter. Then Darius the king made a decree, and search was made in the house of the rolls, where the treasures were laid up in Babylon. And there was found at Achmetha, in the palace that is in the province of the Medes, a roll, and therein was a record thus written: In the first year of Cyrus the king, the same Cyrus the king made a decree concerning the house of God at Jerusalem, Let the house be builded, the place where they offered sacrifices, and let the foundations thereof be strongly laid."—Ezra 5: 17; 6: 1–3.

When this decree of Cyrus was shown to Darius, he said: "Now therefore, Tatnai, governor beyond the river, Shethar-boznai, and your companions the Apharsachites, which are beyond the river, be ye far from thence: Let the work of this house of God alone; let the governor of the Jews and the elders of the Jews build this house of God in his place."—Ezra 6: 6–7.

The decree of Darius was obeyed "speedily," "and the elders of the Jews builded, and they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. And they builded, and finished it, according to the commandment of Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes king of Persia. And this house was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king."—Ezra 6: 14, 15. The house was finished Feb. 15th, B. C. 472. No one would give a commandment to build it after it "was finished;" hence we are shut up to the conclusion that the decree of Cyrus, given B. C. 488, is the only one that can fulfill the prophecy.

In Haggai we read:—"In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, came the word of the Lord by Haggai the prophet unto Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest. . . . Then spake Haggai the Lord's messenger in the Lord's message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the Lord. And the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and did work in the house of the Lord of hosts, their God, in the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king."—Hag. 1: 1, 13–15; All this is in harmony with Ezra 4: 24,—"Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem. So it ceased unto the second year of the Darius the king of Persia."

According to Thurman's chronology, Darius' sole reign was about twenty years, which would bring us to B. C. 458, when he was succeeded by Xerxes, who reigned about twenty-one years, till B. C. 438, when Artaxerxes, his son, began his sole reign. Bro. Thurman proves by eclipses, that from the time Darius was made governor of Persia, about B. C. 493, to his death was thirty-six years, as stated by Herodotus, who says Darius "reigned thirty-six years, in all." But his sole reign was only twenty years, after the death of Cambyses.

This Artaxerxes of the Greeks was the Ahasuerus who was the husband of Esther. In profane history we find no king called Ahasuerus; but in the Bible there are three. The first was the king of the Medes, called by the Greeks Astyages; "the second was the impostor, Smerdis the 'Magian,'" who followed Cambyses; "and the third was the husband of Esther." The last is distinguished from the other two by being denominated the "Ahasuerus which reigned from India even unto Ethiopia over an hundred and seven and twenty provinces."—Est. 1: 1. The Greek copy of Esther calls the same one Artaxerxes that is called Ahasuerus in the Hebrew, which was the son of Xerxes, and husband of Esther. Josephus tells us the same.

It appears from Ezra 7: 1, 8, 9, that Ezra went up to Jerusalem in the seventh year of the king Artaxerxes, or Ahasuerus, and arrived there "on the first day of the fifth month," which was "Friday, July 31st, N. S., B. C. 431.

According to Nehemiah 1: 1; 2: 1–3, while he was "in Shusan the palace," "which is in the province of Elam," he heard that there had been a fire at Jerusalem which had burnt the gates, and some portion of the walls were broken down. This caused him sadness, which was observed by the king, who urged him to tell the cause. This resulted in his obtaining a permit to go up to Jerusalem and assist in repairing "the wall of Jerusalem." He aroused all the Jews to the work on the wall, which was completed "even in troublous times." (Dan. 9: 25.) Nehemiah says, "Every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon."—Neh. 4: 17. "The wall was finished in the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul," (Neh. 6: 15) in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes, which, according to Thurman, was on Wednesday, Aug. 28th, B. C. 406. At this point he begins the sixty-two weeks of Dan. 9: 26.

We will now give a brief recapitulation of what we have been over relative to the kings of Persia. Cyrus reigned jointly with "Darius the Median" about two years, and commenced his sole reign B. C. 488, at which time he gave "the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," and the seventy years of "the captivity" ended. After this, Cyrus reigned seven years. Cambyses, who succeeded him, was associated with him some five years before his death, which took place B. C. 481.

Cambyses reigned "seven years and five months," and is called Artaxerxes in Ezra 4: 11.

"Smerdis the Magian" succeeded him, as an imposter, for seven months. He is called "Ahasuerus" in Ezra 4: 6. As we have before stated Cambyses, or Artaxerxes, was urged by "the adversaries of Judah" to stop the building of Jerusalem. And as he was then about to leave on his expedition against Egypt, he granted their request, and directed the Jews to stop building, till he should give "another commandment."—Ezra 4: 21. On his return from Egypt, he passed through the land of Judah, and gave them the privilege of going on with their work. But he died "at Damascus," and the "adversaries of Judah" wrote immediately to "Ahasuerus ('Smerdis the Magian') an accusation against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem."—Ezra 4: 6. But Cambyses on his dying bed, requested the Persians to take the kingdom from the usurper, and "made Darius take an oath, saying, 'Build Jerusalem in the day when thou comest to thy kingdom."—1 Esdras 4: 43.

Darius succeeded "Smerdis the Magian" B. C. 478, and reigned twenty years till B. C. 458; when he was succeeded by Xerxes, who reigned twenty-one years, till B. C. 438, and was succeeded by Artaxerxes, (Ahasuerus,) who reigned about thirty-two years, till the wall was completed B. C. 406.

"MESSIAH THE PRINCE."

In Dan. 9: 25 we read, "Know, therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks." When do we reach "Messiah the Prince?" at his birth, baptism, or resurrection? All these points have been taken by different writers, but all are not right. It may seem strange that any one should fix on his baptism or resurrection, if they had carefully examined the Scriptures; but this has been done in order to harmonize the discordant chronology of Ptolomy's canon. We may now wonder that the authority of a heathen astronomer, of the second century, should have become the standard for all systems of chronology till we come to Bro. Thurman's; but thus it has been. This can be accounted for only on the principle that the whole matter was to be "sealed till the time of the end."

After a little thought, and even a slight examination of the Scriptures, we think all must be satisfied that when it is said the sixty-nine weeks reach "unto the Messiah the Prince," that his birth is meant, and not his baptism, or resurrection. We will here quote a few words from Bro. Thurman on this point:

"'When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman' (Gal. 4: 4,)—not of water.

For Christ to become the complete and perfect Messiah, so as to fulfill the whole law, it was not only necessary for him to come into the world and die; but he must be made under the law. What places him under the law,—his baptism, or his birth? It was also necessary for him to have a corporeal body. (Heb. 10: 5.) Which gave him his body, his baptism, or his birth?

Had the angel informed Daniel that the sixty-nine weeks were to reach unto his baptism, we would extend them there. But since he says emphatically, to the Messiah the Prince, it would be a violation of all rules for understanding the meaning of authors to say they ought to reach thirty years beyond the time of his actual coming,—at which time he was declared to be the Savior, the Christ, the Lord (Luke 2: 12.) The prophets, in speaking of his coming, always point to his birth, thus: 'Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given.' Isa. 9: 6."

We think nothing further need be said to show beyond all doubt, that when the Savior was born, then commenced the history of "Messiah the Prince," and at that point ended the sixty-nine weeks.

ITALIAN NEWS.

The Italian news is increasing in interest. We may expect stirring tidings from Italy within twelve months. The Pope may well say, as he has done, "Already the mene, mene, tekel, upharsin is written for me." The Emperor of France now talks in earnest about withdrawing his troops from Rome, which will open the way for her destruction. The grand scenes in earth's closing drama are at hand. Praise the Lord for the bright prospect for speedy deliverance.

The following appeared in the Boston Journal of Oct. 19th, 1864:

"Both Austria and Italy are pushing forward warlike preparations with great vigor, as if trouble were mutually apprehended in the spring.

Cardinal Antonelli's dispatch to the Papal Nuncio at Paris shows that the Pope is not at all pleased with the new Franco-Italian treaty.

His subjects, however, the people of Rome, are of another mind. The tidings of the withdrawal of the army of occupation spread (we are told) 'like wildfire through the city;' upwards of ten thousand persons assembled in the principal promenades, and gave vent to their gladness in shouts of 'Long live the Emperor Napoleon,' 'Prosperity to Italy;' 'Long live Victor Emmanuel;' the French officers were embraced in the streets, and thousands of excited people surrounded the residence of General de Montebello, the commandant of the French troops in Rome; but not one shout was heard on behalf of the occupant of the Vatican.

Mazzini is said to be opposed to some of the terms of settlement, but Garibaldi favors the entire arrangement. Victor Emmanuel, whose ancestral repute is wholly associated with Turin, was grieved at the proposal for removing the capital to Florence, but when the determination of his ministers was reported to him, he is said to have exclaimed, 'Very well! when I shall have conducted the Italian people to Rome I will abdicate, and return to become a simple citizen of Turin.'"

IMPORTANT TO SUBSCRIBERS IN THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Now is the time for subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to save money. "How?"

By settling up their accounts, and paying in advance, with gold or Provincial bank bills.

A Canadian one dollar bill is worth two dollars here; and, FOR EVERY SUCH $1.00 SENT US, WE WILL GIVE $2.00 CREDIT, more or less, according to the current rates of premium.

The premium on gold and on Canadian bills, is falling. Not long since, the value of $1.00 of such money was as high as $2.87; it is now about $2.00. In a few weeks, it will doubtless fall very much below that, and a few more Union victories may bring it down to par.

Now is the time. Improve it! Pay up your indebtedness, with half the amount due; and, for two years in advance, with the price for one year; or, for one year, with the price for six months. Don't let the opportunity pass You may never have another.

Tuesday, Oct. 25th.—Gold is selling to-day for $2.20; Canada Bank bills, $2.15.

For the World's Crisis.

A NEW MOVE.

Bro. Grant:—I have been for six months trying a new move. It is this. I got Bro. Hastings to stereotype me a little revival Hymn Book, as cheap as possible, which he soon accomplished. When I go into a place to hold a protracted meeting I give a good many of these away to all that come to meeting. This attracts many to come and learn of me the tunes, and then they remain to hear the Word and are caught.

But I have now used up all of my spare money. I have been praying for more. I can pray earnestly, because it is not for myself but the cause of Jesus. I will thank God and any friends who will send me now any amount from five cents to fifty dollars. Will you, dear friends, help my Master?

Direct all letters to Edwin Burnham, Newburyport, Mass. P. O. Box 131.

Edwin Burnham.

For the World's Crisis.

I LIKE THE PAPER.

1st. Because it is not a war paper. 2d. Because it instructs me. 3d. Because it is spiced with variety. 4th. Because it heralds the coming of the Just One. 5th. Because it denounces Spiritualism, and boldly affirms that the dead know nothing.

My prayer to God is, that he may open the hearts and pockets of the brethren that the Crisis may be a bold herald of truth, and untrammelled by debt, and still continue to go forth in the name of our great Captain, and warn the world of coming judgment, as well as cheer the hearts of brethren till he kingdom comes. Yours in hope of deliverance soon, W. H. Berryman.

For the World's Crisis.

BOOK ON BAPTISM.

I wish to say to friends that my book on Baptism is not yet published. I hope it will be out soon. Some are ordering it. I enter their names, and will supply them as soon as the work is from the press. I have taken the trouble to select the most important and authentic facts on the points of the history of sprinkling, and think we shall have a work worth reading and circulating, both for its Scriptural arguments and historic curiosities.

I. C. Wellcome.

☞ H. L. Hastings' collected works, comprising those he has written and edited, in five neat volumes, over 1200 pages. The Bible Student's Library, elegantly and uniformly bound, sent by mail, postpaid, for $4.50. Paper covers $2.25. For sale at this office, and by the author. See catalogue.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$387.11
H. P. Holton pd	2.00
A friend pd	.25
Rufus Pike pd	10.00
A. E. Clark pd	1.50
A friend pd	1.00
H. Bailey pd	.30
Sarah pd	.25
Sidney Hall pd	5.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$163.15
M. S. Pepper pd	5.00
W. F. Collier pd	1.30
E. Milcher pd. (for poor minister in Pa.)	1.00
A. B. pd	1.00
Daniel Beers pd	2.20
Wm. Nichols pd	.50
O. M. and S. A. Gilman pd	3.00
Mrs. M. J. Taylor pd	.50
"Wicasset" pd. (for the poor widow with five children)	2.50
"Groveland" pd. (for aged Bro. in N. H.)	1.00
Mrs. S. B. H. pd. (for Sr. in Wor. Co.)	2.50
"Philadelphia" pd	5.00
S. Newton pd	1.00
E. J. F. pd	1.25
L. A. W. pd	2.50
Mrs. C. Warner pd	1.00
Sarah pd	.25
I. A. D. pd	1.00
Mrs. C. B. pd	1.00
H. H. pd	2.50

THE BANK OF THE LORD'S POOR.

A new bank, just started. Who will be a stockholder?

"What is the Bank for?"

To provide the Lord's poor with bread—bread of life. Bread, made of pure flour, carefully sifted, well kneaded, leavened with the Spirit of the Holy One, sweetened with love, moulded into loaves large and small, well baked, of good weight and excellent flavor, for the health, strength, comfort and life, of the Lord's needy poor, and carried weekly by Uncle Sam's servants from the World's Crisis office to their doors, free of charge. Will you be a stockholder?

"I'll think of it."

Do! It will pay. If you are interested in the prosperity and usefulness of the Crisis, and have a heart open to the cry of the poor, you will think of it. None of our benevolent operations NEEDS HELP so much as this. Brethren are beginning to see it. Nearly a hundred have taken shares in the Poor Fund Stock already. The Capital is small as yet, only $205.00, but it is daily growing larger.

Who else will become a shareholder in the Bank of the Lord's Poor, and wait for his full reward till the Great Day of Dividends? "An hundred-fold now in this time, and in the world to come eternal life." Each share is $2.50; but shares may be taken for any sums from 25 cents to $100.00. Who will take one, two, three, five, ten, or twenty shares? W. B. H.

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

From a Sister in Maine.

We have been trying to get something to pay what we owe on the Crisis, but have not been able. We are poor; yet, if I could sell my best bonnet, and wear a shaker, I would, rather than have the Crisis stopped. I have been an invalid eighteen years, confined to my bed a great part of the time. I feel that it is through the mercies of God that I still live. I never heard an Advent sermon until four years ago. I gladly embraced the good news, and rejoice in my heart this morning that I did so. I do not know but it is asking too much to ask you to send the paper longer without pay; but how can I get along without its weekly visits? I should feel lonely and sad. I prize it next to my Bible. May the Lord bless you in its publication, and give you wisdom from above to direct, is the prayer of your unworthy sister,

Mary ——.

From a Brother in ——.

I am very sorry that I owe for my paper, and cannot pay. I am at the present time very poor, almost blind, in feeble health, and able to do but little. I saw wood in order to get something to eat for six. I have one that is entirely blind. As for myself I am destitute of clothing. I have one pair of cotton pants that I stand in, partly torn and patched, and that is all I have, except one pair that I keep to wear when I go to meeting. As for shirts, I have not got one that is fit for a mortal being to wear. My food is corn-meal bread, and salt fish. We drink no tea, coffee, nor rum, use no sugar, and neither chew nor smoke. I enumerate these things to let you know how well off I am. I am not discontented, but thank God that I live in these days. John ——, Jr.

A Sister in Connecticut.

Sister M. writes in her behalf as follows:—"Sr. A. H. highly appreciates the paper, but she cannot pay. I think she is worthy to receive it from the Poor Fund. She is a widow, with five small children, has but one arm, having lost the right one at the shoulder joint when in infancy; is a working woman; does almost all kinds of work, but high prices for provisions forbid her sending any money at this time. Her husband died in the United States service, but his term has expired, and her bounty ceases. If you think you can afford her the paper, please continue to the same address. If not, please discontinue.

From a Brother in Pennsylvania.

I am poor and unable to pay for the Crisis. I have had my house burnt, with all my things, except the clothes on my back; and it will be a great favor to have the paper continued, if you think you can afford it. I have had it so long I hardly know how to content myself without it. I am seventy-seven years old last July. I am almost deaf, but can see to read with glasses pretty well.

Lucius ——.

Another writes from Maine:—

"As I have long been on the Poor List of the recipients of the best christian publication in America, it becomes my duty as well as my privilege to say to you that I am truly thankful before the Lord for the favor thus conferred on myself and family and neighbors. I expect the Lord in whom I trust will not only continue that great blessing to me; but will soon open a way for me to pay all that is due for the same."

Stop! Stop! Stop!

Hear that cry of the poor! What do they cry for? For bread—for the bread of life—for spiritual food. They are poor; they are hungry, and must be fed. Who will hear their cry? God speaks by his servant and says:—"Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard." Come, brethren, let us hear, and hear now. Unless you do hear, and act, too, it will be said to you at last, "I was hungry, and you fed me not." "When, Lord?" "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these my (poor) brethren, ye did it not to me." O, remember, God cares for the poor. So shall we if we have his spirit. Look and see how many hundred poor are crying for the bread of life, which has been carried weekly to their doors, done up in the Crisis. And now they fear it may be necessary to close their store-house and stop their supplies. What shall be done? The poor must have it, whether the rich do or not. Would you let your brother, or sister, or Jesus, go one whole week without food, while you have more than you need, and much that is wasted? You want the Crisis; you need it; so do I; so do the poor. If the Crisis office can not meet its expenses, and at the same time send the Crisis free to the poor, I will tell you how it can be done. Let me be told through the Crisis, as we now are, who lives in my vicinity that is poor and wants the Crisis, and he shall have it, and it shall be paid for. Let the same thing be done in every place at once, and in a few days the work is done, all the poor supplied, none of us made any the poorer by it, a great tax taken from the Crisis office, and a great amount saved to do good with in other ways.

Now, don't say,—"I will wait and see if it is needed, and then do it." You know it is needed, and you can do it, and more still. Three times as many poor (whether really so or not) might read "our paper," and in this way a great many more of these voiceless preachers would be preaching every week.

Let love work. Here is a good chance to invest. I can think of Bro. A. B., and W. C., and T. W., and J. H., and Sr. A., and lots of others, that are very careful to make good investments, and get good stock. Here is a chance:—"Lend to the Lord." Are you afraid to invest? If you are, keep it, and bring it to the judgment, done up in a napkin, or all cankered! You can have your choice.

Don't lay aside this paper till the work is done; only just long enough to get the pen and write to the office that you will take one of the 800 shares in the Poor Fund Stock; or two, if you have more to invest. Do it now, and do it cheerfully. A. M. Higgins.

Palmer, Mass.

Vermont Free List.

It is proposed that the churches and brethren, in each town and county, do what they can to supply their own poor with the Crisis for the coming year. Will the brethren in the following places take the matter in hand, and see what they can do?

Andover	1	Mt. Holly ?	1
Brattleboro	2	Montpelier	1
Braintree (East)	1	Poultney	2
Bethel (East)	1	Pownal Centre	1
Bridgewater	3	Plymouth	1
Castleton	2	Roxbury (East)	1
Calais	1	Rutland	6
Derby Line	4	Richford Mills	1
Hinesburgh	1	Springfield (No.)	2
Jamaica	1	Snows Store	1
Lincoln	1	Waterbury	1
Mc Indoes Falls	1	Williamsvale	1
		Total	37

Rhode Island Free List.

Apponaug	2	Knightsville	1
Ashaway	1	Leonard Corner	1
Chepachet	1	Mohegan	1
Caroline Mills	1	Mt. Vernon	1
Fiskville	1	Natic	2
Foster (No.)	1	Neuse Neck Hill	1
Foster (So.) ?	2	Providence	1
Greenwich (East)	1	Rockland	1
Harmony	1	Rocky Brook	1
		Total	21

THE PLAN.

A brother in New Hampshire writes:—

"In the New Hampshire Free List I notice one in ——. If you will have the kindness to drop me a line giving the name of the free subscriber, I will see that the money is sent you, if he or she is poor and unable to pay. If able to pay, I will let you know, that it may be discontinued.

"The plan you have adopted, I think, is an excellent one; for, by this means, the brethren in each town can provide for their own poor." L. J.

If the brethren in each town, or county, will avail themselves of this plan, as Bro. J. has done, the expense for the free list the year to come will soon be wiped out. Some have done so already, and we hope to hear from more. Let brethren and churches in every town and county, take the matter in hand, and see what can be done.

ITALIAN MISSION.

A friend pd	1.00
H. P. Holton pd	2.00
Christian church in Castleton, Vt. pd	20.00
A Sister pd	5.00
John Lyle pd	1.30
Rufus Pike pd	10.00
H. W. Norville pd	2.00
O. M. and S. A. Gilman pd	5.00
Dr. Eaton pd. ($2 in gold)
Sarah pd	1.00

☞ "The Signs of the Times," by H. L. Hastings, is one of the ablest works to be found on this subject. Price, in elegant cloth, $1.00, postpaid; paper covers, 50 cts. Those who want ten copies to give away, or send to preachers, can have them in paper covers, sent to any address, for $3.33. Or any person sending $1.00, can have three copies sent, postpaid, to any three ministers or inquirers he may select. Address all orders to Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

ITEMS.

☞ In Sweden they send children who are afflicted with whooping cough to the gas works, in order that the change of the atmosphere may cure them. In lime producing districts a similar custom prevails—the smell of the burning lime acting as a curative.

☞ At St. Petersburg, Russia, lately, a Catholic church tumbled to the ground when it was crowded with worshipers, and as many as 7000 persons were buried beneath the ruins. Not one was saved alive.

☞ The doctors in Hanover county, Va., have this new tariff of fees: For all visits of five miles or less, $30; all distances over, $2 per mile; night visits double rate of day visits; consultation fee, $40; visit, extra; obstetrical cases, $100 each.

☞ In the reign of James I., when a person was invited out to dinner he took his own knife with him, and on entering the house of his host, found a whetstone behind the door, on which to sharpen it.

☞ Paris exporters are complaining terribly of the great falling off in American exportations. The shipments have not been so meagre during the past ten years as they are at present.

☞ There is a horse chesnut tree standing in Albany that is in full bloom, the blossoms being as large and numerous as though it were summer.

☞ A French Chemist has discovered that a depressing effect upon the action of the heart is caused by smoking.

☞ The refugees and freedmen in Missouri who will need government aid this winter number five thousand.

☞ A large portion of Moscow has been burned up. Two hundred and fifty houses went in one night.

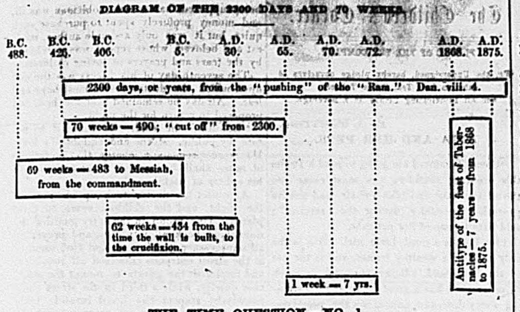
☞ Mr. Robbins, an old Chicago merchant, died the other day, leaving $3,000,000 to his heirs.

☞ The total amount of national currency issued to October 8, is $37,515,830.

☞ A reporters' pew has been established at a fashionable church in London.

☞ The cotton mills of Providence are suspending operations.

DIAGRAM OF THE 2300 DAYS AND 70 WEEKS.



THE TIME QUESTION.—NO. 1.

Thurman's chronological arrangement is destined to inaugurate a new interest on the time question. The clear light of truth is beginning to shine on the 2300 days and the weeks of Daniel. Without here arguing the question fully, we present the above diagram of the 2300 days and 70 weeks (based on Thurman's Chronology), with a few notes of explanation.

EXPLANATION.—1. The 2300 days are commenced with the "pushing of the Ram against Daniel's people," after its two horns were already "HIGH"—after its conquest of "all the kingdoms of the earth" under Cyrus, (Ezra 1: 2); therefore the "pushing" referred to was not that of national conquest, but against Daniel's people "westward, northward, and southward,"—not eastward, for there were no Jews in that direction,—which pushing took place when the king wrote letters "to the governors that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province," and sent by posts into all the king's provinces, to "destroy or kill, and to cause to perish, ALL JEWS, both young and old, little children and women, IN ONE DAY." (Esther 3: 12, 13.) This bold push, though not executed in the threatened extermination, took place, according to Thurman's Chronology, B. C. 426, thus ending the 2300 days in 1875, leaving seven years from 1868 to 1875, for the antitype of the feast of Tabernacles by the saints after Christ appears, before entering the purified earth.

The line of dots B. C. 426 marks the beginning of the 2300 days.

2. The seventy weeks, or 490 years, being "cut off" from the 2300, must begin at the same time (see line of dots) B. C. 426, reaching to A. D. 65, where the ruin of Daniel's people commenced. The time allotted them as a people terminated with the beginning of the war that ultimated in their ruin, beginning A. D. 65.

3. The sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, do not begin with the seventy weeks, they being a separate measurement, having no connection with the seventy weeks, but beginning at the "going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem"; and, in spite of all that has been said upon this point, there is but one such commandment on record, referred to in the following language: "Thus saith the Lord . . . CYRUS he is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure: saying to JERUSALEM, thou shalt be built," (Isa. 44: 28), "he (Cyrus) shall build my city, and shall let go my captives." Isa. 45: 13. If God declared that Cyrus should build Jerusalem, and that Cyrus should say to Jerusalem, "Thou shalt be built," the question is settled. A commandment to do a thing cannot be issued after the work is done; therefore if Cyrus was to do this work, no commandment later than his day can be meant. This cuts off all other claims. In the first of Ezra this commandment is recorded, being given in "the first year of Cyrus," which Thurman's Chronology locates B. C. 488. From this point, sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, reach the birth of Christ, five years before the beginning of the Christian era, which all admit to be the true year of his birth.

4. After giving a measurement of sixty-nine weeks from the commandment under Cyrus to the Messiah, the prophet adds: "The street shall be built again, and the WALL, even in troublous times"; from this point, that is from the time the "wall" shall be "built," Daniel gives another distinct measurement, namely: "After three score and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off" that is, after sixty-two weeks, or 434 years from the time the "wall" is "built." This was built in the 32d of Artaxerxes, or completed and dedicated then. (Neh. 12: 27–30; 13: 6.) According to Thurman's Chronology this was B. C. 406. From B. C. 406, sixty-two weeks, or 434 years, terminate a few months before the crucifixion, which Thurman places A. D. 30, and fixes it there by the aid of Astronomy.

5. Daniel then proceeds: "The people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city [Jerusalem] and the sanctuary . . . and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he [the Roman Prince] shall confirm the covenant with many for one week," or seven years. God's covenant made with Moses not only specified blessings on condition of obedience, but also a curse in case of disobedience, according to all the "curses of the COVENANT that are written in the book of the law." (See 29th chapter of Deut.) Titus confirmed this covenant with that rebellious people just seven years to a day, from A. D. 65 to A. D. 72; and "in the midst of the week," or in the midst of this seven years' war, A. D. 70, the "sacrifice and oblation" literally ceased.

The foregoing are Thurman's views, and mine by adoption. Thank God for the light. Let every one read Thurman's Astronomical Chronology, contained in his "Sealed Book of Daniel Opened." It contains a mass of truth. More anon. W. SHELDON.

Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

Correspondence.

From Bro. D. M Kintor.

BRO. GRANT:—Having just returned from a four days' meeting, I wish to say a few words to my pilgrim brethren scattered abroad, and to do so I must ask a place in our beloved medium, "the Crisis."

On the 24th day of September I rode fifteen miles, preached two discourses, and three came forward and confessed, and on the next morning (Lord's day) we assembled at an early hour on the banks of a pleasant stream where they confirmed their faith by being buried with Christ in baptism, and arising again to walk in newness of life. We continued the meeting until Tuesday evening, baptizing in all six willing souls. It was a heavenly season for all, and the saints were "built up in the most holy faith." The brethren at this place are willing to forsake all for Christ, and are taking no part whatever in Cæsar's difficulties. This is the key to my success among them, and would all the professed followers of Jesus but "do likewise" sinners would again be seen to forsake their sins, flock to the standard of King Immanuel, and the religion of Jesus be revived to its primitive vitality.

The "Crisis" still comes to me laden with good things to cheer a poor weary pilgrim on his way to the kingdom of our dear Redeemer. God bless you and the dear loved ones scattered abroad.

We are having a great deal of trouble here again, and every one able to bear arms is called on to do so. I have refused, and I do not know what the consequence may be, although I "fear not what man can do unto me." Brethren, pray for me. Thank God, this age of crime and bloodshed is nigh its close, and we can but hope, watch and pray. Brethren, render unto Cæsar the things that belong unto him, but obey God rather than man.

Hoping to soon meet you and all the loved ones in the kingdom, I am, dear Bro., yours, waiting for the coming of Christ.

D. M. KINTER.

Kirksville, Mo., Oct. 1st.

From Sr. L. M. Collins.

DEARLY BELOVED:—In the midst of affliction I write a few lines to you. It may be my last, but be that as it may, I want you all to know that I am still holding on to the faith, determined not to let go, let what will come. I love you all. I love to read your articles in the "Crisis," from week to week. It has been a great comfort to me in my lonely hours, but I must give it up now, for I cannot pay for it. I have got nothing to pay with. Many of you will well recollect me, for I have spent many a happy hour with you in the old Granite State, and I wish that I was there now, that I could meet with you and hear you sing and pray.

I find none here of like precious faith. I have found some Methodists, one in particular, who has fallen in love with Bro. Hiram Munger, from reading his life, which I lent him. He was not satisfied with reading it once or twice, but made it his study. If I had the money to buy tracts with, I would buy some, and scatter them round here. I think they would do good. Brothers and Sisters, although I may never read your cheering letters in the "Crisis" any more, I hope that you will remember me and mine, in your prayers at all times. I am lonely and sad. My only son is in the army and has been missing ever since the battle at Monocacy. I have tried in vain to hear something about him. I can hardly compose my mind enough to write. Everything looks dark before me as far as temporal things are concerned, but I look forward to a glorious future, when poor folks will have no rent to pay, nor fire-wood to buy. Praise the Lord, the time is soon coming when we shall all go home to Father's House. From your waiting sister,

LYDIA M. COLLINS.

From Sr. I. Stevens.

BRO. GRANT:—Here are a few that love to listen to the word. I have reason to praise the Lord for ever hearing an Adventist preach. The first sermon I heard was one year ago last June, and since that time we have had two Conferences, one last winter, and one in June. We had a good season at our last Conference, and I believe the spirit is not gone yet.

Brn. Jordan, Libby and others have preached for us occasionally since last fall. They are faithful laborers in the vineyard of their Master. Many of their sermons will long be remembered by this people. Bro. Jordan preached here the 11th of Sept. He came to us in the spirit of his Master, and it was truly meat in due season. Some who were present that have not embraced this gospel hope, believed it to be truth, and wondered it had not been preached before.

Bro. J. Libby preached here last Sabbath. After the services three willing converts followed their Lord and Master in the delightful ordinance of baptism, one of whom was our own daughter. I felt that I could truly say, "What hath God wrought!"

We have a prayer-meeting every Sunday night, and although our numbers are few, we enjoy the meetings much. It is truly cheering to hear the young converts tell of their hopes in Jesus, and to hear them express their happiness in taking up their cross. We also have a weekly prayer-meeting, which we enjoy very much, and we would like to have all who profess to love God come and meet with us and receive the blessing. It seems strange that any who have an interest in the conversion of sinners can stay from such meetings.

I cannot tell you how much I love to read the Crisis. It is a welcome visitor in our family. May the brethren and sisters who write for it continue to do so. I love to read their letters. I enjoy this blessed hope of the gospel, and while the signs of the times indicate that we are living in the last days, I desire to live righteously, soberly, and godly, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Your sister, IRENE STEVENS.

Brighton Hill, Me.

From Bro. D. Newton.

BRO. GRANT:—I have read Bro. Czechowski's report, and heartily respond to his call for help. I hope our brethren and sisters will also lend a helping hand. It is an important mission. There the truth has been long trodden under foot, and the blood of saints has flowed in torrents. There the gospel of the kingdom should be preached. I trust we shall not only help him in money, but that our prayers shall go up to God, that he may be a faithful ambassador of Jesus Christ, and the instrument of bringing many souls into his fold. Yours, loving the appearing of Jesus,

DANA NEWTON.

COOKING WITHOUT FIRE.—M. Babinet, of the French Institute, has discovered the means of cooking without fire. He has just laid before the Academy the result of his experiments. His recipe is: Place your food in a black pot, covered with sundry panes of glass, and stand it in the sun. The water soon boils, and the food is said to be of better flavor than if cooked in the ordinary way.

☞ Extensive conflagrations, which have laid some towns in ruins and nearly destroyed others, have prevailed in Russia since April last. There have been four great fires in St. Petersburg. They are attributed to incendiaries, and much alarm exists.

Obituaries.

E. DODGE.

Died, in New Boston, N. H., Sept. 24th, 1864, of consumption, Bro. Edward Dodge, aged seventy years, six months and eight days.

He professed faith in Christ in 1834, and united with the Baptist church. In 1842 he embraced the blessed doctrine of the Lord's coming, and ever after endeavored to maintain a consistent course with his faith, and was willing to sacrifice for the precious cause of Christ. While in the Baptist church, he viewed the way straighter than the members generally lived, and felt it duty to bear testimony to that effect, which was not always received; but when he came to add to that the coming of the Judge to reckon with the unfaithful, it resulted in his excommunication from them. But as he approached his end, instead of feeling that he had talked the truth too straight, he felt that he had loved the world too well, and that it would be right to make a sacrifice for the truth to be once more faithfully presented to his friends and neighbors, and, agreeable to his dying request, Bro. J. Pinkham and the writer are now (Oct. 10th) holding meetings in the place with a prospect of good.

Our brother leaves a wife and other friends to feel their loss, but it may be truly said by those of them that love the Lord, that they sorrow not as others that have no hope, for they believe that he will live again.

The funeral was attended Sept. 27th, by Bro. J. Pinkham and the writer, by his request, when by the presentation of the truth, we think the most present were well satisfied that we have the true hope of the gospel. The Lord give sustaining grace, and bring friends to meet where death and the tomb will divide no more. T. G. SMITH.

THOMAS TEWKSBURY.

Died in the Lord, in Concord, N. H., Oct. 3d, 1864, our beloved Bro. Thomas Tewksbury, aged seventy-three years.

Bro. T. has been a patient sufferer for many years, having been afflicted with fever sore, which resulted in his death. But the grace of God, which he obtained some forty-three years ago, enabled him to endure all things to the end of his pilgrimage. He was formerly associated with the Christian connection, but since the good news of Jesus' soon coming saluted his ears, he with us has been waiting for the kingdom of God.

It can be said of him in truth, he was a man of God, just, upright, and consistent. In some things he was peculiar, especially in witnessing for the Lord in the house of worship; his voice could often be heard in prayer and exhortation. He not only believed in being led by the Spirit of God, but was obedient, and willing to deny self, and bear the cross of Christ. His wife and children will mourn, yet not as those who have no hope. His kindred and neighbors have lost a friend and good neighbor, and the church of God a worthy member. We believe all his acquaintance will in their hearts say, A man of God has fallen, when they hear of his death.

Thus one after another, after finishing their work, are laid away to wait the voice of the Son of God.

Eld. Boutell preached a gospel, heart-comforting discourse at the funeral. JOHN G. HOOK.

ROXY A. CROWELL.

Died, in Bangor, Oct. 7th, Roxy A. Crowell, wife of James N. Crowell, and daughter of Joseph S. Tuck, aged thirty-three years, five months, and twenty days.

Roxy was a firm and consistent believer in the speedy coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, and those blessed doctrines so intimately connected with the "gospel of the kingdom." Her gentle disposition and Christ-like humility endeared her to all who knew her; and though her pathway was beset with the troubles and trials that fall to the lot of mortals, her life was characterized by those heavenly virtues which distinguish the humble, patient learner in the school of Christ. Oh how we loved her! Words cannot express the sorrow which wrung our hearts when death took her from our midst. We miss her blessed smile and sweet voice in the daily intercourse of life, and, more than all, we miss her from our little meetings, where she so often bore the cross.

May the Lord grant his support to our brother James in his affliction, and help him and us so to live that when the great Life-giver shall call Roxy from her dusty bed, we may all meet to part no more. Sermon by Bro. George W. Brown, from 1 Cor. 15: 22. CHARLES C. TUCK.

J. L. CHURCHILL.

Died in Lawrence, Mass., of disease of the brain, Johnnie L., only son of Bro. Geo. H. and Sr. M. E. Churchill, aged four years and four months.

Another leaflet has fallen! Another lovely floweret, nipped in the bud, has faded and died! Another bright and glimmering star has suddenly ceased to revolve in its orbit, and the domestic constellation is darkened by its obscured light. Little Johnnie was a child of keen susceptibilities, and a mind far riper than his years. His affectionate disposition and vivacity of spirit rendered him the observed of all observers. But his prematurely developed brain invited disease, and he sank a victim to the fell destroyer.

O cruel death! thy merciless reign is nearly ended. When the loud clarion notes of God's trump shall reverberate throughout the vaults of the tomb, and the dead shall hear his voice and live, then will little Johnnie come forth; not with the signet of death upon his brow, but the bloom of immortal beauty shall rest unfading on his cheek. ANNIE E. BENNETT.

IRA BURGESS.

Died in one of the U. S. Hospitals, Virginia, Sept. 10th, 1864, Ira, only son of Alden and Abby Burgess, of Brooklyn, Ct., aged twenty-three years.

The subject of this notice was a member of Co. T. 1st Conn. Artillery. He was a kind and dutiful son, an affectionate brother, and a respected soldier. Although he never made a public profession of religion, he ever stood ready to defend God's word when he heard it assailed by its enemies; and he always delighted to converse upon the subject of religion with his sister and parents. They deeply mourn his loss, but hope to meet him in the morning, where wars and tumults shall cease.

C. H. SWEET.

SARAH WILSON.

Died in Salem, Wis., Sept. 21st, 1864, of typhoid fever, Sarah F., eldest daughter of E. J. and E. H. Wilson, aged fourteen years, ten months and thirteen days.

From the first of her sickness she was impressed that she should die, and expressed a willingness to sleep in death till Jesus, the mighty conqueror, comes to destroy death and him who had the power thereof. Bro. and Sr. Wilson deeply mourn their loss, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. May the Lord sustain them, and preserve them unto his heavenly kingdom.

Funeral sermon by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15: 26.

S. J. ADAMS.

ISABELLA A. HACKETT.

Fell asleep in Jesus, Sept. 22nd, 1864, Isabella A. Hackett, aged seventy-eight years.

Our dear mother was sick ten days. She bore her pain with christian fortitude, and died with the blessed hope of the speedy coming of Christ. She was conscious to the last, had no fear of death, for the Lord was with her. She called her weeping friends to her bedside, shook hands with them, and bade them prepare to meet her in the kingdom. We trust she sleeps in Jesus, to await the trump of God, when life, glory and immortality will be hers eternally. H. M. S.

Z. A. NORRIS and B. W. TURNER.

Died in Whitefield, Me., of diphtheria, Oct. 2d, Zylpha A. Norris, aged twenty-three years.

Also, of same disease, Oct. 3d, Beatrice W. Turner, only daughters of Bro. Jerry and Sr. Angeline Partridge of W.

Although great sufferers, they quietly fell asleep in Jesus. Funerals attended by the writer. May God bless the mourners, and gather them to the kingdom at last. JOHN R. HALL.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool, Oct. 13th, Queenstown 14th.

Commercial affairs continue to be the principal topic, and the depression shows no diminution. Business, especially in cotton, is almost at a dead lock, and prices continue to fall. Additional failures include Louis Speltz, a large cotton dealer in Liverpool, whose liabilities amount to £320,000 sterling; Messrs. Hime, Milne & Co., cotton brokers of Liverpool, liabilities large; and Bendire & Co., merchants of London, liabilities small.

FRANCE.

The Patrie says that Russia has given its adhesion to the French policy in the Roman question.

La France says the insurrection in Algeria is spreading, and the natives appear to obey the summons to a holy war.

PRUSSIA.

A meeting between the King of Prussia and the Emperor of Russia was about to take place at Darmstadt.

TURKEY.

A financial crisis is reported at Constantinople, and the rate of interest has been raised to 146 cents, and money not attainable at that.

DOMESTIC.

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 19. An invasion of this town took place to-day. Some twenty or twenty-five armed desperadoes, supposed to be in rebel employ, from Canada, made an assault on the several banks about 4 o'clock this afternoon. The National Bank was robbed of about $50,000, mostly in bills. The St. Albans Bank was robbed of between $70,000 and $80,000, and the Franklin County Bank of a considerable amount. Some twenty horses were also seized and carried off by the desperadoes. Several citizens, who resisted, were deliberately shot, two were wounded seriously, and it is feared, fatally. E. J. Morrison, a contractor; C. H. Huntington, a jeweler, and several others are reported injured slightly. The raiders threatened to burn the town, and left in the direction of Canada. A large party have gone in pursuit.

Later. Mr. Morrison, who was shot through the body, has since died.

The Canadian authorities have made every effort to aid in the arrest, sending a police force from Montreal and elsewhere, and ordering out a military force to guard the roads and aid in the capture. The people near the lines, however, are said to have known the robbery was to be committed. It is thought all will be taken and the money recovered.

A military force of seventy-five men was sent to St. Albans from Montpelier Wednesday night. Three hundred were under arms at Burlington and two companies were sent to Rouse's Point to protect bridges.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 20. Mayor Austin has ordered the citizens of frontier towns to organize themselves into home guards. Arms are being distributed to them, and they will shortly be prepared for any emergency.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 23. Thirteen of the rebel raiders are now in the jail at St. Johns, Canada. They are mostly young men, and claim to hail from Kentucky, and insist that they are in the rebel service. They are confident they will be released. Two of them claim to have Captain's commissions. A small quantity of rebel money was found on them. Their examination before Judge Coursel will commence at St. Johns to-morrow morning. Bernard Devlin, an eminent counsellor of Montreal will conduct the case in behalf of the United States.

"Cedar Creek, Oct. 19.

To Lieut. Gen. Grant:

I have the honor to report that my army at Cedar Creek was attacked this morning before daylight, and my left was turned and driven in confusion, with the loss of 20 pieces of artillery. I hastened to Winchester, where I was on my return from Washington, and found the army between Middletown and Newtown, having been driven back about four miles.

I here took the affair in hand and quickly united the corps, formed a compact line of battle just in time to repulse an attack of the enemy, which was handsomely done about 1 P. M.

At 3 P. M., after some changes of the cavalry from the left to the right flank, I attacked with great vigor, driving and routing the enemy, capturing, according to the last report, forty-three pieces of artillery and very many prisoners.

I do not know yet the number of my casualties, or the losses of the enemy. Wagon trains, ambulances and caissons in large numbers are in our possession. They also burned some of their trains. Gen. Ramseur is a prisoner in our hands, severely and perhaps mortally wounded.

I have to regret the loss of Gen. Bidwell, killed, and Gens. Wright, Grover and Ricketts, wounded. Wright is slightly wounded.

Affairs at times looked badly, but by the gallantry of our brave officers and men, disaster has been turned into a splendid victory. Darkness again intervened to shut off greater results. I now occupy Strasburg.

As soon as obtained I will send you further particulars.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Major-General."

City Point, Oct. 20.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

I had a salute of one hundred guns from each of the armies here, fired in honor of Gen. Sheridan's last victory. Turning what bid fair to be a disaster, into a glorious victory, stumps Gen. Sheridan what I have always thought him, one of the ablest of Generals.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant-General.

St. Louis, Oct. 20. The Jefferson City correspondent of the Democrat, under date of the 19th inst., says: "Everything looks more favorable to-night. The news from Curtis is most cheering. Rosecrans took the field to-day, and to-night is many miles from here. Price has declared an amnesty to all deserters from his army who have been bushwhacking, and they are joining him. Bill Anderson will join him in a few days.

Quantrell is to be promoted to a Brigadier-Generalship, and Jackson is to have a division. Holtzelaw is also to report to Price. This already shows that the guerrilla leaders of this State are commissioned officers in the regular Confederate service."

Lieut. Col. Haynes, of the 17th Illinois Veteran Cavalry, who was captured at Glasgow and paroled, expresses the opinion that the rebels cannot fight mounted, and that our infantry is more than a match for them. He also says Price has 30,000 men.

The Republican has a special dispatch from Jefferson City, which says the guerrillas under Todd entered the German settlement in Lafayette county, on Sunday night, and killed twenty-eight Germans, fired their houses and compelled the women to remain in them until the roofs were about to fall, when they were allowed to escape.

Gen. Curtis is concentrating a large force in Kansas City with which he will move against Gen. Price. Gen. Jim Lane commands 1500 Kansas militia.

The Richmond Examiner of Wednesday says the colored soldiers put to work on their fortifications at Dutch Gap have been withdrawn on account of Butler's order of retaliation.

War Department, Washington, Oct. 22—9 P. M.

To Major General Dix:

The following official dispatch has been received from Gen. Sheridan:

CEDAR CREEK, Va., Oct. 21—4 P. M.

Lieut. Gen. U. S. Grant, City Point, Va.:

I pursued the routed forces of the enemy nearly to Mount Jackson, which point he reached during the nights of the 19th and 20th without an organized regiment of his army. From the accounts of our prisoners who have escaped, and citizens, the rout was complete. About 2000 of the enemy broke and made their way down through the mountains on the left. For ten miles on the line of the retreat the roads and country were covered with small arms, thrown away by the rebels, and other debris.

Forty-eight pieces of captured artillery are now at my headquarters. I think that not less than 300 wagons and ambulances were either captured or destroyed. The accident of the morning turned to our advantage as much as though the whole movement had been planned. The only regret I have is the capture in the early morning of from 800 to 1000 men.

I am now sending to the War Department ten battle flags. The loss of artillery in the morning was 7 from Crook, 11 from Emery, and six from Wright.

From all that I can learn I think that Early's reinforcements were not less than 16,000 men.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Major General Commanding.

Gen. Stevenson reports the arrival at Martinsburg of 1500 wounded and 1500 prisoners.

Gen. Custar arrived this afternoon at Washington with ten rebel battle flags displayed from the railroad engines.

New York, Oct. 24. The Herald's Martinsburg correspondent of the 22d says our losses on the 19th are in the vicinity of 5000 killed and missing. We have captured, including the wounded, 7000 prisoners and fifty guns. The total loss of the enemy will be near 10,000 men. Gen. Custar alone receipts for 45 guns, making 51 captured by his division during the last two weeks. If prisoners are to be believed, Longstreet was not present at this fight. Early, under the supposition that the 6th Corps and the commanding General were absent, thought he would make a dash and recover a portion of his lost reputation.

Leavenworth, Kansas, Oct. 21. Gen. Blunt has been stubbornly resisting the advance of Price all day. He is falling back slowly, contesting every inch of ground as he retires. The force of Price is estimated at 28,000 men. Curtis is concentrating his forces on Little Blue River. Gov. Carney has telegraphed that the danger is very great, and to send every available man to the front. Troops are going forward rapidly.

Kansas City, Oct. 23. A general battle has been fought and a victory won. Price's whole army is retreating rapidly South. Our cavalry are in hot pursuit. We have captured a large number of prisoners and three pieces of artillery.

NEGROES AS SOLDIERS.—A more complete vindication of the policy of the administration in the enlistment of negroes as soldiers could not be furnished than the endorsement of this policy by the rebels themselves. Arming the negroes, and freeing those who are armed, is advocated by many of the rebel organs, and official documents in favor of this policy are beginning to see the light. Maj. Gen. Canby has printed, in an official order, a captured dispatch from the rebel Governor of Louisiana to Davis' Secretary of War, urging the immediate conscription of "every able-bodied negro man as a soldier." Here is the document:

Executive Office, Shreveport, La., Sept. 26, 1864.

To Hon. James A. Seddon, Secretary of War, Richmond, Va.:

My Dear Sir: The time has come for us to put into the army every able-bodied negro man as a soldier. This should be done immediately. Congress should, at the coming session take action on this most important question. The negro knows that he cannot escape conscription if he goes to the enemy. He must play an important part in the war. He caused the fight and he will have his portion of the burden to bear. We have learned from dear-bought experience that negroes can be taught to fight, and that all who leave us are made to fight against us. I would free all able to bear arms and put them into the field at once. They will make much better soldiers with us than against us, and swell the now depleted ranks of our armies.

I beg you to give this your earnest attention.

With assurances of my friendly regards and very high esteem, I remain, very respectfully, your obedient servant, HENRY W. ALLEN, Governor of Louisiana.

—Journal.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

T. Cole .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
J. Couch .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

Lynn, Mass .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Warehouse Point, Ct .... Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct .... Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct .... Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct .... Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct .... Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct .... Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct .... Nov. 27th
J. S. WHITE, East Boston.

Poultney, Vt .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
The week following will be at liberty.
Hoosick, N. Y., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, if the weather is good.
North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who often attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this coat don't fit you. HIRAM MUNGER.

Mechanic's Falls, Me .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Poland .... Tuesday, Nov. 1st
Yarmouth .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford .... Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's .... Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. SPAULDING.

Northwood Narrows .... Sabbath, Oct. 30th
Concord, N. H .... Sabbath, Nov. 6th
T. M. PREBLE.

Elliot, Me .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Portsmouth, N. H .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. SIMPSON.

Agawam, Mass .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Scitico, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. POTTER.

Manchester, N. H .... Saturday evening, Oct. 29th and Sunday, 30th. Please write if supplied.
S. S. MOONEY.

Dalton .... Saturday evening, Oct. 29th and over Sunday.
E. McCULLOCK.

Yarmouth, Me .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
I. C. WELLCOME.

Portsmouth, N. H .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Scitico, Ct .... Oct. 30th
E. OWEN.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (corner Walnut and State Strs.)
H. Pratt .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
P. S. Butler .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

North Fairhaven, Mass., Friday evening, Oct. 28th, and over Sunday.
CHAS. E. PIPER.

South Reading, Mass .... Nov. 6th
Lynn, Mass .... Nov. 13th
C. C. RAMSAY.

☞ Some one sends an appointment for Vernon, Vt., but does not give his name.

Seneca Falls, N. Y. (as Bro. G. Dillebaugh may appoint) Sunday, Oct. 30th.
C. F. SWEET.

Whitakerville .... Oct. 30th
Vernon, Vt .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Killbuck, Ogle Co .... Oct. 28th and over Lord's day.
Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day
P. S. W. DEYO.

Springfield, Mass., (Barnes' Hall) .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Walbridge (communion day) .... Nov. 6th
Lynn .... Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Dover, N. H., Back River .... Oct. 28th to 30th
A. ROSS.

Holderness, N. H., Brick school-house, (formerly called the Kimbal school-house) .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
JOHN EMERY.

Concord, N. H .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Manchester .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

South Butler, N. Y .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Edinboro, Pa .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
C. B. TURNER.

APPOINTMENTS FOR MAINE.

Augusta .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Lewiston .... evening, Nov. 3d
Yarmouth .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Biddeford .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
A. MUSSEY.

Pawling, N. Y., Saturday evening, Oct. 29th, and over Lord's day, 30th, and longer if interest demands.
L. P. BENTON.

Truro, Cape Cod .... Sunday, Oct. 30th, and Nov. 6th
WM. M. INGHAM.

Bristol, Ct .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
Forestville .... Monday evening, Oct. 31st and every evening through the week.
Will fulfill my arrangements at New Britain and Plainville as the Lord directs.
Brethren will please meet me at Bristol Oct. 30th. Can stop but three weeks in vicinity, and will preach every evening, if the Lord will. H. K. FLAGG.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall) .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
AUGUSTUS DURFEE.

Sutton, N. H., (Mill Village) .... Oct. 30th
J. COUCH.

South Windsor, Ct .... Oct. 30th
Goshen, Mass .... Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange), Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's .... Oct. 9th
Griswoldville .... Nov. 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass .... Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me .... Nov. 27th
C. GOODRICH.

Bath (Music Hall) .... Sunday, Oct. 30th
H. H. YORK.

Plymouth, (where Bro. Emery may appoint), Oct. 30th
N. HARRINGTON.

Notices.

Free Sabbath Conference.

The Lord willing, the Maine Quarterly Conference of Free Sabbath Adventists will hold its next session at Portland, Me., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, and continuing over the Sabbath and first day. All lovers of truth are heartily invited to attend. We hear of good Sabbath brethren and sisters in different places, who are spurned from the Battle Creek Association because they cannot co-operate with them in their form of organization. Should the eyes of any such fall on this notice, we say to them, Come, get acquainted with us, and know for yourselves what manner of spirit we are of. This conference is not got up on a principle of strife or contention, but we stand as a people excluded from what is known as the Seventh-day Advent body, because we believe it is our privilege through grace to know for ourselves that we enjoy the gifts and operations of the Holy Ghost; but, free from all hardness, and full of love, we want all our brethren and sisters to come and labor for God, as freely as though we were the only Sabbath body in existence. Our Battle Creek brethren cannot receive us, but we say to every lover of truth, Come. Bro. J. Cranmer, from Michigan, is expected to be with us. Strangers on coming into the city will inquire for Bro. H. A. Weston, 432 Congress street, and he will direct them to places of entertainment.

S. C. HANCOCK.

Any wishing to address me from now to Nov. 6th, will direct to Portland, Me., care of H. A. Weston. S. C. H.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

JAS. A. LIBBY.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend. N. WHITE.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. GREEN, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. SHELDON.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to Northfield, Mass., can correspond with A. Gage, or Edwin Lyman. J. K. BELLOWS.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. Mulkins—The $2 pays to No. 432. Due to close of last volume, $1.39, and for this volume.

A. Wood—Thurman's Chronology is for sale at this office. Price, by mail, $1.70. The Emphatic Diaglott (2nd edition) will not be out before January; may be had at this office. Price will be announced when received.

S. Griffin—The first paid to No. 430 (not 450); the last to No. 456, as noted.

P. S. W. Deyo—See No. 471.

E. Slager—See No. 472.

G. Dillabaugh—Mrs. S. J.'s was acknowledged in No. 467; pays to No. 506.

C. Faber—Received. See No. 470.

L. A. Wheeler—Received, and acknowledged in No. 471. You did not give your post office. Pays to No. 529.

E. Mulkins—Due at close of last volume, $1.40; $2.65 will pay to close of this volume.

Mrs. H. Babbett—Due at close of last volume, $1.73; $2.98 will pay to the close of this, if paid soon.

H. J. Baldwin—You had previously paid to No. 459; 35c. paid, at the old rates, to the close of last volume, No. 468. The balance, $2.15, pays, at the new rates, to No. 513, as noted.

J. H. Deming—Acknowledged in No. 468. Pays to No. 468.

J. V. Himes—F. R. H.'s club of Pilgrim to Buchanan, (20 copies) is paid to Jan. 1865.

O. D. Woodruff—Your change of appointment came too late.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 473. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

The remainder of monies received to date (Oct. 25th) will be acknowledged next week. Letters, for several weeks past, have been coming in at the rate of fifty, sixty, and seventy a day. So large an increase of business, and the absence of usual help, has put us some behind in our cash acknowledgments. Brethren will understand that monies cannot be acknowledged until they are credited on the books; and when, from any cause, letters accumulate faster than the monies can be credited, they have to wait their turn until we can get to them. We hope to catch up soon.

$1.00 each.—J. F. Dudley 478, Mrs. J. B. Johnson 482, O. A. Ladd 490, W. Barber 471, A. G. Case 495, J. Sargent 475, P Webster 492, J Thompson 409, M G Day 478, J J Towsley (old acc't), Wm Mix 490, W J Hoyt 478, Mrs. C. Baldwin 479, J A Dibble 328, J C Atkins 503, R. H. Bolton 533, L A Vaunce 523, F. Evans 384, C S Shaw 479, J C Wetherell 479, O Gregory 490, Mrs D Miner 441, Mrs H Stone 468, Mrs A B Pinkham 494, S Harriman 489, S Snow 472, W Lassell 475, D M Kinter 511, J. N. Taylor 430, S Harrold 531, M A Weaver 498, N Hart 392, L Lyon 489, J O Parker 489, D Gates 490, J T Randall 423, J Sampson 485, S. Eldridge 472, G T Clough 489, D B Salter 468, W Bumith 489, M. L. Lawrence 493, John Morrison 481, M A Hodgkins 477, E J Fuller 489, Mrs B Herrick 491, S M Turner 489.

$1.25 each.—W. Vreeland 494, Wm. Tunmore 496, J Mitchell 495, G W Colwell 495, L A Hyde 494, D Chase 490, G Wentworth 495, M Bishop 465, Mrs B O Emerson 496, S. Bailey (what P. O.?), A. L. Arnold 496, J. Turpee 495, Mrs. S. S. Lane 495, Mrs. L. J. Elliott 503, S Blanchard 494, L Hall 494, Dr. S. Freeman 491, Mrs S Hayward 495, H. N. Currie 493, D Graves 497, H H Haynes 491, D V Corey 491, R O White 494, T Caswell 494, S Barton 518, E Griffin 496, C Lewis 478, W Chapin 498, S Arnold (what P. O.?), M H Garland 485, R McFadden 484, J. P. Blaisdell 494, E. Perkins 500, T. Woodard 489, N. C. Christerson 490, M C Snell 506, S Whiting 507, Mrs. E. Williams 483, C. W. Gooch 494, Mrs S R Fenton 494, L Niece 491, M Vandermark 571, J. F. Crowl 480, J. W. Jordan 494, J P Shaw 490, C E Hazen 499, H. Deyo 496, A. E. Deyo 499, R Deverraux 494, Mrs. A B Angell 499, S Goodrich 495, A M Allen 495, R E Bryant 495, T Gooch 494, J Merrill 494, D C Tourtellot 494, C Colomy 494, S A Jenness 496, S Bowers 497, Mrs. H. E. Newell 495, C. Work 494, A Hook 525, W. Colbath Jr. 496, Mrs. C N Sanford 496, W W Joslyn 495, J Bates 491, J W Gregory 495, N C Locke 496, S. A. Miller 481, H. Pebbles 496, B Sampson 487, C L Sweet 497, J H Perkins 497, Jas Godding 496, J B Adams 496, J D Flagg 498.

$2.00 each.—A. Baker 510, S. Marsh 460, J. H. Lum 466, M A Sawyer 379, O M Tanner 501, J M Andrews 488, J Purrington 504, C. Phillips Jr. 510, R. Chappell 494, H O G Sweet 356, R L Smyth 489, A R Thompson Sr. 494, S. S. Tittemore 479, C Chandler 458, L. Orcutt 506, S. J. Craft 442, E. Milkins 432, P. Rice 478, P. C. Goodale 489, Mrs. O. Young 574, Mrs. L. Horton (old acc't), H Gibbs 468, A Kelsey 468, D Ballou 481, J Danforth 490, I Atkins 510, M Hoyt 491, E Wakeman 470, W Smith 493, J. Waldron 472, E C Keith 510, T Lane 483, C E Perry 523, N White 508, A H Clark 485, W H Ball 521, W. J. Collins 487, L Jillett 499, J P Darling 500, W. P. Holton 430, E B Estes 481, D. Fowler 489, P. Grinnell 486, F. T. Davis 510, Jas. Morrison 564, A. Andrews 494.

S. R. Wait $1.73, 484; C. M. Wood $1.35, 485; W. Houghe $4.13, 485; A S Sugar $2.25, 494; Mrs M Smith $3.55, 483; J Sawyer $2.25, 480; N Orcutt $2.25, 544; J Renshaw $0.70, 540; J Pope $4.00, 480; J Q Moulton $1.75, 504; N Hall $1.75, 387; F B Knowlton $1.40, 494; J. Gillies $2.70, 518; H. B. Lambert 25c, 468; W. White $1.16, 468; R McLean $1.23, 470; S Dinsmore 25c. 467, A Benton $2.25, 498; W Cousins 50c, 489; B Young $3.60, 560; T Hutchinson $2.60, 520; J S Alexander $3.70, 520; E Phelps $2.50, 520; L Cashins $1.20, 483; E Blanot $2.50, 527; M A Wilbur 75c, 480; A C Adams 25c, 481; L. Wright $1.58, 494; J. Luther 65c, 476; J W Findley 65c, 481; J Strouse $1.60, 472; C W Brewster $2.40, 476; D Trecartin $2.42, 520; L Davis 25c, 499; A Richardson 25c, 483; G Lyons 63c, 481; L A Davis 55c, 486; E Wolcott $10.00, 494; W P McCormack $2.32, 468; J L Pressy 31c, 492; C. L. Jones 31c, 492.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

I K Lombard $5.10, J K Bellows $7.00, E A Prescott $3.00, A W Griggs $2.10, T W Piper $3.40, C S Bourne $2.00, G. S. Gordon $2.00, D. R. Mansfield $3.42, W. Roworth $4.80, G S Flint 50c, W Roworth $1.70, Mrs. T. B. Northrup 55c, L. Chamberlain 50c, H. Rockwell $1.00, C Bunnell 50c, W H Fisher $1.85, C Gardner 75c, R Bancroft $1.00, S Hall $1.70, J Card $1.70, L Smith $1.70, D C Terry $1.70, L Lord $1.70, A W Tyler $1.70, A Raymond $1.50, J Stockwell Jr $1.70, S Harper 50c, M A Cork $1.70, G W Burnham 80c, Mrs R S Randall $1.50, E B Coon 50c, W S Olmsted $1.70, S Chambers $1.50, H. Rockwell $1.00, C. Colomy 25c, D M Kinter $1.50, A E Clark $1.00, C R Danks 70c, D N Utter 45c, E. Melcher 50c, J C Rogers $1.70, W F Collier $1.70, F. B. Jones $1.70, A. C. Knowlton $1.70, J K Bellows $1.64, J Lyle $1.70, J D Hancock 65c, J N Safford 25c, E. Miller 25c, G B Whitford $1.00, C R Danks 25c, H Bailey $1.70, B. J. Totten $2.25, M. G. Day $1.90, J. Locke $1.70, B. Perham $1.50, L K Gaines $1.80, L J Hooper $1.70.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—M A Cook, A E Babcock, S Hall, J Card, S Smith, D C Terry, L Lord, A W Tyler, J Stockwell Jr., W. S. Olmsted, A. C. Knowlton, W. F. Collier, J C Rogers, F B Jones, J. Sampson, E Melcher, J. Bates, D N Utter, S Chambers, A B Martin, C R Danks, M D Rosy, H Rockwell, C. Colomy, D N Kidder, E Clark, F. Daugherty, E Miller, J A Stafford, J. D. Hancock, J Lyle, E A Prescott, G B Whitford, C R Danks, A G W Smith, H. Bailey, J. Locke, M G Day, L A Davis, E Somers, W Devereaux, J Morrison, L K Gaines, L J Hooper, B. Perham, Mrs. H. M. Butters, E P Conner, Miss S Hodsdon, J M Tozier, J A Libby, W. Kenaly, L C McKinstry.

BY EXPRESS.—I. C. Wellcome (2 pkges), J. Carr W. Roworth, B J Totten, W Johnston.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J Knowles, J. L. Hersey, D. G. M., J. W. Taylor, M. Stratton, M B Czechowski, B P French, H Winchell, H Bradley, I C Wellcome, D T Taylor, M Phetteplace, J Hemenway, L R Otis, S Griffin.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.

J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River, P. O., Nova Scotia.

Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

Wm. Forrester—Eddytown, N. Y.

John T. Ougley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.

A. W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.

W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

O. R. Fassett—Sandy Hill, N. Y.

I. C. McKinstry—Hatley, C. E.

Jas. S. Heath—Neponset, Bureau Co., Ill.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

All publications sent by mail must be prepaid. The postage on Tracts is 2 cents for each FOUR OUNCES, or fractional part of four ounces; on Books, 4 cents for each FOUR OUNCES or fractional part of the same. For example, the postage on any one tract on this list is TWO CENTS, but three or four tracts may be sent in the same parcel at the same price. A Book weighing 4 ounces costs 4 cents postage; one weighing 5 ounces would cost 8 cents, or just as much as if it weighed 8 ounces.

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jos. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" Phonographically reported by E. F. Woodward. 20c, postage 2c.

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal, conscious suffering of the Wicked?" 20c, postage 4c.

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." 20c, postage 2c. Bound 50c, postage 8c.

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, 50 cents per dozen, $3.00 per hundred. Postage 2 cents for each package of four tracts or less.

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES (400 pp. each.)

For the set—{ By express—cloth, $6.75; paper, $1.75. By mail—cloth, $4.00; paper, $2.00.

Single Copy—cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cts. 1-4th off per dozen for cash.

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. Exhibiting in a vivid and startling light the predicted perils of the last days, and the corruptions, crimes and cruelties of Christendom. By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. Containing the views and testimonies of nearly four hundred of the greatest preachers, reformers, and writers the church has ever known. By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, or The Future of Steady Redemption, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsey, D. D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and MAN; its Origin, Progress, and End. With the following TRACTS:—The Church and its Darkness; The Three Worlds; The Last Days; Plain Truths; Ancient Landmarks; Olive Leaves; Important Questions; One Thing; Outline of the Court, etc. By H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, The Old Paths, Retribution, and Will all Men be Saved? By H. L. Hastings. With The State of the Dead, by Milton; Man in Death, by Bishop Law; Papal Decrees; Extracts from Justin Martyr, Luther, Jeremy Taylor, etc.

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church	25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man	25c.
Reasons for my Hope	20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion	20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly	20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul	10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life	10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church	10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single	10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.08; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the unfinished condition of the chain of symbols, and the proximity of the Judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts. Single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Woe" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrible, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 27 cts. Single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Popery during the 42 prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Papacy to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80. Single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the Kingdom of God, Matt. 21: 43; what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the New Covenant, Signs of the Times, nearness of the Great Day of the Lord, &c., &c. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25. Single, by mail, 25 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his saints, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and Scriptural instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 27 cts. Single, by mail, 3 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in Chronological order. Abounding of Iniquity. Immorality of the Age. Great Spiritual Dearth. Spiritualism—its hideous and degrading tendencies. A Spiritualist's invocation to Satan. Progression. The Gospel Preached in all the world as a witness. The Harvest ripe. The End of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25. Single, by mail, 25 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; Meteorological Wonders, Fearful Sights and Great Signs in the Heavens—Blood, Fire, and Pillars of Smoke, &c., &c. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these Last Day Wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung out flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the Great Day of His Wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25. Single, by mail, 25 cts.

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embodying testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 50 cts. Single, 6 cts., by mail, 10 cts.

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, revised, and enlarged. Price 8 cts. By mail, 3 cts.; per dozen, by mail, dozen.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.65

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references. Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 2 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references. Morocco, $2.50. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with clasps), $3.50. Postage 16 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Social Hymns,

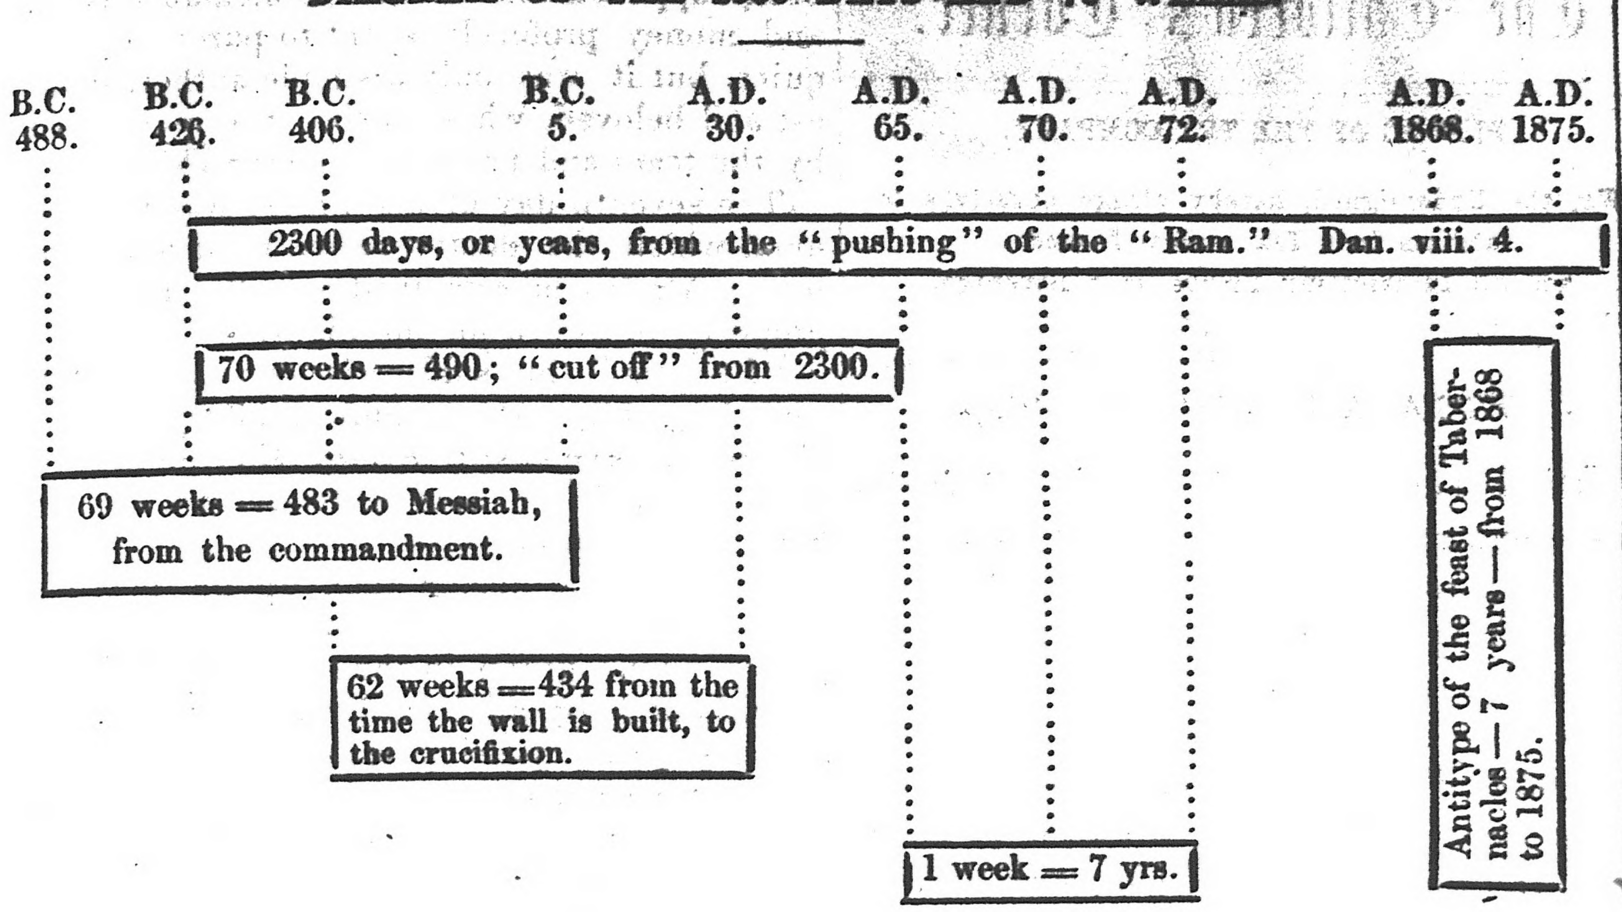
Original and selected, by H. L. H. 10 cts. single, $1.00 per dozen, $8.00 per one hundred, postpaid.

Address H. L. HASTINGS, Boston, Mass.

LIKENESSES OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

VOL. XX.—NO. 6. THE W

DIAGRAM OF THE 2300 DAYS AND 70 WEEKS.



THE TIME QUESTION.—NO. 1.

Thurman's chronological arrangement is destined to inaugurate a new interest on the time question. The clear light of truth is beginning to shine on the 2300 days and the weeks of Daniel. Without here arguing the question fully, we present the above diagram of the 2300 days and 70 weeks (based on Thurman's Chronology), with a few notes of explanation.

Explanation.—1. The 2300 days are commenced with the "pushing of the Ram against Daniel's people," after its two horns were already "HIGH"—after its conquest of "all the kingdoms of the earth" under Cyrus, (Ezra 1 : 2); therefore the "pushing" referred to was not that of national conquest, but against Daniel's people "westward, northward, and southward,"—not eastward, for there were no Jews in that direction,—which pushing took place when the king wrote letters "to the governors that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province," and sent by posts into all the king's provinces, to "destroy

E. Dodge
Died, in of consum
years, six
He prof with the
the bless ever afte course wit
for the p
Baptist c
the mem bear testi received;
coming o
it resulte
But as he
that he h
that he h would be be once and neigh
Bro. J.
10th) hol
pect of g
Our br feel their them tha others th
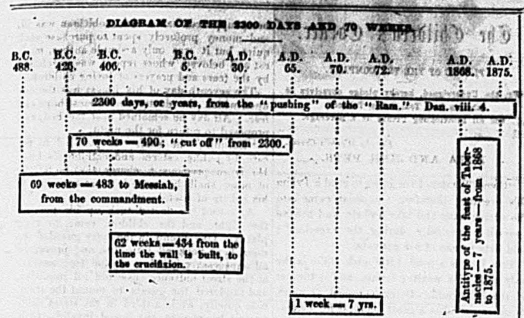
will live
The fu
Pinkham



THE TIME QUESTION.—NO. 1.

Thurman's chronological arrangement is destined to inaugurate a new interest on the time question. The clear light of truth is beginning to shine on the 2300 days and the weeks of Daniel. Without here arguing the question fully, we present the above diagram of the 2300 days and 70 weeks (based on Thurman's Chronology), with a few notes of explanation.

EXPLANATION.—1. The 2300 days are commenced with the "pushing of the Ram against Daniel's people," after its two horns were already "HIGH"—after its conquest of "all the kingdoms of the earth" under Cyrus, (Ezra 1 : 2); therefore the "pushing" referred to was not that of national conquest, but against Daniel's people "westward, northward, and southward,"—not eastward, for there were no Jews in that direction,—which pushing took place when the king wrote letters "to the governors that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province," and sent by posts into all the king's provinces, to "destroy or kill, and to cause to perish, ALL JEWS, both young and old, little children and women, IN ONE DAY." (Esther 3 : 12, 13.) This bold push, though not executed in the threatened extermination, took place, according to Thurman's Chronology, B. C. 426, thus ending the 2300 days in 1875, leaving seven years from 1868 to 1875 for the antitype of the feast of Tabernacles by the saints after Christ appears, before entering the purified earth.

The line of dots B. C. 426 marks the beginning of the 2300 days.

2. The seventy weeks, or 490 years, being "cut off" from the 2300, must begin at the same time (see line of dots) B. C. 426, reaching to A. D. 65, where the ruin of Daniel's people commenced. The time allotted them as a people terminated with the beginning of the war that ultimated in their ruin, beginning A. D. 65.

3. The sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, do not begin with the seventy weeks, they being a separate measurement, having no connection with the seventy weeks, but beginning at the "going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem"; and, in spite of all that has been said upon this point, there is but one such commandment on record, referred to in the following language: "Thus saith the Lord . . . CYRUS he is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure: saying to JERUSALEM, thou shalt be built," (Isa. 44 : 28), "he (Cyrus) shall build my city, and shall let go my captives." Isa. 45 : 13. If God declared that Cyrus should build Jerusalem, and that Cyrus should say to Jerusalem, "Thou shalt be built," the question is settled. A commandment to do a thing cannot be issued after the work is done; therefore if Cyrus was to do this work, no commandment later than his day can be meant. This cuts off all other claims. In the first of Ezra this commandment is recorded, being given in "the first year of Cyrus," which Thurman's Chronology locates B. C. 488. From this point, sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, reach the birth of Christ, five years before the beginning of the Christian era, which all admit to be the true year of his birth.

4. After giving a measurement of sixty-nine weeks from the commandment under Cyrus to the Messiah, the prophet adds: "The street shall be built again, and the WALL, even in troublous times"; from this point, that is from the time the "wall" shall be "built," Daniel gives another distinct measurement, namely: "After three score and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off" that is, after sixty-two weeks, or 434 years from the time the "wall" is "built." This was built in the 32d of Artaxerxes, or completed and dedicated then. (Neh. 12 : 27–30; 13 : 6.) According to Thurman's Chronology this was B. C. 406. From B. C. 406, sixty-two weeks, or 434 years, terminate a few months before the crucifixion, which Thurman places A. D. 30, and fixes it there by the aid of Astronomy.

5. Daniel then proceeds: "The people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city [Jerusalem] and the sanctuary . . . and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he [the Roman Prince] shall confirm the covenant with many for one week," or seven years. God's covenant made with Moses not only specified blessings on condition of obedience, but also a curse in case of disobedience, according to all the "curses of the COVENANT that are written in the book of the law." (See 29th chapter of Deut.) Titus confirmed this covenant with that rebellious people just seven years to a day, from A. D. 65 to A. D. 72; and "in the midst of the week," or in the midst of this seven years' war, A. D. 70, the "sacrifice and oblation" literally ceased.

The foregoing are Thurman's views, and mine by adoption. Thank God for the light. Let every one read Thurman's Astronomical Chronology, contained in his "Sealed Book of Daniel Opened." It contains a mass of truth. More anon. W. SHELDON.

Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

Correspondence.

From Bro. D. M Kinter.

BRO. GRANT:—Having just returned from a four days' meeting, I wish to say a few words to my pilgrim brethren scattered abroad, and to do so I must ask a place in our beloved medium, "the Crisis."

On the 24th day of September I rode fifteen miles, preached two discourses, and three came forward and confessed, and on the next morning (Lord's day) we assembled at an early hour on the banks of a pleasant stream where they confirmed their faith by being buried with Christ in baptism, and arising again to walk in newness of life. We continued the meeting until Tuesday evening, baptizing in all six willing souls. It was a heavenly season for all, and the saints were "built up in the most holy faith." The brethren at this place are willing to forsake all for Christ, and are taking no part whatever in Cæsar's difficulties. This is the key to my success among them, and would all the professed followers of Jesus but "do likewise" sinners would again be seen to forsake their sins, flock to the standard of King Immanuel, and the religion of Jesus be revived to its primitive vitality.

The "Crisis" still comes to me laden with good things to cheer a poor weary pilgrim on his way to the kingdom of our dear Redeemer. God bless you and the dear loved ones scattered abroad.

We are having a great deal of trouble here again, and every one able to bear arms is called on to do so. I have refused, and I do not know what the consequence may be, although I "fear not what man can do unto me." Brethren, pray for me. Thank God, this age of crime and bloodshed is nigh its close, and we can but hope, watch and pray. Brethren, render unto Cæsar the things that belong unto him, but obey God rather than man.

Hoping to soon meet you and all the loved ones in the kingdom, I am, dear Bro., yours, waiting for the coming of Christ.

D. M. KINTER.

Kirksville, Mo., Oct. 1st.

From Sr. L. M. Collins.

DEARLY BELOVED:—In the midst of affliction I write a few lines to you. It may be my last, but be that as it may, I want you all to know that I am still holding on to the faith, determined not to let go, let what will come. I love you all. I love to read your articles in the "Crisis," from week to week. It has been a great comfort to me in my lonely hours, but I must give it up now, for I cannot pay for it. I have got nothing to pay with. Many of you will well recollect me, for I have spent many a happy hour with you in the old Granite State, and I wish that I was there now, that I could meet with you and hear you sing and pray.

I find none here of like precious faith. I have found some Methodists, one in particular, who has fallen in love with Bro. Hiram Munger, from reading his life, which I lent him. He was not satisfied with reading it once or twice, but made it his study. If I had the money to buy tracts with, I would buy some, and scatter them round here. I think they would do good. Brothers and Sisters, although I may never read your cheering letters in the "Crisis" any more, I hope that you will remember me and mine, in your prayers at all times. I am lonely and sad. My only son is in the army and has been missing ever since the battle at Monocacy. I have tried in vain to hear something about him. I can hardly compose my mind enough to write. Everything looks dark before me as far as temporal things are concerned, but I look forward to a glorious future, when poor folks will have no rent to pay, nor fire-wood to buy. Praise the Lord, the time is soon coming when we shall all go home to Father's House. From your waiting sister,

LYDIA M. COLLINS.

From Sr. I. Stevens.

BRO. GRANT:—Here are a few that love to listen to the word. I have reason to praise the Lord for ever hearing an Adventist preach. The first sermon I heard was one year ago last June, and since that time we have had two Conferences, one last winter, and one in June. We had a good season at our last Conference, and I believe the spirit is not gone yet.

Brn. Jordan, Libby and others have preached for us occasionally since last fall. They are faithful laborers in the vineyard of their Master. Many of their sermons will long be remembered by this people. Bro. Jordan preached here the 11th of Sept. He came to us in the spirit of his Master, and it was truly meat in due season. Some who were present that have not embraced this gospel hope, believed it to be truth, and wondered it had not been preached before.

Bro. J. Libby preached here last Sabbath. After the services three willing converts followed their Lord and Master in the delightful ordinance of baptism, one of whom was our own daughter. I felt that I could truly say, "What hath God wrought!"

We have a prayer-meeting every Sunday night, and although our numbers are few, we enjoy the meetings much. It is truly cheering to hear the young converts tell of their hopes in Jesus, and to hear them express their happiness in taking up their cross. We also have a weekly prayer-meeting, which we enjoy very much, and we would like to have all who profess to love God come and meet with us and receive the blessing. It seems strange that any who have an interest in the conversion of sinners can stay from such meetings.

I cannot tell you how much I love to read the Crisis. It is a welcome visitor in our family. May the brethren and sisters who write for it continue to do so. I love to read their letters. I enjoy this blessed hope of the gospel, and while the signs of the times indicate that we are living in the last days, I desire to live righteously, soberly, and godly, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Your sister, IRENE STEVENS.

Brighton Hill, Me.

From Bro. D. Newton.

BRO. GRANT:—I have read Bro. Czechowski's report, and heartily respond to his call for help. I hope our brethren and sisters will also lend a helping hand. It is an important mission. There the truth has been long trodden under foot, and the blood of saints has flowed in torrents. There the gospel of the kingdom should be preached. I trust we shall not only help him in money, but that our prayers shall go up to God, that he may be a faithful ambassador of Jesus Christ, and the instrument of bringing many souls into his fold. Yours, loving the appearing of Jesus,

DANA NEWTON.

COOKING WITHOUT FIRE.—M. Babinet, of the French Institute, has discovered the means of cooking without fire. He has just laid before the Academy the result of his experiments. His recipe is: Place your food in a black pot, covered with sundry panes of glass, and stand it in the sun. The water soon boils, and the food is said to be of better flavor than if cooked in the ordinary way.

☞ Extensive conflagrations, which have laid some towns in ruins and nearly destroyed others, have prevailed in Russia since April last. There have been four great fires in St. Petersburg. They are attributed to incendiaries, and much alarm exists.

Obituaries.

E. DODGE.

Died, in New Boston, N. H., Sept. 24th, 1864, of consumption, Bro. Edward Dodge, aged seventy years, six months and eight days.

He professed faith in Christ in 1834, and united with the Baptist church. In 1842 he embraced the blessed doctrine of the Lord's coming, and ever after endeavored to maintain a consistent course with his faith, and was willing to sacrifice for the precious cause of Christ. While in the Baptist church, he viewed the way straighter than the members generally lived, and felt it duty to bear testimony to that effect, which was not always received; but when he came to add to that the coming of the Judge to reckon with the unfaithful, it resulted in his excommunication from them. But as he approached his end, instead of feeling that he had talked the truth too straight, he felt that he had loved the world too well, and that it would be right to make a sacrifice for the truth to be once more faithfully presented to his friends and neighbors, and, agreeable to his dying request, Bro. J. Pinkham and the writer are now (Oct. 10th) holding meetings in the place with a prospect of good.

Our brother leaves a wife and other friends to feel their loss, but it may be truly said by those of them that love the Lord, that they sorrow not as others that have no hope, for they believe that he will live again.

The funeral was attended Sept. 27th, by Bro. J. Pinkham and the writer, by his request, when by the presentation of the truth, we think the most present were well satisfied that we have the true hope of the gospel. The Lord give sustaining grace, and bring friends to meet where death and the tomb will divide no more. T. G. SMITH.

THOMAS TEWKSBURY.

Died in the Lord, in Concord, N. H., Oct. 3d, 1864, our beloved Bro. Thomas Tewksbury, aged seventy-three years.

Bro. T. has been a patient sufferer for many years, having been afflicted with fever sore, which resulted in his death. But the grace of God, which he obtained some forty-three years ago, enabled him to endure all things to the end of his pilgrimage. He was formerly associated with the Christian connection, but since the good news of Jesus' soon coming saluted his ears, he with us has been waiting for the kingdom of God.

It can be said of him in truth, he was a man of God, just, upright, and consistent. In some things he was peculiar, especially in witnessing for the Lord in the house of worship; his voice could often be heard in prayer and exhortation. He not only believed in being led by the Spirit of God, but was obedient, and willing to deny self, and bear the cross of Christ. His wife and children will mourn, yet not as those who have no hope. His kindred and neighbors have lost a friend and good neighbor, and the church of God a worthy member. We believe all his acquaintance will in their hearts say, A man of God has fallen, when they hear of his death.

Thus one after another, after finishing their work, are laid away to wait the voice of the Son of God.

Eld. Boutell preached a gospel, heart-comforting discourse at the funeral. JOHN G. HOOK.

ROXY A. CROWELL.

Died, in Bangor, Oct. 7th, Roxy A. Crowell, wife of James N. Crowell, and daughter of Joseph S. Tuck, aged thirty-three years, five months, and twenty days.

Roxy was a firm and consistent believer in the speedy coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, and those blessed doctrines so intimately connected with the "gospel of the kingdom." Her gentle disposition and Christ-like humility endeared her to all who knew her; and though her pathway was beset with the troubles and trials that fall to the lot of mortals, her life was characterized by those heavenly virtues which distinguish the humble, patient learner in the school of Christ. Oh how we loved her! Words cannot express the sorrow which wrung our hearts when death took her from our midst. We miss her blessed smile and sweet voice in the daily intercourse of life, and, more than all, we miss her from our little meetings, where she so often bore the cross.

May the Lord grant his support to our brother James in his affliction, and help him and us so to live that when the great Life-giver shall call Roxy from her dusty bed, we may all meet to part no more. Sermon by Bro. George W. Brown, from 1 Cor. 15: 22. CHARLES C. TUCK.

J. L. CHURCHILL.

Died in Lawrence, Mass., of disease of the brain, Johnnie L., only son of Bro. Geo. H. and Sr. M. E. Churchill, aged four years and four months.

Another leaflet has fallen! Another lovely floweret, nipped in the bud, has faded and died! Another bright and glimmering star has suddenly ceased to revolve in its orbit, and the domestic constellation is darkened by its obscured light. Little Johnnie was a child of keen susceptibilities, and a mind far riper than his years. His affectionate disposition and vivacity of spirit rendered him the observed of all observers. But his prematurely developed brain invited disease, and he sank a victim to the fell destroyer.

O cruel death! thy merciless reign is nearly ended. When the loud clarion notes of God's trump shall reverberate throughout the vaults of the tomb, and the dead shall hear his voice and live, then will little Johnnie come forth; not with the signet of death upon his brow, but the bloom of immortal beauty shall rest unfading on his cheek. ANNIE E. BENNETT.

IRA BURGESS.

Died in one of the U. S. Hospitals, Virginia, Sept. 10th, 1864, Ira, only son of Alden and Abby Burgess, of Brooklyn, Ct., aged twenty-three years.

The subject of this notice was a member of Co. T. 1st Conn. Artillery. He was a kind and dutiful son, an affectionate brother, and a respected soldier. Although he never made a public profession of religion, he ever stood ready to defend God's word when he heard it assailed by its enemies; and he always delighted to converse upon the subject of religion with his sister and parents. They deeply mourn his loss, but hope to meet him in the morning, where wars and tumults shall cease.

C. H. SWEET.

SARAH WILSON.

Died in Salem, Wis., Sept. 21st, 1864, of typhoid fever, Sarah F., eldest daughter of E. J. and E. H. Wilson, aged fourteen years, ten months and thirteen days.

From the first of her sickness she was impressed that she should die, and expressed a willingness to sleep in death till Jesus, the mighty conqueror, comes to destroy death and him who had the power thereof. Bro. and Sr. Wilson deeply mourn their loss, but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. May the Lord sustain them, and preserve them unto his heavenly kingdom.

Funeral sermon by the writer, from 1 Cor. 15 : 26.

S. J. ADAMS.

ISABELLA A. HACKETT.

Fell asleep in Jesus, Sept. 22nd, 1864, Isabella A. Hackett, aged seventy-eight years.

Our dear mother was sick ten days. She bore her pain with christian fortitude, and died with the blessed hope of the speedy coming of Christ. She was conscious to the last, had no fear of death, for the Lord was with her. She called her weeping friends to her bedside, shook hands with them, and bade them prepare to meet her in the kingdom. We trust she sleeps in Jesus, to await the trump of God, when life, glory and immortality will be hers eternally. H. N. S.

Z. A. NORRIS and B. W. TURNER.

Died in Whitefield, Me., of diphtheria, Oct. 2d, Zylpha A. Norris, aged twenty-three years.

Also, of same disease, Oct. 3d, Beatrice W. Turner, only daughters of Bro. Jerry and Sr. Angeline Partridge of W.

Although great sufferers, they quietly fell asleep in Jesus. Funerals attended by the writer. May God bless the mourners, and gather them to the kingdom at last. JOHN B. HALL.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool, Oct. 13th, Queenstown 14th.

Commercial affairs continue to be the principal topic, and the depression shows no diminution. Business, especially in cotton, is almost at a dead lock, and prices continue to fall. Additional failures include Louis Speltz, a large cotton dealer in Liverpool, whose liabilities amount to £320,000 sterling; Messrs. Hime, Milne & Co., cotton brokers of Liverpool, liabilities large; and Bendire & Co., merchants of London, liabilities small.

FRANCE.

The Patrie says that Russia has given its adhesion to the French policy in the Roman question.

La France says the insurrection in Algeria is spreading, and the natives appear to obey the summons to a holy war.

PRUSSIA.

A meeting between the King of Prussia and the Emperor of Russia was about to take place at Darmstadt.

TURKEY.

A financial crisis is reported at Constantinople, and the rate of interest has been raised to 146 cents, and money not attainable at that.

DOMESTIC.

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 19. An invasion of this town took place to-day. Some twenty or twenty-five armed desperadoes, supposed to be in rebel employ, from Canada, made an assault on the several banks about 4 o'clock this afternoon. The National Bank was robbed of about $50,000, mostly in bills. The St. Albans Bank was robbed of between $70,000 and $80,000, and the Franklin County Bank of a considerable amount. Some twenty horses were also seized and carried off by the desperadoes. Several citizens, who resisted, were deliberately shot, two were wounded seriously, and it is feared, fatally. E. J. Morrison, a contractor; C. H. Huntington, a jeweler, and several others are reported injured slightly. The raiders threatened to burn the town, and left in the direction of Canada. A large party have gone in pursuit.

Later. Mr. Morrison, who was shot through the body, has since died.

The Canadian authorities have made every effort to aid in the arrest, sending a police force from Montreal and elsewhere, and ordering out a military force to guard the roads and aid in the capture. The people near the lines, however, are said to have known the robbery was to be committed. It is thought all will be taken and the money recovered.

A military force of seventy-five men was sent to St. Albans from Montpelier Wednesday night. Three hundred were under arms at Burlington and two companies were sent to Rouse's Point to protect bridges.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 20. Mayor Austin has ordered the citizens of frontier towns to organize themselves into home guards. Arms are being distributed to them, and they will shortly be prepared for any emergency.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 23. Thirteen of the rebel raiders are now in the jail at St. Johns, Canada. They are mostly young men, and claim to hail from Kentucky, and insist that they are in the rebel service. They are confident they will be released. Two of them claim to have Captain's commissions. A small quantity of rebel money was found on them. Their examination before Judge Coursel will commence at St. Johns to-morrow morning. Bernard Devlin, an eminent counsellor of Montreal, will conduct the case in behalf of the United States.

"Cedar Creek, Oct. 19.

To Lieut. Gen. Grant:

I have the honor to report that my army at Cedar Creek was attacked this morning before daylight, and my left was turned and driven in confusion, with the loss of 20 pieces of artillery. I hastened to Winchester, where I was on my return from Washington, and found the army between Middletown and Newtown, having been driven back about four miles.

I here took the affair in hand and quickly united the corps, formed a compact line of battle just in time to repulse an attack of the enemy, which was handsomely done about 1 P. M.

At 3 P. M., after some changes of the cavalry from the left to the right flank, I attacked with great vigor, driving and routing the enemy, capturing, according to the last report, forty-three pieces of artillery and very many prisoners.

I do not know yet the number of my casualties, or the losses of the enemy. Wagon trains, ambulances and caissons in large numbers are in our possession. They also burned some of their trains. Gen. Ramseur is a prisoner in our hands, severely and perhaps mortally wounded.

I have to regret the loss of Gen. Bidwell, killed, and Gens. Wright, Grover and Ricketts, wounded. Wright is slightly wounded.

Affairs at times looked badly, but by the gallantry of our brave officers and men, disaster has been turned into a splendid victory. Darkness again intervened to shut off greater results. I now occupy Strasburg.

As soon as obtained I will send you further particulars.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Major-General."

City Point, Oct. 20.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

I had a salute of one hundred guns from each of the armies here, fired in honor of Gen. Sheridan's last victory. Turning what bid fair to be a disaster, into a glorious victory, stamps Gen. Sheridan what I have always thought him, one of the ablest of Generals.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant-General.

St. Louis, Oct. 20. The Jefferson City correspondent of the Democrat, under date of the 19th inst., says: "Everything looks more favorable to-night. The news from Curtis is most cheering. Rosecrans took the field to-day, and to-night is many miles from here. Price has declared an amnesty to all deserters from his army who have been bushwhacking, and they are joining him. Bill Anderson will join him in a few days.

Quantrell is to be promoted to a Brigadier-Generalship, and Jackson is to have a division. Holtzelaw is also to report to Price. This already shows that the guerrilla leaders of this State are commissioned officers in the regular Confederate service."

Lieut. Col. Haynes, of the 17th Illinois Veteran Cavalry, who was captured at Glasgow and paroled, expresses the opinion that the rebels cannot fight mounted, and that our infantry is more than a match for them. He also says Price has 30,000 men.

The Republican has a special dispatch from Jefferson City, which says the guerrillas under Todd entered the German settlement in Lafayette county, on Sunday night, and killed twenty-eight Germans, fired their houses and compelled the women to remain in them until the roofs were about to fall, when they were allowed to escape.

Gen. Curtis is concentrating a large force in Kansas City with which he will move against Gen. Price. Gen. Jim Lane commands 1500 Kansas militia.

The Richmond Examiner of Wednesday says the colored soldiers put to work on their fortifications at Dutch Gap have been withdrawn on account of Butler's order of retaliation.

War Department, Washington, Oct. 22—9 P. M.

To Major General Dix:

The following official dispatch has been received from Gen. Sheridan:

CEDAR CREEK, Va., Oct. 21—4 P. M.

Lieut. Gen. U. S. Grant, City Point, Va.:

I pursued the routed forces of the enemy nearly to Mount Jackson, which point he reached during the nights of the 19th and 20th without an organized regiment of his army. From the accounts of our prisoners who have escaped, and citizens, the rout was complete. About 2000 of the enemy broke and made their way down through the mountains on the left. For ten miles on the line of the retreat the roads and country were covered with small arms, thrown away by the rebels, and other debris.

Forty-eight pieces of captured artillery are now at my headquarters. I think that not less than 300 wagons and ambulances were either captured or destroyed. The accident of the morning turned to our advantage as much as though the whole movement had been planned. The only regret I have is the capture in the early morning of from 800 to 1000 men.

I am now sending to the War Department ten battle flags. The loss of artillery in the morning was 7 from Crook, 11 from Emery, and six from Wright.

From all that I can learn I think that Early's reinforcements were not less than 16,000 men.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Major General Commanding.

Gen. Stevenson reports the arrival at Martinsburg of 1500 wounded and 1500 prisoners.

Gen. Custar arrived this afternoon at Washington with ten rebel battle flags displayed from the railroad engines.

New York, Oct. 24. The Herald's Martinsburg correspondent of the 22d says our losses on the 19th are in the vicinity of 5000 killed and missing. We have captured, including the wounded, 7000 prisoners and fifty guns. The total loss of the enemy will be near 10,000 men. Gen. Custar alone receipts for 45 guns, making 51 captured by his division during the last two weeks. If prisoners are to be believed, Longstreet was not present at this fight. Early, under the supposition that the 6th Corps and the commanding General were absent, thought he would make a dash and recover a portion of his lost reputation.

Leavenworth, Kansas, Oct. 21. Gen. Blunt has been stubbornly resisting the advance of Price all day. He is falling back slowly, contesting every inch of ground as he retires. The force of Price is estimated at 28,000 men. Curtis is concentrating his forces on Little Blue River. Gov. Carney has telegraphed that the danger is very great, and to send every available man to the front. Troops are going forward rapidly.

Kansas City, Oct. 23. A general battle has been fought and a victory won. Price's whole army is retreating rapidly South. Our cavalry are in hot pursuit. We have captured a large number of prisoners and three pieces of artillery.

NEGROES AS SOLDIERS.—A more complete vindication of the policy of the administration in the enlistment of negroes as soldiers could not be furnished than the endorsement of this policy by the rebels themselves. Arming the negroes, and freeing those who are armed, is advocated by many of the rebel organs, and official documents in favor of this policy are beginning to see the light. Maj. Gen. Canby has printed, in an official order, a captured dispatch from the rebel Governor of Louisiana to Davis' Secretary of War, urging the immediate conscription of "every able-bodied negro man as a soldier." Here is the document:

Executive Office, Shreveport, La., Sept. 26, 1864.

To Hon. James A. Seddon, Secretary of War, Richmond, Va.:

My Dear Sir: The time has come for us to put into the army every able-bodied negro man as a soldier. This should be done immediately. Congress should, at the coming session take action on this most important question. The negro knows that he cannot escape conscription if he goes to the enemy. He must play an important part in the war. He caused the fight and he will have his portion of the burden to bear. We have learned from dear-bought experience that negroes can be taught to fight, and that all who leave us are made to fight against us. I would free all able to bear arms and put them into the field at once. They will make much better soldiers with us than against us, and swell the now depleted ranks of our armies.

I beg you to give this your earnest attention.

With assurances of my friendly regards and very high esteem, I remain, very respectfully, your obedient servant, HENRY W. ALLEN, Governor of Louisiana.

—Journal.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

T. Cole........Sunday, Oct. 30th
J. Couch........Sunday, Nov. 6th

Lynn, Mass........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Warehouse Point, Ct........Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct........Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct........Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct........Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct........Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct........Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct........Nov. 27th
J. S. WHITE, East Boston.

Poultney, Vt........Sunday, Oct. 30th
The week following will be at liberty.
Hoosick, N. Y., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, if the weather is good.
North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who often attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this coat don't fit you. HIRAM MUNGER.

Mechanic's Falls, Me........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Poland........Tuesday, Nov. 1st
Yarmouth........Sunday, Nov. 6th
Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford........Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's........Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport........Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. SPAULDING.

Northwood Narrows........Sabbath, Oct. 30th
Concord, N. H........Sabbath, Nov. 6th
T. M. PREBLE.

Elliot, Me........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Portsmouth, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. SIMPSON.

Agawam, Mass........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Scitico, Ct........Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. POTTER.

Manchester, N. H........Saturday evening, Oct. 29th and Sundry, 30th. Please write if supplied.
S. S. MOONEY.

Dalton........Saturday evening, Oct. 29th and over Sunday.
E. MCCULLOCK.

Yarmouth, Me........Sunday, Oct. 30th
I. C. WELLCOME.

Portsmouth, N. H........Sunday, Oct. 30th
C. H. LEVERTON.

Scitico, Ct........Oct. 30th
E. OWEN.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (corner Walnut and State Strs.)
H. Pratt........Sunday, Oct. 30th
P. S. Butler........Sunday, Nov. 6th

North Fairhaven, Mass., Friday evening, Oct. 28th, and over Sunday.
CHAS. E. PIPER.

South Reading, Mass........Nov. 6th
Lynn, Mass........Nov. 13th
C. C. RAMSAY.

☞ Some one sends an appointment for Vernon, Vt., but does not give his name.

Seneca Falls, N. Y. (as Bro. G. Dillebaugh may appoint) Sunday, Oct. 30th.
C. F. SWEET.

Whitakerville........Oct. 30th
Vernon, Vt........Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Killbuck, Ogle Co........Oct. 28th and over Lord's day.
Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day
P. S. W. DEYO.

Springfield, Mass., (Barnes' Hall)........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Walbridge (communion day)........Nov. 6th
Lynn........Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Dover, N. H., Back River........Oct. 28th to 30th
A. ROSS.

Holderness, N. H., Brick school-house, (formerly called the Kimbal school-house)........Sunday, Oct. 30th
JOHN EMERY.

Concord, N. H........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Manchester........Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 13th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

South Butler, N. Y........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Edinboro, Pa........Sunday, Nov. 6th
C. B. TURNER.

APPOINTMENTS FOR MAINE.

Augusta........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Lewiston........evening, Nov. 3d
Yarmouth........Sunday, Nov. 6th
Biddeford........Sunday, Nov. 13th
A. MUSSEY.

Pawling, N. Y., Saturday evening, Oct. 29th, and over Lord's day, 30th, and longer if interest demands.
L. F. BENTON.

Truro, Cape Cod........Sunday, Oct. 30th, and Nov. 6th
WM. M. INGHAM.

Bristol, Ct........Sunday, Oct. 30th
Forestville........Monday evening, Oct. 31st and every evening through the week.
Will fulfill my arrangements at New Britain and Plainville as the Lord directs.
Brethren will please meet me at Bristol Oct. 30th. Can stop but three weeks in vicinity, and will preach every evening, if the Lord will.
H. K. FLAGG.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall)........Sunday, Oct. 30th
AUGUSTUS DURFEE.

Sutton, N. H., (Mill Village)........Oct. 30th
J. COUCH.

South Windsor, Ct........Oct. 30th
Goshen, Mass........Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Hehly may arrange), Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's........Nov. 9th
Griswoldville........Nov. 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass........Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me........Nov. 27th
C. GOODRICH.

Bath (Music Hall)........Sunday, Oct. 30th
R. R. YORK.

Plymouth, (where Bro. Emery may appoint), Oct. 30th
D. HARRIMAN.

Notices.

Free Sabbath Conference.

The Lord willing, the Maine Quarterly Conference of Free Sabbath Adventists will hold its next session at Portland, Me., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, and continuing over the Sabbath and first day. All lovers of truth are heartily invited to attend. We hear of good Sabbath brethren and sisters in different places, who are spurned from the Battle Creek Association because they cannot co-operate with them in their form of organization. Should the eyes of any such fall on this notice, we say to them, Come, get acquainted with us, and know for yourselves what manner of spirit we are of. This conference is not got up on a principle of strife or contention, but we stand as a people excluded from what is known as the Seventh-day Advent body, because we believe it is our privilege through grace to know for ourselves that we enjoy the gifts and operations of the Holy Ghost; but, free from all hardness, and full of love, we want all our brethren and sisters to come and labor for God, as freely as though we were the only Sabbath body in existence. Our Battle Creek brethren cannot receive us, but we say to every lover of truth, Come. Bro. J. Cranmer, from Michigan, is expected to be with us. Strangers on coming into the city will inquire for Bro. H. A. Weston, 432 Congress street, and he will direct them to places of entertainment.

S. C. HANCOCK.

Any wishing to address me from now to Nov. 6th, will direct to Portland, Me., care of H. A. Weston. S. C. H.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word. JAS. A. LIBBY.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend. N. WHITE.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. GREEN, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. SHELDON.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to Northfield, Mass., can correspond with A. Gage, or Edwin Lyman. J. K. BELLOWS.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. Mulkins—The $2 pays to No. 432. Due to close of last volume, $1.39, and for this volume.

A. Wood—Thurman's Chronology is for sale at this office. Price, by mail, $1.70. The Emphatic Diaglott (2nd edition) will not be out before January; may be had at this office. Price will be announced when received.

S. Griffin—The first paid to No. 430 (not 450); the last to No. 456, as noted.

P. S. W. Deyo—See No. 471.

E. Slager—See No. 472.

G. Dillabaugh—Mrs. S. J.'s was acknowledged in No. 467; pays to No. 505.

C. Faber—Received. See No. 470.

L. A. Wheeler—Received, and acknowledged in No. 471. You did not give your post office. Pays to No. 521.

E. Mulkins—Due at close of last volume, $1.40; $2.65 will pay to close of this volume.

Mrs. H. Babbett—Due at close of last volume, $1.73; $2.98 will pay to the close of this, if paid soon.

H. J. Baldwin—You had previously paid to No. 459; 35c. paid, at the old rates, to the close of last volume, No. 468. The balance, $2.15, pays, at the new rates, to No. 513, as noted.

J. H. Deming—Acknowledged in No. 468. Pays to No. 468.

J. V. Himes—F. R. H.'s club of Pilgrim to Buchanan, (20 copies) is paid to Jan. 1865.

O. D. Woodruff—Your change of appointment came too late.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 473. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount that you owe. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

The remainder of monies received to date (Oct. 25th) will be acknowledged next week. Letters, for several weeks past, have been coming in at the rate of fifty, sixty, and seventy a day. So large an increase of business, and the absence of usual help, has put us some behind in our cash acknowledgments. Brethren will understand that monies cannot be acknowledged until they are credited on the books; and when, from any cause, letters accumulate faster than the monies can be credited, they have to wait their turn until we can get to them. We hope to catch up soon.

$1.00 each.—J. F. Dudley 478, Mrs. J. B. Johnson 482, O. A. Ladd 490, W. Barber 471, A. G. Case 495, J. Sargent 475, P. Webster 492, J Thompson 409, M O Day 478, J J Towsley (old acc't), Wm Mix 490, W J Hoyt 478, Mrs. C. Baldwin 479, J A Dibble 528, J C Atkins 503, R. H. Bolton 533, L A Vaunce 523, F. Evans 384, C S Shaw 479, J C Wetherell 479, O Gregory 490, Mrs D Miner 441, Mrs H Stone 468, Mrs A B Pinkham 494, S Harriman 489, S Snow 472, W Lazell 479, D M Kinter 511, J. N. Taylor 430, S Harrold 431, N A Weaver 498, N Hart 292, L Lyon 480, J O Parker 489, D Oates 490, J T Randall 523, J Sampson 485, E S Coffin 480, G T Clough 489, D B Salter 468, W Bumith 489, M. L. Lawrence 493, John Morrison 431, M A Hodgkins 477, E J Fuller 489, Mrs B Herrick 491, S M Turner 493.

$1.25 each.—W. Vreeland 494, Wm. Tanmore 496, J Mitchell 495, G W Colwell 495, L A Hyde 494, D Chase 490, G Wentworth 495, M Bishop 465, Mrs D O Emerson 496, S. Bailey (what P. O.?), A I Garland 493, J. Turpee 495, Mrs. S. E. Lane 495, Mrs. L. J. Elliott 503, S Blanchard 494, L Hall 494, Dr. S. Freeman 491, Mrs S Hayward 495, H. N. Currie 493, D Graves 497, H H Haynes 491, D V Cosey 491, E O White 496, T Caswell 494, S Barton 516, E Griffin 496, C Lewis 478, W Chapin 493, S Arnold (what P. O.?), M H Garland 493, R McFadden 484, J. P. Blaisdell 494, B. Perkins 500, T. Woodard 489, J C Christenson 493, M C Scott 505, E Whiting 507, Mrs. R. Williams 493, C. W. Cooch 494, Mrs S E Fenton 494, I Niece 491, M Vandermark 571, J. F. Crowl 499, J. W. Jewett 494, J P Palmer 499, C H Hazen 499, H. Deyo 498, A. E. Deyo 499, B Devereux 494, Mrs. A B Angell 499, S Goodrich 493, A M Allen 495, R E Bryant 495, T Gooch 494, J Merrill 494, D C Tourtellot 495, C Colony 494, S A Jenness 496, S Brewer 497, Mrs. H. R. Howell 496, C. Work 494, A Hicks 495, W Colburn Jr. 496, Mrs C N Sanford 495, W W Joslyn 495, J Bates 491, J W Gregory 495, N C Locke 496, S. A. Miller 491, H. Pebbles 496, B Sampson 497, C L Sweet 497, J H Perkins 497, Jas Gedding 496, J B Adams 496, J D Flagg 498.

$2.00 each.—A. Baker 510, S. Marsh 469, J H Lamb 486, M A Sawyer 379, G M Tanner 501, J M Anderson 488, J Purrington 504, C Phillips Jr 510, B. Chappell 494, H O G Sweet 506, S L Bently 439, A B Thompson Sr. 494, S S. Tittemore 479, C Chandler 486, L Orcutt 506, S. J. Cratt 489, E. Wilkins 432, P. Rice 476, P. C. Goodale 489, Mrs. O. Young 514, Mrs. L. Horton (old acc't), H Gibbs 508, A Keley 508, D Ballou 481, J Danforth 499, I Atkins 510, M Hoyt 491, E Wakeman 490, W Smith 499, L Alley 494, C B Keith 510, L Lane 483, C E Perry 511, R Hammond 493, A H Clark 505, W E Ball 521, W. J. Collins 511, S Hewitt 507, J F Darling 500, W. P. Holton 489, E S Hinds 481, D. Fowler 488, [illegible]

S. R. Walt $2.72, 486; C. M. Wood $2.32, 491; W. Hovey $2.50, 486; [illegible]

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

I K Lombard $3.10, J K Bellows $7.60, B A Prescott $2.00, A W Griggs $2.10, T W Piper $2.40, C S Bourne $2.00, G. S. Gordon $2.00, H. J. Mansfield $1.21, W. Rowerth $1.80, G S Pilot 50c, W Rowerth $1.70, Mrs. T. B. Northrup 45c, L Chamberlain 50c, H Rockwell $1.00, C Bussell 50c, W T Fisher $1.30, C Gardner 73c, N Bancroft $1.60, S Hall $1.70, J Card $1.70, L Smith $1.70, D C Terry $1.70, L Lord $1.70, A W Tyler $1.70, A Raymond $1.20, J Stockwell Jr $1.70, S Harper 50c, M A Cork $1.70, G W Burnham 80c, Mrs R S Randall $1.50, E B Coen 50c, W S Olmsted $1.70, G Chambers $1.50, H. Rockwell $1.00, C. Colony 65c, D M Kinter $1.50, A E Clark $1.00, C B Danks 70c, D N Utter 65c, E. Melcher 50c, J C Rogers $1.70, F Jeffrey $1.70, F. B. Jones $1.70, A. C. Knowlton $1.70, J K Bellows $1.64, J Lyle $1.70, J D Hancock 65c, J W Sauford $1.50, E. Miller 25c, G B Whitford $1.20, C B Danks 30c, J Bailey $1.70, B. J. Totten $2.25, M. G. Day $1.20, J. Locke $1.70, B. Perham $1.50, L K Gaines $1.60, J Hooper $1.70.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—M A Cook, A E Babcock, S Hall, J Card, S Smith, D C Terry, L Lord, A W Taylor, J Stockwell Jr., W. S. Olmsted, A. C. Knowlton, W F. Collier, J C Rogers, F B Jones, J. Sampson, E Melcher, J. Bates, D N Utter, S Chambers, A B Martin, C B Danks, M D Rosy, H Rockwell, C. Colony, D M Kinter, E Sweet, F. Daugherty, E Miller, J A Stafford, J. D. Hancock, J Lyle, E A Prescott, G B Whitford, C B Danks, A G W Smith, B. Bailey, J. Locke, M G Day, L A Davis, E Somers, W Devereaux, J Morrison, L K Gaines, L J Hooper, B. Perham, Mrs. H. M. Butters, E P Conner, Miss S Hodsdon, J M Tozier, J A Libby, W. Kenaly, L C McKinstry.

BY EXPRESS.—I. C. Wellcome (2 pkges), J. Carr W. Rowerth, B J Totten, W Johnston.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J Knowles, J. L. Hersey, D. G. M., J. W. Taylor, M. Stratton, M B Czechowski, B P French, H Winchell, H Bradley, I C Wellcome, D T Taylor, M Phettepiace, J Hemenway, L R Otis, S Griffin.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.

J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River, P. O., Nova Scotia.

Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

Wm. Forrester—Eddytown, N. Y.

John T. Ongley—After the 1st of Oct., Little Cooley, Crawford Co., Pa.

W. Sibley—East Boston, Mass.

[illegible] Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

O. R. Fassett—Sandy Hill, N. Y.

I. C. McKinstry—Hatley, C. E.

Jas. S. Heath—Neponset, Bureau Co., Ill.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jos. T. Curry. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; [illegible]

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church........25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man. 25c.
Reasons for my Hope........20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion........20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly........20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul. 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doc. of Future Life. 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church. 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single........10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history [illegible]
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History [illegible]
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an [illegible]
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the [illegible]
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenon [illegible]
9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]
10. The History of an Immortal Soul. [illegible]
11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full reference. Morocco, [illegible]
2. PEARL, flat, full reference. [illegible]

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Social Hymns.

Original and selected, by H. L. H. [illegible] Address H. L. HASTINGS [illegible]

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

WHEN THE PILGRIMAGE IS OVER.

AIR—"When this cruel war is over."

Oh! the night is dark and dreary,
Wearisome the way;
But we know 'tis always darkest
Just before the day!
Then cheer up, cheer up, lone pilgrim,
Angels guard the way;
Cast, oh! cast your cares on Jesus,—
Don't forget to pray.

CHORUS. Weeping here in sorrow,
Sometimes all alone,
Praying when this pilgrimage is over,
That we may go home!

What though 'mid life's hard fought battle
Some of us do fall?
We believe that when 'tis morning
One for us will call.
We shall wake where we are sleeping,
In the land or sea;
Oh! what heavenly joys and greetings
Will our portion be.

We shall meet with those who've loved us,
We shall clasp the hand,—
We shall know them, they will know us,
In the better land.
How we long sometimes to see them
In eternal bloom,—
We must wait till Jesus brings them
From the silent tomb.

Keep, oh! keep us, dear Redeemer,
By thy bleeding side;
May we never, never leave thee,—
Thou for us hast died.
Oh! how sweet 'twill be to hear thee
Saying to us, "Come!
Come! ye blessed of my Father,
Children, now come home!"

CHORUS. Weeping then is over,
Sorrow all unknown,
Sighing, and our pilgrimage, is over,—
We are safe at home!

J. N. BERRY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HAND.

Isaiah saith, "Strengthen ye the weak hands." 35: 3. This was not spoken by the will of the prophet, but as he was moved by the Holy Ghost. And Paul saith, "Howbeit, in the Spirit he speaketh mysteries." 1 Cor. 14: 2. Then it was no more the man that spoke, but the Spirit, or God, spoke through him, using him as an instrument. The Lord, or the Spirit, of course spoke figuratively. Weak hands are not so literally, but spiritually. There is no reference to a rheumatic hand, but to a spiritual, of which there are fitting and expressive types and figures.

What do we gather from the figure? What is intimated by the expression weak hands? What is the hand? What is the special bearing of this familiar comparison? Is not the hand the most important and useful member of our body? Doth it not perform many indispensable offices? Should we not be crippled and maimed without it?

What is there then in grace which corresponds to this important member of our body, distinguishing feature of man by which he is especially removed from the level of the brute and by which he executes the commands of his mind? May we not say that faith, that master fruit of the Spirit, that queen of grace, that most important member of the new man, is represented here and elsewhere by the hand? The hand hath certain important offices to perform, too innumerable to mention, but a few may throw light upon this subject. The main office of the hand is to take hold of, or grasp, an object.

Is there not in the office of faith something analagous to this? What saith the Lord? "Let him take hold of my strength, that he may make peace with me." There is then a taking hold of God's strength; is not this by faith? Is there any other grace then of the Spirit which takes hold of the Lord, as Jacob took hold of the wrestling angel, or as Peter, when he was sinking, took hold of the hand of Jesus? "Lay hold on eternal life," is Paul's charge to Timothy. But how is eternal life, and especially Jesus, the life, laid hold of, except by faith? He that believeth on me, saith Jesus, hath everlasting life. He doth it by laying hold of it. So also we read of fleeing for refuge to lay hold upon the hope that is set before us. Heb. 6: 18. In the old time, when the cities of refuge were appointed for those that had done any crime worthy of death, one would run for the cities of refuge, and when his hand grasped the gate he was safe. So guilty sinners flee to Christ for refuge, and by faith lay hold on the hope that is set before them in the gospel of the grace of God.

The hand is the main thing by which the soldier fights. Is not the christian experience compared in the Scriptures to a battle? "Fight the good fight of faith." The christian is compared to a soldier. "Thou, therefore, endure hardship as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." 2 Tim. 2: 3. But if the soldier have no hand, can he grasp the sabre or hold the musket? No. Can I grasp the spiritual weapon, can I take the shield of faith and wield the sword of the Spirit, if I have not faith? Well, we must put on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. We have a conflict to maintain, a battle to fight, foot to foot, shoulder to shoulder, against foes without and foes within self, satan and the world. But to go into this terrible battle without faith, is like a soldier going to battle without a hand. The first blow with the sabre would cut him down.

It is by the hand that we receive what is needful for our daily support. The beggar received by his hands the alms that were dropped into it. Is it not so in grace? We are all paupers, and we have to be thankful to receive of God what he is pleased to give bountifully unto us; for favors, mercies, blessings, tokens, promises, are the gracious alms which the Lord bestows on his spiritual paupers. When given they are received by faith. There is a receiving of Christ, but only by faith; so there is a receiving of Christ's testimony. John 3: 16. Receiving out of his fulness. John 1: 16. A receiving the word in much affliction, with joy in the Holy Ghost. 1 Thess. 1: 6. And a receiving a love of the truth. But it is all received by faith, and by faith alone these blessings are received.

Our hand, or rather the fingers of our hand, are the chief instrument of touch, therefore of feeling. A faith without feeling is a dead faith. A dead hand is a corpse. A living faith can no more exist without feeling, than does a living hand without feeling. Those that give us a dead faith without the feeling, give us a skeleton, or a hand without muscles to move it, nerves to influence it, or blood to animate it. By the hand we feed ourselves, dress ourselves, and perform the various parts of employments through life, from the queen who holds the sceptre down to the ploughman who holds the plough.

All the duties of social life are performed by the hand. Without the hand man would be lower than the lowest beast. With it he can subdue the earth and replenish it. ...

faith is the main thing that a spiritual man hath to get along with, and without it he could do nothing; for by grace, through faith, he is saved. Therefore strengthen your faith by adding to faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. 2 Pet. 1: 5—7. Adding these things to our faith, will strengthen it, and make us fruitful in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and fit us to labor in His vineyard.

H. H. CLANEY.

For the World's Crisis.

MINISTER TO JESUS.

Yes, you can, when you please, as often as you please. Holy women ministered to the wants of Jesus personally. See Matt. 27: 55, 56. We can do the same now. They, doubtless, deemed it a great privilege, unspeakable, to provide for his comfort, supply him food and raiment, a place to lay his weary head. Martha and Mary, the sisters of Lazarus, in Bethany, received the blessed Savior joyfully; welcomed him to their humble abode, spread their table with nice things—the very best their circumstances would afford. The distant approach of Jesus to their lowly dwelling was hailed with gladness of heart. To minister thus to such a guest was an unspeakable privilege.

Reader, do you desire this blessedness? do you wish to entertain your Lord, who came to seek and save that which was lost?—who made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is? You can, if you will. "Ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will, ye may do them good."—Mark 14: 7. In ministering to the poor, you minister to Jesus. "Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward." Matt. 10: 42. "God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have showed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister."—Heb. 6: 10. What saith Jesus to those on his right hand, in Matt 25: 34? "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Wherefore?

"I was hungry, and ye gave me meat;
I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink;
I was a stranger, and ye took me in;
I was naked, and ye clothed me;
I was sick, and ye visited me;
I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

SCATTERED TRUTHS.

GATHERED BY R. A. A.

The wise man does not speak of all he does, but he does nothing that cannot be spoken of.

All pleasures wear out but the pleasure of doing good.

Words are the daughters of the mind, but actions are the sons of the soul.

Kindness is the golden chain by which society is bound together.

A saint on his knees will see further than a philosopher on tiptoe.

Wise sayings, often fall to the ground, but a kind word is never thrown away.

A judicious silence is always better than truth spoken without charity.

The truths that we least wish to hear, are those which it is most for our advantage to know.

The less indulgence we have for ourselves, the more we shall have for others.

One day is worth three to him who does everything in its proper time.

Sunshine is made up of very little rays of light, which are bright all the time.

Happiness is composed of very small streaks of good nature which radiate joy continually.

If a man goes to God one yard in the darkness, God will come miles to meet him in the blazing sunlight.

God does not send us avalanches of good things, but gives us daily bread.

Three kinds of talk are profitable—The Bible, God's talk to men; Prayer, men's talk to God; and men's holy talk to one another.

Manchester, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE OLD MAN."

"Have you seen the 'Old Man'?" Not long since, while waiting at the post-office for the opening of the mail, I heard the above remark, which directed my mind into a channel of thought in relation to the carnal man denominated by Paul the "old man." It called up to my mind some very unpleasant introductions that I had received to his majesty in times past. I am not disposed to backbite, hence I pen a few thoughts for the Crisis, hoping that the old man, or at least some of his friends, may profit by reading a little of his history.

He is old, and about six thousand years' experience in folly and wickedness has not made him any more like a christian than he was when he killed Abel through envy. He is an enemy of God, and is opposed to all that is godlike. He is a liar, a murderer, selfish, cruel, and a hateful fellow; not satisfied with his own hatefulness, he delights in making others hateful like himself; hence he seeks to divide families and brethren by his jealousy and evil surmisings.

Brother, are you any acquainted with him? Do you ever entertain him? If so, you know his evil workings. He sometimes professes to be a preacher, and then he is so self-conceited and puffed up he will disgust any christian assembly. He is bigoted and self-righteous, and would no more think of associating with any but those of his faith, than a Pharisee would of recognizing the Publican as a brother. He sometimes gets into good christian society, and is very zealous for the faith of the saints, and his manner of defending the faith is to abuse every church and minister that does not entertain his peculiar view of the gospel. He is very successful in driving sensible people away from meeting, and has disgusted many good preachers (when he rules), so that they will not visit the people, and the result is, many of the people of God are perishing for the want of the sincere milk of the word.

He is a great lover of doctrine, but practical gospel order and decency are a terror to him. He has no reverence for God's word, or interest for the prosperity of his cause,—only when it will gratify his hateful propensity. Finally, it would take a volume to describe him in full, and tell of the many ways in which he stands opposed to the advancement of the cause of God.

Have you seen the "old man," reader? How do you like his company? I have seen him in respectable society, full of all evil, snarling and finding fault with the preaching and people, and stirring up strife and hatred. I have seen him get angry and scold because the truth developed his evil intentions. Have heard him rail against good brethren because he was not thought as much of as they were. He thinks ignorance is bliss, and folly to be wise, and preaches that the ministers who have to study their sermons are "backslidden" and "God-forsaken preachers." A good, sound, logical, gospel sermon to him is formal and dry. A sermon full of witty jokes and hard sayings, with no reverence for God or respect for the feelings of the people, is the gospel in power and demonstration of the Spirit. He loves to preach something new, providing he can make divisions and be a leader of a party. Reader, beware of him! In your family, in the prayer meeting, in the pulpit, give him no place; starve him. Says Paul, "Make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof."

J. H.

For the World's Crisis.

LOVE.

Love is the great commandment
That Jesus Christ did give;
It shows how each and every one
In this vain world should live.

Love to thy friend and neighbor,
And all thy foes the same;
Love to them as to thyself,
And love for Jesus' name.

Providence, R. I. CHARLES H. SWEET.

For the World's Crisis.

UNPLEASANT ODORS.

Some persons have naturally an unpleasant odor arising from their persons, and are in consequence of it despised by others who are more fortunate. Some there are also who have in their garments the odor of honest trades and occupations, and even these are regarded with disfavor by many. There are others who smell well enough naturally, but who besprinkle themselves with essences, oils, and ointments, until they foul the air all around them.

Others still stink up their bodies, their breath, their clothes, their beds, their houses, their hearths, yes, and all the air around them, with that meanest of all stinks, tobacco. I can hardly walk through the street anywhere without being annoyed and sickened by this pestiferous odor. When I see one of these civilized skunks approaching, I hold my breath till he is past me. So I escape a little of this common odor that arises from tobacco-using ragamuffins, Reverends, and rascals, and try to secure my share of decent air to breathe.

By the way, our friend, George Trask, of Fitchburg, Mass., keeps pegging away at this curse, and trying to abate the nuisance and make some of these odoriferous gentry smell sweet as other folks. Send to him and get some of his pointed, pithy, anti-rum, and anti-tobacco tracts, including those that have a picture of a smoking monkey, for your boy who wants a cigar so he can be a man!

H. L. H.

For the World's Crisis.

CELESTA, AND ITS PROBABLE FATE.

It does not appear from the New Testament account of the community system that it ever prevailed beyond Jerusalem and its vicinity among early Christians, nor that it was maintained there during the apostolic period. Nor can we say that the community of brethren at Jerusalem, under Peter and others, presented a more encouraging aspect to the cause of Christ than the system of isolated families under Paul, whose labors were more abundant than they all, and who so often contributed to the wants of the "poor saints at Jerusalem."

And if we come down to modern times we find the community system frequently tried by various religious parties, but as often proved impracticable, and generally a failure. The Shakers for a time made some stir, and increased in numbers; but they have never done much for religion, and are now a blank in this respect. The Cochranites came out from the Freewill Baptists, adopting this system, but soon passed into fanaticism and sensualism, disgracing the cause of Christ. A few years ago a class broke off from the Adventists under the leadership of Jonathan Cummings, but after the experience of a year or more, and dearly bought experience, too, with some of them, they found that they were pursuing the wrong road, and left him to himself. Such has been the general course of such schemes in modern times, and a similar result I have no doubt awaits the Celesta community.

I will not impeach the motives of Bro. Armstrong. I see nothing that could do it. I judge him to be a sincere, upright man. But he is the victim of a strange infatuation, which we might pass by in silence, did it not promise to draw others into its snare, to the hazard of their eternal interests. He wrote to me some weeks before his paper came out, urging me to join them, and stating that they were about to start a paper, intimating that he would like to have me assist in the work, supposing more similarity in our views than really existed. From his letter, and the other writings accompanying it, I discovered that a vein of fanaticism mingled with presumption ran through the whole scheme. He complained to me that Bro. Grant had not published everything he had sent him about Celesta. I commend him for his discretion. We can not thrive on spoiled meat.

He says in his letter to me that "there's no need of one's dying in this age." Such fanaticism needs only to be mentioned that it may be shunned. He says further, "We are about taking another important step, and that is, making this place a Theocracy, which we think is our liberty and duty if we wish a place of defense against your coming struggle, which we believe is just at hand." If I understand him in his paper, he regards this Theocracy the stone kingdom of Dan. 2d. In his letter to me he says that in Celesta they will be "refugees in the stronghold of Almighty God, and they may draft and parole, and exercise all the authority the remaining sands of time will let them, they can neither get a man nor a dollar from this place." "I wrote a letter to Mr. Lincoln in which I bade a meek defiance to conscription and even death." He says further, "They'll find Celesta a burdensome stone if they attempt to stop the ark of God. . . . We feel that we've grasped the hand of Omnipotence, and men and devils must clear the track."

If any one can read these extracts without discovering a tone of presumption and fanaticism pervading the whole, with such I'll have no controversy; but when a body of such people, breathing such a spirit, maintaining such claims, and proposing such a policy of action, come in contact with the enforcement of just laws in a rightful way, the days of their Celesta scheme will be numbered, and they may think themselves lucky if they escape the mad-house.

My brethren, if you love God's cause, save it from such a disgrace. If you love your eternal interests, do not hazard them in such a wild scheme. But if you want to add to the reproaches of God's cause, here is a good opportunity. I say, then, Beware of Celesta! And when her sun shall set, for it surely will, do not let it be to your shame.

I. K. LOMBARD.

A DIALOGUE.

THE SHADY SIDE OF ITINERANCY.

BY HEATHER BELL.

SEWING CIRCLE. Characters—A number of ladies and gentlemen; ladies knitting, etc.

Mrs. Gale, President. [Ringing her bell.] It is well known, ladies, that this is our annual meeting, and I forbid you using my name in our nominations, for I positively decline taking any office whatever.

Mrs. Field. I suggest, Mrs. President, that if there be any honor in your office we confer it upon the minister's wife, as she has only two children, and he might think we slighted his wife if we don't.

Mrs. Sly. A pretty President she would make—if I should only tell what Mr. Foxy said about her.

Mrs. Gale. Do tell, Mrs. Sly, just in confidence, you know, it is all in the society.

Mrs. Sly. Well, if you must know, he said we'd got a trial.

Mrs. Field. Why, is she a mischief-maker?

Mrs. Sly. No.

Mrs. Love. Is she extravagant?

Mrs. Sly. No, but she keeps the lowest company. He told me she went to a poor drunkard's house and asked him to sign the pledge; only think of it.

Mrs. G. That will never do; we expect our minister's wife to be a pattern of refinement for the young ladies. Only think of my daughter imitating that.

Mrs. Field. How did you like him last Sunday?

Mrs. L. Superficial!

Mrs. Joy. Shallow!

Mrs. Bird. Flat!

Mrs. Field. I didn't like his manner; he is too proud.

Mrs. L. I don't see what he's got to feel proud of, without it's his green umbrella.

Mrs. Precise. Didn't I get that feather off her bonnet slick, though?

Mrs. Strong. She didn't show a bit of temper; we can govern her just as we like.

Mrs. G. Did you take that feather off? Feathers are genteel; you'll never draw genteel people in that way.

Mrs. L. I do wish Mr. Foxy was here tonight; he'd have us in a roar of laughter in less than no time.

Mrs. J. Wish I could see his black eyes shine—glorious eyes.

Mrs. Strong. Didn't he have a fine lot of poultry? Shanghais and Cochin Chinas. I know people talked about his having them, but he had a passion for it, dear man.

Mr. Joy. [Entering.] What are all these women talking about—some mischief in the wind.

Mrs. G. Hush, somebody's coming; perhaps it's them. [Enter Mr. and Mrs. Forrester accompanied by Mrs. Shady.]

Mrs. G. Good evening, Mr. Forrester; you are late; we deferred our business till your arrival.

Mr. F. I am sorry to hinder you in the least. Did you wish me to open the meeting?

Mrs. G. O no, but we elect our officers tonight.

Mr. G. [Coming forward.] Sir, they say you are a revivalist preacher.

Mr. F. I certainly love to see the cause of the Lord revived in every possible way.

Mr. G. Well, there's a member in our church, a wealthy man and a good fellow, too, so long as the church remains calm and undisturbed, but the moment you get up a revival he'll denounce you, the church and everything else.

Mr. F. I suppose Bro. Foxy didn't trouble him that way?

Mr. G. O no indeed; we told him how matters stood, and he was very cautious. You wouldn't want to hear this brother's thunder more than once.

Mr. F. Nor would I; if there were anxious souls at the altar I would ask him to pray for them.

Mr. G. He never prays in public.

Mr. F. Well, if he has courage thus to denounce the church and not pray aloud, you may be sure he prays very little in private, and the sooner you are rid of him the better.

Mr. J. One thing in your prayer last Sunday I didn't just like.

Mr. F. What thing, if you please?

Mr. J. Why, when you prayed for the slave you didn't pray just as if 'twas your own daughter standing on the auction block. Mr. Foxy was very bitter against slavery.

Mr. F. In the pulpit?

Mr. J. No, he was non-committal there, but when we talked about it privately no man could use stronger terms.

Mr. F. Well, perhaps I shall use as strong terms against slavery both in and out of the pulpit as you'll want to hear.

Mr. J. You must, sir, if you mean to keep me. You must hate the whole South with a perfect hatred, or I'll leave.

Mrs. J. And I'll stay. I've moved twice to please you, sir, and if I should go now, in three months you would have another flare-up and start again.

Mr. J. I can sell my pew.

Mrs. J. If you do I will buy it.

Mrs. F. Do you sustain your other social meetings as well as this?

Mrs. Field. A few of the old folks go to prayer meeting, I believe.

Mrs. F. And how many classes have you?

Mrs. G. O, class meeting is all out of fashion. I never thought them much better than confessional boxes, and they are a great hindrance in the way of genteel people who wish to go to heaven.

Mr. F. Some people will be too genteel to get there, I fear.

Mrs. G. I wish, Mr. Forrester, if it would be proper for a lady to remark about your sermon—I wish—

Mr. F. Certainly, ma'am—proceed.

Mrs. G. Well, sir, I noticed that you said hell three times in your sermon. Now, sir, such talk as that will drive genteel people away from our society.

Mr. F. I found that word, ma'am, in an old-fashioned but not very genteel book, called the Bible.

Mrs. F. I notice you do not say brother and sister here.

Mrs. B. Why no; did they where you come from? It's very unfashionable.

Mrs. G. It's not genteel.

Mr. G. It's no use talking, Mr. Forrester, we must keep up appearances; if you want a full house you must advertise. Write me a little note for next Sabbath, that you will preach on some flaming subject, like Belshazzar or the great dragon, and I'll see it in the paper.

Mr. F. Never, sir! I'd scorn to draw an audience with any such clap-trap as that.

Mr. G. Then you'll lose your congregation. Sir, I know some very genteel families disaffected by your sermon last Sabbath.

Mr. F. Be it so, then; people who cannot bear the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ in plain honest English, are no help to this or any other church.

Mrs. L. [handing him a note.] Mr. Forrester, you are requested to give an address before the Female Penitent's Society next Friday evening.

Mrs. Shady. And, sir, I was chosen a delegate to invite you to be present at our Maternal Association next Thursday afternoon. Of course all the ministers present are expected to make a few remarks.

Mr. B. And it will be our minister's turn to preach at the almshouse next Sunday, at 5 o'clock.

Mr. F. My friends, to meet all your demands a man would need a cast iron frame, India-rubber lungs, and leathern feelings.

Mrs. G. [Ringing the bell.] Let us proceed to business. You heard the Secretary's report the first of the evening; it is time to choose the officers for the coming year; will you nominate for President?

Mrs. Precise. Mrs. Forrester.

Mrs. Sly. I second the nomination.

Mrs. G. All in favor of Mrs. Forrester's serving you as President please to manifest it.

[Half raise their hands.]

Mrs. G. Contrary minded.

[No negatives.]

Mr. G. Mrs. Forrester is elected.

Mrs. F. I firmly but respectfully decline the office.

Mrs. G. Will the ladies excuse her? [Voice—No excuse.]

Mr. F. The ladies will be obliged to excuse Mrs. Forrester. The position apparently cannot be a pleasant one to any lady, and it is cruel to thus force it upon a stranger.

Mrs. G. Well, if our preacher's wife cannot help us bear our burdens, I'd like to know who will? Will the ladies nominate?

Mrs. S. Mrs. Gale.

Mrs. G. I positively forbid your using my name. I promised Mr. Foxy if he'd come back the third year, I would serve; now I don't intend to be present again. I wait a nomination.

Mrs. Sly. Mrs. Shady.

Mrs. S. I would not hold the office on any account whatever.

Mrs. Sly. Wait till you are voted in. Mrs. Field.

Mrs. Field. No, ma'am. You knew my mind before I came. I don't believe you can find a president here to-night.

Mrs. G. Then the society may all go to smash. I said it would, when Mr. Foxy left. Come, Mr. Gale, I'm going. You won't see me here again in a hurry.

Mrs. L. Well, if all the genteel people are going, I shall go. Good night.

[Nearly all go out; some say good night, and some do not.]

Mrs. Faith. [A quiet little woman.] It is very unpleasant, brother; I wish I could help you.

Mr. F. And why can't you?

Mrs. Faith. O, I can do so little.

Mr. F. You ought to be thankful you know it. I have seen people who do not. I'd rather have one of Christ's little ones, than a whole church full of those who straighten up and say, I and Christ can do everything.

Mrs. F. Frank, did you see that subscription paper to send Mr. Foxy to the Holy Land?

Mr. F. They'll send me to the Holy Land without any subscription, the way my head and heart are aching. Come, Annie, we will go, and I'll make an effort to-morrow to find five praying souls in Shady Valley.—Zion's Herald.

THE GOOD PASTOR.

He visits his people frequently, stirs about actively in his congregation, visits from house to house, drops a kind word of exhortation, consolation, prayer and praise, notices the little ones affectionately, and gains their confidence. He takes a peep into their libraries, examines the contents of books and papers, points out danger, exhorts parents and children to beware of Satan's transformations, and abstain from all appearance of evil. He sees that family altars are reared, and that children are duly trained up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. He makes no distinction between the high, the low, the rich, the poor, bond or free, save that he condescends especially to men of low estate; the poor, afflicted, and the oppressed, demand particularly his prayerful sympathy and commiseration. Whenever a sheep wanders from the fold of Christ, he makes diligent search till he finds it and restores it to the Good Shepherd.

Nor are his visitations confined to his own charge; he goes out into by-places, lanes and alleys, and gathers in the outcasts, that God's house may be filled. O what a blessing is such a pastor! Surely when the Good Shepherd shall appear, he will receive the bright crown of glory "that fadeth not away."

LITTLE SAVINGS AND LITTLE WASTINGS.

"Trifles make the sum of human things." A "penny saved is two pence earned," says Poor Richard. It is well, then, to look to the little savings, and avoid in household and farm economy little wastings, which with careless managers are continually occurring.

Don't throw away the ashes, leached or unleached; they are a valuable fertilizer; and, speaking of ashes, how handy it is always to have a leach ready for use, a good substantial affair—not a tumble-down old barrel; always to be able to have a supply of good lye for washing, cleaning, or making soap.

Have a care to save all your waste paper; it is worth from four to eight cents per pound.

Save all the rags; the best of them for mattresses, cushions, rugs, and carpeting, and all you can use no other way, for paper-rags.

Hang a small bag in a convenient place, to receive all the shreds from the sweeping, etc.

Let the children make patchwork quilts of bits of calico; and of bits of silk a pretty cover for the top of a homemade work-stand may be pieced up.

Make aprons of the back breadths of calico dresses when the rest is worn out.

Put the abandoned old shoes and all other waste animal matter on the compost heap; also slops which the cow and pig will not eat.

Mend the broken crockery, if you can, for kitchen use.

Don't let fruit go to waste; there is a market for surplus dried fruit.

When making preserves, put the rinsings of your kettle in a cask, or jug of molasses and water, for vinegar.

Take care of all the ripe tomatoes. Many are sometimes wasted on the ground. Preserve, pickle, make catsup, dry, salt down in brine; feed out any that are left, or wash out the seed, keeping varieties distinct, and sell it. Green tomatoes are good in various ways, but probably not very wholesome.

Do not let bread mold; work up the pieces into pudding and pancakes.

Make baked Indian pudding of cold hasty pudding.—Amer. Agricul.

SHAVING THE BEARD.—The fashion of shaving the beard was first introduced into Greece about the time of Alexander the Great. It was first, however, regarded as a mark of effeminacy, and was only practiced by low persons and fobs. The great musician Timotheus wore a very long beard; and Diogenes one day meeting a man with a closely shaven chin, inquired of him whether he shaved as a reproach to nature for having made him a man and not a woman? They did not charge twenty-five cents a shave in those days.

☞ Luther's counsel to a candidate was contained in these words: "Go boldly into the pulpit, open your mouth like a man, and be brief."

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the World's Crisis.

ETTA AND HER PETS.

"Come, Tommy, I am going to read a Psalm this evening; therefore you must come into the sitting-room and take a chair, and behave yourself respectfully during the exercises"; said Etta to one of her pet cats.

Etta D— is a good little girl. She is the only child of a wealthy farmer, and is the pet of the household. Being caressed so much by others, she has a great fondness for caressing every domestic animal on the premises. She has a pet horse, a pet dog, and two cats, besides lambs and calves. "Old Dolly" (the pet horse) never comes to the door to take her young mistress to ride, without receiving many caresses from Etta; and very well does Dolly know the fact that she will get a kiss on her soft velvet nose, as Etta calls it, and something good to eat from her little hand. As soon as Dolly sees her little mistress, she will prick up her ears and keep neighing until she receives her rations, and then she will frolic around her, seeming to say, "I will now take you to ride to any place you may wish to go."

There are none of her pets which receive so much attention as her dog and two cats, whom she calls by their names, Rover, Prinny, and Tommy. Each receive their accustomed meal from her hand. Each receive her gentle rebuke when they have been naughty, and each are equally praised when they have been good. If they are present in the morning when she leaves for school, she very pleasantly bids them good morning, and tells them to be good until her return. After school at night she greets each one with a kiss, and asks them if they have been good during her absence, telling them if they have been good they may go to walk with her after tea.

After tea Ella may be seen running over the hills and through the valleys, with her little dog and two cats playfully running by her side. When their sport is over they return to the house. Etta calls them into the sitting-room; each knows his own seat,—Rover taking a chair by the table on the front side of the room, the two cats sitting opposite each other in another part of the room, while Etta sings a hymn and reads a portion of Scripture and repeats the Lord's Prayer.

The evening I have alluded to, Tommy, the youngest cat, being a little roguish, jumped from his chair and ran to the open window, then turned his head around toward his mistress and looked her in the face, seeming to say, "I had much rather walk, now, than attend the family altar." MARY LAMPREY.

Mast Yard, N. H.

A STORY FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

THE SICKNESS OF BERQUIN.

Dear little children, who read this sketch, remember it is the story of a man, talented and honored, who made it the object of his life to win the love of children; to write stories suited to their age and wants; to gather them around him, and by a thousand anecdotes and tales lead them to love the good and pure, and reject the evil and false.

The cherished guide of the little ones, who won their love and merited their confidence, whose numerous works bore the well-deserved title of the "Children's Friend," Berquin, was subject to terrible attacks of illness.

Living in the heart of Paris, devoted to his pen, he spent daily many hours in writing, while the close air of the city deprived him of that most precious relaxation, the long country walk. Yet in his modest room at the hotel he was able to enjoy his greatest pleasure, intercourse with children. Every day, when he came to the steps, ready for a walk, his little neighbors came to greet him, clinging to his hands, skipping on before him, till they reached the large garden of a neighboring chateau, where their friend would share their sports and gather from their own lips material for the pretty tales which charmed them. As soon as he appeared in the streets the children would cry: "Mr. Berquin! Here comes our friend!" The little girls would shyly offer their flowers gathered for him, and sometimes already wilted in their little hands, while more daring urchins clambered by his clothes till their arms encircled his neck and they were pressing kisses on his cheeks and lips.

It was by such love that he became the hero of the following little story, which he himself esteemed his greatest reward for his exertions in behalf of children's happiness.

For several years Berquin had endeavored to persuade his aged and dearly loved mother to leave her home in Bordeaux and visit him in Paris, but the old lady clung to her home, her old friends, and her daily habits, and was hardly won to pay the much desired visit. At last, however, she consented, longing herself to see the son whose love was the greatest comfort of her old age.

Berquin, in his impatient delight, counted the days and hours that must elapse before he could clasp his mother in his arms. To make her stay longer, and her desire to return weaker, he took pains to furnish a room in the hotel exactly similar to her apartment in Bordeaux. The Hungarian tapestry, the Japan vases, the tiny crucified Christ hanging above the desk for prayer, the bookcase filled with her favorite authors, the drapery of the bed, and even the pictures, were chosen to match those which dwelt in his memory of "Mother's Room." Nothing was forgotten that could add to the surprise and delight of his guest, or cause her to forget that she was in the heart of a large city.

But the pious and filial love of Berquin could not bring his mother to his side. On the very day when she proposed to start for Paris she was attacked by a sudden and fatal malady, and the day which should have brought her to her son, only gave him the tidings of her death.

This sudden blow, following such happy anticipations, proved too severe for the author's enfeebled health. He sank into a state of melancholy from which nothing could arouse him. In vain the children came to his side, questioning, caressing, and reproaching him. He only put them aside, while his tearless, glaring eyes and pallid face terrified them. All day he sat silent, sad, and idle, his hands folded before him, his eyes fixed on vacancy; all night he tossed from side to side, muttering in delirium of the mother gone from him, till a terrible fever prostrated him and called for the attendance of a physician.

The celebrated Des Essarts, who was surnamed the Children's Doctor, offered his services to their friend, and found recovery almost hopeless. This terrible news spreading through the neighborhood caused the utmost alarm and consternation. Every hour the door of the hotel was besieged by children of every age; they posted themselves at the corners of the street to entreat the drivers not to let the carts and carriages pass the door, while some of the older ones, raising a collection among themselves, bought straw and spread it thickly over the stones to deaden every sound in the street. It would have been supposed that a rich nobleman was ill, and money profusely spent to purchase such quiet, but it was only a simple author, modest and beloved, whose repose was purchased by the tears and prayers of loving children.

The seventh day of his illness was the one upon which the doctor rested most hope and fear. All day he remained near the bed, and proposed to return for the night.

"Berquin," he said, "is confided to my care by public esteem and childhood's love. He is so precious a charge that no fatigue of mine shall be spared to restore him to his sphere of usefulness."

At sunset the doctor took up his post for the night, and the children came to their places. One group in the entry guarded the door, kept back all intruders, and prevented all unnecessary passing to and fro; another at the street entrance answered all inquiries, and implored the guests to mount the staircase quietly, while a third in the street made passers-by respect the loved invalid. Only lowered voices and quiet steps were to be heard. Morning dawned, when the doctor opened the door, saying to the group waiting there:

"Berquin is saved!"

Every voice repeated the words, while the little ones knelt, kissing the doctor's hand, and many wept for joy.

"Softly," he said, moved himself, "softly my little friends, remember the least noise, the least disturbance may make a change."

At this caution they stole down stairs to whisper the glad news, to run home and announce:

"Berquin will live! We shall see him! He will play with us! He will tell us stories, will embrace us again! Berquin will live!"

* * * * * *

At last it was thought that music alone would rouse the author from his stupor of grief. Three sisters immediately resolved on an effort to cure the dear friend. At sunset they sent their harp and piano to a grove near Berquin's window, and the younger ones played the latter instrument while their elder sister drew sweet music from her harp.

The first evening Berquin blessed the happy accident that had brought the serenaders where he could enjoy the sweet sounds. The next day the concert was repeated, only the most plaintive melodies reaching him room; but the third time he was convinced that it was for him these sweet sounds were formed, for three clear voices sang to tender melodies his own verses: The Shepherd's Song, The Prayer of the Motherless for his Father's Life, and other favorites, were sung with such taste and expression that for the first time the tears coursed each other down his cheeks. Rising slowly, he went to the window, and said in a broken voice:

"Thanks! thanks, dear children, whose angel voices have so soothed my sorrow. Who would not love a life you make so happy? I thought myself alone, yet you love me!"

"Ah! read your own books," cried a sweet voice from the grove; "then you will never be alone!"

For two weeks the concert was repeated every evening, and Berquin grew better. Sleep came to his eyelids, and as soon as he was able to walk the children gently guided his steps to his loved resorts, and sprang to anticipate his comfort.

The first use Berquin made of his recovered strength was to express his gratitude. He called upon Des Essarts and begged an introduction to the chateau. The physician, only too happy to give his three allies such pleasure, introduced Berquin to the duke, his wife, and family. With smiling lips the author greeted his pretty young songstresses:

"See your own work, he said. "It is by your delicate attention, your unwearied goodness, that I live and am happy. You have led me again to my loved playmates, you have dissipated my grief. How can I ever repay you?"

"By writing again, as you have done, and aiding us to become happy and useful by your counsel and examples," replied one of the sisters.

"Not only for children, but for youth," cried the happy author; "let me believe you will still love me as you grow older, still read what my happy heart will record."

And truly keeping his promise, Berquin wrote his "Friend of Youth" and "Book for the Family," followed by "Introduction to a Knowledge of Nature," works which in a graceful and attractive form embody the most profound learning and research. As each work won new laurels, and gained for the author the reward of the Academy of France, his heart filled with new joy, and the three sisters joined their voices in his songs, and repeated to himself these words, written in one of his works:

"Ah, how happy should I be, when in my generation will grow to manhood and womanhood so many beings who love me!"

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—	One year	$2.50
	Six months	$1.25
If not paid within six months,—	One year	$3.00
	Six months	$1.50
Five copies, to one address, six months		$5.60
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months		$10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

(An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Single copy, 30 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten. Ten copies, and any number over ten, when sent to one address, 25 cents a year for each copy.

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS.—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMMENCE with July or January, [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The law declares, that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

MARTIN ALLEN
WEST SALEM WIS

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 474. BOSTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 7.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

COME AND REIGN.

Dark and drear is earth's horizon,
Clouds and tempests gather fast;
Long has been the time of weeping,
When will this dark night be past?
All around is dire confusion,
Strife and tumult everywhere;
See! "perplexity of nations;
Men's hearts failing them for fear."

Hark! the deep-toned thunder rumbling;
Lightnings flash athwart the sky;
On the earth the cannon roaring,—
Hear you not the battle cry?
On the bloody field of carnage,
Brother takes a brother's life;
Professed disciples of the Savior
Meet and join in deadly strife!

Oh! what sights and sounds of horror
Shock the eye and pierce the ear!
Multitudes are dead and dying,
Groans of anguish fill the air.
Through the land dismay and terror,
Grief and mourning far and near;
Tears are falling, hearts are breaking,
Souls are sinking in despair.

When will end this night of sorrow?
When, oh, when will morning dawn?
When will come our great Deliverer?
Come! Lord Jesus, quickly come!
Come and still this wild commotion;
Come and put an end to sin;
Wake the sleeping, take the kingdom,—
Come! oh Jesus, come and reign!

B. P. F.

For the World's Crisis.

"DEATH IS AN ETERNAL SLEEP."

So declared the French nation fifty years ago, and the world stood aghast at their blasphemy, and the church pitied their folly; deeming their infidelity too monstrous and self-evident to deserve even a reproof or refutation. But in these enlightened days a portion of a class of christians, noted for their superior knowledge in divine things, boldly proclaim the same thing, only excepting the righteous, but little more than a difference in numbers,—and even that difference hardly worth noticing,—with the Frenchman, considering that they were taught that those who based their claim to superior goodness on obedience to the teachings of the Bible were the worst and wickedest of all.

But how do these two classes of men go to work to support their strange assertion? The Frenchman, by simply rejecting the Bible entirely, the only source of light and knowledge respecting any such thing as life beyond the grave,—the other, by endeavoring to make the BIBLE support the doctrine! And at what a cost! Laying the Lord Jesus in a lie! Now, friend, do not start. I know it sounds awful; but it is true. Whoever says the wicked will not live again, simply gives Jesus Christ the lie, and the apostle Paul too.

You may ransack every circumstance in all the history of God's dealings with men, turn them all over and under, turn them inside out and upside down; discourse as widely as you please respecting God's laws and penalties, the promises and threatenings, and his intentions as you understand them concerning old or young, righteous or wicked; and still it stands there like the eternal Rock,—that declaration so simple, so plain, so blessed to the saint, so terrible and so inflexible to the sinner:—"Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall . . . come forth." "But he means"— Stop! sir, for your soul's sake, do not abuse the blessed Savior by trying to tell what He, who spake as never man spake, meant! As a Lowell Bro. used to say,—"Our God is n't a fool." Never was a sentence uttered since the world began in which every word told with such clearness and unmistakable certainty, and such straightforward simplicity, with such an utterly hopeless chance for drawing any conclusion different from what stands naked upon the very face of it, as that of John 5: 28. It makes a clean sweep of all the sophistries of men on this subject.

The cause of my penning this article is, the reception of a copy of the Herald of Life from some friends South, and in which I find several (so called) arguments in favor of this strange theory. I confess the way in which the writers came to their conclusions seems to me like traveling from Boston to New York by the way of Cape Horn and San Francisco. I notice but two arguments (?) worth looking at, for they embrace all the rest, and all I believe that can be said upon the subject.

The first is, It is the Spirit of God that calls the dead to life; and, as his Spirit does not dwell with the wicked, either living or dead, none but the righteous will be called to life again. Now nothing can be further from the truth than this. It is not God's Spirit that awakens the dead. It is the voice and irresistible power of Jesus Christ. Said he, "The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live." Jairus' daughter, the widow's son, and Lazarus, are examples of the truth of this assertion; and then he says, "Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; . . . [illegible] that have done good, . . . and they that have done evil," etc.

That passage in Rom. 8: 11 has no reference at all to the resurrection of the dead; but to that new and spiritual life upon which the believer enters here, after he is truly converted to God, as brought to view in the sixth chapter, and typified by baptism; more fully explained in the seventh chapter, and the blessed results brought out in their beauty and fulness in the eighth. We are "dead to sin," "buried by baptism," and raised "to newness of life." The old man is crucified with Christ, the body of sin and death destroyed, and now the "spirit of Him that raised up Jesus" dwells in us and quickens us to a new life in Christ; we live, not after the flesh, but through the Spirit we mortify the deeds of the body and live. Ver. 13. (O! if all of us understood this matter, and lived accordingly, what a different class of christians we should have in the world!) See also Eph. 2: 1–6. "You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins." "God . . hath quickened us together," etc. So much for this argument (?). Now for the other.

Paul says (Rom. 1: 32), "They that commit such things are worthy of death"; and so they say, as these wicked persons are dead, they have received the just reward of their deeds; and as all the wicked are treated alike, and as all deserve death, whenever they are dead they have received their punishment, and of course there is no occasion to raise them again; ergo, they will not be raised!

Now just look here; if the wicked die because they deserve to die, what do little children die for? and what do God's saints die for? and why does God not only let them die, but die by the cruel hands of his and their enemies? And what is the judgment day for? There is no one to convict, no body to condemn; all there are righteous, and all the righteous will be there; and all the terribly sublime and awful scenes of the judgment are a lost effort!

But come back to the question. What makes people die? or, why do they die? I answer: because Adam sinned. This, this is the cause, the only cause why the saint and the sinner, the old and the young, die. No matter what their character is when they die, it is for the fault of another. What, then, can be more right or just than that the life they have lost for another's sake should be restored to them again? "Why, even of yourselves, judge ye not what is right? (Lk. 12: 57.) Most certainly it is but right and just, and Christ has declared in the most positive and unequivocal manner that the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation; which damnation will result in their being burned up, root and branch. Then, and never till then, will wicked men die because they are "worthy of death." Their being raised from the grave and made alive repays all that they have lost on Adam's account, and now they meet the consequences of their own folly and guilt.

Is not this so? What say the Scriptures? Rom. 5: 12;—Wherefore, as by one man (Adam) sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, in whom (margin) all have sinned." "By the offence of one (Adam) judgment came upon all men to condemnation; so by the righteousness of one (Christ) the free gift came upon all to justification of life." Ver. 18. Read the rest of the chapter. 1 Cor. 15: 21, 22; "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam ALL die, even so by Christ shall ALL be made alive."

There! if that is not plain enough, nothing can be. And if there is an honest man lives who can look these scriptures in the face and not believe that the unjust, as well as the just, will have a resurrection at the last day, his mind and judgment must be terribly warped some way. And, finally, if they will not believe Christ's and Paul's testimony, "neither would they believe if one rose from the dead."

C. L. PERCIVAL.

Massawippi, C. E., 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF THE WICKED?

That the righteous and wicked are to get their reward on the earth, is evident from the following passage of Scripture: "The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth; much more the wicked and the sinner." Now the question arises, What is their recompense? The recompense of the righteous is not what I am talking about at this time, so I shall only say that it is evidently endless life; and proceed to establish the destiny of the other class.

They are to be recompensed IN THE EARTH. What is their recompense? Solomon says, "The righteous shall never be removed; but the wicked shall not INHABIT THE EARTH." Now what is to become of them? They are to be recompensed in the earth, and yet the time is coming, according to Solomon, when they shall not inherit it. I know the doctrine of endless torment is popular, but I care not for popularity; give me the truth, popular or not!

Page after page has been written on both sides, and yet both sides are held up as "incontrovertible." What is the cause? I attribute it to the stubbornness of mankind more than the incorrectness of the Scripture. I shall hold this position as incontrovertible. They are to be recompensed in the earth, and yet the time is coming when they will not inherit it; and surely if they were suffering endless torment, as their recompense, it would not exclude them from the earth, for if that [illegible] them bodily, as some hold, and yet they exist in a spiritual form, what existence is their recompense, and they must receive it in the earth. If this be the case, would not friends know each other in that situation? Would they be conscious of the existence of the wicked, if they were permitted among them? So it looks to me. But Solomon precludes all such ideas, by saying, "They shall not inherit the earth;" and to say that they cannot inhabit it in a spiritual form, is denying their existence in a spiritual form, for they are to be recompensed IN THE EARTH!

But Obadiah is not dumb on this question; and, in fact, he expresses my sentiments to the letter, when he declares "they shall be as though they had not been." Obd. 16. And John's vision was not at all obscure on the subject, when the Lord revealed to him a time when every creature in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, all that are in them, would say, "Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever and ever." Rev. 5: 13. How are these points to be met? By playing on word aion-aionos, and that alone. Some people play on that word, just as a boy plays on a Jew's-harp. One spring does the whole thing.

If "forever" signifies "endless existence," did not Jonah suffer endless punishment in the whale's belly? See Jonah 2: 1—9. But you say if the word "eternal," "everlasting," "forever," &c., are not to be relied on as implying endless duration, how can you prove that the righteous are to inherit endless life? I will tell you how. Jesus says, "They which shall be accounted worthy to attain that world, and the resurrection from the dead (from among the dead ones), neither marry nor are given in marriage; NEITHER CAN THEY DIE ANY MORE." See Luke 20: 35, 36. If they do not die any more, then they must have endless life. Again: "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." 1 Pet. 5: 4. Many more might be adduced, but enough is enough.

The promise of the angel to Mary was, "He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall BE NO END." Luke 1: 33. And if we are children of God, then are we heirs of God, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. So it will be seen that the kingdom of Christ is endless, and so is our heirship. But the "end of the wicked shall be cut off." "The day that cometh shall burn them up, . . . that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. Mal. 4: 1.

Does not this look consistent? God will then have a clean universe. And the lamentable howling of the lost in purgatory, will prove a fanciful humbug after all. When that day comes, the ignis-fatuus that now dazzles the eyes of so many will have moved off!

J. W. TAYLOR.

For the World's Crisis.

SHALL WE KNOW THE TIME?

Most certainly; God's word for it, and that is authority. Gabriel, one of the chief angels, was faithful to make Daniel understand the vision that was to be for many days. The angel tells Daniel to "shut up the words and seal the book, even to the time of the end." Now this time of the end is of great importance. No one can know what is sealed until the period called the time of the end.

All past efforts to place the time for Christ to come would be and has been labor lost, because no calculation as yet has proved true. Daniel says he looked and behold there stood other two beside him and Gabriel, one on one bank and another on the other bank of the river. And he says to the other, "How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" No doubt the sealed words were among the wonders.

Daniel sees the man that was clothed in linen hold up both hands and swear positively that it should be for a "time, times and an half." Now here is a lone instance of two oaths being taken at the same breath. This how long question was answered by a two-fold oath. We see the time idea was of some importance. Daniel is told to shut up the words and seal the book himself, and the seal was not to be broken till the time of the end.

In the eighth chapter of Daniel he hears these two saints talking about the vision. He is answered, "Unto 2300 days." Daniel says he sought for the meaning of the vision, and there stood up before him as the appearance of a man; and he says, "I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai which called and said, Gabriel, make this man understand the vision." And he says, "Understand, O man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision." For at the time appointed the end shall be. At the time of the end shall be the vision. The vision shall not be understood till then.

Gabriel is told to make Daniel understand the vision, and I think he did understand it. Gabriel tells Daniel to seal up the book, or that part which was to take place in the last "end of the indignation," in the time of the end. One of these men on the river bank asks the man in linen on the river, "How long to the end of these wonders?" It is not Daniel that asks this question, "How long?" Daniel is under Gabriel's instructions, and he was to make Daniel understand; so there was no need of Daniel asking at this time about the length of time.

After Daniel had listened to the double oath he says, "I heard, but I understood not." What did he not understand? What shall be at the end, when all these things you have told me about shall be finished. This is what I want to know, when all these things are finished, what is going to be then? I tell you, Daniel, go thy way; you have done all, as I told you, to seal up that part relating to the time of the end, and somewhere in the time of the end what I have showed you and told you to seal up, the wise, my children, shall understand. We are not told whether at the first part of the time of the end, or the middle, or down most to the end, the wise shall know when the whole vision runs out, and that only in the time of the end.

I will just repeat Daniel's question: "And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?" Daniel does not ask anything about time (please all look at this matter) in this chapter. Gabriel was under obligation to make Daniel understand the vision —all of it, and he does not complain but what he does, but he did not know what was going to be at the end of the vision. Now go thy way Daniel, you have shut up the words and sealed the book till the time of the end. All this you have sealed yourself, Daniel, and know about, and now I will tell you what shall be the end of these things. You shall rest, or sleep in the grave, and stand in thy lot (be resurrected) at the end of the days. This is what shall be at the end of these things.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, we may be just as certain of knowing what Daniel knew how to seal and did seal up, as that there is such a portion of time called the time of the end. O! shall it be? Yes, know just about when the Master is coming, when he is nigh, even at the DOOR. Amen.

Bristol, Ct. HENRY L. BRADLEY.

For the World's Crisis.

TAKE HEED WHAT YOU HEAR.

The tender and watchful care of our blessed Savior over his children is every where made manifest in the volume of truth. How often does he point out the dangers that beset our path, and admonish us to beware.

"Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy, and vain deceit, after the tradition of men." "Beware, lest ye also, being led away by the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness." "Beware of covetousness." "Beware of false prophets." "Beware of men." "Beware of dogs." "Beware of evil workers." These are all points of danger that lie along the narrow way leading from death to life, and must be shunned by every christian pilgrim who treads its dangerous path.

Not only are the dangers of the path we are to travel closely pointed out to us by our blessed Savior, but he has also cautioned us to take heed to them.

"Take heed that no man deceive you." Take heed to yourself. Take heed that ye be not deceived. The Prophet Hosea says of Israel, "They left off to take heed to the Lord, and asked council at their stocks."

"Take heed what you hear." Here is a caution given by our Savior in five words, which deeply concerns every child of God, and every child of the wicked one. Still it is but little regarded by either class. But wherein does it so deeply concern us? I answer, because ordinarily faith comes by hearing.

The principal means ordained of God for the propagation of his truth was the preaching of the gospel. "Go preach my gospel to every creature" was the commission put into the hands of the Apostles, and it has "pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." We learn by that solemn charge given by Paul to his son Timothy, what it is to preach the gospel. "Preach the word." "Thy word is truth."

All true religion is obedience to the truth. It consists in those dispositions, affections and actions which are in correspondence with God's word. How important it is that we take heed what we hear. Nothing but the truth of God's word can profit us. If any of the fallen, perishing children of Adam are ever begotten to that life that is in the Son, they must be begotten by the truth. "Of his own will," says the apostle James, "begat he us with the word of truth." Are any taken from the great mass of wickedness, and fitted and set apart for God's everlasting kingdom, the work must be done through the truth. "Sanctify them through thy truth" was our Savior's prayer for his disciples.

I sometimes ask myself why it is that the preaching of our day is so powerless, when the gospel by itself is "the power of God unto salvation"—is mighty to the pulling down of strongholds? But I find an answer in the words of a Presbyterian minister of our own times.

He says, "One of the most discouraging signs of the times is the departure of many, who bear the ministerial office, from the form of sound words—the simplicity of the gospel. Erroneous philosophy and perverted reason obscure and pervert the life-giving truths of the Bible." "Under the chilling influence of speculative philosophy, or the withering heat of fanaticism, vital piety rapidly declines."

If such be the preaching of our day, let me say to all who may read this article, remember the admonition of our Savior, "Take heed what you hear." It is the mixture of human wisdom with the divine that evidently diminishes the power of the gospel. Paul declares that he was sent to "preach the gospel, not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect." And he preached it, "Not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but with the Holy Ghost teaching, comparing spiritual things with spiritual;" an example for all teachers of the word, but followed by few.

Some writer has said, "From the third century to the Reformation, the church was cursed and the gospel corrupted by the Philosophy of Plato and Aristotle." Now unless I greatly err, it had not wholly spent its cunning and corrupting force to the church three hundred years ago. [illegible]

All mankind have a life that must run parallel with the life of Deity. You cannot get rid of it however much you may wish to. There are but two abodes for the future— Heaven or Hell. Choose where you will spend that unending life, for you must exist in the one or the other so long as God exists.

Now, I do not say that the above is philosophy, but I do say that it is not Bible; for the Bible everywhere finds man in his natural state in a perishing, dying condition, and invites him to Christ that he may obtain life.

Brethren, there are false teachers amongst us in this dispensation of grace, as there were false prophets among the people of the former dispensation. We must take heed what we hear, as well as how we hear. Error can do us no good; truth can. Error comes by false teachers; mercy and truth by Jesus Christ.

Cabot, Vt. C. BOND.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN VOYAGER.

AIR.—Brave Boys.

High o'er the foaming main
Swells the fierce storm in its might,
While round our barque the mad waters leap,
And dark is the gloomy night.
Many the storms we've braved,
Many the dangers we've passed;
Thank God! we are nearing the heavenly shore,
We'll enter the haven at last.

CHORUS.
Safe home at last,
Home where the weary may rest;
To join in the song of the heavenly throng,
The song of the pure and the blest.

Firm is our Pilot true,
Onward's the word of command;
We'll fear nevermore, though the hurricane roar,—
Oh! we're bound for fair Canaan's land.
Soon will the night be o'er,
Soon all our sorrows be gone,
We'll anchor soon 'neath a cloudless sky,
When the morning of glory shall dawn.

Soft are the breezes now,
Borne from the verdant vale,
While fragrance fair we shall evermore share,
And bask in the healthful gale.
The sorrowing ones rejoice,
Their bosoms ne'er heave with a sigh;
For gladness shall sit on every brow,
And beam from every eye.

E. SANDERSON.

For the World's Crisis.

MAN IS MORTAL.

The commonly received and popular theory that all men possess, or are endowed with, an innate principle which is destined to exist forever, and which will and must survive through all eternity, is a great error. This principle is generally denominated soul, and is believed to be capable of a separate existence from the body, as a distinct entity. It is a fundamental and deep-rooted error, which gives direction to the faith and doctrines of nearly all the various sects or organized bodies of Christendom. Strange to say, however, its origin is traced to heathen philosophy! Plato, Socrates, Pythagoras, Zoroaster, and other heathen philosophers, were the first who taught the doctrine of natural immortality, or "the immortality of the soul."

What a source from whence professing christians of so many different names and various creeds and doctrines to believe and sustain this gross fable, as a leading or fundamental doctrine, upon which the superstructure of their faith rests! It is worse than a sandy foundation; not being supported by the Scriptures of divine inspiration. How frequently do we hear these expressions by professed ministers of Christ, even: never-dying soul, deathless spirit, immortal soul, and similar words and phrases; whereas they cannot be once found in all the sacred Scriptures. The Bible teaches no such doctrine.

Those persons who are desirous of knowing the truth that they may walk therein, and be sanctified thereby (John 8: 32; 17: 17–19,) should follow the example of the noble Bereans. Acts 27: 11. There they will find that immortality, or eternal life, is to be sought for and obtained through Christ alone.—Rom. 2: 7; John 5: 39, 40. ADAM FRIZEE.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN WORSHIP.

MR. EDITOR:—Having been invited to dedicate a church within the bounds of my district, containing an organ, more than twenty years ago, I addressed to Messrs. Root and Lewis, the principal members of the board of trustees, who gave me the invitation, the following letter, a copy of which I here forward to you for publication in the columns of your faithful periodical.

E. B.

HERE FOLLOWS THE LETTER:

Dear Brethren:—As I am about to address you on a subject of deep and lasting interest to the church of Christ, and one too, which, under the circumstances, involves considerations of the most delicate nature, I dare not proceed in the undertaking without lifting my heart to Him, "whose we are and whom we serve," that he would vouchsafe two things, —first, that I may write, and secondly, that you may read this epistle in the spirit of Christ.

The subject to which I allude is the setting up an organ of music in your new church. And who can say, in almost any view of this subject, that it is not one of deep and lasting interest to the church of Christ, especially that of it which holds Methodism and Christianity to be one and the same thing? When the intelligence of this thing came to my ears, it gave me a shock I had not often felt. There was no redeeming circumstance from which I could derive any relief. The thing had been done; it had been done by men of piety, by men of influence, by men whom I had esteemed almost beyond any others of my acquaintance. Indeed, it had been done by men who were the very last I should have suspected of such a thing in all the district! I felt, I prayed, I wept.

But all this opposition to church organs, it will be said, perhaps, is the effect of education, of superstition, of habit; or, at least, of great weakness. But admitting all this, as the great body of our people are honestly opposed to instrumental music in churches, and would be greatly injured in their feelings by its introduction there, I submit to your christian charity whether the consciences of even weak brethren are not to be regarded; and whether we are not required by God himself to abstain from anything of this sort "whereby a brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak?" This single circumstance, when you come to look at it, will be a sufficient reason with you, no doubt, as it surely is with me, for discountenancing instrumental music in churches. But there are other reasons for excluding instrumental music from the worship of God, which appeal with equal force to our christian charity, if not, indeed, to our sense of moral obligation.

1. Mr. Wesley, whom I regard as no mean authority in such cases, peremptorily forbade the use of instrumental music in all his societies.

2. The practice of using instrumental music in the worship of God has been steadily opposed by our church, preachers and people, with the exception of here and there an individual, down to the present time. At least this has been the case in our own country.

3. In 1836 the General Conference passed a resolution, solemnly enjoining upon the ministry to discourage the use of instrumental music in churches, by all prudent means; declaring the practice to be utterly at variance with vital godliness.

4. The use of instrumental music in the worship of God, by David, is most clearly condemned by the prophet Amos. See the Book of this prophet, chapter 6, verse 5, with Dr. Clark's comment upon the passage. And also his note on 2 Chron. 29: 25, to the same effect. The Doctor, in his comment on these passages, shows most conclusively, at least to my mind, that the use of instrumental music in the worship of God was sinful, even in David's time. But even were we to admit that David was justified in using such music, this would no more prove that we may use it under the gospel dispensation than that we may imitate him in having a plurality of wives, or in offering those sacrifices which were prescribed by the ceremonial law; for if it should be argued that the law of ceremonies and the custom of polygamy were abolished by the express authority of our Lord and his apostles, so was the use of instrumental music in Divine worship forever excluded by their example, as nothing of the kind was ever allowed in their practice.

I know it is said that "instrumental music is an improvement on primitive usage." And I know equally well that primitive usage needs no improvement; but that all departures from it are of the nature of apostasy, while all improvement consists in returning to first principles, or in coming back to primitive usage from which apostate churches have departed. Improvement is the specious name under which all errors and corruptions that ever disgraced the church, have crept in. And I, for one, have grown quite suspicious of this name. I cannot help thinking that those changes by which we "depart from the old land-marks" our fathers have set up in the days of their simplicity are to be recognized, not as useful improvements, but as hurtful innovations. Let us take a few examples of these improvements as they present themselves in the history of the church in bygone days, and we shall learn to adopt them, it is presumed, with great caution; or, rather, to adopt them not at all. It will be remembered that the Jews improved the worship of their fathers, until all "appeared beautiful without; but within, was full of rottenness and dead men's bones." The Papal Hierarchy have improved the apostolic worship until not only images, and relics, and saints have come to be adored, but his holiness, the Pope, "opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he, as God, sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." And some of the Methodist people, particularly in Europe, have improved the Wesleyan worship till we see

"The Spirit in the letter lost;
The substance in the shade."

This remark applies, I am well assured by some of our English brethren, to that portion of the British connection especially who have introduced organ-worship into their churches; particularly in the city of Leeds, where this very circumstance occasioned the secession of no less than two thousand members at one time. With such improvements before our eyes, is it not time to pause and consider?

"But we shall get more hearers by having a good organ in the church." Aye, and the same might be said of many other expedients, as the introducing of plays, shows, festivals and the like; particularly might one increase the number of his hearers by a compliance with that numerous class who "say to the seers, see not, and to the prophets, prophesy not unto us right things; speak unto us smooth things; prophesy deceits." But,

"Shall I, to soothe the unholy throng,
Soften God's truth, and smooth my tongue?"

Shall I conform to the world, that the world, through my influence thus exerted, may be conformed to Christ? How lately did I show, in your own chapel, that conformity to the world, as a means of conforming the world to Christ, never did and never can produce that effect? At all events, I dare not conform to the world, for God has forbidden it; and I, certainly, am not called upon to shut myself out of heaven by disobeying him, however I might benefit others by such disobedience.

And now, dear brethren, what is to be done? You have purchased an organ, I am told, and placed it in the church. But will you not consent, after all, to remove it? Certainly, you are not conscience bound in this matter, but I am. You do not deem it wrong to worship without an organ; but I, with many of our people, deem it wrong to worship with one. And will you not give it up on the ground of expediency, if on no other ground? Will you not give it up [illegible]

Conscience, I say, not thine own, but his who is grieved with the practice. I hope, I pray, I trust you will; and that God will bless you in that sacrifice of feeling and of pecuniary interest which such a measure might occasion.

But if you feel yourselves called upon, in view of all the circumstances, to retain the organ in the church, still the question recurs, what is to be done? You have kindly invited me to officiate at the dedication of your new church, but, painful as it is to my feelings, and I can assure you that it gives me more pain—such is my respect for you—than anything which has ever transpired in connection with my public ministry; yet, painful as it is to my feelings, I can only accept the invitation on the condition, that the organ shall be removed; for, with my present views, I cannot, in conscience, dedicate to the worship of God, an instrument which, I believe, would be unacceptable to him, and one which, I am satisfied, he never designed should be employed in his service; at least under the gospel dispensation. I say it is painful, extremely painful, for me to decline your invitation, as you are among the last I would be willing to disoblige. But I have looked the matter over; I have made it the subject of much prayer; I have counted the cost, and I take this step from the deliberate conviction that such is the will of the Lord.

I am aware, dear brethren, that you can well enough dispense with my services at your approaching dedication, as almost any other one will be able to do better than myself. I am not vain enough to suppose that you will be led to secure my attendance at a very great sacrifice; but as you have had the courtesy to invite me, (out of respect to my office, no doubt), I exceedingly regret that anything should exist to deny me the pleasure of complying with the invitation. And if you can at all consent to remove the obstacle which obliges me to decline the honor you have intended me, it will afford me the most heartfelt satisfaction to bear a part in the dedicatory services of your beautiful church.*

Will you be good enough to advise me on the subject immediately, that I may be seasonably informed of your final decision.

Yours, respectfully, ELIAS BOWEN.

* NOTE.—Suffice it to say I did dedicate the church in accordance with the invitation, but upon the express condition that the organ should be removed immediately after the dedication, (it being impracticable to do it before), and that it should be specifically excepted in the dedicatory prayer, which was done. Thus, my part of the stipulation was carried out in good faith; but through the advice of two or three Methodist preachers, as I was told,—shame on them!—the organ was never removed. Since that time, other singing machines have been plentifully introduced into our churches, and, O, what a ridiculous bellowing we now have in almost all our houses of worship throughout the land! —Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

A BIRTH-DAY REFLECTION.

BRO. GRANT:—I am this day eighty-nine years of age; and ever since 1843 have been a Second Advent believer. Under God, I was converted into the Advent faith by the preaching of Eld. John Couch; and although many have turned from the faith since that time, and gone back to the world, seeking worldly opulence and worldly pleasure, I have retained the faith, and by meditation and its influence have found many comforting hours, especially when and after I have been reading the prophecies of Daniel and St. John the divine. Surely they speak in the highest terms of the power, greatness and goodness of our blessed Lord and Savior, and of his speedy coming to judge and cleanse the earth from all unrighteousness.

In view of these things, notwithstanding my advanced age, [illegible] until the last trump shall sound, and that I shall be [illegible] blessed Lord in the air with his beloved chosen ones.

I must be brief in my address, but conscience impels me to say that I rejoice in hearing of and seeing so many believers that are now preparing and waiting for those blessed. Lord and Master. Our numbers have been greatly increased within a few years past by the [illegible] Christ. There have been many new converts who have embraced the true faith, and many backsliders reclaimed, [illegible] are now [illegible] tians. May God hasten the day when the precious gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ shall be promulgated throughout the whole world, and re-echo from heart to heart until the [illegible] brought [illegible] salem, where [illegible] unknown [illegible] ever abo[illegible]

Fisher[illegible]

A VOICE FROM THE SICK ROOM.

It is night; and as I still [illegible] of the clock [illegible] ing from [illegible] my dear old father, who lies prostrate [illegible] lung fever [illegible]

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 474. BOSTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 7.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

COME AND REIGN.

Dark and drear is earth's horizon,
Clouds and tempests gather fast;
Long has been the time of weeping,
When will this dark night be past?

All around is dire confusion,
Strife and tumult everywhere;
See! "perplexity of nations;
Men's hearts failing them for fear."

Hark! the deep-toned thunder rumbling;
Lightnings flash athwart the sky;
On the earth the cannon roaring,—
Hear you not the battle cry?

On the bloody field of carnage,
Brother takes a brother's life;
Professed disciples of the Savior
Meet and join in deadly strife!

Oh! what sights and sounds of horror
Shock the eye and pierce the ear!
Multitudes are dead and dying,
Groans of anguish fill the air.

Through the land dismay and terror,
Grief and mourning far and near;
Tears are falling, hearts are breaking,
Souls are sinking in despair.

When will end this night of sorrow?
When, oh, when will morning dawn?
When will come our great Deliverer?
Come! Lord Jesus, quickly come!

Come and still this wild commotion;
Come and put an end to sin;
Wake the sleeping, take the kingdom,—
Come! oh Jesus, come and reign!

B. P. F.

For the World's Crisis.

"DEATH IS AN ETERNAL SLEEP."

So declared the French nation fifty years ago, and the world stood aghast at their blasphemy, and the church pitied their folly; deeming their infidelity too monstrous and self-evident to deserve even a reproof or refutation. But in these enlightened days a portion of a class of christians, noted for their superior knowledge in divine things, boldly proclaim the same thing, only excepting the righteous, but little more than a difference in numbers,—and even that difference hardly worth noticing,—with the Frenchman, considering that they were taught that those who based their claim to superior goodness on obedience to the teachings of the Bible were the worst and wickedest of all.

But how do these two classes of men go to work to support their strange assertion? The Frenchman, by simply rejecting the Bible entirely, the only source of light and knowledge respecting any such thing as life beyond the grave,—the other, by endeavoring to make the Bible support the doctrine! And at what a cost! Laying the Lord Jesus in a lie! Now, friend, do not start. I know it sounds awful; but it is true. Whoever says the wicked will not live again, simply gives Jesus Christ the lie, and the apostle Paul too.

You may ransack every circumstance in all the history of God's dealings with men, turn them all over and under, turn them inside out and upside down; discourse as widely as you please respecting God's laws and penalties, the promises and threatenings, and his intentions as you understand them concerning old or young, righteous or wicked; and still it stands there like the eternal Rock,—that declaration so simple, so plain, so blessed to the saint, so terrible and so inflexible to the sinner:—"Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall . . . come forth." "But he means"—Stop! sir, for your soul's sake, do not abuse the blessed Savior by trying to tell what He, who spake as never man spake, meant! As a Lowell Bro. used to say,—"Our God is n't a fool." Never was a sentence uttered since the world began in which every word told with such clearness and unmistakable certainty, and such straightforward simplicity, with such an utterly hopeless chance for drawing any conclusion different from what stands naked upon the very face of it, as that of John 5: 28. It makes a clean sweep of all the sophistries of men on this subject.

The cause of my penning this article is, the reception of a copy of the Herald of Life from some friends South, and in which I find several (so called) arguments in favor of this strange theory. I confess the way in which the writers came to their conclusions seems to me like traveling from Boston to New York by the way of Cape Horn and San Francisco. I notice but two arguments (?) worth looking at, for they embrace all the rest, and all I believe that can be said upon the subject:

The first is, It is the Spirit of God that calls the dead to life; and, as his Spirit does not dwell with the wicked, either living or dead, none but the righteous will be called to life again. Now nothing can be further from the truth than this. It is not God's Spirit that awakens the dead. It is the voice and irresistible power of Jesus Christ! Said he, "The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live." Jairus' daughter, the widow's son, and Lazarus, are examples of the truth of this [illegible] . . . [illegible]. Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they [illegible] that have done good, . . . and they that have done evil," etc.

That passage in Rom. 8: 11 has no reference at all to the resurrection of the dead; but to that new and spiritual life upon which the believer enters here, after he is truly converted to God, as brought to view in the sixth chapter, and typified by baptism; more fully explained in the seventh chapter, and the blessed results brought out in their beauty and fulness in the eighth. We are "dead to sin," "buried by baptism," and raised "to newness of life." The old man is crucified with Christ, the body of sin and death destroyed, and now the "spirit of Him that raised up Jesus" dwells in us and quickens us to a new life in Christ; we live, not after the flesh, but through the Spirit we mortify the deeds of the body and live. Ver. 13. (O! if all of us understood this matter, and lived accordingly, what a different class of christians we should have in the world!) See also Eph. 2: 1–6. "You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins." "God . . hath quickened us together," etc. So much for this argument (?). Now for the other.

Paul says (Rom. 1: 32), "They that commit such things are worthy of death"; and so they say, as these wicked persons are dead, they have received the just reward of their deeds; and as all the wicked are treated alike, and as all deserve death, whenever they are dead they have received their punishment, and of course there is no occasion to raise them again; ergo, they will not be raised!

Now just look here; if the wicked die because they deserve to die, what do little children die for? and what do God's saints die for? and why does God not only let them die, but die by the cruel hands of his and their enemies? And what is the judgment day for? There is no one to convict, no body to condemn; all there are righteous, and all the righteous will be there; and all the terribly sublime and awful scenes of the judgment are a lost effort!

But come back to the question. What makes people die? or, why do they die? I answer: because Adam sinned. This, this is the cause, the only cause why the saint and the sinner, the old and the young, die. No matter what their character is when they die, it is for the fault of another. What, then, can be more right or just than that the life they have lost for another's sake should be restored to them again? "Why, even of yourselves, judge ye not what is right? (Lk. 12: 57.) Most certainly it is but right and just, and Christ has declared in the most positive and unequivocal manner that the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation; which damnation will result in their being burned up, root and branch. Then, and never till then, will wicked men die because they are "worthy of death." Their being raised from the grave and made alive repays all that they have lost on Adam's account, and now they meet the consequences of their own folly and guilt.

Is not this so? What say the Scriptures? Rom. 5: 12;—Wherefore, as by one man (Adam) sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, in whom (margin) all have sinned." "By the offence of one (Adam) judgment came upon all men to condemnation; so by the righteousness of one (Christ) the free gift came upon all to justification of life." Ver. 18. Read the rest of the chapter. 1 Cor. 15: 21, 22; "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as by Adam ALL die, even so by Christ shall ALL be made alive."

There! if that is not plain enough, nothing can be. And if there is an honest man lives who can look these scriptures in the face and not believe that the unjust, as well as the just, will have a resurrection at the last day, his mind and judgment must be terribly warped some way. And, finally, if they will not believe Christ's and Paul's testimony, "neither would they believe if one rose from the dead."

C. L. PERCIVAL.

Massawippi, C. E., 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF THE WICKED?

That the righteous and wicked are to get their reward on the earth, is evident from the following passage of Scripture: "The righteous shall be recompensed in the earth; much more the wicked and the sinner." Now the question arises, What is their recompense? The recompense of the righteous is not what I am talking about at this time, so I shall only say that it is evidently endless life; and proceed to establish the destiny of the other class.

They are to be recompensed IN THE EARTH. What is their recompense? Solomon says, "The righteous shall never be removed; but the wicked shall not INHABIT THE EARTH." Now what is to become of them? They are to be recompensed in the earth, and yet the time is coming, according to Solomon, when they shall not inherit it. I know the doctrine of endless torment is popular, but I care not for popularity; give me the truth, popular or not!

Page after page has been written on both sides, and yet both sides are held up as "incontrovertible." What is the cause? I attribute it to the stubbornness of mankind more than the mysteriousness of the Scripture. I shall hold this position as incontrovertible. They are to be recompensed in the earth, and yet the time is coming when they will not inherit it; and surely if they were suffering endless torment, as their recompense, it would not exclude them from the earth, for if that [illegible] . . . [illegible] them bodily, as some hold, and yet they exist in a spiritual form, what existence is their recompense, and they must receive it in the earth. If this be the case, would not friends know each other in that situation? Would they be conscious of the existence of the wicked, if they were permitted among them? So it looks to me. But Solomon precludes all such ideas, by saying, "They shall not inherit the earth," and to say that they cannot inhabit it in a spiritual form, is denying their existence in a spiritual form, for they are to be recompensed IN THE EARTH!

But Obadiah is not dumb on this question; and, in fact, he expresses my sentiments to the letter, when he declares "they shall be as though they had not been." Obd. 16. And John's vision was not at all obscure on the subject, when the Lord revealed to him a time when every creature in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, all that are in them, would say, "Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever and ever." Rev. 5: 13. How are these points to be met? By playing on word aion-aionos, and that alone. Some people play on that word, just as a boy plays on a Jew's-harp. One spring does the whole thing.

If "forever" signifies "endless existence," did not Jonah suffer endless punishment in the whale's belly? See Jonah 2: 1—9. But you say if the word "eternal," "everlasting," "forever," &c., are not to be relied on as implying endless duration, how can you prove that the righteous are to inherit endless life? I will tell you how. Jesus says, "They which shall be accounted worthy to attain that world, and the resurrection from the dead (from among the dead ones), neither marry nor are given in marriage; NEITHER CAN THEY DIE ANY MORE." See Luke 20: 35, 36. If they do not die any more, then they must have endless life. Again: "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." 1 Pet. 5: 4. Many more might be adduced, but enough is enough.

The promise of the angel to Mary was, "He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall BE NO END." Luke 1: 33. And if we are children of God, then are we heirs of God, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. So it will be seen that the kingdom of Christ is endless, and so is our heirship. But the "end of the wicked shall be cut off." "The day that cometh shall burn them up, . . . that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. Mal. 4: 1.

Does not this look consistent? God will then have a clean universe. And the lamentable howling of the lost in purgatory, will prove a fanciful humbug after all. When that day comes, the ignis-fatuus that now dazzles the eyes of so many will have moved off!

J. W. TAYLOR.

For the World's Crisis.

SHALL WE KNOW THE TIME?

Most certainly; God's word for it, and that is authority. Gabriel, one of the chief angels, was faithful to make Daniel understand the vision that was to be for many days. The angel tells Daniel to "shut up the words and seal the book, even to the time of the end." Now this time of the end is of great importance. No one can know what is sealed until the period called the time of the end.

All past efforts to place the time for Christ to come would be and has been labor lost, because no calculation as yet has proved true. Daniel says he looked and behold there stood other two beside him and Gabriel, one on one bank and another on the other bank of the river. And he says to the other, "How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" No doubt the sealed words were among the wonders.

Daniel sees the man that was clothed in linen hold up both hands and swear positively that it should be for a "time, times and an half." Now here is a lone instance of two oaths being taken at the same breath. This how long question was answered by a two-fold oath. We see the time idea was of some importance. Daniel is told to shut up the words and seal the book himself, and the seal was not to be broken till the time of the end.

In the eighth chapter of Daniel he hears these two saints talking about the vision. He is answered, "Unto 2300 days." Daniel says he sought for the meaning of the vision, and there stood up before him as the appearance of a man; and he says, "I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai which called and said, Gabriel, make this man understand the vision." And he says, "Understand, O man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision." For at the time appointed the end shall be. At the time of the end shall be the vision. The vision shall not be understood till then.

Gabriel is told to make Daniel understand the vision, and I think he did understand it. Gabriel tells Daniel to seal up the book, or that part which was to take place in the last "end of the indignation," in the time of the end. One of these men on the river bank asks the man in linen on the river, "How long to the end of these wonders?" It is not Daniel that asks this question, "How long?" Daniel is under Gabriel's instructions, and he was to make Daniel understand; so there was no need of Daniel asking at this time about the length of time.

After Daniel had listened to the double oath he says, "I heard, but I understood not." What did he not understand? What shall be at the end, when all these things you have told me about shall be finished. This is what I want to know, when all these things are finished, what is going to be then? I tell you, Daniel, go thy way; you have done all as I told you, to seal up that part referring to the time of the end, and somewhere in the time of the end what I have showed you and told you to seal up, the wise, my children, shall understand. We are not told whether at the first part of the time of the end, or the middle, or down most to the end, the wise shall know when the whole vision runs out, and that only in the time of the end.

I will just repeat Daniel's question: "And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?" Daniel does not ask anything about time (please all look at this matter) in this chapter. Gabriel was under obligation to make Daniel understand the vision—all of it, and he does not complain but what he does, but he did not know what was going to be at the end of the vision. Now go thy way Daniel, you have shut up the words and sealed the book till the time of the end. All this you have sealed yourself, Daniel, and know about, and now I will tell you what shall be the end of these things. You shall rest, or sleep in the grave, and stand in thy lot (be resurrected) at the end of the days. This is what shall be at the end of these things.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, we may be just as certain of knowing what Daniel knew how to seal and did seal up, as that there is such a portion of time called the time of the end. O! shall it be? Yes, know just about when the Master is coming, when he is nigh, even at the DOOR. Amen.

Bristol, Ct. HENRY L. BRADLEY.

For the World's Crisis.

TAKE HEED WHAT YOU HEAR.

The tender and watchful care of our blessed Savior over his children is every where made manifest in the volume of truth. How often does he point out the dangers that beset our path, and admonish us to beware.

"Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy, and vain deceit, after the tradition of men." "Beware, lest ye also, being led away by the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness." "Beware of covetousness." "Beware of false prophets." "Beware of men." "Beware of dogs." "Beware of evil workers." These are all points of danger that lie along the narrow way leading from death to life, and must be shunned by every christian pilgrim who treads its dangerous path.

Not only are the dangers of the path we are to travel closely pointed out to us by our blessed Savior, but he has also cautioned us to take heed to them.

"Take heed that no man deceive you." Take heed to yourself. Take heed that ye be not deceived. The Prophet Hosea says of Israel, "They left off to take heed to the Lord, and asked council at their stocks."

"Take heed what you hear." Here is a caution given by our Savior in five words, which deeply concerns every child of God, and every child of the wicked one. Still it is but little regarded by either class. But wherein does it so deeply concern us? I answer, because ordinarily faith comes by hearing.

The principal means ordained of God for the propagation of his truth was the preaching of the gospel. "Go preach my gospel to every creature" was the commission put into the hands of the Apostles, and it has "pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." We learn by that solemn charge given by Paul to his son Timothy, what it is to preach the gospel. "Preach the word." "Thy word is truth."

All true religion is obedience to the truth. It consists in those dispositions, affections and actions which are in correspondence with God's word. How important it is that we take heed what we hear. Nothing but the truth of God's word can profit us. If any of the fallen, perishing children of Adam are ever begotten to that life that is in the Son, they must be begotten by the truth. "Of his own will," says the apostle James, "begat he us with the word of truth." Are any taken from the great mass of wickedness, and fitted and set apart for God's everlasting kingdom, the work must be done through the truth. "Sanctify them through thy truth" was our Savior's prayer for his disciples.

I sometimes ask myself why it is that the preaching of our day is so powerless, when the gospel by itself is "the power of God unto salvation"—is mighty to the pulling down of strongholds? But I find an answer in the words of a Presbyterian minister of our own times.

He says, "One of the most discouraging signs of the times is the departure of many, who bear the ministerial office, from the form of sound words—the simplicity of the gospel. Erroneous philosophy and perverted reason obscure and pervert the life-giving truths of the Bible." "Under the chilling influence of speculative philosophy, or the withering heat of fanaticism, vital piety rapidly declines."

If such be the preaching of our day, let me say to all who may read this article, remember the admonition of our Savior, "Take heed what you hear." It is the mixture of human wisdom with the divine that evidently diminishes the power of the gospel. Paul declares that he was sent to "preach the gospel, not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect." And he preached it, "Not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but with the Holy Ghost teaching, comparing spiritual things with spiritual;" an example for all teachers of the word, but followed by few.

Some writer has said, "From the third century to the Reformation, the church was cursed and the gospel corrupted by the Philosophy of Plato and Aristotle." Now unless I greatly err it had not wholly spent its cunning and corrupting force to the church [illegible] . . . [illegible]

All mankind have a life that must run parallel with the life of Deity. You cannot get rid of it however much you may wish to. There are but two abodes for the future—Heaven or Hell. Choose where you will spend that unending life, for you must exist in the one or the other so long as God exists.

Now, I do not say that the above is philosophy, but I do say that it is not Bible; for the Bible everywhere finds man in his natural state in a perishing, dying condition, and invites him to Christ that he may obtain life.

Brethren, there are false teachers amongst us in this dispensation of grace, as there were false prophets among the people of the former dispensation. We must take heed what we hear, as well as how we hear. Error can do us no good; truth can. Error comes by false teachers; mercy and truth by Jesus Christ.

Cabot, Vt. C. BOND.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN VOYAGER.

AIR.—Brave Boys.

High o'er the foaming main
Swells the fierce storm in its might,
While round our barque the mad waters leap,
And dark is the gloomy night.
Many the storms we've braved,
Many the dangers we've passed,
Thank God! we are nearing the heavenly shore,
We'll enter the haven at last.

CHORUS.

Safe home at last,
Home where the weary may rest;
To join in the song of the heavenly throng,
The song of the pure and the blest.

Firm is our Pilot true,
Onward's the word of command;
We'll fear nevermore, though the hurricane roar,—
Oh! we're bound for fair Canaan's land.
Soon will the night be o'er,
Soon all our sorrows be gone,
We'll anchor soon 'neath a cloudless sky,
When the morning of glory shall dawn.

Soft are the breezes now,
Borne from the verdant vale,
While fragrance fair we shall evermore share,
And bask in the healthful gale.
The sorrowing ones rejoice,
Their bosoms ne'er heave with a sigh;
For gladness shall sit on every brow,
And beam from every eye.

E. SANDERSON.

For the World's Crisis.

MAN IS MORTAL.

The commonly received and popular theory that all men possess, or are endowed with, an innate principle which is destined to exist forever, and which will and must survive through all eternity, is a great error. This principle is generally denominated soul, and is believed to be capable of a separate existence from the body, as a distinct entity. It is a fundamental and deep-rooted error, which gives direction to the faith and doctrines of nearly all the various sects or organized bodies of Christendom. Strange to say, however, its origin is traced to heathen philosophy! Plato, Socrates, Pythagoras, Zoroaster, and other heathen philosophers, were the first who taught the doctrine of natural immortality, or "the immortality of the soul."

What a source from whence professing christians of so many different names and various creeds and doctrines to believe and sustain this gross fable, as a leading or fundamental doctrine, upon which the superstructure of their faith rests! It is worse than a sandy foundation; not being supported by the Scriptures of divine inspiration. How frequently do we hear these expressions by professed ministers of Christ, even: never-dying soul, deathless spirit, immortal soul, and similar words and phrases; whereas they cannot be once found in all the sacred Scriptures. The Bible teaches no such doctrine.

Those persons who are desirous of knowing the truth that they may walk therein, and be sanctified thereby (John 8: 32; 17: 17–19,) should follow the example of the noble Bereans. Acts 27: 11. There they will find that immortality, or eternal life, is to be sought for and obtained through Christ alone.—Rom. 2: 7; John 5: 39, 40.

ADAM FRIESE.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN WORSHIP.

MR. EDITOR:—Having been invited to dedicate a church within the bounds of my district, containing an organ, more than twenty years ago, I addressed to Messrs. Root and Lewis, the principal members of the board of trustees, who gave me the invitation, the following letter, a copy of which I here forward to you for publication in the columns of your faithful periodical.

E. B.

HERE FOLLOWS THE LETTER:

Dear Brethren:—As I am about to address you on a subject of deep and lasting interest to the church of Christ, and one too, which, under the circumstances, involves considerations of the most delicate nature, I dare not proceed in the undertaking without lifting my heart to Him, "whose we are and whom we serve," that he would vouchsafe two things, —first, that I may write, and secondly, that you may read this epistle in the spirit of Christ.

The subject to which I allude is the setting up an organ of music in your new church. And who can say, in almost any view of this subject, that it is not one of deep and lasting interest to the church of Christ, especially that of it which holds Methodism and Christianity to be one and the same thing? When the intelligence of this thing came to my ears, it gave me a shock I had not often felt. There was no redeeming circumstance from which I could derive any relief. The thing had been done; it had been done by men of piety, by men of influence, by men whom I had esteemed almost beyond any others of my acquaintance. Indeed, it had been done by men who were the very last I should have suspected of such a thing in all the district! I felt, I prayed, I wept.

But all this opposition to church organs, it will be said, perhaps, is the effect of education; of superstition, of habit; or, at least, of great weakness. But admitting all this, as the great body of our people are honestly opposed to instrumental music in churches, and would be greatly injured in their feelings by its introduction there, I submit to your christian charity whether the consciences of even weak brethren are not to be regarded; and whether we are not required by God himself to abstain from anything of this sort "whereby a brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak?" This single circumstance, when you come to look at it, will be a sufficient reason with you, no doubt, as it surely is with me, for discountenancing instrumental music in churches. But there are other reasons for excluding instrumental music from the worship of God, which appeal with equal force to our christian charity, if not, indeed, to our sense of moral obligation.

1. Mr. Wesley, whom I regard as no mean authority in such cases, peremptorily forbade the use of instrumental music in all his societies.

2. The practice of using instrumental music in the worship of God has been steadily opposed by our church, preachers and people, with the exception of here and there an individual, down to the present time. At least this has been the case in our own country.

3. In 1836 the General Conference passed a resolution, solemnly enjoining upon the ministry to discourage the use of instrumental music in churches, by all prudent means; declaring the practice to be utterly at variance with vital godliness.

4. The use of instrumental music in the worship of God, by David, is most clearly condemned by the prophet Amos. See the Book of this prophet, chapter 6, verse 5, with Dr. Clark's comment upon the passage. And also his note on 2 Chron. 29: 25, to the same effect. The Doctor, in his comment on these passages, shows most conclusively, at least to my mind, that the use of instrumental music in the worship of God was sinful, even in David's time. But even were we to admit that David was justified in using such music, this would no more prove that we may use it under the gospel dispensation than that we may imitate him in having a plurality of wives, or in offering those sacrifices which were prescribed by the ceremonial law; for if it should be argued that the law of ceremonies and the custom of polygamy were abolished by the express authority of our Lord and his apostles, so was the use of instrumental music in Divine worship forever excluded by their example, as nothing of the kind was ever allowed in their practice.

I know it is said that "instrumental music is an improvement on primitive usage." And I know equally well that primitive usage needs no improvement; but that all departures from it are of the nature of apostasy, while all improvement consists in returning to first principles, or in coming back to primitive usage from which apostate churches have departed. Improvement is the specious name under which all errors and corruptions that ever disgraced the church, have crept in. And I, for one, have grown quite suspicious of this name. I cannot help thinking that those changes by which we "depart from the old land-marks" our fathers have set up in the days of their simplicity are to be recognized, not as useful improvements, but as hurtful innovations. Let us take a few examples of these improvements as they present themselves in the history of the church in bygone days, and we shall learn to adopt them, it is presumed, with great caution; or, rather, to adopt them not at all. It will be remembered that the Jews improved the worship of their fathers, until all "appeared beautiful without; but within, was full of rottenness and dead men's bones." The Papal Hierarchy have improved the apostolic worship until not only images, and relics, and saints have come to be adored, but his holiness, the Pope, "opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshiped, so that he, as God, sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." And some of the Methodist people, particularly in Europe, have improved the Wesleyan worship till we see

"The Spirit in the letter lost;
The substance in the shade."

This remark applies, I am well assured by some of our English brethren, to that portion of the British connection especially who have introduced organ-worship into their churches; particularly in the city of Leeds, where this very circumstance occasioned the secession of no less than two thousand members at one time. With such improvements before our eyes, is it not time to pause and consider?

"But we shall get more hearers by having a good organ in the church." Aye, and the same might be said of many other expedients, as the introducing of plays, shows, festivals and the like; particularly might one increase the number of his hearers by a compliance with that numerous class who "say to the seers, see not, and to the prophets, prophesy not unto us right things: speak unto us smooth things; prophesy deceits." But,

"Shall I, to soothe the unholy throng,
Soften God's truth, and smooth my tongue?"

Shall I conform to the world, that the world, through my influence thus exerted, may be conformed to Christ? How lately did I show, in your own chapel, that conformity to the world, as a means of conforming the world to Christ, never did and never can produce that effect? At all events, I dare not conform to the world, for God has forbidden it; and I, certainly, am not called upon to shut myself out of heaven by disobeying him, however I might benefit others by such disobedience.

And now, dear brethren, what is to be done? You have purchased an organ, I am told, and placed it in the church. But will you not consent, after all, to remove it? Certainly you are not conscience bound in this matter, but I am. You do not deem it wrong to worship without an organ; but I, with many of our people, deem it wrong to worship with one. And will you not give it up on the ground of expediency, if on no other ground? Will you not give it up for conscience' sake?

Conscience, I say, not thine own, but his who is grieved with the practice. I hope, I pray, I trust you will; and that God will bless you in that sacrifice of feeling and of pecuniary interest which such a measure might occasion.

But if you feel yourselves called upon, in view of all the circumstances, to retain the organ in the church, still the question occurs, what is to be done? You have kindly invited me to officiate at the dedication of your new church, but, painful as it is to my feelings, and I can assure you that it gives me more pain—such is my respect for you—than anything which has ever transpired in connection with my public ministry; yet, painful as it is to my feelings, I can only accept the invitation on the condition, that the organ shall be removed;* for, with my present views, I cannot, in conscience, dedicate to the worship of God, an instrument which, I believe, would be unacceptable to him, and one which, I am satisfied, he never designed should be employed in his service; at least under the gospel dispensation. I say it is painful, extremely painful, for me to decline your invitation, as you are among the last I would be willing to disoblige. But I have looked the matter over; I have made it the subject of much prayer; I have counted the cost, and I take this step from the deliberate conviction that such is the will of the Lord.

I am aware, dear brethren, that you can well enough dispense with my services, at your approaching dedication, as almost any other one will be able to do better than myself. I am not vain enough to suppose that you will be led to secure my attendance at a very great sacrifice; but as you have had the courtesy to invite me, (out of respect to my office, no doubt), I exceedingly regret that anything should exist to deny me the pleasure of complying with the invitation. And if you can at all consent to remove the obstacle which obliges me to decline, the honor you have intended me, it will afford me the most heartfelt satisfaction to bear a part in the dedicatory services of your beautiful church.

Will you be good enough to advise me on the subject immediately, that I may be seasonably informed of your final decision.

Yours, respectfully, ELIAS BOWEN.

* NOTE.—Suffice it to say, I did dedicate the church in accordance with the invitation, but upon the express condition that the organ should be removed immediately after the dedication, (it being impracticable to do it before), and that it should be specifically excepted in the dedicatory prayer, which was done. Thus, my part of the stipulation was carried out in good faith; but through the advice of two or three Methodist preachers, as I was told,—shame on them,—the organ was never removed. Since that time, other singing machines have been plentifully introduced into our churches, and, O, what a ridiculous bellowing we now have in almost all our houses of worship throughout the land! —Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

A BIRTH-DAY REFLECTION.

BRO. GRANT;—I am this day eighty-nine years of age; and ever since 1843 have been a Second Advent believer. Under God, I was converted into the Advent faith by the preaching of Eld. John Couch; and although many have turned from the faith, since that time, and gone back to the world, seeking worldly opulence and worldly pleasure, I have retained the faith, and by meditation and its influence have found many comforting hours, especially when and after I have been reading the prophecies of Daniel and St. John the divine. Surely they speak in the highest terms of the power, greatness and goodness of our blessed Lord and Savior, and of his speedy coming to judge and cleanse the earth from all unrighteousness.

In view of these things, notwithstanding my advanced age, I hope my life will be spared until the last trump shall sound, and that I shall be prepared, through grace to meet my blessed Lord in the air with his believing chosen ones.

I must be short in my address. But conscience impels me to say that I rejoice in hearing of and seeing so many believers that are now preparing, and waiting for their blessed Lord and Master. Our numbers have been greatly increased within a few years past by the outpouring of the precious gospel of Christ. There have been many new converts who have embraced the true faith, and many backsliders reclaimed, so that our meetings are now thronged with true and loving christians. May God hasten the day when the precious gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ shall be promulgated throughout the whole world, and re-echo from heart to heart, until the whole seed of Abraham shall be brought in to the holy temple, the New Jerusalem, where sin and unrighteousness shall be unknown, but where joy and happiness shall ever abound.

MARY B. ELKINS.

Fisherville, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

A VOICE FROM THE SICK ROOM.

It is night, and all is still save the ticking of the clock and a heavy and disturbed breathing from the sick room. I am watching with my dear old father, who lies prostrate with lung fever. Life and Death are at strife in his case, and it seems as if Death would have the victory. My poor heart is so tired of these sad scenes of suffering and death, that I look away over into God's beautiful Eden, where there will be no cause for bitter grief, and where sick-beds and death-beds will be things unknown, and long to be there. Prepare me, dear Jesus, not only for the trials that await me here, but for that home of sweet and refreshing rest.

JANE I. AUSTIN.

Bristol, Conn.

☞ Scarcely any thing is of so much importance in preaching as speaking directly to the people [illegible] . . . and affectionately [illegible] cerned in the message, and those who would [illegible] speak to them in this manner [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

THE WORK FOR THE TIMES.

I wish to draw the attention of the Crisis readers to a very valuable and intrinsic work, which has been published but a short time, having run through three editions. It is the completest and best work ever published on Chronology. I own one copy, and if I could not get another, mine could not be bought for $100. It is just the work for Bible students, and no library is complete without it. The author, having spent some years studying the chronological order of the Bible and making these astronomical calculations by which he thinks he has removed the seal and opened the Book of Daniel, has thus furnished us with a new internal evidence of the divine origin of the Holy Scriptures, which had been closed up by the seal, as placed on the Book of Daniel until the time of the end. This new evidence is of that clear and positive nature which enables the author, in his address to the reader ("The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened"), to declare that "no man . . . no, not even the most confirmed infidel, atheist or deist,—can make himself master of its contents without being compelled to admit that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God."

It contains more valuable original matter than any book we have seen on the subject, and has thrown much light on that "sure word of prophecy" to which we are especially admonished "to take heed, as to a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn." 2 Pet. 1: 17. It furnishes a chronology which reconciles all those texts of Scripture which we have found it impossible to harmonize with any other table of chronology ever before published; and it also arranges these prophetic dates of the Bible in a way that makes the one corroborate and confirm the correctness of another; thus exhibiting a prophetic diagram, or furnishing a mathematical arrangement of all the prophetic dates, which is suggestive of many new and valuable ideas, and must greatly assist the labors of subsequent students of prophecy.

He has made a scientific calculation of all eclipses of the sun and moon, as found in the writings of both sacred and profane authors, and thus, by the truth-testing power of astronomy, established the correct Bible chronology.

Another work I would call especial attention to, is "No. 4" of "The Last Day Tokens," by Bro. S. S. Brewer of Ashburnham, Mass. The work is not published yet, but is ready, I believe, only lacking the means to do it. Judging from what I have heard of the work in its manuscript state, I should say that, however complete each of the first three numbers of "The Last Day Tokens" may be, yet the whole would not be complete without "No. 4." The whole four numbers would seem to make the work a fitting text book for the times on which we have fallen.

Come, brethren, let us wake up to our duty in these matters, and see that such works are published, and such works bought, as the signs of the times demand. Yours for present truth, JOHN TAYLOR.

New Sharon, Me.

ITALIAN MISSION.

Frederick Corkin pd (2 in gold)	$1.36
Mary Howland pd	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

DO GOOD.

"As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men."

Is there not a chance to do good by helping the Italian Mission? There is our dear Bro. Czechowski laboring in a foreign land to spread the glad tidings of the kingdom. Is it not our duty to immediately free him from pecuniary embarrassment and to place him in a position where his time can be given to preach the truth? "They which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." Is it right to let our brother be burdened with temporal necessities? Dear sisters, will you not deny yourselves of superfluities of apparel and adornings for the body, and help the cause of God? Those who deny self and administer to the necessities of the saints, thus virtually doing it to Christ, will soon hear, "Come, inherit the kingdom prepared for you." He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly. But let us sow bountifully that we may thus reap.

The judgment is almost upon us. Millions are rushing to destruction, and shall we let them go unwarned? If we see the sword coming and warn not the people, will not their blood be required at our hands? Though not personally ministers, we can virtually preach by supporting the servants of God already in the field. O let us be faithful in this matter and hold up the hands of the wearied watchmen. Distribute freely; be ready for every good word and work. Do good till Jesus comes, then thou shalt be rewarded according to thy works. REBECCA.

A GREENBACK WELL INVESTED.

A year ago several journals united in recommending their readers to invest a Dollar "Greenback" in securing that very excellent Journal for the HOUSEHOLD (including the Little Ones,) for the GARDEN, and for the FARM, called the American Agriculturist. Many persons were thus led to subscribe, and we believe all who did so have been much more than satisfied. They have received the 23d Annual Volume of the Agriculturist which is full of good things, useful, practical, and entertaining, and just now the publisher is sending out to each of his subscribers applying, a present of a plant of one of the most remarkable Strawberries that have ever been brought out. These plants, when sold by the only other person having them, go readily at 75 cents each. So the Greenback invested last year has certainly paid well. All we have now to say is, let all others go and do likewise.

Notwithstanding the present advance in cost, the publisher still offers to take subscribers this month (September) at $1 a year, or from now to the end of 1865 (fifteen months) for $1.15. And, still further, he offers one of the remarkable Strawberry Plants, sent free and post-paid, to every new subscriber who encloses five cents extra for oil cloth, packing, and postage on the plant. Our advice to all is, send the dollar (or the $1.15) and the extra five cents at once to ORANGE JUDD, Publisher of the Agriculturist, at 41 Park Row, New York City, and get the paper. You will get a most beautiful, well illustrated, practical paper, and the cheapest one in the country, [illegible] [illegible]

THE WORLD'S CRISIS AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, Nov. 1, 1864.

THURMAN'S CHRONOLOGY.

Those sending orders for Bro. Thurman's Chronology will have to wait a few days, before we can send any more copies. A week ago, we had one hundred in the office, and now they are all gone. This is the third edition of the work, and the fourth will be out in a short time. Every one who has a Bible should have a copy of this Chronology.

A REQUEST.

We have been earnestly requested to state whether the report of our discussion on the Sabbath question, with M. E. Cornell, at Manchester, N. H., as published by the friends at Battle Creek, Mich., is "a true representation?"

We would not charge the author of the report with untruth; but it will be noticed that our speeches, as reported, are only from one half to about one fourth as long as those of our opponent. It is well known that a person may truthfully report a part of what another said, and make him appear in very bad light; when if he had only reported the rest that he said, the scales would be turned the other way. We claim that such was the case in the report of that discussion.

"PROPHETIC PERIODS."

A new interest is awakened in the study of the prophetic periods, since the publication of Bro. Thurman's chronology. The whole subject is being carefully examined. In this article we purpose to give the dates for the commencement and termination of the sixty-two weeks of Dan. 9: 25, 26, according to Thurman. Dan. 9: 25, 26, read as follows:—

"Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks; the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times. And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself; and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary, and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined."

As shown in former articles, (see Crisis Oct. 11th and 18th) the sixty-nine weeks, or 483 years, began with the decree of Cyrus "to restore and to build Jerusalem," B. C. 488, and ended at the birth of Christ, B. C. 5; that is, five years before the beginning of the Christian era. In consequence of the decree of Cyrus, Jerusalem was rebuilt, "and the wall, even in troublous times. And after three-score and two weeks, shall Messiah be cut off." As there are seven days in one week, in sixty-two there are four hundred thirty-four. As it has been most clearly shown that the sixty-nine weeks are weeks of years, that is four hundred eighty-three years, it is very evident that the sixty-two weeks, in the following verse, are also weeks of years, amounting to four hundred thirty-four.

According to the connection and arrangement in verses 25 and 26, we should reasonably conclude that the sixty-two weeks began at the time the "wall" was completed, which was in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes. See Neh. 6: 15. "So the wall was finished in the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul; in fifty and two days;" which, according to Thurman's Chronology, was on Wednesday, Aug. 28th, B. C. 406. Nehemiah went up to repair the wall, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, B. C. 418. See Neh. 2: 1–8. When the wall was finished, then the commandment of Cyrus was fully executed. From that event to when Messiah was "cut off", were to be sixty-two weeks of years. Nehemiah was governor "in the land of Judah" twelve years, beginning at the twentieth year of Artaxerxes; during which time the walls were finished. In Neh. 5: 14 he says:—"Moreover from the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year even unto the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that is, twelve years, I and my brethren have not eaten the bread of the governor."

In chap. 6: 1–4. he says:—

"Now it came to pass, when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had builded the wall, and that there was no breach left therein; (though at that time I had not set up the doors upon the gates;) that Sanballat and Geshem sent unto me, saying, Come, let us meet together in some one of the villages in the plain of Ono. But they thought to do me mischief. And I sent messengers unto them, saying, I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down; why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you? Yet they sent unto me four times after this sort; and I answered them after the same manner."

It appears from the record, that in fifty-two days from the time they "returned . . . every one unto his work" on "the wall," (Neh. 4: 15,) "the wall was finished," which was, as before stated, "in the twenty and fifth day of the month Elul,"—Aug. 28th, B. C. 406. At this point Bro. Thurman very properly begins the sixty-two weeks, which must run to where Messiah was to "be cut off." Four hundred thirty-four years from the foregoing date bring us to the 25th of the sixth month, A. D. 29. Bro. Thurman remarks that, "six months and eighteen days after this, our Lord was crucified, which answers to the expression, 'after three-score and two weeks.'"

He shows very clearly that our Lord was crucified on Thursday, April 6th, A. D. 30, at which time he was about thirty-three and a half years of age. He also shows that Christ's ministry continued just 1260 days.

Our Savior "began to be about thirty years of age at his baptism (Lk. 3: 23), and [illegible] [illegible] A. D. 26, and attended the first passover, Thursday, April 10th, A. D. 27 (John 2: 13); the second, Monday, Mar. 29th, A. D. 28, (John 5: 1); the third, Sunday, Apr. 17th, A. D. 29, (John 6: 4); the fourth, Thursday, Apr. 6th, A. D. 30, (John 12: 1); all of which amount to three and a half years for the duration of his ministry.—See Thurman's Chronology, pp. 163, 164.

PRIDE AND EXTRAVAGANCE.

It is astonishing to see the increase of pride manifested in these last days, when everything in the state of our country should lead the people to study economy. It only proves the truthfulness of Paul's prophecy, "that in the last days" the pride of the people will become one of "the signs of the times." If it were not as it is, we should lack one of the evidences that the end of the present dispensation is at hand. It is remarkable to see how the jots and tittles of the prophetic scriptures are fulfilling, which were to transpire in "the time of the end." We think none but the careless can fail to see the correspondence between the present state of things in the world, and what should be taking place just before the second coming of Christ. Every month the evidence grows stronger, and the light brighter to prove that we shall soon see the King of Kings.

The following, from the New York Daily Herald, Sept. 23d, 1864, shows which way the tide is setting:—

"The present universal mania for expense, the reckless profusion and extravagant expenditure observable on every side, extravagance which prevails all over the country, but may be said to culminate in New York, has attracted the attention of residents and sojourners alike, and excited the comments of newspaper writers and correspondents at home and abroad. Nay, more, it has been made the theme of editorial remark, serious or sarcastic, and foreign journalists have made it the basis of elaborate articles and referred to it to give plausibility to a theory or force to an argument. Preachers have moralized and satirists have laughed over it; legislators have framed laws to meet the occasion, and social reformers, with a spirit worthy of Mrs. Partington in her famous conflict with the Atlantic ocean, have endeavored by resolutions and by laws to keep back the resistless, advancing tide. While its rise was regular and governed as it were by natural laws it was unnoticed, save by the chroniclers of fashion; but, now that it has attained a threatening height, every one is interested in the momentous question, of its further rise or gradual subsidence. Judging from present appearances, the idea of subsidence has not yet entered the minds of the leaders of fashion, the upward tendency is still evident, and all the arrangements for the coming fall and winter indicate a firm faith in the continuance of the present lavish regime. Economy never was at such a discount before. Indeed, our people part with money as readily and indifferently as if they had reached the highest stage of christian perfection, detachment from worldly goods.

No one can walk through any of the New York mammoth establishments that minister to the wants of the fashionable world without coming to the conclusion that expense is the order of the day. The shelves and counters groan under the load of luxuries piled up or temptingly displayed—taffetas, soft and lustrous laces that a breath might ruffle, exquisite poplins, regal velvets, shawls that a queen might be proud to don, and gloves that might lie in a nutshell. On one side is an array of elegant, graceful looking opera cloaks—some white as a snow bird, others red as a flamingo and on the other tartans that would puzzle a Highlander to assign to any clan in all broad Scotland—plaids such as were never seen on brae or heather, mountain or muirland; but picturesque and striking, nevertheless, and admirably calculated to brighten up a winter promenade on Broadway or Fifth avenue, and contrast pleasantly with sombre skies and snowy streets.

The rage for expense is not only shown in the quality of goods bought, but in the exuberance of trimming used. Never was there such a mania for trimming of all kinds as now. In many instances the dress like the frame of a bonnet, is only the ground on which to work, being overlaid with trimming in every conceivable, or rather inconceivable, variety of designs—some odd, some elegant, and not a few outre in the extremes. When it is remembered that this taste is not confined to the waist and sleeves, but takes the flowing amplitude of the skirt for its ground operations, we can form some idea of the expense that the present fashion entails. Jackets, basquines, cloaks, paletots, are also profusely trimmed—lace, velvet and crochet being much used for that purpose. . . . .

As might be expected from the high price of materials used in the millinery business, bonnets range higher than ever. Plain bonnets, without lace or feathers sell for $35 and $40, and stylish ones readily bring $100 and more.

The 'McClellan,' described in the body of the article, though a sort of jockey cap, and requiring, consequently, less material than a bonnet, cannot be bought for less than seventy-five dollars. But the high prices have no terrors for purchasers; a hundred dollars is no obstacle in the way of a sale; and so modists make up bonnets, and fashionables buy them, and New York promenades look as gay and the opera house as brilliant as ever, and the winter, as we have already said, promises to surpass in gayety and glitter every previous winter."

"THE AGE OF VIRTUE."

Under the above heading, we find an article in the Banner of Light, of Oct. 29th, 1864, from which we extract the following:—

"Now it comes to the light of rational investigation, that such a personage as the temporary lord of Eden never existed—that our first parents, instead of Adam and Eve, were the positive and negative forces of nature, native to the contact of spirit and matter, by whose incessant transformation all things are born into consecutive being, of which man is the earthly ultimate; that our first personal parents were a little less than human—the most humanish of ante-human brains; that Eden, too, is not a waif of history, but a prophecy of hope and lesson of progress, to be realized in the maturity of mundane and human nature. We learn that man has never fallen—has never incurred the displeasure of his heavenly Father—was never in that predicament, to which the plan of redemption applies. In fact, the world is not miraculously lost, and therefore, there is no occasion for a miraculous Savior. It turns out that the ecclesiastical Christ is a nullity—that Jesus did not die for man or God's sake—that no Lamb of God was ever slain, because no sacrifice was ever divinely prized or humanly needed; vicarious punishment being unjust, remission of sins being impossible, and every soul being so morally and rationally constituted as to enjoy or suffer its [illegible] [illegible] therefore, the doctrine of atonement is either a priestly hoax, or a penitential blunder, and christianity is . . . a manifold absurdity, if not the ugliest imposture that ever fooled mankind."

So it appears, at last, that according to the teaching of the spirits and Spiritualists, that no such persons as Adam and Eve ever existed as recorded in the Bible; "that man has never fallen—has never incurred the displeasure of his heavenly Father;" "that our first personal parents were a little less than human." We may well inquire, what will be the next new light from the "spirit-world?" Here is another sample:—"It turns out that the ecclesiastical Christ is a nullity, . . . therefore the doctrine of atonement is either a priestly hoax, or a penitential blunder, and christianity is . . . a manifold absurdity, if not the ugliest imposture that ever fooled mankind."

There, reader, what do you think of such teaching? This is called The "new religion of Nature," which is spreading very rapidly. The seducer, it is true, would not dare begin his instruction with such bold, blasphemous language, lest he defeat his object; but follow on to believe in the "religion of nature," as it is called, and the seduced captive will end in the deepest infidelity. Within the past few years, thousands, and even millions, if we can credit reliable testimony, have given up the Bible as their guide, and are trying to follow "THE NEW RELIGION OF NATURE."

Truly these are "perilous times." Are we awake to our dangers? It is to be feared that a large number, even of those who profess to be looking for the personal coming of Christ, are asleep. Dear Brn., awake! trim your lamps, for the Bridegroom is soon coming. Make no delay. "Remember Lot's wife." Tarry not to gather up the treasures of earth. Escape for thy life. Christ is at the door. Prepare for the marriage of the Lamb. The bride is getting ready. Beware of false lights. "Ask for the old paths, . . . the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest."

"DANGER IN THE NORTH."

The Boston Daily Journal, of Oct. 24th, 1864, under the above heading makes some alarming statements. It speaks of information from a high source, which shows that the evidences in 1860 of a "coming rebellion . . . were not so striking as those now foreboding trouble in the midst of the loyal States." It is said there are now in existence "banded organizations, in sworn hostility to the United States government, comprising in the aggregate no less than 500,000 men."

To our own mind there appears much danger of another civil war in the north. Men are becoming ungovernable, or "fierce," as the apostle said they would "in the last days." If they cannot have their own ways, rebellion comes next. This is truly a notoriously wicked generation, and is most rapidly increasing in iniquity. Thank the Lord, the day of bright glory is drawing near. Soon the reign of Satan must end, and Jesus will become our everlasting King.

A GOOD SPIRIT.

We are pleased with the kind spirit shown by our contributors. The following is a sample:—"Bro. Grant, here comes another one. You may publish just such articles as you see fit. I shall not think I am insulted if you do not publish any. I shall keep writing." That is right, Bro. T. It often happens that many good articles are delayed for some time before they are inserted. We can only fill our paper full. It is always necessary that some articles should go in immediately after their reception, if at all, because of circumstances connected with them, that would be out of date if delayed; while others are suitable for any time. So "keep writing," and do not think your communications are rejected because they do not appear at once. We have occasion to reject but few articles sent us; but many do not get a place in the paper for want of room. We shall do the best we can.

THE WAY TO KILL MINISTERS.

We commend the following truthful remarks on ventilation, taken from Zion's Herald, to all who are interested in the welfare of ministers and their congregations. Many faithful men are nearly ruined among us for want of attention to the ventilation of rooms where meetings are held, especially in the winter season. Some men, who understand the effect of bad air on the human constitution, will not go to meeting where they find attention is not paid to ventilation. We have often suffered severely in our public labors for want of fresh air.

Air which has been breathed over once becomes heavier than pure air, and sinks to the floor; hence there should be some place for its escape below the heads of the people. Hot air, when pure, will rise to the top of the room, and escape through a lowered window; but not so with air that has been used. Before that can go out at the top of the room it must be breathed the second time, more or less; hence a ventilator at the top of the room is not sufficient. We entreat those who have the care of meeting rooms to look to these matters, if you would save your ministers and have good meetings.

The following is the prescription for killing ministers:—

"Make them preach in badly ventilated rooms where there is a great crowd constantly exhaling carbonic acid gas. The preacher must inhale a portion of this slow but deadly poison, and under circumstances when his lungs, perhaps unduly excited and overtaxed, are in a condition to be easily and greatly affected by it. Many churches have wondered why God should cut short the days of promising and useful preachers by an early death. The records of eternity will doubtless show that many a faithful watchman has fallen before his time, [illegible] [illegible] on [illegible] while they are [illegible] in badly ventilated rooms. Such rooms are found to-day all over the country, where these [illegible] churches [illegible] with doors and windows closed during [illegible] services, with no other means of [illegible]. While seeking the salvation of souls, the health and well being of our bodies should not be unthought of. While poisoning your preacher with bad air, you are also poisoning yourselves and all associated with you, especially those who speak, pray, or sing in such places. Great care should be taken to guard against this evil. Sextons should understand this subject thoroughly, and see that the churches and vestries under their care are kept well ventilated."

NON-RESISTANCE.

A Philadelphia correspondent, when speaking of Bro. Thurman, author of the new Chronology, says:—

"He has been preaching in the West with great acceptance, except that he has been persecuted for preaching non-resistance. He had the Union flag hoisted over his head several times while preaching it, and was met once with drums, as he says, like an invading foe; but while they were firing guns around the house, they calmly sung—

'Am I a soldier of the cross?'

He is one of the most devoted servants of Christ I ever knew—the most pure minded and holy. He preached the non-resistant doctrine in Virginia until he nearly lost his life by it. He was conscripted and carried to Richmond, but refused to take a gun into his hand, declaring that he would prefer to suffer death. He was exempted by the authorities, and returned home, and immediately published his tract on Non-resistance,* for which he was near losing his life. His relations being loyal and influential, succeeded in getting him off. He had to give security to the whole amount of the worth of the publication office, before he could get it published in Charlotteville, Va. But afterwards the tract was sent to the Richmond Congress, and was partly the means in the passage of an exemption bill, exempting from military service for conscientious scruples."

* The Non-resistant tract, by Bro. Thurman, referred to in the foregoing, is excellent, and should be read by all. It contains 72 pp., price 20 cents single, postage 2 cents. For sale at this office.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$407.41
Willie E. Emerson pd	.10
M. T. pd	1.25
S. Hall pd	4.00
B. Perham pd	2.00

TOO MUCH WAR.

A brother sends us 50c. handed to him by J. O——, for the Tract Fund, and says:—"He was a member of the Freewill Baptist church, but they preached so much war, that he withdrew from them. I gave him what tracts I had, and among them Bro. Wellcome's work on Christians fighting, which he prizes very highly, and desires every christian to read."

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$205.15
A. P. Noyes pd	.25
G. S. McLaurin pd	1.00
E. B. Stearns pd	.50
Mrs. A. G. Brown pd	2.50
F. T. H. pd	.50
L. W. Spaulding pd	5.00
N. Sprague pd. (for Sr. "Lydia" of N. Y.)	2.50
L. A. Hart pd	.25
F. S. pd	3.00
M. O. M. pd	2.00
Granby, Ct. pd	1.00
A Baptist brother pd	2.00
G. L. Teeple pd	.50
Frances A. Gard pd. (for some poor Sr.)	1.00
J. Bayley pd	.75
Mary J. Jones pd	.50
M. S. Smith pd	1.00
P. Dow pd	.80
B. F. Hammond pd	.25
Mary pd (for Sr. "Lydia")	1.00
L. C. Glazier pd. (for Sr. "Lydia")	1.25
W. Moore pd	.50
J. B. Trefethen pd	1.00
Geo. S. Harwood pd	5.00
John Clothey pd	1.00

GIVE! GIVE!! GIVE!!!

THE COMMAND.

Moses—"The poor will never cease out of thy land; therefore I command thee, saying, —Thou shalt OPEN THY HAND WIDE unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy."

Messiah—"GIVE to him that asketh of thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away."

THE EXAMPLE.

The Bountiful Man—"And Zaccheus, who was chief among the publicans, and rich, said unto the Lord,—"Behold, Lord, THE HALF of my goods I GIVE to the poor."

The Benevolent Woman—"She stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hand to the needy."

THE BLESSING.

Jesus—"It is MORE BLESSED TO GIVE than to receive."

Solomon—"He that hath mercy on the poor, HAPPY is he!"

David—"He shall be BLESSED upon the earth."

THE REWARD.

Here—"He that GIVETH to the poor, SHALL NOT LACK." "The Lord," "he will PAY him again." "GIVE, AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN UNTO YOU; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For, with the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again." "AN HUNDRED-FOLD, in this present time,"—and

There—"In the world to come, eternal life." "Sell what thou hast, and GIVE to the poor, and thou shalt have TREASURES IN HEAVEN." Treasures, that shall never grow dim or corrupt; treasures, that shall never pass away; honors—unfading; riches—countless and priceless; and glory—immortal!

Shall this reward be yours? W. B. H.

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

FROM A SISTER IN JEFFERSON CO., N. Y.

My husband and myself are in some sort invalids. He is entirely blind in one eye, and hardly able to see with the other, having been very badly burned by potash from a bursting kettle, where he worked a few years since. Hence he is not able to labor much. This renders my own cares in door and out double, especially as all my work is done with one hand, for I never had but one, and am withal not in good health. We have but little of this world's goods, so we get very little money, and this soon disappears, although we try to be prudent, live plainly, buy no finery, and dispense with many things which would make us more comfortable, for the sake of paying our debts, and, among these, what I owe for the Crisis. I highly appreciate the paper, and cannot express my gratitude to you for sending it to me so long unpaid for. I prize it next to my Bible, for it is the best [illegible] I can get, and my feelings in view of having it stopped I cannot describe. How can I live without it—and yet I know the [illegible] of the [illegible]. If you can still send me the paper without becoming embarrassed or [illegible] I shall be happy and grateful, and shall pay up whenever I have the means. Your unworthy sister, MARTHA.

FROM A SISTER IN MINNESOTA.

I have been a reader of the Crisis ever since its first publication; my husband was one of its first subscribers. In May, 1861, my husband died, and being left in adverse circumstances, I thought I must give up the paper; but through the solicitations of Bro. ——, I have received the paper free, for which I feel very grateful, situated as I am in the far west where I have not the privileges I once enjoyed in New England. Very little is known in this country of the Advent doctrine. Here and there one I find, lovers of the truths which we hold, but no Advent preaching do we hear. All seem to be dreaming of the world's conversion and kindred doctrines. O, how dark it seems to me! Here is a wide field for labor, but the laborers are few. Consequently I more highly appreciate the Crisis than ever. It seems to cheer me onward, and often encourages my desponding heart. I shall be very happy to have it continued, if it may be, though unworthy of such a favor. Accept my sincere thanks for the past. O that I may have grace to endure to the end, and at last receive a crown of life. Yours very truly, MRS. H.

A BROTHER IN CARROLL CO., N. H.

A young sister writes in his behalf as follows:—"Mr. W. would like to have his paper very much. He says he does not know how to get along without it. But, like hundreds of others, he is a poor man, and has spent nearly all to put in a substitute. If I were able I would take the Crisis a year for him; but I am a poor girl and cannot. I thought I would just mention the facts in relation to him, and you can do as you feel it duty; if you can send it free, he will be pleased to get it, although he does not know that I have written to you so. He feels bad at the thought of giving it up. His wife is not a believer, but she likes the paper much. E. M. O.

New York Free List.

It is proposed that the churches and brethren, in each town and county, do what they can to supply their own poor with the Crisis for the coming year. Will the brethren in the following places take the matter in hand, and see what they can do?

Albany	1	Lima (South)?	1
Albion	1	Loon Lake	1
Armonk?	1	Sodus (So.)	1
Barre (West)	1	Mannsville	1
Batavia	1	Mina	1
Binghamton	1	McGrawville	1
Brockport	2	New York	2
Buffalo	1	Newburgh	1
Champlain?	1	Oakfield?	1
Canandaigua	1	Pawlings	2
Canastota	1	Pleasantville	1
Cincinnatus	1	Prospect	1
Cicero	1	Quaker St.	1
Chili Centre	1	Rochester	2
Copenhagen	1	Rouses Point	2
Dansville	1	Shelby (East)	1
Eagle Harbor	1	Sandy Hill	2
Fayetteville	1	Seneca Falls	2
Fowlersville	1	Saratoga Springs	1
Fredonia	1	Syracuse	1
Freetown Corners	1	Schenectady	1
Fulton	1	Troy (West)	1
Geneva	1	Vermont	1
Groton (West)	1	Virgil (East)	1
Granville W. Corners	1	Worth?	1
Greenport, L. I.	1	Waterloo?	1
Hamlin?	1	Warsaw	1
Harrisburg	1	Williamsburg	1
Lapeer	1	Total	64

Are there not others?

A subscriber in Mich., who has received the paper free, some seven years or more, writes:—

"For your great kindness in so long sending me your paper gratuitously, I wish to offer you my sincere thanks. I am happy to inform you that I no longer desire to receive the paper without paying for it, as I am now able to do so. Enclosed please find $2.50 to pay my subscription for one year from date. Very respectfully yours, MRS. ——.

For the World's Crisis.

A BETTER USE.

BRO. GRANT:—I read the proposition of our good paper to some of our friends, or enemies, to induce them to read the good news of the coming kingdom. I thought it a good way to spread the truth; and, having staid at home from a caravan, and thereby saved fifty cents for a better use, I want you to send the Crisis for three months to ——, ——, Ill.

Strawberry Point, Ill. MARY DEYO.

For the World's Crisis.

"GET THE BEST."

This excellent advice reminds most of our readers of the rivalry and literary warfare between Webster's and Worcester's Dictionaries, on the publication of Worcester's large work five years ago. In such a contest every one who knows the value of words, or of the divine gift of language, must feel some interest, even if one does not become a partizan.

We do not purpose to praise either work at the expense of the other. But the recent appearance of an altogether new edition of Webster's requires special notice. For it should be understood that the improved edition, with an appendix of new words and of pictorial illustrations, was never designed as the best or as final. It was issued and given to the people at an easy rate, to remind us that the departed author could yet speak, and to gain the time, until the extended labors of various scholars might complete the work now offered.*

Although the work is largely done anew, it is Webster's still, by a metempsychosis more real than commonly happens to books. The soul of Webster is in it. The inspiration of his arduous and zealous life-long labors, having made his own handiwork an English favorite no less than an American, required successive editions which should bear the stamp of his own mind long after he himself should enter into his rest. His views were well understood by Professor Goodrich, who entered so fully into his labors; and from him Professor Porter has well understood what was needed to perfect the work. He has called to his aid numerous collaborators, each expert and eminent in a special department. Thus the various hosts of technical terms—legal and musical, military and nautical, and those in the natural sciences—are well cared for. And that we may not say "Sibboleth" in the ears of our Catholic neighbors, the Rev. E. B. O'Callaghan, of Albany, has been employed to contribute the ecclesiastical terms and definitions peculiar to his church. Besides all this marshalling of the various classes of words and their meanings, special labor has been bestowed, throughout the work, in the following particulars:

1. In Etymology. [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] curiosity, we like to know what country and age a word hails from, no less than the nationality of a newly arrived foreigner, or our own genealogy. And words meet as strange adventures as do persons. "The history of a word, says Coleridge, is often more interesting than that of a campaign. Dr. Webster was peculiarly fond of seeking the origin of the words among which he lived, and his own work abounded in their derivations. But in his day the many languages of mankind had been not at all compared as they have been since. His extensive labor in this direction must often prove inaccurate. But so far from being abandoned, the services of Dr. C. A. F. Mahn, of Berlin, eminent in Comparative Philology, have been secured, and he has spent five years in perfecting this feature of the new Dictionary. Thus the German, which has given to our language so many words, has contributed its best light on the sources of our Nile; and the work of our own explorer is done past all present rivalry, to the honor of his own name.

2. In Orthography Webster has been charged with laying down laws when he should only report the usage and custom of the best writers. He would reply that custom is often arbitrary;—for the best writers often give little heed to the forms of words, if only they fall in their right places in the living sentence;—and that the lexicographer, more than any other person, should in this department assert principles which may in due time be respected. But if this is an open question, all objection is obviated by giving also the customary orthography along with that which the analogy of other words requires; and this is done in the new edition.

3. In Definition. Dr. Webster's aptness to define words betrayed him into some redundancy; he sometimes used too many words for one definition, or he repeated the same definition in different words. This pardonable error gave Worcester's Dictionary an advantage which may be claimed no longer. In this new edition the definitions are given as neatly and concisely as need be.

4. In the matter of Pronunciation new signs are introduced, in addition to the old ones. Also a synopsis of more than 1300 words differently pronounced.

5. An account of Synonyms is indispensable in a good lexicon. We must know the differing shades of meaning in words of kindred import. The articles comparing such words, prefixed by Prof. Goodrich to the edition of 1859, are here distributed through the body of the work. Also words requiring no such comparison are added where they appear to be in place.

6. In the Vocabulary, or list of words admitted, there is a great improvement in giving the declined forms of the verb as distinct words only when they have distinct meanings, or assume peculiar forms. Thus many hundred words which only encumber ordinary dictionaries are spared. Yet the list of words remaining is over 114,000, which is larger than that given by Worcester. Some words will be found in either work which are not given in the other; new words, and words obsolete or becoming obsolete, are admitted or rejected by the varying judgment of lexicographers. We say nothing against Worcester's list. The larger list might be such only because the latest. But it is probably the best.

7. The Pictorial Illustrations of Worcester gave his work a temporary advantage. The Appendix of similar illustrations, added to the next edition of Webster, was inconvenient because separated from the words requiring illustration. But the advantage is now with Webster. The illustrations are given in the body of the work. Besides this, such as could be classified are thus repeated in the Appendix, giving us all the benefit of comparison, as in the articles on Synonyms. Also, several cuts too large to appear in the text are added, each illustrating numerous words, and which are as often referred to in the text. The whole number of illustrations is over 3000.

But one of the most interesting features of the work is yet to be told. Our language contains numerous epithets and other phrases not found in other dictionaries, such as The Admirable Doctor, The Angelic Doctor, The Apostle of Germany, The Athenian Bee, Battle of the Nations, Black Monday, The Blue Laws, Circumlocution Office, City of Churches, The Iron Duke, Copperheads, The Dark Day, Dixie, Fata Morgana, Flying Dutchman, Gotham, The Great Unknown, The Wandering Jew, King Cotton, Law's Bubble, Martin Mar-Prelate, Prester John, Simon Pure, Railway King, John Doe and Richard Roe, Tammany, The Satanic School, Sick Man of the East, South Sea Bubble, Vinegar Bible, The Wicked Bible, The Nine Worthies, etc., etc. About two thousand such expressions are explained, with a large amount of historical, legendary, and other literary matter, in a "Vocabulary of the Names of Noted Fictitious Persons and Places." This of itself would make a handsome duodecimo of entertaining reading, and it is quite novel, though every way appropriate in a Dictionary. The Appendix also contains nine other tables, mostly of proper names, Scriptural, including those of the Douay version, Greek and Roman, modern Biographical and Geographical, etc. The last named is accompanied with etymologies, which are of special interest, and often historically valuable, in connection with the names of places. That of common Christian names is given with their origin, signification, diminutives and nicknames, and their equivalents in other languages.

In short, this magnificent work sheds its ample light on all words and phrases that make English books, together with the many current phrases not English. The furniture for correct and intelligent reading is here complete. And the whole is offered with courteous recognition of its chief rival work, as "honorable to the industry of the author and the scholarship of the country,"—high praise, which conscious worth need not fear to bestow,—and yet with the modest confidence of true merit. "Though the Editor is more sensible of its deficiencies," he says, "than any other person can be, yet he does not hesitate to offer it to the public for the improvements which are due to the thorough research and careful revision which have been bestowed by his associates in preparing it. To them the public owe a debt of grateful appreciation, which, he believes, will be cheerfully discharged."

The price of the work is cheap in gold. If it seems large in currency, it should be remembered that books have advanced in price very little, whatever they are [illegible], with which many think they can dispense. But the best Dictionary is a necessity which can be safely offered at a rate justifying the immense labor bestowed upon it. The appearance of such a work in the midst of our war, and at the height of the paper famine, and yet in a style worthy of peace and leisure, is a trophy of American enterprise, and deserves to be itself a success.

C. V. H.

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. A. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—I have just returned from the place mentioned in my last letter where the wonderful power of God was displayed in the conviction and conversion of sinners under the proclamation of the "Gospel of the Kingdom."

As the meeting was held in the Baptist house, I supposed that all the professors who took part were members of that church, but a portion of them were Methodists. So it was not correct, as stated in my last, that nearly all the members of that church took hold. But, thank the Lord, some did, and can say with Peter that they "have been begotten again unto a lively hope."

The work went on in power, and oh, what a sight to behold, to see the strong man become like a little child, their faces shining forth with the love of Christ, so that all are constrained to say there is no mistake in the conversion of such and such a one. One unconverted person said it was worth one hundred dollars to have one man, who shared in reclaiming grace of God, leave off drinking. His companion was a free Methodist, and she is happy in the blessed hope, praising the Lord for what he has done for her husband, and the children are beginning to try to be christians. I am glad that the gospel is so plain that the children can see its beauty and glory, and give their young hearts to Jesus.

I baptized twenty-one happy pilgrims, and a number more will be, when we baptize again. Forty-nine sat down to the table of the Lord. O, what a glory rested on that happy company while they spake of the time that the Lord instituted the Supper, and died to redeem us from the power of the grave, and of his soon coming again to take us to himself, it was a melting season never to be forgotten by those who were there. Some of the close communion Baptist brethren sat down to the table and partook with us. He that the truth makes free, is free indeed. Bless the Lord!

When our meetings closed, last evening, they appointed prayer-meetings and intend to keep up the interest of being faithful in all their duties, and laboring for the conversion of their neighbors and friends. I hope and pray that they may be kept from the prowling wolves, and teachers that ride hobbies and subvert whole churches. I am bound for the kingdom, and I want to see all that are pure in heart there. For that I am laboring I suffer with disease, but, glory to God, in that land the inhabitants will never say they are sick.

P. A. Smith.

Rochester, N. Y.

From S. M. Shade.

Bro. Grant:—It is about six years since I became an Advent believer. Since that time I have been a Bible student. I believe that we are living in the last days of time. I still feel an increasing desire in my heart to serve the Lord and walk in obedience to all his divine commands. My companion and myself are the only ones in this vicinity that believe in Jesus' soon coming and the end of all things at hand. We are lonely here, but, thank God, I am resolved to go through and enter into the city, cost what it will. I have no desire to turn back. My face is Zionward, and I am determined to go through. I long to go home. I am willing to give up this world, with all its allurements, wars and strifes, if I may but reign with Jesus when he comes in his kingdom. O for holiness of heart! Brethren and sisters, may we have clean hands and a good conscience before God, is the prayer of one that hopes to have part in the "first resurrection."

Galva, Ill.

S. M. Shade.

From Bro. John Somes.

Bro. Grant:—I have been holding meetings in a backwoods district near Augusta for the last five months, among a poor class of people who have had no preaching there for some five years, not so much as one sermon. Some backsliders have been reclaimed and some have experienced religion. I baptized two last Sabbath. Brn. Dudley and Pray were there in the afternoon. Bro. Pray gave them some tracts and Sabbath school papers, which were thankfully received and carefully read.

I bless God that I was ever brought to believe the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. I feel more like praying to God daily and hourly than ever I did in my life. Brethren, let us live near to God, by faith and prayer. Time is short. I believe my Savior is soon coming. Keep your lamps trimmed and burning, and prepare to meet your Lord.

Jefferson, Me.

John Somes.

From a Methodist Minister in Ill.

Rev. Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.:—My dear friend and brother, I am a minister in the M. E. church, but I trust not so bigoted as not to be able to appreciate and acknowledge worth and merit wherever and whenever I see it. Some time since I chanced to pick up a copy of your paper, dated May 31st, 1864. I read it, and was not only interested, but benefited; and if that is a fair representative of your paper, I will welcome it as a weekly visitor to my study. Therefore, enclosed, find 50 cts., for which you will please send the "Crisis" one quarter; at the expiration of which time, if I am still pleased, I will order it for the coming year.

From a Methodist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I was born and brought up a Methodist. For nearly thirty-five years was a member of that church, and honestly thought I was by nature an immortal being, till within the last four years. Through reading your books I have become satisfied that the Bible, especially the original, teaches that I am mortal, and can obtain immortality only through Christ at the resurrection. The Crisis, and reading of that kind, has therefore become a necessity in my family. It seems a pity there is so little unity in Philadelphia on this subject, and only one society to represent this all important Bible truth. Since I have received it, I have not hid it under a bushel, but in my simplicity went straight to some of our prominent preachers to get them to explain how with all their knowledge they can continue to preach the commonly received yet erroneous ideas of hell, soul and spirit, when such ideas are not found in the original at all. They have not attempted to explain, but put me off by referring to the multitude of good men who have lived and died in that faith; and they give me the cold shoulder. But I feel it not. I am bound to talk of Christ and the resurrection wherever I am. I have bought tracts and books, and lend them freely to all that will read them. There are four that I know who have like faith with myself in the church I belong to, one a leader; but, of course, our influence is circumscribed.

From a Baptist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper for the past two years, and count it the best religious paper I ever read. I am a Baptist, yet no sectarian. I love all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. I am poor, yet I feel that I must bear some part of the burden of your office in feeding the poor. So you will find enclosed two dollars. I shall decline giving my name, as I wish to do my alms in secret.

Lamb's Point, Ill.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. J. B. Cook, Binghamton, N. Y., writes:—

"The Day Star of Zion came in my way a few days ago, when out in Pa. on a preaching tour. Several of my personal friends are involved, Dr. Willard and wife, etc. Gladly would I note the grievous error embraced in their assumption of gathering God's people to this Celesta—this newly named Zion, etc. The history, geography, and prophecy of holy Scripture, through over four thousand years, are all against the possibility of their being true or trustworthy. God's Zion is in Asia, not America.

The deeding of the land to Almighty God seems most arrogant, or altogether insane. To which there is nothing analogous among God's recorded worthies in Heb. 11—nay, nothing analogous in history, save when Satan said of the present dominions and glory of earth, 'All this' is mine; and on conditions—'To thee will I give it.' Matt. 4, and Luke 3. And as Jesus appeared then as the man of sorrows, in his humiliation, there was modesty and propriety in this proposed transfer of title from Satan to the Son of God, compared with this deeding of these lands in Celesta, Pa., to Almighty God!

I am heartily and earnestly in the faith of Jesus' second coming and kingdom now 'nigh at the door.' However I may come short in my faith, hope, love, or obedience, my abiding conviction is that there can be no danger of believing too much of God's precious word—'the word of faith.' If I am right here, as all protestants affirm in theory at least, then it follows that if I could be christian with less of 'the word of faith,' yet I must be just so much more christian by so much as my faith grasps more of 'the word of Christ'—revealing his loving will and gracious purpose toward Jew, Gentile, and the church of God—with the groaning creation to be delivered in the 'restitution of all things spoken by all the holy prophets.'

If others can be spiritually minded, sanctified, preserved in Jesus Christ and called, while ignoring much of the (typical, Heb. 8: 1-5) law, the Psalms and the prophets concerning Jesus, very well, I am not judge nor diviner over them; but they 'do greatly err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God' (in my humble light from truth), when they bind me to their limitations or rejections of God's truth. If alone among men, I at least prefer the word in its fulness. Amen."

Bro. Alfred Amos, Forest City, Mich., writes:—

"I must say I prize the Crisis next to the Bible. I may add that the New York Tribune was all in all to me but a few months since, which I gave up to subscribe for the Crisis; and now I feel amply repaid, as it affords so much consolation to those who are waiting the return of their dear Lord and Master."

Obituaries.

I. J. F. Lester.

Died of typhoid fever, Oct. 12th, 1864, in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., in the sixteenth year of his age, Isaac James F. Lester, son of William and Mary Lester.

Isaac was a child beloved by all, and a remarkable exception to the general scope of the reckless rising generation of young men. He possessed no relish for the foul influences which sweep the masses of our youth into the whirlpool of evil. Possessing a thirst for education, his kind parents had arranged to give him a good chance in this department. But how often does death plunge human schemes into dark oblivion, and leave a cloud of sorrow in their place. Death blights our schemes while only in blossom.

Isaac went with his parents and sisters to the Okee campmeeting,—not to act the part of an ill-bred rowdy,—but to listen to the preaching of the gospel, which could "make him wise unto salvation," if believed and obeyed. His heart felt the power of sacred truth. When an opportunity was offered for seekers to come to the anxious seat, Isaac came forward with a heart overflowing with true penitence, and melted into unfeigned contrition. Kneeling by his side in prayer, I listened to those developed emotions which justly claim pardon at the hand of a merciful God. In a day or two after campmeeting closed, Isaac was confined to his bed, and was soon deprived of his reason; but in the wanderings of his mind he would often break out in strains about the New Jerusalem and the streets of gold—a theme that had captivated his mind at the campmeeting.

His funeral sermon was preached by the writer, in the Methodist meeting-house, near his father's residence, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends, being assisted in the services by the Methodist minister. We followed him to the grave-yard, and buried him by the side of his elder brother, whose funeral sermon I preached about a year ago. Mourning could not be suppressed, but it could be robbed of its ingredient of despondency by the assurance that Isaac had sought the Lord before death sought him.

May parents and sisters and a brother, who have felt the anguish of a sad separation, be found ready to participate in the pleasures of a future meeting in the kingdom of God.

W. Sheldon.

Lillian Maine.

Died in Amboy, Sept. 28th, 1864, with laryngitis, Lillian Maine, daughter of Bro. Perry J. and Sr. Lucy M. Maine, aged six years, five months, and twenty-six days.

She was a good child, beloved by all who knew her. She will not have to sleep long, for soon the trump will sound, and she will come again from the land of the enemy. The friends were comforted with the words of the apostle in 1 Cor. 15: 26.

And when the last great trump shall sound,
And all the sleeping dead arise,
Our Lillian dear will then appear,
With her bright beaming eyes.
Then we will watch, and sing and pray,
Until our Savior comes,
And meet our loved ones in that day,
And all the sleeping ones.

D. S. Clark.

G. E. Cyphers.

Died in Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 16th, 1864, George Earnest, only child of Melville B. and Cyrena Cyphers, aged five months and seven days.

Death is still doing its work, but soon the King cometh, and will call for those little sleepers that have been lain away, and with Rachel's children will stand upon their own borders. Come, Lord Jesus, quickly come, and take the throne and ... [illegible]

Died in Wakefield, ... Sept. 22d, Willie Spencer Pratt, aged nine years, one month.

Also, Oct. 9th, Mary Esther Pratt, aged thirteen years, nine months.

Also, Oct. 11th, Lemuel Erastus Pratt, aged six years, ten months.

Also, Oct. 12th, Harry Sylvester Pratt, aged twelve years, ten months, only remaining children of Harry and Mary L. Pratt.

The disease of these dear children was diphtheria in its most malignant form; and thus in less than three short weeks have we been bereft of our whole family, three of them buried in one week. I was sick with the same disease, and unable to follow them to their grave. While we mourn with bitter anguish the loss of our lovely treasures, we look forward to the time when they will come again from the land of the enemy. As our earthly hopes and prospects have all been blasted, the hope of the future, when we may again embrace our dear ones, is all that keeps us from sinking in despair. For what a desolate home has death made of ours. We have now six children in the icy arms of death. That cruel monster has not left us one. Pray for us, that we may endure with patience all our trials, and be prepared to meet Jesus when he comes.

They're gone! we hear their voice no more,
The last farewell is said;
The loved of earth, the beautiful,
Lie numbered with the dead.

Sweetly they sleep in their dreamless bed,
Resting awhile with the silent dead,
Nought can disturb their calm repose,
Nothing can reach them of all earth's woes.

Side by side these dear children sleep,
Side by side the sad parents weep;
We miss them at morn, we miss them at night,
Home's music is gone, its love, its light.

When, oh! when, will the morning break,
The trumpet sound, and the dead awake?
When, oh! when will the shadows flee,
And my precious ones come back to me?

Side by side these children will stand,
Singing new songs in the blissful land;
Gladly to meet them we come, we come,
Ever to rest in our Eden home.

Mary L. Pratt.

A. A. Hathorn.

Died in Castleton, Vt., Oct. 7th, 1864, Adrin A. Hathorn, aged eight years.

He has been a member of the "Try Company" nearly two years, and most faithfully did he adhere to the rules. He suffered one week with that dire disease, diphtheria. Often, during his sickness, did he request the Scriptures might be read; and as he listened to the promises of God, he would exclaim, "Isn't that good?" Our pastor, Bro. Mathewson, was absent; but in the providence of God, Bro. Brown was here in Castleton, and visited and prayed with him, and administered words of comfort on the occasion of his funeral. He showed death to be a calamity, and that even the children of God need comfort on such occasions. This we feel, but thank God, we have hope that he will come again from the land of the enemy, to die no more.

Calista M. Hathorn.

Lucy A. Wakefield.

Died in Hollis, Me., Aug. 21st, 1864, Lucy A. Wakefield, daughter of James G. and Serena H. Wakefield, aged ten years.

Lucy was a child beloved by all who knew her. She leaves many friends to mourn her loss, but her parents and brothers and sisters mourn not as those that have no hope. She has long been a member of our Sabbath school. She was ever kind and affectionate. Her sickness was short, but severe. In her last moments I was present, sung and prayed with her. She left a strong evidence that she will have a part in the first resurrection. "On such the second death has no power."

Death itself shall surely die,
Friends no more in dust shall lie,
Life eternal shall be given,
When the Lord returns from heaven.

Simon J. Locke.

Willie E. Locke.

Died in Hollis, Me., July 21st, 1864, Willie E., only son of Simon J. and Annah M. Locke.

"Death came to our bower,
And called a bright flower,
The sweetest, the fairest we had,
Our dear little Willie,
Our golden haired Willie,
And left our hearts stricken and sad.

Death came without warning,
One fair summer morning,
And took little Willie away,
Our dear blue-eyed Willie,
Our only son Willie,
Now sleeps in his grave of cold clay."

Simon J. Locke.

John Bowers.

Died at Andersonville, Ga., Aug. 9th, 1864, after an imprisonment of nearly four months, John Bowers, of Collinsville, Ct., aged thirty-eight.

He was a member of Co. E., 16th Regt., C. V., and taken prisoner at Plymouth, N. C., in April. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss.

D. D. Merrick.

Died in Philadelphia Hospital, Aug. 10th, 1864, Dean D. Merrick, son of Josiah D. and Eliza Merrick, aged seventeen years and eleven months.

Death has again entered my family and taken another loved one. This is the second son I have lost in this wicked war. When will it end? Surely we are living in perilous times. We can only trust in God.

E. Merrick.

Mary Moulton.

Died in Hollis, Me., Sept. 18th, 1864, Mary Moulton, wife of Reuben Moulton, aged seventy-four years and six months.

Soon will the wife and mother dear
Eternal life through Christ receive,
With him and his forever then
In Paradise on earth shall live.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Oct. 15th, Queenstown 16th.

Mr. Gladstone has been making additional speeches in Liverpool, Manchester, and other parts of Lancashire, in which he hints at prospective reform measures. He deplores the American war, and expresses great sympathy with the American people, but felt that they should be left to settle their own affairs. He confessed that he always had strong doubts of the practicability of reducing to subjugation any large part of the country that manifested a determination to separate.

Advices from Batavia announce that the Dutch were engaged in a war with the natives of Java.

The Times to-day has an editorial favoring the proposed Confederation of the British American Provinces on account of the powerful military state which the American Union has become.

It is reported from Africa that Jules Gerard, the explorer, was drowned while crossing a river.

FRANCE.

The engagements between the French troops and Arab insurgents in Algeria on the 20th and 30th September resulted in 800 Arabs being killed and wounded, and over 100 French.

It has been decided that the Prince Imperial of France shall be educated at one of the Public Lycees of Paris, as were all the sons of Louis Philippe.

Liverpool Oct. 19th, Queenstown 20th.

Political news unimportant.

The commercial depression continues. Additional failures include twenty Liverpool firms in the American trade.

Rio Janeiro letters confirm the severity of the panic there. The liabilities of the four suspended banks amount to eleven hundred thousand pounds sterling.

There were rumors of a probable meeting between the Czar and Napoleon, at Nice, shortly.

The Duke of Newcastle died on the 18th inst., after a long illness.

The grand bazaar in aid of Southern prisoners was opened at Liverpool on the 18th inst. with great success. Political feeling was disclaimed and very general support was extended to it.

☞ The Rocky Mountain News of the 5th inst. says that nearly one hundred persons have been killed by the Indians along the Platte and Arkansas rivers since the beginning of the outbreaks, about three months since.

☞ The Methodist Musical Convention in New York has resolved that the assignment of singing in church to a few, practically to the exclusion of the congregation, is at variance with the spirit of Divine worship, and subversive of its purpose.

☞ There are now building, for the through broad-gauge routes from New York to St. Louis (1,200 miles) one hundred and fifty locomotives, five thousand freight cars, and passenger cars in proportion.

DOMESTIC.

St. John, Canada East, Oct. 25—6 A. M. Nothing of special importance has taken place in regard to the St. Albans raiders, who are understood to have engaged as counsel Hon. J. J. Abbott and Messrs. Carr and Lafamme of Montreal, and Hon. J. H. Cameron of Toronto.

The examination is conducted with closed doors, only the counsel and reporters being admitted. The notorious George N. Saunders is here managing the cause of the rebels. He says they belong to the first families of Kentucky and formerly belonged to John Morgan's force. This raid, he asserts, is only the first of plundering expeditions soon to take place on the frontiers of the States. Had he known before of this affair he would have prevented it, as it was conducted on too small a scale. F. G. Johnson, Queen's counsel of Montreal, is here as counsel for the Canadian authorities.

Washington, Oct. 25, 1864. A letter from Harper's Ferry, dated yesterday, says 1500 rebel prisoners arrived at that place on Monday, making 2600 in all who have thus far arrived there. About a thousand more are at Winchester, and the cavalry are still picking up a great many.

The prisoners pronounced Sheridan the greatest General in the Union army. About three hundred officers have been captured. The rebel loss in killed, wounded and prisoners will not fall short of ten thousand men. When they passed through Woodstock on their retreat, not a company organization remained.

Among the artillery captured were twenty pieces that were "bran new," of Richmond manufacture, brought up by Kershaw's division. They had only two pieces left. Upwards of twelve thousand small arms have already been picked up.

The wounded have all been removed to Winchester, and are going from there as rapidly as possible to Martinsburg.

New Orleans, Oct. 17, via Cairo, 25th. Letters received here from prominent rebels in Richmond state that the archives and other government property is being secretly removed to Lynchburg.

The steamer George Cromwell, from New York, arrived yesterday. The rebel cavalry are conscripting negroes on plantations outside of our lines, by order of the rebel government. They state that the negroes are to be put into the rebel army.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The Democrat's dispatch from Leavenworth says Price was driven below Fort Scott, closely pursued by our cavalry. We have captured a large number of prisoners, including Gens. Marmaduke and Cabell, and several pieces of artillery.

Gen. Rosecrans was at Little Santa Fe, twelve miles south of Kansas City, with infantry, on Tuesday night.

SECOND DISPATCH.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The following is derived from an entirely reliable source. Our forces have been driving Price rapidly since Sunday, and at last accounts he was twenty-five or thirty miles south-east of Fort Scott, his army routed and dispersed. On Tuesday we had several fights with him between Mound City and Fort Scott, in all of which he was badly whipped, losing 1500 prisoners and ten or twelve pieces of artillery. Among our prisoners is Maj. Gen. Marmaduke and Brig. Gen. Cabell, several Colonels and other officers.

St. Louis, Oct. 28. Official dispatches from Gen. Pleasanton give the following information regarding his operations against Price. He marched 92 miles in two days, and fought during the last 32 miles. His force was less than 6000, while Price's was fully up to 25,000. Price has but one gun left and no ammunition, he having blown up his train. He also burned 400 wagons to save them from capture. We have two thousand prisoners and several thousand stand of arms. Gen. Fagan is reported killed. Price's army is completely disorganized and flying in all directions.

City Point, Oct. 27.

To Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War.

I have just returned from the crossing of the Boylston plank road with Hatcher's creek. Our line now extends from its former left to Armstrong's mill, thence by the south bank of Hatcher's creek to the point above named. At every point the enemy was found intrenched and his works manned. No attack was made during the day further than to drive pickets and cavalry inside of the main work. Our casualties have been light, probably less than 200 killed, wounded and missing. The same is probably true with the enemy. We captured, however, seven loaded teams on their way to Stony Creek to the enemy, about a dozen beef cattle, a traveling forge and from seventy-five to one hundred prisoners. Butler extended around well toward the Yorktown road without finding a point unguarded. I shall keep our troops out where they are until toward noon to-morrow, in hopes of inviting an attack.

(Signed) U. S. Grant, Lieut. General.

Chattanooga, Oct. 28. The guerrillas yesterday threw a train off the track three miles below Adairsville, killing one man and wounding eight. The guard having rallied, the enemy were driven off without making any captures of persons or property.

The railroad is repaired to Atlanta, and a train left for that point this morning.

New York, Oct. 29. The Times has the following dispatch.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett has just had a sanguinary battle with Breckenridge's forces in East Tennessee, completely routing Vaughan's Brigade. The rebels in their flight threw away their arms and abandoned much property. We captured nearly five hundred prisoners.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett had a fight yesterday with Gen. Vaughan's command at Morristown, completely routing him and capturing 1607 prisoners, including one colonel, one major, six captains and lieutenants.

Our entire casualties in the battle of the 19th are now estimated at 7000, and those of the enemy at 9000.

The St. Albans Raiders. The St. Albans Messenger has a letter from St. Johns, Canada, where the rebel raiders are undergoing examination, which says that George Sanders, while there looking after the interests of the prisoners, stated that the late attack on St. Albans was merely the starting point, the inauguration of a system of warfare which would carry desolation all along the frontier. But for him, Buffalo would long since have been reduced to ashes. His peace negotiations with Greeley having failed, and as there is no prospect for McClellan, and Lincoln will be re-elected, he said there should be war to the knife and to the hilt. He says there are twenty thousand men in Canada, eager and prepared to enter upon these raids upon the frontier, and that towns would be burned and pillaged.—Boston Journal.

Montreal, Oct. 28. Proceedings in the case of the Vermont raiders have been transferred to Montreal. The prisoners arrived last night, and are now in jail here. The removal was made secretly, in order to avoid excitement. One deposition was taken yesterday. Further proceedings have been postponed until next week, on account of the Catholic holidays.

A gentleman from St. Albans informs us that another of the Vermont raiders was arrested in Montreal on Tuesday, and $10,000 of the bills of the Franklin County Bank were found in his possession. The number now under arrest is 17.

☞ The Montreal correspondent of the London Times, who learns the plans of the Western copperheads through their rebel prompters in Canada, writes:

"Whichever of the two candidates be elected, there will be a popular outbreak in the Northwest, which will severely test the power of the Federal Government, and operate as a valuable diversion in favor of their (the rebel) cause. Circumstances, small in themselves, but all converging to one focus, show that this belief is not ill founded, and foreshadow a troublesome time in that region prior to and subsequent to the day of election."

Maryland a Free State. The new Free State Constitution of Maryland is adopted by a majority of about 1500. There was a small majority against it on the home vote, but the soldiers' majority of 2500 in favor overcame it.

☞ The Unitarians of England close their theological commencements with a ball, though the organ of the denomination in England rather protests against the practice.

☞ The eighty-first in the group of asteroids was discovered by Mr. Tempel of Marseilles on the 30th of September, in the constellation Pisces.

☞ There are twenty cotton factories in Woonsocket, R. I., and most of them are stopped for want of cotton to manufacture.

☞ It is said the Rothschilds, for whom August Belmont is agent in this country, have $100,000,000 invested in the Southern Confederacy.

☞ In England, the Bible is now supplied for twelve cents, the New Testament for four cents, the Gospels for two cents each.

☞ Uphold the cause of truth when thou canst, and be willing for truth's sake to be hated; but know that thy individual cause is not the cause of truth, and beware that they are not confounded.

☞ Good natures, like the bee, ... [illegible] ... while ill natures, like the spider, collect poison from honeyed flowers.

Notices.

Free Sabbath Conference.

The Lord willing, the Maine Quarterly Conference of Free Sabbath Adventists will hold its next session at Portland, Me., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, and continuing over the Sabbath and first day. All lovers of truth are heartily invited to attend. We hear of good Sabbath brethren and sisters in different places, who are spurned from the Battle Creek Association because they cannot co-operate with them in their form of organization. Should the eyes of any such fall on this notice, we say to them, Come, get acquainted with us, and know for yourselves what manner of spirit we are of. This conference is not got up on a principle of strife or contention, but we stand as a people excluded from what is known as the Seventh-day Advent body, because we believe it is our privilege through grace to know for ourselves that we enjoy the gifts and operations of the Holy Ghost; but, free from all hardness, and full of love, we want all our brethren and sisters to come and labor for God, as freely as though we were the only Sabbath body in existence. Our Battle Creek brethren cannot receive us, but we say to every lover of truth, Come. Bro. J. Cranmer, from Michigan, is expected to be with us. Strangers on coming into the city will inquire for Bro. H. A. Weston, 432 Congress street, and he will direct them to places of entertainment.

S. C. Hancock.

Any wishing to address me from now to Nov. 6th, will direct to Portland, Me., care of H. A. Weston.

S. C. H.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kimbley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day, at the Disciple house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.

Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school-house near Bro. D. C. Jefferson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.

Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCord's, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.

Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O.

G. W. Stetson.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

Jas. A. Libby.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend.

N. White.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. Deyo, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. Butler, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. Green, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited.

W. Sheldon.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, on the Dixon Air Line R. R., on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, and continue over the following Sabbath.

E. Royce, Sec.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to Northfield, Mass., can correspond with A. Gage, or Edwin Lyman.

J. K. Bellows.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon, otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.
J. Couch .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

Lowell, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Bath, Me., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day.
Newfield, Ct., Tuesday evening, Nov. 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting.
Miles Grant.

East Boston .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. W. Sibley.

Lawrence, Mass., (Lyceum Hall) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
H. L. Hastings.

Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena .... Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. Taylor.

Galesville .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
O. D. Woodruff.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. Pinkham.

Piermont, N. H., (Piper school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Orford, Quinttown .... Nov. 20th
L. C. Glazier.

Wolfboro, (Cotton Borough) .... Nov. 6th
Brookfield .... Nov. 13th
South Farmington .... Nov. 20th
N. Hartshorn.

Brimfield, (West Brick) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
E. Owen.

Springfield, Barnes' Hall .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Ira Morgan.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine ground) .... Nov. 6th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. G. Smith.

Alton, N. H., (Stockbridge Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Chichester, (Dover school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Z. Ford.

Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sunday, Nov. 6th, A. M. and P. M. Evening, school-house near Harding's Crossing.
R. R. York.
L. C. Wellcome.

New York, at 24th street, (Bro. Curry's) until further notice.
Philadelphia, as soon as the work in New York will permit.
F. H. Burbank.

Cold Spring, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Wrightville, Conn. .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
East Otis, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 11th
Geo. L. Teeple.

North Haverhill, N. H. .... Nov. 24
D. [illegible] Weaver.

Will Sr. Glazier meet me at Newbury, Vt., as proposed, Nov. 1st? [illegible]

Sanbornton, N. Y., ... Sunday evening, Nov. 6th. Switzer Hill, ... [illegible] ... especially from the D. B. ... C. H. Williams.

North Haverhill, N. H., Sat. eve, and Sunday, Nov. 5th and 6th.
East Concord, N. H., at Ward room, U. S. General Hospital, Sunday, Nov. 13th, 2 P. M. Chap. Union at 6 o'clock P. M.
John G. Hook.

Burlington Centre, Ct. .... Nov. 6th
North Canton, Ct. .... Nov. 13th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house) .... Nov. 20th
S. Woodbury.

Augusta, Me. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Murray.

Forestville, Ct., Sunday, Nov. 6th; perhaps longer. Those corresponding address me at Forestville, Ct., till Nov. 12th.
H. K. Flagg.

Wolfboro, (Goose Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Moultonborough Center .... Nov. 13th
London Ridge .... Friday evening, Nov. 18th
Concord .... Nov. 20th
Melvin Village .... Nov. 27th
T. W. Piper.

Leverett, Mass., (Still Corner) .... Nov. 4th and 6th
Amherst (East Street) .... Nov. 8th
Goshen, Mass. .... Nov. 9th and 10th
Plainfield, Mass., (at Bro. D. Thayer's) .... Nov. 11th
and at J. E. Healy's Nov. 12th.
Plainfield .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Smith's) .... Nov. 14th
and at Bro. Warren's Nov. 16th.
Savoy, Mass. .... Nov. 17th and 18th
Charlemont, Mass., (as Brn. may arrange) .... Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass. .... Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass. .... Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's .... Nov. 25th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Kennebunkport, Me. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Kennebunk, (as Bro. Town may appoint), Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
Portland, Me. .... Tuesday, Nov. 8th
Yarmouth, Me. .... Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th
Poland, Mass. .... Thursday, Nov. 10th and through the conference.
A. Ross.

Centerville, near Bro. Charles Miller's, one mile west of Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 6th. Also in the north part of Hinsdale, N. H., at the Burnham school-house, a few evenings, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
S. Cook.

Wallingford, Ct., (North Farms) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Litchfield Station, Ct. .... Saturday eve, Nov. 12th
Wrightville, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
B. Hitchcock.

Conway, (as Bro. Mason may arrange) .... Nov. 13th
Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks' .... Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. H. M. Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass. .... Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. H., (Advent Chapel) .... Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt. .... Dec. 11th
J. K. Bellows.

Pine Meadow, Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, at the dwelling of Harvey Dayton.
Pleasant Valley .... Nov. 6th
Barkhamsted, at the Universalist meeting house, Nov. 13th.
No Name.

Warehouse Point, Ct. .... Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct. .... Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct. .... Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct. .... Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct. .... Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct. .... Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct. .... Nov. 27th
J. S. White, East Boston.

Hoosick, N. Y., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, if the weather is good.
North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who oft n attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this coat don't fit you.
Hiram Munger.

Yarmouth .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford .... Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's .... Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. Spaulding.

Concord, N. H. .... Sabbath, Nov. 6th
T. M. Preble.

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Simpson.

Scitico, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. Potter.

P. S. Butler .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

South Reading, Mass. .... Nov. 6th
Lynn, Mass. .... Nov. 13th
C. C. Ramsay.

Vernon, Vt. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. K. Bellows.

Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day.
P. S. W. Deyo.

Walbridge (communion day) .... Nov. 6th
Lynn .... Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. Higgins.

Manchester .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Joseph W. White.

Edinboro, Pa. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
C. B. Turner.

Goshen, Mass. .... Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange) Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's .... Oct. 9th
Griswoldville .... Nov. 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass. .... Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me. .... Nov. 27th
C. Goodrich.

Business.

Thurman's Chronology.

Orders for this work have come in so rapidly that our supply was exhausted in a few days. Orders waiting will be filled soon. We expect several hundred more in a few days. Send on your orders.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. Call—The Pilgrim has been sent regularly to your name. Have sent again. Crisis to No. 489.
T. M. Preble—You will find it in No. 472.
C. Newell—See last No.
M. Mardin—Paid to No. 481.
S. Case—Right; last paid to No. 494.
T. S. Canfield—Our run will continue as heretofore.
C. H. Williams—Are out; will send in a few days.
N. R. Gould—S. R. C. was credited; pays to No. 491.
Mrs. S. B. Davis—Received.
John Pope—Was received; pays to No. 481.
Dr. W. Prince—Received; pays to No. 468.
A. S. Seper—Credited; pays to No. 495.
A. M. Tyrrell—There is one published in Buffalo, which advocates also some peculiar views,—Die Zeichen der Zeit.
Geo. S. Harwood—To No. 491.
Wm. Bragdon—See No. 472.
N. W. Wait—S. B. W. was previously paid to No. 456. The $1.72 was received first, and paid to No. 494, afterward the $2.50, which paid to 546. Both acknowledgments should have appeared in the same No. but for want of time the first, with some others, was laid over.
John Metcalf—The Crisis to England, postpaid, is $3.50 a year. The tracts—"Soul, Spirit," etc., postpaid, 7 cents each; "Last Days," etc., 4 cents each.
Pine Meadow, New Hartford, Ct.—A brother writes from this place, enclosing 75 cents for a Christian Lyre, and a number of appointments, but does not give his name.
P. N.—Shall not be able to send any this week.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 474. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

$1.00 each.—L. B. Gould 468, T. R. V. Bradley 419, C. Bowers (what P. O.?), P. Wolf 473, C. H. Fosdick 407, H. Pratt 479, J. V. Hester 487, E. B. Strarns 502, E. Bowman 480, E. P. Streeter 497, N. McCulloch 465, W. P. Bartlett 486, N. Hanson 468, Mrs. M. Clisby 489, J. Gilbert 492, S. Stevens 416, N. E. Stillwell 492, A. A. Eddy 491, H. P. Vankirk 491, C. E. Conklin 473, S. D. Hanson 495, E. B. Gard 486, E. Fisher 489, Mrs. D. Higley 481, I. Tripp 482, D. Tripp 489, S. W. Peirce 443, Mrs. S. Rawlinson 453, J. W. Ireland 492, Mrs. M. Mundell 483, Mrs. D. S. Lampery (old acc't).

$1.25 each.—H. N. Ferrin 497, Wm. Chapin 498, S. H. Batchelor 496, S. A. A. Smith 487, J. K. Cobb 494, A. R. Field 496, H. S. Stilrs 487, J. Ver Sterg 496, D. Ver Sterg 496, F. A. Healey 497, E. Owen 492, A. P. Noyce 494, C. Myers 497, Mrs. A. J. Eaton 496, D. S. Green 497, S. D. Chamberlain 499, J. H. Langley 506, C. B. Green 497, H. Roberts 487, L. C. Bailey 494, W. R. Parsons 497, D. C. Elliott 486, J. B. Atkinson 500, M. J. Sanford 500, P. Dodge 500, J. Bailey 494, N. McCulloch Jr. 494, P. Dow 500, S. Marsh 442, G. Kelp 500, G. Alexander 476, A. Herdlies 500, G. W. Whitehouse 500, G. W. Whiting 494, J. Young 494, S. T. Marsh 491, J. G. Priest 500, Mrs. L. A. Salter 500, H. N. Gardner 500, A. B. Green 510.

$2.00 each.—S. R. Hatborn 558, S. Underwood 431, Mrs. L. Scholl 519, S. Densmore 490, P. Card 479, Mrs. J. Canterbury 510, A. Walker 468, Mrs. M. O. Morgan 520, N. A. Daley 481, Mrs. S. B. Davis 506, W. D. Watson 520, J. C. Horn 400, S. Hobber 513, L. H. Wadleigh 518, Mrs. M. S. Berean 444, W. M. Howland 520, C. Good 494, Mrs. M. Snell 502, Mrs. P. Keyes 516, F. S. Ransom 520, B. Harvens 486, S. Brown 512, J. Studebaker 516.

$2.50 each.—R. Burrell 520, Mrs. L. B. Rowe 520, I. T. Stedman 510, J. Stubbs 503, C. C. Smith 520, A. Hubbard 520, Wm. Parsons 544, F. Robbins 520, ... [illegible]

[illegible] ... $2.00 each.—O. Ware 473, ... [illegible]

$4.00 each.—W. Kingsbury 466, ... [illegible] ... Johnson & Howard 448, A. Young 445, ... N. L. Curtis 462, A. Lakeman 492, ... J. Hammond 505.

$5.00 each.—A. Evans 573, Mrs. M. Smith 520, ... Newton 513, A. Soule 542, A. M. Smith 473, ... J. Lynn 413, J. Hall 418, ... Bates 508, Mrs. T. Holloway 474, ... [illegible]

50 cents each.—J. J. Austin 503, ... 474, M. D. Langly 481, B. H. Albrow 514, ... Chamberlin 485, O. Wood 470, ... R. Maynard 479, ... Pease, ... Dalton 477, T. P. Hunt (what P. O.?), ... J. L. Harris 481, E. A. Gage 494, ... C. W. D. Scott $12 491, ... Thayer $1.50 520, ... $1.34 468, S. Newton $4.50 ... 470, F. Cobring $2.28 ... H. Simmons $3.70 500, G. Severance ... Durland $1.50 520, M. A. Hoxie $3.91 ... ton $1.70 493, ... $1.50 ... 512, B. Persons $2.04 489, S. Clark $1.75 465, W. D. Wood $2.25 489, A. B. Doty $1.25 500, J. M. Churchill $2.26 494, D. C. Ball $2.25 ... , ... kins $3.50 520, J. Offord 40c. 488, D. D. Davis 25c. 470, W. B. Marsh 63c. 481, ... 470, M. E. Wood $1.70 484, ... T. B. Northrop $1.50 500, ... cock $1.54 522, C. W. Crocker $1.40 ... 457, A. C. Knowlton $3.90 514, ... 49, C. Howard 10c., ... shall 25c. 470, A. G. Holland 25c. ... 496, B. Jennings 75c. 477, ... acct., W. Peacock 30c. 472, ... roughs 25c. 468, D. N. Utter 55c. ... 90c. 473, J. Jewson 63c. 477, ... Addison $1.05 541, M. G. Wise $1.50 494, ... $1.70 525, C. Colburn 63c. 476, D. E. Smith $2.25 ... K. Gaines $1.20 519.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—B. St. John, C. O. Miller, T. B. Tuttle, J. G. Burnham, B. Vandevoort, E. Quest, A. Lewis, S. M. Rannels, C. Newell, H. H. Hendrix, B. Perham, B. Rockwell, A. Haymond, J. C. Wheeler, Mrs. M. H. Pollard, L. Kulp, O. M. Walden, H. Clegg, M. C. Kilmeyer, L. R. Smith, C. P. Dow, J. P. Murphy, A. B. Martin, W. Jocelyn, B. Hammond, O. Newell, B. Perham.

By Express.—T. Smith, G. H. Emery, H. F. Carpenter, J. McCammond.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J. E. Clark, J. Knowles, P. A. Smith, F. Gerher, E. B. Gard, J. R. M. M. Weaver, M. A. Baldwin, O. R. Fassett, C. H. Laverton, H. P. Van Kirk, B. F. F., J. B. Clark, M. A. Annable, C. F. Hudson, J. N. Berry, Geo. A. Streeter, I. H. Zaney.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

M. Mathews—Weaver, Danville, C. E.
F. H. Burbank, New York, N. Y., care of Eld. Samuel Curry, Station E.
Will Sr. M. S. Perkins please send her P. O. address to Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana, Mass.?
J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.
J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.
J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

All publications sent by mail must be prepaid. ... [illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jos. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" Phonographically reported by E. F. Woodward. ... [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal conscious suffering of the Wicked?" ... [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." ... [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, ... [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of ... [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

In five volumes ... [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom ... [illegible] ... By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; ... [illegible] ... By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity, ... [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man; its Origin, Progress, and End. ... [illegible] ... H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; ... [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church .... 25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man. 25c.
Reasons for my Hope .... 20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion .... 20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly .... 20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Tau't by Paul .... 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life .... 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church .... 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen. Single .... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.
BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies ... [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. ... [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that ... [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. ... [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. ... [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. ... [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the ... [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. ... [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. ... [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. ... [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. ... [illegible]

justifying the immense labor bestowed upon it. The appearance of such a work in the midst of our war, and at the height of the paper famine, and yet in a style worthy of peace and leisure, is a trophy of American enterprise, and deserves to be itself a success. —C. V. H.

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. A. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—I have just returned from the place mentioned in my last letter where the wonderful power of God was displayed in the conviction and conversion of sinners under the proclamation of the "Gospel of the Kingdom."

As the meeting was held in the Baptist house, I supposed that all the professors who took part were members of that church, but a portion of them were Methodists. So it was not correct, as stated in my last, that nearly all the members of that church took hold. But, thank the Lord, some did, and can say with Peter that they "have been begotten again unto a lively hope."

The work went on in power, and oh, what a sight to behold, to see the strong man become like a little child, their faces shining forth with the love of Christ, so that all are constrained to say there is no mistake in the conversion of such and such a one. One unconverted person said it was worth one hundred dollars to have one man, who shared in reclaiming grace of God, leave off drinking. His companion was a free Methodist, and she is happy in the blessed hope, praising the Lord for what he has done for her husband, and the children are beginning to try to be christians. I am glad that the gospel is so plain that the children can see its beauty and glory, and give their young hearts to Jesus.

I baptized twenty-one happy pilgrims, and a number more will be, when we baptize again. Forty-nine sat down to the table of the Lord. O, what a glory rested on that happy company while they spake of the time that the Lord instituted the Supper, and died to redeem us from the power of the grave, and of his soon coming again to take us to himself; it was a melting season never to be forgotten by those who were there. Some of the close communion Baptist brethren sat down to the table and partook with us. He that the truth makes free, is free indeed. Bless the Lord!

When our meetings closed, last evening, they appointed prayer-meetings and intend to keep up the interest of being faithful in all their duties, and laboring for the conversion of their neighbors and friends. I hope and pray that they may be kept from the prowling wolves, and teachers that ride hobbies and subvert whole churches. I am bound for the kingdom, and I want to see all that are pure in heart there. For that I am laboring. I suffer with disease, but, glory to God, in that land the inhabitants will never say they are sick. P. A. Smith.

Rochester, N. Y.

From S. M. Shade.

Bro. Grant:—It is about six years since I became an Advent believer. Since that time I have been a Bible student. I believe that we are living in the last days of time. I still feel an increasing desire in my heart to serve the Lord and walk in obedience to all his divine commands. My companion and myself are the only ones in this vicinity that believe in Jesus' soon coming and the end of all things at hand. We are lonely here, but, thank God, I am resolved to go through and enter into the city, cost what it will. I have no desire to turn back. My face is Zionward, and I am determined to go through. I long to go home. I am willing to give up this world, with all its allurements, wars and strifes, if I may but reign with Jesus when he comes in his kingdom. O for holiness of heart! Brethren and sisters, may we have clean hands and a good conscience before God, is the prayer of one that hopes to have part in the "first resurrection."

Galva, Ill. S. M. Shade.

From Bro. John Somes.

Bro. Grant:—I have been holding meetings in a backwoods district near Augusta for the last five months, among a poor class of people who have had no preaching there for some five years, not so much as one sermon. Some backsliders have been reclaimed and some have experienced religion. I baptized two last Sabbath. Brn. Dudley and Pray were there in the afternoon. Bro. Pray gave them some tracts and Sabbath school papers, which were thankfully received and carefully read.

I bless God that I was ever brought to believe the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. I feel more like praying to God daily and hourly than ever I did in my life. Brethren, let us live near to God, by faith and prayer. Time is short. I believe my Savior is soon coming. Keep your lamps trimmed and burning, and prepare to meet your Lord.

Jefferson, Me. John Somes.

From a Methodist Minister in Ill.

Rev. Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.—My dear friend and brother, I am a minister in the M. E. church; but I trust not so bigoted as not to be able to appreciate and acknowledge worth and merit wherever and whenever I see it. Some time since I chanced to pick up a copy of your paper, dated May 31st, 1864. I read it, and was not only interested, but benefited; and if that is a fair representative of your paper, I will welcome it as a weekly visitor to my study. Therefore, enclosed, find 50 cts., for which you will please send the "Crisis" one quarter; at the expiration of which time, if I am still pleased, I will order it for the coming year.

From a Methodist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I was born and brought up a Methodist. For nearly thirty-five years was a member of that church, and honestly [illegible] ... I see it. ... immortal being ... through reading ... I have become satisfied that the Bible, especially the original, teaches that I am mortal, and can obtain immortality only through Christ at the resurrection. The Crisis, and reading of that kind, has therefore become ... [illegible] ... a pity there is so little unity in Philadelphia on this subject ... [illegible]

yet erroneous ideas of hell, soul and spirit, when such ideas are not found in the original at all. They have not attempted to explain, but put me off by referring to the multitude of good men who have lived and died in that faith; and they give me the cold shoulder. But I feel it not. I am bound to talk of Christ and the resurrection wherever I am. I have bought tracts and books, and lend them freely to all that will read them. There are four that I know who have like faith with myself in the church I belong to, one a leader; but, of course, our influence is circumscribed.

From a Baptist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper for the past two years, and count it the best religious paper I ever read. I am a Baptist, yet no sectarian. I love all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. I am poor, yet I feel that I must bear some part of the burden of your office in feeding the poor. So you will find enclosed two dollars. I shall decline giving my name, as I wish to do my alms in secret.

Lamb's Point, Ill. ——.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. J. B. Cook, Binghamton, N. Y., writes:—

"The Day Star of Zion came in my way a few days ago, when out in Pa. on a preaching tour. Several of my personal friends are involved, Dr. Willard and wife, etc. Gladly would I note the grievous error embraced in their assumption of gathering God's people to this Celesta—this newly named Zion, etc. The history, geography, and prophecy of holy Scripture, through over four thousand years, are all against the possibility of their being true or trustworthy. God's Zion is in Asia, not America.

The deeding of the land to Almighty God seems most arrogant, or altogether insane. To which there is nothing analogous among God's recorded worthies in Heb. 11—nay, nothing analogous in history, save when Satan said of the present dominions and glory of earth, 'All this is mine; and on conditions—'To thee will I give it.' Matt. 4, and Luke 3. And as Jesus appeared then as the man of sorrows, in his humiliation, there was modesty and propriety in this proposed transfer of title from Satan to the Son of God, compared with this deeding of these lands in Celesta, Pa., to Almighty God!

I am heartily and earnestly in the faith of Jesus' second coming and kingdom now 'nigh at the door.' However I may come short in my faith, hope, love, or obedience, my abiding conviction is that there can be no danger of believing too much of God's precious word—'the word of faith.' If I am right here, as all protestants affirm in theory at least, then it follows that if I could be christian with less of 'the word of faith,' yet I must be just so much more christian by so much as my faith grasps more of 'the word of Christ'—revealing his loving will and gracious purpose toward Jew, Gentile, and the church of God—with the groaning creation to be delivered in the 'restitution of all things spoken by all the holy prophets.'

If others can be spiritually minded, sanctified, preserved in Jesus Christ and called, while ignoring much of the (typical, Heb 8 1-5) law, the Psalms and the prophets concerning Jesus, very well, I am not judge nor diviner over them; but they 'do greatly err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God' (in my humble light from truth), when they bind me to their limitations or rejections of God's truth. If alone among men, I at least prefer the word in its fulness. Amen."

Bro. Alfred Amos, Forest City, Mich., writes:

"I must say I prize the Crisis next to the Bible. I may add that the New York Tribune was all in all to me but a few months since, which I gave up to subscribe for the Crisis; and now I feel amply repaid, as it affords so much consolation to those who are waiting the return of their dear Lord and Master."

Obituaries.

I. J. F. Lester.

Died of typhoid fever, Oct. 12th, 1864, in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., in the sixteenth year of his age, Isaac James F. Lester, son of William and Mary Lester.

Isaac was a child beloved by all, and a remarkable exception to the general scope of the reckless rising generation of young men. He possessed no relish for the foul influences which sweep the masses of our youth into the whirlpool of evil. Possessing a thirst for education, his kind parents had arranged to give him a good chance in this department. But how often does death plunge human schemes into dark oblivion, and leave a cloud of sorrow in their place. Death blights our schemes while only in blossom.

Isaac went with his parents and sisters to the Okee campmeeting,—not to act the part of an ill-bred rowdy,—but to listen to the preaching of the gospel, which could "make him wise unto salvation," if believed and obeyed. His heart felt the power of sacred truth. When an opportunity was offered for seekers to come to the anxious seat, Isaac came forward with a heart overflowing with true penitence, and melted into unfeigned contrition. Kneeling by his side in prayer, I listened to those developed emotions which justly claim pardon at the hand of a merciful God. In a day or two after campmeeting closed, Isaac was confined to his bed, and was soon deprived of his reason; but in the wanderings of his mind he would often break out in strains about the New Jerusalem and the streets of gold—a theme that had captivated his mind at the campmeeting.

His funeral sermon was preached by the writer, in the Methodist meeting-house, near his father's residence, to a large congregation of sympathizing friends, being assisted in the services by the Methodist minister. We followed him to the graveyard, and buried him by the side of his elder brother, whose funeral sermon I preached about a year ago. Mourning could not be suppressed, but it could be robbed of its ingredient of despondency by the assurancy that Isaac had sought the Lord before death sought him.

May parents and sisters and a brother, who have felt the anguish of a sad separation, be found ready to participate in the pleasures of a future meeting in the kingdom of God.

W. Sheldon.

Lillian Maine.

Died in Amboy, Sept. 28th, 1864, with laryngitis, Lillian Maine, daughter of Bro. Perry J. and Sr. Lucy M. Maine, aged six years, five months, and twenty-six days.

She was a good child, beloved by all who knew her. She will not have to sleep long, for soon the trump will sound, and she will come again from the land of the enemy. The friends were comforted with the words of the apostle in 1 Cor. 15: 26.

And when the last great trump shall sound,
And all the sleeping dead arise,
Our Lillian dear will then appear,
With her bright beaming eyes.
Then we will watch, and sing and pray,
Until our Savior comes,
And meet our loved ones in that day,
And all the sleeping ones.

D. B. Clark.

[illegible]

Died in Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 16th, 1864, George ... son of Melville B. and ... [illegible]

Died in Whitefield, Wis., Sept. 22nd, Wilbur Spencer Pratt, aged nine years, one month.

Also Oct. 9th, Mary Esther Pratt, aged thirteen years, nine months.

Also, Oct. 11th, Lemuel Erastus Pratt, aged six years, ten months.

Also, Oct. 12th, Harry Sylvester Pratt, aged twelve years, ten months, only remaining children of Harry and Mary L. Pratt.

The disease of these dear children was diphtheria in its most malignant form; and thus in less than three short weeks have we been bereft of our whole family, three of them buried in one week. I was sick with the same disease, and unable to follow them to their grave. While we mourn with bitter anguish the loss of our lovely treasures, we look forward to the time when they will come again from the land of the enemy. As our earthly hopes and prospects have all been blasted, the hope of the future, when we may again embrace our dear ones, is all that keeps us from sinking in despair. For what a desolate home has death made of ours. We have now six children in the icy arms of death. That cruel monster has not left us one. Pray for us, that we may endure with patience all our trials, and be prepared to meet Jesus when he comes.

They're gone! we hear their voice no more,
The last farewell is said;
The loved of earth, the beautiful,
Lie numbered with the dead.

Sweetly they sleep in their dreamless bed,
Resting awhile with the silent dead;
Nought can disturb their calm repose,
Nothing can reach them of all earth's woes.

Side by side these dear children sleep,
Side by side the sad parents weep;
We miss them at morn, we miss them at night,
Home's music is gone, its love, its light.

When, oh! when, will the morning break,
The trumpet sound, and the dead awake?
When, oh! when will the shadows flee,
And my precious ones come back to me?

Side by side these children will stand,
Singing new songs in the blissful land;
Gladly to meet them we come, we come,
Ever to rest in our Eden home.

Mary L. Pratt.

A. A. Hathorn.

Died in Castleton, Vt., Oct. 7th, 1864, Adrin A. Hathorn, aged eight years.

He has been a member of the "Try Company" nearly two years, and most faithfully did he adhere to the rules. He suffered one week with that dire disease, diphtheria. Often, during his sickness, did he request the Scriptures might be read; and as he listened to the promises of God, he would exclaim, "Isn't that good?" Our pastor, Bro. Mathewson, was absent; but in the providence of God, Bro. Brown was here in Castleton, and visited and prayed with him, and administered words of comfort on the occasion of his funeral. He showed death to be a calamity, and that even the children of God need comfort on such occasions. This we feel, but thank God, we have hope that he will come again from the land of the enemy, to die no more. Calista M. Hathorn.

Lucy A. Wakefield.

Died in Hollis, Me., Aug 21st, 1864, Lucy A. Wakefield, daughter of James G. and Serena H. Wakefield, aged ten years.

Lucy was a child beloved by all who knew her. She leaves many friends to mourn her loss, but her parents and brothers and sisters mourn not as those that have no hope. She has long been a member of our Sabbath school. She was ever kind and affectionate. Her sickness was short, but severe. In her last moments I was present, sung and prayed with her. She left a strong evidence that she will have a part in the first resurrection. "On such the second death has no power."

Death itself shall surely die,
Friends no more in dust shall lie,
Life eternal shall be given,
When the Lord returns from heaven.

Simon J. Locke.

Willie E. Locke.

Died in Hollis, Me., July 21st, 1864, Willie E., only son of Simon J. and Annah M. Locke.

"Death came to our bower,
And called a bright flower,
The sweetest, the fairest we had;
Our dear little Willie,
Our golden-haired Willie,
And left our hearts stricken and sad.

Death came without warning,
One fair summer morning,
And took little Willie away;
Our dear blue-eyed Willie,
Our only son Willie,
Now sleeps in his grave of cold clay."

Simon J. Locke.

John Bowers.

Died at Andersonville, Ga., Aug. 9th, 1864, after an imprisonment of nearly four months, John Bowers, of Collinsville, Ct., aged thirty-eight.

He was a member of Co. E., 16th Regt., C. V., and taken prisoner at Plymouth, N. C., in April. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss.

D. D. Merrick.

Died in Philadelphia Hospital, Aug. 10th, 1864, Dean D. Merrick, son of Josiah D. and Eliza Merrick, aged seventeen years and eleven months.

Death has again entered my family and taken another loved one. This is the second son I have lost in this wicked war. When will it end? Surely we are living in perilous times. We can only trust in God. E. Merrick.

Mary Moulton.

Died in Hollis, Me., Sept 18th, 1864, Mary Moulton, wife of Reuben Moulton, aged seventy-four years and six months.

Soon will the wife and mother dear
Eternal life through Christ receive,
With him and his forever then
In Paradise on earth shall live.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Oct. 15th, Queenstown 16th.

Mr. Gladstone has been making additional speeches in Liverpool, Manchester, and other parts of Lancashire, in which he hints at prospective reform measures. He deplores the American war, and expresses great sympathy with the American people, but felt that they should be left to settle their own affairs. He confessed that he always had strong doubts of the practicability of reducing to subjugation any large part of the country that manifested a determination to separate.

Advices from Batavia announce that the Dutch were engaged in a war with the natives of Java.

The Times to-day has an editorial favoring the proposed Confederation of the British American Provinces on account of the powerful military state which the American Union has become.

It is reported from Africa that Jules Gerard, the explorer, was drowned while crossing a river.

FRANCE.

The engagements between the French troops and Arab insurgents in Algeria on the 20th and 30th September resulted in 800 Arabs being killed and wounded, and over 100 French.

It has been decided that the Prince Imperial of France shall be educated at one of the Public Lycees of Paris, as were all the sons of Louis Philippe.

Liverpool Oct. 19th, Queenstown 20th.

Political news unimportant.

The commercial depression continues. Additional failures include twenty Liverpool firms in the American trade.

Rio Janeiro letters confirm the severity of the panic there. The liabilities of the four suspended banks amount to eleven hundred thousand pounds sterling.

There were rumors of a probable meeting between the Czar and Napoleon, at Nice, shortly.

The Duke of Newcastle died on the 18th inst. after a long illness.

The grand bazaar, in aid of Southern prisoners was opened at Liverpool, on the 18th inst. with great success. Political feeling was disclaimed and very general support was extended to it.

☞ The Rocky Mountain News of the 5th inst. says that nearly one hundred persons have been killed by the Indians along the Platte and Arkansas rivers since the beginning of the troubles ... [illegible]

☞ The Methodist Musical Convention in ... [illegible]

DOMESTIC.

St. John, Canada East, Oct. 25.—9 A. M. Nothing of special importance has taken place in regard to the St. Albans raiders, who are understood to have engaged as counsel Hon. J. J. Abbott and Messrs. Carr and Lafamme of Montreal, and Hon. J. H. Cameron of Toronto.

The examination is conducted with closed doors, only the counsel and reporters being admitted. The notorious George N. Saunders is here managing the cause of the rebels. He says they belong to the first families of Kentucky and formerly belonged to John Morgan's force. This raid, he asserts, is only the first of plundering expeditions soon to take place on the frontiers of the States. Had he known before of this affair he would have prevented it, as it was conducted on too small a scale. F. G. Johnson, Queen's counsel of Montreal, is here as counsel for the Canadian authorities.

Washington, Oct. 25, 1864. A letter from Harper's Ferry, dated yesterday, says 1500 rebel prisoners arrived at that place on Monday, making 2600 in all who have thus far arrived there. About a thousand more are at Winchester, and the cavalry are still picking up a great many.

The prisoners pronounced Sheridan the greatest General in the Union army. About three hundred officers have been captured. The rebel loss in killed, wounded and prisoners will not fall short of ten thousand men. When they passed through Woodstock, on their retreat, not a company organization remained.

Among the artillery captured were twenty pieces that were "bran new," of Richmond manufacture, brought up by Kershaw's division. They had only two pieces left. Upwards of twelve thousand small arms have already been picked up.

The wounded have all been removed to Winchester, and are going from there as rapidly as possible to Martinsburg.

New Orleans, Oct. 17, via Cairo, 25th. Letters received here from prominent rebels in Richmond state that the archives and other government property is being secretly removed to Lynchburg.

The steamer George Cromwell, from New York, arrived yesterday. The rebel cavalry are conscripting negroes on plantations outside of our lines, by order of the rebel government. They state that the negroes are to be put into the rebel army.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The Democrat's dispatch from Leavenworth says Price was driven below Fort Scott, closely pursued by our cavalry. We have captured a large number of prisoners, including Gens. Marmaduke and Cabell, and several pieces of artillery.

Gen. Rosecrans was at Little Santa Fe, twelve miles south of Kansas City, with infantry, on Tuesday night.

SECOND DISPATCH.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The following is derived from an entirely reliable source: Our forces have been driving Price rapidly since Sunday, and at last accounts he was twenty-five or thirty miles south-east of Fort Scott, his army routed and dispersed. On Tuesday we had several fights with him between Mound City and Fort Scott, in all of which he was badly whipped, losing 1500 prisoners and ten or twelve pieces of artillery. Among our prisoners is Maj. Gen. Marmaduke and Brig. Gen. Cabell, several Colonels and other officers.

St. Louis, Oct. 28. Official dispatches from Gen. Pleasanton give the following information regarding his operations against Price. He marched 92 miles in two days, and fought during the last 32 miles. His force was less than 6000, while Price's was fully up to 25,000. Price has but one gun left and no ammunition, he having blown up his train. He also burned 400 wagons to save them from capture. We have two thousand prisoners and several thousand stand of arms. Gen. Fagan is reported killed. Price's army is completely disorganized and flying in all directions.

City Point, Oct. 27.

To Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

I have just returned from the crossing of the Boylston plank road with Hatcher's creek. Our line now extends from its former left to Armstrong's mill, thence by the south bank of Hatcher's creek to the point above named. At every point the enemy was found intrenched and his works manned. No attack was made during the day further than to drive pickets and cavalry inside of the main work. Our casualties have been light, probably less than 200 killed, wounded and missing. The same is probably true with the enemy. We captured, however, seven loaded teams on their way to Stony Creek to the enemy, about a dozen beef cattle, a traveling forge and from seventy-five to one hundred prisoners. Butler extended around well toward the Yorktown road without finding a point unguarded. I shall keep our troops out where they are until toward noon to-morrow, in hopes of inviting an attack.

(Signed) U. S. Grant, Lieut. General.

Chattanooga, Oct. 28. The guerrillas yesterday threw a train off the track three miles below Adairsville, killing one man and wounding eight. The guard having rallied, the enemy were driven off without making any captures of persons or property.

The railroad is repaired to Atlanta, and a train left for that point this morning.

New York, Oct. 29. The Times has the following dispatch:

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett has just had a sanguinary battle with Breckenridge's forces in East Tennessee, completely routing Vaughan's Brigade. The rebels in their flight threw away their arms and abandoned much property. We captured nearly five hundred prisoners.

Knoxville, Tenn. Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett had a fight yesterday with Gen. Vaughan's command at Morristown, completely routing him and capturing 1607 prisoners, including one colonel, one major, six captains and lieutenants.

Our entire casualties in the battle of the 19th are now estimated at 7000, and those of the enemy at 9000.

The St. Albans Raiders. The St. Albans Messenger has a letter from St. Johns, Canada, where the rebel raiders are undergoing examination, which says that George Sanders, while there looking after the interests of the prisoners, stated that the late attack on St. Albans was merely the starting point, the inauguration of a system of warfare which would carry desolation all along the frontier. But for him, Buffalo would long since have been reduced to ashes. His peace negotiations with Greeley having failed, and as there is no prospect for McClellan, and Lincoln will be re-elected, he said there should be war to the knife and to the hilt. He says there are twenty thousand men in Canada, eager and prepared to enter upon these raids upon the frontier, and that towns would be burned and pillaged.—Boston Journal.

Montreal, Oct. 28. Proceedings in the case of the Vermont raiders have been transferred to Montreal. The prisoners arrived last night, and are now in jail here. The removal was made secretly, in order to avoid excitement. One deposition was taken yesterday. Further proceedings have been postponed until next week, on account of the Catholic holidays.

A gentleman from St. Albans informs us that another of the Vermont raiders was arrested in Montreal on Tuesday, and $10,000 of the bills of the Franklin County Bank were found in his possession. The number now under arrest is 17.

☞ The Montreal correspondent of the London Times, who learns the plans of the Western copperheads through their rebel prompters in Canada, writes:

"Whichever of the two candidates be elected, there will be a popular outbreak in the Northwest, which will severely test the power of the Federal Government, and operate as a valuable diversion in favor of their (the rebel) cause. Circumstances, small in themselves, but all converging to one focus, show that this belief is not ill founded, and foreshadow a troublesome time in that region prior to and subsequent to the day of election."

Maryland a Free State. The new Free State Constitution of Maryland is adopted by a majority of about 1500. There was a small majority against it on the home vote, but the soldiers' majority of 2500 in favor overcame it.

☞ The Unitarians of England close their theological commencements with a ball, though the organ of the denomination in England rather protests against the practice.

☞ The eighty-first in the group of asteroids was discovered by Mr. Tempel of Marseilles on the 30th of September, in the constellation Pisces.

☞ There are twenty cotton factories in Woonsocket, R. I., and most of them are stopped for want of cotton to manufacture.

☞ It is said the Rothschilds, for whom August Belmont is agent in this country, have $100,000,000 invested in the Southern Confederacy.

☞ In England, the Bible is now supplied for twelve cents, the New Testament for four cents ... [illegible]

☞ ... [illegible]

Notices.

Free Sabbath Conference.

The Lord willing, the Maine Quarterly Conference of Free Sabbath Adventists will hold its next session at Portland, Me., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, and continuing over the Sabbath and first day. All lovers of truth are heartily invited to attend. We hear of good Sabbath brethren and sisters in different places, who are spurned from the Battle Creek Association because they cannot co-operate with them in their form of organization. Should the eyes of any such fall on this notice, we say to them, Come, get acquainted with us, and know for yourselves what manner of spirit we are of. This conference is not got up on a principle of strife or contention, but we stand as a people excluded from what is known as the Seventh-day Advent body, because we believe it is our privilege through grace to know for ourselves that we enjoy the gifts and operations of the Holy Ghost; but, free from all hardness, and full of love, we want all our brethren and sisters to come and labor for God, as freely as though we were the only Sabbath body in existence. Our Battle Creek brethren cannot receive us, but we say to every lover of truth, Come. Bro. J. Cranmer, from Michigan, is expected to be with us. Strangers on coming into the city will inquire for Bro. H. A. Weston, 432 Congress street, and he will direct them to places of entertainment.

S. C. Hancock.

Any wishing to address me from now to Nov. 6th, will direct to Portland, Me., care of H. A. Weston. S. C. H.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kimbley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day, at the Disciple house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.

Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school-house near Bro. D. C. Jefferson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.

Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCord's, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.

Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O. G. W. Stetson.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

Jas. A. Libby.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend. N. White.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. Deyo, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. Butler, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. Green, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. Sheldon.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, on the Dixon Air Line R. R., on Wednesday, Dec 7th, and continue over the following Sabbath. E. Royce, Sec.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to Northfield, Mass., can correspond with A. Gage, or Edwin Lyman. J. K. Bellows.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon, otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

J. Couch .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

Lowell, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Bath, Me., Tuesday evening, Nov 8th, every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day.
Newfield, Ct., Tuesday evening, Nov 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting.
Miles Grant.

East Boston. .... Sunday, Nov 6th
A. W. Sibley.

Lawrence, Mass., (Lyceum Hall) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
H. L. Hastings.

Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena .... Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. Taylor.

Galesville .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
O. D. Woodruff.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. Pinkham.

Piermont, N. H., (Piper school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Orford, Quinttown .... Nov. 20th
L. C. Glazier.

Wolfboro, (Cotton Borough) .... Nov. 6th
Brookfield .... Nov. 13th
South Farmington .... Nov. 20th
N. Hartshorn.

Brimfield, (West Brick) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
E. Owen.

Springfield, Barnes' Hall .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Ira Morgan.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine ground) .... Nov. 6th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. G. Smith.

Alton, N. H., (Stockbridge Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Chichester, (Dover school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Z. Ford.

Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sunday, Nov. 6th, A. M. and P. M. Evening, school-house near Harding's Crossing.
R. R. York.
L. C. Welcome.

New York, at 24th street, (Bro. Curry's) until further notice.
Philadelphia, as soon as the work in New York will permit.
F. H. Burbank.

[illegible]

Northwood Narrows, N. H., Sat. eve., and Sunday, Nov. 5th and 6th.
East Concord, N. H., at Ward room, U. S. General Hospital, Sunday, Nov. 13th, P. M. Camp Union at 6 o'clock P. M. John G. Hook.

Burlington Centre, Ct. .... Nov. 6th
North Canton, Ct. .... Nov. 13th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house) .... Nov. 20th
S. Woodruff.

Augusta, Me. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Mussey.

Forestville, Ct., Sunday, Nov. 6th; perhaps longer. Those corresponding address me at Forestville, Ct., till Nov. 12th. H. K. Flagg.

Wolfboro, (Goose Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Moultonborough Center .... Nov. 13th
London Ridge .... Friday evening, Nov. 18th
Concord .... Nov. 20th
Melvin Village .... Nov. 27th
T. W. Piper.

Leverett, Mass., (Still Corner) .... Nov. 4th and 6th
Amherst (East Street) .... Nov. 8th
Goshen, Mass. .... Nov. 9th and 10th
Plainfield, Mass., (at Bro. D. Thayer's) .... Nov. 11th
and at J. E. Healy's Nov. 12th.
Plainfield .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Smith's) .... Nov. 14th
and at Bro. Warren's Nov. 16th.
Savoy, Mass. .... Nov. 17th and 18th
Charlemont, Mass., (as Brn. may arrange) .... Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass. .... Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass. .... Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's .... Nov. 25th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Kennebunkport, Me. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Kennebunk, (as Bro. Town may appoint), Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
Portland, Me. .... Tuesday, Nov. 8th
Yarmouth, Me. .... Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th
Poland, Me. .... Thursday, Nov. 10th
and through the conference. A. Ross.

Centerville, near Bro. Charles Miller's, one mile west of Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 6th. Also in the north part of Hinsdale, N. H., at the Burnham school-house, a few evenings, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
S. Cook.

Wallingford, Ct., (North Farms) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Litchfield Station, Ct. .... Saturday eve, Nov. 12th
Wrightville, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
B. Hitchcock.

Conway, (as Bro. Mason may arrange) .... Nov. 13th
Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks' .... Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. R. M Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass. .... Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. H., (Advent Chapel) .... Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt. .... Dec. 11th
J. K. Bellows.

Pine Meadow, Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, at the dwelling of Harvey Dayton.
Pleasant Valley .... Nov. 6th
Barkhamsted, at the Universalist meeting-house, Nov. 13th. No Name.

Warehouse Point, Ct. .... Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct. .... Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct. .... Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct. .... Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct. .... Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct. .... Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct. .... Nov. 27th
J. S. White, East Boston.

Hoosick, N. Y., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, if the weather is good.
North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who oft n attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this cost don't fit you. Hiram Munger.

Yarmouth .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford .... Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's .... Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. Spaulding.

Concord, N. H. .... Sabbath, Nov 6th
T. M. Preble.

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Simpson.

Scitico, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov 13th
I. B. Potter.

P. S. Butler .... Sunday, Nov 6th

South Reading, Mass .... Nov. 6th
Lynn, Mass. .... Nov 13th
C. C. Ramsay.

Vernon, Vt. .... Sunday, Nov 6th
J. K. Bellows.

Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day.
P. S. W. Deyo.

Wa'bridge (communion day) .... Nov. 6th
Lynn .... Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. Higgins.

Manchester .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Joseph W. White.

Edinboro, Pa. .... Sunday, Nov 6th
C. B. Turner.

Goshen, Mass. .... Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange) Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's .... Oct. 9th
Griswoldville .... Nov 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass. .... Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me .... Nov. 27th
C. Goodrich.

Business.

Thurman's Chronology.

Orders for this work have come in so rapidly that our supply was exhausted in a few days. Orders waiting will be filled soon. We expect several hundred more in a few days. Send on your orders.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. Call—The Pilgrim has been sent regularly to your name. Have sent again. Crisis to No. 489.
T. M. Preble—You will find it in No. 472.
C. Newell—See last No.
M. Mardin—Paid to No. 481.
S. Case—Right; last paid to No. 494.
T. S. Canfield—Our rule, will continue as heretofore.
C. H. Williams—Are out; will send in a few days.
N. R. Gould—S. R. C. was credited; pays to No. 494.
Mrs. S. B. Davis—Received.
John Pope—Was received; pays to No. 481.
Dr. W. Prince—Received; pays to No. 468.
A. S. Soper—Credited, pays to No. 495.
A. M. Tyrrell—There is one published in Buffalo, which advocates also some peculiar views,—Die Zeichen der Zeit.
Geo S Harwood—To No. 491.
Wm Bragdon—See No. 472.
N. W. Wait—S. B. W. was previously paid to No. 456. The $1.72 was received first, and paid to No. 494; afterward the $2.50, which paid to 546. Both acknowledgments should have appeared in the same No., but for want of time the first, with some others, was laid over.
John Metcalf—The Crisis to England, postpaid, is $3.50 a year. The tracts—"Soul, Spirit," etc., postpaid, 7 cents each, "Last Days," etc., 4 cents each.
Pine Meadow, New Hartford, Ct.—A brother writes from this place, enclosing 75 cents for a Christian Lyre, and a number of appointments, but does not give his name.
P. N.—Shall not be able to send any this week.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 474. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

$1.00 each.—L. B. Gould 463, T R V Bradley 419, C Bowers (what P. O.?), P Wolf 473, C H Fosdick 407, H Pratt 479, J V Hester 487, E B Stearns 502, E Bowman 480, E. P. Streeter 497, N. McCulloch 465, W. P. Bartlett 486, N Hanson 468, Mrs M Clisby 489, J Gilbert 492, S Stevens 416, N. E. Stillwell 492, A A Eddy 491, H P Vankirk 491, C E Conklin 473, S D Hanson 495, E B Gard 486, E Fisher 489, Mrs D Higley 481, I Tripp 482, D. Tripp 489, S W Peirce 443, Mrs. S. Rawlinson 453, J W Ireland 492, Mrs. M. Mundell 483, Mrs. D S Lampery (old acc't).

$1.25 each.—H N Ferrin 497, Wm Chapin 498, S H Batchelor 496, S. A. A. Smith 487, J K Cobb 494, A R Field 496, H S Stiles 487, J Ver Steeg 496, D Ver Steeg 496, F. A. Healey 497, E Owen 492, A P Noyce 494, C Myers 497, Mrs. A J. Eaton 486, D S Green 497, S D Chamberlain 499, J H Langley 506, C B Green 497, H Roberts 487, L. C. Bailey 494, W R Parsons 497, D C Elliott 486, J B Atkinson 500, M J Sanford 508, P Dodge 500, J. Bailey 494, N. McCulloch, Jr. 494, P. Dow 500, S Marsh 442, G Kalp 500, G Alexander 476, A Herdlien 500, G W Whitehouse 500, G W Whiting 494, J Young 494, S T Marsh 491, J G Priest 500, Mrs L A Salter 530, H N Gardner 500, A R Green 510.

$2.00 each.—S. R. Hathorn 558, S. Underwood 451, Mrs L Scholl 519, S Densmore 496, P Card 479, Mrs. J. Canterbury 510, A. Walker 468, Mrs. M O Morgan 510, N A Daley 481, Mrs S B Davis 508, W D Watson 530, J C Horn 480, S Hooper 513, L H Wallingford 515, Mrs. ... [illegible]

520, J. B. Young ... [illegible] ... 500, L. Johnson ... [illegible] ... E H Darlington ... [illegible] ... Mason ... [illegible] ... cock ... [illegible] ... W. Nichols ... [illegible] ... 520, H O ... [illegible] ... Warner ... [illegible] ... J. Bendle 548, R. M. Shotsford ... [illegible] ... Nelson 487, H Young 512 ... [illegible] ... M T Osgood 522, Mrs A ... [illegible] ... D. L. Tole 522, E. Jones ... [illegible] ... Clegg 522, S Case 546, A T ... [illegible] ... C Parr 522, D. Thompson ... [illegible] ... Doolittle 527, Wm Bennett 513, W Moses 494.

$3.00 each.—O Wait 472, D Fletcher ... [illegible] ... 541, N Hanson ... [illegible] ... R. Willard 522, A Hodsdon ... [illegible] ... 558, A Minto 551, A Rice ... [illegible] ... son 514, N. Davis ... [illegible] ... Mitchell 501, S S Gault ... [illegible] ... 497, J T Langley 522, J B Tamblyn ... [illegible]

$4.00 each.—W Kingsbury ... [illegible] ... Mayberry 520, J Freed ... [illegible] ... 494, Johnson & Howard 468, A Young ... [illegible] ... 495, N. L. Curtis 442, A Lahomaty ... [illegible] ... 492, J Hammond 505.

$5.00 each.—A Evans 573, Mrs. M Smith ... [illegible] ... Newton 512, A Soule 542, A M Smith 473, J Heath ... [illegible] ... J Lynn 413, J Hall 418, ... W Blanchard ... [illegible] ... 546, A Logan 509, W. H. Taylor 576, ... [illegible] ... Bates 506, Mrs T Holloway 574, D A Grant ... [illegible]

50 cents each.—J J Austin 504, C Newell 517, ... [illegible] ... 474, M D Langly 481, B H Albree 344, J Stack 479, L Chamberlin 485, C Wood 472, ... [illegible] ... liams 479, S O Stacie 472, ... [illegible] ... R. Maynard 479, E. Melcher 501, ... [illegible] ... Pease —, E. M. Sherman 478, J. C. Gibson 497, ... Dalton 477, T P Hunt (what P. O.?), ... [illegible] ... J L Harris 481, E A Gage 494, — Cleveland ... [illegible]

C. W. D. Scott $13.491, ... [illegible] ... Thayer $1.50 520, ... [illegible] ... $1.24 468, S. Newton $4.27 ... [illegible] ... 470, F Cohring $3.22 ... [illegible] ... H. Simmons $2.70 509, G. Severance ... [illegible] ... Durland $1.50 520, M A Hoxie ... [illegible] ... ton $1.70 453, ... T Palmer ... [illegible] ... 512, B Parsons $2.84 489, S Clark $1.75 465, W D Wood $1.25 489, A B Doty $1.25 500, J M Churchill ... [illegible] ... D C Bell ... [illegible] ... kins $3.50 520, J Gifford 66c. 485, D B Davis 25c. 470, W B March 63c. 481, E Orcutt 65c. 480, ... [illegible] ... 470, M E Wood $1.70 484, S O I Evans 66c. 478, ... T B Northrup $1.00 500, ... [illegible] ... cock $1.54 522, C W Crocker $1.50 475, A Smith $1.25 457, A C Knowlton $3.30 546, A K (or R. J) Baker ... [illegible] ... 491, C Howard 10c 482, ... [illegible] ... shall 25c. 470, A C Holland 25c. 491, A S Compton ... [illegible] ... 496, B Jennings 27c 472, Mrs. J W Vanderbilt ... acct., W Peacock 30c. 472, ... [illegible] ... roughs 25c. 466, D N Utter 55c. ... [illegible] ... 30c. 483, J. Jewson 65c. 477, ... [illegible] ... Addison $1.65 541, M G Wise $1.50 494, ... [illegible] ... $1 70 523, C Colburn 63c. 476, D E Smith ... [illegible] ... K Gaines $1.20 519.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—B. St. John, C. G. Miller, T B Tamblyn, J G Burnham, B Vandervoort, E Oates, A Lewis, S M Rannels, C Newell, H H Hendrix, B Perham, H Rockwell, A Haymond, J C Wheeler, Mrs. M H Pollard, L Kulp, O. M. Walden, H Clegg, M C Ellenwood, L. R. Smith, C P Dow, I P Murphy, A H Martin, W Joslyn, B Hammond, C Newell, B Perham.

By Express.—T Smith, G H Emery, H F Carpenter, J McCammond.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J E Clark? J Knowles, P A Smith, F Corker, E B Gard, J R, M M Weaver, M A Baldwin, O R Fassett, C H Laverton, H P Van Kirk, B P F, J R Clark, H A Annable, C F Hudson, J N Berry, Geo. A Streeter, I H Zaney.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

M Mathews—Weaver, Danaville, C. E.
F. H. Burbank, New York, N. Y., care of Eld. Samuel Curry, Station E.
Will Sr. M. S. Perkins please send her P. O. address to Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana, Mass.?
J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.
J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.
J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

All publications sent by mail must be prepaid. ... [illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Rev. T. Curry. ... [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. ... [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. ... [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents ... [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his condition; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of ... [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of ... [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; ... [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom ... [illegible] ... By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer ... [illegible] ... By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity ... [illegible] ... SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsay, ... [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man, its Origin, Progress, and End. ... [illegible] ... H L Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; ... [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church .... 25c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man .... 25c.
Reasons for my Hope .... 20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion .... [illegible]
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly .... 20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pun. Taught by Paul .... 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life .... 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church .... 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single .... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.
BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise ... [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History ... [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that ... [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. ... [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. ... [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. ... [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 ... [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3 ... [illegible]

justifying the immense labor bestowed upon it. The appearance of such a work in the midst of our war, and at the height of the paper famine, and yet in a style worthy of peace and leisure, is a trophy of American enterprise, and deserves to be itself a success. C. F. H.

Correspondence.

From Bro. P. A. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—I have just returned from the place mentioned in my last letter where the wonderful power of God was displayed in the conviction and conversion of sinners under the proclamation of the "Gospel of the Kingdom."

As the meeting was held in the Baptist house, I supposed that all the professors who took part were members of that church, but a portion of them were Methodists. So it was not correct, as stated in my last, that nearly all the members of that church took hold. But, thank the Lord, some did, and can say with Peter that they "have been begotten again unto a lively hope."

The work went on in power, and oh, what a sight to behold, to see the strong man become like a little child, their faces shining forth with the love of Christ, so that all are constrained to say there is no mistake in the conversion of such and such a one. One unconverted person said it was worth one hundred dollars to have one man, who shared in reclaiming grace of God, leave off drinking. His companion was a free Methodist, and she is happy in the blessed hope, praising the Lord for what he has done for her husband, and the children are beginning to try to be christians. I am glad that the gospel is so plain that the children can see its beauty and glory, and give their young hearts to Jesus.

I baptized twenty-one happy pilgrims, and a number more will be, when we baptize again. Forty-nine sat down to the table of the Lord. O, what a glory rested on that happy company while they spake of the time that the Lord instituted the Supper, and died to redeem us from the power of the grave, and of his soon coming again to take us to himself; it was a melting season never to be forgotten by those who were there. Some of the close communion Baptist brethren sat down to the table and partook with us. He that the truth makes free, is free indeed. Bless the Lord!

When our meetings closed, last evening, they appointed prayer-meetings and intend to keep up the interest of being faithful in all their duties, and laboring for the conversion of their neighbors and friends. I hope and pray that they may be kept from the prowling wolves, and teachers that ride hobbies and subvert whole churches. I am bound for the kingdom, and I want to see all that are pure in heart there. For that I am laboring. I suffer with disease, but, glory to God, in that land the inhabitants will never say they are sick. P. A. Smith.

Rochester, N. Y.

From S. M. Shade.

Bro. Grant:—It is about six years since I became an Advent believer. Since that time I have been a Bible student. I believe that we are living in the last days of time. I still feel an increasing desire in my heart to serve the Lord and walk in obedience to all his divine commands. My companion and myself are the only ones in this vicinity that believe in Jesus' soon coming and the end of all things at hand. We are lonely here, but, thank God, I am resolved to go through and enter into the city, cost what it will. I have no desire to turn back. My face is Zionward, and I am determined to go through. I long to go home. I am willing to give up this world, with all its allurements, wars and strifes, if I may but reign with Jesus when he comes in his kingdom. O for holiness of heart! Brethren and sisters, may we have clean hands and a good conscience before God, is the prayer of one that hopes to have part in the "first resurrection."

Galva, Ill. S. M. Shade

From Bro. John Somes.

Bro. Grant:—I have been holding meetings in a backwoods district near Augusta for the last five months, among a poor class of people who have had no preaching there for some five years, not so much as one sermon. Some backsliders have been reclaimed and some have experienced religion. I baptized two last Sabbath. Brn. Dudley and Pray were there in the afternoon. Bro. Pray gave them some tracts and Sabbath school papers, which were thankfully received and carefully read.

I bless God that I was ever brought to believe the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. I feel more like praying to God daily and hourly than ever I did in my life. Brethren, let us live near to God, by faith and prayer. Time is short. I believe my Savior is soon coming. Keep your lamps trimmed and burning, and prepare to meet your Lord.

Jefferson, Me. John Somes.

From a Methodist Minister in Ill.

Rev. Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.:—My dear friend and brother, I am a minister in the M. E. church; but I trust not so bigoted as not to be able to appreciate and acknowledge worth and merit wherever and whenever I see it. Some time since I chanced to pick up a copy of your paper, dated May 31st, 1864. I read it, and was not only interested, but benefited; and if that is a fair representative of your paper, I will welcome it as a weekly visitor to my study. Therefore, enclosed, find 50 cts., for which you will please send the "Crisis" one quarter; at the expiration of which time, if I am still pleased, I will order it for the coming year.

From a Methodist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I was born and brought up a Methodist. For nearly thirty-five years was a member of that church, and honestly thought I was by nature an immortal being, till within the last four years. Through reading your books I have become satisfied that the Bible, especially the original, teaches that I am mortal, and can obtain immortality only through Christ at the resurrection. The Crisis, and reading of that kind, has therefore become a necessity in my family. It seems a pity there is so little unity in Philadelphia on this subject, and only one society to represent this all important Bible truth. Since I have received it, I have not hid it under a bushel, but in my simplicity went straight to some of our prominent preachers to get them to explain it with all their knowledge they [illegible]

yet erroneous ideas of hell, soul and spirit, when such ideas are not found in the original at all. They have not attempted to explain, but put me off by referring to the multitude of good men who have lived and died in that faith; and they give me the cold shoulder. But I feel it not. I am bound to talk of Christ and the resurrection wherever I am. I have bought tracts and books, and lend them freely to all that will read them. There are four that I know who have like faith with myself in the church I belong to, one a leader; but, of course, our influence is circumscribed.

From a Baptist Brother.

Bro. Grant:—I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper for the past two years, and count it the best religious paper I ever read. I am a Baptist, yet no sectarian. I love all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. I am poor, yet I feel that I must bear some part of the burden of your office in feeding the poor. So you will find enclosed two dollars. I shall decline giving my name, as I wish to do my alms in secret.

Lamb's Point, Ill. ——.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. J. B. Cook, Binghamton, N. Y., writes:—

"The Day Star of Zion came in my way a few days ago, when out in Pa. on a preaching tour. Several of my personal friends are involved, Dr. Willard and wife, etc. Gladly would I note the grievous error embraced in their assumption of gathering God's people to this Celesta—this newly named Zion, etc. The history, geography, and prophecy of holy Scripture, through over four thousand years, are all against the possibility of their being true or trustworthy. God's Zion is in Asia, not America.

The deeding of the land to Almighty God seems most arrogant, or altogether insane. To which there is nothing analogous among God's recorded worthies in Heb. 11—nay, nothing analogous in history, save when Satan said of the present dominions and glory of earth, 'All this' is mine; and on conditions—'To thee will I give it.' Matt. 4, and Luke 3. And as Jesus appeared then as the man of sorrows, in his humiliation, there was modesty and propriety in this proposed transfer of title from Satan to the Son of God, compared with this deeding of these lands in Celesta, Pa., to Almighty God!

I am heartily and earnestly in the faith of Jesus' second coming and kingdom now 'nigh at the door.' However I may come short in my faith, hope, love, or obedience, my abiding conviction is that there can be no danger of believing too much of God's precious word—'the word of faith.' If I am right here, as all protestants affirm in theory at least, then it follows that if I could be christian with less of 'the word of faith,' yet I must be just so much more christian by so much as my faith grasps more of 'the word of Christ'—revealing his loving will and gracious purpose toward Jew, Gentile, and the church of God—with the groaning creation to be delivered in the 'restitution of all things spoken by all the holy prophets.'

If others can be spiritually minded, sanctified, preserved in Jesus Christ and called, while ignoring much of the (typical, Heb. 8 1-5) law, the Psalms and the prophets concerning Jesus, very well, I am not judge nor diviner over them; but they 'do greatly err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God' (in my humble light from truth), when they bind me to their limitations or rejections of God's truth. If alone among men, I at least prefer the word in its fulness. Amen."

Bro. Alfred Amos, Forest City, Mich., writes:

"I must say I prize the Crisis next to the Bible. I may add that the New York Tribune was all in all to me but a few months since, which I gave up to subscribe for the Crisis; and now I feel amply repaid, as it affords so much consolation to those who are waiting the return of their dear Lord and Master."

Obituaries.

I. J. F. Lester.

Died of typhoid fever, Oct. 12th, 1864, in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., in the sixteenth year of his age, Isaac James F. Lester, son of William and Mary Lester.

Isaac was a child beloved by all, and a remarkable exception to the general scope of the reckless rising generation of young men. He possessed no relish for the foul influences which sweep the masses of our youth into the whirlpool of evil. Possessing a thirst for education, his kind parents had arranged to give him a good chance in this department. But how often does death plunge human schemes into dark oblivion, and leave a cloud of sorrow in their place. Death blights our schemes while only in blossom.

Isaac went with his parents and sisters to the Okee campmeeting,—not to act the part of an ill-bred rowdy,—but to listen to the preaching of the gospel, which could "make him wise unto salvation," if believed and obeyed. His heart felt the power of sacred truth. When an opportunity was offered for seekers to come to the anxious seat, Isaac came forward with a heart overflowing with true penitence, and melted into unfeigned contrition. Kneeling by his side in prayer, I listened to those developed emotions which justly claim pardon at the hand of a merciful God. In a day or two after campmeeting closed, Isaac was confined to his bed, and was soon deprived of his reason; but in the wanderings of his mind he would often break out in strains about the New Jerusalem and the streets of gold—a theme that had captivated his mind at the campmeeting.

His funeral sermon was preached by the writer, in the Methodist meeting-house, near his father's residence, to a large congregation of sympathising friends, being assisted in the services by the Methodist minister. We followed him to the graveyard, and buried him by the side of his elder brother, whose funeral sermon I preached about a year ago. Mourning could not be suppressed, but it could be robbed of its ingredient of despondency by the assurancy that Isaac had sought the Lord before death sought him.

May parents and sisters and a brother, who have felt the anguish of a sad separation, be found ready to participate in the pleasures of a future meeting in the kingdom of God.

W. Sheldon.

Lillian Maine.

Died in Amboy, Sept. 28th, 1864, with laryngitis, Lillian Maine, daughter of Bro. Perry J. and Sr. Lucy M. Maine, aged six years, five months, and twenty-six days.

She was a good child, beloved by all who knew her. She will not have to sleep long, for soon the trump will sound, and she will come again from the land of the enemy. The friends were comforted with the words of the apostle in 1 Cor. 15: 26.

And when the last great trump shall sound,
And all the sleeping dead arise,
Our Lillian dear will then appear,
With her bright beaming eyes.
Then we will watch, and sing and pray,
Until our Savior comes,
And meet our loved ones in that day,
And all the sleeping ones.

D. S. Clark.

G. E. Cyphers.

Died in Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 16th, 1864, George Earnest, only child of Melville B. and Cyrena Cyphers, aged five months and seven days.

Death is still doing its work, but soon the King cometh and will call for those little sleepers [illegible]

[illegible]

Died in Vineland, Wis., Sept. 22nd, Willie Spencer Pratt, aged nine years, one month.

Also Oct. 8th, Mary Esther Pratt, aged thirteen years, nine months.

Also, Oct. 11th, Lemuel Ernest Pratt, aged six years, ten months.

Also, Oct. 12th, Harry Sylvester Pratt, aged twelve years, ten months, only remaining children of Harry and Mary L. Pratt.

The disease of these dear children was diphtheria in its most malignant form; and thus in less than three short weeks have we been bereft of our whole family, three of them buried in one week. I was sick with the same disease, and unable to follow them to their grave. While we mourn with bitter anguish the loss of our lovely treasures, we look forward to the time when they will come again from the land of the enemy. As our earthly hopes and prospects have all been blasted, the hope of the future, when we may again embrace our dear ones, is all that keeps us from sinking in despair. For what a desolate home has death made of ours. We have now six children in the icy arms of death. That cruel monster has not left us one. Pray for us, that we may endure with patience all our trials, and be prepared to meet Jesus when he comes.

They're gone! we hear their voice no more,
The last farewell is said;
The loved of earth, the beautiful,
Lie numbered with the dead.

Sweetly they sleep in their dreamless bed,
Resting awhile with the silent dead;
Nought can disturb their calm repose,
Nothing can reach them of all earth's woes.

Side by side these dear children sleep,
Side by side the sad parents weep;
We miss them at morn, we miss them at night,
Home's music is gone, its love, its light.

When, oh! when, will the morning break,
The trumpet sound, and the dead awake?
When, oh! when will the shadows flee,
And my precious ones come back to me?

Side by side these children will stand,
Singing new songs in the blissful land;
Gladly to meet them we come, we come,
Ever to rest in our Eden home.

Mary L. Pratt.

A. A. Hathorn.

Died in Castleton, Vt., Oct. 7th, 1864, Adrin A. Hathorn, aged eight years.

He has been a member of the "Try Company" nearly two years, and most faithfully did he adhere to the rules. He suffered one week with that dire disease, diphtheria. Often, during his sickness, did he request the Scriptures might be read; and as he listened to the promises of God, he would exclaim, "Isn't that good?" Our pastor, Bro. Mathewson, was absent; but in the providence of God, Bro. [illegible] Brown was here in Castleton, and visited and prayed with him, and administered words of comfort on the occasion of his funeral. He showed death to be a calamity, and that even the children of God need comfort on such occasions. This we feel, but thank God, we have hope that he will come again from the land of the enemy, to die no more. Calista M. Hathorn.

Lucy A. Wakefield.

Died in Hollis, Me., Aug 21st, 1864, Lucy A. Wakefield, daughter of James G. and Serena H. Wakefield, aged ten years.

Lucy was a child beloved by all who knew her. She leaves many friends to mourn her loss, but her parents and brothers and sisters mourn not as those that have no hope. She has long been a member of our Sabbath school. She was ever kind and affectionate. Her sickness was short, but severe. In her last moments I was present, sung and prayed with her. She left a strong evidence that she will have a part in the first resurrection. "On such the second death has no power."

Death itself shall surely die,
Friends no more in dust shall lie;
Life eternal shall be given,
When the Lord returns from heaven.

Simon J. Locke.

Willie E. Locke.

Died in Hollis, Me., July 21st, 1864, Willie E., only son of Simon J. and Annah M. Locke.

"Death came to our bower,
And called a bright flower,
The sweetest, the fairest we had;
Our dear little Willie,
Our golden-haired Willie,
And left our hearts stricken and sad.

Death came without warning,
One fair summer morning,
And took little Willie away;
Our dear blue-eyed Willie,
Our only son Willie,
Now sleeps in his grave of cold clay."

Simon J. Locke.

John Bowers.

Died at Andersonville, Ga., Aug. 9th, 1864, after an imprisonment of nearly four months, John Bowers, of Collinsville, Ct., aged thirty-eight.

He was a member of Co. E., 16th Regt., C. V., and taken prisoner at Plymouth, N. C., in April. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss.

D. D. Merrick.

Died in Philadelphia Hospital, Aug. 10th, 1864, Dean D. Merrick, son of Josiah D. and Eliza Merrick, aged seventeen years and eleven months.

Death has again entered my family and taken another loved one. This is the second son I have lost in this wicked war. When will it end? Surely we are living in perilous times. We can only trust in God. E. Merrick.

Mary Moulton.

Died in Hollis, Me., Sept. 18th, 1864, Mary Moulton, wife of Reuben Moulton, aged seventy-four years and six months.

Soon will the wife and mother dear
Eternal life through Christ receive;
With him and his forever then
In Paradise on earth shall live.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Oct. 15th, Queenstown 16th.

Mr. Gladstone has been making additional speeches in Liverpool, Manchester, and other parts of Lancashire, in which he hints at prospective reform measures. He deplores the American war, and expresses great sympathy with the American people, but felt that they should be left to settle their own affairs. He confessed that he always had strong doubts of the practicability of reducing to subjugation any large part of the country that manifested a determination to separate.

Advices from Batavia announce that the Dutch were engaged in a war with the natives of Java.

The Times to-day has an editorial favoring the proposed Confederation of the British American Provinces on account of the powerful military state which the American Union has become.

It is reported from Africa that Jules Gerard, the explorer, was drowned while crossing a river.

FRANCE.

The engagements between the French troops and Arab insurgents in Algeria on the 20th and 30th September resulted in 800 Arabs being killed and wounded, and over 100 French.

It has been decided that the Prince Imperial of France shall be educated at one of the Public Lycees of Paris, as were all the sons of Louis Philippe.

Liverpool Oct. 19th, Queenstown 20th.

Political news unimportant.

The commercial depression continues. Additional failures include twenty Liverpool firms in the American trade.

Rio Janeiro letters confirm the severity of the panic there. The liabilities of the four suspended banks amount to eleven hundred thousand pounds sterling.

There were rumors of a probable meeting between the Czar and Napoleon, at Nice, shortly.

The Duke of Newcastle died on the 18th inst., after a long illness.

The grand bazaar in aid of Southern prisoners was opened at Liverpool, on the 18th inst. with great success. Political feeling was disclaimed and very general support was extended to it.

☞ The Rocky Mountain News of the 5th inst. says that nearly one hundred persons have been killed by the Indians along the Platte and Arkansas rivers since the beginning of the outbreaks, about three months since.

☞ The Methodist Musical Convention in New York has resolved that the assignment of singing in church to a few, practically to the exclusion of the congregation, is at variance with the spirit of Divine worship, and [illegible]

☞ There are now building, for the through broad-gauge route from New York to St. Louis (1,200 miles) one hundred and fifty locomotives, [illegible] cars in proportion.

DOMESTIC.

St. Johns, Canada East, Oct. 25—9 A. M. Nothing of special importance has taken place in regard to the St. Albans raiders, who are remanded to have engaged as counsel Hon. J. J. Abbott and Messrs. Carr and Lafiamme of Montreal, and Hon. J. H. Cameron of Toronto.

The examination is conducted with closed doors, only the counsel and reporters being admitted. The notorious George N. Saunders is here managing the cause of the rebels. He says they belong to the first families of Kentucky and formerly belonged to John Morgan's force. This raid, he asserts, is only the first of plundering expeditions soon to take place on the frontiers of the States. Had he known, before of this affair he would have prevented it, as it was conducted on too small a scale. F. G. Johnson, Queen's counsel of Montreal, is here as counsel for the Canadian authorities.

Washington, Oct. 25, 1864. A letter from Harper's Ferry, dated yesterday, says 1500 rebel prisoners arrived at that place on Monday, making 2600 in all who have thus far arrived there. About a thousand more are at Winchester, and the cavalry are still picking up a great many.

The prisoners pronounced Sheridan the greatest General in the Union army. About three hundred officers have been captured. The rebel loss in killed, wounded and prisoners will not fall short of ten thousand men. When they passed through Woodstock on their retreat, not a company organization remained.

Among the artillery captured were twenty pieces that were "bran new," of Richmond manufacture, brought up by Kershaw's division. They had only two pieces left. Upwards of twelve thousand small arms have already been picked up.

The wounded have all been removed to Winchester, and are going from there as rapidly as possible to Martinsburg.

New Orleans, Oct. 17, via Cairo, 25th. Letters received here from prominent rebels in Richmond state that the archives and other government property is being secretly removed to Lynchburg.

The steamer George Cromwell, from New York, arrived yesterday. The rebel cavalry are conscripting negroes on plantations outside of our lines, by order of the rebel government. They state that the negroes are to be put into the rebel army.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The Democrat's dispatch from Leavenworth says Price was driven below Fort Scott, closely pursued by our cavalry. We have captured a large number of prisoners, including Gens. Marmaduke and Cabell, and several pieces of artillery.

Gen. Rosecrans was at Little Santa Fe, twelve miles south of Kansas City, with infantry, on Tuesday night.

SECOND DISPATCH.

St. Louis, Oct. 27. The following is derived from an entirely reliable source: Our forces have been driving Price rapidly since Sunday, and at last accounts he was twenty-five or thirty miles south-east of Fort Scott, his army routed and dispersed. On Tuesday we had several fights with him between Mound City and Fort Scott, in all of which he was badly whipped, losing 1500 prisoners and ten or twelve pieces of artillery. Among our prisoners is Maj. Gen. Marmaduke and Brig. Gen. Cabell, several Colonels and other officers.

St. Louis, Oct. 28. Official dispatches from Gen. Pleasanton give the following information regarding his operations against Price. He marched 92 miles in two days, and fought during the last 32 miles. His force was less than 6000, while Price's was fully up to 25,000. Price has but one gun left and no ammunition, he having blown up his train. He also burned 400 wagons to save them from capture. We have two thousand prisoners and several thousand stand of arms. Gen. Fagan is reported killed. Price's army is completely disorganized and flying in all directions.

City Point, Oct. 27.

To Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

I have just returned from the crossing of the Boylston plank road with Hatcher's creek. Our line now extends from its former left to Armstrong's mill, thence by the south bank of Hatcher's creek to the point above named. At every point the enemy was found intrenched and his works manned. No attack was made during the day further than to drive pickets and cavalry inside of the main work. Our casualties have been light, probably less than 200 killed, wounded and missing. The same is probably true with the enemy. We captured, however, seven loaded teams on their way to Stony Creek to the enemy, about a dozen beef cattle, a traveling forge and from seventy-five to one hundred prisoners. Butler extended around well toward the Yorktown road without finding a point unguarded. I shall keep our troops out where they are until toward noon to-morrow, in hopes of inviting an attack.

(Signed) U. S. Grant, Lieut. General.

Chattanooga, Oct. 28. The guerrillas yesterday threw a train off the track three miles below Adairsville, killing one man and wounding eight. The guard having rallied, the enemy were driven off without making any captures of persons or property.

The railroad is repaired to Atlanta, and a train left for that point this morning.

New York, Oct. 29. The Times has the following dispatch:

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett has just had a sanguinary battle with Breckenridge's forces in East Tennessee, completely routing Vaughan's Brigade. The rebels in their flight threw away their arms and abandoned much property. We captured nearly five hundred prisoners.

Knoxville, Tenn. Oct. 29. Gen. Gillett had a fight yesterday with Gen. Vaughan's command at Morristown, completely routing him and capturing 1607 prisoners, including one colonel, one major, six captains and lieutenants.

Our entire casualties in the battle of the 19th are now estimated at 7000, and those of the enemy at 9000.

The St. Albans Raiders. The St. Albans Messenger has a letter from St. Johns, Canada, where the rebel raiders are undergoing examination, which says that George Sanders, while there looking after the interests of the prisoners, stated that the late attack on St. Albans was merely the starting point, the inauguration of a system of warfare which would carry desolation all along the frontier. But for him, Buffalo would long since have been reduced to ashes. His peace negotiations with Greeley having failed, and as there is no prospect for McClellan, and Lincoln will be re-elected, he said there should be war to the knife and to the hilt. He says there are twenty thousand men in Canada, eager and prepared to enter upon these raids upon the frontier, and that towns would be burned and pillaged.—Boston Journal.

Montreal, Oct. 28. Proceedings in the case of the Vermont raiders have been transferred to Montreal. The prisoners arrived last night, and are now in jail here. The removal was made secretly, in order to avoid excitement. One deposition was taken yesterday. Further proceedings have been postponed until next week, on account of the Catholic holidays.

A gentleman from St. Albans informs us that another of the Vermont raiders was arrested in Montreal on Tuesday, and $10,000 of the bills of the Franklin County Bank were found in his possession. The number now under arrest is 17.

☞ The Montreal correspondent of the London Times, who learns the plans of the Western copperheads through their rebel prompters in Canada, writes:

"Whichever of the two candidates be elected, there will be a popular outbreak in the Northwest, which will severely test the power of the Federal Government, and operate as a valuable diversion in favor of their (the rebel) cause. Circumstances, small in themselves, but all converging to one focus, show that this belief is not ill founded, and foreshadow a troublesome time in that region prior to and subsequent to the day of election."

Maryland a Free State. The new Free State Constitution of Maryland is adopted by a majority of about 1500. There was a small majority against it on the home vote, but the soldiers' majority of 2500 in favor overcame it.

☞ The Unitarians of England close their theological commencements with a ball, though the organ of the denomination in England rather protests against the practice.

☞ The eighty-first in the group of asteroids was discovered by Mr. Tempel of Marseilles on the 30th of September, in the constellation Pisces.

☞ There are twenty cotton factories in Woonsocket, R. I., and most of them are stopped for want of cotton to manufacture.

☞ It is said the Rothschilds, for whom August Belmont is agent in this country, have $100,000,000 invested in the Southern Confederacy.

☞ In England, the Bible is now supplied for twelve cents, the New Testament for four cents, the Gospels for two cents each.

☞ Uphold the cause of truth when thou canst, and be willing for truth's sake to be hated; but know that the individual cause is not the cause of truth, and beware that they [illegible]

☞ [illegible]

Notices.

Free Sabbath Conference.

The Lord willing, the Maine Quarterly Conference of Free Sabbath Adventists will hold its next session at Portland, Me., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, and continuing over the Sabbath and first day. All lovers of truth are heartily invited to attend. We hear of good Sabbath brethren and sisters in different places, who are spurned from the Battle Creek Association because they cannot co-operate with them in their form of organization. Should the eyes of any such fall on this notice, we say to them, Come, get acquainted with us, and know for yourselves what manner of spirit we are of. This conference is not got up on a principle of strife or contention, but we stand as a people excluded from what is known as the Seventh-day Advent body, because we believe it is our privilege through grace to know for ourselves that we enjoy the gifts and operations of the Holy Ghost; but, free from all hardness, and full of love, we want all our brethren and sisters to come and labor for God, as freely as though we were the only Sabbath body in existence. Our Battle Creek brethren cannot receive us, but we say to every lover of truth, Come. Bro. J. Cranmer, from Michigan, is expected to be with us. Strangers on coming into the city will inquire for Bro. H. A. Weston, 432 Congress street, and he will direct them to places of entertainment.

S. C. Hancock.

Any wishing to address me from now to Nov. 6th, will direct to Portland, Me., care of H. A. Weston. S. C. H.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kimbley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day, at the Disciple house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.

Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school-house near Bro. D. C. Jefferson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.

Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCord's, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.

Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half-past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O. G. W. Stetson.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

Jas. A. Libby.

Meetings in Edinboro, Pa.

The Lord willing, a series of meetings will be held in the new church at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Friday evening, Nov. 4th, and continuing over the following Lord's day, and perhaps onward. Come, brethren, to this meeting with hearts filled with love to God, that good may be done in his name. Brn. P. A. Smith of Rochester, C. B. Turner of Syracuse, and J. D. Brown of Brockport, N. Y., are expected to attend. N. White.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. Deyo, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. Butler, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. Green, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. Sheldon.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, on the Dixon Air Line R. R., on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, and continue over the following Sabbath. E. Royce, Sec.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to Northfield, Mass., can correspond with A. Gage, or Edwin Lyman. J. K. Bellows.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon, otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

J. Couch .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

Lowell, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

Bath, Me., Tuesday evening, Nov 8th, every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day.

Newfield, Ct, Tuesday evening, Nov 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting. Miles Grant.

East Boston .... Sunday, Nov 6th
A. W. Sibley.

Lawrence, Mass., (Lyceum Hall) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
H. L. Hastings.

Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena .... Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. Taylor.

Galesville .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
O. D. Woodruff.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. Pinkham.

Piermont, N. H., (Piper school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Orford, Quinttown .... Nov. 20th
L. C. Glazier.

Wolfboro, (Cotton Borough) .... Nov. 6th
Brookfield .... Nov. 13th
South Farmington .... Nov. 20th
N. Hartshorn.

Brimfield, (West Brick) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
E. Owen.

Springfield, Barnes' Hall .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Ira Morgan.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine ground) .... Nov. 6th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. G. Smith.

Alton, N. H., (Stockbridge Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Chichester, (Dover school-house .... Nov. 13th
Z. Ford.

Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sunday, Nov. 6th, A. M. and P. M. Evening, school-house near Harding's Crossing. R. R. York.
L. C. Wellcome.

New York, at 24th street, (Bro. Curry's) until further notice.
Philadelphia, as soon as the work in New York will permit. F. H. Burbank.

Cold Spring, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Wrightville, Conn. .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
East Otis, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 11th
Geo. L. Teeple.

North Haverhill, N. H. .... Nov. 24
[illegible]

Will Sr. Glazier meet me at Newbury, Vt., at [illegible]

Sommerville, N. Y. .... Sunday evening, Nov. 6th
[illegible]

Northwood Narrows, N. H., Sat. eve., and Sunday, Nov. 5th and 6th.

East Concord, N. H., at Ward room, U. S. General Hospital, Sunday, Nov. 13th, A. M. Camp Union at 4 o'clock P. M. John G. Hook.

Burlington Centre, Ct .... Nov. 6th
North Canton, Ct .... Nov. 13th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house) .... Nov. 20th
S. Woodruff.

Augusta, Me .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Merrill.

Forestville, Ct., Sunday, Nov. 6th; perhaps longer. Those corresponding address me at Forestville, Ct., till Nov. 12th. H. K. Flagg.

Wolfboro, (Goose Corner) .... Nov. 6th
Moultonborough Center .... Nov. 13th
London Ridge .... Friday evening, Nov. 18th
Concord .... Nov. 20th
Melvin Village .... Nov. 27th
T. W. Piper.

Leverett, Mass., (Still Corner) .... Nov. 4th and 6th
Amherst (East Street) .... Nov. 8th
Goshen, Mass .... Nov. 9th and 10th
Plainfield, Mass., (at Bro. D. Thayer's) .... Nov. 11th
and at J. E. Healy's Nov. 12th.
Plainfield .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Smith's) .... Nov. 15th
and at Bro. Warren's Nov. 16th.
Savoy, Mass .... Nov. 17th and 18th
Charlemont, Mass., (as Brn. may arrange) .... Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass .... Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass. .... Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's .... Nov. 25th
Geo. A. Streeter.

Kennebunkport, Me .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Kennebunk, (as Bro. Town may appoint), Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
Portland, Me .... Tuesday, Nov. 8th
Yarmouth, Me .... Wednesday evening, Nov. 9th
Poland, Mass .... Thursday, Nov. 10th
and through the conference. A. Ross.

Centerville, near Bro. Charles Miller's, one mile west of Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 6th. Also in the north part of Hinsdale, N. H., at the Burnham school-house, a few evenings, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 7th.
S. Cook.

Wallingford, Ct., (North Farms) .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Litchfield Station, Ct. .... Saturday eve, Nov. 12th
Wrightville, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
B. Hitchcock.

Conway, (as Bro. Mason may arrange) .... Nov. 13th
Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks' .... Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. R. M Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass. .... Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. H., (Advent Chapel) .... Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt. .... Dec. 11th
J. K. Bellows.

Pine Meadow, Thursday evening, Nov. 3d, at the dwelling of Harvey Dayton.
Pleasant Valley .... Nov. 6th
Barkhamsted, at the Universalist meeting-house, Nov. 13th. No Name.

Warehouse Point, Ct .... Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct .... Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct .... Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct .... Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct .... Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct .... Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct .... Nov. 27th
J. S. White, East Boston.

Hoosick, N. Y., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, if the weather is good.

North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who oft n attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this coat don't fit you. Hiram Munger.

Yarmouth .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford .... Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's .... Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. Spaulding.

Concord, N H .... Sabbath, Nov. 6th
T. M. Preble.

Portsmouth, N. H .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
A. Simpson.

Scitico, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. Potter.

P. S. Butler .... Sunday, Nov. 6th

South Reading, Mass .... Nov. 6th
Lynn, Mass .... Nov. 13th
C. C. Ramsay.

Vernon, Vt .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
J. K. Bellows.

Amboy, Nov. 4th, and over Lord's day
P. S. W. Deyo.

Walbridge (communion day) .... Nov. 6th
Lynn .... Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. Higgins.

Manchester .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
Lawrence, Mass .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Joseph W. White.

Edinboro, Pa .... Sunday, Nov. 6th
C. B. Turner.

Goshen, Mass .... Nov. 6th
Plainfield, Mass., (as Bro. Healy may arrange), Oct. 8th
At Bro. D. Thayer's .... Oct. 9th
Griswoldville .... Nov. 10th and 11th
Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass .... Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me .... Nov. 27th
C. Goodrich.

Business.

Thurman's Chronology.

Orders for this work have come in so rapidly that our supply was exhausted in a few days. Orders waiting will be filled soon. We expect several hundred more in a few days. Send on your orders.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

R. Call—The Pilgrim has been sent regularly to your name. Have sent again. Crisis to No. 489.
T. M. Preble—You will find it in No. 472.
C. Newell—See last No.
M. Mardin—Paid to No. 481.
S. Case—Right; last paid to No. 494.
T. S. Canfield—Our risk; will continue as heretofore.
C. H. Williams—Are out; will send in a few days.
N. R. Gould—S. R. G. was credited; pays to No. 491.
Mrs. S. B. Davis—Received.
John Pope—Was received; pays to No. 481.
Dr. W. Prince—Received; pays to No. 468.
A. S. Soper—Credited; pays to No. 495.
A M Tyrrell—There is one published in Buffalo, which advocates also some peculiar views,—Die Zeichen der Zeit.
Geo S Harwood—To No. 491.
Wm Bragdon—See No. 472.
N W Wait—S. B. W. was previously paid to No. 456. The $1.72 was received first, and paid to No. 494; afterward the $2.50, which paid to 546. Both acknowledgments should have appeared in the same No., but for want of time the first, with some others, was laid over.
John Metcalf.—The Crisis to England, postpaid, is $3.50 a year. The tracts—"Soul, Spirit," etc., postpaid, 7 cents each; "Last Days," etc., 4 cents each.
Pine Meadow, New Hartford, Ct.—A brother writes from this place, enclosing 75 cents for a Christian Lyre, and a number of appointments, but does not give his name.
P. N.—Shall not be able to send any this week.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 474. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

$1.00 each.—L. B. Gould 463, T H V Bradley 419, C Bowers (what P. O.?), P Wolf 473, C H Fosdick 407, H Pratt 479, J V Hester 487, E B Stearns 502, E Bowman 480, E. P. Streeter 497, N. McCulloch 465, W. P. Bartlett 486, N Hanson 468, Mrs M Clisby 489, J Gilbert 492, S Stevens 416, N. E. Stillwell 492, A A Eddy 491, H P Vankirk 491, C E Conklin 473, S D Hanson 495, E B Gard 486, E Fisher 489, Mrs D Higley 481, I Tripp 482, D. Tripp 489, S W Peirce 443, Mrs. S. Rawlinson 453, J W Ireland 492, Mrs. M. Mundell 483, Mrs. D S Lampery (old acc't).

$1.25 each.—H N Ferrin 497, Wm Chapin 498, S H Batchelor 496, S. A. A. Smith 487, J K Cobb 494, A R Field 496, H S Stiles 487, J Ver Steeg 496, D Ver Steeg 496, F. A. Healey 497, E Owen 492, A P Noyce 494, C Myers 497, Mrs. A. J. Eaton 486, D S Green 497, S D Chamberlain 499, J H Langley 506, C B Green 497, H Roberts 487, L. C. Bailey 494, W R Parsons 497, D C Elliott 486, J B Atkinson 500, M J Sanford 500, P Dodge 500, J. Bailey 494, N. McCulloch Jr. 494, P. Dow 500, S Marsh 442, G Kulp 500, G Alexander 476, A Hendlien 500, G W Whitehouse 500, G W Whiting 494, J Young 494, S T Marsh 491, J G Priest 500, Mrs L A Salter 500, H N Gardner 500, A R Green 510.

$2.00 each.—S. R. Hathorn 558, S. Underwood 431, Mrs L Scholl 519, S Densmore 496, P Card 479, Mrs. J. Canterbury 510, A. Walker 468, Mrs. M O Morgan 520, N A Daley 481, Mrs S B Davis 508, W D Watson 520, J C Horn 480, S Hooper 513, L H Wadleigh 518, Mrs. M S Berean 444, W M Howland 520, C Goud 485, Mrs M. Snell 502, Mrs. P. Keyes 516, F. S. Ransom 520, B Havens 482, S Brown 512, J Studebaker 516.

$2.50 each.—R. Burrell 520, Mrs. L B Rowe 520, J T Stedman 510, J Stubbs 520, C C Smith 520, A Hubbard 520, Wm. Parsons 544, F Robbins 520, [illegible] Stetson 521, S. Wardner 491, F. H. Chamberlain 521, W Howard 520, [illegible]

[illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, [illegible]

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. [illegible]
Eternal Suffering. [illegible]
State of the Dead. [illegible]
Miles Grant's Tracts. [illegible]
What Is Man? [illegible]
The Soul, What is it? [illegible]
The Spirit, What Is It? [illegible]
The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

I. Signs of the Times [illegible]
II. The Voice of the Church [illegible]
III. Thessalonica [illegible]
IV. The Great Controversy [illegible]
V. Future Punishment [illegible]

[illegible]

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

[illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

[illegible]

Yet shall fair earth's [illegible] disorder and confusion,
[illegible] the portals of [illegible]
In the city of God, with its bulwarks of jasper,
[illegible] with the [illegible] of love.
[illegible] the city all radiant,
[illegible] pearl-bright walls,
While [illegible] of bright angels with chants immortal
Echo their songs through its tapestried halls.
Its portals are flashing with pearls rich in splendor,
Its streets paved with gold, which the angels have trod;
The hundred and forty-four thousand redeemed ones
Dwell in this radiant city of God.

Sweet through its mansion aisles echoes the music
Of songs that they sing to the Lamb that was slain;
[illegible] angels [illegible] the glorious numbers
That roll over worlds ever free from sin's stain.

There the winds never chill, nor the storm king rages,
Nor the flower petals droop in perennial bloom,
But the mild zephyrs waft with the softness of spring-time
On their bosom the fragrance of heavenly perfume.

There the heart never bleeds with the keen sting of sorrow,
But joy fills the soul with a pleasure untold,
And deepens forever as the "mysteries of heaven"
And the "wonders of grace" shall sublimely unfold.

Soon again earth will bloom, clad in Eden-like beauty,
Soon the city of God will descend from the skies,
Earth's long night of weeping forever be ended,
The judgment shall set and the dead will arise.

On the plains of fair Eden, immortal and glorious,
New Jerusalem's portals and high towering dome,
The ransomed ones bask in the sunshine of glory,
And the glad pilgrim rests in the mansions of home.

Westerly, R. I. M. R. PHETTEPLACE.

For the World's Crisis.

MY WESTERN TOUR.—NO. 8.

On the 9th of Aug., left Utica, Ill., and came by rail to Lockport, Ill., a pleasant locality upon the canal, thirty-three miles southwest of Chicago, where I was greeted by my only brother and his family, not having seen him for nearly fourteen years. How pleasant after a long absence to meet much loved friends! I enjoyed my visit here very much. My brother is at present an official member of the M. E. church of the proud and thriving village of Lockport, apparently much respected, a man of irreproachable christian character, and willing as I trust to "know the truth," which he has begun to investigate in good earnest. His minister feels alarmed, and has cautioned him since I left "not to be carried away with every wind of doctrine that comes along"; by which caution I hope my brother will benefit, and see by studying the Bible for himself that he has already been influenced improperly by the "wind" of popular error, and will embrace the truth. Myself and brother were the only children of my dear mother, who has been dead over thirty years. May we meet in the kingdom.

While here I visited the Lockport Cemetery, where a half brother of mine lies entombed in a most lovely spot, but the tomb is drear, and death's doings are cruel; and it is not my work to festoon the grave with flowers, and proclaim it as "the gate of heaven." To me, the resurrection morn is radiant with glory.

I passed six days very pleasantly with my brother and family, visiting different localities in the vicinity with him, and among others the State Prison, three miles distant, in Joliet, the yard and edifices of which are built of beautiful limestone taken from an extensive quarry near the prison, where a portion of the convicts labor, under the care of a well armed guard; some of them dragging a heavy chain attached to their ankles. There are five hundred and ninety-four males and twenty females in the prison at present, for various crimes, some for life, and some for shorter terms. This is an age of crime, an age of superabounding wickedness, when prisons are well filled, and multitudes are outside that ought for the safety of society to be there.

At length the time of my departure arrived, and the sad "farewell" had to be spoken. But I trust in God that the parting was not final, but that we shall meet again,—

"Meet, ne'er to sever."

On the morning of Aug. 15th I left Lockport, and my dear friends there, and came on to Chicago, the great mart of trade, the "London of the West," and on my arrival soon found myself at the "Lloyd House," on Randolph street, where I met Elder A. N. Seymour and other brethren and sisters of like precious faith, who were in the city partly on account of the great "Spiritual Convention," just closed, and to hear Eld. Grant's expose of Demonology, alias, Spiritualism, and to attend Eld. J. V. Himes' "Tabernacle meetings," commenced the night before on State street.

During the day I visited several places of interest in the city, and in the evening preached in the Western Tabernacle to a good congregation, Elds. Himes, Seymour and Smith participating in the services. Our old and well tried father in the gospel, Eld. J. V. Himes, we were glad to meet, and find in good health and spirits, determined to prosecute the good work to the end. Bro. Himes is highly "esteemed for his work's sake" in the west, as also in the east, and everywhere where "this gospel of the kingdom" has gone; and although since after due investigation he has come out fully on the side of "no immortality out of Christ," and renounced the God-dishonoring doctrine of the worst kind of eternal torture for the wicked,—one of his old fellow laborers has, in order to oppose his present position and destroy his influence (as I am credibly informed), reported him as "mentally broken down," in consequence of ill health," as a reason why he has changed his position; yet it is very manifest that he was never more efficient in the cause of God than now. Let his old and new friends sustain him with a "will," and leave those who can afford to stoop to the work of traducing character or mentality, to oppose a hated doctrine, to do their work.

On my journey homeward, I called at Buchanan, Mich., and preached one evening. The cause seems to be enjoying a degree of prosperity here, although not as great as is desired by its friends. Bro. and Sr. Mansfield live and labor here to good acceptance, and are much beloved by the church. Here I visited with Bro. Himes' kind family, who are in deep sorrow on account of death's sad doings; but they sorrow not even as those that have no hope, for they look for their dead to come forth from the grave when Jesus comes. May the rich grace of God sustain the bereaved mother and afflicted family [illegible]

From [illegible] I journeyed eastward, calling at [illegible]

While here I had a pleasant conversation with Moses Hall, formerly an Elder of my own faith, which faith he has renounced for the vagaries and deceptions of "Modern Spiritualism," alias, "Demonology." I speak of the conversation as pleasant, because it was carried on in perfect friendship; but my feelings were saddened by the course and present position of my erring brother. I hope he may yet be delivered from the snare of the Devil into which I am confident he has fallen. I expressed to him my surprise that a minister of my own faith on "man's nature and destiny" should depart so entirely from his position as he had done. He told me he first doubted the doctrine of the resurrection. I asked him if he did not first doubt the truth and reliability of the Bible? He admitted he did. I further inquired if his belonging to a class of Adventists that hold in great esteem the "Spiritualism" of Ellen G. White, and allowing her "Visions" to possess equal authority with the Bible, did not explain in part and account for his present position? At first he admitted it did, but after took it back, and said he believed, from the time he experienced religion at the age of fourteen (he is now twenty-eight), that miraculous power belonged to the church. Now he accepts the frivolous doings of wonder-working demons as divine, and puts them on a par with Christ's miracles. O that he might escape from this "strong delusion."

On my rapid journey east, I laid over at Niagara Falls, to hear the cataract's mighty roar, and view the grand in nature. It was an interesting sight. As I gazed, I thought of the "voice of many waters, and the voice of many thunderings, saying, Alleluia!" soon to be heard, when the Lord God Omnipotent shall reign. From Niagara's unequalled scenery I came on, conveyed by Nahum's flaming steed, running like the lightning through a most lovely country of orchards and well cultivated and valuable farms, to Tribe's Hill, town of Amsterdam, N. Y., thirty-five miles west of Albany, where I found a home with Bro. Dwight and family, who, with the exception of Sr. J. C. Hall, is alone in matters of faith in the midst of a multitude. The visit was pleasant, and I trust mutually profitable.

Arrived on Friday night, found myself sick by the fatigue of the journey. Preached on the Sabbath to a respectable congregation at the Lutheran church, which the pastor, Mr. Wheeler, kindly and willingly offered for the purpose, and was present himself and treated me with perfect kindness. How unlike the treatment received in some other places. May God bless him and his charge.

From this point my way was onward by Albany to Springfield, Ms., where I lay over and visited the musket manufactory and Arsenal, the sight of which can but call to mind what Joel wrote,—"Prepare war," etc. It is now done. From this factory alone, when in full operation, a thousand guns a day are issued. Enough to equip a large army is in the Arsenal. Next I visited the Wilbraham Camp, and heard its heavenly songs, and met a host. But I will not describe; I enjoyed it much, although sick.

Friday night preached in East Boston, and was attacked with an old complaint, chronic rheumatism, from which I have suffered since, much of the time sick, and all of the time lame, until now (Sept. 28th), which is my apology for the delay of this communication.

To end the narrative, I reached home four weeks to-day, thankful to find my family well. Thanks to all my brethren with whom I met in "My Western Tour," which is now in the past. Pray for me. C. P. DOW.

North Stanbridge, C. E.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT OF THE R. I. AND EAST CONN. QUARTERLY CONF.

Lafayette, Oct. 5th, 1864. Conference met according to appointment, Wednesday, at 2 o'clock P. M. As there were not preachers and delegates enough to form a quorum, the afternoon was spent in social worship. At 8 o'clock, preaching by Bro. M. R. Phetteplace. Thursday, 9 A. M. Met for business. Bro. M. R. Phetteplace in the chair. The Clerk being absent, Bro. E. B. Card was chosen Clerk pro tem. Minutes of the last conference read and accepted.

Reports of delegates. E. B. Card reported the church at River Point. Interest low as a church. Some striving for the kingdom. Sunday school prospering—numbers about forty scholars. Preaching last quarter by the following brethren: J. D. Brown, William Devereaux.

Bro. John Brown reported the church at Lafayette. Some trying to gain the kingdom. Interest rather low. Have preaching two Sundays in a month by E. R. Wood. Bro. J. Bellows and Bro. Perry had preached to them since last conference. Sunday school numbers twenty-four scholars; not so much interest as there had been.

Rocky Brook church reported by letter. Had nothing unusual to report apart from this, that our conference meetings seem to be increasing in interest,—disposition to work earnestly on the part of some, praying and laboring for each other's welfare and the salvation of sinners. We have meetings on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Thursday evenings devoted to prayer exclusively. Sunday school continues interesting; averages about sixty scholars. Preaching the last quarter from the following brethren: J. T. Dixon, C. P. Thompson, Wm. Shepherd, S. W. Bishop, and J. D. Brown. Those who are striving to maintain worship are endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace, keeping aloof from questions that engender strife and divisions. C. F. Dixon, Clerk.

Bro. E. R. Wood reported the church at Exeter. Some striving for the kingdom. Some had grown cold,—felt the need of living more humble,—determined to live at the feet of Jesus.

Reports of preaching brethren. Bro. E. Bellows.—Been mostly at home, where he could go out Sunday morning and back at night. Been with the church at Abington, Danielsonville, Carolina Mills, Westerly, and Rocky Brook. Felt the need of more laborers. Hoped the Lord would raise up young men to the ministry. Thought we had them among us, and hoped the Lord would send them out. Felt the work of the Lord must go on.

Bro. P. C. Rodman had not been to Conf[illegible]

[illegible] mer place the church belongs to the Free Will Baptist Association. Thought if the church did not go to work, outsiders would take it out of their hands. Sunday school large and interesting.

Bro. E. R. Wood and A. Taylor were chosen to act with the Chair to arrange the preaching for this conference. Adjourned until Friday, 9 A. M., for business. 2 P. M., preaching by Bro. E. Bellows, from 1 Pet. 1: 12. 6 P. M., met for social worship. 8 P. M., preaching by Bro. P. C. Rodman, from Rev. 22: 14.

Friday, 9 A. M. Met for business. Bro. Reynolds arrived, and reported the Central church. Thought they were waking up. Saw signs of sinners being converted, and felt encouraged. Bro. J. Northup reported his labors. Loved the service of the Lord. Enjoyed himself well. Been at Clark's Mills, Westerly, Curtis Corner, and Central. Found some laboring and some cold. Thought there were signs of the Central church coming up to the help of the Lord.

Bro. Peter Noka thought he had been rather indolent in the cause of God. Been at Providence, at New Market Hall; had good time there. Been at Worcester. Felt the Lord had a people there. Glad he belonged to the Lord. Felt determined to do more.

Bro. Benj. Reynolds had not much of interest to report, but was glad to be there. Felt like going on, and determined to do more by way of preaching. The churches at Providence and Westerly are disorganized.

Adjourned until 2 o'clock. At 10 A. M., preaching by Bro. Northup, from Isa. 53: 22. At 2 P. M., met for business. The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That this conference employ an evangelist to preach among the churches belonging to this conference, and labor in any and all places wherever the door may open.

Resolved, That the evangelist, and other members of this conference, and all others who are interested in the propagation of the gospel of the kingdom, solicit subscriptions for the Conference Fund.

Resolved, That the usual collection taken up for the Tract Fund be used to help support the evangelist.

Resolved, That the Clerk correspond with the churches to see what they will do towards supporting the evangelist.

Resolved, That this conference appeal to the brethren and sisters scattered throughout the limits of this conference, to aid in supporting the evangelist, the same to be published in the World's Crisis.

Bro. E. Bellows was chosen for the evangelist, with the privilege of sending a substitute when he thought best.

3 P. M. Preaching by Bro. Peter Noka, from John 14: 1. 6 P. M., met for social worship. 7 o'clock, preaching by Bro. M. R. Phetteplace, from Titus 2: 11; after which a collection was taken up for the Conference Fund, amounting to eight dollars and seventy-nine cents ($8.79).

Thus closed an interesting and profitable conference. Adjourned to meet at Danielsonville the first Wednesday in January, at 2 o'clock P. M.

Members present: M. R. Phetteplace, E. Bellows, Benj. Reynolds, Jos. Northup, Peter Noka, P. C. Rodman.

A. C. GREENE, Secretary.

For the World's Crisis.

HEAVENLY PITY.

Those of us that are parents know the love and sympathy that exists between us and our children. And what a cheering thought amid earth's trials that our Heavenly Father, "Our Father which art in heaven," has the same love and regard for us, not only the same, but a far greater love. He has loved us with an "everlasting love." He has so loved us as to give his only Son to die for us, "the just for the unjust." "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." But God so loved us (not that we loved him, but that he loved us), as to give his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Therefore we, guilty before God, rebels to his government, condemned to death, may live through him." Truly we can exclaim with the Apostle, "Herein is love!"

O brethren and sisters, do we know and believe the love that God hath to us? Do we dwell in love? If so, God dwelleth in us and we in him. What an exalted position do we occupy, even in this world; far more honorable than the king upon his throne. We sustain relationship to Jesus Christ, the King of kings and Lord of Lords (by doing his Father's will), as brothers, sisters and mothers; and if we belong to him, if we are Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. And the promise to Abraham was that he should be heir of the world, not through the law, or by works but through the righteousness of faith.

Many suppose that we are a poor, deluded people; but they know not our great riches, they know not the riches of his goodness; they know not the riches of his glory, which he has made known in the vessels of mercy which he had afore prepared unto glory. They know not that according to the riches of his grace we may have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins. The eyes of their understanding have not been enlightened; they know not what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints.

Paul says that in the ages to come, God, our Father, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, will "shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." Paul knew something about it, for he preached these "unsearchable riches" to the Gentiles. Yes, our Father made known the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is "Christ in you the hope of glory."

Therefore, ye desponding ones, cheer up! Ye poor of the world, remember our Father will supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus. Ye persecuted ones, can you not with Moses esteem the "reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt?" O, what a rich Father! Let us remember that he pitieth those that fear him as we pity our children. Ye afflicted ones, he knows just how to afflict, just how to chastise, just how to deliver out of temptation.

Let us ever be in submission to his will, draw near to him who wields the rod, ever take hold of Father's hand, and go wherever he leads. If we let go and try to go alone, [illegible]

Bless the Lord, my heart cries out in the language of Paul, "O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out." Perhaps he saw we loved these darling ones more than we did him, or more than we ought; so he took them to make room in our hearts for an increase of love to him.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us love God with all the heart, soul, might, mind, and strength, as he has required us. I love him, and I want the poor sinner to love him too. May some more be constrained in view of his love to love him in return? My prayer is, Lord, deepen thy work in the heart of every disciple, and may we be united as workers together in pointing the lost and perishing to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world.

Time is short, Jesus will soon come, and what we do must be done quickly. May our hearts be filled with the Spirit of God, that we may realize the times in which we live, and when Jesus comes have an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom.

Worcester. L. MARIA BRITTAN.

For the World's Crisis.

SONG.

AIR.—Uncle Sam's Farm.

Of all the glorious promises which in the word we find,
The promise of a kingdom is the richest of the kind;
Its heirs are true believers, no others can be found,
Who are the heirs of promise to Canaan's happy ground.

CHORUS.

Then come to Christ, come to Christ, make no delay,
Comply with the conditions, the word of God obey;
For if you are in Christ, you sure are Abram's seed,
And heirs with him to Canaan, according to the deed.

If you the chart examine, the bound'ries you will find,
Which mark this land of promise and draw a perfect line;
It also gives directions how you this land may gain;
The conditions all are easy, the way is straight and plain.

The gospel of the kingdom you surely must believe;
'Twas first preached unto Abraham, and you must it receive,
Salvation's mighty plan is, Repent, and be baptized,
And in the truth continue, and by you e'er be prized.

If you endure all hardness as soldiers of the cross,
All trials and temptations, esteeming them no loss,
And counting not your life dear that you with Christ may reign,
You surely will the kingdom and all its joys obtain.

Butte des Morts, Wis. MARY L. PRATT.

For the World's Crisis.

INWARD AND OUTWARD VIEW OF MISERY AND HAPPINESS.

We are all passing through the changing and trying scenes of life. And it has been said that this world is a world of tears and misery. But allowing this to be true, the God who made us has granted to his humble offspring all things needful to countermand those complaints of misery. The inconveniences of life, which call forth many bitter complaints, are indispensable requisites to happiness. Hunger gives a relish for food, and renders it satisfying. Pain prepares us for the appreciation of ease. Fatigue and toil are needful to constitute cessation from labor and luxury. Sickness prepares the appetite for the enjoyment of health; and so we may look throughout nature's domain, and learn from every page that every thing is known and appreciated by its opposite.

To realize the full value of any one mercy, we must suffer its privation. We cannot value true and unwavering friendship except by the loss of friends; neither can we duly estimate and fully realize the sweets of domestic life, except by their deprivation. Had we no afflictions, no pain, no disappointment, no blasted hope, etc., life would become cold and fruitless, and for its boasted pleasures we should lose all relish.

Thus it is that we have a mixture of weal and woe in alternation. Yet the goodness of God's love and favor shines upon every hand. All that transpires here below (sin excepted), is designed by our Creator for our best good. How unwise, then, are all those who forsake God, and place their confidence where they will surely reap disappointment. "Be not weary in well doing." Let not the true disciple of Jesus ever be disheartened or discouraged at the trials and crosses he may be called to bear; but steadfastly, perseveringly, press forward toward the mark of the prize of the high calling with the courage of a christian soldier, and in due season he will reap if he faint not.

Happy is the man who has an unshaken trust in God. For God only, and God alone, can give us that consolation that we stand in need of. Trust, therefore, in the Lord Jehovah, for in him is everlasting strength, and he will never leave nor forsake thee.

"Though troubles assail me and dangers surround,
Though thorns in my pathway may ever be found,
Still let me not fear, for thou ever wilt be
My God and my guide while I lean upon thee."

J. ELKINS.

For the World's Crisis.

NEW TESTAMENT SABBATH.

There seems to be a considerable force in shrewd management of a subject where evidence is lacking to sustain argument. Thus I notice that on the Sabbath question its advocates array the texts in the four gospels, which speak of the Sabbath, to make the appearance to unreflecting minds that it proves the duty of observing the seventh day under the christian dispensation.

But a moment's reflection reminds one that Christ lived and taught under the Mosaic, or law dispensation, and kept the law—taught those who came to him to keep it,—to offer gifts and sacrifices, etc., as a Jewish teacher would.

They also quote in the Acts of the Apostles, to attempt a show that the apostles kept the seventh day after the gospel dispensation began.

Yet if they do not stop to think, some others do, that they labored among a people, and in a country, where Jewish institutions and customs of religion ruled. So that all religious meetings worth their attending, except their own, were held in Jewish Synagogues, and of course on the Jewish Sabbaths; and the apostles resorted to these to teach, as both Jews and Gentiles attended meetings on that day as a matter of long established custom. I. C. WELLCOME.

BE SOMETHING.—Pursue that vocation for which you are fitted by nature; pursue it faithfully and diligently. You have a part to act, and the honor in performing that part depends upon yourself. It is sickening to see a parcel of idle boys hanging around [illegible]

THE MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.

The postal money order system is to go into effect upon November 1st. This plan is for the transmission of small sums, not less than one dollar and not more than thirty dollars. For the service to the parties interested the following fees or commissions are to be paid in advance by the party who deposits the money. For orders for sums of ten dollars and under, ten cents; over ten dollars and not exceeding twenty dollars, twenty cents; over twenty dollars and not exceeding thirty dollars, thirty cents. A blank for the amount required is to be filled up by the applicant, who must, in all cases, give his own Christian name in full; and when the Christian name of the payee is known, it should be so stated; otherwise initials may be used. The Christian names of married women must be given, and not those of their husbands. For example, Mrs. "Mary Brown" must not be described as Mrs. "William Brown." Where an order is to be sent by or to a firm, the usual firm name is all that need be given. The order is then given to the party applying for it according to number, stating the amount, but not stating to whom it is payable or who deposited the money. A request is at the bottom of the order that the Postmaster shall pay the money to the person indicated in the letter of advice. The letter of advice is sent by the Postmaster with whom the money is deposited to the Postmaster who is to pay the order, and it contains the names of the depositor and of the person to whom the money is to be paid. The latter is to receive the order from the former, and most usually it will be sent in inclosure by mail. A party who has possession of an order will be required, before payment is made to him, to state the Christian and surname of the party who sends it and his address, and also his own. This regulation is designed to prevent an unauthorized person from obtaining the amount of an order, should it, by accident, fraud, or theft, fall into improper hands. The Post-office Department will use all fair means to prevent dishonesty, but if an order is once paid to the party presenting it, through misrepresentation, the Government will not be liable to any further claim. The public are therefore cautioned as follows:—

1st, To take all means to prevent the loss of a money order.

2d, Never to send the order in the same letter with the information required on payment thereof.

3d, To be careful, on taking out a money order, to state correctly the Christian name, as well as the surname of the person in whose favor it is to be drawn.

4th, To see that the name and address of the person taking out the money order are correctly made known to the person in whose favor it is to be drawn.

Neglect of these instructions will risk the loss of the money, besides leading to delay and trouble in obtaining payment.

Under no circumstances can payment of an order be demanded on the day of its issue.

If the money is not called for within ninety days after the date of the order, there will be difficulty in obtaining it. The regular form of the order must not be clipped or mutilated. When the payee of an order desires the same to be paid to any other person, he must fill up and sign a form of indorsement, and furnish such second party with the information required to obtain payment of his order, who, upon receiving payment, must sign his name upon the face of the order. More than one indorsement is prohibited by law, and will render the order invalid and not payable.

This system, entirely new to our country, is founded upon the English plan. In Great Britain it has been very useful, and is exceedingly popular. Properly managed, it will be in the United States an accommodation which will soon be discovered to be indispensable in the management of business between different sections of the country.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

VERACITY.

The groundwork of all manly character is veracity. That virtue lies at the foundation of everything solid. How common it is to hear parents say, "I have faith in my child so long as he speaks the truth. He may have many faults, but I know he will not deceive me. I build on that confidence." They are right. It is lawful and just ground to build upon, and that is a beautiful confidence. Whatever errors temptation may betray a child into, so long as brave, open truth remains, there is something to depend upon—there is anchor-ground—there is substance at the centre. Men of the world feel so about one another. They can be tolerant and forbearing so long as their erring brother is true. If we cannot believe what others say to us we cannot act upon it; and to an immense extent, that is saying that we cannot act at all. When you undertake to benefit a lying man it is like putting your feet into the mire.

WHAT MAKES A BUSHEL.—The following table of the number of pounds of various articles to a bushel, may be of interest to our readers:

Wheat, sixty pounds.
Corn, shelled, fifty-six pounds.
Corn, on the cob, seventy pounds.
Rye, fifty-six pounds.
Oats, thirty-six pounds.
Barley, forty-six pounds.
Buckwheat, fifty-six pounds.
Irish potatoes, sixty pounds.
Sweet potatoes, fifty pounds.
Onions, fifty-seven pounds.
Beans, sixty pounds.
Bran, twenty pounds.
Clover seed, sixty pounds.
Timothy seed, forty-five pounds.
Hemp seed, forty-five pounds.
Blue-grass seed, fourteen pounds.
Dried peaches, thirty-three pounds.

BOILING WATER.—Anything will cook as soon in water boiling as slowly as possible as it will in water boiling with the greatest fury. Water under the pressure of the atmosphere and at the level of the sea, boils at two hundred and twelve degrees Fahrenheit, and as long as it is open to the air, no fire, however fierce, will heat it a single degree above this temperature. If the vessel be closed with an air-tight cover so as to increase the pressure on the surface of the liquid, it may be heated to any degree whatever. As the pressure increases with the temperature, the strength of the boiler must be increased in proportion. If the vessel be raised above the surface of the earth, the water will boil at a lower temperature than two hundred and twelve degrees Fahrenheit, as the pressure of the atmosphere is decreased by raising the vessel.

BE A MAN OF YOUR WORD.—When you promise to do a thing, do it. Be a man of principle in your word. Do not say that you intend to-day to visit your sick friend or neighbor, and then suffer the pressure of business to crowd it out of your mind. He has been watching for your coming during the week that is past. Could you have seen the bright smile that illumined his countenance when he said, "I hear his voice, and his footstep on the stairs, you would have said that the keeping of that promise was worth more to you than much choice gold. But when [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

THE HAIR.

The human hair blanched by age, fright, or disease, can be fully restored to its original natural color without dyeing it. My case illustrates this statement truthfully. My hair for seventeen years has been gradually turning white, but, lo! in one month again I have back my old auburn locks. Is it pride to want to look naturally young—look yourself? I guess not. I won't dye—I will restore. Wood's, Allen's, (etc.) Restorers work slow, imperfectly, and do injury. Hall's, of Nashua, does its work rapidly, is cooling, healing, and, in my case, positively without harm to brain, body, or general health. I know not the ingredients, but I do know, experimentally, and by observation in a score of cases, that it is a most marvellously transforming compound. Heads of sixty-five years are changed by it to the color of youth. When done, once in ten days is sufficient to use. If men and women will use such things (and they will, reader,) buy Reuben P. Hall's (Nashua, N. H.) Hair Renewer. I think he will sell to clergymen at wholesale prices.

P. S. My friends all know me still. D. T. T.

DRINKING.

Man is the only animal that drinks without being thirsty, swallowing whole quarts of water when nature does not call for it, with the alleged view of "washing out" the system. When persons are thirsty, that thirst should be fully assuaged with moderately cool water, drank (in summer time or under great bodily heat or fatigue) very leisurely, but not within half an hour of eating a regular meal. Eminent physiologists agree that drinking at meals dilutes the gastric juice, diminishes its solvent power, and retards digestion, especially if what is drank is cold. Persons in vigorous health, and who work or exercise a great part of every day in the open air, may drink a glass of water, or a single cup of weak coffee or tea, at each meal, and live to a good old age. But it is very certain that sedentary persons and invalids can not go beyond that habitually, with impunity. The wisdom of such consists in drinking nothing at all at the regular meals beyond a swallow or two at a time of some hot drink of a mild and nutritious character. Feeble persons will be benefited by hot drinks, because they warm up the body, excite the circulation, and thus promote digestion, if taken while eating, and not exceeding a cupful.

Cold water ought never to be drank within half an hour of eating; for the colder it is, the more instantly does it arrest digestion, not only by diluting the gastric juice, but by reducing its temperature, which is near one hundred degrees. Ice-water is something over thirty-two degrees, and, when swallowed, mixes with the gastric juice, and lowers its temperature, not to be elevated until heat enough has been withdrawn from the general system; and that draft must be made until the hundred degrees of warmth are attained; but some persons have so little vitality, that the body exhausts itself in its instinctive efforts to help the stomach, from which its life and strength come, and the person rises from the table with a cold chill running down the back or over the whole body. Sometimes these drafts upon the body for warmth to the stomach, are so sudden and great, that they can not be met, and instantaneous death is the result. Many a person has dropped dead at the pump or at the spring; such a result is more certain if, in addition to the person being very warm at the time of drinking, there is also great bodily fatigue. A French general recently fell dead from drinking cold water on reaching the top of a mountain over-heated and exhausted in the effort of bringing up his battalions with promptitude. Under all circumstances of heat or fatigue, the glass of water should be grasped in the hand, held half a minute, then, taking not over two swallows, rest a quarter of a minute, then two swallows more, and so on, until the thirst is nearly assuaged. It will seldom happen that a person is inclined to take over half a dozen swallows thus.

No case is remembered in the practice of a quarter of a century, where malt liquors, wines, brandies, or any alcoholic drinks whatever, have ever had a permanent good effect in improving the digestion. Apparent advantages sometimes result, but they are transient or deceptive. If there is no appetite, it is because nature has provided no gastric juice; and that is the product of nature, not of alcohol. If there is appetite but no digestive power, liquor no more supplies that power than would the lash give strength to an exhausted donkey. If torture does arouse the sinking beast, it is only that it shall fall a little later into a still greater exhaustion from which there is no recovery; so with the use of liquor and tobacco as whetters of the appetite, when at length the desire for the accustomed stimulus ceases, and the man "sickens," there is no longer a relish for the dram and the chew, and life fades apace, either in a stupor from which there is no awaking, or by wasting and uncontrollable diarrhea.—Hall's Journal of Health.

THE SCIENCE OF COOKING.

Two things are necessary to be taught, the one the value of several articles of food now left to waste by the wayside, the other how to cook. The English and Americans are notoriously the worst and most wasteful cooks in the world, and among the most prejudiced feeders. Fine wheaten bread—not half so nutritious, by the by, as that which has the bran left in, tea in unknown quantities, the best meat or none at all, a celebrated fish or two, with a score of prejudices against the cheap, the unknown, or the unusual, constitute their table of comfort. As to any makeshift, any savory preparation out of unpromising material—not one in a thousand entertains such an idea.

Assuming, then, that substances which have certain nutritious properties are fit for human food, the next question is, the true art and science of cooking. That art which shall make pleasant, cheap and wholesome dishes out of material which at present is only thrown away, is no contemptible matter in a densely populated country. And it is no such very great mystery, after all; but can be reduced, like most other things, to a few simple rules. Of these the primary and the most important is, throw nothing away, but make all your refuse into soup, and let the soup-pot be the standing institution of your kitchen. Bones, gristle, bits of old meat, left over, vegetables, dry crusts, anything and everything makes soup; so, throw them all into the "three-legged pot"—dear to Soyer—and await the result with patient trust.

Nothing need be wasted. It is only ignorance or unthought which piles to the dirt-heap at the expense of the tureen, and cannot turn material to double uses. Make soup with cold water, which extracts all the albumen and fibrine; but boil meat in hot water, which instantly coagulates the albumen and makes a kind of skin, through which the juices [illegible] with their soaps, both [illegible] and "tenders" [illegible] when they put a small piece of inferior beef to do duty. (The pot-au-feu with soup to follow, is a kind of epitome of food of excellent properties.) First there is the soup, which has not extracted all the essence of the meat, but only enough to make itself, leaving still a sufficiency in the solid. This soup is eaten with bread and flavored with herbs and vegetables. Then comes the bouilli, the inferior piece of meat, reduced to a state of luxurious softness not unlike marrow; this piece would have been uneatable if cooked in the plain roast or boiled fashion; at present it is soft, rich, nutritious, and with its garnish of carrots, or other vegetables, makes a dish which might content the most fastidious. An American laborer's wife would have boiled the meat to rags, or have roasted it to a cinder, or haply have left it half raw, and have railed at the butcher all the time of dinner for his dishonesty in supplying her with meat which no one could get their teeth through when they had it. Of course not; inferior meats need careful cooking; and that slow, cautious cooking which softens the fibres without extracting the juices, is just as possible to the poorest laborer who has three bricks and a kettle, as it is to the cook of the most luxurious family.

Again, another rule too often neglected, is to cover the vessel in which you boil or stew, so as to keep in all the "goodness," which else flies off with the steam and mingles with the soot in the chimney. Cooks rarely do this; they delight in tilting the lid on one side, and so letting the "goodness" escape. Escape it must somehow, else the cook will never be satisfied. Again, another fallacy in which she indulges, is the need of an enormous fire. Ask a friend to dinner, and order a chop and potatoes, and your cook will not be induced to let you off under thrice the amount of kitchen fire absolutely required. The little Frenchwoman who stews and simmers half a dozen choice dishes over three or four queer little holes filled with charcoal, would cook a dinner for twenty with less fuel than your cook demands for two. Everything must boil at a gallop, and roast at fever heat. Nothing can be done slowly; which however, is the very shibboleth of choice cooking.

All meat ought to be done slowly. If it is stewed it can hardly be done with too much deliberation; if it is boiled, it simply boils itself hard and tasteless if it goes too fast; if it is roasted, how often do we encounter a joint with the outside burnt to a cinder and the inside left raw! This is one of the commonest forms of "cook's misfortunes." The virtues of a slow fire are scarcely to be exaggerated; the value of cautious cooking scarcely to be overrated. By it you save fuel, in nutritious properties of the food, in flavor and delicacy of taste; while the wild roaring open fire of the ordinary kitchen but runs up a coal bill and spoils the family dinner, for no good to any one save the butcher and the coal merchant.—Ex.

INFANTS AND AIR.

Parliamentary returns show that of twenty-eight hundred infants annually sent to various hospitals to be taken care of twenty-four out of twenty-five died before they were a year old! A law was immediately passed that they should be sent to the country thereafter, when it was found that only nine out of twenty-five died the first year; that is, instead of twenty-six hundred and ninety dying, there were only four hundred and fifty, a difference of twenty-two hundred and forty.

This simple unvarnished statement of an indisputable fact, ought to impress the mind of every parent deeply, with the importance and duty of using all practicable means for securing to children the habitual breathing of the purest air possible, being careful to avoid a radical, mischievous, and most prevalent error that warm air is necessarily impure. Warmth is as essential to infantile health as pure air. How best to secure both, should be our constant study. There are more deaths under five years of age, in New York, than there are from five to sixty years, owing to three things, a want of pure air, of suitable warmth, and proper food. In these three wants are found the overwhelming majority of causes for the fearful statement above named. Let every parent in city or country, in hovel or mansion, mature these things.

To die childless, after having been once blessed with dear children, must be one of the most terrible of all calamities of the heart; yet, in countless multitudes of cases, the sufferers are the authors of their own crushing sorrows, by reason of their unpardonable ignorance or more criminal neglect.—Hall's Journal of Health.

☞ To enjoy health, eat only when hungry, take rest in sleep as soon as tired, and when not eating or resting, spend your time in such muscular activities as will be interesting, agreeable and profitable.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—One year $2.50; Six months $1.25
If not paid within six months,—One year $3.00; Six months $1.50
Five copies, to one address, six months $5.60
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months $10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

[illegible]

And the glad pilgrim rests in the mansions of home.

Olneyville, R. I. M. R. Phetteplace.

For the World's Crisis.

MY WESTERN TOUR.—NO. 8.

On the 9th of Aug., left Utica, Ill., and came by rail to Lockport, Ill., a pleasant locality upon the canal, thirty-three miles southwest of Chicago, where I was greeted by my only brother and his family, not having seen him for nearly fourteen years. How pleasant after a long absence to meet much loved friends! I enjoyed my visit here very much. My brother is at present an official member of the M. E. church of the proud and thriving village of Lockport, apparently much respected, a man of irreproachable christian character, and willing, as I trust, to "know the truth," which he has begun to investigate in good earnest. His minister feels alarmed, and has cautioned him since I left "not to be carried away with every wind of doctrine that comes along"; by which caution I hope my brother will benefit, and see by studying the Bible for himself that he has already been influenced improperly by the "wind" of popular error, and will embrace the truth. Myself and brother were the only children of my dear mother, who has been dead over thirty years. May we meet in the kingdom.

While here I visited the Lockport Cemetery, where a half brother of mine lies entombed in a most lovely spot, but the tomb is drear, and death's doings are cruel; and it is not my work to festoon the grave with flowers, and proclaim it as "the gate of heaven." To me, the resurrection morn is radiant with glory.

I passed six days very pleasantly with my brother and family, visiting different localities in the vicinity with him, and among others the State Prison, three miles distant, in Joliet, the yard and edifices of which are built of beautiful limestone taken from an extensive quarry near the prison, where a portion of the convicts labor, under the care of a well armed guard; some of them dragging a heavy chain attached to their ankles. There are five hundred and ninety-four males and twenty females in the prison at present, for various crimes, some for life, and some for shorter terms. This is an age of crime, an age of superabounding wickedness, when prisons are well filled, and multitudes are outside that ought for the safety of society to be there.

At length the time of my departure arrived, and the sad "farewell" had to be spoken. But I trust in God that the parting was not final, but that we shall meet again,—

"Meet, ne'er to sever."

On the morning of Aug. 15th I left Lockport, and my dear friends there, and came on to Chicago, the great mart of trade, the "London of the West," and on my arrival soon found myself at the "Lloyd House," on Randolph street, where I met Elder A. N. Seymour and other brethren and sisters of like precious faith, who were in the city partly on account of the great "Spiritual Convention," just closed, and to hear Eld. Grant's expose of Demonology, alias, Spiritualism, and to attend Eld. J. V. Himes' "Tabernacle meetings," commenced the night before on State street.

During the day I visited several places of interest in the city, and in the evening preached in the Western Tabernacle to a good congregation, Elds. Himes, Seymour and Smith participating in the services. Our old and well tried father in the gospel, Eld. J. V. Himes, we were glad to meet, and find in good health and spirits, determined to prosecute the good work to the end. Bro. Himes is highly "esteemed for his work's sake" in the west, as also in the east, and everywhere where "this gospel of the kingdom" has gone; and although since after due investigation he has come out fully on the side of "no immortality out of Christ," and renounced the God-dishonoring doctrine of the worst kind of eternal torture for the wicked, one of his old fellow laborers has, in order to oppose his present position and destroy his influence (as I am credibly informed), reported him as "mentally broken down," in consequence of ill health," as a reason why he has changed his position; yet it is very manifest that he was never more efficient in the cause of God than now. Let his old and new friends sustain him with a "will," and leave those who can afford to stoop to the work of traducing character or mentality, to oppose a hated doctrine, to do their work.

On my journey homeward, I called at Buchanan, Mich., and preached one evening. The cause seems to be enjoying a degree of prosperity here, although not as great as is desired by its friends. Bro. and Sr. Mansfield live and labor here to good acceptance, and are much beloved by the church. Here I visited with Bro. Himes' kind family, who are in deep sorrow on account of death's sad doings, but they sorrow not even as those that have no hope, for they look for their dead to come forth from the grave when Jesus comes. May the rich grace of God sustain the bereaved mother and afflicted family circle.

From B. I journeyed eastward, calling at the beautiful inland village of Kalamazoo, where I was entertained by Mr. Snyder, a friend formerly of Stanbridge, C. E., by whom I was made welcome. While here I formed a pleasant acquaintance with several Adventists, but did not preach, as I only stopped for a night, an [illegible] appointment [illegible].

While here I had a pleasant conversation with Marcus Hall, formerly an Elder of my acquaintance, who has since denounced for the vagaries and deceptions of "Modern Spiritualism," alias, "Demonology." I speak of the conversation as pleasant, because it was carried on in perfect friendship; but my feelings were saddened by the course and present position of my erring brother. I hope he may yet be delivered from the snare of the Devil into which I am confident he has fallen. I expressed to him my surprise that a minister of my own faith on "man's nature and destiny" should depart so entirely from his position as he had done. He told me he first doubted the doctrine of the resurrection. I asked him if he did not first doubt the truth and reliability of the Bible? He admitted he did. I further inquired if his belonging to a class of Adventists that hold in great esteem the "Spiritualism" of Ellen G. White, and allowing her "Visions" to possess equal authority with the Bible, did not explain in part and account for his present position? At first he admitted it did, but after took it back, and said he believed, from the time he experienced religion at the age of fourteen (he is now twenty-eight), that miraculous power belonged to the church. Now he accepts the frivolous doings of wonder-working demons as divine, and puts them on a par with Christ's miracles. O that he might escape from this "strong delusion."

On my rapid journey east, I laid over at Niagara Falls, to hear the cataract's mighty roar, and view the grand in nature. It was an interesting sight. As I gazed, I thought of the "voice of many waters, and the voice of many thunderings, saying, Alleluia!" soon to be heard, when the Lord God Omnipotent shall reign. From Niagara's unequalled scenery I came on, conveyed by Nahum's flaming steed, running like the lightning through a most lovely country of orchards and well cultivated and valuable farms, to Tribe's Hill, town of Amsterdam, N. Y., thirty-five miles west of Albany, where I found a home with Bro. Dwight and family, who, with the exception of Sr. J. C. Hall, is alone in matters of faith in the midst of a multitude. The visit was pleasant, and I trust mutually profitable.

Arrived on Friday night; found myself sick by the fatigue of the journey. Preached on the Sabbath to a respectable congregation at the Lutheran church, which the pastor, Mr. Wheeler, kindly and willingly offered for the purpose, and was present himself and treated me with perfect kindness. How unlike the treatment received in some other places. May God bless him and his charge.

From this point my way was onward by Albany to Springfield, Ms., where I lay over and visited the musket manufactory and Arsenal, the sight of which can but call to mind what Joel wrote,—"Prepare war," etc. It is now done. From this factory alone, when in full operation, a thousand guns a day are issued. Enough to equip a large army is in the Arsenal. Next I visited the Wilbraham Camp, and heard its heavenly songs, and met a host. But I will not describe; I enjoyed it much, although sick.

Friday night preached in East Boston, and was attacked with an old complaint, chronic rheumatism, from which I have suffered since, much of the time sick, and all of the time lame, until now (Sept. 28th), which is my apology for the delay of this communication.

To end the narrative, I reached home four weeks to-day, thankful to find my family well. Thanks to all my brethren with whom I met in "My Western Tour," which is now in the past. Pray for me. C. P. Dow.

North Stanbridge, C. E.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT OF THE R. I. AND EAST CONN. QUARTERLY CONF.

Lafayette, Oct. 5th, 1864. Conference met according to appointment, Wednesday, at 2 o'clock P. M. As there were not preachers and delegates enough to form a quorum, the afternoon was spent in social worship. At 8 o'clock, preaching by Bro. M. R. Phetteplace. Thursday, 9 A. M. Met for business. Bro. M. R. Phetteplace in the chair. The Clerk being absent, Bro. E. B. Card was chosen Clerk pro tem. Minutes of the last conference read and accepted.

Reports of delegates. E. B. Card reported the church at River Point. Interest low as a church. Some striving for the kingdom. Sunday school prospering—numbers about forty scholars. Preaching last quarter by the following brethren: J. D. Brown, William Devereaux.

Bro. John Brown reported the church at Lafayette. Some trying to gain the kingdom. Interest rather low. Have preaching two Sundays in a month by E. R. Wood. Bro. J. Bellows and Bro. Perry had preached to them since last conference. Sunday school numbers twenty-four scholars; not so much interest as there had been.

Rocky Brook church reported by letter. Had nothing unusual to report apart from this, that our conference meetings seem to be increasing in interest,—disposition to work earnestly on the part of some, praying and laboring for each other's welfare and the salvation of sinners. We have meetings on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Thursday evenings devoted to prayer exclusively. Sunday school continues interesting; averages about sixty scholars. Preaching the last quarter from the following brethren: J. T. Dixon, C. P. Thompson, Wm. Shepherd, S. W. Bishop, and J. D. Brown. Those who are striving to maintain worship are endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace, keeping aloof from questions that engender strife and divisions. C. F. Dixon, Clerk.

Bro. E. R. Wood reported the church at Exeter. Some striving for the kingdom. Some had grown cold,—felt the need of living more humble,—determined to live at the feet of Jesus.

Reports of preaching brethren. Bro. E. Bellows.—Been mostly at home, where he could go out Sunday morning and back at night. Been with the church at Abington, Danielsonville, Carolina Mills, Westerly, and Rocky Brook. Felt the need of more laborers. Hoped the Lord would raise up young men to the ministry. Thought we had them among us, and hoped the Lord would send them out. Felt the work of the Lord must go on.

Bro. P. C. Rodman had not been to Conference in some time. Glad to be there and see the brethren and sisters trying to do the will of the Lord. Had preached some at Ashaway and Curtis Corner. Felt that God blessed him.

Bro. M. R. Phetteplace. Been at Chepachet, Chestnut Hill most of the time. At the former place the church belongs to the Free Will Baptist Association. Thought if the church did not go to work, outsiders would take it out of their hands. Sunday school large and interesting.

Bro. E. R. Wood and A. Taylor were chosen to act with the Chair to arrange the preaching for this conference. Adjourned until Friday, 9 A. M., for business. 2 P. M., preaching by Bro. E. Bellows, from 1 Pet. 1: 12. 6 P. M., met for social worship. 8 P. M., preaching by Bro. P. C. Rodman, from Rev. 22: 14.

Friday, 9 A. M. Met for business. Bro. Reynolds arrived, and reported the Central church. Thought they were waking up. Saw signs of sinners being converted, and felt encouraged. Bro. J. Northup reported his labors. Loved the service of the Lord. Enjoyed himself well. Been at Clark's Mills, Westerly, Curtis Corner, and Central. Found some laboring and some cold. Thought there were signs of the Central church coming up to the help of the Lord.

Bro. Peter Noka thought he had been rather indolent in the cause of God. Been at Providence, at New Market Hall; had good time there. Been at Worcester. Felt the Lord had a people there. Glad he belonged to the Lord. Felt determined to do more.

Bro. Benj. Reynolds had not much of interest to report, but was glad to be there. Felt like going on, and determined to do more by way of preaching. The churches at Providence and Westerly are disorganized.

Adjourned until 2 o'clock. At 10 A. M., preaching by Bro. Northup, from Isa. 53: 22. At 2 P. M., met for business. The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That this conference employ an evangelist to preach among the churches belonging to this conference, and labor in any and all places wherever the door may open.

Resolved, That the evangelist, and other members of this conference, and all others who are interested in the propagation of the gospel of the kingdom, solicit subscriptions for the Conference Fund.

Resolved, That the usual collection taken up for the Tract Fund be used to help support the evangelist.

Resolved, That the Clerk correspond with the churches to see what they will do towards supporting the evangelist.

Resolved, That this conference appeal to the brethren and sisters scattered throughout the limits of this conference, to aid in supporting the evangelist, the same to be published in the World's Crisis.

Bro. E. Bellows was chosen for the evangelist, with the privilege of sending a substitute when he thought best.

3 P. M. Preaching by Bro. Peter Noka, from John 14: 1. 6 P. M., met for social worship. 7 o'clock, preaching by Bro. M. R. Phetteplace, from Titus 2: 11; after which a collection was taken up for the Conference Fund, amounting to eight dollars and seventy-nine cents ($8.79).

Thus closed an interesting and profitable conference. Adjourned to meet at Danielsonville the first Wednesday in January, at 2 o'clock P. M.

Members present: M. R. Phetteplace, E. Bellows, Benj. Reynolds, Jos. Northup, Peter Noka, P. C. Rodman.

A. C. Greene, Secretary.

For the World's Crisis.

HEAVENLY PITY.

Those of us that are parents know the love and sympathy that exists between us and our children. And what a cheering thought amid earth's trials that our Heavenly Father, "Our Father which art in heaven," has the same love and regard for us, not only the same, but a far greater love. He has loved us with an "everlasting love." He has so loved us as to give his only Son to die for us, "the just for the unjust." "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." But God so loved us (not that we loved him, but that he loved us), as to give his Son to be the propitiation for our sins Therefore we, guilty before God, rebels to his government, condemned to death, may live through him." Truly we can exclaim with the Apostle, "Herein is love!"

O brethren and sisters, do we know and beleive the love that God hath to us? Do we dwell in love? If so, God dwelleth in us and we in him. What an exalted position do we occupy, even in this world; far more honorable than the king upon his throne. We sustain relationship to Jesus Christ, the King of kings and Lord of Lords (by doing his Father's will), as brothers, sisters and mothers; and if we belong to him, if we are Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. And the promise to Abraham was that he should be heir of the world, not through the law, or by works but through the righteousness of faith.

Many suppose that we are a poor, deluded people; but they know not our great riches; they know not the riches of his goodness; they know not the riches of his glory, which he has made known in the vessels of mercy which he had afore prepared unto glory. They know not that according to the riches of his grace we may have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins. The eyes of their understanding have not been enlightened; they know not what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints.

Paul says that in the ages to come, God, our Father, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, will "shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." Paul knew something about it, for he preached these "unsearchable riches" to the Gentiles. Yes, our Father made known the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is "Christ in you the hope of glory."

Therefore, ye desponding ones, cheer up! Ye poor of the world, remember our Father will supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus. Ye persecuted ones, can you not with Moses esteem the "reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt?" O, what a rich Father! Let us remember that he pitieth those that fear him as we pity our children. Ye afflicted ones, he knows just how to afflict, just how to chastise, just how to deliver out of temptation.

Let us ever be in submission to his will, draw near to him who wields the rod, ever take hold of Father's hand, and go wherever he leads. If we let go and try to go alone, we fall. May we ever remember Father knows best. Our dear companions and little ones may fall by our side, but he does not afflict willingly, but for our profit. Let us remember

[illegible]

Bless the Lord! my heart cries out in the language of Paul, "O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out." Perhaps he saw we loved these darling ones more than we did him, or more than we ought; so he took them to make room in our hearts for an increase of love to him.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us love God with all the heart, soul, might, mind and strength, as he has required us. I love him, and I want the poor sinner to love him too. May some more be constrained in view of his love to love him in return? My prayer is, Lord, deepen thy work in the heart of every disciple, and may we be united as workers together in pointing the lost and perishing to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world.

Time is short, Jesus will soon come, and what we do must be done quickly. May our hearts be filled with the Spirit of God, that we may realize the times in which we live, and when Jesus comes have an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom.

Worcester. L. Maria Brittan.

For the World's Crisis.

SONG.

Air.—Uncle Sam's Farm.

Of all the glorious promises which in the word we find,
The promise of a kingdom is the richest of the kind;
Its heirs are true believers, no others can be found,
Who are the heirs of promise to Canaan's happy ground.

Chorus.

Then come to Christ, come to Christ, make no delay,
Comply with the conditions, the word of God obey;
For if you are in Christ, you sure are Abram's seed,
And heirs with him to Canaan, according to the deed.

If you the chart examine, the bound'ries you will find,
Which mark this land of promise and draw a perfect line;
It also gives directions how you this land may gain;
The conditions all are easy, the way is straight and plain.

The gospel of the kingdom you surely must believe;
'Twas first preached unto Abraham, and you must it receive;
Salvation's mighty plan is, Repent, and be baptized,
And in the truth continue, and by you e'er be prized.

If you endure all hardness as soldiers of the cross,
All trials and temptations, esteeming them no loss,
And counting not your life dear that you with Christ may reign,
You surely will the kingdom and all its joys obtain.

Butte des Morts, Wis. Mary L. Pratt.

For the World's Crisis.

INWARD AND OUTWARD VIEW OF MISERY AND HAPPINESS.

We are all passing through the changing and trying scenes of life. And it has been said that this world is a world of tears and misery. But allowing this to be true, the God who made us has granted to his humble offspring all things needful to countermand those complaints of misery. The inconveniences of life, which call forth many bitter complaints, are indispensable requisites to happiness. Hunger gives a relish for food, and renders it satisfying. Pain prepares us for the appreciation of ease. Fatigue and toil are needful to constitute cessation from labor and luxury. Sickness prepares the appetite for the enjoyment of health; and so we may look throughout nature's domain, and learn from every page that every thing is known and appreciated by its opposite.

To realize the full value of any one mercy, we must suffer its privation. We cannot value true and unwavering friendship except by the loss of friends; neither can we duly estimate and fully realize the sweets of domestic life, except by their deprivation. Had we no afflictions, no pain, no disappointment, no blasted hope, etc., life would become cold and fruitless, and for its boasted pleasures we should lose all relish.

Thus it is that we have a mixture of weal and woe in alternation. Yet the goodness of God's love and favor shines upon every hand. All that transpires here below (sin excepted), is designed by our Creator for our best good. How unwise, then, are all those who forsake God, and place their confidence where they will surely reap disappointment. "Be not weary in well doing." Let not the true disciple of Jesus ever be disheartened or discouraged at the trials and crosses he may be called to bear; but steadfastly, perseveringly, press forward toward the mark of the prize of the high calling with the courage of a christian soldier, and in due season he will reap if he faint not.

Happy is the man who has an unshaken trust in God. For God only, and God alone, can give us that consolation that we stand in need of. Trust, therefore, in the Lord Jehovah, for in him is everlasting strength, and he will never leave nor forsake thee.

"Though troubles assail me and dangers surround,
Though thorns in my pathway may ever be found,
Still let me not fear, for thou ever wilt be
My God and my guide while I lean upon thee."

J. Elkins.

For the World's Crisis.

NEW TESTAMENT SABBATH.

There seems to be a considerable force in shrewd management of a subject where evidence is lacking to sustain argument. Thus I notice that on the Sabbath question its advocates array the texts in the four gospels, which speak of the Sabbath, to make the appearance to unreflecting minds that it proves the duty of observing the seventh day under the christian dispensation.

But a moment's reflection reminds one that Christ lived and taught under the Mosaic, or law dispensation, and kept the law—taught those who came to him to keep it,—to offer gifts and sacrifices, etc., as a Jewish teacher would.

They also quote in the Acts of the Apostles, to attempt a show that the apostles kept the seventh day after the gospel dispensation began.

Yet if they do not stop to think, some others do, that they labored among a people, and in a country, where Jewish institutions and customs of religion ruled. So that all religious meetings worth their attending, except their own, were held in Jewish Synagogues, and of course on the Jewish Sabbaths; and the apostles resorted to these to teach, as both Jews and Gentiles attended meetings on that day as a matter of long established custom. L. C. Wellcome.

Be Something.—Pursue that vocation for which you are fitted by nature; pursue it faithfully and diligently. You have a part to act, and the honor in performing that part depends upon yourself. It is sickening to see a parcel of idle boys hanging around a father, spending the money which he has earned by his industry, without attempting to do any thing for themselves. Don't be a drone. Be something, should be your motto. Don't depend upon Fortune, for she is a fickle support, which often fails when you lean upon her with the greatest confidence. Trust to your own exertions.

THE MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.

The postal money order system is to go into effect upon November 1st. This plan is for the transmission of small sums, not less than one dollar and not more than thirty dollars. For the service to the parties interested the following fees or commissions are to be paid in advance by the party who deposits the money. For orders for sums of ten dollars and under, ten cents; over ten dollars and not exceeding twenty dollars, twenty cents; over twenty dollars and not exceeding thirty dollars, thirty cents. A blank for the amount required is to be filled up by the applicant, who must, in all cases, give his own Christian name in full; and when the Christian name of the payee is known, it should be so stated; otherwise initials may be used. The Christian names of married women must be given, and not those of their husbands. For example, Mrs. "Mary Brown" must not be described as Mrs. "William Brown." Where an order is to be sent by or to a firm, the usual firm name is all that need be given. The order is then given to the party applying for it according to number, stating the amount, but not stating to whom it is payable or who deposited the money. A request is at the bottom of the order that the Postmaster shall pay the money to the person indicated in the letter of advice. The letter of advice is sent by the Postmaster with whom the money is deposited to the Postmaster who is to pay the order, and it contains the names of the depositor and of the person to whom the money is to be paid. The latter is to receive the order from the former, and most usually it will be sent in inclosure by mail. A party who has possession of an order will be required, before payment is made to him, to state the Christian and surname of the party who sends it and his address, and also his own. This regulation is designed to prevent an unauthorized person from obtaining the amount of an order, should it, by accident, fraud, or theft, fall into improper hands. The Post-office Department will use all fair means to prevent dishonesty, but if an order is once paid to the party presenting it, through misrepresentation, the Government will not be liable to any further claim. The public are therefore cautioned as follows:—

1st, To take all means to prevent the loss of a money order.

2d, Never to send the order in the same letter with the information required on payment thereof.

3d, To be careful, on taking out a money order, to state correctly the Christian name, as well as the surname of the person in whose favor it is to be drawn.

4th, To see that the name and address of the person taking out the money order are correctly made known to the person in whose favor it is to be drawn.

Neglect of these instructions will risk the loss of the money, besides leading to delay and trouble in obtaining payment.

Under no circumstances can payment of an order be demanded on the day of its issue.

If the money is not called for within ninety days after the date of the order, there will be difficulty in obtaining it. The regular form of the order must not be clipped or mutilated. When the payee of an order desires the same to be paid to any other person, he must fill up and sign a form of indorsement, and furnish such second party with the information required to obtain payment of his order, who, upon receiving payment, must sign his name upon the face of the order. More than one indorsement is prohibited by law, and will render the order invalid and not payable.

This system, entirely new to our country, is founded upon the English plan. In Great Britain it has been very useful, and is exceedingly popular. Properly managed, it will be in the United States an accommodation which will soon be discovered to be indispensable in the management of business between different sections of the country.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

VERACITY.

The groundwork of all manly character is veracity. That virtue lies at the foundation of everything solid. How common it is to hear parents say, "I have faith in my child so long as he speaks the truth. He may have many faults, but I know he will not deceive me. I build on that confidence." They are right. It is lawful and just ground to build upon; and that is a beautiful confidence. Whatever errors temptation may betray a child into, so long as brave, open truth remains, there is something to depend upon—there is anchor-ground—there is substance at the centre. Men of the world feel so about one another. They can be tolerant and forbearing so long as their erring brother is true. If we cannot believe what others say to us we cannot act upon it; and to an immense extent, that is saying that we cannot act at all. When you undertake to benefit a lying man it is like putting your feet into the mire.

What Makes a Bushel.—The following table of the number of pounds of various articles to a bushel, may be of interest to our readers:

Wheat, sixty pounds.
Corn, shelled, fifty-six pounds.
Corn, on the cob, seventy pounds.
Rye, fifty-six pounds.
Oats, thirty-six pounds.
Barley, forty-six pounds.
Buckwheat, fifty-six pounds.
Irish potatoes, sixty pounds.
Sweet potatoes, fifty pounds.
Onions, fifty-seven pounds.
Beans, sixty pounds.
Bran, twenty pounds.
Clover seed, sixty pounds.
Timothy seed, forty-five pounds.
Hemp seed, forty-five pounds.
Blue-grass seed, fourteen pounds.
Dried peaches, thirty-three pounds.

Boiling Water.—Anything will cook as soon in water boiling as slowly as possible as it will in water boiling with the greatest fury. Water under the pressure of the atmosphere and at the level of the sea, boils at two hundred and twelve degrees Fahrenheit, and as long as it is open to the air, no fire, however fierce, will heat it a single degree above this temperature. If the vessel be closed with an air-tight cover so as to increase the pressure on the surface of the liquid, it may be heated to any degree whatever. As the pressure increases with the temperature, the strength of the boiler must be increased in proportion. If the vessel be raised above the surface of the earth, the water will boil at a lower temperature than two hundred and twelve degrees Fahrenheit, as the pressure of the atmosphere is decreased by raising the vessel.

Be a Man of your Word.—When you promise to do a thing, do it. Be a man of principle in your word. Do not say that you intend to-day to visit your sick friend or neighbor, and then suffer the pressure of business to crowd it out of your mind. He has been watching for your coming during the week that is past. Could you have seen the bright smile that illumined his countenance when he said, "I hear his voice, and his footstep on the stairs," you would have said that the keeping of that promise was worth more to you than much choice gold. But when the vision had disappeared, and you came not, there was pity and sorrow, even for you, written upon those features. If you wish to do good, and wield an influence for truth, be a man of your word.

☞ The charitable give out at the door, and God puts in at the window.

Hygiene.

[illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

THE HAIR.

The human hair blanched by age, fright, or disease, can be fully restored to its original natural color without dyeing it. My case illustrates this statement truthfully. My hair for seventeen years has been gradually turning white, but, lo! in one month again I have back my old auburn locks. Is it pride to want to look naturally young—look yourself? I guess not. I won't dye—I will restore. Wood's, Allen's, (etc.) Restorers work slow, imperfectly, and do injury. Hall's, of Nashua, does its work rapidly, is cooling, healing, and, in my case, positively without harm to brain, body, or general health. I know not the ingredients, but I do know, experimentally, and by observation in a score of cases, that it is a most marvellously transforming compound. Heads of sixty-five years are changed by it to the color of youth. When done, once in ten days is sufficient to use. If men and women will use such things (and they will, reader,) buy Reuben P. Hall's (Nashua, N. H.) Hair Renewer. I think he will sell to clergymen at wholesale prices.

P. S. My friends all know me still.

D. T. T.

DRINKING.

Man is the only animal that drinks without being thirsty, swallowing whole quarts of water when nature does not call for it, with the alleged view of "washing out" the system. When persons are thirsty, that thirst should be fully assuaged with moderately cool water, drank (in summer time or under great bodily heat or fatigue) very leisurely, but not within half an hour of eating a regular meal. Eminent physiologists agree that drinking at meals dilutes the gastric juice, diminishes its solvent power, and retards digestion, especially if what is drank is cold. Persons in vigorous health, and who work or exercise a great part of every day in the open air, may drink a glass of water, or a single cup of weak coffee or tea, at each meal, and live to a good old age. But it is very certain that sedentary persons and invalids can not go beyond that habitually, with impunity. The wisdom of such consists in drinking nothing at all at the regular meals beyond a swallow or two at a time of some hot drink of a mild and nutritious character. Feeble persons will be benefited by hot drinks, because they warm up the body, excite the circulation, and thus promote digestion, if taken while eating, and not exceeding a cupful.

Cold water ought never to be drank within half an hour of eating; for the colder it is, the more instantly does it arrest digestion, not only by diluting the gastric juice, but by reducing its temperature, which is near one hundred degrees. Ice-water is something over thirty-two degrees, and, when swallowed, mixes with the gastric juice, and lowers its temperature, not to be elevated until heat enough has been withdrawn from the general system; and that draft must be made until the hundred degrees of warmth are attained: but some persons have so little vitality, that the body exhausts itself in its instinctive efforts to help the stomach, from which its life and strength come; and the person rises from the table with a cold chill running down the back or over the whole body. Sometimes these drafts upon the body for warmth to the stomach, are so sudden and great, that they can not be met, and instantaneous death is the result. Many a person has dropped dead at the pump or at the spring; such a result is more certain if, in addition to the person being very warm at the time of drinking, there is also great bodily fatigue. A French general recently fell dead from drinking cold water on reaching the top of a mountain over-heated and exhausted in the effort of bringing up his battallions with promptitude. Under all circumstances of heat or fatigue, the glass of water should be grasped in the hand, held half a minute, then, taking not over two swallows, rest a quarter of a minute; then two swallows more, and so on, until the thirst is nearly assuaged. It will seldom happen that a person is inclined to take over half a dozen swallows thus.

No case is remembered in the practice of a quarter of a century, where malt liquors, wines, brandies, or any alcoholic drinks whatever, have ever had a permanent good effect in improving the digestion. Apparent advantages sometimes result, but they are transient or deceptive. If there is no appetite, it is because nature has provided no gastric juice; and that is the product of nature, not of alcohol. If there is appetite but no digestive power, liquor no more supplies that power than would the lash give strength to an exhausted donkey. If torture does arouse the sinking beast, it is only that it shall fall a little later into a still greater exhaustion from which there is no recovery; so with the use of liquor and tobacco as whetters of the appetite, when at length the desire for the accustomed stimulus ceases, and the man "sickens;" there is no longer a relish for the dram and the chew, and life fades apace, either in a stupor from which there is no awaking, or by wasting and uncontrollable diarrhea.—Hall's Journal of Health.

THE SCIENCE OF COOKING.

Two things are necessary to be taught, the one the value of several articles of food now left to waste by the wayside; the other how to cook. The English and Americans are notoriously the worst and most wasteful cooks in the world, and among the most prejudiced feeders. Fine wheaten bread—not half so nutritious, by the by, as that which has the bran left in, tea in unknown quantities, the best meat or none at all, a celebrated fish or two, with a score of prejudices against the cheap, the unknown, or the unusual, constitute their table of comfort. As to any make-shift, any savory preparation out of unpromising material—not one in a thousand entertains such an idea.

Assuming, then, that substances which have certain nutritious properties are fit for human food, the next question is, the true art and science of cooking. That art which shall make pleasant, cheap and wholesome dishes out of material which at present is only thrown away, is no contemptible matter in a densely populated country. And it is no such very great mystery, after all; but can be reduced, like most other things, to a few simple rules. Of these the primary and the most important is, throw nothing away, but make all your refuse into soap, and let the soup-pot be the standing institution of your kitchen. Bones, gristle, bits of old meat, left over, vegetables, dry crusts, anything and everything makes soup; so, throw them all into the "three-legged pot"—dear to Soyer—and await the result with patient trust.

Nothing need be wasted. It is only ignorance or unthought which piles to the dirt-heap at the expense of the tureen, and cannot turn material to double uses. Make soup with cold water, which extracts all the albumen and fibrine; but boil meat in hot water, which instantly coagulates the albumen, and makes a kind of skin, through which the juices do not escape. Soup, with the addition of fried bread, supplies all the wants of the human stomach. Here we have the essence of meat, with the salt and albumen of the vegetables; while the mastication process so needful for digestion, is carried on by means of the fried bread, which also gives the [illegible] otherwise wanting. The French know what they are about with their soups, both "gras" and "maigres," and are wiser than we, when they put a small piece of inferior beef to double duty. (The pot-au-feu with bouilli to follow, is a kind of epitome of food of excellent properties.) First there is the soup, which has not extracted all the essence of the meat, but only enough to make itself, leaving a sufficiency in the solid. This soup is eaten with bread and flavored with herbs and vegetables. Then comes the bouilli, the inferior piece of meat, stewed down into a state of luxurious softness not unlike marrow; which piece would have been uneatable if cooked in the plain roast or boiled fashion; at present it is soft, rich, nutritious, and with its garnish of carrots or other vegetables, makes a dish which might content the most fastidious. An American laborer's wife would have boiled the meat to rags, or have roasted it to a cinder, or haply have left it half raw, and have railed at the butcher all the time of dinner for his dishonesty in supplying her with meat which no one could get their teeth through when they had it. Of course not; inferior meats need careful cooking; and that slow, cautious cooking which softens the fibres without extracting the juices, is just as possible to the poorest laborer who has three bricks and a kettle, as it is to the cook of the most luxurious family.

Again, another rule too often neglected, is to cover the vessel in which you boil or stew, so as to keep in all the "goodness," which else flies off with the steam and mingles with the soot in the chimney. Cooks rarely do this; they delight in tilting the lid on one side, and so letting the "goodness" escape. Escape it must somehow, else the cook will never be satisfied. Again, another fallacy in which she indulges, is the need of an tremendous fire. Ask a friend to dinner, and order a chop and potatoes, and your cook will not be induced to let you off under thrice the amount of kitchen fire absolutely required. The little Frenchwoman who stews and simmers half a dozen choice dishes over three or four queer little holes filled with charcoal, would cook a dinner for twenty with less fuel than your cook demands for two. Everything must boil at a gallop, and roast at fever heat. Nothing can be done slowly; which however is the very shibboleth of choice cooking.

All meat ought to be done slowly. If it is stewed it can hardly be done with too much deliberation; if it is boiled, it simply boils itself hard and tasteless if it goes too fast; if it is roasted, how often do we encounter a joint with the outside burnt to a cinder and the inside left raw! This is one of the commonest forms of "cook's misfortunes." The virtues of a slow fire are scarcely to be exaggerated; the value of cautious cooking scarcely to be overrated. By it we save fuel, in nutritious properties of the food, in flavor and delicacy of taste; while the wild roaring open fire of the ordinary kitchen but runs up a coal bill and spoils the family dinner, for no good to any one save the butcher and the coal merchant.—Ex.

INFANTS AND AIR.

Parliamentary returns show that of twenty-eight hundred infants annually sent to various hospitals to be taken care of twenty-four out of twenty-five died before they were a year old! A law was immediately passed that they should be sent to the country thereafter, when it was found that only nine out of twenty-five died the first year; that is, instead of twenty-six hundred and ninety dying, there were only four hundred and fifty, a difference of twenty-two hundred and forty.

This simple unvarnished statement of an indisputable fact, ought to impress the mind of every parent deeply, with the importance and duty of using all practicable means for securing to children the habitual breathing of the purest air possible; being careful to avoid a radical, mischievous, and most prevalent error that warm air is necessarily impure. Warmth is as essential to infantile health as pure air. How best to secure both, should be our constant study. There are more deaths under five years of age, in New York, than there are from five to sixty years, owing to three things, a want of pure air, of suitable warmth, and proper food. In these three ways are found the overwhelming majority of causes for the fearful statement above named. Let every parent in city or country, in hovel or mansion, mature these things.

To die childless, after having been once blessed with dear children, must be one of the most terrible of all calamities of the heart; yet, in countless multitudes of cases, the sufferers are the authors of their own crushing sorrows, by reason of their unpardonable ignorance or more criminal neglect.—Hall's Journal of Health.

☞ To enjoy health, eat only when hungry, take rest in sleep as soon as tired, and when not eating or resting, spend your time in such muscular activities as will be interesting, agreeable and profitable.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—{ One year .... $2.50 / Six months .... $1.25 }
If not paid within six months,—{ One year .... $3.00 / Six months .... $1.50 }
Five copies, to one address, six months $9.00
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months $16.00
—same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on a single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matter not intended for publication, write Private.

Over all business matters, write Business.

Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

Postage.—[illegible]

Clubs.—[illegible]

Canada Subscribers [illegible]

Subscriptions commence [illegible]

All communications [illegible] The Young Pilgrim, Boston, Mass.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. [illegible]

5. [illegible] to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 475. BOSTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 8.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

WHAT OF THE NIGHT?

BY LORD KINLOCH.

Watchman, what of the night?
Clears not the darkened sky?
Come there no signs of light?
Is not the morning nigh?
"Darkness is all around;
Nowhere may light be found,
Save from the watcher's fire;
Thou must again inquire.

Watchman, what of the night?
Long I have lain awake,
Yearning for fair and bright,
Finding no dawn to break.
"Darkness begins to fly,
Though but to watcher's eye;
Still must the night-lamp burn,
Yet thou may'st soon return."

Watchman, what of the night?
Peaceful now is thy state;
Long as my God deems right,
Quiet my soul will wait.
"Up from the eastern hills
Rays are like rushing rills;
Up! from thy darkness spring;
Up! and thine anthem sing."
—The Catholic.

For the World's Crisis.

REDEMPTION.

God's original plan failing in the peopling of the earth with a holy progeny, over whom the Father of mankind was to reign forever, he devises another scheme through the promised "seed of the woman" in his infinite love to our race. Thereby he inflicts a judgment deserved upon Satan, the enemy of God and "man," that he was but little aware of in all his wisdom.

Satan deceived Eve, the mother of mankind. Jehovah says to him, "Because thou hast done this, . . . her seed shall bruise thy head." The woman's "sorrow and conception" both were to be "greatly multiplied," and thereby a great number of children were to be born in a sinful world, and where vanity of life and death should cut off the generation, that out of the great multitude there might be saved and gathered in one all that believe, and are found worthy as the elect and chosen of God to reign in life under a new head, even the promised Redeemer. The lost of Adam's race are counted "the seed of the serpent," "the children of the Devil," because they are "the children of disobedience" like the Devil, and because they are "led captive by him at his will." Therefore the Devil is "the father" of all unbelievers and rebels against God, and with him they must have their final portion in perdition.

Through the promised seed, which is Jesus Christ, God's Son from heaven, there is promised the redemption of man from under the dominion of death and the grave. John 3: 14–17. While heathen philosophy without the light of the gospel bases man's future existence upon an inherent immortality in man which does not die, the Scriptures ground it on a faith directly the reverse; namely, the resurrection of the body from the grave. 1 Cor. 15: 18, 19, 32.

If, therefore, there is to be no resurrection from the dead of the defunct body, man's future existence in any sense or condition whatever is unrevealed, and never will occur. Prove then to the christian world the non-resurrection of man's body from the grave and the dust where the curse leaves it, and they have no hope of future life or reward to soul; spirit, or body.

In the redemption in Jesus Christ, all mankind in due time are to be delivered from the Adamic law and its penalty, under which they are shut up and suffer, and be brought back to life again. In this particular Christ is "the Savior of all men." 1 Tim. 4: 10. This is proven from the following incontrovertible scriptures;—"As by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto the justification of life."—Rom. 5: 18.

The "one offence" and "condemnation" which "came upon all men" is stated thus: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men."—Rom. 5: 12. "All" in this verse is universal; so it is in verse 18. "By the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation." This includes the whole of Adam's posterity, as well as v. 12. So also does the latter clause of the verse: "By the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." Who will dare say not?

By the redemption in Christ there is to be then a universal salvation of all men from under the condemnation of the violated law of Adam and its penalty. This is right and just, inasmuch as we are put on probation for ourselves for another world. The same doctrine is taught in the following still more explicit language: "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." "All" in the first sentence includes the whole race of Adam, old and young, righteous and wicked; and "all" in the latter includes the whole number also. And as by one, they came down to death, by the other man they are raised from the dead. Thus Christ is to be "the Savior of all men" from under the Adamic condemnation and death, back to the Adamic life.

While Jesus Christ is "the Savior of all men" in this sense, he is "specially of those that believe." To them he becomes "the author of eternal salvation" by the bestowment of that "eternal life" he has promised "unto all them that obey him."

Here are two classes of Adam's race to whom He is to impart immortality and eternal life.

1st. Believers. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."—Mark 16: 16. "If by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more THEY which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ."—Rom. 5: 17.

Those who are to "reign in life" are "they" only (1st) "which receive abundance of grace." Who are they? Believers. "The elect, according to the election of grace," are believers; for grace elects only those of faith. "By grace are ye saved through faith."—Eph. 2: 8, 9. (2nd.) They which "receive the gift of righteousness." And who are they? Believers. 2 Cor. 5: 21; Rom. 4: 3, 22–24; Rom. 10: 6–10; 1 John, 5th chap. These will, on their resurrection and resuscitation to life, have imparted to them immediately immortality by a mysterious and glorious change. 1 Cor. 15: 45–58.

2nd. The second class to whom is to be imparted immortality and eternal life are—infants.

A Roman Catholic Bishop said in my hearing not long since that "there are two ways to heaven. 1st. Innocence baptized. 2nd. Penance." Now both of these are by works. Children of course, in his estimation, unbaptized, are unsaved. And penance takes the precedence of faith.

I regard that there is only one way to heaven; and that is through Jesus Christ, "the way, the truth, and the life." Believers are saved through the redemption that is in Jesus Christ, and faith. Infants are saved through the redemption that is in Jesus Christ, and innocence. A little child is as innocent as the angels, having "not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression." "Nevertheless death has reigned even over them," because "by one man's sin death passed upon all." That little children are fit in their innocence and undeveloped character for heaven is evident by the Savior's language. "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

From this we learn that little children need no conversion; and second, the language includes the whole class,—not as some little children, but as the class. Their moral culture and instruction, like ours, will be developed more and more in the world to come. Again Jesus says, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." As Dr. Adam Clarke says: "The kingdom of heaven will be greatly constituted of little children." This is nothing strange, when we think of the multitude which die. And finally, "their angels" are in heaven, who are their ministering spirits, as they too are the heirs of salvation.

Christ delivers them from under the condemnation and death they die in Adam, and brings them back to life; and as they are innocent of any sin, he saves and redeems them forever. They do not fall nor die in their spiritual Father of the everlasting age, and they are placed beyond the power of sinning! Thanks be to God for this salvation for our little ones.

"Blind infidelity, turn pale and die,
Beneath this stone four infant children lie.
Say, are they saved, or lost?
If death's by sin, they sinned, for they are here.
If heaven's by works, in heaven they can't appear.
Revere the sacred word, the knot's untied.
They died, for Adam sinned;
They live, for Jesus died."

Thus beautifully and scripturally on the tombstone over four little innocent children's graves is written an epitaph which contains the hope of these little ones. Ye afflicted and sorrowing mothers, who refuse to "be comforted for your children, because they are not; thus saith the Lord: Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the Lord; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy."

There is another class of the human family who do not receive eternal salvation. Jesus Christ raises them to life, and from under the condemnation of the Adamic law and its penalty; but he does not become to them "the author of eternal salvation," because he is only such to "all them that obey him." These are the wicked, impenitent, unbelieving, and rebellious. They are raised from the dead to life again, but under condemnation. Not for Adam's sin, but for their own guilt, disobedience, and rejection of the mercy of God. John 5: 28, 29. "All . . . shall come forth, . . . they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

We have quoted the scripture which declares "THEY which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ." All do not receive the gift of righteousness, of Adam's race. This, the following scriptures attest: "For as by one man's disobedience many (mark how careful the scripture is guarded here!) were made sinners." Not "all." Children were not made sinners. They have "not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression." While "all" were brought under the condemnation of death, the judgment passed for Adam's sin. All were not made sinners. "So by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous." Rom. 5: 19. Mark. Not all; for that would not be true. Unbelievers are not made righteous, nor do they "receive the gift of righteousness." Rev. 22: 10–12; Rom. 2: 4–11. Jesus Christ will neither impart to them "the gift of righteousness" on their resurrection from the dead, nor that immortality and eternal life, which is given to believers. Therefore they come forth the subjects of "corruption" and the "second death." Gal. 6: 7–18; Rev. 20: 14, 15.

If we wish to be saved from such judgment and condemnation and the "second death," we must be among believers, who "receive abundance of grace, and the gift of righteousness," and hence "reign in life" with Jesus Christ. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

3rd. I have only to add that Jesus Christ is to redeem man's lost and forfeited inheritance. Rom. 8: 19–22; Eph. 1: 13, 14; Acts 3: 19; Heb. 1: 10–12. "Shall be changed." The same language is used in reference to our mortal bodies. 1 Cor. 15th chap.; Phil. 3d chap.; Isa. 65: 17; 2 Pet. 3d chap.; Rev. 22: 22.

Man and his inheritance, thus redeemed, will be pure, intelligent, happy, without disease, pain, or death; and live and reign with his Redeemer forever.

"How solid all, where change shall come no more."
"O ye blessed scenes of permanent delight!
Full above measure! lasting beyond bound!"
"On life's fair tree, fast by the throne of God,
What golden joys, ambrosial, clustering glow!"
—Young.

O. R. FASSETT.

For the World's Crisis.

THE WORLD'S CONVERSION.

It is evident to all who have ever tried to inform themselves of the fact, that the doctrine of the world's conversion originated through Dr. Daniel Whitney, who flourished as a writer about the last of the seventeenth century. It is also just as evident that not one of the early christians ever promulgated such a doctrine, or even expressed themselves of any such views.

Now the noted Faber says, "If a doctrine totally unknown to the primitive church, spring up in any subsequent age, in any century, that doctrine stands on its very front impressed with the brand of mere human invention." To be sure this assertion of Faber must carry its own weight, but it is obvious to every one that, "if the doctrine be true, it is a strange omission in the teachings of the apostles and their immediate successors."

But one thing we are aware of, and that is this: "Man has ever had a tendency to deviate from the paths of virtue, and, if we take the history of the past, we find that we are forced to admit, that from one period of time to another, he has ever grown worse instead of better."

When Adam was placed in the garden of Eden, the world was perfect. Angels could hymn their anthems over the new born creation,—all the sons of God could shout for joy. But how long did this state of perfection exist? No sooner was that sacred soil polluted by the footprints of Satan, than man was found violating the divine laws of his Creator. And from that moment, he began to grow worse and worse, until the mercies of God are suspended, and he is swept from off the face of the earth. Again Noah comes forth beneath the armies of Providence, and then the world is converted! Every creature beneath the arched heavens can participate in the joys of "almost Eden restored."

But how long do these things continue thus? The wheels of time can scarcely make a revolution, ere Babel's sons are raising their puny arm against their God, and through castles of their own building, (like many at the present day,) are trying to get to heaven some other way than "through Christ and the resurrection." And so it has ever been. Fifty years after Christ had introduced the gospel, the world was nearer converted than at the present day; and where is the prospect of its getting any better? Monopoly and moral corruption are the ruling elements of the day, and all the time growing worse.

And did Christ, in all his preaching, ever intimate any such state of "temporal church perfection?" Nay, verily. The wheat and tares were to grow together until the end of the world. And the grand historic predictions delivered on the Mount of Olives, foretell of wars and rumors of wars, famines, &c., down to the end of time. And more than this, "As it was in the days of Noah" "so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be: For as in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; SO SHALL ALSO THE COMING OF THE SON OF MAN BE." Does this look like the world's conversion? Does this look like a temporal millenium? "A sad picture, indeed."

Paul says, "I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." Where did Paul ever speak of the world's conversion? Echo answers, "Where?" Considering all his teaching, together with that of the rest of the apostles, we are obliged to conclude that it is an "ungrounded hypothesis." Hear him: "In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, &c., having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: From such turn away."

This is in the last days, when orthodoxy is getting the world converted! But again: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." Orthodoxy turns the picture the other side out, and tells us that "evil men shall grow better and better!" Once more: "That day shall not come except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, . . . whom the Lord shall . . . destroy with the brightness of his coming." If the Lord destroys him with the brightness of his coming, then orthodoxy does not destroy him a thousand years previous by preaching! But there is, indeed, another side, and although its premises are very unsound, it is argued with great zeal by its advocates. The docility of beasts, predicted in Isa. 11th, is very strenuously forced in support of that theory. But by examining the fourth verse, we find that the docility of beasts occurs after Christ has smitten "the earth with the rod of his mouth, and" slain the wicked (not converted them) "with the breath of his lips."

Again, they fly to Isa. 2: "Neither shall they learn war any more." But this, also, is after the law goes forth out of Zion "and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." Hence, after the restitution. Well, it is decreed that "every knee shall . . . bow and every tongue shall confess." Very true, and criminals often do the same by an earthly judge; but it remains for orthodoxy to prove that it is done this side of the judgment.

But here comes the grand argument: "Christ will have a triumphant church at his appearing, and so he is going to bind Satan a thousand years, and then the world is no longer deceived, and will all come to the knowledge of the truth."

But the conclusion must follow the premise, and if Satan is bound a thousand years prior to Christ's coming, and the world is converted, at the end of that period he is let loose again, and deceives them, and they backslide, a great number at least, and fire comes down from God out of heaven and devours them; so the world is not converted at his coming, if it is before.

But it is evident to all unbiased minds, that at the binding of Satan the saints have a resurrection, and that event does not take place until the Lord himself descends, "with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God." 1 Thess. 4: 16. Hence, the millenium comes after the advent, and not before.

One thing cannot be denied, and that is, the doctrine of the world's conversion is in prophesy, just as much as America; "for when they cry peace, peace, sudden destruction cometh upon them, if they are God's elect? Orthodoxy answer.

I will close by inserting a little testimony from the lips of a minister who got up to put down "Millerism" in this place one year ago: "Don't be frightened about the world's coming to an end next year, for it wont! My Bible teaches me that Satan is going to be bound a thousand years, AND THE WORLD IS GOING TO BE CONVERTED!" We thought if that man had got the job of catching him, he might be bound soon.

J. W. TAYLOR.

Chatham Valley, Pa.

A REVIEW OF THE TIMES.

We live in an age of deception. "A fast age." Fast not only in the progress of human events, and the fearful prospects which follow them—but fast in all the ten thousand various arts and systems of deception and dishonesty, which men make haste to invent and practise upon the unwary and unsuspecting.

Humbugging and all manner of deception could not be much more popular than now. He who can triumphantly boast of being the greatest deceiver, and the most successful thief, literally gains the highest place in the estimation of the people. While the applaudits of the masses everywhere trumpet his name and fame for being what is popularly termed "a smart man."

In fact it is no uncommon thing for the professedly good men of this age as they are called, to laugh and make light of dishonesty, as if it were some trivial thing calculated to excite men's mirthfulness. The good man of to-day is foolish, and the honest man is ignorant, the christian if he be truly one, in the sense of being an obedient believer of the gospel, is either fanatical, insane or something worse than an infidel. This is the way the influential portion of mankind speak of things to-day.

The men who have the heart to frown upon wickedness and rebuke the workers of iniquity are few and far between—here and there one who remain simply as the salt of the earth.

The popular feeling of the present day has become so vitiated, that there is no desire any longer to see truth, purity and simplicity triumph over gross animalism that now curses the world, by blighting every pure thought, and tainting every holy affection.

The mass of mankind being thus under the power of lust, follow their own evil thinkings, and vain imaginations which seldom rise higher than the fleshly, or animal man. Therefore, though sin and wickedness may be looked upon as sinful, yet its exceeding hatefulness cannot be realized.

Thus the great majority of mankind in this day and age of the world are deceived and deluded, not realizing the flagrant crimes and awful deeds of wickedness, which hasten the coming day of wrath.

Again, the education and literature of the day, together with the great progress the world has made in all the natural sciences, aided by the power of the press, only makes the various systems of deception so much the stronger. Since by these things it is thought that the original stock of virtue and christianity is very much augmented, whereas it is directly the reverse, as all the facts in the case will abundantly show. Never was vice so common as now, or crime so bold and unblushing; but if the education and scientific improvements of this age had made the world so much better, as many claim, then their effects ought to be seen and visibly felt.

But alas! men forget that education and secular knowledge is not christianity—or that educating a man does not change his heart, deliver him from sin, and justify him in the sight of God. The education of to-day, is but the golden gloss, which covers the baser metal. Strip off the gloss and the original corruption still remains in all its horrid loathsomeness. [illegible] —But there is another and [illegible] error and deception, viz.: that the present restless and inconstant state of things is, nevertheless, permanent and enduring. Although all nations are being shaken and convulsed by war and commotion, and the earth itself rocking to and fro beneath its almost intolerable burden of wickedness; still man, with his heart "failing him for fear of those things coming on the earth," vainly dreams that the present state must last for ages on ages to come.

Nothing would disappoint the world more than the immediate ending of all political and ecclesiastical rule and the establishment of a permanent and enduring monarchy on earth, under the supervision of Jesus Christ and his immortal saints.

I say nothing would disappoint the world more, from the fact, that there is no kingdom state or church, but what vainly conceives that they have some great and God-given mission to fulfill, which will ultimately bless mankind.

Hence the political and ecclesiastical rulers and their objects, have no idea the great end of the present state and system of things is rapidly approximating. They know not that it is written, "the Lord of Hosts hath purposed it, to stain the pride of all glory, and to bring into contempt all the honorable of the earth." Isa. 23: 9.

That day is rapidly coming. The world is already ripe for the harvest. Earth groans for deliverance! Wickedness, misery and misrule must come to an end!

The vail of deception which is cast over the face of all nations will soon be rent asunder! May the day soon come when Satan shall be bound, and deceive the nations no longer.—California Crisis.

For the World's Crisis.

WAR.

Yes, war is the cry throughout our land. But Jesus is soon coming to establish a reign of peace and righteousness; then there will be no more war; its devastations will end, and its implements will be destroyed; all the elements of discord will then be no more. What a happy experience will those know who have lived in strict obedience to all the requirements of God.

If we desire to secure to ourselves immortality and eternal life, we must take our Bible for our guide and carefully and prayerfully study its teachings and obey its precepts; although it may cost us our reputation, subject us to ridicule, and be the means of persecution. For our Bible tells us that all they that "live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution."

Let me notice a few of the many things that we are required to do. Christ tells us (Matt. 5: 44), to love our enemies. Can we in love to our enemy take his life, or in any way injure him? Again. No murderer will enter the kingdom of heaven. Can we take the life of our enemy and then get into the kingdom? I fear not. Paul says, "Give place unto wrath; for it is written, Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord." Rom. 12: 19. Again. "Recompense to no man evil for evil." Rom. 12: 17. "Overcome evil with good. Rom. 12: 21. "Follow peace with all men." Heb. 12: 14. "The servant of the Lord must not strive, but be gentle toward all men." 2 Tim. 2: 24. "I send you forth as sheep among wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. Matt. 10: 16. "Put up again thy sword into its place, for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Matt. 26: 52.

I might find other places that speak as plainly and emphatically as these; and I think such language as the above needs no comment. Let it suffice for me to say, I must obey God rather than man; and I could not with my present understanding of the above Scriptures take the life of my fellow-man purposely under any circumstances; for should I do it I believe I should forfeit my right to eternal life in the kingdom of God. Yet I understand that he who aspires to official positions and makes use of the elective franchise must also fight for governments. But I am a pilgrim and a stranger, and look to God only for protection, who is able to take care of his children, even though they may be in the lions' den. Let us live close to Jesus, that when he shall appear we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

E. B. GARD.

Earlville, Iowa.

TALK WITH OUR READERS ABOUT COMMON THINGS.

DEMONISM.

The tendency of the age towards what is called "refinement" has had a great influence over men's minds in disposing them to reject everything supernatural as being superstition. Neologists have explained away all the miracles of the Bible; and many of its plainest statements are made to lose their meaning by the figurative system of interpretation, which, even in the hands of good men, has come to be considered the natural one. And yet, at the same time, we behold the strange phenomenon of parties who, a little while ago, would believe nothing but what their external senses conveyed to them—who "believed in all unbelief"—now giving ready credence to the demoniacal communications of the last fifteen years as entirely truthful and reliable. Speaking great swelling words, and professing themselves to be wise, they are become fools.

Now, it is much to be noted that many christians, although they hear incidentally, and cannot help hearing a great deal about "spiritualism" and "spiritual circles," in their daily intercourse, still look upon them as nothing more than childish superstition, or developments of the occult powers of nature and magnetic science. If we could get their attention, we would warn them, with all the earnestness we can command, to avoid any connection with these things, lest their souls should suffer loss. In the most cunning manner Satan has paved the way, until he has accustomed the community to regard with indifference, as belonging to the mere "mental phenomena" and customs of the times, matters that tend to sap the very foundations of our most holy faith. "Spiritual circles" are generally regarded as childish and silly whims, and "mediums" as weak minded and credulous persons; whereas the fact is, the system is witchcraft, simply and purely; and a fully developed medium is what is described in Matt. 8: 28—34, Mark 5: 1—13, Luke 8: 26—33. The proof of this is cumulative, and the experiment within easy reach in every town in the land, according to 1 John 4: 1. And every established christian ought to make it; not only in order to convince himself, but, especially, in order to be in a position to warn young persons who are easily led astray, and are often, in the first instance, attracted by a natural curiosity. Thus he would be enabled to hold up this Satanic wickedness in its true light, and to forearm with the proper antidote such as are in danger of being poisoned by it, and ruined in soul and body.

The Scriptures teach us that necromancy and witchcraft are real: it does not denounce imaginary things. Let every one who would be saved avoid frequenting spiritual circles and consulting mediums, as he would the pestilence.

Modern intercourse with demons, . . . has, however, taken a new turn in the manner of its development. It has marked characteristics of its own; it speaks as a lamb, with all deceivableness of unrighteousness. It glorifies christian virtues, worships God, speaks respectfully of Christ, and extols morality to the skies; but when compelled to show its true colors, denies the atonement, and the inspiration and divine authority of the Scriptures.

The communications which these wicked spirits, transforming themselves, like their master, into angels of light, have been making, have, at length, tinged the habits of thought of the whole nation: their teachings have been received first as novel, then as instructive, and now as authoritative. The spiritualists have multiplied rapidly throughout the whole of Christendom, but especially in this country. In the year 1862, the professed spiritualists of New York city, alone, were estimated at 90,000; since then they have been doubled, if not quadrupled; and now they have become so emboldened with the influence they have acquired over public sentiment, that a National Convention of Spiritualists is proposed to be holden in Chicago in the month of August, this year, and that for the avowed purpose of seeking to control the principles of the nation.

The abstract antichristian leaven which, in various ways, has been working in the world since the days of John, is fast assuming the concrete in the glorification and projected deification of human institutions; nor has Protestantism escaped the snare. Man-worship has become entirely interwoven with the framework of society, not excepting the ordinances, systems and enterprises of the church itself. Witchcraft, in its final development of spiritualism, has ripened the whole, and prepared the world for the speedy establishment of "anthropotheism" (paying divine honors to a mortal man, or his image), in the person of the Coming Man, or Antichrist; who will be hailed with acclamation, so long as he brings with him the promise of the highest worldly prosperity.

At first, he will, probably, be content with the universal direction of civil life, but will speedily develop into open blasphemy, and the rejection of Christ, at least as having any claim to influence mundane affairs.

If this is so, it is a matter of the utmost importance for every disciple of Jesus to recognize betimes the true nature of the abomination called "Spiritualism," before he becomes entangled in it.

It would lead us too far to go into a detailed proof in these pages. Let it suffice that spiritualism has poisoned all the springs of moral conduct, is undermining the principles of society as based on the teachings of the New Testament, and is busy in confounding all distinctions of right and wrong. It is the duty of every christian to examine its nature, to avoid it, and to warn others. . . .

Spiritualism has leavened our whole ethical system. What was wanting in the tendency of the trashy novel literature and the secret societies of the day, it has filled up.

The end of the age is close upon us; it were both foolish and sinful to disregard the thickening signs of the times. We do not now propose to point them out; but, among them all, none are more unmistakable than the moral condition of the world; and prominent in it stands forth the appearance on the scene of the seducing spirits of 1 Tim. 4, and their demon doctrines. Unless these are at work, the time of the end is not yet. It is very noteworthy that their advent is so very particularly pointed out by the Holy Spirit. Of nothing else in the whole range of divine truth is He said to speak "expressly." The subject is evidently of the highest moment, and cannot be lightly passed over without imperilling the most important interests. We unhesitatingly assert that the "seducing spirits and doctrines of devils" are identical with "spiritualism;" in other words, spiritualism is demonism.

Observe that whilst christians yield up their wills to the divine Savior, Jesus, the first and indispensable requirement from mediums is that they yield up their wills, totally and impassively, to the demons who are their familiar spirits, and who personate various individuals among the dead, as from time to time suits their purpose. These demons are lying spirits, and to listen to their impulses [illegible] tion. Their influence will soon be almost universal. They shall deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. Holding out a form of godliness, and denying the power thereof, they have undermined the outward christianity of the churches, and will [illegible] the whole world; and [illegible] the most surprising, [illegible] will enthrone the personal Antichrist [illegible] their work in "the secret chambers" [illegible] that the Messiah of the world [illegible] bringing with him the true [illegible] human society" for which mankind have so long waited.

It is true that the system [illegible] not yet fully developed, yet it is sufficiently so to enable every christian mind [illegible] clearly perceive the five characteristic marks by which this latest infernal [illegible] is distinguished from all previous forms of necromancy and sorcery. And let him that readeth take heed; for, prominent among those excluded forever from the heavenly city will be found the sorcerers.

It is predicted of these latter-day demons in 1 Tim. 4: 1—3, that

1. They shall cause men to depart from the faith in Christ.
2. They shall teach doctrines of demons.
3. They shall speak lies in hypocrisy, having their conscience seared with a hot iron.
4. They shall forbid to marry.
5. They shall command to abstain from meats.

We freely grant that these things were foreshadowed, dimly, in the Popish system; it is not necessary to prove that their complete fulfillment is to be looked for elsewhere.

We propose in other articles, to take up these five characteristic points in the order named.—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

PARABLES.

"Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the Bridegroom."—Matt. 25: 1.

Parables are always given to illustrate some doctrine or subject which the speaker wishes to communicate. Nothing has so good an effect on the mind as to teach spiritual truths by parables. Thus Christ taught his disciples and followers, that their memories might the more easily retain and be often refreshed, and long remember and keep in view any important truth. If we apply the parable wrongly, if we put on a false construction, it will serve to lead us into an error, and blinds us instead of producing light. Men often explain parables by fancy, to suit their own notions, without any evidence but their own ingenuity, and by this means there will be as many different explanations as there are ingenious men.

The proper way to explain a parable is to take the word to explain it. Christ has given us rules by which to understand parables,—by explaining some himself. The explanation given by Christ of the parable of the tares and the wheat, is a rule that will bear in about all cases. There is a rule for the explanation of all parables found in the word of God; and that rule is the word of God itself.

Christ, in Matthew, by the parable of the sower, shows the sower to be the Son of man; the good seed, children of the kingdom; the tares, children of the wicked one; the harvest, the end of the world; the reapers, angels. There is no change nor contradiction in the Bible in the explanation of parables, as we have ever found.

The parable of the ten virgins. Matt. 25. The kingdom of heaven, there spoken of, we believe means the gospel day, or circle of God's government under the gospel dispensation. This can be proved by the word of God. Matt. 3: 1, 2,—"In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand,"—that is, the gospel day is come. Again, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, saying, "The time is fulfilled." This gospel of the kingdom has been preached since John's day. But the everlasting kingdom of God is yet to be set up. In this parable of the ten virgins it reads, they all took lamps, which means the word of God. David said, "Thy word is a lamp to my feet." A lamp is of no practical use without oil. The difference between the virgins was, the foolish took no oil with them; they had no faith, no well grounded hope in the gospel; a theory, a mere profession, or no profession at all. While on the other hand, the wise virgins took good care to provide themselves with oil in their vessels with their lamps. They possessed strong faith in God and his word, and waited for his Son from heaven.

It would seem this parable has its fulfillment near the close of time, mostly when the evil servant is saying in his heart, "My Lord delayeth his coming;" when the signs are being fulfilled just before the Lord comes. The foolish said unto the wise, "Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out." But the wise answered saying, Not so, lest there be not enough for us and you. But go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves. And while they (the foolish) went to buy, the Bridegroom came, and they that were ready went in to the marriage, and the door was shut." This implies, the closing up of the mediatorial kingdom, and finishing the gospel day. Proof, Lk. 13: 24–28,—"When once the master of the house is risen up and hath shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he shall answer and say unto you, I know you not whence ye are."

THE MARRIAGE

is the time when Christ shall come the second time, without [illegible] elect from [illegible] this takes [illegible]

THE WORLD'S CRISIS, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1864. WHOLE NO. 475.

[illegible], not one missing. The whole church of [illegible] will be there. She will be perfect in beauty, all gloriously arrayed. Rev. 19: 7–9.

THE MIDNIGHT CRY

is given by the watchmen, or some of them, who by the word of God discover the time is revealed, and immediately give the warning voice, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh! go ye out to meet him." This portion of the parable is supposed to have been fulfilled; by others, that it has not yet been fulfilled, but will soon be. I am of the opinion it has been fulfilled in a most remarkable manner. The midnight cry has sounded. One or two on every quarter of the globe have proclaimed the news of a coming Savior the second time, and agree in the time. Wolfe of Asia, Irving of England, Mason of Scotland, Miller of America, were some of the many who first proclaimed the midnight cry,—"Behold he cometh!" Since those days thousands have arisen and testified to the same blessed hope, and have trimmed their lamps, and waited for the Son of man from heaven.

The divine spirit has illuminated the mind, and shines forth upon the pages of prophecy; so that we are able to know the kingdom of God is at hand. The signs of these times show conclusively that we are in the immediate vicinity of the last day, and the saints of God are enabled to lift up their heads and rejoice in a speedy deliverance. On the other hand, the foolish virgins, having no light upon this glorious subject, scoff, and smite their fellow servants; and although they once professed to believe the same thing, they now turn away, and eat and drink with the drunken. "And the Lord of that (wicked) servant shall come in an hour when he looketh not for him, . . . and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites." See Matt. 24: 51.

J. E. CLARK.

For the World's Crisis.

BUSINESS REPORT
Of the Maine Adv. Annual Conference.

Conference met according to appointment Friday morning, Oct. 7th, and was called to order by the Secretary. H. B. Seavey was chosen Moderator, I. C. Wellcome nominated as Secretary, but declining to serve, W. H. Mitchell was chosen.

Moved, a committee of three be appointed by the Chair to prepare business for the meeting.

Doings of the last conference called for and read.

The committee report the following questions: 1st, to hear the "Mission" report, and to adopt some measure for future action. 2nd, to examine the fellowship of the ministry of this conference. 3rd, whether we shall remain as we are in our conference organization, or effect a change. 4th, to spend a season in giving and hearing reports from our various fields of labor.

Voted, To accept the report of the committee.

Report of the missions called for, read, accepted, and adopted.

MISSION REPORT.

Our receipts and expenses are as follows:

Collected on old subscriptions (in 1862–3)	$24.50
Collected on new subscriptions (in 1863–4)	37.15
Collected by Eld. G. H. Leverton	155.24
Collected by Eld. J. R. Hall	90.18
Received for books and tracts	10.05
Total	$317.12
EXPENSES.
Paid out, balance due treasury (1863)	$40.97
Paid Eld. J. R. Hall for four months	91.67
" " " " expenses	5.50
Paid Eld. C. H. Leverton	102.45
" " " " expenses	52.79
Paid for books and tracts	26.72
Total	$320.10
Total receipts	$317.12
Total expenditures	320.10
Due treasury	$2.98

Subscriptions uncollected, which will more than balance the amount due if collected.

The second question taken up, and the fellowship of the ministry examined. There being dissatisfaction on the part of some with regard to the course pursued by one of the ministers, it was Voted, That those dissatisfied meet some time after this session.

The third question taken up and discussed.

Voted, To adjourn to the close of the afternoon services. Met again as per adjournment, and resumed the question under previous consideration.

Voted, That the conference remain under its present arrangement.

A resolution was presented by Bro. Wellcome to correct the notion existing in the minds of some that we are in sympathy with the "Southern Rebellion." Not carried.

Voted, That a committee of three be chosen to appoint a missionary for the ensuing year, if thought best, or to dispose of the missionary property now on hand.

Voted, That W. H. Mitchell, R. R. York, and Thomas Smith be that committee.

Voted, That Bro. I. C. Wellcome, by the following request, be dismissed from this conference:—

"Dear Brethren:—While I believe that the Maine Advent Annual Conference has been an important instrumentality in the hand of God in advancing his cause throughout this State during a season of disorder and trial, yet it seems to be wanting some essential elements to be an active and efficient body for self-discipline and preservation. It needs a deeper sense of individual responsibility in its work, to make it of sufficient importance to bear its responsibilities and its burdens. To meet merely for the sake of an annual social gathering, is quite a different matter from a united, active, well-disciplined business conference. I therefore respectfully request to withdraw from this conference at the close of this session.

I. C. WELLCOME."

Voted, to adjourn until Saturday at the close of the afternoon meeting. Met again at the close of the P. M. meeting Saturday, and after some discussion,

Voted, That Bro. E. M. Haggett be appointed to examine statements made by Eld. [illegible], referring to the settlement of difficulties between him and others, and make report of the same to the ministers of this conference.

Voted, to adjourn to the call of the President and Secretary.

W. H. MITCHELL, Secretary.

For the World's Crisis.

NOT SO EXPENSIVE.

In my notice of Webster's Dictionary, last week, I spoke as if its price might seem high in currency. The retail price is $12. And I suppose this is paid by that class of persons who are disposed, and can afford, to ask no favor in the price of any thing. And this is really the fair and just price of the book. But just prices can not always be asserted [illegible]. And I am told that the work is sold more or less at $10.

[illegible] that I was in error in speaking of Webster's edition with Appendix of Pictorial Illustrations as published after Worcester's. It preceded Worcester's issue by about six months.

C. F. H.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1864.

☞ We have not yet received a supply of Bro. Thurman's Chronology. We have some seventy or eighty orders waiting. As soon as the fourth edition is issued we shall expect to fill all orders. Be patient.

CHRONOLOGY.—We would recommend to our readers to preserve the article on chronology, in "our paper" this week, prepared by Bro. Wm. Sheldon. Give it a careful examination, comparing it with the Bible. Make yourselves master of it before you dismiss the subject.

"INFORMATION WANTED."

Under the above heading, on the third page, may be found several items of business, to which we call the attention of every reader of this paper. Perhaps your name may be in the list. If so, please give us the required information at once. Some of the names have been advertized for months, and yet we have received no response. We cannot attend to your business, unless we have your address. If your business is not attended to in season, always look in the notes "to correspondents," or under the head of "information wanted." If you who write to the office would only be particular to give your names, post office address, and State, in a VERY PLAIN manner, it would save us much trouble and perplexity.

PITTSFIELD.

We recently spent a few days with the church in Pittsfield, N. H., and found it doing well and in a healthy state. It is like a city on a hill, which can be seen from a distance. A very large audience assembled at the town hall, Lord's day, Oct. 23d. Two were baptized, and there is a good prospect that others will give their hearts to the Savior and get ready for his coming. We had pleasant visits with Brn. C. S. Emerson and S. S. Mooney, who reside in Pittsfield, and are faithful watchmen.

We spoke on the new chronology, by Bro. Thurman, and found there were ears to hear, and hearts to rejoice at the sound. It was pleasant to be there, and hear the refreshing testimony coming from hearts warm with the love of Jesus. They seem to be determined to be christians in the true sense of the word. They are fully satisfied that nothing short of entire consecration to the Lord will fit them for his coming, and they are resolved to be ready to welcome him when he comes.

THE PROSPECT.

The political aspect of our country looks very threatening. Dark clouds are rising that forebode a terrible storm, that may overturn the very foundations of society. Men are becoming desperate, and ready to do almost anything to accomplish their purposes. Selfishness rules the hearts of the people as we have never seen it before. There is a spirit of recklessness that is truly alarming. They seem like mad men, frenzied by poisoned liquors, regardless of the rights of any one who may oppose their wild career.

Before "our paper" reaches its readers this week, it will be decided who shall be the chief magistrate of the nation; and when that is known, we may expect very exciting times in all directions. Let us trust in the Lord, and wait patiently for him. This is the time to be firm for the right, leaving the consequences with Him who rules in the heavens. All will be well if we obey Him.

END OF THE SIXTY-NINE WEEKS.

If we can fix the point where a given period ends, it is an easy matter to reckon backwards and ascertain its commencement. So, if we can find the termination of the sixty-nine weeks of Dan. 9: 25, we can readily tell where they began. The verse containing this period reads as follows:—"Know, therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and three-score and two weeks; the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times."

In a former article, we gave some evidence that "Messiah the Prince" came when "Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea," B. C. 5. A further examination of this point settles the matter most clearly. Messiah in Hebrew is the same as Christ in the Greek. In John 4: 25, 26, we read of a conversation between Jesus and a woman of Samaria, in which she says;—"I know that Messias cometh, which is called Christ. . . . Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he."

In Luke 2: 11, the angel said to the shepherds, "Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." In John 1: 41, we read, "We have found the Messias which is, being interpreted, the Christ," or "the anointed" as in the marginal reading.

It has been claimed by some that Christ was not anointed till his baptism. But we are no where told in the Bible that he was anointed at that time. The word kristos, rendered Christ, occurs between five and six hundred times in the New Testament, and is defined in Greek lexicons by the one word—ANOINTED. All passages where the word "Christ" occurs in our version would be correctly rendered by the word "anointed." The Greek of Luke 2: 11—"Who is Christ the Lord—is hos esti kristos kurios—who is anointed Lord.

"When Herod the king had . . . gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where (the Christ) (the anointed) should be born"—Matt. 2: 4. The title—"the anointed," or "the Christ"—from ho kristos, is now used as a proper name. See Robinson's Greek lexicon. But Jesus is called the anointed at his birth. It is said of Simeon, "It was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ,"—kriston, anointed. It is certain that Jesus is called the "anointed" from the time he is born, and that Messiah in Hebrew means the same as kristos in Greek. The Hebrew word occurs in the Old Testament thirty-nine times and is translated anointed in all passages but two, which are in Dan. 9: 25, 26, where it is rendered "Messiah." In the Syriac Testament, the word rendered "Christ" in our version is rendered "Messiah."

We think no further proof is needed to show beyond all controversy, that when we read in Dan. 9: 25,—"Know, therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and three-score and two weeks," it means to the time when Jesus our Savior was BORN. Hence no system of chronology can be correct that does not put "the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," sixty nine weeks, or 483 years, before the birth of our Lord. The commandment of Cyrus is the only one that answers to the prophecy; but Ptolemy's canon, on which all standard chronologies are based, dates the decree of Cyrus 536 B. C., hence he must be wrong. When his errors are corrected according to Bro. Thurman's astronomical calculations, all appears to be harmonious, and the commandment of Cyrus comes at the right date,—483 years before the birth of "Messiah the Prince," thus demonstrating that he is the one foretold by the prophets. Praise the Lord for the clear light that now shines upon the Scriptures relating to the prophetic periods, and the signs which show so plainly that the Messiah is about to appear the second time. Reader, are you ready?

THE BIBLE CHRONOLOGY.

The more carefully we examine the chronology of Bro. Thurman, the clearer and more simple it looks. It is continually opening new beauties. Said a late correspondent, when writing about this work:

"I never studied chronology before; I could not understand the 'prophetic periods,' of which there has always been so much talk and speculation. I used to read a little of what different ones have written upon them, but could never seem to get a run of them, or have much of any understanding about the matter. But this work of Bro. Thurman's seems so plain and straight-forward, that I do not see how any one can help understanding it. I take pleasure in reading it over and over, as I have some part of it, it is so simple and easy to understand. It all looks very reasonable."

It is a peculiar characteristic of truth, that it looks better and better the more closely it is examined. Truth always bears inspection, and shines the brighter afterwards. We think those who read and study Bro. Thurman's work with care, will find these remarks specially applicable to it. The more critically it is examined, the better the reader will be satisfied of its thoroughness; and yet it is so plain, one may wonder it was not seen before. But when we remember it was to be sealed up to "the time of the end," then the whole matter seems consistent.

BRO. STEPHENSON'S CHRONOLOGY.

As we gave Bro. Stephenson's notice of his lectures to be held at Seneca Falls, N. Y., last month, it may be a duty we owe to our readers to give the results, as published in the Millennial Harbinger, of Nov. 2nd. The editor, Bro. Newman, says:—

"Mr. John Stevenson has given his seven Lectures on Chronology illustrated by his long CHART in this place. The last was given on the 24th inst. We heard five of them. We watched the argument very closely. Beside the public lectures, we had several private interviews with Mr. Stevenson. The lectures were disjointed, and in some cases unintelligible. Mr. Stevenson, having devoted eighteen years to the study of the subject, is of course, familiar with its details, but as many of his audience were not so familiar with it, and his speech was somewhat broken, the majority of his audience often failed to catch his ideas. We were told that Mr. S. believes himself to be raised up by God to make this subject known to the world, and he is therefore so confident, that to others he is offensively dogmatical, while using such language as this: 'No wise man will refute my position; it will only be those who know nothing about the subject, who will attempt it,' etc. From the first Mr. S. was calling for machinists, draftsmen, accountants, school teachers, professors, arithmeticians, and mathematicians to come and show his figuring false, if they could. On Monday evening a good machinist, who was not interested in our faith, said he would have answered Mr. S., but he did not like the idea of being called a fool in advance. These and similar words were, apparently at least, intended to keep men of such professions from answering Mr. S.

On Tuesday evening several such men were in to hear the last lecture; this was known to Mr. S., and the result was that such men were not called for at all. He had no use for them. An old school-teacher and professor asked Mr. S. a few questions, and pointed out a discrepancy, but was quickly interrupted and put down by Mr. S. who was very much out of humor.

Having obtained permission, on Monday evening we pointed out some grave blunders in the calculations of Mr. S., which we will present to our readers. We repeated the same again with additional arguments against it, on Tuesday evening, after Mr. S. had, as usual, denounced those that attempted to refute him; representing that those who could not see his arguments 'may as well have a turnip on their shoulders for a head.' We were not deterred, however, from opposing it; for 'such slang was not argument,' as we told the audience.

Our readers will remember the remarks of Dr. Litch in the Advent Herald which we copied two weeks ago; and which Mr. S. attempted to answer last week, but which was just no answer at all. Below we give an item from Eld. J. V. Himes, published in the Voice of the West, two weeks ago:—

CHRONOLOGY.—By request we publish this week a sketch of a series of lectures on chronology, to be delivered at Seneca Falls, by Mr. J. Stevenson. We think that truth and justice require, that before any further chronological arguments based on the Canon of Ptolemy be presented, that some error be shown in Bro. Thurman's astronomical calculations which, if correct, show the Canon to be unreliable. Until such an error be shown, we are justified in regarding all [illegible] as being unsound in foundation."

In the [illegible] Mr. Stephenson uses the following language:—

"1. That 6000 years [illegible] in 1866. That 70 Jubilees, or the amount of time contained in 70x50=3500 years, from the institution of the Jubilee, on the Israelites entering the land of Canaan, ends in 1866.

"3. That a Jubilee of Jubilees, 50x50=2500 years from the great Passover in the 18th year of king Josiah, ends in 1866.

"4. That the 2300 days (years) of Dan. 8: 13, 14, ends in 1866, reckoned from the 20th of Artaxerxes as bound by the Canon of Ptolemy.

"5. That the 1335, 1290 and 1260 days (years) of Dan. 12, all end in 1866.

"6. That, supposing the Mosaic ritual had been brought down to our times, a jubilee year would begin in the fall of the year 1866. Vulgar era.

"The 2300 days and 70 weeks are illustrated by a large diagram, from which will be demonstrated that we are now living in the year 1845 true time, and hence the coming year 1866, vulgar era, is the true year 1847. Thus showing that Daniel's numbers are, as formerly understood, true to-day, and bring us to the cleansing of the Sanctuary year of release, or year of redemption."

We will take up these items, one by one, and show their inconclusiveness; first remarking that by Mr. Stephenson's last paragraph, it will be seen that he makes A. D. 1866, to be but 1847, true time. . . .

1. If 6000 years end in 1866 true time, it will not end till our A. D. 1885, for Mr. S. figures this down on the acknowledged 'Christian Era.'

2, 3 and 6. The ending of 50 and 70 Jubilees in 1866. This is also figured down on the acknowledged Christian Era which Mr. S. says, is incorrect. Hence 1866 true time, will be 1885. But as he claims to prove that 1866 of our acknowledged Era will be a Jubilee, and as there are but 19 years between 1866 and 1885, and a Jubilee demands 50 years, the whole theory of the Jubilees falls to the ground. Again, these must be counted by Jewish time if at all, and as the Jewish clock stopped ticking 1800 years ago, it is impossible to set the time for a Jubilee; as two centuries, one before and one after Christ, are in 'utter confusion,' chronologically considered. This Mr. S. admitted.

5 and 6. Mr. S. claims that the 2300 days of Dan. 8: 13, 14, ends in 1866. He reckons 'from the 20th of Artaxerxes as bound by the Canon of Ptolemy.' We will now show that if Mr. S. is bound by the Canon of Ptolemy, his theory is proved false by several years. He makes the 'seventy weeks' of Dan. 9: 25, to be a part of the 2300 years, and says it is the 'key' to it. Now, to commence these at 'the 20th of Artaxerxes as bound by the Canon of Ptolemy,' proves that the 2300 years end in 1857, and it is 'BOUND' and immovably fixed at that point; and it will not help him to say that 1866 is the true 1847, for if that be so the true 1857 will be 1876; and this would unhinge all his theory. If, therefore, the 1260, 1290 and 1335 days of Dan. 12 end in 1866, either of our acknowledged Era or true time, they are also out of joint; for they would end in A. D. 1866 or 1885 true time; while the 2300 ends in 1857, or 1876. This, indeed, is like his Chart—exhibiting the theories of TEN different Chronologists, ALL contradicting one another on the dates of important transactions—'CONFUSION WORSE CONFOUNDED.'

If the Canon of Ptolemy is correct, his theory is false; and if the Canon be false, his theory is equally so, being based upon it, as Mr. S. claims.

The 'complex ten years' and the 'sliding scale,' Mr. S. speaks of in his answer to Dr. Litch, is for the purpose of making an extra ten years to have his theory come out at 1866. He claims that the 2300 years began ten years too soon, and by his 'sliding scale' he endeavors to make that ten years double itself in the ending of the 2300 years; and allowing one year for a mistake in the ministry of Christ, it makes but 19 years—1847 and 19 are 1866.

Now if the vision be 2300 years and it commenced ten years too soon, what man with a show of plausibility will contend that the end will be set forward more than ten years? He claims it at the ending up of the B. C. and beginning of the A. D., but what man is there that cannot see that what is not on the one side is on the other? If we cut an apple in two, out of the centre, what is not on the one piece is on the other. A school-boy can see that! . . .

We should have said that the Chart is a splendid piece of workmanship, and shows that Mr. S. has been to work at the ancient and modern histories as well as with the paint brush."

POPE'S HOUSE AT JERUSALEM.

A Paris correspondent of the London Christian Times says:—

"A private letter from Jerusalem informs me that the house intended for the residence of his Holiness, whenever he feels inclined or forced to take another flight, is being built in that city. I leave this fact to the meditation of the prophetic students among your readers. Our Jansenists, the only members, I believe, of the Catholic church who make a conscientious study of prophecy, declare that Anti-christ is to sit on Peter's chair at Rome, 'whence evil has ever come;' they will probably regard the possible flight of an amiable man, too weak to stem the torrent of Ultramontane doctrine and practice, as the preliminary act in the last great drama of darkness, which they daily expect, and which, after a terrible sifting time, is to usher in the reformation of religion, the conversion and restoration of Israel, and the personal reign of our Lord. I know some who are daily in earnest prayer that the Spirit of God may revive and reform their church; and doubt not that they are met at the throne of grace by many unknown brethren, who will be greatly surprised one day to meet them at the right hand of the King of glory. I need not repeat that these are regarded black sheep, or worse than Protestants, by the real Romish church, and they so far deserve the name that they are not on firm, clear ground, but persist in calling themselves members of a church whose infallible decrees they disbelieve and reject."

For the World's Crisis.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The quarterly conference appointed at Lincolnville Centre, commenced Friday morning with a prayer and conference meeting, continuing in the P. M. Friday evening Bro. I Damman preached. Text, John 13: 35. Saturday, conference at 9 o'clock,—interest increasing. Sermon at 2 o'clock by Bro. Hall. Text, Acts 14: 12. Sermon at 7 o'clock by Bro. Baker, from 1 Pet. 4: 7. Sunday, conference at 9 o'clock A. M. Good interest. Sermon at 10 o'clock by Bro. Reed. Text, Luke 20: 35, 36. Sermon at 2 o'clock by Bro. Nason. Text, Isa. 43: 10. Evening, sermon by Bro. Baker. Text, 1 Cor. 15: 14.

At our business meeting Saturday, chose Bro. Thomas Smith Chairman.

Voted, the next quarterly conference be held at Frankfort Mills.

Voted, the time for holding said meeting be left with Bro. Baker, of Frankfort, and the Clerk.

The storm of Thursday eve. prevented the meeting, and although the storm continued through Friday, our conference commenced as reported, and as the meeting progressed the interest increased. Our hearts have been encouraged by our coming together, hoping many were convinced of the need of searching God's word, to know whereof we affirm.

M. YOUNG, Clerk.

☞ An authentic journal says that the clergy of the United States costs $6,000,000, criminals $19,000,000, lawyers $35,000,000, tobacco $40,000,000, rum $100,000,000 annually. This speaks volumes.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

[illegible] give the sums affixed to [illegible] the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$414.70
Hannah E. Fletcher pd	.25
M. A. C. Patch pd	1.00
Mrs. J. B. Skinner pd	.75
J. A. Cleaveland pd	1.00
C. Harvey pd	.25
A. E. Dewitt pd	.25
Sidney Hall pd	5.00

From Bro. E. Woodruff.

BRO. GRANT:—I think it is the best we can do to cast in our mite for the Tract Fund. It is no more than other churches do. It is well to have a willing mind to do good; and by casting our bread upon the waters, we may find it after many days. It is the first year I have taken the Crisis. I truly consider it the best family reading we have, except the Bible, and I could not get along without it. We hear from all the campmeetings, and the good that is done, besides many interesting letters. If any think they have not given enough for the Tract Fund, let them give more. It is a good cause, in which every brother and sister ought to be interested. The tracts, as well as the Crisis, are very interesting to read. May the brethren and sisters be liberal to help the poor.

We are few and lonely in this place, trying to serve the Lord. We have no preaching but the Crisis. We should like to hear some preaching brethren, if they would come this way. Yours looking for that blessed hope,

Roxbury, Ct. ENOCH WOODRUFF.

From Bro. B. Perham.

BRO. GRANT:—I love the Advent cause so well, I am doing and shall do all I can to send round those little preachers, in the form of tracts, so that the people can have the truth in some way or other; and I assure you I love the truth so well, I am constrained to buy the truth in the shape of tracts, and freely give them to those who will read them; and although I have been sick, and am a poor man, the love of God constrains me to send this two dollar bill to the Tract Fund, with a humble prayer to God that it may be the means of doing some good in leading some precious sinners to my dear Redeemer. And if my heavenly Father will prosper me for the future, as he has the few months past, I shall send some more money to the Tract Fund before long; and I hope my Advent brethren and sisters will go and do likewise.

Brattleboro, Vt. B. PERHAM.

TO CANADA SUBSCRIBERS.

Subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, will find it to their advantage, when remitting to this office, to do so in Provincial bank bills, or gold. For every $1.00 of such money sent us, we will give $2.00 credit, more or less, according to its current value when received.

Tuesday, Nov. 8th. Gold is worth to-day $2.45. Canada bills, $2.35.

FINANCIAL REPORT
Of Wilbraham Campmeeting, 1864.

Balance in Treasurer's hands from last year's receipts	$153.70
Cash received on pledges made at campmeeting of 1863	30.15
Collections and subscriptions, including several which have been paid since campmeeting	382.69
Sale of straw and lumber	127.80
Rent of hulled corn stand and barber's shop	31.00
Amount received for board, and sales at the boarding house, oyster, cake and fruit stands, and from all other sources not included in the above receipts	2173.16
Total	$2898.50
EXPENSES.
Paid Benj. Butler for lumber for erecting the boarding house, and for that used on the ground	$256.44
" Mr. Smith, for work erecting boarding house	106.68
" For straw, fuel, drawing water, and storing crockery	145.85
" For new crockery	100.91
" For various articles of table and cooking furniture, bought and hired	47.78
" Insurance on campmeeting property, advertising, postage and stationery	10.43
" For services rendered by various persons in the boarding department, at the various stands, and for work on the camp-ground	332.29
" Groceries, provisions, and the various articles used and sold at the boarding house and refreshment stands	1865.91
Total	$2866.32
Balance in Treasurer's hands	$32.18

In consequence of erecting the large building for the boarding department, purchasing new crockery, and various other articles, the large number of free boarders, and the high prices to be paid for every article used in boarding, while a moderate price was charged those who did pay their board, our expenses were larger than ever before, so that the amount to be raised by collection or subscription was unusually large, which the brethren and sisters cheerfully and promptly made up—yes, more than made up, with the blessing of God upon them, and the thanks of the committee for the kind and liberal manner in which they responded to their calls. We hope next year, the Lord willing, to make the camp-ground more comfortable than ever, by putting backs to the seats, and by making other necessary improvements.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Association, held Aug. 25th, a committee was appointed "To nominate and recommend a campmeeting committee of five to the campmeeting for its election, to serve the ensuing year." The committee nominated the following brethren:—

S. G. MATHEWSON,
MILES GRANT,
GEO. T. ADAMS,
HIRAM MUNGER,
JAMES HEMENWAY.

Which names were presented to the brethren and sisters assembled at the preacher's stand, August 27th, for their action. The report of the nominating committee was accepted, and the above named brethren elected unanimously to serve as the Campmeeting Committee for 1865.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer.

LOANS TO THE LORD.

A sister in Glastenbury, Ct., sends $5.00 for the use of "Sr. Lydia, of Oswego Co., N. Y." We have forwarded it to her address.

For "Bro. John ——, Jr.," the Wood-sawyer, who is partially blind, has six to provide for, and is almost destitute of clothing, we have received, and forwarded to him the following donations: $2.00 from Mrs. E. A. K., West Cleaveland, O., to buy him some shirts; also, $2.00 from "A pilgrim" in Connecticut, for the same purpose. Bro. B. R. C., of Worcester, Mass., promises to send him some pants "which will be better for this season than those cotton ones."

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for the Crisis to the poor. Whole amount [illegible]

Previous donations	$[illegible]
Dorcas pd	5.00
Chas. Libby pd (for the poor in his town)	2.50
A friend pd	.50
D. Wilson pd	2.00
M. F. pd	2.50
R. D. Hibbard pd (for Bro. John ——, Jr., the wood-sawyer)	2.50
Eliza Stow pd	2.00
Mrs. S. Hawkes pd	1.00
" " pd (for Bro. John ——, Jr.)	.50
Mrs. E. B. Lyon pd	.30
Mrs. G. E. Otis pd	1.00
J. Richardson pd (for the poor in his town)	1.00
Lobo pd (for Bro. John ——, Jr.)	1.00
B. Perham pd	2.00
S. M. Locke pd	2.50
A. Damon pd	1.50
B. R. C. pd	1.00
A pilgrim pd	1.00
Church in Whitefield, N. H., for their own poor pd	1.25
Eliza A. Waldron pd	2.50
S. B. Temple pd	1.25
E. Jewett pd	1.00
J. Myers pd	2.50
E. A. T. pd	1.00
H. Hitchcock pd	1.00
S. Frost pd	.67
B. Tuttle pd	5.00
E. E. Dewitt pd	.50
Pleasant Valley, Ct. pd	2.00
B. W. W. pd	2.50

VOICES FROM THE POOR.

FROM AN AFFLICTED SISTER IN LITCHFIELD CO., CT.

I still live in sorrow, pain and loneliness. My dear parents both died six years ago, and left me alone, all alone, on this bed of pain and weariness, and wholly dependent upon charity for my support; and my expenses are heavy. (I am obliged to hire a woman to live with me.)

For more than thirty long weary years I have been entirely confined to this bed of extreme suffering. But God has supported me, and I will ever put my trust in him. His grace is sufficient to carry me safely through all these heavy trials. In my helpless, dependent condition, I am not able to pay for your valuable paper. I like it well, and would gladly pay for it if I could. I feel very thankful for the comfort of reading it so long, and have no right to expect to receive it free any longer. So you will be obliged to stop it, for I feel that I have taxed your kindness too much already. But I do thank you, my christian brother, even more than I can express. May God bless and reward you abundantly. I am, with christian love, your grateful friend,

CHLOE.

Sister Chloe's paper shall not be stopped. The brethren will see to it.

FROM A BROTHER IN FAIRFIELD CO., CT.

I know not what to say to you in regard to the Crisis. I have a large family of six children, and hardly work enough to keep them in food. I have had no work at my trade, of any account, for three months. I have wanted to send you some money, but cannot till times are better, which I fear never will be until Jesus comes. It seems to me I never can do without the Crisis, for it is my food and drink, and without I shall die out, I fear. I hope to be able some time to send you the pay, but for the present you must do as you think best. Your brother in Christ, A.

THE BANK OF THE LORD'S POOR.

I read with deep interest the letters from the Lord's poor; and although I am myself a poor man, I feel moved, I think by the Spirit of God, to take some stock in the Bank of the Lord's Poor, so that they can still have the Crisis sent to them free. I will take a $2.00 share now, and perhaps in a few weeks I will take another share; and I know my dear and lovely Savior will pay me back four-fold, and therefore I think it will be a profitable investment.

B. PERHAM.

Brattleboro, Vt.

Please find enclosed $1.00 for the Bank of the Lord's Poor. Use it to pay for Lydia, of Oswego Co., if she is not provided for; if she is, use it for whom you please. I, too, am poor, and had my wood to pick up when my poor helpless mother was living. But now she sleeps in Jesus, and I am waiting for him to come and raise the dead and change the living, that we may all praise him together forevermore.

MARY.

The cry of the Lord's poor for the bread of life should open the purses of all who love Jesus. I have the Lead Palsy in my hands, and cannot work much; yet I want to do a little to give the truth to the needy and the destitute. I therefore send you $2.00, and take a share in the Bank of the Lord's Poor.

Pownal, Vt. DAVID WILSON.

Ho! Ye Rich!

Listen to these voices from the sympathizing poor. They know how to feel for their poorer brethren, and how to give, too. They who have given, thus far, are mostly poor; and of their little they have given much. The rich have not yet spoken. Shall we not hear from them? Ye who, Zaccheus-like, "give THE HALF of your goods to feed the poor,"—if there are such among us,—will you not, too, share in the present blessing, and the future reward of the cheerful and liberal giver? Where are your tens, your twenties, your fifties, and your hundreds, that you can spare just as well as not, and be all the richer for it? "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth, shall be watered also himself." Who else will take shares in the Bank of the Lord's Poor?

W. B. H.

Pennsylvania Free List.

It is proposed that the churches and brethren, in each town and county, do what they can to supply their own poor with the Crisis for the coming year. Will the brethren in the following places take the matter in hand, and see what they can do?

Edinboro	2	Pierce	1
Kinzua	1	Shippensburg	3
Little Cooley	1	Tompkinsville	1
Philadelphia	1	Wattsburg?	1
		Total	13

Ohio Free List.

Amesmeith	1	Olena	1
Fairfield	1	Ottokee	1
Norwalk?	1	Ostrander	1
New Vienna	1	Van Wert	1
		Total	9

New Jersey Free List.

Burlington	1	Old Bridge	1
Newark	1	Total	3

An Example.

The pastor of the church in Whitefield, N. H., writes:—"The church, at our last covenant meeting, contributed to pay for their own poor; so I send you the money, $——.

J. A. CLEAVELAND."

The church in Whitefield is the first that has acted in behalf of their own poor. Shall not their example be followed at once by hundreds of others?

Our Preaching Brethren.

"I wish to ask if the preaching brethren who receive the Crisis free, are included in the published lists?" B.

They are. But those of them who act as agents for the Crisis,—obtaining new subscribers and forwarding collections,—are, for their works' sake, considered as entitled to receive the paper free of charge. These, perhaps, should have been omitted from the published lists; but as they are marked "free" on our books to distinguish them from those who are liable to have bills sent to them, they were counted in with the rest.

We have other ministers on our free list, who co-operate with the Crisis in word and doctrine, but have done nothing to extend its circulation or increase its circle of usefulness. We shall be happy to continue the paper to them as heretofore, and intend to as long as we have the means to do so. But will they not, in return, see what they can do, and do what they can, to increase its list of subscribers? Come, brethren, wake up. Work! work, till the Lord comes. Circulate the truth. The Crisis is doing good; help it do more.

FROM A MINISTER IN NEW YORK.

You wish to hear from all your free subscribers, and, as I am one, you want to hear from me. Well, rather than have the Crisis stop coming, I would pay (or try to) $5.00 a year for it. I am a poor preacher, and the Lord sent me a pair of twin babies last June to take care of for him, and he sends us enough along to supply their wants and ours, just as he has agreed in his word; and if you want some pay from me for the Crisis, and must have it, why, I'll ask the Lord, and he'll give me something for you, I think. I cannot do anything alone, but, with the Lord's help, I can do much. Some said to me, "How can you take care of so many babies?" (We have four children in all.) Said I, "I cannot; but the Lord and I can take care of forty, if he sends them." Thank God I have some faith yet. Jesus is coming soon. Amen.

B

No danger of our stopping it, Bro. B., while you labor for it, as you have done, in getting subscribers and making collections. It shall still come free, as heretofore. The Lord bless you, and the babies too.

ITALIAN MISSION.

Previous donations	$210 40
Dorcas pd	10.00
J. Richardson pd	1.00
A Sister in Christ pd	1.00
J. Clark pd	.25
John M. Stetler pd	10.00
A Sister pd	2.00
A. Simpson pd	1.00

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—If I write too often you must lay my letters under the table. I have just seen the close of Lincolnville Conference. It was a good session. Union, harmony and brotherly love prevailed through the meeting, which was very generally attended, although the first two days were rainy. Some twelve or fifteen preachers were present, and the preaching was impressive, and believers were confirmed, strengthened and encouraged.—There was no strife or contention about words and forms, but a disposition to think and let think, to speak and let speak, to act and let others act, prevailed. There was no pressing of peculiar views to the injury of others. Each enjoyed his own views without molestation. To say all are perfectly joined in the same mind and judgment is what can never be said in this imperfect state. People do and will have their own ideas of Scripture truth.

In Portland also they had the same united, harmonious Conference, and though there were different opinions on minor points, they labored together in harmony, as they should. I rejoice to see that in Maine there is a disposition, while they enjoy their own opinion, to let others enjoy theirs. I think in Maine the cause is advancing. Young men are being raised up and called of God and qualified by him to feed the people with knowledge and understanding. Thus we have a large increase of preachers, yet not enough to supply the demand for labor. Doors are open everywhere, and congregations can be had almost anywhere in Maine. In much of the back country they have no settled ministers and few churches. Of course in such places there is but little sectarianism. I have experienced great hospitality and kindness everywhere, and a disposition to help me on my journey after a godly sort has been manifested in all places where I have been, and I have enjoyed my labors much. I calculate to give lectures almost every evening. My strength has rather improved. I love this work, hope to be able to remain in it until my Master comes, which I believe cannot be far ahead. I actually expect to see the heavens lighted up with the glorious Shekinah, and see the Just One coming, and to hear the rumbling of the wheels of that fiery chariot spoken of by Daniel the prophet

The bundle of tracts and papers sent to me at Yarmouth, I have received, after they had lain there six or eight weeks, for which the Publication Society will receive my hearty thanks. I will see that they are all used economically. These little messengers are doing much to spread the light of God's truth. The Lord bless and increase the efforts of the Society, until the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the whole earth. Brethren, be faithful, be active, be devoted, walk circumspectly, and be living epistles known and read of all men; keep the unity of the Spirit, love as brethren, be pitiful, be kind, be courteous, and God will bless you, and an abundant entrance be administered to you into the heavenly kingdom. Yours, B. SPAULDING.

Lincolnville, Me., Oct. 18.

From Bro. P. H. Lawrence.

DEAR BRETHREN:—If I could tell you all how good the Lord has been to me and those connected with my charge for the past year, you would say with me that there is no lack to them that obey him! The first five months of the past year, including a tour out West of a few weeks in Illinois, where I had some heavenly meetings with some dear old friends and pilgrim strangers, were spent in the city of Worcester, Mass., where in connection with the saints worshipping at Temperance Hall, my lap was often filled to overflowing as Sabbath after Sabbath the word of life was poured forth from the sacred desk by Brn. Boutell, Brewer, Couch, A. Ross, Carpenter, Himiaway, and others, and again in the semi-weekly social meetings where the true spirit of worship predominated, and where the object clearly was to prepare for those higher walks and more exalted positions in the soon coming restitution, of which God by the mouth of his holy prophets has spoken. How blessed were those hours when

"Heaven came down our souls to greet,
And glory crowned the mercy-seat!"

Those happy hours will ever hold a conspicuous place in the fond memories of the past.

During the four months last past I have been engaged in the mineral department in the comparative wilds of Canada (Sundays excepted). Bless the Lord forever, dear brethren and sisters, it seems to me that I never passed such a summer of blessing. As I have toiled through the week, as I have preached on God's holy days, I have been permitted by faith to drink draught succeeding draught from life's pure river; and as I write I feel its invigorating influence, its calm, healing waters rising higher and yet higher still, and here, bless the Lord forever, I have faith enough to swim into the city of jasper walls and gates of pearl, and take of the fruit of the tree of life according to His promise, and live forever.

Should these few thoughts meet the eye of any brother or sister who may be or may have been trying hard for this blessed state of enjoyment, remember, brethren, first the sacrifice, next the entire consecration of all that to us appertain, next the faith to take God at his word, and like a Jacob wrestle, and you must, you will prevail. Come, brother, come, sister; no doubts here, no storms. As the man upon the mountain top sees far below him the storm spending its fury upon the surrounding wilderness, so we live in the sunshine of heaven, and far beneath our feet we but dimly see the convulsive elements in their efforts to reach us. Here we feel

"Our real life in Christ concealed,
Deep in the Father's bosom lies,
And glorious as our Head revealed,
We soon shall meet him in the skies."

Come one, come all. God is able to make all grace abound to our account, and he will do it if we will believe him and do his commandments. Christ has sanctified the altar once for all. O, let us believe it and lay hold on eternal life.

I would say that I am making arrangements to spend the ensuing winter again in Worcester, and after the first of November that will be my address until further notice. I might here add that if any locality in that vicinity wished, say out a distance of a few miles, I would gladly devote an occasional Lord's day to them free of charge. Freely I have received, and freely I must give such as I have received. Your humble servant for Jesus' sake, PERE H. LAWRENCE.

Worcester, Mass.

From Ed. W. Deverell.

BRO. GRANT:—I consider the Crisis one of the best papers published; at least it appears so to me.

I left Canada a few days ago, to fulfill my appointment. I arrived safely at Rochester. The cause is not very flattering in this city. Finding that no arrangement had been made I left for Brockport. Here I staid with Bro. Davis, who kindly introduced me. Bro. Davis takes a lively interest in the cause. I formed a happy acquaintance with many of the pilgrims. I am happy to say they live in unity. May the good Lord still prosper and bless them. On my return to Rochester Bro. C. Vanderbuk had procured the use of a church; but before I got back the church was burnt to the ground. Bro. V. then opened his own house and took some trouble in inviting his neighbors in. Bless the Lord, we had two profitable meetings.

Left the kind friends for Seneca Falls. We arrived safely at Bro. G. Dillabaugh's, July 30th. With this brother I formed a happy acquaintance a number of years ago in Canada. The friends in this place have passed through severe trials, but there are still a few of the right stamp left yet. Here I received marked kindness from the dear brethren and sisters. May the good Lord bless them and preserve them from the errors that flood this place.

Albany. In this city I preached in what was then called the House of Prayer in the spring of 1842. They have passed through great changes, but, thank God, there are still some left that will not bow the knee to Baal. I am now stopping with Bro. Nichols, who is not forgetful to entertain strangers. I left Albany for New York, Aug. 11th. Had the pleasure of seeing Bro. G. Storrs, with whom I had some business to transact. When I call to mind that I landed in this city about thirty-seven years ago, a stranger in a strange land, my heart is both sad and glad. I feel glad that I can sing with all confidence,

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in this wilderness,
A poor wayfaring man."

Bless the Lord, Oh my soul, and all within me bless his holy name. I hope soon to get home. ED. W. DEVERELL.

Albany, Aug. 15th.

From Br. G. A. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT:—I have just returned from my tour in Vermont, and can say to the praise of God that the truth has gained ground. Spiritualism received a shock it will not get over at present. It was said by men in Plymouth they never were so stirred before. They rallied their force, and we gave them a charge from the gospel artillery in the name of the Lord. Brethren, it is high time that we are in earnest in our preaching. Souls are perishing for want of the good religion of Christ.

In my last tour I have seen some twenty-four arise for prayers and six or seven found peace. One was baptized. Praise God! I never felt more the weight of souls than now. I have been in new fields this fall laboring for my master. God has blessed my labors. Praise his holy name.

Any in new fields wishing my labors, if they will write me I will come when the Lord says. The poor need not hold back, for we have a rich Father, and his Son said once the poor shall have the gospel preached to them, and his word is good to-day.

Dear brethren, pray for me, that while I leave my dear wife and children to go out into the world to carry the glad tidings of my Master, I may have much of that wisdom that comes from above, rightly dividing the word of God. The Lord is at hand. Let us be up and doing. The Lord guide, is the prayer of thy brother in Christ, GEO. A. STREETER.

No. Dana, Mass.

☞ Truth is the only real lasting foundation for friendship; and in everything but truth there is a principle of decay and dissimulation.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW WORK ON THE SABBATH.

Be patient, friends, and not press too hard. Your letters have been duly received, but the work is not completed. Yet, with the favor of God, as in the past, it will not be long before it will be published.

The review of "both sides" is nearly completed, and I am now engaged in the review of J. N. Andrews' History (?) of the Sabbath. To those who are almost impatient to see the work, I would just say that, whereas there are more than one hundred authors referred to by Andrews—outside of the Bible—it is no small task to look them over. And, indeed, it will not be necessary to examine them all; but the more important will claim our attention; and of course it will take time. None, I presume, would be satisfied to have the work imperfectly done. I think it will pay to have it done thoroughly this time, so as to clear up at least a part of the errors and misrepresentations which are now before the public.

But while we are willing to wait a short time longer, it gives others who are disposed to say "Preble is used up" a little more time to rejoice. And I say, let them rejoice if they will. But those who wait will find there is another side to this question from that which emanated from "Battle Creek." By misrepresentation and falsehood the Judaizers of old thought, no doubt, that Christ Jesus our Lord was "used up" when they saw him on the cross, and also when they reported that the disciples "stole him away" from the tomb while the "watch" were "asleep"! But so it is, that Christ and his gospel are still triumphant, and his people rejoice, though his enemies are scattered to the four winds!

If I may be allowed to judge in this case, the friends of the Christian Sabbath will be satisfied to wait, and allow full time in this matter. The review of "both sides," and also of the "History (?) of the Sabbath," added to what I have previously published, will necessarily increase the size of the work beyond what was first anticipated. And one great reason of a delay in the completion of the work for the press, is the effort so to arrange the vast amount of matter involved in this question into such form as not to swell the work so as to make it too expensive for the publisher and the buyer. It will probably make a book of some three hundred pages or more—cannot now tell exactly.

The other works which I intend to publish, as announced not long since in the Crisis, will be delayed till the issue of the book on the Sabbath question.

Due notice will be given when the work is ready. I am sure the Lord is blessing the humble effort at this time to bring out the truth, in answer to the prayers of many who are desiring the true light. Let us still pray, and have faith in God. T. M. PREBLE.

East Weare, N. H., Oct. 22d, 1864.

Obituaries.

E. REED.

Sister Emeline, daughter of Bro. Benjamin and Sister Mary Reed, of Richmond, Me., "fell asleep in Jesus," Oct. 12th, 1864, aged thirty-two years, eleven months.

Were I to consult my own feelings, I should lay aside my pen, and weep over the loss of this dear sister, rather than write her obituary. She was so good, and so much needed here, that we cannot give her up without great reluctance. No notice of mine can do justice to her worth. She was a jewel indeed. Possessed naturally with more than a common show of intelligence, and having acquired a good education, she was fitted for a large field of usefulness. But more than all else, she was an humble follower of the blessed Jesus, and in his cause was ever so faithful, that it may truly be said of her, "She hath done what she could." None knew her but to love her. Her counsels and labors were frequently required, at home and abroad; and she was ever ready to put forth a helping hand. As a public teacher she excelled, winning not only the esteem of all her pupils, but also the approbation of all interested.

Her illness was short, and her decease unexpected; but her holy life gave abundant evidence that her work was well done, and that she was prepared to sleep in Christ. But though dead, "she yet speaketh." The record she has left in her consistent, christian deportment, will preach when wintry winds howl over her grave, and when summer's suns shall pour their scorching rays upon her dust.

A large number of friends attended her funeral, and many were the tears shed over dear Emeline on the day of her burial, reminding one of the mournful scene recorded in Acts 9: 39, which words were used as a foundation of some remarks on the occasion. But there is joy mingled with all our sorrow, for we are confident that in a little while Emeline will awake to immortality, and we shall, if good, meet her on the "evergreen shore."

The almost broken-hearted, mourning family circle need our sympathies and prayers. Let us remember them in this hour of affliction. May the loving kindness of our God, which is far better than all human aid, rest upon them all. R. R. YORK.

S. J. HOLT.

Died in Hermon, Me., Sept. 24th, 1864, of consumption, Sabra Jane, wife of E. H. Holt, and daughter of Eld. N. F. and Mary H. Nason, aged twenty-six years.

How true that our days are few and full of trouble. Like the morning flower we are cut down and continue not; our thoughts perish, and we are consigned to the dust of death. But hope looks beyond the bounds of time and the bars of death, when He who has the keys of hades shall once more and forever say, come forth! It seems to me the angels are already in waiting attitude to receive the commission—Go, gather my saints that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. Father and Mother Nason are not comfortless, though sorrowful, for it is not a thing incredible to them that God should raise the dead. They believe that Jenny sleeps in Jesus, therefore God will be sure to bring her with him from the grave. Then will the days of thy mourning be ended, as recorded in Isa. 60: 20; from which words of comfort were administered by the writer. I. DAMMAN.

CHARLES DENSMORE.

Died at his residence in East Bowdoinham, Me., Sept. 3d, 1864, Bro. Charles Densmore, aged about sixty-nine years.

Bro. Densmore embraced the christian faith in early life, and united with the Freewill Baptist church, among whom he was a bright and shining light. He traveled and labored considerable in Maine as a private christian, in prayer and exhortation, in which he was excelled by few, and being a good singer, he was very useful in helping forward the cause of Christ, which he loved above all others. He was among the first in Maine who embraced the Advent faith, in which he lived, labored and died, in the full faith of a glorious resurrection at the coming of Christ.

Bro. D. leaves a wife and twelve children to mourn their loss, but they sorrow not as others who have no hope. Funeral attended by the writer. C. GOUD.

The Toronto Globe publishes correspondence from New York, stating that "extensive secret arrangements are being made by rebels in New York to bring about a collision between the United States and Great Britain, making Canada the [illegible] ground."—[illegible]

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool, Oct. 22nd, Queenstown 23d.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS. There was continued gloom and heaviness in financial and commercial circles, with additional failures. The discount demand at the Bank of England on the 18th was, however, comparatively light. The English funds were pretty steadily maintained, but speculative securities showed increasing weakness. Two Liverpool firms in the American trade were reported among the additional failures, and sundry houses in Manchester, including Barratt & Wilson, calico printers, for a considerable amount.

Letters from Brazil confirm the magnitude of the failures reported by the telegraph. The liabilities of Sonto & Co., the largest bankers in Rio Janeiro, are stated at £5,200,000 sterling; those of Gomez & Filo at £3,000,000 sterling, and those of Montenegro & Henia at £1,600,000 sterling, making a total of £11,000,000 sterling. The stoppage of Sonto & Co. appears to have been the cause of the entire mischief. An extraordinary number of smaller failures are said to have followed the downfall of the banks. One banking firm (Messrs. Babia & Inmos) held their ground during many days' drain, paying out £600,000, thus establishing public confidence in them. At the closing of the mail there were symptoms of an improvement, but during most of the period the panic was such that the military police were called out and the banking houses were occupied by troops. The convulsion was not in any degree attributed to inherent unsoundness in trade. The position of the leading merchants was considered good. Sonto & Co., it is said, should have stopped three years ago. Their assets were estimated at from 30 to 50 per cent.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress of Russia arrived at Mulhouse on the 19th, and proceeded to their destination in the south of France.

THREE DAYS LATER.

FRANCE.

The Emperor would set out for Nice on the 27th, where the Czar would meet him and visit the Empress at Compeigne.

AUSTRIA.

It was rumored that Rechburg had resigned, and that Mensdorff would possibly succeed him.

RUSSIA.

The Czar and Czarina arrived at Nice on the 21st.

ITALY.

Lombardy has been invaded by armed bands dressed in the Garibaldian uniform. The invaders took possession of the treasury of Spilembergo and Maniago, leaving behind them a formal receipt.

The Italian Parliament was reopened on the 25th ult. Gen. Marmora laid on the table the Franco-Italian Convention. A bill was brought in for the transfer of the capital to Florence, and the necessary credit for seven million livres.

DOMESTIC.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the Congress of the United States passed an act, which was approved on the 21st day of March last, entitled "An act to enable the people of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government, and for the admission of such State into the Union on an equal footing with the original States:" Whereas, the said Constitution and State Government has been formed pursuant to the conditions prescribed by the fifth section of the act of Congress aforesaid, and the certificate required by the said act, and also a copy of the Constitution and ordinances, have been submitted to the President of the United States:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, in accordance with the duty imposed upon me by the act of Congress aforesaid, do hereby declare and proclaim that the said State of Nevada is admitted into the Union as on an equal footing with the original States. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord 1864, and of the Independence of the United States the 89th.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:

WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

Belfast, Me., Nov. 2. A dispatch to the Mayor of this city from Castine gives the particulars of the attack upon the battery at that town on Monday. At midnight a small party of men approached from the rear, and when challenged they immediately fired upon the sentinel who returned the fire.

Sergeant Ramsdell was fired upon as he came out of his quarters. Four balls lodged within two feet of him. The garrison mustered promptly and pursued the raiders about half a mile, firing upon them and they replying, when they took to a boat and escaped. Their object was supposed to be the capture of the United States cutter lying in the harbor.

This city has been put in a state of defense. By orders from Gov. Cony the Home Guards are in readiness for duty, and the city government has increased and armed the police.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 3—5 P. M. There are a large number of armed men on the islands above and below this place, and many strangers have been in town all day. A raid on this town is feared. All business is suspended and everybody arming. A tug has gone to reconnoitre. Three men have been arrested for firing in the streets. Men and arms have been sent for.

SECOND DISPATCH.

8 P. M. A propeller which arrived here to-day reported that an organized rebel force was occupying Well and Maple Leaf islands, eighteen miles above this place. She also reported that there were armed men on the islands below. A number of strangers have been in town all day, a majority of whom disappeared at dusk in the direction of the islands. Five men were arrested who refused to give any account of themselves. They were armed with revolvers. A tug-boat passed down this afternoon, hugging the American shore, with about forty men on board. A force has been sent out to reconnoitre in the direction of the islands. Citizens are forming companies, which are stationed at railroad depots and other places. Grain, &c., is being sent away, and extensive preparations are making to resist an attack.

New York, Nov. 3. The Commercial's Washington dispatch says: "The information of plots to destroy the Northern cities comes to the State Department from official sources in the Provinces. The authorities of the various cities have made ample preparations against raids. Commanders of Federal troops have instructions to inflict summary punishment. Some say if pursuit is made into Canada it will be overlooked by the authorities.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4. Horace Hefforn, Deputy Grand Commander of the "Sons of Liberty" in Indiana, who is on trial here for participation in the treasonable conspiracy, to-day turned State's evidence and made startling revelations of the schemes of the order. He said nobody but Democrats were admitted or would be if they applied. He confirmed the previous evidence of military organization in the order and the appointment of a Major-General to command.

Dr. Bowles, one of the accused, is Commander-in-Chief. Dr. James P. Wilson, recently arrested, is the Adjutant-General on his staff. He said a committee of thirteen was appointed to prepare the insurrection, and the insurrection was intended to release the rebel prisoners in the North-west, arm them from the Government arsenals, overturn the State Government, kill Gov. Morton, or hold him as a hostage for captured insurrectionists, and then form the North-west into a separate Confederacy. He said that he was told by Adj. Gen. Wilson that $500,000 had been sent by the rebel agents in Canada into the North-west to purchase arms for the Order, and that $200,000 had been left in Indiana in the hands of Dodd and John C. Walker, State Agent. Heffron further swore that the committee of thirteen had appointed ten men to kill Gov. Morton, and that a few days since the Governor received a letter signed by one of the men, declaring that the writer and associates had sworn to kill him (Morton) and would do it. If Gov. Morton was killed, Dr. Athen, Secretary of State and member of the Order, was to take his place, as provided by law.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 5. A letter received this morning from a friendly Canadian, dated Drummondville near Niagara, gives the particulars of a designed raid on Buffalo, which only failed, he says, through the promptitude of our authorities. Two rebel officers named Mock and Dennie had charge of the affair. All the arrangements were completed. They had one hundred men in Buffalo, who had been coming in for a week previous, and were scattered about the city in different boarding-places. At a signal these men, by means of Greek fire, were to fire the city. Though the plan has failed it is not entirely abandoned. They swear they will yet destroy Buffalo.

Buffalo, Nov. 6. It is reliably ascertained that the rebels have purchased the propeller Georgiana at Toronto, and are being strengthened and armed somewhere on the Canadian shore for the purpose of striking the steamer Michigan, and for piratical excursions generally on this coast. We are prepared for her here.

Washington, Nov. 2, '64.

To the Mayor of Buffalo:

This Department has received information from the British Provinces to the effect that there is a conspiracy on foot to set fire to the principal cities in the Northern States on the day of the Presidential election. It is my duty to communicate this information to you. W. H. SEWARD.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 6. There is much excitement on the American side of the river at an anticipated raid. The citizens are arming and goods and valuables are being removed. A special train with troops is expected to-night.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6. The following is an extract from a letter received to-day from Dunnville, Canada West, dated yesterday: "Look out for a raid on Buffalo from Toronto and Hamilton on Tuesday next. The advance guard is at Fort Erie and Suspension Bridge, or will be on Monday. Their headquarters are at Toronto. Some leading Canadians direct the raiders, who are not all Southerners." The letter is signed "John B. Holley."

New York, Nov. 7. Gen. Butler, by direction of the President and assignment of Gen. Dix, has assumed command of the military forces in this city, to preserve order during the presidential election, and to prevent the execution of the supposed designs of the rebels and rebel sympathizers from plundering and burning our principal cities. Gen. Butler, in his official order, assures the citizens of no interference with their rights as electors.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 7. The military authorities here last (Sunday) night arrested a number of secession sympathizers, and seized a large quantity of arms and ammunition in their possession.

Their intention was to liberate the Camp Douglas prisoners, fire the city, and control the election.

PIRATE FLORIDA.—The Florida was captured off Bahia, Bay of San Salvador, on the 7th ult., by the Wachusett, Capt. Collins. News received by the Kearsarge, which arrived in this port last evening.

Twelve officers and fifty-eight of the crew of the Florida were captured. The Surgeon and twenty of the crew are on board the Kearsarge in the harbor.

The Wachusett and Florida were to leave St. Thomas on the 2d inst. for New York.

THREATENED RAIDS FROM CANADA.—The telegraph last night informs us of a concerted scheme among the rebels in Canada to fire the principal cities on the Northern border. On Sunday the Provost Marshal at Detroit received a dispatch from R. J. Kimball, United States Consular agent at Toronto, stating that on Saturday evening one hundred men left that city with arms, ammunition and combustibles, for a raid on Detroit or Buffalo.

At 8 o'clock Sunday evening Detroit was thrown into the wildest excitement by the ringing of the bells calling the soldiery to arms. A dispatch was received by Mayor Barker from the Mayor of Toronto, stating that he had received positive information that a rebel raid was to be made on that city on the same evening. The intelligence created much excitement. People flocked into the streets by thousands. The steam fire engines were all out to guard against fires. Word was sent to all the churches, and the different congregations were dispersed. Col. Hill, the military commandant, at once ordered out three companies from the barracks and one from Fort Dearborn. Parrott guns were placed at the corners of the streets, which were patrolled by the soldiers, and all persons out late were seized and ordered to give accounts of themselves. An unusual number of men had been crossing from Windsor all the morning, and some two hundred suspicious characters were supposed to be in the city. The secessionists at Windsor were jubilant, and acted as if they expected something that would be pleasing to them, but the preparations for resistance hindered their wishes. Buffalo, it will be seen by our dispatch, is now the aim of the raiders, but any aim at disorder will cost the perpetrators dearly.—Journal.

Newport, R. I., Nov. 2. The schooner Good-Speed, Capt. Baxter of Boston for Philadelphia, was boarded by the pirate Tallahassee, seven miles south of Block Island, and scuttled. The captain, mate, and six men escaped in a boat to Block Island, and are now here.

The captain reports that the Tallahassee scuttled another Eastern vessel within a short distance of his vessel. The crew of the Tallahassee reported to Capt. Baxter that they had the crews of three other vessels which were destroyed within a few days. The gunboat Marblehead left Newport in pursuit this evening.

MARRIED.

In Gardiner, Me., by H. D. Reed, Mr. DANIEL B. PEACOCK and Miss THANKFUL CURTIS, both of Bowdoin.

Notices.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kimbley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day, at the Disciple house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.

Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school house near Bro. D. C. Jefferson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.

Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCord's, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.

Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half-past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O. G. W. STETSON.

A Quarterly Conference at Portsmouth, N. H.

A quarterly session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire, will be held in Portsmouth, commencing Dec. 1st, and continue over the following Sunday. We hope those who come to this meeting, will come filled with the spirit of the Master, prepared to labor for the upbuilding of the saints, and the salvation of those who are out of Christ, that great good may be done. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

JAS. A. LIBBY.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. GREEN, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. SHELDON.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, on the Dixon Air Line R. R., on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, and continue over the following Sabbath. E. ROWEN, Sec.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments [illegible] Mass., can correspond with [illegible] J. R. BELLOWS.

Notice.

I. C. Wellcome & Co., now have a good assortment of English Bibles, books, tracts, and hymn books for sale, at the regular prices. As the new hymn book is not to be published at present, we have contracted with Bro. Himes for the "Christian Lyre," so that we can supply those who want them in Maine at wholesale and retail. Prices according to the quantities wanted. Sent by mail or express. Address I. C. WELLCOME & Co., Yarmouth, Me.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit," and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

H. L. Hastings .... Friday evening, Nov. 11th and Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Edwin Burnham .... Sundays, Nov. 20th and 27th
S. S. Brewer .... Sundays, Dec 4th and 11th
Miles Grant .... Sunday, Dec. 18th

Bath, Me., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th; every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day.
Newfield, Ct., Tuesday evening, Nov. 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting. MILES GRANT.

Forestville, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Yalesville, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

West Hoosic, N. Y. (Advent Chapel) .... Nov. 26th and over the following Sabbath.
North Bennington, Vt. .... Dec. 2d and over the following Sabbath.
WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Bradford, N. H., (Town Hall) .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. COUCH.

Shelburne Falls, Mass., (where Wm. Haubtlen may arrange), Nov. 17th.
Conway, (where Bro. Mason may arrange) ... Nov. 20th
Goshen .... Nov. 23d 24th, and 26th
B. WM. WILKINS.

Elder Edwin Burnham will preach in Clark's Hall, Richmond, R. I., on Sundays 11th and 18th of December, daytime and evening; also each evening during the week between said Sundays.

Concord, N. H .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Waterloo, N. H. .... Friday evening, Nov. 18th and over the following Saturday and Sunday.
A. SIMPSON.

Lee, N. H .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
C. S. EMERSON.

Forestville, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 13th and perhaps through another week.
Are having excellent meetings every evening, and many are embracing the truth. H. K. FLAGG.

East Bowdoinham, Me., (Lancaster school-house), evenings of Nov. 17th, 18th, 19th, and over the following Sunday.
R. R. YORK,
H. D. REED.

New Boston, N. H., (at the school-house near Bro. J. Andrew's). .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Goffstown, (at Bro. Saulpaugh's house), Monday evening, Nov. 14th. J. PINKHAM.

We will hold a series of meetings at Brookfield, N. H., (where Bro. Linsey Churchill may appoint), commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 17th, and continue as long as it seems duty.
J. G. SMITH,
J. PINKHAM.

I will preach in the following places, as brethren resident in the same may appoint:—
South Butler, N. Y. .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Mannsville, N. Y. .... Dec. 1st to 4th
Harrisburgh, N. Y. .... Dec. 9th to 11th
West Martinsburgh, N. Y. .... Dec. 16th to 18th
Copenhagen, N. Y. .... Dec. 23d to 25th
Scipio, N. Y. .... Dec. 30th to Jan. 1st, 1865
Westbury, N. Y. .... Jan. 3d, 1865
and over the following Sunday.
Seneca Falls, N. Y. .... Jan. 15th
N. B. If brethren at other places in Jefferson Co. wish me to preach for them on intervening week day evenings, and they so inform me either by letter or upon seeing me at Mannsville, Dec. 4th, I will do as best I can for them. Address C. F. Sweet, Mannsville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., care of Milton Miles, until Dec. 4th.
C. F. SWEET.

Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Montreal .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena .... Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. TAYLOR.

Piermont, N. H., (Piper school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Orford, Quinttown .... Nov. 20th
L. C. GLAZIER.

Brookfield .... Nov. 13th
South Farmington .... Nov. 20th
N. HARTSHORN.

East Concord, N. H., at Ward room, U. S. General Hospital, Sunday, Nov. 13th, A. M. Camp Union at 4 o'clock P. M. JOHN G. HOOK.

North Canton, Ct .... Nov. 13th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house) .... Nov. 20th
S. WOODRUFF.

Moultonborough Center .... Nov. 13th
Loudon Ridge .... Friday evening, Nov. 18th
Concord .... Nov. 20th
Melvin Village .... Nov. 27th
T. W. PIPER.

Plainfield, Mass., (at Bro. D. Thayer's) .... Nov. 11th and at J. E. Healy's Nov. 12th.
Plainfield .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Smith's) .... Nov. 15th and at Bro. Warren's Nov. 16th.
Savoy, Mass .... Nov. 17th and 18th
Charlemont, Mass., (as Bro. may arrange) .... Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass. .... Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass. .... Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's .... Nov. 25th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Litchfield Station, Ct. .... Saturday eve, Nov. 12th
Wrightville, Ct .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Conway, (as Bro. Mason may arrange) .... Nov. 13th
Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks' .... Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. R. M Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass. .... Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. H., (Advent Chapel) .... Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt. .... Dec. 11th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Barkhamsted, at the Universalist meeting-house, Nov. 13th. NO NAME.

Warehouse Point, Ct .... Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct. .... Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct. .... Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct. .... Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct. .... Nov. 18th
New Britain, Ct. .... Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct .... Nov. 27th
J. S. WHITE, East Boston.

North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who often attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this coat don't fit you. HIRAM MUNGER.

Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford .... Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's .... Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport .... Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. SPAULDING.

Scitico, Ct. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. POTTER.

Lynn, Mass. .... Nov. 13th
C. C. RAMSAY.

Lynn .... Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Lawrence, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Haverhill, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 20th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass. .... Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me. .... Nov. 27th
C. GOODRICH.

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. G. SMITH.

Chichester, (Dover school-house) .... Nov. 13th
Z. FORD.

Cold Spring, Mass. .... Sunday, Nov. 13th
Wrightville, Conn. .... Sunday, Nov. 27th
East Otis, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 11th
GEO. [illegible]

[illegible] Hill, McVean [illegible] Sunday afternoon, Nov. 13th. Bro. [illegible] from the [illegible]. G. H. WESTHAVER.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State FROM which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Polly King, Abbie H. Smith, Edmund R. Perkins, Mary A. Mack.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their POST OFFICE and STATE. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. R. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler, Chas. Powers, Fred. P. Hunt, Henry Cole, W. S. Carr, Jas. Smith, 3d, Samson Batley, Sarah Arnold, Lois Parmeter, J. N. Dutton, H. L. Ellis, J. Glidden.

The following persons wish their paper stopped. Will they give us their ADDRESS?

John Sherman, Almira Rhodes, E. A. Lake.

Address Wanted.

Can any one furnish us the address of the following persons, and confer a favor?

Mrs. C. Rumril, J. H. Merrill, E. B. Davis, Wm. Babcock.

J. M. WITHINGTON subscribes for the Young Pilgrim, but does not give us his POST OFFICE. Will he do so?

Who obtained new Subscribers in September and October.

ONE EACH.—Eliza P. Beach, H. Beech, Mrs. E Collins, M. K. Chandler, W. W. Cate, J. L. Chute, E. H. Dawes, J. S. Eldridge, H. K. Flagg, J. B. Goodrich, L. Grinnell, A. G. Holland, Emily Hadley, S. Hammons, F. Hale, Matilda F. Howard, E H Gillson, J L Knapp, F S Knowlton, W A Lovejoy, R Lovell, W H Mitchell, J E Milton, L C McKinstry, E Miller, Mrs. T B Northrup, C W Nelson, J. T. Ougley, M A G Otis, L. R. B. Oliver, J. Porter, J Pinkham, J L Spaulding, A W Sibley, A. Simpson, Mary S. Shurtleff, C Stratton, C. P. Turner, G W Thomas, J H Trufant, W C Therman, H. A Way, R R York.

TWO EACH.—C. Goodrich, H. D. Reed, Sarah A. A. Smith, E. Wolcott.

THREE EACH.—W. Barnham, J Bates, P S W Deyo, Thos. Smith, P A Smith, G A Streeter.

FOUR EACH.—C. P. Dow, C. F. Sweet.

FIVE EACH.—L. F. Benton, A. Fries, C. D. W. Scott.

FOURTEEN.—M. Grant. (Total new, 255.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. J. Baldwin—The paper is mailed regularly every Wednesday afternoon. H. M. B. is paid to No. 488, A. H. to No. 478; you to No. 513. You will find the price and postage in the published notice.

Wm. Harriman—See No. 468.

N. Orcutt—Yes.

W. L. Slade—Your $3.00 pays to No. 428.

T. W. Piper—The A. H. was meant for N. H.; received, and paid to No. 494.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 475. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468.)

$1.00 each.—C Whitman 533, H Hill 477, J Whitman 509, W Allen 505, E A Tuttle 469, R Lovell 480, Mrs S Cock 495, D Libby 452, J E Wharff 487, Mrs. C Smith 489, S Knox 470, G. Albright 490, P Lockwood 470, A Lewis 494, F. H. Chamberlain 542, T Waters 412, E R Southworth 476, J T Proud 495, N Snell 485, H Hitchcock 495, M Gove 526, A Churchill 491, T Tuttle 438.

$2.00 each.—E B Staples 513, J Walsworth Jr. 475, Mrs. L Grinnell 510, C Hubbard 493, O Glines 5.8, W H Hill 517, Mrs C E Otto 490, S E Miner 474, I M Colby 496, J Knight 5.3, N Staples (on old acc't), R R Bullen 475, H B Flanders 494, C Harvey 513, J Hooker 520, J S Odell 475, W Smith 530, C Bigood 494, Mrs. D. S. Butler 492, J Wilson 492, W W Taylor 473, M S Robinson 510.

$3.00 each.—F Stow 567, B B Hill 539, F Jewett 514, A H Barrett 477.

$1.25 each.—J Francis 491, I Stevens 500, A Bryant 498, A H Dodge 500, W Mosher 500, E J Case 500, E Smith 500, Mrs W Eaton 435, J Wilkinson 481, Mrs J B Skinner 501, J Clark 508, M. Buckman 465, A. Williams 507, P Williams 510, E Fancher 507, E Canfield 491, J Sawyer 491, M E Otis 534, S. Hornbeck 501, E. Shultz 501, S Harper 494, M Goodman 501, R W Pierce 498, J Pierce 498.

$1.50 each.—E P Snow 493, Mrs B Cook 467, Mrs M Gove 505.

$2.50 each.—H S Hawkins 524, W. S. Raymond 526, W. French 520, A. Chamberlin 526, W W Barrett 526, I Wells 526, M Porter 524, H Daniels 526, W Myres 526, Mrs L D Heath 520, A Riggs 520, Mrs. E B Lyon —, H P Tucker 526, S Helmer 502, O Green 524, H Meeker 439, W A Durand 521, E A Waldron 522, J W Wright 526, M S Buckman 417, H Hall 542, Mrs. L Mc Sheny 499, C Dixon 520, A Chace 2nd 513.

J F Baker $3.25 468, P J Pilcher $4.70 522, E Dexter $5.60 494, Mrs E Clark $7.50 520, W Davis $2.68 49', R. Curtis $6.00 563, L. Robbins $1.50 484, E L Crumo $1.50 516, S B Bliss $1.50 485, J Arnold $1.50 old acc't, S G Lovering $1.50 514, G Martin $2.25 523, C Hodgdon $2.25 472, H A Drew $1.50 472, E H Rand $1.31 497, T. Cutton $2.20 345, J. Moor $2.27 520, R Vandevoort $1.30 491, S. Bubier 62c 453, M. A. St. John $1.37 495, Mrs J Nason 75c 484, J Dyer 48c 473, E Miller 30c 481, Mrs K. Baker 63c 479, S A Knight 65c 484, S. Hecker 63c 487, J B Terry 63c 486, Mrs. E Balch 37c 474, G E Hooper 63c 430, D. Louck 63c 471, A Case 82c 475, R. Bolles 75c 474, C. F. Young 44c 475, S B Gowell $1.83 491, D G Sawyer $1.08 520, J Chapman $1.95 495, S H Cudworth $2.25 503, J F Chamberlain $1.30 473, J. Allard $8.80 593, L. L. Eldridge $1.33 473, W H Allen 25c 465, H. T. Owen 60c 486, I D Knightly 25c 475, W Draper $2.90 545, C. B. Peck $2.70 520, E Beals $4.00 475, J. Durham $1.80 497, T. Tripp $1.67 472, Mrs. E. Blackstone $1.27 502, A S Ladd 75c 475, L Gowell $3.25, [illegible] H. Grinnell $5.00 521, G. Berry $1.30 362, W. C. Sherman 30c 469, H H Dickenson $3.33 524, J C Millard $1.00 495, Mrs. A. Nye $5.00 565, J. S. Richards (two papers) $5.00 520, H Gray 63c 483, W McClellan $5.00 534, C Libby $3.16 520, L Webster $1.51 521, E P Marsh $3.65 (on old acc't), J. B. Tupper $1.00 534, J. Smith $2.25 522, S. Rollins $4.50 564, W. J. Cady $1.00 623, A J Ames 50c 485, E. A. Goodale (on old acc't) 50c, E Wetherell 50c 463.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

S. H. Hewlett $1.60, T W Piper $3.23, R N Stetson $6.00, W. H. Chapman $3.00, H. Rockwell $1.75, W Mosher $2.25, P. S. Butler $1.40, J Smith $2.00, F M Shimper 57c, B H Straight $1.75, H Grinnell 60c, A C Taylor 75, A Collins —, J A Smith 33c, C Libby $8.19, L. Webster $2.70, S. Cook $5.00, C. Harvey 60c, S. P. Clark $3.50, W R Boyker $1.75, $170 each—G W Brown, H H Dickenson, N Staples, A V G Smith, J. Brackett, F. H. Burbank, J. H. Harding, J F Chamberlain, F. B. Jones. W Roworth $6.03, A B Martin $3.57, G H Emery $3.75, A Raymond $1.30, J A Libby $3.40, J. McCammon $2 15, H Rockwell $2.00, C P Dow $2.50, W H Weld $1.00, W Kenny $1.70, J M Tosier $1.75, S L Hodsden $1.00, E P Conser $1.25, R Vandevoort $1.70, J G Burnham $1.00, R St John $1.70, C G Miller $1.70, E H Rand $1.70, I. Kulp $1.87, N. Wheeler $1.70, P. Dow $1.70, I. P. Murphy $1.00, L. Storrs $1.00, B. F. Hammond $1.75, A. Case $1.68, A E Babcock 50c, T. Smith 25c, J M Kannells $1.00, C Newell 50c, A Lewis 50c, B Perham 50c, C H Williams 60c, M K Pollard 50c, L R Smith 60c, W Jostlyn 75c, B Perham 56c, M Cooper 60c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—A. Case, H. Rockwell, W. Mosher, J. A. Crawford, H. Grinnell, F. M. Shimper, R. Blanchard, Miss D L Clark, W Robinson, P Merrill, J M Armour, J A Smith, M A Mickles, A. V. G. Smith, H. W. Norville, L C Washburn, C Harvey, J Fong, D M Kinter.

BY EXPRESS.—A Bellows, J V Himes, A. C. Taylor, B H Straight, J Hall.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

E S Willard, P. N., F Douglas, C D Hibbard, E W Potter, I Dammon, B L Clark, E Owen, J Elkins, M L Carroll.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

M. Mathews—Weaver, Danaville, C. E.

F. H. Burbank, New York, N. Y., care of Eld. Samuel Curry, Station E.

Will Sr. M. S. Perkins please send her P. O. address to Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana, Mass.?

J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.

J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.

J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.

Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. New and condensed edition. Edited by John Eadie, D. D., L.L.D. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.80. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.30.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references, Morocco, $1.75. Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, silk, rims and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.10. Postage 12 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references, Morocco, $1.50. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $2.50. Postage 15 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

All orders [illegible]

[illegible]

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Body, [illegible]

Eternal Suffering, [illegible]

State of the Dead. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. [illegible]

What is Man? [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. [illegible]

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church. [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment. [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church ... 20c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man ... 20c.
Reasons for my Hope ... 20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion ... 20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly ... 20c.
Pauline Theology, [illegible] ... 20c.
The [illegible] Paths, [illegible] ... 20c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church ... 20c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen. Single ... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance. [illegible]

The Life of Trust. [illegible]

Two Hundred Stories for Children. [illegible]

A Treatise on the [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, [illegible]

America in Prophecy. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. [illegible]

Cook Book. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. [illegible]

An Appeal to [illegible]

Home Thrusts, and Home Thoughts. [illegible]

Louis Napoleon, [illegible]

[illegible]

Debt and Grace. [illegible]

Christ our Life. [illegible]

Human Destiny. [illegible]

[illegible]

Eternal Death. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

[illegible]

Lectures on Wm. Miller. [illegible]

the object clearly was to prepare for those higher walks and more exalted positions in the soon coming restitution, of which God by the mouth of his holy prophets has spoken. How blessed were those hours when

"Heaven came down our souls to greet,
And glory crowned the mercy-seat!"

Those happy hours will ever hold a conspicuous place in the fond memories of the past.

During the four months last past I have been engaged in the mineral department in the comparative wilds of Canada (Sundays excepted). Bless the Lord forever, dear brethren and sisters, it seems to me that I never passed such a summer of blessing. As I have toiled through the week, as I have preached on God's holy days, I have been permitted by faith to drink draught succeeding draught from life's pure river; and as I write I feel its invigorating influence, its calm, healing waters rising higher and yet higher still, and here, bless the Lord forever, I have faith enough to swim into the city of jasper walls and gates of pearl, and take of the fruit of the tree of life according to His promise, and live forever.

Should these few thoughts meet the eye of any brother or sister who may be or may have been trying hard for this blessed state of enjoyment, remember, brethren, first the sacrifice, next the entire consecration of all that to us appertain, next the faith to take God at his word, and like a Jacob wrestle, and you must, you will prevail. Come, brother, come, sister; no doubts here, no storms. As the man upon the mountain top sees far below him the storm spending its fury upon the surrounding wilderness, so we live in the sunshine of heaven, and far beneath our feet we but dimly see the convulsive elements in their efforts to reach us. Here we feel

"Our real life in Christ concealed,
Deep in the Father's bosom lies,
And glorious as our Head revealed,
We soon shall meet him in the skies."

Come one, come all. God is able to make all grace abound to our account, and he will do it if we will believe him and do his commandments. Christ has sanctified the altar once for all. O, let us believe it and lay hold on eternal life.

I would say that I am making arrangements to spend the ensuing winter again in Worcester, and after the first of November that will be my address until further notice. I might here add that if any locality in that vicinity wished, say out a distance of a few miles, I would gladly devote an occasional Lord's day to them free of charge. Freely I have received, and freely I must give such as I have received. Your humble servant for Jesus' sake, PERE H. LAWRENCE.

Worcester, Mass.

From Ed. W. Deverell.

BRO. GRANT:—I consider the Crisis one of the best papers published; at least it appears so to me.

I left Canada a few days ago, to fulfill my appointment. I arrived safely at Rochester. The cause is not very flattering in this city. Finding that no arrangement had been made I left for Brockport. Here I staid with Bro. Davis, who kindly introduced me. Bro. Davis takes a lively interest in the cause. I formed a happy acquaintance with many of the pilgrims. I am hapyy to say they live in unity. May the good Lord still prosper and bless them. On my return to Rochester Bro. C. Vanderbuk had procured the use of a church; but before I got back the church was burnt to the ground. Bro. V. then opened his own house and took some trouble in inviting his neighbors in. Bless the Lord, we had two profitable meetings.

Left the kind friends for Seneca Falls. We arrived safely at Bro. G. Dillabaugh's, July 30th. With this brother I formed a happy acquaintance a number of years ago in Canada. The friends in this place have passed through severe trials, but there are still a few of the right stamp left yet. Here I received marked kindness from the dear brethren and sisters. May the good Lord bless them and preserve them from the errors that flood this place.

Albany. In this city I preached in what was then called the House of Prayer in the spring of 1842. They have passed through great changes, but, thank God, there are still some left that will not bow the knee to Baal. I am now stopping with Bro. Nichols, who is not forgetful to entertain strangers. I left Albany for New York, Aug. 11th. Had the pleasure of seeing Bro. G. Storrs, with whom I had some business to transact. When I call to mind that I landed in this city about thirty-seven years ago, a stranger in a strange land, my heart is both sad and glad. I feel glad that I can sing with all confidence,

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in this wilderness,
A poor wayfaring man."

Bless the Lord, Oh my soul, and all within me bless his holy name. I hope soon to get home. ED. W. DEVERELL.

Albany, Aug. 15th.

From Br. G. A. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT:—I have just returned from my tour in Vermont, and can say to the praise of God that the truth has gained ground. Spiritualism received a shock it will not get over at present. It was said by men in Plymouth they never were so stirred before. They rallied their force, and we gave them a charge from the gospel artillery in the name of the Lord. Brethren, it is high time that we are in earnest in our preaching. Souls are perishing for want of the good religion of Christ.

In my last tour I have seen some twenty-four arise for prayers and six or seven found peace. One was baptized. Praise God! I never felt more the weight of souls than now. I have been in new fields this fall laboring for my master. God has blessed my labors. Praise his holy name.

Any in new fields wishing my labors, if they will write me I will come when the Lord says. The poor need not hold back, for we have a rich Father, and his Son said once the poor shall have the gospel preached to them, and his word is good to-day.

Dear brethren, pray for me, that while I leave my dear wife and children to go out into the world to carry the glad tidings of my Master, I may have much of that wisdom that comes from above, rightly dividing the word of God. The Lord is at hand. Let us be up and doing. The Lord guide, is the prayer of thy brother in Christ, GEO. A. STREETER.

No. Dana, Mass.

Truth is the only real lasting foundation for friendship; and in everything but truth there is a principle of decay and dissolution.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW WORK ON THE SABBATH.

Be patient, friends, and not press too hard. Your letters have been duly received, but the work is not completed. Yet, with the favor of God, as in the past, it will not be long before it will be published.

The review of "both sides" is nearly completed, and I am now engaged in the review of J. N. Andrews' History (?) of the Sabbath. To those who are almost impatient to see the work, I would just say that, whereas there are more than one hundred authors referred to by Andrews—outside of the Bible—it is no small task to look them over. And, indeed, it will not be necessary to examine them all; but the more important will claim our attention; and of course it will take time. None, I presume, would be satisfied to have the work imperfectly done. I think it will pay to have it done thoroughly this time, so as to clear up at least a part of the errors and misrepresentations which are now before the public.

But while we are willing to wait a short time longer, it gives others who are disposed to say "Preble is used up" a little more time to rejoice. And I say, let them rejoice if they will. But those who wait will find there is another side to this question from that which emanated from "Battle Creek." By misrepresentation and falsehood the Judaizers of old thought, no doubt, that Christ Jesus our Lord was "used up" when they saw him on the cross, and also when they reported that the disciples "stole him away" from the tomb while the "watch" were "asleep"! But so it is, that Christ and his gospel are still triumphant, and his people rejoice, though his enemies are scattered to the four winds!

If I may be allowed to judge in this case, the friends of the Christian Sabbath will be satisfied to wait, and allow full time in this matter. The review of "both sides," and also of the "History (?) of the Sabbath," added to what I have previously published, will necessarily increase the size of the work beyond what was first anticipated. And one great reason of a delay in the completion of the work for the press, is the effort so to arrange the vast amount of matter involved in this question into such form as not to swell the work so as to make it too expensive for the publisher and the buyer. It will probably make a book of some three hundred pages or more—cannot now tell exactly.

The other works which I intend to publish, as announced not long since in the Crisis, will be delayed till the issue of the book on the Sabbath question.

Due notice will be given when the work is ready. I am sure the Lord is blessing the humble effort at this time to bring out the truth, in answer to the prayers of many who are desiring the true light. Let us still pray, and have faith in God. T. M. PREBLE.

East Weare, N. H., Oct. 22d, 1864.

Obituaries.

E. REED.

Sister Emeline, daughter of Bro. Benjamin and Sister Mary Reed, of Richmond, Me., "fell asleep in Jesus," Oct. 12th, 1864, aged thirty-two years, eleven months.

Were I to consult my own feelings, I should lay aside my pen, and weep over the loss of this dear sister, rather than write her obituary. She was so good, and so much needed here, that we cannot give her up without great reluctance. No notice of mine can do justice to her worth. She was a jewel indeed. Possessed naturally with more than a common shaw of intelligence, and having acquired a good education, she was fitted for a large field of usefulness. But more than all else, she was an humble follower of the blessed Jesus, and in his cause was ever so faithful, that it may truly be said of her, "She hath done what she could." None knew her but to love her. Her counsels and labors were frequently required, at home and abroad; and she was ever ready to put forth a helping hand. As a public teacher she excelled, winning not only the esteem of all her pupils, but also the approbation of all interested.

Her illness was short, and her decease unexpected; but her holy life gave abundant evidence that her work was well done, and that she was prepared to sleep in Christ. But though dead, "she yet speaketh." The record she has left in her consistent, christian deportment, will preach when wintry winds howl over her grave, and when summer's suns shall pour their scorching rays upon her dust.

A large number of friends attended her funeral, and many were the tears shed over dear Emeline on the day of her burial, reminding one of the mournful scene recorded in Acts 9: 39, which words were used as a foundation of some remarks on the occasion. But there is joy mingled with all our sorrow, for we are confident that in a little while Emeline will awake to immortality, and we shall, if good, meet her on the "evergreen shore."

The almost broken-hearted, mourning family circle need our sympathies and prayers. Let us remember them in this hour of affliction. May the loving kindness of our God, which is far better than all human aid, rest upon them all.

R. R. YORK.

S. J. HOLT.

Died in Hermon, Me., Sept. 24th, 1864, of consumption, Sabra Jane, wife of E. H. Holt, and daughter of Eld. N. F. and Mary H. Nason, aged twenty-six years.

How true that our days are few and full of trouble. Like the morning flower we are cut down and continue not; our thoughts perish, and we are consigned to the dust of death. But hope looks beyond the bounds of time and the bars of death, when He who has the keys of hades shall once more and forever say, come forth! It seems to me the angels are already in waiting attitude to receive the commission—Go, gather my saints that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. Father and Mother Nason are not comfortless, though sorrowful, for it is not a thing incredible to them that God should raise the dead. They believe that Jenny sleeps in Jesus, therefore God will be sure to bring her with him from the grave. Then will the days of thy mourning be ended, as recorded in Isa. 60: 20; from which words of comfort were administered by the writer. I. DAMMAN.

CHARLES DENSMORE.

Died at his residence in East Bowdoinham, Me., Sept. 3d, 1864, Bro. Charles Densmore, aged about sixty-nine years.

Bro. Densmore embraced the christian faith in early life, and united with the Freewill Baptist church, among whom he was a bright and shining light. He traveled and labored considerable in Maine as a private christian, in prayer and exhortation, in which he was excelled by few, and being a good singer, he was very useful in helping forward the cause of Christ, which he loved above all others. He was among the first in Maine who embraced the Advent faith, in which he lived, labored and died, in the full faith of a glorious resurrection at the coming of Christ.

Bro. D. leaves a wife and twelve children to mourn their loss, but they sorrow not as others who have no hope. Funeral attended by the writer. C. GOULD.

The Toronto Globe publishes correspondence from New York, stating that extensive secret arrangements are being made by rebels in New York to bring about a collision between the United States and Great Britain, making Canada the [illegible]

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool, Oct. 22nd, Queenstown 23d.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS. There was continued gloom and heaviness in financial and commercial circles, with additional failures. The discount demand at the Bank of England on the 18th was, however, comparatively light. The English funds were pretty steadily maintained, but speculative securities showed increasing weakness. Two Liverpool firms in the American trade were reported among the additional failures, and sundry houses in Manchester, including Barratt & Wilson, calico printers, for a considerable amount.

Letters from Brazil confirm the magnitude of the failures reported by the telegraph. The liabilities of Sonto & Co., the largest bankers in Rio Janeiro, are stated at £5,200,000 sterling; those of Gomez & Filo at £3,000,000 sterling, and those of Montenegro & Henia at £1,600,000 sterling, making a total of £11,000,000 sterling. The stoppage of Sonto & Co. appears to have been the cause of the entire mischief. An extraordinary number of smaller failures are said to have followed the downfall of the banks. One banking firm (Messrs. Babia & Inmos) held their ground during many days' drain, paying out £600,000, thus establishing public confidence in them. At the closing of the mail there were symptoms of an improvement, but during most of the period the panic was such that the military police were called out and the banking houses were occupied by troops. The convulsion was not in any degree attributed to inherent unsoundness in trade. The position of the leading merchants was considered good. Sonto & Co., it is said, should have stopped three years ago. Their assets were estimated at from 30 to 50 per cent.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress of Russia arrived at Mulhouse on the 19th, and proceeded to their destination in the south of France.

THREE DAYS LATER.

FRANCE.

The Emperor would set out for Nice on the 27th, where the Czar would meet him and visit the Empress at Compeigne.

AUSTRIA.

It was rumored that Rechburg had resigned, and that Mensdorff would possibly succeed him.

RUSSIA.

The Czar and Czarina arrived at Nice on the 21st.

ITALY.

Lombardy has been invaded by armed bands dressed in the Garibaldian uniform. The invaders took possession of the treasury of Spilembergo and Maniago, leaving behind them a formal receipt.

The Italian Parliament was reopened on the 25th ult. Gen. Marmora laid on the table the Franco-Italian Convention. A bill was brought in for the transfer of the capital to Florence, and the necessary credit for seven million livres.

DOMESTIC.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the Congress of the United States passed an act, which was approved on the 21st day of March last, entitled "An act to enable the people of Nevada to form a Constitution and State Government, and for the admission of such State into the Union on an equal footing with the original States:" Whereas, the said Constitution and State Government has been formed pursuant to the conditions prescribed by the fifth section of the act of Congress aforesaid, and the certificate required by the said act, and also a copy of the Constitution and ordinances, have been submitted to the President of the United States:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, in accordance with the duty imposed upon me by the act of Congress aforesaid, do hereby declare and proclaim that the said State of Nevada is admitted into the Union as on an equal footing with the original States. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 31st day of October, in the year of our Lord 1864, and of the Independence of the United States the 83th.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:
WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

Belfast, Me., Nov. 2. A dispatch to the Mayor of this city from Castine gives the particulars of the attack upon the battery at that town on Monday. At midnight a small party of men approached from the rear, and when challenged they immediately fired upon the sentinel who returned the fire.

Sergeant Ramsdell was fired upon as he came out of his quarters. Four balls lodged within two feet of him. The garrison mustered promptly and pursued the raiders about half a mile, firing upon them and they replying, when they took to a boat and escaped. Their object was supposed to be the capture of the United States cutter lying in the harbor.

This city has been put in a state of defense. By orders from Gov. Cony the Home Guards are in readiness for duty, and the city government has increased and armed the police.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 3—5 P. M. There are a large number of armed men on the islands above and below this place, and many strangers have been in town all day. A raid on this town is feared. All business is suspended and everybody arming. A tug has gone to reconnoitre. Three men have been arrested for firing in the streets. Men and arms have been sent for.

SECOND DISPATCH.

8 P. M. A propeller which arrived here to-day reported that an organized rebel force was occupying Well and Maple Leaf Islands, eighteen miles above this place. She also reported that there were armed men on the islands below. A number of strangers have been in town all day, a majority of whom disappeared at dusk in the direction of the islands. Five men were arrested who refused to give any account of themselves. They were armed with revolvers. A tug-boat passed down this afternoon, hugging the American shore, with about forty men on board. A force has been sent out to reconnoitre in the direction of the islands. Citizens are forming companies, which are stationed at railroad depots and other places. Grain, &c., is being sent away, and extensive preparations are making to resist an attack.

New York, Nov. 3. The Commercial's Washington dispatch says: "The information of plots to destroy the Northern cities comes to the State Department from official sources in the Provinces. The authorities of the various cities have made ample preparations against raids. Commanders of Federal troops have instructions to inflict summary punishment. Some say if pursuit is made into Canada it will be overlooked by the authorities.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4. Horace Heffora, Deputy Grand Commander of the "Sons of Liberty" in Indiana, who is on trial here for participation in the treasonable conspiracy, to-day turned State's evidence and made startling revelations of the schemes of the order. He said nobody but Democrats were admitted or would be if they applied. He confirmed the previous evidence of military organization in the order and the appointment of a Major-General to command.

Dr. Bowles, one of the accused, is Commander-in-Chief. Dr. James P. Wilson, recently arrested, is the Adjutant-General on his staff. He said a committee of thirteen was appointed to prepare the insurrection, and the insurrection was intended to release the rebel prisoners in the North-west, arm them from the Government arsenals, overturn the State Government, kill Gov. Morton, or hold him as a hostage for captured insurrectionists, and then form the North-west into a separate Confederacy. He said that he was told by Adj. Gen. Wilson that $500,000 had been sent by the rebel agents in Canada into the North-west to purchase arms for the Order, and that $200,000 had been left in Indiana in the hands of Dodd and John C. Walker, State Agent. Heffron further swore that the committee of thirteen had appointed ten men to kill Gov. Morton, and that a few days since the Governor received a letter signed by one of the men, declaring that the writer and associates had sworn to kill him (Morton) and would do it. If Gov. Morton was killed, Dr. Athen, Secretary of State and member of the Order, was to take his place, as provided by law.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 5. A letter received this morning from a friendly Canadian, dated Drummondville near Niagara, gives the particulars of a designed raid on Buffalo, which only failed, he says, through the promptitude of our authorities. Two rebel officers named Mock and Dennie had charge of the affair. All the arrangements were completed. They had one hundred men in Buffalo, who had been coming in for a week previous, and were scattered about the city in different boarding-places. As a signal these men, by means of Greek fire, were to fire the city. Though the plan has failed it is not entirely abandoned. They swear they will yet destroy Buffalo.

Buffalo, Nov. 5. It is reliably ascertained that the rebels have purchased the propeller Georgiana at Toronto, which is being strengthened and stored somewhere on the Canadian shore for the purpose of sinking the steamer Michigan, and for piratical excursions generally on this coast. We are prepared for her here.

Washington, Nov. 2, '64.

To the Mayor of Buffalo:

This Department has received information from the British Provinces to the effect that there is a conspiracy on foot to set fire to the principal cities in the Northern States on the day of the Presidential election. It is my duty to communicate this information to you. W. H. SEWARD.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 6. There is much excitement on the American side of the river at an anticipated raid. The citizens are arming, and goods and valuables are being removed. A special train with troops is expected to-night.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6. The following is an extract from a letter received to-day from Dunnville, Canada West, dated yesterday: "Look out for a raid on Buffalo from Toronto and Hamilton on Tuesday next. The advance guard is at Fort Erie and Suspension Bridge, or will be on Monday. Their headquarters are at Toronto. Some leading Canadians direct the raiders, who are not all Southerners." The letter is signed "John B. Holley."

New York, Nov. 7. Gen. Butler, by direction of the President and assignment of Gen. Dix, has assumed command of the military forces in this city, to preserve order during the presidential election, and to prevent the execution of the supposed designs of the rebels and rebel sympathizers from plundering and burning our principal cities. Gen. Butler, in his official order, assures the citizens of no interference with their rights as electors.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 7. The military authorities here last (Sunday) night arrested a number of secession sympathizers, and seized a large quantity of arms and ammunition in their possession.

Their intention was to liberate the Camp Douglas prisoners, fire the city, and control the election.

PIRATE FLORIDA.—The Florida was captured off Bahia, Bay of San Salvador, on the 7th ult., by the Wachusett, Capt. Collins. News received by the Kearsarge, which arrived in this port last evening.

Twelve officers and fifty-eight of the crew of the Florida were captured. The Surgeon and twenty of the crew are on board the Kearsarge in the harbor.

The Wachusett and Florida were to leave St. Thomas on the 2d inst. for New York.

THREATENED RAIDS FROM CANADA.—The telegraph last night informs us of a concerted scheme among the rebels in Canada to fire the principal cities on the Northern border. On Sunday the Provost Marshal at Detroit received a dispatch from R. J. Kimball, United States Consular agent at Toronto, stating that on Saturday evening one hundred men left that city with arms, ammunition and combustibles, for a raid on Detroit or Buffalo.

At 8 o'clock Sunday evening Detroit was thrown into the wildest excitement by the ringing of the bells calling the soldiery to arms. A dispatch was received by Mayor Barker from the Mayor of Toronto, stating that he had received positive information that a rebel raid was to be made on that city on the same evening. The intelligence created much exitement. People flocked into the streets by thousands. The steam fire engines were all out to guard against fires. Word was sent to all the churches, and the different congregations were dispersed. Col. Hill, the military commandant, at once ordered out three companies from the barracks and one from Fort Dearborn. Parrott guns were placed at the corners of the streets, which were patrolled by the soldiers, and all persons out late were seized and ordered to give accounts of themselves. An unusual number of men had been crossing from Windsor all the morning, and some two hundred suspicious characters were supposed to be in the city. The secessionists at Windsor were jubilant, and acted as if they expected something that would be pleasing to them, but the preparations for resistance hindered their wishes. Buffalo, it will be seen by our dispatch, is now the aim of the raiders, but any aim at disorder wil cost the perpetrators dearly.—Journal.

Newport, R. I., Nov. 2. The schooner Good-Speed, Capt. Baxter of Boston for Philadelphia, was boarded by the pirate Tallahassee, seven miles south of Block Island, and scuttled. The captain, mate, and six men escaped in a boat to Block Island, and are now here.

The captain reports that the Tallahassee scuttled another Eastern vessel within a short distance of his vessel. The crew of the Tallahassee reported to Capt. Baxter that they had the crews of three other vessels which were destroyed within a few days. The gunboat Marblehead left Newport in pursuit this evening.

MARRIED.

In Gardiner, Me., by H. D. Reed, Mr. DANIEL B. PEACOCK and Miss THANKFUL CURTIS, both of Bowdoin.

Notices.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kimbley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day, at the Disciple house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.
Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school-house near Bro. D. C. Jefferson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.
Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCord's, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.
Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half-past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O. G. W. STETSON.

A Quarterly Conference at Portsmouth, N. H.

A quarterly session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire, will be held in Portsmouth, commencing Dec. 1st, and continue over the following Sunday. We hope those who come to this meeting, will come filled with the spirit of the Master, prepared to labor for the upbuilding of the saints, and the salvation of those who are out of Christ, that great good may be done. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Conference at Poland, Me.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a conference in West Poland, Free Chapel, on the evening of Nov. 10th, to continue over Sunday. This meeting will be held for the mutual upbuilding of one another in the holy faith, and for the salvation of poor sinners perishing. We invite the brethren and sisters to come and help us. Able ministers are expected to preach the word.

JAS. A. LIBBY.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person, or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

The Church in Springfield.

The Second Advent Society worshiping at No. 5 Oak Street, Springfield, Mass., have hired a new hall near the corner of Walnut and State streets, where they will hold meetings every Sabbath. They desire the help and co-operation of all of God's servants who love to preach the truth. All such are invited to visit them, and sound the note of warning to a perishing world.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. GREEN, for the church.

Quarterly Meeting.

A quarterly meeting will be held in Dane, Dane Co., Wis., beginning on Friday evening, Nov. 11th, and hold over Lord's day following. All are invited. W. SHELDON.

Voice please copy.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, on the Dixon Air Line R. R., on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, and continue over the following Sabbath. E. ROYCE, Sec.

Notice.

Preaching brethren who wish to send appointments to [illegible], Mass., can correspond with [illegible] [illegible] Lynn. [illegible]

Notice.

I. C. Wellcome & Co., now have a good assortment of English Bibles, books, tracts, and hymn books for sale, at the regular prices. As the new hymn book is not to be published at present, we have contracted with Bro. Himes for the "Christian Lyre," so that we can supply those who want them in Maine at wholesale and retail. Prices according to the quantities wanted. Sent by mail or express. Address I. C. WELLCOME & Co., Yarmouth, Me.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit, and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

H. L. Hastings..........Friday evening, Nov. 11th and Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Edwin Burnham..........Sundays, Nov. 20th and 27th
S. S. Brewer..........Sundays, Dec 4th and 11th
Miles Grant..........Sunday, Dec. 18th

Bath, Me., Tuesday evening, Nov. 8th, every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day.
Newfield, Ct., Tuesday evening, Nov. 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting. MILES GRANT.

Forestville, Ct..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, Nov. 20th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

West Hoosic, N. Y., (Advent Chapel)..........Nov. 26th and over the following Sabbath.
North Bennington, Vt..........Dec. 2d and over the following Sabbath.
WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Bradford, N. H., (Town Hall)..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. COUCH.

Shelburne Falls, Mass., (where Wm. Hawhtlen may arrange), Nov. 17th.
Conway, (where Bro. Mason may arrange)...Nov. 20th
Goshen..........Nov. 23d, 24th, and 26th
B. WM. WILKINS.

Elder Edwin Burnham will preach in Clark's Hall, Richmond, R. I., on Sundays 11th and 18th of December, daytime and evening; also each evening during the week between said Sundays.

Concord, N. H..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Waterloo, N. H..........Friday evening, Nov. 18th and over the following Saturday and Sunday.
A. SIMPSON.

Lee, N. H..........Sunday, Nov. 20th
C. S. EMERSON.

Forestville, Ct..........Sunday, Nov. 13th and perhaps through another week.
Are having excellent meetings every evening, and many are embracing the truth. H. K. FLAGG.

East Bowdoinham, Me., (Lancaster school-house), evenings of Nov. 17th, 18th, 19th, and over the following Sunday.
R. R. YORK,
H. D. REED.

New Boston, N. H., (at the school-house near Bro. J. Andrew's)..........Sunday, Nov 13th
Goffstown, (at Bro. Saulpaugh's house), Monday evening, Nov. 14th.
J. PINKHAM.

We will hold a series of meetings at Brookfield, N. H., (where Bro. Linsey Churchill may appoint), commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 17th, and continue as long as it seems duty.
J. G. SMITH,
J. PINKHAM.

I will preach in the following places, as brethren resident in the same may appoint:—
South Butler, N. Y..........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Mannsville, N. Y..........Dec. 1st to 4th
Harrisburgh, N. Y..........Dec. 9th to 11th
West Martinsburgh, N. Y..........Dec. 16th to 18th
Copenhagen, N. Y..........Dec. 23d to 25th
Scipio, N. Y..........Dec. 30th to Jan. 1st, 1865
Westbury, N. Y..........Jan. 3d, 1865
and over the following Sunday.
Seneca Falls, N. Y..........Jan. 15th
N B. If brethren at other places in Jefferson Co. wish me to preach for them on intervening week day evenings, and they so inform me either by letter or upon seeing me at Mannsville, Dec. 4th, I will do as best I can for them. Address C. F. Sweet, Mannsville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., care of Milton Miles, until Dec. 4th.
C. F. SWEET.

Champlain..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Montreal..........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain..........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal..........Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena..........Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. TAYLOR.

Piermont, N. H., (Piper school-house)..........Nov. 13th
Orford, Quinttown..........Nov. 20th
L. C. GLAZIER.

Brookfield..........Nov. 13th
South Farmington..........Nov. 20th
N. HARTSHORN.

East Concord, N. H., at Ward room, U. S. General Hospital, Sunday, Nov. 13th, A. M. Camp Union at 4 o'clock P. M. JOHN G. HOOK.

North Canton, Ct..........Nov. 13th
New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house)..........Nov. 20th
S. WOODRUFF.

Moultonborough Center..........Nov. 13th
London Ridge..........Friday evening, Nov. 18th
Concord..........Nov. 20th
Melvin Village..........Nov. 27th
T. W. PIPER.

Plainfield, Mass., (at Bro. D. Thayer's)..........Nov. 11th and at J. E. Healy's Nov. 12th.
Plainfield..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Dalton, Mass., (Bro. Smith's)..........Nov. 15th and at Bro. Warren's Nov. 16th.
Savoy, Mass..........Nov. 17th and 18th
Charlemont, Mass., (as Brn. may arrange)...Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass..........Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass..........Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's..........Nov. 25th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Litchfield Station, Ct..........Saturday eve, Nov. 12th
Wrightville, Ct..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Conway, (as Bro. Mason may arrange)..........Nov. 13th
Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks'..........Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. R. M Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass..........Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. H., (Advent Chapel)..........Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt..........Dec. 11th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Barkhamsted, at the Universalist meeting-house, Nov. 13th.
NO NAME.

Warehouse Point, Ct..........Nov. 11th
Hartford, Ct..........Nov. 13th
Forestville, Ct..........Nov. 16th
Bristol, Ct..........Nov. 17th
Collinsville, Ct..........Nov. 19th
New Britain, Ct..........Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct..........Nov. 27th
J. S. WHITE, East Boston.

North Adams, Mass., Nov. 9th, and over the Sabbath, for a protracted meeting. Provisions are made for brethren and their teams, who want to work for the cause of God. Doters about questions of no profit, and lazy lounging dead heads, who oft-n attend such meetings, are not wanted. Come, brethren, this cost don't fit you. HIRAM MUNGER.

Windham, (where Bro. Parker may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 13th.
Hollis..........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland..........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford..........Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's..........Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport..........Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. SPAULDING.

Scitico, Ct..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
I. B. POTTER.

Lynn, Mass..........Nov. 13th
C. C. RAMSAY.

Lynn..........Nov. 13th—20th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Lawrence, Mass..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Nov. 20th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Northfield, Mass., (as Bro. A. Gage may arrange), Nov. 13th.
Clinton, Mass..........Nov. 20th
Kennebunkport, Me..........Nov. 27th
C. GOODRICH.

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
J. G. SMITH.

Chichester, (Dover school-house)..........Nov. 13th
E. FOSS.

Cold Spring, Mass..........Sunday, Nov. 13th
Wrightville, Conn..........Sunday, Nov. 27th
East Otis, Mass..........Sunday, Dec. 11th
GEO. L. TEEPLE.

[illegible] Hill, N. Y..........Sunday afternoon, Nov. 20th
Bro. pray for us, as there is much [illegible] here, especially from the D. Bro. G. H. WILLIAMS.

Business.

☞ Information Wanted. ☜

The following persons wish their paper changed, but do not give us the Post Office and State FROM which it is to be changed. We cannot make the desired changes without this information.

H. C. Anderson, J. W. Barnell, Rachel Oliver, Polly King, Abbie H. Smith, Edmund R. Perkins, Mary A. Mack.

The following persons send money for the Crisis, but do not give their POST OFFICE and STATE. We cannot give them credit till we know where the paper is sent.

T. Lane, Wm. E. Soper, Miss C. D. Butler, Chas. Powers, Fred. P. Hunt, Henry Cole, W. S. Carr, Jas. Smith, 3d, Samson Battey, Sarah Arnold, Lois Parmeter, J. N. Dutton, H. L. Ellis, J. Glidden.

The following persons wish their paper stopped. Will they give us their ADDRESS?

John Sherman, Almira Rhodes, E. A. Lake.

Address Wanted.

Can any one furnish us the address of the following persons, and confer a favor?

Mrs. C. Russell, J. H. Merrill, E. B. Davis, Wm. Babcock.

J. M. WITHINGTON subscribes for the Young Pilgrim, but does not give us his POST OFFICE. Will he do so?

Who obtained new Subscribers in September and October.

ONE EACH.—Eliza P. Beech, H. Beach, Mrs. E. Collins, M. K. Chandler, W. W. Cate, J. L. Chute, E. H. Dawes, J. S. Eldridge, H. K. Flagg, J. B. Goodrich, L. Grinnell, A. G. Holland, Emily Hadley, S. Hammons, F. Hale, Matilda F. Howard, E H Gilleon, J L Knapp, F S Knowlton, W A Lovejoy, R Lovell, W H Mitchell, J E Milton, L C McKinstry, E Miller, Mrs. T B Northrup, C W Nelson, J. T. Ongley, M A G Otis, L. E. B. Oliver, J Porter, J Pinkham, J L Spaulding, A W Sibley, A. Simpson, Mary S. Shurtleff, C. Stratton, C. P. Turner, G W Thomas, J H Trafant, W C Therman, H. A Way, R R York.

TWO EACH.—C. Goodrich, H. D. Reed, Sarah A. A. Smith, E. Wolcott.

THREE EACH.—W. Burnham, J Bates, P S W Deyo, Thos. Smith, P A Smith, G A Streeter.

FOUR EACH.—C. P. Dow, C. F. Sweet.

FIVE EACH.—L. F. Benton, A. Fries, C. D. W. Scott.

FOURTEEN.—M. Grant. [Total new, 253.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. J. Baldwin—The paper is mailed regularly every Wednesday afternoon. H. M. B. is paid to No. 480; A. H. to No. 478; you to No. 513. You will find the price and postage in the published notice.

Wm. Harriman—See No. 468.

N. Orcutt—Yes.

W. L. Slade—Your $3.00 pays to No. 428.

T. W. Piper—The A. H. was meant for N. H.; received, and paid to No. 494.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 475. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, charge (at the old rate) four cents; and, for every week of indebtedness since No. 468, charge (at the new rate) five cents,—and you have the amount due the office. (This, however, will give a trifle more than the amount due. To make it exact, deduct four cents for every dollar due before No. 468, and five cents for every dollar due since No. 468)

$1.00 each.—C Whitman 533, H Hill 477, J Whitman 509, W Allen 505, E A Tuttle 469, R Lovell 485, Mrs S Cock 495, D Libby 452, J E Wharff 487, Mrs. C Smith 489, S Knox 470, G. Albright 490, P Lockwood 470, A Lewis 494, F. H. Chamberlain 542, T Waters 412, E E Southworth 476, J T Proud 495, N Snell 485, H Hitcucock 493, M Gove 525, A Churchill 491, T Tuttle 438.

$2.00 each.—E B Staples 513, J Wadsworth Jr. 475, Mrs L Grinnell 510 C Hibbard 493, O Glines 518, W H Hill 517, Mrs C E Otto 490, S E Miner 474, I M Colby 496, J Knight 503, N Staples (on old acc't), R R Bullen 475, H B Flanders 494, C. Harvey 513, J Hooker 520, J S Odell 475, W Smith 500, C Bigood 494, Mrs. D. S. Butler 402, J Wilson 492, W W Taylor 473, M S Robinson 510.

$3.00 each.—E Stow 567, B B Hill 539, E Jewett 514, A H Barrett 477.

$1.25 each.—J Francis 491, I Stevens 500, A Bryant 498, A H Dodge 500, W. Mosher 500, E J Case 500, E Smith 500, Mrs W Eaton 435, J Wilkinson 484, Mrs J B Skinner 501, J Clark 508, M. Buckman 465, A. Williams 507, P Williams 510, E Fancher 507, E Canfield 494, J Sawyer 491, M E Otis 504, S. Hornbeck 501, E. Shults 501, S Harper 494, M Goodman 501, R W Pierce 498, J Pierce 498.

$1.50 each.—E P Snow 493, Mrs B Cook 467, Mrs M Gove 505.

$2.50 each.—H S Hawkins 524, W. S. Raymond 526, W. French 520, A. Chamberlin 526, W W Barrett 526, I Wells 526, M Porter 522, H Daniels 526, W Myres 526, Mrs L D Heath 520, A Riggs 520, Mrs. E B Lyon —, H P Tucker 526, S Helmer 502, G Green 524, H Meeker 439, W A Durand 521, E A Waldron 522, J W Wright 526, M S Buckman 417, H Hall 542, Mrs. L Mc Sheny 499, C Dixon 520, A Chace 2nd 513.

J F Baker $3.25 468, P J Pilcher $4.70 522, E Dexter $5.60 494, Mrs E Clark $7.50 520, W Davis $2.68 49?, R. Curtis $6.00 563, L. Robbins $1.50 484, E L Crumo $1.50 516, S B Bliss $1.50 485, J Arnold $1.50 old acc't, S O Lovering $1.50 514, G Martin $2.25 523, C Hedgden $2.25 472, H A Drew $1.50 472, E H Rand $1.30 497, T. Cutton $2.20 345, J. Moor $2.27 520, R Vandevourt $1.30 491, S. Bubier 62c 483, M. A. St. John $1.20 495, Mrs J Nason 75c 484, J Dyer 48c 473, E Miller 30c 484, Mrs. K. Baker 63c 479, S A Knight 65c 484, S. Hecker 63c 487, J B Terry 63c 486, Mrs. E Balch 37c 474, G E Hooper 63c 430, D. Louck 63c 471, A Case 82c 475, R. Bolles 75c 474, C. F. Young 44c 475, S B Gowell $1.83 494, D G Sawyer $1.08 520, J Chapman $1.95 493, S H Cudworth $2.25 503, J. F. Chamberlain $1.30 473, J. Allard $8.80 593, E. L. Eldridge $1.33 473, W H Allen 25c 465, H. T. Owen 60c 486, T D Knightly 25c 475, W Draper $2.90 545, C. B. Peck $2.70 555, E Beals $4.00 475, J. Durham $1.80 497, T. Tripp $1.67 472, Mrs. E. Blackstone $1.27 502, A S Ladd 75c 475, L Gowell $3.25, 4.3, H. Grinnell $5.00 521, G. Berry $1.30 362, W. C. Sherman 30c 469, H H Dickenson $3.30 524, J C Millard $1.00 495, Mrs. A. Nye $3.00 565, J. S. Richards (two papers) $5.00 520, H Gray 63c 483, W McClellan $5.00 534, C Libby $3.16 520, L Webster $1.55 521, E P Marsh $3.65 (on old acc't), J. B. Tupper $1.00 534, J. Smith $2.25 522, S. Rollins $4.50 564, W. J. Cady $4.00 523, A J Ames 50c 485, E. A. Goodale (on old acc't) 50c, E Wetherell 50c 463.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

S. H. Howlett $1.60, T W Piper $3.23, R N Stetson $6.00, W. H. Chapman $3.00, H. Rockwell $1.75, W Mosher $2.25, P. S. Butler $1.40, J Smith $2.00, F M Shimper 57c, B H Straight $1.75, H Grinnell 60c, A C Taylor 75, A Collins —, J A Smith 33c, C Libby $0.19, L. Webster $2.70, S. Cook $5.00, C. Harvey 60c, S. P. Clark $3.50, W B Boyker $1.75. $170 each—G W Brown, H H Dickenson, N Staples, A V G Smith, J. Brackett, F. H. Burbank, J. H. Harding, J F Chamberlain, F. B. Jones. W Roworth $5.07, A B Martin $3.57, G H Emery $3.75, A Raymond $1.30, J A Libby $3.40, J McCammon $2.15, H Rockwell $2.00, C P Dow $2.50, W H Weld $1.00, W Kenny $1.70, J M Tosier $1.75, S L Hodsden $1.00, E P Conser $1.25, R Vandevoort $1.70, J G Burnham $1.00, R St John $1.70, C G Miller $1.70, E H Rand $1.70, I. Kulp $1.57, N. Wheeler $1.70, P. Dow $1.70, I. P. Murphy $1.00, L. Storrs $1.00, B. F. Hammond $1.75, A. Case $1.68, A E Babcock 80c, T. Smith 25c, J M Kunnells $1.00, C Newell 80c, A Lewis 50c, B Perham 50c, C H Williams 60c, M K Pollard 50c, L R Smith 60c, W Jostlyn 75c, B Perham 56c, M Cooper 60c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—A. Case, H. Rockwell, W. Mosher, J. A. Crawford, H. Grinnell, F. M. Shimper, R. Blanchard, Miss D L Clark, W. Robinson, P Merrill, J M Armour, J A Smith, M A Mickles, A. V. G. Smith, H. W. Norville, L C Washburn, C Harvey, J Fong, D M Kinter.

BY EXPRESS.—A Bellows, J V Himes, A. C. Taylor, B H Straight, J Hall.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

E S Willard, P. N., F Douglas, C D Hibbard, E W Potter, I Dammon, B L Clark, E Owen, J Elkins, M L Carroll.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

M. Mathews—Weaver, Dansville, C. E.
F. H. Burbank, New York, N. Y., care of Eld. Samuel Curry, Station E.
Will Sr. M. S. Perkins please send her P. O. address to Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana, Mass.?
J. Morgan—Springfield, Mass., corner Walnut and Cedar Streets.
J. D. Brown—Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., until notice to the contrary.
J. W. Brittan—Hillsburg, Digby Co., Bear River P. O., Nova Scotia.
Thos. W. Smith—Alden, Hardin Co., Iowa.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.50; by mail, $1.90.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

CRUDEN'S COMPLETE CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. New and condensed edition. Edited by John Eadie, D. D., LL.D. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.80. Sheep, 2.00; by mail, $2.30.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

ENGLISH BIBLES FOR SALE.

1. DIAMOND, fine print, full references, Morocco, $1.75, Calf, $1.40. Roan, gilt, $1.10. Roan, gilt, clasp and clasps, $1.75. Flexible binding, $1.00. Postage 12 cents.

2. PEARL, flat, full references, Morocco, $[illegible]. Grained roan, $1.75; Morocco, circuit binding (with flaps), $3.50. Postage 15 cts.

Address MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Dr. [illegible] [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his condition. [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES [illegible]

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer [illegible]

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures [illegible]

Pamphlets not bound in Cloth.

Thessalonica, or The Model Church.......... 20c.
The Great Controversy between God and Man.. 20c.
Reasons for my Hope.......... 20c.
Spiritualism, a Satanic Delusion.......... 20c.
Retribution, or The Doom of the Ungodly.......... 20c.
Pauline Theology, or F. Pus. Tar's by Paul.. 10c.
The Old Paths, or Prim. Doct. of Future Life. 10c.
Looking Forward, or Prospect of the Church. 10c.
Social Hymns, $1.00 per dozen, Single.......... 10c.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.
BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a pleasant [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $[illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller [illegible]

Two Hundred Stories for Children. An excellent [illegible] by T. M. Preble. [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hunt. This book gives [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 13: [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

Home Thrusts, and Home Thoughts. The Golden Rule to High Life and Low Life, [illegible]

Louis Napoleon, the Destined Monarch of the World, [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace, Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery [illegible]

Eternal Death in the Literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Women; or, [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. [illegible]

Social Hymns.

Original and selected, by H. L. H. [illegible] single, $1.00 per dozen, [illegible]
Address [illegible] Boston, Mass.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographs [illegible]

Published by request.

[illegible]

The morning sun rose bright and clear,
On Abraham's tent it gaily shone,
And all was bright and cheerful there,
All save the patriarch's heart alone.
While God's command arose to mind,
[illegible]
Although his soul was all resigned,
Yet nature fondly lingered there.

The simple morning feast was spread,
And Sarah at the banquet smiled;
Joy o'er her face its lustre spread,
[illegible] her only child;
The charms that pleased a monarch's eye,
Upon her cheek had left their trace;
His highly augured destiny
Was written on his heavenly face.

The groaning father turned away,
And walked the inner tent apart;
He felt his fortitude decay,
While nature whispered in his heart—
Oh! must this son, to whom was given
The promise of a better land,
Heir to the choicest gifts of heaven,
Be slain by a fond father's hand!
This son for whom [illegible]
Was sent an outcast from his home,
And in the wilderness [illegible]
A savage exile doomed to roam?
But shall a feeble worm rebel,
And murmur at a father's rod?
Shall he be backward to fulfill
The known and certain will of God?
Arise, my son, the cruse fill,
And store the scrip with due supplies,
For we must seek Moriah's hill,
And offer there a sacrifice.
The mother raised a speaking eye,
And all a mother's soul was there;
She feared the desert drear and dry,
She feared the savage lurking there.
Abraham beheld and made reply,
On Him from whom our blessings flow,
My sister, (we by faith rely)—
'Tis God's command and we must go.
The dutious son to haste obeyed,
The scrip was filled, the mules prepared,
And with the third day's twilight shade
Moriah's lofty hill appeared.
The menials they at distance wait;
Alone ascend the son and sire;
The wood on Isaac's shoulder laid,
The wood to build his funeral pyre.
No passions swayed the father's mind,
He felt a calm, a death-like chill;
His soul was chaste and all resigned,
Bowed meekly, though he shuddered still.
While on the mountain's brow they stood,
With smiling wonder Isaac cries,—
My father, lo! the fire and wood,
But where's the lamb for sacrifice?
The Holy Spirit stayed his mind,
While Abraham answered low and calm,
With steady voice and look resigned,
God will himself provide the lamb.
But lo! the father bound his son,
And laid him on the funeral pile,
And then stretched forth his trembling hand,
And took the knife to slay his child.
While Abraham raised the blade full high
To execute his God's command,
An angel's voice as from the sky,
Cried, "Abraham, spare thy only son."
But let no pen profane like mine,
On holiest themes too rashly dare;
Turn to the Book of books divine,
And read the precious promise there.
Ages on ages rolled away,
At length the hour appointed came
When on the mountain Calvary,
God did himself provide the Lamb.

THE TIME QUESTION.—NO. 2.

BIBLE CHRONOLOGY MADE PLAIN.

Our diagram commenced the 69 weeks B. C. 488, with the commandment under Cyrus, in his first year. As all may be impressed with the plainness of the computation of these periods, from the specified starting points, and may query concerning the correctness of the Chronology given, and wish to look at the matter themselves, we propose to present a condensed chronology on a simple plan. We can present inspired testimony to prove the age of the world to the first Jubilee, and then the subsequent Jubilees (being 49 years apart) will determine whether our subsequent reckoning is correct or incorrect,—whether deduced from sacred or profane history,—as every cycle of 49 years must reach a specific point of time, and consequently a true history of events would harmonize therewith, and a defective one clash with it. Indeed, after reaching the first Jubilee, there would be no use in meddling with intervening events, and computing the reign of kings, to find the age of the world, except for the purpose of finding how many Jubilees have passed. We will give the world's age in one column of figures, and the time B. C. in another column; and when we reach the first Jubilee we will assign another column to the Jubilees. As we shall prove the world to have been created B. C. 4126, we will thus place it at the right column till we reach the point where it is demonstrated.

	Jubilees	Yr. of the World.	Year. B. C.
Man created (Gen. 1: 27) in the first of the year 1.		1	4126
Adam's age at the birth of Seth, (Gen. 5: 3)—130, (which added to the year of the world, makes its age 130; and the same being subtracted from 4126, leaves B. C. 3996. These figures we place in their respective columns. So hereafter.)		130	3996
Seth's age at the birth of Enos, 105, (Gen. 5: 6.)		235	3891
Enos' age at the birth of Cainan, 90, (Gen. 5: 9.)		325	3801
Cainan's age at the birth of Mahalaleel, 70, (Gen. 5: 12.)		395	3731
Mahalaleel's age at the birth of Jared, 65, (Gen. 5: 15.)		460	3666
Jared's age at the birth of Enoch, 162, (Gen. 5: 18.)		622	3504
Enoch's age at the birth of Methusaleh, 65, (Gen. 5: 21.)		687	3439
Methusaleh's age at the birth of Lamech 187, (Gen. 5: 25.)		874	3252
Lamech's age at the birth of Noah, 182, (Gen. 5: 28.)		1056	3070
Noah's age at the beginning of the flood, 600, (Gen. 7: 6.)		1656	2470
From the beginning of the flood to "dry land," 1, (Gen. 8: 13.)		1657	2469
Arphaxad born two years after the flood, (Gen. 11: 10.)		1659	2467
Age of Arphaxad at the birth of Salah, 35, (Gen. 11: 12.)		1694	2432
Age of Salah at the birth of Eber, 30, (Gen. 11: 14.)		1724	2402
Age of Eber at the birth of Peleg, 34, (Gen. 11: 16.)		1758	2368
Age of Peleg at the birth of Reu, 30, (Gen. 11: 18.)		1788	2338
Age of Reu at the birth of Serug, 32, (Gen. 11: 20.)		1820	2306
Age of Serug at the birth of Nahor, 30, (Gen. 11: 22.)		1850	2276
Age of Nahor at the birth of Terah, 29, (Gen. 11: 24.)		1879	2247
Age of Terah at his death, 205, (Gen. 11: 32.)		2084	2042
Abraham immediately went to Canaan after the death of Terah, his father (Acts 7: 4.)
Residence of the Hebrews in Canaan and Egypt to the Exodus, 430 years, (Ex. 12: 40.)		2514	1612
[This 430 years period must span their stay in Canaan in connection with their Egyptian bondage, for immediately after Abraham reached Canaan God made a covenant with him, and Paul affirms that the Law was "given 430 years after" the covenant, (Gal. 3: 17.) and the law was given "in the third month" after the Exodus. The 430 years cover the same ground in both instances,—thus agreeing with Josephus, who states they "left Egypt . . . 430 years after our father Abraham had come into Canaan"; but 215 years only after that Jacob removed into Egypt. Paul told the truth about the 430 years: let it harmonize.]
In the wilderness after leaving Egypt, 40 years, (Josh. 5: 6.)		2554	1572
[At Mount Sinai God gave a law requiring a Sabbatical year once in seven years, and a Jubilee to begin in the seventh Sabbatical year, on the tenth day of the seventh month, (Lev. 25: 1–9.) In these years their "land" was to rest after reaching Canaan; for they had none to rest before; but God said to the people, "At the end of every seven years . . . , thou shalt read this law before all Israel." (Deut. 31: 10.) Thus they could easily tell on what year to let Canaan keep its first Sabbath, by estimating how many cycles of seven had expired in the wilderness after the giving of the law: five had passed, and the sixth Sabbatical year fell on the second year of their stay in Canaan, and on this year, "There was not a word of all that Moses commanded which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel," (Josh. 8: 35,) a second proof of a Sabbatical year.]
Sabbatical year on the second year after reaching Canaan.		2556	1570
The next Sabbatical year would be the seventh from their leaving Egypt, and consequently the first jubilee began in that year, on the tenth of the seventh month, seven years from the previous Sabbatical year.		2563	1563
That the first Sabbatical year was seven years from the giving of the law on Sinai, is evident from Ex. 21: 2, in connection with the preceding chapter: this proves the time of the first jubilee. We now give a list of jubilees, spanning forty-nine years from jubilee to jubilee; thus the jubilees will keep Bible time, while profane and inspired history will give intervening events sufficiently correct to guide us in obtaining the correct number of jubilees; even if minor discrepances should be seen, they cannot be forty-nine years.
Josephus states that Joshua led Israel 25 years after Moses' death, which would be 16 years after the first jubilee reaching to the year of the world 2579, or B.C.1547.	1st jubilee B. C. 1563 (49 years to the [2d])	2579	1547
Josephus also gives eighteen years of anarchy after the death of Joshua, "with no settled form of government."	2d jubilee B. C. 1514	2597	1529
Servitude of Israel 8 years, (Judg. 3: 8.)		2605	1521
Rest for the Israelites, 40 yrs., (Judg. 3: 11.)		2645	1481
Servitude 18 years, (Judges 3: 14.)	49 to the 3d jub.	2663	1463
Rest 80 yrs., (Judg. 3: 30.)	B.C.1465	2743	1383
Servitude 20 years, (Judges 4: 3.)	49to4jub. B.C.1416	2763	1363
Rest 40 yrs., (Judg. 5: 31.)	49to5jub.	2803	1323
Servitude 7 years, (Judges 6: 1.)	B.C.1367	2810	1316
Rest 40 yrs., (Judg. 8: 28.)	49to6jub. B.C.1318	2850	1276
Abimelech ruled 3 years, (Judges 9: 22.)	49to7jub. B.C.1269	2853	1273
Tola judged 23 yrs., (Judges 10: 2.)	49to8jub. B.C.1220	2876	1250
Jair judged 22 yrs., (Judges 10: 3.)	49to9jub. B.C.1171	2898	1228
Servitude 18 years, (Judges 10: 8.)	49to10jb.	2916	1210
Jephthah judged 6 years, (Judges 12: 7.)	B.C.1122	2922	1204
Ibzan judged 7 years, (Judges 12: 9.)	49to11jb. B.C.1073	2929	1197
Elon judged 10 yrs., (Judges 12: 11.)	49to12jb.	2939	1187
Abdon judged 8 yrs., (Judges 12: 14.)	B.C.1024	2947	1179
Servitude 40 years, (Judges 13: 1.)		2987	1139
Eli judged 40 years, (1 Sam. 4: 18.)	49to13jb.	3027	1099
Servitude 20 years, (1 Sam. 7: 2.)		3047	1079
Josephus says Samuel judged 12 yrs.,		3059	1067
Saul reigned 40 yrs., (Acts 13: 21.)	B. C. 975	3099	1027
David reigned 40 yrs., (2 Sam. 5: 4.)		3139	987
Solomon reigned 40 yrs., (1 Kin. 2: 42.)	49to14jb. B. C. 926	3179	947
Rehoboam reigned 17 yrs., 1 Kin. 14: 21.)		3196	930
Abijam reigned 3 yrs, (1 Kin. 15: 1, 2.)		3199	927
Asa reigned 41 yrs., (1 Kin. 15: 9, 10.)	49to15jb. B. C. 877	3240	886
Jehoshaphat reigned 25 years, (1 Kings 22: 41, 42.)		3265	861
Joram, [Jehoram,] reigned eight yrs., (2 Chron. 21: 1,) but began his reign in consort with his father, (2 Kin. 8: 16, 17,) "in the fifth year of Joram son of Ahab, who "began to reign in the eighteenth of Jehoshaphat"—leaving five years of Jehoram's reign after his father's death		3270	856
Ahaziah's one year reign (2 Chron. 22: 2), "began in the eleventh of Joram son of Ahab," (2 Kings 9: 29,) in consort with his father, both dying the same year, as his father's eight years began in the fifth of Joram, and his first year in the eleventh. Ahaziah died when Jehu began to reign, and in the seventh of Jehu Jehoash began to reign, (2 [illegible]) . . . seven years from Ahaziah's death	49to16jb. B. C. 828	3277	849
Jehoash reigned (2 Kings 12: 1), 40 years.		3317	809
Amaziah reigned 29 years, (2 Kin. 14: 1, 2,) but as he began his reign in the "second" of Joash's "sixteen years" reign, (2 Kin. 14: 1,) which sixteen years began in the 37th of his father's 40 yrs. reign, (2 Kings 13: 10,) he reigned 2 years before his father's death, and 27 yrs. after	49to17jb. B. C. 779	3344	782
Amaziah then fled to Lachish, (2 Chron. 25: 27,) and 12 yrs. elapsed before another king reigned, for "in the fifteenth year of Amaziah Jeroboam began to reign," (2 Kings 14: 23,) and Amaziah's son did not reign till "the twenty-seventh of Jeroboam"—a space of 12 years. (2 Kings 15: 1.)	49to18jb. B. C. 730	3356	770
Azariah [or Uzziah] reigned 52 years, (2 Kin. 15: 1-2.)		3408	718
Jotham reigned 16 years, (2 Kin. 15: 33.)		3424	702
Ahaz reigned 16 yrs., (2 Kings 16: 1, 2,) but one year in consort with his father Jotham; for Jotham began to reign in the second year of Pekah, (2 Kings 15: 32,) and Ahaz in the seventeenth of Pekah, (2 Kings 16: 1.) one year before Jotham's 16 years expired,—leaving only fifteen years for Ahaz after Jotham's death.	49to19jb, B. C. 681	3439	687
Hezekiah reigned 29 yrs, 2 Kin. 18: 1, 2)	49to20jb. B. C. 632	3468	658
Manasseh reigned 55 yrs, (2 Chron. 33: 1.)		3523	603
Amon reigned 2 yrs., (2 Chron. 33: 21.)		3525	601
Josiah reigned 31 yrs, (2 Chron. 34: 1.)		3556	570
Jehoahaz reigned 3 months, (2 Chron. 36: 2.)
Jehoiakim reigned 11 yrs., (2 Chron. 36: 5.)	49to21jb.	3567	559
Jehoiachin reigned 3 months, ten days, (2 Chron. 36: 9.) which carries us to the next year.	B. C. 583	3568	558
Captivity 70 yrs., (2 Chron. 36: 21.)		3638	488
"Going forth of the commandment"—(36: 22) 69 weeks begin		3638	488
483 years to Messiah's birth, 5 years before the Christian Era		4121	5
To the Christian Era, five years		4126	0

No one can doubt that the 70 years captivity commenced with the carrying away of Jehoiachin, with all the influential part of the inhabitants of Jerusalem (leaving only the poorer class of people), after reading the 29th chap. of Jeremiah, in connection with Ezekiel 1: 1, 2.

I. The Jubilees here prove this chronology to be correct. Ezekiel says, "It came to pass in the thirtieth year. . I was among the captives . . . the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity." Ezk. 1: 1, 2. Here the fifth year of the captivity synchronizes with the 30th year of the jubilee cycle,—for this was the Jewish practice to compute the time from one jubilee to another; besides, it was not then the thirtieth of any king of either Jerusalem or Babylon; hence, the thirtieth of the jubilee cycle is meant. The twenty-first jubilee was B. C. 583, from which subtract thirty years, and we have B. C. 553 for the fifth of the captivity of Jehoiachin; just five years after the beginning of the captivity, as given in this chronology. This proves the jubilees rightly located, and the jubilees prove our chronology correct, unless there is a mistake of just forty-nine years somewhere. This cannot be. By tracing the jubilees onward, we find A. D. 1868 will be a jubilee year.

II. This chronology proves that the "going forth of the commandment," under Cyrus, where the 69 weeks begin, was B. C. 488,—thus ending the 69 weeks in the fifth year before the Christian Era began,—the true time of Christ's birth.

III. As Daniel's 62 weeks of years (434 years) begin at the time Jerusalem's "wall" was completed in the thirty-second of Artaxerxes; and as the remaining reigns of Cyrus, Cambyses, Darius, Xerxes, and Artaxerxes, up to his thirty-second year, covered a space of 82 years, B. C. 406 is the true starting point for the beginning of this measurement of sixty-two weeks, or four hundred and thirty-four years,—reaching nearly to the crucifixion in A. D. 30, which is astronomically proven to be the true point for the cross.

IV. Also the twelvth of Artaxerxes, alias Ahashuerus, synchronizes with B. C. 426, when the Medo-Persian "Ram" was pushing for the destruction of Daniel's people, where the 2300 days begin; 70 weeks of which terminated A. D. 55, when the war against Jerusalem began; ending the 2300 days in A. D. 1875, with the "end of the indignation," thus giving time for the antitype of the feast of tabernacles,—seven years,—and the purification of the earth, and "time of trouble" on the wicked, after the saints are taken away in the Jubilee, 1868.

V. This chronology ends the 6000 years in 1875, when the old earth will give place to the new earth,—the saints having been taken away in the jubilee, 1868, seven years before,—antitype of the Ark and flood.

W. SHELDON.

Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

APPENDIX.

It will be seen that we have given a chronology reaching to the end of the captivity, or to the "going forth of the commandment" under Cyrus, B. C. 488, and have relied upon the sixty-nine weeks of years, or 483 years, to measure from this date to the birth of Messiah, B. C. 5. But some may inquire whether History gives the same length of time. We reply, it does. Unperverted history gives just 488 years from this date to the Christian Era; which era began the fifth year after the birth of Christ, as all agree,—hence, history is in perfect harmony with prophecy, and makes our chronology perfectly reliable. I know that many have made more than 488 years from Cyrus to the Christian Era, by counting the full reign of each king; whereas several kings reigned for years in consert with their fathers, and only that part of their reign which succeeded the end of their father's reign should be counted,—otherwise we count the same time twice, and get too much. The following is a list from history:—

Cyrus	reigned	6	years, to B. C.	482
Cambyses,	"	3	" " "	479
Darius,	"	20	" " "	459
Xerxes,	"	21	" " "	438
Artaxerxes,	"	32	" " "	406
Darius,	"	1	" " "	405
Artaxerxes,	"	46	" " "	359
Ochas,	"	21	" " "	338
Arogus,	"	2	" " "	336
Darius,	"	4	" " "	332
Alexander,	"	8	" " "	324
Phillipi,	"	7	" " "	317
Alexander,	"	12	" " "	305
The Ptolemys,	"	224	" " "	81
Dionysius,	"	29	" " "	52
Cleopatra,	"	22	" " "	30
Augustus,	"	30	to the Christian Era, and 43 in all.
Total,		488

Several of the kings reigned longer than the time I have specified,—but associated with their fathers. We have given only their reign from the time the reign of their predecessors ended. Some historians omitting to note the joint reign of some of these kings, produced the confusion which has hitherto prevailed on this topic. (On this point read Thurman's book.)

Now history and prophecy agree, and all is plain. Not only does history support the chronology, but Thurman's astronomical proofs appear to place it on an invulnerable basis.

Child of God! look with bright hope to the coming jubilee, in 1868, for redemption.

More anon. W. S.

CHRIST WAS POOR.

Am I poor? Do men despise me?
Do they pass me proudly by?
Then, O let me still remember,
Jesus was as poor as I.

Was as poor—nay, he was poorer;
He had neither home nor bed,
Neither friendly shade nor shelter
For his unprotected head.

Then, I'll ever cease complaining;
What though riches be not mine;
I am poor, and thus, my Savior,
Does my lot resemble thine.

Selected by M. W. H.

For the World's Crisis.

"I AM SICK, AUNT MARY."

These were the dying words of a little girl, who was burned so severely that she died soon afterwards. It was a sad hour for all, (for she was the pet of the family), as she lay dying in Aunt Mary's arms, moaning piteously and gazing up in her face so wistfully, mutely pleading for relief. How the bitter tears fell beside that poor little suffering creature! And what heart-rending sobs burst from that almost distracted mother's breast as she gazed on her idolized child, writhing in its expiring agony! Poor little soul! it was a relief when she passed away from such terrible suffering.

But there is to be a time when all such scenes as this, and every sorrow, will be over, —when the inhabitant shall never say "I am sick;" and God himself will be with them, their God, and he will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall lamentation nor crying nor pain be any more, for the former things have passed away. And little Jennie, now mouldering to dust, will wake from her slumbers, when the angel of the resurrection calls; and no throes of pain will then distort her lovely features. Those dear eyes will open bright as the stars of evening, and shine with heaven's own light. Those radiant features blooming with eternal life will vie with the flowers of paradise in beauty, the little voice that once faintly moaned in dying whispers, "I am sick"—will then sweetly join the harmonious song of victory over the grave.

How dearly you loved your little ones—perhaps little thought that they would die, so innocent, so helpless they were. You stood over their slumbers for hours, praying for their welfare, earnestly pleading for them to be spared to you; could not bear to think of giving them up from your warm heart to the cold grave so dreary. You could not think any being would harm such little gentle treasures. But there is one who delights in such deeds; he creeps up insidiously, and slays your cherished ones right before your eyes, and you cannot help yourself—he has conquered! Your tears and entreaties, your struggles and prayers, were in vain! What did he care for your sorrow? He decided to take his victim, even if it tore your heart to pieces; and you may weep long and bitterly; he looks coldly on, and passes by to kill some other little one, loved by some other mother just as dearly as you loved yours—the insatiate monster! Don't tell me such a being as this is a "friend." I don't believe a word of it. He is an enemy—heartless, cruel and bitter; he will kill a few more blooming in youth, a few more of the saints must bow to his summons; he is reigning in triumph now; but it will soon be over. He who conquered death, will overthrow his power, and destroy him forever at last.

When that radiant morning breaks through the night of death, what a glorious scene then will be! All the little babes of Bethlehem slain in hopes of slaying the conquering King of kings; and all who fell at death's command; with those who perished in the Alpine mountains cold, where cruel persecution drove the saints of God; with all who lie beneath the dark blue waves that seem to chant a requiem over the unburied dead below; poor little ones, who perished from neglect, hunger and desertion, of whom we may say, "When thy father and mother forsake thee, then the Lord will take thee up." Yes! the Lord will take them all up, in the morning. They shall hunger no more, nor thirst any more, then, not one will be left asleep. Every one of those little eyes will, with your own dear little ones, open, then, to weep no more! Believe it, ye mourning sons and daughters of sorrow! "For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

The wasted form, the hollow eye, the pale countenance, that you gazed upon in sadness, you may see then restored to beauty and health. The hand you grasped in the death-hour, you may again grasp in [illegible] recognition. The whispering voice of weakness that bade you "farewell" when your very heart seemed breaking, again you may hear, not to say "farewell," but to bid you "welcome," and the loved voice will join in the song—"O grave! where is thy victory? O death! where is thy sting?" And you may join them if you will; for "The dead in Christ shall rise first," then we, the living, who remain shall "be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air"; and so we shall always "be with the Lord." Comfort one another, therefore, with these words.

Oh! may we all be there! And "by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory, honor, immortality—eternal life" is the reward; and with them that sleep in Jesus, we shall awake, and with one of old, we may say when he calls us, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."

J. N. BERRY.

MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA QUAR. CONFERENCE.

Our quarterly meeting is turning out with blessed results, although the weather was somewhat unfavorable at first. Yet a goodly number of God's saints—precious ones of earth—came together with an expectation of seeing good done, and enjoying the fellowship of saints. Praise his name, ever so dear, they were not disappointed! All hearts seemed to soften into love, and each one resolved anew to make a faithful application of the faith and hope of the gospel to themselves, and struggle with renewed energy for holiness of heart—consecration of soul and body to God—for life and immortality, through the name of Jesus, beyond the heaven-appointed boundary of this earth, cursed by sin.

Brn. Grant of Boston, and Dixon of Peacedale, R. I., were with us, full of faith and good works. Their labors were timely, very beneficial, much appreciated, and the result will be glorious indeed. I am satisfied from what my eyes saw and my heart felt of the overflowing love and goodness of God, that a new era, morally speaking, is dawning upon the church in this vicinity; and I expect, by the blessing of God, that a harvest of souls are very soon to be gathered, preparatory to a translation to meet Jesus in his coming glory and kingdom.

The love feast (properly named) on Sunday morning was a most precious season. It was a heart-searching, soul-elevating and sin-killing time. A time when saints rejoiced, backsliders were shaken, and sinners trembled before God. Several unconverted arose for prayers, and more shed tears, resolved to secure the promised and purchased possession, that endures forever. As regards the preaching, I have only to say in this short report that it was like a diamond—cutting wherever it touched: or like the magnetic needle, to the pole star ever faithful: or like a nail in a sure place—well clinched. It was the medical properties of the pure gospel of Jesus administered by experienced hands. It touched moral disease in the right place, and a restoration to health is put beyond all question. So I say, emphatically, Hallelujah to God and the Lamb!

During the meeting the conference was called, and Bro. Babcock, acting evangelist, and Bro. Johnson, both of Jonesville, brought in a report of the progress of the cause in adjacent places. From the report we learn that although difficulties beset the progress of truth, in the form of bigotry, superstition, sectarianism and misrepresentation, yet the truth of the soon-coming kingdom is steadily increasing its influence, and making a favorable impression on the minds of many of the most loyal and intelligent persons in the communities where these truths are faithfully presented by the ministers of Christ. Bro. Babcock has immersed some thirteen persons, within a short time past, into the likeness of Christ's death, burial and resurrection, in hope of a glorious resurrection to immortality at the glorious epiphany of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us, and the church universally, make no compromise with sin or the devil, but let there be a oneness of faith, hope, spirit and energy that will accomplish the greatest amount of good in the short period of time remaining. The Lord is soon coming! Praise his name evermore.

A. N. SEYMOUR, Secretary.

PETER CARTWRIGHT.

Numerous anecdotes are related of Cartwright. Among the many, we will relate one which is strikingly characteristic of the man. In the days of President Jackson he was spending a Sunday in Louisville, Ky., and was invited by a young pastor to preach in his church in the evening. He accepted the invitation, and appeared in the pulpit. While going through the introductory exercises, Gen. Jackson came into the church and took his seat. The young preacher, whose notions of respectability were somewhat fastidious, began to exhibit considerable uneasiness for fear the rough and eccentric Cartwright might offend the President. At length he whispered to the uncouth old stranger, "Gen. Jackson is in the congregation," but the individual addressed paid no attention to the hint. Again the sentence, "Gen. Jackson is in the congregation," fell upon his ear with greater distinctness than before. The patience of the backwoods preacher was exhausted, and turning to his whispering tormentor, he exclaimed, in a tone that the entire congregation heard—"What do I care for Gen. Jackson? God will damn him as quick as any negro in Kentucky, if he doesn't repent!"

The mortified young man afterwards tried to apologize to Gen. Jackson for the roughness of Mr. Cartwright. Jackson replied, "You need not apologize for that man; if I had a regiment of such men, I could conquer old England."

SIMPLICITY IN STYLE.

A letter fell into my hands, which a Scotch servant girl had written to her lover. Its style charmed me. It was fairly inimitable. I wondered how, in her circumstances in life, she could have acquired so elegant and perfect a style. I showed the letter to some of my literary friends in New York, and they unanimously agreed that it was a model of beauty and elegance. I determined to solve my mystery, and I went to the house where she was employed, and asked how it was that in her humble circumstances in life, she had acquired a style so beautiful that the most cultivated minds could not but admire it. "Sir," she said, "I came to this country four years ago. Then I did not know how to read or write. But since then I have learned how to read and write, but I have not learned how to spell; so always, when I sit down to write a letter, I choose those words which are so short and simple that I am sure I know how to spell them."

There was the whole secret. The reply of this simple-minded Scotch girl condenses a world of rhetoric into a nutshell. Simplicity is beauty. Simplicity is power.—Fitz Greene Halleck.

WASHINGTON'S GREAT VICTORY.

[illegible]

When George Washington was a boy, he wanted to enter the navy. Like many other boys, he was anxious to go to sea. His mother gave her consent; and yet it was plain she was not willing to have him go. A midshipman's commission had been got for him, and the vessel was about to sail. The servant was at the door with his trunk. He went in to say good bye to his mother. He found her in tears. He saw the look of distress that was in her face; but she said not a word. That was enough for him. He went out and said to his servant, "Carry back my trunk to my room. I will not break my mother's heart to please myself." He gave up his commission and staid at home.

When his mother heard what he had done, "George," said she, "God has promised to bless those who honor their parents, and he will bless you." How true her words were. God did bless George Washington, and made him a blessing to his country and to the world. Washington gained many victories afterwards, but this was perhaps the most important victory he ever gained. He conquered the British at Trenton, at Monmouth, and at Yorktown; but when he gave up his own will to please his mother, he conquered himself. The Bible tells us, "He who ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city."

FRANKNESS.

Be frank with the world. Frankness is the child of honesty and courage. Say just what you mean to do on every occasion, and take it for granted you mean to do what is right. If a friend ask you a favor, you should grant it if it is reasonable; if not, tell him plainly why you cannot. You will wrong him and wrong yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or to keep one; the man who requires you to do so, is dearly purchased and at a sacrifice. Above all, do not appear to others what you are not. If you have any fault to find with any one, tell him, not others, of what you complain. There is no more dangerous experiment than of undertaking to be one thing to a man's face, and another behind his back. We should live, act and speak out of door, as the phrase is, and say and do what we are willing should be known and read by all men. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but as a matter of policy.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

HOT COALS; OR, HOW FRITZ WAS CONQUERED.

Joe Benton lived in the country. Not far from his father's home was a large pond. His cousin Herbert had given him a beautiful boat, elegantly rigged, with masts and sails, all ready to go to sea on the pond. Joe had formed a sailing company among his schoolmates. They had elected him captain. The boat was snugly stowed away in a little cave near the pond. At three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the boys were to meet and launch the boat. On the morning of this day, Joe rose bright and early. It was a lovely morning. Joe was in fine spirits. He chuckled with delight when he thought of the afternoon. "Glorious," said he to himself, as he finished dressing. "Now, I've just time to run down to the pond before breakfast, and see that the boat is all right. Then I'll hurry home and learn my lessons for Monday, so as to be ready for the afternoon, for the captain must be up to the time."

Away he went, scampering toward the cave where the boat had been left, ready for the launch. As he drew near, he saw the signs of mischief, and felt uneasy. The big stone before the cave had been rolled away. The moment he looked within, he burst into a loud cry. There was the beautiful boat which his cousin had given him, with its masts and sails all broken to pieces, and a large hole bored in the bottom.

Joe stood for a moment motionless with grief and surprise; then, with his face all red with anger, he exclaimed: "I know who did it—the mean scamp! It was Fritz Brown; and he was mad because I didn't ask him to come to the launch; but I'll pay him for this caper, see if I don't." Then he pushed back the ruined boat into the cave, and hurrying on, some way down the road, he fastened a string across the footpath, a few inches from the ground, and carefully hid himself in the bushes.

Presently a step was heard, and Joe eagerly peeped out. He expected to see Fritz coming along, but instead of that it was his cousin Herbert. He was the last person Joe cared to see just then, so he unfastened the string, and lay quiet, hoping that he would not see him. But Herbert's quick eye soon caught sight of him, and Joe had to tell him all that had happened, and wound up by saying: "But never mind; I mean to make him smart for it."

"Well, what do you mean to do, Joe?" asked Herbert.

"Why, you see Fritz carries a basket of eggs to market every morning, and I mean to trip him over this string, and smash 'em all."

Joe knew that this was not a right feeling, and expected to get a sharp lecture from his cousin; but, to his surprise, he only said, in a quiet way:

"Well, I think Fritz does deserve some punishment; but this string is on old trick; I can tell you something better than that."

"What?" cried Joe, eagerly.

"How would you like to put a few coals of fire on his head?"

"What! burn him?" asked Joe, doubtfully. His cousin nodded his head. With a queer smile, Joe clapped his hands. "Bravo!" said he, "that's just the thing, cousin Herbert. You see his hair is so thick he would'nt get burnt much before he'd have time to shake'em off; but I'd just like to see him jump once. Now, tell me how to do it—quick!"

"'If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing, thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.' There," said Herbert, "that's God's way of doing it, and I think that's the best kind of punishment that Fritz could have."

You should have seen how long Joe's face grew while Herbert was speaking. "Now, I do say, cousin Herbert," added Joe, "that's a real take in. Why, it's just no punishment at all."

"Try it once," said Herbert. "Treat Fritz kindly, and I am certain that he will feel so ashamed and unhappy, that kicking or beating him would be like fun in comparison."

Joe was not really a bad boy, but he was now in a very ill temper, and he said sullenly: "But you've told me a story, cousin Herbert. You said this kind of coals would burn, and they don't at all."

"You're mistaken about that," said Herbert. "I've known such coals burn up malice, envy, ill-feeling, and a great deal of rubbish, and then leave some cold hearts feeling as warm and pleasant as possible."

Joe drew a long sigh. "Well, tell me a good coal to put on Fritz's head, and I'll see about it."

"You know," said Herbert, "that Fritz is very poor, and can seldom buy himself a book, although he is very fond of reading, but you have quite a library. Now suppose—but no, I won't suppose anything about it. Just think over the matter, and find your own coal. But be sure to kindle it with love, for no other fire burns like that." Then Herbert sprang over the fence, and went whistling away.

Before Joe had time to collect his thoughts, he saw Fritz coming down the lane, carrying a basket of eggs in one hand and a pail of milk in the other. For a moment the thought crossed Joe's mind, "what a grand smash it would have been, if Fritz had fallen over the string!" but he drove it away in an instant, and was glad enough that the string was put away in his pocket. Fritz started and looked very uncomfortable when he first caught sight of Joe, but the good fellow began at once with "Fritz, do you have much time to read now?"

"Sometimes," said Fritz, "when I've driven the cows home and done all my work, I have a little piece of daylight left; but the trouble is, I've read every book that I can get hold of."

"How would you like to take my new book of travels?"

Fritz's eyes fairly danced. "Oh, may I? may I? I'd be so careful of it."

"Yes," answered Joe; "and perhaps I've some others you'd like to read. And Fritz," he added, a little slyly, "I would ask you to come and help sail my new boat this afternoon, but some one has gone and broken the masts, and torn up the sails, and made a great hole in the bottom. Who do you suppose did it?"

Fritz's head dropped on his breast, but after a moment he looked up with great effort, and said:

"Oh, Joe! I did it; but I can't begin to tell you how sorry I am. You didn't know I was so mean when you promised me the books, did you?"

"Well, I rather thought you did it," said Joe slowly.

"And yet you didn't"—Fritz could get no farther. He felt as if he would choke. His face was as red as a live coal. He could stand it no longer, so off he walked without saying a word.

"That coal does burn," said Joe to himself. "I know Fritz would rather I had smashed every egg in his basket than offered to lend him that book. But I feel fine." Joe took two or three somersets, and went home with a light heart and a grand appetite for breakfast.

When the captain and crew of the little vessel met at the appointed hour, they found Fritz there before them, eagerly trying to repair the injuries, and as soon as he saw Joe he hurried to present him with a beautiful flag which he had bought for the boat with a part of his egg money. The boat was repaired and launched, and made a grand trip, and everything turned out as cousin Herbert had said, for Joe's heart was so warm and full of kind thoughts, that he was never more happy in his life. And Joe found out afterwards, that the more he used of this curious kind of coal, the larger supply he had on hand—kind thoughts, kind words, and kind actions. "I declare, cousin Herbert," said he, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "I think I shall have to set up a coal yard."

I should be glad to have all of you, my young friends, engage in this branch of the coal business. If every family would be careful to keep a supply of Joe Benton's coals on hand, and make a good use of them, how happy they would be. Joe was sowing righteousness when he put that coal on Fritz's head, and he had "a sure reward" in the pleasure which it yielded him. Pleasure is one part to the reward of sowing righteousness. This is sure.—Dr. Newton.

THE THORN IN THE PILLOW.

A little girl went to visit her grandmother, some distance from her mother's and father's home; she seemed very happy all day, and she had everything around her to make her happy; but when her kind grandmother went to look at her after she was asleep, she observed a tear drop on the little girl's cheeks. "Ah," said the old lady, the next morning, you were a little homesick last night, dear."

"Oh, no, grandmother," Mabel replied, "I could never be homesick here."

It was just so the next night, and the next; at length the grandmother thought as the little girl seemed troubled, she would sit in the next chamber until the child went to sleep. Presently, although Mabel was tucked up, she began to rustle up her quilt and shake her pillow, and the grandmother thought she heard a little sob, so she went to the little girl's bed and said:

"Mabel, my child, you have got a thorn in your pillow—what is it?"

Then the little girl hid her face and began to cry aloud. The grandmother was much troubled. At length the little girl said:

"O, grandmother, when I am alone here I cannot help thinking how I said, 'I won't mother,' and I cannot unsay it; and mother is so good and loves me so, and I—I was so naughty."

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—{ One year . . . . $2.50; Six months . . . . $1.25 }
If not paid within six months,—{ One year . . . . . $3.00; Six months . . . $1.50 }
Five copies, to one address, six months $5.60
—same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, to one address, six months $10.00
—same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly:
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Single copy, 30 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any number over ten, when sent to one address, 25 cents a year for each copy.

Payable always in advance.

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

CLUBS.—[illegible]

CANADA SUBSCRIBERS [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS COMMENCE with July or January, [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, [illegible] to notify the publisher that he does not wish [illegible]

Published by request.

[illegible]

The morning sun rose bright and clear,
On Abraham's tent [illegible] gaily shone;
And all was bright and cheerful there,
All save the patriarch's heart alone.
[illegible] God's command [illegible]
[illegible]
Although his soul was all resigned,
Yet nature fondly lingered there.

The simple morning feast was spread,
And Sarah at the banquet smiled;
Joy o'er her face its lustre spread,
[illegible] her [illegible] only child.
The [illegible] eye,
Upon her cheek had left their trace;
[illegible] destiny
Was written on his heavenly face.

The grieving father turned away,
And walked the lonely tent apart;
He felt his fortitude decay,
While nature whispered in his heart—
Oh! must this son, to whom was given
The promise of a better land,
Heir to the choicest gifts of heaven,
Be slain by a fond father's hand!

This son for whom my [illegible]
Was sent an outcast from his home,
[illegible]
[illegible]
But shall a feeble worm rebel,
And murmur at a Father's rod?
Shall he be backward to fulfill
The [illegible] will of God?

Arise, my soul, [illegible]
And [illegible] the scrip with due supplies,
For we must seek Moriah's hill,
And offer there a sacrifice.
The mother raised a speaking eye,
And all a mother's soul was there;
She feared the desert dread and dry,
She feared the savage lurking there.

Abraham [illegible] and made reply,
On Him from whom our blessings flow,
My sister, (we by faith rely)—
'Tis God's command and we must go.
The [illegible] son in haste obeyed,
The scrip was filled, the mules prepared,
And with the third day's twilight shade
Moriah's lofty hill appeared.

The menials they at distance wait;
Alone ascend the son and sire;
The wood on Isaac's shoulder laid,
The wood to build his funeral pyre.
No passions swayed the father's mind,
He felt a calm, a death-like chill;
His soul was chaste and all resigned,
Bowed meekly, though he shuddered still.

While on the mountain's brow they stood,
With smiling wonder Isaac cries,—
My father, lo! the fire and wood,
But where's the lamb for sacrifice?
The Holy Spirit stayed his mind,
While Abraham answered low and calm,
With steady voice and look resigned,
God will himself provide the lamb.

But lo! the father bound his son,
And laid him on the funeral pile,
And then stretched forth his trembling hand,
And took the knife to slay his child.
While Abraham raised the blade full high
To execute his God's command,
An angel's voice as from the sky,
Cried, "Abraham, spare thy only son."

But let no pen profane like mine,
On holiest themes too rashly dare;
Turn to the Book of books divine,
And read the precious promise there.
Ages on ages rolled away,
At length the hour appointed came
When on the mountain Calvary,
God did himself provide the Lamb.

THE TIME QUESTION.—NO. 2.

BIBLE CHRONOLOGY MADE PLAIN.

Our diagram commenced the 69 weeks B. C. 488, with the commandment under Cyrus, in his first year. As all may be impressed with the plainness of the computation of these periods, from the specified starting points, and may query concerning the correctness of the Chronology given, and wish to look at the matter themselves, we propose to present a condensed chronology on a simple plan. We can present inspired testimony to prove the age of the world to the first Jubilee, and then the subsequent Jubilees (being 49 years apart) will determine whether our subsequent reckoning is correct or incorrect,—whether deduced from sacred or profane history,—as every cycle of 49 years must reach a specific point of time, and consequently a true history of events would harmonize therewith, and a defective one clash with it. Indeed, after reaching the first Jubilee, there would be no use in meddling with intervening events, and computing the reign of kings, to find the age of the world, except for the purpose of finding how many Jubilees have passed. We will give the world's age in one column of figures, and the time B. C. in another column; and when we reach the first Jubilee we will assign another column to the Jubilees. As we shall prove the world to have been created B. C. 4126, we will thus place it at the right column till we reach the point where it is demonstrated.

	Jubilees	Yr. of the World.	Year. B. C.
Man created (Gen. 1: 27) in the first of the year 1.		1	4126
Adam's age at the birth of Seth, (Gen. 5: 3)—130, (which added to the year of the world, makes its age 130; and the same being subtracted from 4126, leaves B. C. 3996. These figures we place in their respective columns. So hereafter.)		130	3996
Seth's age at the birth of Enos, 105, (Gen. 5: 6.)		235	3891
Enos' age at the birth of Cainan, 90, (Gen. 5: 9.)		325	3801
Cainan's age at the birth of Mahalaleel, 70, (Gen. 5: 12.)		395	3731
Mahalaleel's age at the birth of Jared, 65, (Gen. 5: 15.)		460	3666
Jared's age at the birth of Enoch, 162, (Gen. 5: 18.)		622	3504
Enoch's age at the birth of Methuselah, 65, (Gen. 5: 21.)		687	3439
Methuselah's age at the birth of Lamech 187, (Gen. 5: 25.)		874	3252
Lamech's age at the birth of Noah, 182, (Gen. 5: 28.)		1056	3070
Noah's age at the beginning of the flood, 600, (Gen. 7: 6.)		1656	2470
From the beginning of the flood "to dry land," 1, (Gen. 8: 13.)		1657	2469
Arphaxad born two years after the flood. (Gen. 11: 10.)		1659	2467
Age of Arphaxad at the birth of Salah, 35, (Gen. 11: 12.)		1694	2432
Age of Salah at the birth of Eber, 30, (Gen. 11: 14.)		1724	2402
Age of Eber at the birth of Peleg, 34, (Gen. 11: 16.)		1758	2368
Age of Peleg at the birth of Reu, 30, (Gen. 11: 18.)		1788	2338
Age of Reu at the birth of Serug, 32, (Gen. 11: 20.)		1820	2306
Age of Serug at the birth of Nahor, 30, (Gen. 11: 22.)		1850	2276
Age of Nahor at the birth of Terah, 29, (Gen. 11: 24.)		1879	2247
Age of Terah at his death, 205, (Gen. 11: 32.)		2084	2042
Abraham immediately went to Canaan after the death of [illegible] (Acts 7: 4.) Residence of the Hebrews in Canaan and Egypt to the exodus, 430 years (Ex. 12: 40.)		2514	1612
[illegible] must span the way in Canaan in connection with their Egyptian bondage [illegible] after Abraham reached Canaan [illegible] covenant with him [illegible] and Paul affirms that the law was "given 430 years after" the covenant, (Gal. 3: 17.) [illegible] the law was given "in the third month" after the Exodus. The 430 years cover the same ground in both instances,—thus agreeing with Josephus, who states they "left Egypt ... 430 years after our father Abraham had come into Canaan"; but 215 years only after that Jacob removed into Egypt. Paul told the truth about the 430 years: let it harmonize.]
In the wilderness after leaving Egypt, 40 years, (Josh. 5: 6.)		2554	1572
[At Mount Sinai God gave a law requiring a Sabbatical year once in seven years, and a Jubilee to begin in the seventh Sabbatical year, on the tenth day of the seventh month, (Lev. 25: 1–9.) In these years their "land" was to rest after reaching Canaan; for they had none to rest before; but God said to the people, "At the end of every seven years ... thou shalt read this law before all Israel." (Deut. 31: 10.) Thus they could easily tell on what year to let Canaan keep its first Sabbath, by estimating how many cycles of seven had expired in the wilderness after the giving of the law: five had passed, and the sixth Sabbatical year fell on the second year of their stay in Canaan, and on this year, "There was not a word of all that Moses commanded which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel," (Josh. 8: 35,) a second proof of a Sabbatical year.]
Sabbatical year on the second year after reaching Canaan.		2556	1570
The next Sabbatical year would be the seventh from their leaving Egypt, and consequently the first jubilee began in that year, on the tenth of the seventh month, seven years from the previous Sabbatical year.		2563	1563
That the first Sabbatical year was seven years from the giving of the law on Sinai, is evident from Ex. 21: 2, in connection with the preceding chapter: this proves the time of the first jubilee. We now give a list of jubilees, spanning forty-nine years from jubilee to jubilee; thus the jubilees will keep Bible time, while profane and inspired history will give intervening events sufficiently correct to guide us in obtaining the correct number of jubilees; even if minor discrepances should be seen, they cannot be forty-nine years.
Josephus states that Joshua led Israel 25 years after Moses' death, which would be 16 years after the first jubilee reaching to the year of the world 2579, or B.C. 1547.	1st jubilee B. C. 1563 (49 years to the)	2579	1547
Josephus also gives eighteen years of anarchy after the death of Joshua, "with no settled form of government."	2d jubilee B. C. 1514	2597	1529
Servitude of Israel 8 years, (Judg. 3: 8.)		2605	1521
Rest for the Israelites, 40 yrs., (Judg. 3: 11.)		2645	1481
Servitude 18 years, (Judges 3: 14.)	49 to the 3d jub. B.C. 1465	2663	1463
Rest 80 yrs., (Judg. 3: 30.)		2743	1383
Servitude 20 years, (Judges 4: 3.)	49to4jub. B.C. 1416	2763	1363
Rest 40 yrs., (Judg. 5: 31.)	49to5jub. B.C. 1367	2803	1323
Servitude 7 years, (Judges 6: 1.)		2810	1316
Rest 40 yrs., (Judg. 8: 28.)	49to6jub. B.C. 1318	2850	1276
Abimelech ruled 3 years, (Judges 9: 22.)	49to7jub. B.C. 1269	2853	1273
Tola judged 23 yrs., (Judges 10: 2.)	49to8jub. B.C. 1220	2876	1250
Jair judged 22 yrs., (Judges 10: 3.)	49to9jub. B.C. 1171	2898	1228
Servitude 18 years, (Judges 10: 8.)	49to10jb. B.C. 1122	2916	1210
Jephthah judged 6 years, (Judges 12: 7.)		2922	1204
Ibzan judged 7 years, (Judges 12: 9.)	49to11jb. B.C. 1073	2929	1197
Elon judged 10 yrs., (Judges 12: 11.)	49to12jb.	2939	1187
Abdon judged 8 yrs., (Judges 12: 14.)	B.C. 1024	2947	1179
Servitude 40 years, (Judges 13: 1.)		2987	1139
Eli judged 40 years, (1 Sam. 4: 18.)	49to13jb.	3027	1099
Servitude 20 years, (1 Sam. 7: 2.)		3047	1079
Josephus says Samuel judged 12 yrs.,		3059	1067
Saul reigned 40 yrs., (Acts 13: 21.)	B. C. 975	3099	1027
David reigned 40 yrs., (2 Sam. 5: 4.)		3139	987
Solomon reigned 40 yrs., (1 Kin. 2: 42.)	49to14jb. B. C. 926	3179	947
Rehoboam reigned 17 yrs., 1 Kin. 14: 21.)		3196	930
Abijam reigned 3 yrs, (1 Kin. 15: 1, 2.)		3199	927
Asa reigned 41 yrs., (1 Kin. 15: 9, 10.)	49to15jb. B. C. 877	3240	886
Jehoshaphat reigned 25 years, (1 Kings 22: 41, 42.)		3265	861
Joram, [Jehoram,] reigned eight yrs., (2 Chron. 21: 1,) but began his reign in consort with his father, (2 Kin. 8: 16, 17,) "in the fifth year of Joram son of Ahab, who "began to reign in the eighteenth of Jehoshaphat"—leaving five years of Jehoram's reign after his father's death		3270	856
Ahaziah's one year reign (2 Chron. 22: 2), "began in the eleventh of Joram son of Ahab," (2 Kings 9: 29,) in consort with his father, both dying the same year, as his father's eight years began in the fifth of Joram, and his first year in the eleventh [illegible] when John began to reign, and in the seventh of [illegible] began to reign, (2 Kings [illegible]) [illegible] seven years from Ahaziah's death	49to16jb. B. C. 828	3277	849
Jehoash reigned (2 Kings 12: 1), 40 years.		3317	809
Amaziah reigned 29 years, (2 Kin. 14: 1, 2,) but as he began his reign in the "second" of Joash's "sixteen years" reign, (2 Kin. 14: 1,) which sixteen years began in the 37th of his father's 40 yrs. reign, (2 Kings 13: 10,) he reigned 2 years before his father's death, and 27 yrs. after	49to17jb. B. C. 779	3344	782
Amaziah then fled to Lachish, (2 Chron. 25: 27,) and 12 yrs. elapsed before another king reigned, for "in the fifteenth year of Amaziah Jeroboam began to reign," (2 Kings 14: 23,) and Amaziah's son did not reign till "the twenty-seventh of Jeroboam"—a space of 12 years. (2 Kings 15: 1.)	49to18jb.
Azariah [or Uzziah] reigned 52 years, (2 Kin. 15: 1-2.)	B. C. 730	3356	770
		3408	718
Jotham reigned 16 years, (2 Kin. 15: 33.)		3424	702
Ahaz reigned 16 yrs., (2 Kings 16: 1, 2,) but one year in consort with his father Jotham; for Jotham began to reign in the second year of Pekah, (2 Kings 15: 32,) and Ahaz in the seventeenth of Pekah, (2 Kings 16: 1,) one year before Jotham's 16 years expired,—leaving only fifteen years for Ahaz after Jotham's death.	49to19jb, B. C. 681	3439	687
Hezekiah reigned 29 yrs, 2 Kin. 18: 1, 2)	49to20jb. B. C. 632	3468	658
Manasseh reigned 55 yrs, (2 Chron. 33: 1.)		3523	603
Amon reigned 2 yrs., (2 Chron. 33: 21.)		3525	601
Josiah reigned 31 yrs, (2 Chron. 34: 1.)		3556	570
Jehoahaz reigned 3 months, (2 Chron. 36: 2.)
Jehoiakim reigned 11 yrs., (2 Chron. 36: 5.)	49to21jb.	3567	559
Jehoiachin reigned 3 months, ten days, (2 Chron. 36: 9,) which carries us to the next year.	B. C. 583	3568	558
Captivity 70 yrs., (2 Chron. 36: 21.)		3638	488
"Going forth of the commandment"—(36: 22) 69 weeks begin		3638	488
483 years to Messiah's birth, 5 years before the Christian Era		4121	5
To the Christian Era, five years.		4126	0

No one can doubt that the 70 years captivity commenced with the carrying away of Jehoiachin, with all the influential part of the inhabitants of Jerusalem (leaving only the poorer class of people), after reading the 29th chap. of Jeremiah, in connection with Ezekiel 1: 1, 2.

I. The Jubilees here prove this chronology to be correct. Ezekiel says, "It came to pass in the thirtieth year. . I was among the captives ... the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity." Ezk. 1: 1, 2. Here the fifth year of the captivity synchronizes with the 30th year of the jubilee cycle,—for this was the Jewish practice to compute the time from one jubilee to another; besides, it was not then the thirtieth of any king of either Jerusalem or Babylon; hence, the thirtieth of the jubilee cycle is meant. The twenty-first jubilee was B. C. 583, from which subtract thirty years, and we have B. C. 553 for the fifth of the captivity of Jehoiachin; just five years after the beginning of the captivity, as given in this chronology. This proves the jubilees rightly located, and the jubilees prove our chronology correct, unless there is a mistake of just forty-nine years somewhere. This cannot be. By tracing the jubilees onward, we find A. D. 1868 will be a jubilee year.

II. This chronology proves that the "going forth of the commandment," under Cyrus, where the 69 weeks begin, was B. C. 488,—thus ending the 69 weeks in the fifth year before the Christian Era began,—the true time of Christ's birth.

III. As Daniel's 62 weeks of years (434 years) begin at the time Jerusalem's "wall" was completed in the thirty-second of Artaxerxes; and as the remaining reigns of Cyrus, Cambyses, Darius, Xerxes, and Artaxerxes, up to his thirty-second year, covered a space of 82 years, B. C. 406 is the true starting point for the beginning of this measurement of sixty-two weeks, or four hundred and thirty-four years,—reaching nearly to the crucifixion in A. D. 30, which is astronomically proven to be the true point for the cross.

IV. Also the twelfth of Artaxerxes, alias Ahashuerus, synchronizes with B. C. 426, when the Medo-Persian "Ram" was pushing for the destruction of Daniel's people, where the 2300 days begin; 70 weeks of which terminated A. D. 65, when the war against Jerusalem began; ending the 2300 days in A. D. 1875, with the "end of the indignation," thus giving time for the antitype of the feast of tabernacles,—seven years,—and the purification of the earth, and "time of trouble" on the wicked, after the saints are taken away in the Jubilee, 1868.

V. This chronology ends the 6000 years in 1875, when the old earth will give place to the new earth,—the saints having been taken away in the jubilee, 1868, seven years before,—antitype of the Ark and flood.

W. SHELDON.

Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

APPENDIX.

It will be seen that we have given a chronology reaching to the end of the captivity, or to the "going forth of the commandment" under Cyrus, B. C. 488, and have relied upon the sixty-nine weeks of years, or 483 years, to measure from this date to the birth of Messiah, B. C. 5. But some may inquire whether [illegible]

We reply, it does. Unperverted history gives just 488 years from this date to the Christian Era; which era began the fifth year after the birth of Christ, as all agree,—hence, history is in perfect harmony with prophecy, and makes our chronology perfectly reliable. I know that many have made more than 488 years from Cyrus to the Christian Era, by counting the full reign of each king; whereas several kings reigned for years in consort with their fathers, and only that part of their reign which succeeded the end of their father's reign should be counted,—otherwise we count the same time twice, and get too much. The following is a list from history:—

Cyrus	reigned	6	years,	to	B. C.	482
Cambyses,	"	3	"	"	"	479
Darius,	"	20	"	"	"	459
Xerxes,	"	21	"	"	"	438
Artaxerxes,	"	32	"	"	"	406
Darius,	"	1	"	"	"	405
Artaxerxes,	"	46	"	"	"	359
Ochus,	"	21	"	"	"	338
Arogus,	"	2	"	"	"	336
Darius,	"	4	"	"	"	332
Alexander,	"	8	"	"	"	324
Phillipi,	"	7	"	"	"	317
Alexander,	"	12	"	"	"	305
The Ptolemys,	"	224	"	"	"	81
Dionysius,	"	29	"	"	"	52
Cleopatra,	"	22	"	"	"	30
Augustus,	"	30	to the Christian Era, and 43 in all.
Total,		488

Several of the kings reigned longer than the time I have specified,—but associated with their fathers. We have given only their reign from the time the reign of their predecessors ended. Some historians omitting to note the joint reign of some of these kings, produced the confusion which has hitherto prevailed on this topic. (On this point read Thurman's book.)

Now history and prophecy agree, and all is plain. Not only does history support the chronology, but Thurman's astronomical proofs appear to place it on an invulnerable basis.

Child of God! look with bright hope to the coming jubilee, in 1868, for redemption.

More anon. W. S.

CHRIST WAS POOR.

Am I poor? Do men despise me?
Do they pass me proudly by?
Then, O let me still remember,
Jesus was as poor as I.

Was as poor—nay, he was poorer;
He had neither home nor bed,
Neither friendly shade nor shelter
For his unprotected head.

Then, I'll ever cease complaining;
What though riches be not mine;
I am poor, and thus, my Savior,
Does my lot resemble thine.

Selected by M. W. H.

For the World's Crisis.

"I AM SICK, AUNT MARY."

These were the dying words of a little girl, who was burned so severely that she died soon afterwards. It was a sad hour for all, (for she was the pet of the family), as she lay dying in Aunt Mary's arms, moaning piteously and gazing up in her face so wistfully, mutely pleading for relief. How the bitter tears fell beside that poor little suffering creature! And what heart-rending sobs burst from that almost distracted mother's breast as she gazed on her idolized child, writhing in its expiring agony! Poor little soul! it was a relief when she passed away from such terrible suffering.

But there is to be a time when all such scenes as this, and every sorrow, will be over, —when the inhabitant shall never say "I am sick;" and God himself will be with them, their God, and he will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall lamentation nor crying nor pain be any more, for the former things have passed away. And little Jennie, now mouldering to dust, will wake from her slumbers, when the angel of the resurrection calls; and no throes of pain will then distort her lovely features. Those dear eyes will open bright as the stars of evening, and shine with heaven's own light. Those radiant features blooming with eternal life will vie with the flowers of paradise in beauty, the little voice that once faintly moaned in dying whispers, "I am sick"—will then sweetly join the harmonious song of victory over the grave.

How dearly you loved your little ones—perhaps little thought that they would die, so innocent, so helpless they were. You stood over their slumbers for hours, praying for their welfare, earnestly pleading for them to be spared to you; could not bear to think of giving them up from your warm heart to the cold grave so dreary. You could not think any being would harm such little gentle treasures. But there is one who delights in such deeds; he creeps up insidiously, and slays your cherished ones right before your eyes, and you cannot help yourself—he has conquered! Your tears and entreaties, your struggles and prayers, were in vain! What did he care for your sorrow? He decided to take his victim, even if it tore your heart to pieces; and you may weep long and bitterly; he looks coldly on, and passes by to kill some other little one, loved by some other mother just as dearly as you loved yours—the insatiate monster! Don't tell me such a being as this is a "friend." I don't believe a word of it. He is an enemy—heartless, cruel and bitter; he will kill a few more blooming in youth, a few more of the saints must bow to his summons; he is reigning in triumph now; but it will soon be over. He who conquered death, will overthrow his power, and destroy him forever at last.

When that radiant morning breaks through the night of death, what a glorious scene then will be! All the little babes of Bethlehem slain in hopes of slaying the conquering King of kings; and all who fell at death's command; with those who perished in the Alpine mountains cold, where cruel persecution drove the saints of God; with all who lie beneath the dark blue waves that seem to chant a requiem over the unburied dead below; poor little ones, who perished from neglect, hunger and desertion, of whom we may say, "When thy father and mother forsake thee, then the Lord will take thee up." Yes! the Lord will take them all up, in the morning. They shall hunger no more, nor thirst any more, then, not one will be left asleep. Every one of those little eyes will, with your own dear little ones, open, then, to weep no more! Believe it, ye mourning sons and daughters of sorrow. "For if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

The wasted form, the hollow eyes, the pale countenance, that you gazed upon in sadness, you may see them restored to beauty and health. The hand you grasped in the death-hour, you may again grasp [illegible] tion. The whispering voice of weakness that bade you "farewell" when your very heart seemed breaking, again you may hear, not to say "farewell," but to bid you "welcome," and the loved voice will join in the song—"O grave! where is thy victory? O death! where is thy sting?" And you may join them if you will; for "The dead in Christ shall rise first," then we, the living, who remain shall "be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air"; and so we shall always "be with the Lord." Comfort one another, therefore, with these words.

Oh! may we all be there! And "by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory, honor, immortality—eternal life" is the reward; and with them that sleep in Jesus, we shall awake, and with one of old, we may say when he calls us, "I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."

J. N. BERRY.

MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA QUAR. CONFERENCE.

Our quarterly meeting is turning out with blessed results, although the weather was somewhat unfavorable at first. Yet a goodly number of God's saints—precious ones of earth—came together with an expectation of seeing good done, and enjoying the fellowship of saints. Praise his name, ever so dear, they were not disappointed! All hearts seemed to soften into love, and each one resolved anew to make a faithful application of the faith and hope of the gospel to themselves, and struggle with renewed energy for holiness of heart—consecration of soul and body to God—for life and immortality, through the name of Jesus, beyond the heaven-appointed boundary of this earth, cursed by sin.

Brn. Grant of Boston, and Dixon of Peacedale, R. I., were with us, full of faith and good works. Their labors were timely, very beneficial, much appreciated, and the result will be glorious indeed. I am satisfied from what my eyes saw and my heart felt of the overflowing love and goodness of God, that a new era, morally speaking, is dawning upon the church in this vicinity; and I expect, by the blessing of God, that a harvest of souls are very soon to be gathered, preparatory to a translation to meet Jesus in his coming glory and kingdom.

The love feast (properly named) on Sunday morning was a most precious season. It was a heart-searching, soul-elevating and sin-killing time. A time when saints rejoiced, backsliders were shaken, and sinners trembled before God. Several unconverted arose for prayers, and more shed tears, resolved to secure the promised and purchased possession, that endures forever. As regards the preaching, I have only to say in this short report that it was like a diamond—cutting wherever it touched: or like the magnetic needle, to the pole star ever faithful: or like a nail in a sure place—well clinched. It was the medical properties of the pure gospel of Jesus administered by experienced hands. It touched moral disease in the right place, and a restoration to health is put beyond all question. So I say, emphatically, Hallelujah to God and the Lamb!

During the meeting the conference was called, and Bro. Babcock, acting evangelist, and Bro. Johnson, both of Jonesville, brought in a report of the progress of the cause in adjacent places. From the report we learn that although difficulties beset the progress of truth, in the form of bigotry, superstition, sectarianism and misrepresentation, yet the truth of the soon-coming kingdom is steadily increasing its influence, and making a favorable impression on the minds of many of the most loyal and intelligent persons in the communities where these truths are faithfully presented by the ministers of Christ. Bro. Babcock has immersed some thirteen persons, within a short time past, into the likeness of Christ's death, burial and resurrection, in hope of a glorious resurrection to immortality at the glorious epiphany of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us, and the church universally, make no compromise with sin or the devil, but let there be a oneness of faith, hope, spirit and energy that will accomplish the greatest amount of good in the short period of time remaining. The Lord is soon coming! Praise his name evermore.

A. N. SEYMOUR, Secretary.

PETER CARTWRIGHT.

Numerous anecdotes are related of Cartwright. Among the many, we will relate one which is strikingly characteristic of the man. In the days of President Jackson he was spending a Sunday in Louisville, Ky., and was invited by a young pastor to preach in his church in the evening. He accepted the invitation, and appeared in the pulpit. While going through the introductory exercises, Gen. Jackson came into the church and took his seat. The young preacher, whose notions of respectability were somewhat fastidious, began to exhibit considerable uneasiness for fear the rough and eccentric Cartwright might offend the President. At length he whispered to the uncouth old stranger, "Gen. Jackson is in the congregation," but the individual addressed paid no attention to the hint. Again the sentence, "Gen. Jackson is in the congregation," fell upon his ear with greater distinctness than before. The patience of the backwoods preacher was exhausted, and turning to his whispering tormentor, he exclaimed, in a tone that the entire congregation heard—"What do I care for Gen. Jackson? God will damn him as quick as any negro in Kentucky, if he doesn't repent!"

The mortified young man afterwards tried to apologize to Gen. Jackson for the roughness of Mr. Cartwright. Jackson replied, "You need not apologize for that man; if I had a regiment of such men, I could conquer old England."

SIMPLICITY IN STYLE.

A letter fell into my hands, which a Scotch servant girl had written to her lover. Its style charmed me. It was fairly inimitable. I wondered how, in her circumstances in life, she could have acquired so elegant and perfect a style. I showed the letter to some of my literary friends in New York, and they unanimously agreed that it was a model of beauty and elegance. I determined to solve my mystery, and I went to the house where she was employed, and asked how it was that in her humble circumstances in life, she had acquired a style so beautiful that the most cultivated minds could not but admire it. "Sir," she said, "I came to this country four years ago. Then I did not know how to read or write. But since then I have learned how to read and write, but I have not learned how to spell; so always, when I sit down to write a letter, I choose those words which are so short and simple that I am sure I know how to spell them."

There was the whole secret. The reply of this simple-minded Scotch girl, condenses a world of rhetoric into a nutshell. Simplicity is beauty. Simplicity is power. [illegible]

WASHINGTON'S GREAT VICTORY.

[illegible]

When George Washington was a boy, he wanted to enter the navy. Like many other boys, he was anxious to go to sea. His mother gave her consent; and yet it was plain she was not willing to have him go. A midshipman's commission had been got for him, and the vessel was about to sail. The servant was at the door with his trunk. He went in to say good bye to his mother. He found her in tears. He saw the look of distress that was in her face; but she said not a word. That was enough for him. He went out and said to his servant, "Carry back my trunk to my room. I will not break my mother's heart to please myself." He gave up his commission and staid at home.

When his mother heard what he had done, "George," said she, "God has promised to bless those who honor their parents, and he will bless you." How true her words were. God did bless George Washington, and made him a blessing to his country and to the world. Washington gained many victories afterwards, but this was perhaps the most important victory he ever gained. He conquered the British at Trenton, at Monmouth, and at Yorktown; but when he gave up his own will to please his mother, he conquered himself. The Bible tells us, "He who ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city."

FRANKNESS.

Be frank with the world. Frankness is the child of honesty and courage. Say just what you mean to do on every occasion, and take it for granted you mean to do what is right. If a friend ask you a favor, you should grant it if it is reasonable; if not, tell him plainly why you cannot. You will wrong him and wrong yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or to keep one; the man who requires you to do so, is dearly purchased and at a sacrifice.

Above all, do not appear to others what you are not. If you have any fault to find with any one, tell him, not others, of what you complain. There is no more dangerous experiment than of undertaking to be one thing to a man's face, and another behind his back. We should live, act and speak out of door, as the phrase is, and say and do what we are willing should be known and read by all men. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but as a matter of policy.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

HOT COALS; OR, HOW FRITZ WAS CONQUERED.

Joe Benton lived in the country. Not far from his father's home was a large pond. His cousin Herbert had given him a beautiful boat, elegantly rigged, with masts and sails, all ready to go to sea on the pond. Joe had formed a sailing company among his schoolmates. They had elected him captain. The boat was snugly stowed away in a little cave near the pond. At three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the boys were to meet and launch the boat. On the morning of this day, Joe rose bright and early. It was a lovely morning. Joe was in fine spirits. He chuckled with delight when he thought of the afternoon. "Glorious," said he to himself, as he finished dressing. "Now, I've just time to run down to the pond before breakfast, and see that the boat is all right. Then I'll hurry home and learn my lessons for Monday, so as to be ready for the afternoon; for the captain must be up to the time."

Away he went, scampering toward the cave where the boat had been left, ready for the launch. As he drew near, he saw the signs of mischief, and felt uneasy. The big stone before the cave had been rolled away. The moment he looked within, he burst into a loud cry. There was the beautiful boat which his cousin had given him, with its masts and sails all broken to pieces, and a large hole bored in the bottom.

Joe stood for a moment motionless with grief and surprise; then, with his face all red with anger, he exclaimed: "I know who did it—the mean scamp! It was Fritz Brown; and he was mad because I didn't ask him to come to the launch; but I'll pay him for this caper, see if I don't." Then he pushed back the ruined boat into the cave, and hurrying on, some way down the road, he fastened a string across the footpath, a few inches from the ground, and carefully hid himself in the bushes.

Presently a step was heard, and Joe eagerly peeped out. He expected to see Fritz coming along, but instead of that it was his cousin Herbert. He was the last person Joe cared to see just then, so he unfastened the string, and lay quiet, hoping that he would not see him. But Herbert's quick eye soon caught sight of him, and Joe had to tell him all that had happened, and wound up by saying: "But never mind; I mean to make him smart for it."

"Well, what do you mean to do, Joe?" asked Herbert.

"Why, you see Fritz carries a basket of eggs to market every morning, and I mean to trip him over this string, and smash'em all."

Joe knew that this was not a right feeling, and expected to get a sharp lecture from his cousin; but, to his surprise, he only said, in a quiet way:

"Well, I think Fritz does deserve some punishment; but this string is an old trick; I can tell you something better than that."

"What?" cried Joe, eagerly.

"How would you like to put a few coals of fire on his head?"

"What! burn him?" asked Joe, doubtfully. His cousin nodded his head. With a queer smile, Joe clapped his hands. "Bravo!" said he, "that's just the thing, cousin Herbert. You see his hair is so thick he would'nt get burnt much before he'd have time to shake'em off; but I'd just like to see him jump once. Now, tell me how to do it—quick!"

"'If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing, thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.' There," said Herbert, "that's God's way of doing it, and I think that's the best kind of punishment that Fritz could have."

You should have seen how long Joe's face grew while Herbert was speaking. "Now, I do say, cousin Herbert," added Joe, "that's a real take in. Why, it's just no punishment at all."

"Try it once," said Herbert. "Treat Fritz kindly, and I am certain that he will feel so ashamed and unhappy, that kicking or beating him would be like fun in comparison."

Joe was not really a bad boy, but he was now in a very ill temper, and he said sullenly: "But you've told me a story, cousin Herbert. You said this kind of coals would burn, and they don't at all."

"You're mistaken about that," said Herbert. "I've known such coals burn up malice, envy, ill-feeling, and a great deal of rubbish, and then leave some cold hearts feeling as warm and pleasant as possible."

Joe drew a long sigh. "Well, tell me a good coal to put on Fritz's head, and I'll see about it."

"You know," said Herbert, "that Fritz is very poor and can seldom buy himself a book, although he is very fond of reading, but you have quite a library. Now suppose [illegible] bert sprang over the fence, and went whistling away.

Before Joe had time to collect his thoughts, he saw Fritz coming down the lane, carrying a basket of eggs in one hand and a pail of milk in the other. For a moment the thought crossed Joe's mind, "what a grand smash it would have been, if Fritz had fallen over the string!" but he drove it away in an instant, and was glad enough that the string was put away in his pocket. Fritz started and looked very uncomfortable when he first caught sight of Joe, but the good fellow began at once with "Fritz, do you have much time to read now?"

"Sometimes," said Fritz, "when I've driven the cows home and done all my work, I have a little piece of daylight left; but the trouble is, I've read every book that I can get hold of."

"How would you like to take my new book of travels?"

Fritz's eyes fairly danced. "Oh, may I? may I? I'd be so careful of it."

"Yes," answered Joe; "and perhaps I've some others you'd like to read. And Fritz," he added, a little slyly, "I would ask you to come and help sail my new boat this afternoon, but some one has gone and broken the masts, and torn up the sails, and made a great hole in the bottom. Who do you suppose did it?"

Fritz's head dropped on his breast, but after a moment he looked up with great effort, and said:

"Oh, Joe! I did it; but I can't begin to tell you how sorry I am. You didn't know I was so mean when you promised me the books, did you?"

"Well, I rather thought you did it," said Joe slowly.

"And yet you didn't"—Fritz could get no farther. He felt as if he would choke. His face was as red as a live coal. He could stand it no longer, so off he walked without saying a word.

"That coal does burn," said Joe to himself. "I know Fritz would rather I had smashed every egg in his basket than offered to lend him that book. But I feel fine." Joe took two or three somersets, and went home with a light heart and a grand appetite for breakfast.

When the captain and crew of the little vessel met at the appointed hour, they found Fritz there before them, eagerly trying to repair the injuries, and as soon as he saw Joe he hurried to present him with a beautiful flag which he had bought for the boat with a part of his egg money. The boat was repaired and launched, and made a grand trip, and everything turned out as cousin Herbert had said, for Joe's heart was so warm and full of kind thoughts, that he was never more happy in his life. And Joe found out afterwards, that the more he used of this curious kind of coal, the larger supply he had on hand—kind thoughts, kind words, and kind actions. "I declare, cousin Herbert," said he, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "I think I shall have to set up a coal yard."

I should be glad to have all of you, my young friends, engage in this branch of the coal business. If every family would be careful to keep a supply of Joe Benton's coals on hand, and make a good use of them, how happy they would be. Joe was sowing righteousness when he put that coal on Fritz's head, and he had "a sure reward" in the pleasure which it yielded him. Pleasure is one part to the reward of sowing righteousness. This is sure.—Dr. Newton.

THE THORN IN THE PILLOW.

A little girl went to visit her grandmother, some distance from her mother's and father's home; she seemed very happy all day, and she had everything around her to make her happy; but when her kind grandmother went to look at her after she was asleep, she observed a tear drop on the little girl's cheeks. "Ah," said the old lady, the next morning, you were a little homesick last night, dear."

"Oh, no, grandmother," Mabel replied, "I could never be homesick here."

It was just so the next night, and the next; at length the grandmother thought as the little girl seemed troubled, she would sit in the next chamber until the child went to sleep. Presently, although Mabel was tucked up, she began to rustle up her quilt and shake her pillow, and the grandmother thought she heard a little sob, so she went to the little girl's bed and said:

"Mabel, my child, you have got a thorn in your pillow—what is it?"

Then the little girl hid her face and began to cry aloud. The grandmother was much troubled. At length the little girl said:

"O, grandmother, when I am alone here I cannot help thinking how I said, 'I won't mother,' and I cannot unsay it; and mother is so good and loves me so, and I—I was so naughty."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance,—{ One year............$2.50 / Six months...........$1.25 }

If not paid within six months,—{ One year......$3.00 / Six months.....$1.50 }

Five copies, to one address, six months..........$5.60 —same rate for any larger number under ten.

Ten copies, to one address, six months...........$10.00 —same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly:

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

[illegible]

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due and ordered their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 476. BOSTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 9.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.
MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.
PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. P. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.
GEORGE T. ADAMS, TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HOURS OF DEVOTION.

To the dim coolness of this shade,
Father in Heaven, we come;
Our gift be on the altar laid,
Where sweetest vows to Thee we've made
In days long past—so oft have prayed
In life's-spring's early bloom.

O! joyful as the wild bird sings
Among these tasseled boughs,
Where brightly green, the wild bird flings
Its tendrils round each branch, and clings—
I praise Thy name, and 'neath Thy wings
My soul finds sweet repose.

The poplar waves its quiv'ring leaves
In leafy coolness o'er my head,
While pensive mem'ry fondly weaves
Dreams of the past,—my spirit grieves,
And tender sighs my bosom heaves,
For her, the dearly loved and dead.

The sister dear that with me played
In happy childhood's golden hours,—
With me hath often sought this shade,
To Thee so oft hath with me prayed,—
Here plans for future bliss we laid,
When hope and joy and love were ours.

But we shall meet, shall bend the knee
In a fairer world than this!
We shall pluck from the boughs of "Life's fair tree"!
Its glorious King in beauty we'll see!
Our song shall the song of the ransomed be
When He comes in that land of bliss!

East Roxbury, Vt. E. McELLISTER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW CHRONOLOGY.

"Have you read Thurman's Chronology?" "What do you think about it?" "Have you confidence in his calculations?"

Such are the questions put to me by the readers of "our paper" as I pass through the country. To all these questions I make no very special answer, further than to say that I barely glanced over the pages of the book the other day, and have not as yet given it any very particular examination, if, indeed, I were competent to do so.

Pending such an investigation of the matter as perhaps may be made by some one more competent than myself, I beg leave to offer a few suggestions upon outside topics.

It is not best, I think, for our good brethren to be in too great haste about adopting new theories on definite time or on any other subject. Some of them, I find, make up their minds quite readily and change them very reluctantly, being very unwilling to yield their convictions to any evidence that can be presented to them. It is quite right for such to be "swift to hear," and they may also well be a little "slow to speak," since when they do speak they speak so positively and so persistently. They may quite properly offer the Scotchman's prayer—"O Lord, keep thy servant from doing wrong, for thou knowest that when he once gets started it is dreadful hard to turn him."

Many thousands of the readers of the World's Crisis have never passed through the ordeal of a "time and cry," nor witnessed the results of a disappointment in this direction. It has been my fortune to observe these things somewhat carefully during the last twenty-two years, and I think in that time I have known of not less than ten or fifteen different times being fixed for the end of all things, and fixed too with all the positiveness that great confidence could inspire. Such an observation ought to teach somebody something. And if those participating in such movements have not gained all the wisdom that they might, I, a mere looker-on in this matter, and sometimes reproached, disowned, and disfellowshiped, for not endorsing what I believed were manifest errors, ought to have learned a lesson of caution and discretion in these things.

Some persons were so certain that the Lord would come in 1844, that for years after they declared that he did come then. Some were so sure that the prophetic periods would end in 1844, that they to this day declare that they did then terminate. Some were so sure that "the midnight cry" was made in 1844, that they still hold fast the faith that it did then occur, and Eld. Thurman adopts this view, and puts down in his chronological table "the midnight cry" of Matt. xxv. as accomplished at that time. Others, who were then equally certain that that was the midnight cry, have since been just as certain that the true midnight cry was made in 1854, or at various other times.

All this positiveness in error reminds me of one of old who said man should not surely die, and who ever since has tried to prove that he was not dead when he did die.

Many persons, too, are just as positive now that God specially sent them to publish those "definite times," as they were before their failure was proved. They must excuse me if my faith is not so strong, because if I believed the theory was an error before it failed, as in 1854, it would be too much to expect me to own it as a truth afterwards.

Of course it is interesting to know that an infidel has been converted by the study of the Bible, but yet, converted infidels are no better teachers than many others, and seven years' study of chronology is no very long period for many who will read these lines have been [illegible] investigating that subject full three times as long, with what care and oportunities they could afford.

And Mr. Miller was also a converted infidel, and for more than seven years studied this subject; yet he erred somewhat, and some of his followers, who not having studied it seven weeks were much more sanguine in their faith than he, were yet doomed to disappointment.

Probably John Stevenson of Toronto, Canada West, has spent at least fifteen or twenty years in constructing the largest chronological charts perhaps ever made. I saw one of them fourteen years ago which was some sixty feet in length, and he has for some six or eight years past been working on another which I have never seen, but which is said to be two hundred and forty feet long, and three feet and eight inches wide. He has consulted hosts of authorities, and he is confident that Thurman's positions are wrong, and yet I am not certain that Bro. S— is fully correct, nor will one man in an hundred be able to verify his calculations and tell whether he is right or not, except as they confide in his judgment and in his undoubted integrity of purpose.

If, by original methods of research, Elder Thurman has, after seven years' study, constructed a new system of chronology, he still may have some errors in his scheme. Many of his points, which are new to some, such as the decree being issued by Cyrus—the periods in the ninth chapter of Daniel reaching to Jerusalem's overthrow—the ceasing of "the sacrifice and oblation" during the siege of Jerusalem—the confirming of the covenant with many at the same time (though I think the covenant is not what he supposes)—the sixty-nine weeks reaching to the birth of Messiah the prince, etc., are no new things to prophetic students, and have been published both in England and in this country long ago, and seem to be just as probably true to me as they have seemed in years past when some of our good friends were tinkering up their "sliding scale" arrangements, talking about "the twentieth year of Artaxerxes," and applying these prophecies and periods in other directions. I think seven minutes quite long enough to render any of these points probable to a candid mind, unless there was some '43, or '44, or '54 theory in the way to prevent their reception. There are other of his positions, such as concerning the "seven times" in Leviticus, the "great tree" in Daniel fourth chapter, "the midnight cry" in 1844, etc., which it would, I presume, take as much as seven years to convince me of, as I have already stood out some twenty years against some of them, and am still incredulous.

I trust we may all get some light from Eld. Thurman's work. But probably seven months will be short enough time for any competent person to examine its expositions, search out its references, verify its calculations, settle its dates, and present a fair and reliable statement of the facts in the case, provided any such person could be found competent and willing to undertake the work.

But no opinion based upon a hasty or cursory examination of this or any other chronological system ought to carry conviction to candid and discerning minds. We must remember that many of our dear brethren were as confident of the correctness of their time theories a few years ago, as Eld. Thurman or any one else can possibly be of this or any other theory;—that with some the belief in those theories was made a test of co-operation in labor, and that they would not associate in gospel preaching with men who saw errors that they did not see, and who were unable to pronounce their shibboleths concerning "the time and cry."

I lived through all that hurricane, telling the friends that for several years before I had been trying to clear away the rubbish of previous shipwrecks, and that when they had got through with that excitement I should go to work to repair damages and pick up the pieces again. I have had plenty of this work to do, unaided by many who, having rode the whirlwind, were quite willing to step into other regions where they were unknown, and leave to other hands the work of strengthening the things that remain and that are ready to die.

Experiences like these should lead us all to act cautiously. We need not wait for chronological reckonings before we begin to serve God, wait for Christ, sell and give alms, prepare to meet the Lord, and warn mankind of their swift approaching doom. There are tokens of coming redemption, thank God, which do not depend on Ptolemy's canon or human chronologies. We may act on these, assured that unless we make haste the Master will be here before our work is done and we are ready to meet him.

But the man who unravels the complicated web of human chronology will have to work long and patiently. He will need "the gift of tongues" long before he reaches the bottom of the subject. He will need sound judgment, patient research, and wisdom that cometh from above. He will find the subject vast and somewhat intricate. It almost needs the glance of One with whom "one day is as a thousand years," to survey the whole field and form correct conclusions. I pray God to guide us all in this matter. We need all the light we can obtain. I bid the searchers for truth God speed, but still I feel it duty to say a word of caution to all.

My duties in camp and elsewhere leave me little time to study at present. Yet I hope to learn and know the truth as it is in Christ. I have just been driven from my camp fires by the snows that for the past few weeks have whitened the distant hills and warned me that I could dwell in tents no more at present. God has been with us. The work done will be revealed in the coming day. To-morrow, if it please God, I hope to see my family and embrace my loved and little ones once more, and gain a little rest. Then, for new labors, [illegible] and cares. May God give strength equal to the day; patience to bear abuse; quietness of spirit amid "perils among false brethren"; faith, to walk in duty's path; hope, for a helmet on my head; and above all charity, which is the girdle of perfectness. Pray for us.

Your Bro., H. L. HASTINGS.

W——, Me., Nov. 2nd, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

THE FALL.

BY O. R. FASSETT.

Adam, as the father and progenitor of our race, was its representative head, and as such was placed under law—the law of works, obedience to which would insure to himself and his posterity everlasting life and eternal blessings; disobedience, entail sin, sorrow and death through time.

God's original purpose respecting the human family no doubt was, that Adam should replenish and fill the earth with a holy progeny, and, if men would keep their first estate during a period of probation of longer or shorter duration, he would then immortalize them, and fix them in a state beyond the possibility of a fall; as are the angels which kept their first estate. The period of man's first probation may have been fixed in the mind of God, as now revealed in reference to his present condition,—six thousand years; and in the seventh millenary have judged and rewarded him.

But Adam, the head and representative of our race, fell; plunged in guilt, and woe, and death, through disobedience and rebellion, and involved the whole of his posterity in the same lamentable ruin. Hence the scripture: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Rom. 5: 12.

"He ate the interdicted fruit and fell;
And in his fall, his universal race;
For they in him by delegation were,
In him to stand or fall—to live or die."
—Pollok.

Waters, poisoned or corrupt at the fountain head, cause all the streams issuing therefrom to be impregnated with evil; so the human family, in all its several branches, descending from one common parentage, became corrupt in sin and involved in one common ruin. The ruin that followed disobedience was threefold, causing sin, sorrow, death (Rom. 5: 12; Gen. 3: 17), and involved man's moral, intellectual and physical nature, together with the earth, his inheritance, which was subjected to the curse.

1st. Man's moral nature became depraved and corrupt. Adam and Eve, created in the image of God and in his likeness, were originally holy and pure as the angels in heaven. But no sooner did they disobey and rebel against their Maker than they became at once tainted with evil, and sin took possession of their natures, which before were so sinless and innocent and pure. Their minds, like that of their whole posterity, became "carnal," at "enmity against God, . . . not subject to the law of God," but in open revolt and hostility to his pure and holy nature and perfect law.

The moral natures of men have so degenerated as to sink them below the level of the brutes, subjected to vanity by the curse entailed upon them through the disobedience of man. The moral pollutions, filthiness, lustful desires and appetites, debauchery and crime, which characterize men and nations unchristianized and uninfluenced by grace, have sunk them in sottish degradation far below the beast which has no moral accountability. Rom. 1: 21–32. Man's moral nature through the fall has been so ruined that the Scriptures represent him to be "dead in trespasses and sins."

2nd. Man's intellectual nature has suffered and been ruined by the fall. The powers of mind that Adam possessed were far above those of any of his descendants conceived in sin, and were of a superior and high order. He had knowledge of the whole domain of nature placed under his dominion, save of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil." Yet God endeavored to reveal to him, and did, the fearful effects that would be produced by the eating of its fruits.

Adam was the best geologist—understanding the structure of the globe he possessed from the hand of God—that ever lived. He was the best botanist of his race, having knowledge of trees and plants and vegetable products and seeds after their several kinds; and the wisest horticulturist to till the soil, and dress and keep its Eden garden. He was a perfect zoologist, understanding so well the intricate natures of the various animal tribes of the earth, fishes of the sea, and fowls of the air, that "he gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to the beast of the field," as "the Lord God brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them; and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof"; and no subsequent zoologist has even seen fit to change those names, so fit and expressive of their natures.

The knowledge and wisdom of Adam was intuitive—perceived by the mind immediately. His perceptive organs were so largely developed, and his reflective faculties of such high order, that he had only to look and perceive objects under his vision, or brought to his senses, to judge and decide at once upon their qualities or natures.

But now, under the fall, the mind of man has become dwarfed and crippled. Knowledge is obtained only by long experience and the closest application to study. Memory is so treacherous that the lessons we learn must be constantly repeated or we forget them; and our faculties of perception and reflection are naturally so dormant that they must be constantly stimulated to effort, or we sink into ignorance again.

Age blunts the powers of mind. Memory first fails, the king of the faculties, and which keeps control over the citadel of the mind. With a failing memory judgment and reflection follow, and soon the aged pilgrim becomes for the second time a child in knowledge and judgment, to be cared for as an infant. With death his mind is gone.

Disease injures the mental powers. Long and protracted illness will cause the decay of mental power. The softening of the brain will gradually dethrone the reason and judgment of the most intelligent and wisest of men, so that they cannot take care of their persons. And hence under the effects of the curse we perceive that the mind of man, the thinking part of his nature, is brought into ruin by protracted years, disease, and death. Intelligence dies out either slowly, as the candle burning in the socket, or suddenly, as put out by violence when as yet but half consumed.

"Worn by slowly rolling years,
Or broke by sickness in a day,
The fading glory disappears,
The short-lived beauties die away."

The extinction of intelligence in death is most clearly revealed in the Scriptures. Eccl. 9: 4–6, 10. "Grave," in this verse, is not translated from the word kever, but sheol (Heb.), the same as hades (Greek), signifying the state of the dead. If there is a place in the state of the dead where "dead men are alive," as it is affirmed, they are there in existence without "knowledge" or "wisdom."

Ps. 6: 5 teaches that "in death there is no remembrance," even of God. The king of the intellectual faculties is extinct; for if man in death can remember anything, it will be his God. Ps. 115: 17 announces that "the dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." This being the settled conviction of the Psalmist, he concludes to praise the Lord while he lives: "While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being"; plainly intimating that in death he expected his being would cease. It therefore becomes his earnest inquiry, "Wilt thou show wonders to the dead? shall the dead arise and praise thee?" The same inquiry that agitated Job in the view of dissolution: "If a man die, shall he live?"

Hezekiah supposed that when HE should "die and not live," God had told him the truth, as he wept and repented and prayed to live, and God added to his days fifteen years. He expected in death God would "make an end" of his being: "Thou wilt make an end of me,"—"of the life of his spirit,"—of his "soul," consigning it to "the pit of corruption." Therefore he says, "The grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth. The living, the living shall praise thee, as I do this day."—Isa. 38.

God said to Adam in the beginning, "In the day that thou eatest thereof, dying thou shalt die." Satan, the Father of liars, affirmed in contradiction, "Ye shall not surely die." Who has declared the truth? God, or Satan? Satan still adheres to his great lie, and as boldly affirms to the human family, in the face of the word of God, changing the form of the language to meet the present condition of man under the fall—"Ye do not surely die." "God doth know that only the body dies;—the soul lives; and ye are as gods, knowing good and evil in death." This lie he will propagate to the judgment of the great day, to deceive men, against the gospel which brings life and immortality to light. Beware of his falsehood!

3rd. Man's body has been ruined by the fall. "In sorrow" and "in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 17, 19. This truth is so self-evident that no man can by any means be deceived by Satan, or possibly deny it.

Therefore under the curse the ruin of man becomes complete; his happiness is exchanged for sorrow; his pure moral nature for a depraved and fleshly and sensual filthiness; his intelligence for extinction of knowledge and mind; his beautiful person and form, created in the image of God, brought down into corruption and the dust from which he was originally created. If, therefore, there had been made no provision for man's redemption through the promised seed, in what condition would the curse have left him? Would he not have perished in death without any hope of future life?

To have let man go unpunished after his sin would not have been consistent with God's character nor veracity, and it would have been dangerous to his moral government of the universe. To have consigned him to endless, hopeless torment and misery would have proved Satan a true prophet—"Ye shall not surely die"; and veiled the attribute of God's love and goodness forever; while his justice would have been so obscured as to appear seemingly a tyrant revenging an injury with implacable hatred to all eternity! He was too good, too just, to do this. His goodness and justice must be harmonized in man's destruction in death. And "lest he should put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever," "he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubim, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life." Gen. 3: 22–24.

Thanks be to God, that the race of men were not condemned to eternal, hopeless misery and rebellion. The end is shadowed from the beginning. The wicked hereafter have no access to the tree of life, lest they take of "the tree of life, and eat, and live forever."—Rev. 21: 8; 22: 14, 15; 20: 14, 15; Psa. 104: 35.

4th. Man's inheritance was ruined by the fall. Gen. 3: 18. It "beareth thorns and briers"; it "waxeth old" and "fadeth away." "The curse hath devoured the earth."

[illegible]
Rocks, fenns, and burning sands;
[illegible]

And the Bible concludes the story: "That which beareth briers and thorns is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned."

The earth, like other stars in the heavens which have been set on flame and consumed and disappeared from the firmament, would have been consumed and shattered, and its material particles been scattered throughout the universe, had it not been for the redemption in Jesus Christ, by which it is subjected in hope of a restitution from the fiery element.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BETTER DAY.

O! I long for the day when our trials shall end,
When earth's conflicts and strife will be o'er;
When our Lord will appear with the crown of reward,
Here to reign with his saints evermore.

O! I long for the day when our fears will be past,
When the enemy's reign will be o'er;
When the sad hour of parting with those that we love,
Will be known and feared nevermore.

O! I long for the day when the dead ones shall live,
Who now sleep in the dust of the tomb;
When with shouts they will come from the enemy's land,
Evermore in bright glory to bloom.

O! I long for the day when the city prepared,
To earth in its beauty shall come;
When the weary and waiting shall all find a rest,
Here as pilgrims no longer to roam.

O! I long to be there, with the glad ransomed host,
That with joy on Mount Zion shall sing;
When the earth "robed in beauty" shall be our abode,
And the Lord Jesus Christ be our King.

W. H. B.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

SECTARIANISM.

Christian union. That sounds well, certainly. It is well. Christians ought to be united in the great work of saving themselves and others from perdition. They ought to unite in spreading gospel light and truth. People who profess to be followers of the Savior, ought to love each other surely, and try to help each other on toward the kingdom. In what way? we'll talk about that directly.

But here comes another cry. Don't be sectarian! Ah! I stop to examine that. Have been thinking about it some time. Have asked myself some questions and come to some conclusions. What do people mean when they cry Sectarian? Bro. Wellcome has defined the term. Does any one see anything very bad in it? People may wrap themselves up in a cloak of self-righteousness, walk stately and dignified, and say by their actions to all who do not see just as they do, "Stand off, I am holier than thou;" and hurl brickbats, or hard sayings, to all those who do not think just as they do, and accuse them of all manner of evil; but that is not "Sectarianism." I should call it bigotry, or something worse. It is no way to open people's eyes to throw brickbats or pitchforks at them. There is great danger of putting them out entirely. Give them strong truth in gentle words if you wish to do them good.

I have heard and read a great deal about "union" and "working together," for the last few months. Well, how shall we work with another society in order to do good and get good? O! you must leave doctrine behind. But we cannot talk without talking doctrine of some kind. There is the doctrine of the Bible, doctrines of men, and doctrines of devils; we cannot talk at all without talking some of these. Which shall we talk?

You know that you believe some things that are very objectionable to the churches. You can drop those points and tell people about loving God, and getting ready for death, and that Christ died to save sinners. Bless you! if we stopped there we should leave the story of the Cross half untold. My dear friends, if you want me to work with any company whatever you must let me work with my own tools. I must tell them my own joys and hopes, and the reasons for them. If I tell sinners Christ died to save them, I want to tell them what he died to save them from. If I point them to the reward, I must tell them what the reward is, and when it is to be given. And when I tell them to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, I want them to know where the kingdom is to be. And if I see a sword coming, I must warn the people, or their blood will be required at my hand.

"You are a Sectarian." Well I do not deny that,—but I want to know how christians can help each other unless they try to lead each other on? Let us compare lights. If anybody has got a better one than we have, with a better kind of oil, we'll throw ours away and take their kind. If ours is the best, we want them to have the benefit of it. Will you keep your light for your own especial benefit, and never show it because everybody else does not have one just like it?

There are a great many kinds of oil in these last days of invention. Some are safe, while others are very explosive; and you feel while using them that there is death in them. Just so with doctrinal oils. There is one kind that is safe and pure. It will burn in summer or winter, in rain or shine, in joy or sorrow, in prosperity or adversity. Water cannot quench it. Fire cannot explode it. It is the doctrine of the Bible—the faith once delivered to the saints. In this time of delusion, when men are left to believe lies, there are many unsafe, explosive oils. They are the doctrines of men and devils. Oh! when the fire of the last day runs over the earth, what an explosion there will be among the false lights and spurious oils.

After you have searched the Scriptures carefully and prayerfully, your lamp trimmed and burning, and tested by the law and the testimony, and are satisfied that you have got pure gospel oil, and can witness to the glory that hath shone from it into your own heart; will you hide it under a bushel, and, to please the multitude, go forth with a lamp in your hand that you are afraid will destroy yourself and others? God forbid.

Will you hide your light and be a dark lantern among the people because they have lived so long in the dark that their eyes are weak? Supposing they do wink, and blink, and cry out, and flutter at first; it wont hurt them. Let them see a little of the glory that flows from the word of God in blessed rivers of salvation. It will do them good if there is any good in them, and if not, it may alarm them and cause them to seek a hiding-place in Jesus.

Let your light shine! no matter if you are called a Sectarian. I wonder if Jesus was not a "Sectarian," when he preached his own gospel in the streets and synagogues of Jerusalem, right among those Jews who boasted of being the chosen of God. No doubt he hurt the feelings of the priests very much, upsetting their doctrines and drawing away "much people" after him. If the law and the sacrifices were done away, those lazy priests who had lived on the fat of the land and dressed in purple and fine linen so long, might have to go to work for a living.

Hear Paul: "If any man preach any other gospel unto you . . . let him be accursed." Why, Paul! do you think that all the preachers are going to be cursed who do not preach just as you do? How sectarian! Paul had been a great favorite in the old church. Without doubt they had praised his talents and learning, and had commended his zeal in persecuting the sect of the Nazarenes. I suppose Paul loved his brethren and highly prized their good opinion. And he loved the old church and was very zealous in her service. But he got new light in that journey to Damascus. What then? Why, as soon as he had got his lamp filled with gospel oil, and the wick lighted with the fire of the Holy Ghost, he let his light shine, and began to build up the very sect he had been trying to tear down. He did not stop to confer with flesh and blood, but cried, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" And when it was told him what to do he went about the work. But he thought about his old brethren and wanted to save them, so he went up to Jerusalem. Did he leave the truth behind him? No, he carried it with him and got imprisonment and bonds for his pains. Why didn't he go to them and say, Well, brethren, I've come back to see you and labor with you awhile. You needn't be troubled about my preaching strange doctrines. To be sure, I have changed my views a little, but I wont trouble you with them. I'll keep my new light to myself and preach something that you believe. Ah! that was not like Paul,—he shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. He kept nothing back.

Stephen did not make a compromise with his persecutors, and agree not to preach Jesus and the resurrection; nor to tell them of their sins. No! he preached a sermon right there, that pricked them to the heart. True, he lost his life, but he heard the voice of Jesus saying, "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

But I have written too much. Brethren and sisters of the "sect everywhere spoken against," God bless you. Keep your lamps trimmed and burning, and let them so shine in word and deed, that those who sit in darkness may see the light and rejoice in it.

B. P. FRENCH.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."—Mal. 3: 17.

Who shall be mine? Those that feared the Lord, and spake often one to another. It is a positive fact that those who in sincerity love and fear our Father in heaven, will meet together very often, and with heartfelt delight converse upon the glorious theme of salvation through Christ our great Deliverer.

But what could have been the topic of conversation, as the prophet saw them speaking to each other, and which was so pleasing in the sight of God as to call forth the great and important promise, "I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him"; referring to a period of time close to the great day of his wrath, when he would destroy the wicked, as fire would burn up the dry stubble? For the prophet refers to the time when God would make up his jewels, and then he would spare or save them from the dreadful storm of wrath that would immediately fall on the ungodly.

How precious is that promise to those who love and fear God; who love to meet together and talk about the coming and kingdom of the Savior and Life-giver. I think the prophet must have had a view of the time in which we live, and of our meetings, when we meet together and converse about our Savior's coming to set up his everlasting kingdom, and take his Bride to himself. And the words of our dear Savior elsewhere in the Bible agree with the prophet where he says, "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my Father and the holy angels." And, also, how exactly does the passage agree with the text recorded thus: "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him."

So you see, dear reader, we are perfectly safe as long as we are faithful in doing our duty before God.

But how dreadful must be the situation of those who have rejected the kind invitations of the gospel all their life, and abused the dear Redeemer by setting at naught his counsels; and according to all we can learn from holy writ, they are to be destroyed, or burned up root and branch in the flames of fire and brimstone, which will be the second and final death to all the resurrected who died in their sins, and a final destruction to all the wicked who are alive when Christ comes. But the sinner who may read this, I entreat you to think of the awful agony of the second death, where God will destroy both soul and body in gehenna, or in the valley of slaughter! The apostle in referring to the dreadful scene says, "There shall be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." You that have lived in sin all your days, take heed that [illegible] while there is yet a moment's time left for you to repent, and secure an interest in that dear Friend of sinners, who is fully able and willing to shield you from the dreadful storm of wrath that is about to burst upon an ungodly world; for if you take refuge in Christ you will be perfectly safe, and our heavenly Father will remember you when he makes up his jewels, and bring you into his everlasting kingdom.

And now I would say a few words to those who believe the soul of man is immortal, and will be preserved alive in misery to all eternity! How is it that inspiration brings to view the fire that burns as an oven, and the wicked as stubble (the very picture of destruction), to show that the punishment of the wicked is extinction of being, if the wicked are immortal, and are to be kept alive in misery forever? We want the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and may the good Lord help us to search for it as for hidden treasure of infinite value.

But how are the wicked dead going to be punished if they are not raised to life, as some say they will not be? I wish those [illegible] would tell me if they know how it can be done; for a dead sinner cannot feel any punishment if he is not raised to life; and we do not wish to believe that our heavenly Father is partial in punishing the wicked who are alive when Christ comes, by burning them up in fire and brimstone, and at the same time let the wicked dead remain dead and get clear of deserved punishment, when many of the wicked dead were ten times as guilty as those who are alive and to be destroyed when Christ comes! O consistency! thou art a jewel!

Let us have all the truth, and we will try to profit thereby; and we know that the truth in all parts of the Bible will harmonize with itself; but false constructions given to the word of God will make it clash badly. May the good Lord lead us into all the truth, and prepare us for his coming and kingdom, and take us to himself when he comes to make up his jewels.

B. F[illegible].

Brattleboro, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CONTRAST.

"For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time (or during our sojourn here) are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."—Rom. 8: 18.

Now for the contrast. Here we labor; there we rest. Here stripes above measure may be inflicted upon us; there we shall reign with Jesus. Here we may be put in prisons for our true faith in Christ; but there we shall enjoy glorious liberty. Here the saints suffer death; but there the gift of God is eternal life. Here the poor saints of God have been in perils of water, and robbers; and in perils by the heathen, in the city, in the wilderness, in the sea, and among false brethren; but there is to be an inheritance awarded to all the humble followers of the Lamb, that shall be incorruptible, undefiled, and that will never fade away. Yes, glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life shall we have; and our bodies fashioned like Christ's most glorious body, too!

That is not all; we shall have salvation with eternal glory, and an abundant entrance into God's everlasting kingdom, there to sit with Christ on his throne, and reign forever and ever with him. Here we may suffer weariness and painfulness; but there shall be no more pain. Here is our night for watching and praying; but there shall be no night, and no need of supplications. Here we are made to suffer from hunger and thirst; but there they will hunger and thirst no more. Here we are called to the duty of fasting often; but there we shall have right to the tree of life, and never fast. Here we may suffer from cold and nakedness; but there we shall put on immortality.

So that we may justly conclude, that our light afflictions which are but for a moment, are not worthy to be compared with that far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Amen!

P. EATON.

For the World's Crisis.

EXAMPLE BETTER THAN PRECEPT.

Precept, without example, is as fruitless as the earth without the rain and sunshine. The pointing out the way without first walking in it, amounts to very little. It is not the way the apostles did, nor even the great men of the world. For instance, Napoleon, the most idolized of all generals, shared the privations of his followers. And the successes of Washington were gained many times by making example go hand in hand with precept.

And the illustrious One left not alone the divine precept; but, filled with compassion and humility, he trod the earth with dusty sandals and sweaty brow. When ever he met the lowliest, he passed them not by but with words of love and deeds of mercy. In his discourses he taught us fortitude and resignation, and in his daily walks set for us the example. For an example of resignation he struggled in Gethsemane, with drops of blood oozing from every pore. He also exemplified the thrilling magnitude of his mission upon the cross, while the rocks were rent and the sun veiled its face, refusing to look upon the awful scene.

Then let us, christian friends, as we present the truth of the speedy [illegible] of Gentile rule, convince others that we ourselves believe what we preach by living prepared to meet Jesus should he come at any moment. And let us live so that when we present practical godliness to the people they cannot throw our words back into our faces and say, [illegible] First live it yourselves. [illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 476. BOSTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1864. VOL. XX.—NO. 9.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. O. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. P. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HOURS OF DEVOTION.

To the dim coolness of this shade,
Father in Heaven, we come;
Our gift be on the altar laid,
Where sweetest vows to Thee we've made
In days long past—so oft have prayed
In life's-spring's early bloom.

O! joyful as the wild bird sings
Among these tasseled boughs,
Where brightly green, the wild bird flings
Its tendrils round each branch, and clings—
I praise Thy name, and 'neath Thy wings
My soul finds sweet repose.

The poplar waves its quiv'ring leaves
In leafy coolness o'er my head,
While pensive mem'ry fondly weaves
Dreams of the past,—my spirit grieves,
And tender sighs my bosom heaves,
For her, the dearly loved and dead.

The sister dear that with me played
In happy childhood's golden hours,—
With me hath often sought this shade,
To Thee so oft hath with me prayed,—
Here plans for future bliss we laid,
When hope and joy and love were ours.

But we shall meet, shall bend the knee
In a fairer world than this!
We shall pluck from the boughs of "Life's fair tree"!
Its glorious King in beauty we'll see!
Our song shall the song of the ransomed be
When He comes in that land of bliss!

East Roxbury, Vt. E. McELLISTER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW CHRONOLOGY.

"Have you read Thurman's Chronology?" "What do you think about it?" "Have you confidence in his calculations?"

Such are the questions put to me by the readers of "our paper" as I pass through the country. To all these questions I make no very special answer, further than to say that I barely glanced over the pages of the book the other day, and have not as yet given it any very particular examination, if, indeed, I were competent to do so.

Pending such an investigation of the matter as perhaps may be made by some one more competent than myself, I beg leave to offer a few suggestions upon outside topics.

It is not best, I think, for our good brethren to be in too great haste about adopting new theories on definite time or on any other subject. Some of them, I find, make up their minds quite readily and change them very reluctantly, being very unwilling to yield their convictions to any evidence that can be presented to them. It is quite right for such to be "swift to hear," and they may also well be a little "slow to speak," since when they do speak they speak so positively and so persistently. They may quite properly offer the Scotchman's prayer—"O Lord, keep thy servant from doing wrong, for thou knowest that when he once gets started it is dreadful hard to turn him."

Many thousands of the readers of the World's Crisis have never passed through the ordeal of a "time and cry," nor witnessed the results of a disappointment in this direction. It has been my fortune to observe these things somewhat carefully during the last twenty-two years, and I think in that time I have known of not less than ten or fifteen different times being fixed for the end of all things, and fixed too with all the positiveness that great confidence could inspire. Such an observation ought to teach somebody something. And if those participating in such movements have not gained all the wisdom that they might, I, a mere looker-on in this matter, and sometimes reproached, disowned, and disfellowshiped, for not endorsing what I believed were manifest errors, ought to have learned a lesson of caution and discretion in these things.

Some persons were so certain that the Lord would come in 1844, that for years after they declared that he did come then. Some were so sure that the prophetic periods would end in 1844, that they to this day declare that they did then terminate. Some were so sure that "the midnight cry" was made in 1844, that they still hold fast the faith that it did then occur, and Eld. Thurman adopts this view, and puts down in his chronological table "the midnight cry" of Matt. xxv. as accomplished at that time. Others, who were then equally certain that that was the midnight cry, have since been just as certain that the true midnight cry was made in 1854, or at various other times.

All this positiveness in error reminds me of one of old who said man should not surely die, and who ever since has tried to prove that he was not dead when he did die.

Many persons, too, are just as positive now that God specially sent them to publish those "definite times," as they were before their failure was proved. They must excuse me if [illegible] investigating that subject full three times as long, with what care and oportunities they could afford.

And Mr. Miller was also a converted infidel, and for more than seven years studied this subject; yet he erred somewhat, and some of his followers, who not having studied it seven weeks were much more sanguine in their faith than he, were yet doomed to disappointment.

Probably John Stevenson of Toronto, Canada West, has spent at least fifteen or twenty years in constructing the largest chronological charts perhaps ever made. I saw one of them fourteen years ago which was some sixty feet in length, and he has for some six or eight years past been working on another which I have never seen, but which is said to be two hundred and forty feet long, and three feet and eight inches wide. He has consulted hosts of authorities, and he is confident that Thurman's positions are wrong, and yet I am not certain that Bro. S— is fully correct, nor will one man in an hundred be able to verify his calculations and tell whether he is right or not, except as they confide in his judgment and in his undoubted integrity of purpose.

If, by original methods of research, Elder Thurman has, after seven years' study, constructed a new system of chronology, he still may have some errors in his scheme. Many of his points, which are new to some, such as the decree being issued by Cyrus—the periods in the ninth chapter of Daniel reaching to Jerusalem's overthrow—the ceasing of "the sacrifice and oblation" during the siege of Jerusalem—the confirming of the covenant with many at the same time (though I think the covenant is not what he supposes)—the sixty-nine weeks reaching to the birth of Messiah the prince, etc., are no new things to prophetic students, and have been published both in England and in this country long ago, and seem to be just as probably true to me as they have seemed in years past when some of our good friends were tinkering up their "sliding scale" arrangements, talking about "the twentieth year of Artaxerxes," and applying these prophecies and periods in other directions. I think seven minutes quite long enough to render any of these points probable to a candid mind, unless there was some '43, or '44, or '54 theory in the way to prevent their reception. There are other of his positions, such as concerning the "seven times" in Leviticus, the "great tree" in Daniel fourth chapter, "the midnight cry" in 1844, etc., which it would, I presume, take as much as seven years to convince me of, as I have already stood out some twenty years against some of them, and am still incredulous.

I trust we may all get some light from Eld. Thurman's work. But probably seven months will be short enough time for any competent person to examine its expositions, search out its references, verify its calculations, settle its dates, and present a fair and reliable statement of the facts in the case, provided any such person could be found competent and willing to undertake the work.

But no opinion based upon a hasty or cursory examination of this or any other chronological system ought to carry conviction to candid and discerning minds. We must remember that many of our dear brethren were as confident of the correctness of their time theories a few years ago, as Eld. Thurman or any one else can possibly be of this or any other theory;—that with some the belief in those theories was made a test of co-operation in labor, and that they would not associate in gospel preaching with men who saw errors that they did not see, and who were unable to pronounce their shibboleths concerning "the time and cry."

I lived through all that hurricane, telling the friends that for several years before I had been trying to clear away the rubbish of previous shipwrecks, and that when they had got through with that excitement I should go to work to repair damages and pick up the pieces again. I have had plenty of this work to do, unaided by many who, having rode the whirlwind, were quite willing to step into other regions where they were unknown, and leave to other hands the work of strengthening the things that remain and that are ready to die.

Experiences like these should lead us all to act cautiously. We need not wait for chronological reckonings before we begin to serve God, wait for Christ, sell and give alms, prepare to meet the Lord, and warn mankind of their swift approaching doom. There are tokens of coming redemption, thank God, which do not depend on Ptolemy's canon or human chronologies. We may act on these, assured that unless we make haste the Master will be here before our work is done and we are ready to meet him.

But the man who unravels the complicated web of human chronology will have to work long and patiently. He will need "the gift of tongues" long before he reaches the bottom of the subject. He will need sound judgment, patient research, and wisdom that cometh from above. He will find the subject vast and somewhat intricate. It almost needs the glance of One with whom "one day is as a thousand years," to survey the whole field and form correct conclusions. I pray God to guide us all in this matter. We need all the light we can obtain. I bid the searchers for truth God speed, but still I feel it duty to say a word of caution to all.

My duties in camp and elsewhere leave me little time to study at present. Yet I hope [illegible] and cares. May God give strength equal to the day; patience to bear abuse; quietness of spirit amid "perils among false brethren"; faith, to walk in duty's path; hope, for a helmet on my head; and above all charity, which is the girdle of perfectness. Pray for us.

Your Bro., H. L. HASTINGS.

W——, Me., Nov. 2nd, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

THE FALL.

BY O. R. FASSETT.

Adam, as the father and progenitor of our race, was its representative head, and as such was placed under law—the law of works, obedience to which would insure to himself and his posterity everlasting life and eternal blessings; disobedience, entail sin, sorrow and death through time.

God's original purpose respecting the human family no doubt was, that Adam should replenish and fill the earth with a holy progeny, and, if men would keep their first estate during a period of probation of longer or shorter duration, he would then immortalize them, and fix them in a state beyond the possibility of a fall; as are the angels which kept their first estate. The period of man's first probation may have been fixed in the mind of God, as now revealed in reference to his present condition,—six thousand years; and in the seventh millenary have judged and rewarded him.

But Adam, the head and representative of our race, fell; plunged in guilt, and woe, and death, through disobedience and rebellion, and involved the whole of his posterity in the same lamentable ruin. Hence the scripture: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Rom. 5:12.

"He ate the interdicted fruit and fell;
And in his fall, his universal race;
For they in him by delegation were,
In him to stand or fall—to live or die."
—Pollok.

Waters, poisoned or corrupt at the fountain head, cause all the streams issuing therefrom to be impregnated with evil; so the human family, in all its several branches, descending from one common parentage, became corrupt in sin and involved in one common ruin. The ruin that followed disobedience was threefold, causing sin, sorrow, death (Rom. 5:12; Gen. 3:17), and involved man's moral, intellectual and physical nature, together with the earth, his inheritance, which was subjected to the curse.

1st. Man's moral nature became depraved and corrupt. Adam and Eve, created in the image of God and in his likeness, were originally holy and pure as the angels in heaven. But no sooner did they disobey and rebel against their Maker than they became at once tainted with evil, and sin took possession of their natures, which before were so sinless and innocent and pure. Their minds, like that of their whole posterity, became "carnal," at "enmity against God, . . . not subject to the law of God," but in open revolt and hostility to his pure and holy nature and perfect law.

The moral natures of men have so degenerated as to sink them below the level of the brutes, subjected to vanity by the curse entailed upon them through the disobedience of man. The moral pollutions, filthiness, lustful desires and appetites, debauchery and crime, which characterize men and nations unchristianized and uninfluenced by grace, have sunk them in sottish degradation far below the beast which has no moral accountability. Rom. 1:21–32. Man's moral nature through the fall has been so ruined that the Scriptures represent him to be "dead in trespasses and sins."

2nd. Man's intellectual nature has suffered and been ruined by the fall. The powers of mind that Adam possessed were far above those of any of his descendants conceived in sin, and were of a superior and high order. He had knowledge of the whole domain of nature placed under his dominion, save of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil." Yet God endeavored to reveal to him, and did, the fearful effects that would be produced by the eating of its fruits.

Adam was the best geologist—understanding the structure of the globe he possessed from the hand of God—that ever lived. He was the best botanist of his race, having knowledge of trees and plants and vegetable products and seeds after their several kinds; and the wisest horticulturist to till the soil, and dress and keep its Eden garden. He was a perfect zoologist, understanding so well the intricate natures of the various animal tribes of the earth, fishes of the sea, and fowls of the air, that "he gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to the beast of the field," as "the Lord God brought them unto Adam to see what he would call them; and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof"; and no subsequent zoologist has even seen fit to change those names, so fit and expressive of their natures.

The knowledge and wisdom of Adam was intuitive—perceived by the mind immediately. His perceptive organs were so largely developed, and his reflective faculties of such high order, that he had only to look and perceive objects under his vision, or brought to his senses, to judge and decide at once upon their qualities or natures.

But now, under the fall, the mind of man has become dwarfed and crippled. Knowl- [illegible] keeps control over the citadel of the mind. With a failing memory judgment and reflection follow, and soon the aged pilgrim becomes for the second time a child in knowledge and judgment, to be cared for as an infant. With death his mind is gone.

Disease injures the mental powers. Long and protracted illness will cause the decay of mental power. The softening of the brain will gradually dethrone the reason and judgment of the most intelligent and wisest of men, so that they cannot take care of their persons. And hence under the effects of the curse we perceive that the mind of man, the thinking part of his nature, is brought into ruin by protracted years, disease, and death. Intelligence dies out either slowly, as the candle burning in the socket, or suddenly, as put out by violence when as yet but half consumed.

"Worn by slowly rolling years,
Or broke by sickness in a day,
The fading glory disappears,
The short-lived beauties die away."

The extinction of intelligence in death is most clearly revealed in the Scriptures. Eccl. 9:4–6, 10. "Grave," in this verse, is not translated from the word kever, but sheol (Heb.), the same as hades (Greek), signifying the state of the dead. If there is a place in the state of the dead where "dead men are alive," as it is affirmed, they are there in existence without "knowledge" or "wisdom."

Ps. 6:5 teaches that "in death there is no remembrance," even of God. The king of the intellectual faculties is extinct; for if man in death can remember anything, it will be his God. Ps. 115:17 announces that "the dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence." This being the settled conviction of the Psalmist, he concludes to praise the Lord while he lives: "While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being"; plainly intimating that in death he expected his being would cease. It therefore becomes his earnest inquiry, "Wilt thou show wonders to the dead? shall the dead arise and praise thee?" The same inquiry that agitated Job in the view of dissolution: "If a man die, shall he live?"

Hezekiah supposed that when HE should "die and not live," God had told him the truth, as he wept and repented and prayed to live, and God added to his days fifteen years. He expected in death God would "make an end" of his being: "Thou wilt make an end of me,"—"of the life of his spirit,"—of his "soul," consigning it to "the pit of corruption." Therefore he says, "The grave cannot praise thee, death cannot celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth. The living, the living shall praise thee, as I do this day."—Isa. 38.

God said to Adam in the beginning, "In the day that thou eatest thereof, dying thou shalt die." Satan, the Father of liars, affirmed in contradiction, "Ye shall not surely die." Who has declared the truth? God, or Satan? Satan still adheres to his great lie, and as boldly affirms to the human family, in the face of the word of God, changing the form of the language to meet the present condition of man under the fall—"Ye do not surely die." "God doth know that only the body dies;—the soul lives; and ye are as gods, knowing good and evil in death." This lie he will propagate to the judgment of the great day, to deceive men, against the gospel which brings life and immortality to light. Beware of his falsehood!

3rd. Man's body has been ruined by the fall. "In sorrow" and "in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3:17, 19. This truth is so self-evident that no man can by any means be deceived by Satan, or possibly deny it.

Therefore under the curse the ruin of man becomes complete; his happiness is exchanged for sorrow; his pure moral nature for a depraved and fleshly and sensual filthiness; his intelligence for extinction of knowledge and mind; his beautiful person and form, created in the image of God, brought down into corruption and the dust from which he was originally created. If, therefore, there had been made no provision for man's redemption through the promised seed, in what condition would the curse have left him? Would he not have perished in death without any hope of future life?

To have let man go unpunished after his sin would not have been consistent with God's character nor veracity, and it would have been dangerous to his moral government of the universe. To have consigned him to endless, hopeless torment and misery would have proved Satan a true prophet—"Ye shall not surely die"; and veiled the attribute of God's love and goodness forever; while his justice would have been so obscured as to appear seemingly a tyrant revenging an injury with implacable hatred to all eternity! He was too good, too just, to do this. His goodness and justice must be harmonized in man's destruction in death. And "lest he should put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever," "he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubim, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life."—Gen. 3:22–24.

Thanks be to God, that the race of men were not condemned to eternal, hopeless misery and rebellion. The end is shadowed from the beginning. The wicked hereafter have no access to the tree of life, lest they take of [illegible]

And the Bible concludes the story: "That which beareth briers and thorns is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned."

The earth, like other stars in the heavens which have been set on flame and consumed and disappeared from the firmament, would have been consumed and shattered, and its material particles been scattered throughout the universe, had it not been for the redemption in Jesus Christ, by which it is subjected in hope of a restitution from the fiery element.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BETTER DAY.

O! I long for the day when our trials shall end,
When earth's conflicts and strife will be o'er;
When our Lord will appear with the crown of reward,
Here to reign with his saints evermore.

O! I long for the day when our fears will be past,
When the enemy's reign will be o'er;
When the sad hour of parting with those that we love,
Will be known and feared nevermore.

O! I long for the day when the dead ones shall live,
Who now sleep in the dust of the tomb;
When with shouts they will come from the enemy's land,
Evermore in bright glory to bloom.

O! I long for the day when the city prepared,
To earth in its beauty shall come;
When the weary and waiting shall all find a rest,
Here as pilgrims no longer to roam.

O! I long to be there, with the glad ransomed host,
That with joy on Mount Zion shall sing;
When the earth "robed in beauty" shall be our abode,
And the Lord Jesus Christ be our King.

W. H. B.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN UNION.

SECTARIANISM.

Christian union. That sounds well, certainly. It is well. Christians ought to be united in the great work of saving themselves and others from perdition. They ought to unite in spreading gospel light and truth. People who profess to be followers of the Savior, ought to love each other surely, and try to help each other on toward the kingdom. In what way? we'll talk about that directly.

But here comes another cry. Don't be sectarian! Ah! I stop to examine that. Have been thinking about it some time. Have asked myself some questions and come to some conclusions. What do people mean when they cry Sectarian? Bro. Wellcome has defined the term. Does any one see anything very bad in it? People may wrap themselves up in a cloak of self-righteousness, walk stately and dignified, and say by their actions to all who do not see just as they do, "Stand off, I am holier than thou;" and hurl brickbats, or hard sayings, to all those who do not think just as they do, and accuse them of all manner of evil; but that is not "Sectarianism." I should call it bigotry, or something worse. It is no way to open people's eyes to throw brickbats or pitchforks at them. There is great danger of putting them out entirely. Give them strong truth in gentle words if you wish to do them good.

I have heard and read a great deal about "union" and "working together," for the last few months. Well, how shall we work with another society in order to do good and get good? O! you must leave doctrine behind. But we cannot talk without talking doctrine of some kind. There is the doctrine of the Bible, doctrines of men, and doctrines of devils; we cannot talk at all without talking some of these. Which shall we talk?

You know that you believe some things that are very objectionable to the churches. You can drop those points and tell people about loving God, and getting ready for death, and that Christ died to save sinners. Bless you! if we stopped there we should leave the story of the Cross half untold. My dear friends, if you want me to work with any company whatever you must let me work with my own tools. I must tell them my own joys and hopes, and the reasons for them. If I tell sinners Christ died to save them, I want to tell them what he died to save them from. If I point them to the reward, I must tell them what the reward is, and when it is to be given. And when I tell them to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, I want them to know where the kingdom is to be. And if I see a sword coming, I must warn the people, or their blood will be required at my hand.

"You are a Sectarian." Well I do not deny that,—but I want to know how christians can help each other unless they try to lead each other on? Let us compare lights. If anybody has got a better one than we have, with a better kind of oil, we'll throw ours away and take their kind. If ours is the best, we want them to have the benefit of it. Will you keep your light for your own especial benefit, and never show it because everybody else does not have one just like it?

There are a great many kinds of oil in these last days of invention. Some are safe, while others are very explosive; and you feel while using them that there is death in them. Just so with doctrinal oils. There is one kind that is safe and pure. It will burn in summer or winter, in rain or shine, in joy or sorrow, in prosperity or adversity. Water cannot quench it. Fire cannot explode it. It is the doctrine of the Bible—the faith once delivered to the saints. In this time of delusion, when men are left to believe lies, there are many unsafe, explosive oils. They are the doctrines of men and devils. Oh! when the fire of the last day runs over the earth, what an explosion there will be among the false lights and spurious oils. [illegible]

Will you hide your light and be a dark lantern among the people because they have lived so long in the dark that their eyes are weak? Supposing they do wink, and blink, and cry out, and flutter at first; it wont hurt them. Let them see a little of the glory that flows from the word of God in blessed rivers of salvation. It will do them good if there is any good in them, and if not, it may alarm them and cause them to seek a hiding-place in Jesus.

Let your light shine! no matter if you are called a Sectarian. I wonder if Jesus was not a "Sectarian," when he preached his own gospel in the streets and synagogues of Jerusalem, right among those Jews who boasted of being the chosen of God. No doubt he hurt the feelings of the priests very much, upsetting their doctrines and drawing away "much people" after him. If the law and the sacrifices were done away, those lazy priests who had lived on the fat of the land and dressed in purple and fine linen so long, might have to go to work for a living.

Hear Paul: "If any man preach any other gospel unto you . . . let him be accursed." Why, Paul! do you think that all the preachers are going to be cursed who do not preach just as you do? How sectarian! Paul had been a great favorite in the old church. Without doubt they had praised his talents and learning, and had commended his zeal in persecuting the sect of the Nazarenes. I suppose Paul loved his brethren and highly prized their good opinion. And he loved the old church and was very zealous in her service. But he got new light in that journey to Damascus. What then? Why, as soon as he had got his lamp filled with gospel oil, and the wick lighted with the fire of the Holy Ghost, he let his light shine, and began to build up the very sect he had been trying to tear down. He did not stop to confer with flesh and blood, but cried, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" And when it was told him what to do he went about the work. But he thought about his old brethren and wanted to save them, so he went up to Jerusalem. Did he leave the truth behind him? No, he carried it with him and got imprisonment and bonds for his pains. Why didn't he go to them and say, Well, brethren, I've come back to see you and labor with you awhile. You needn't be troubled about my preaching strange doctrines. To be sure, I have changed my views a little, but I wont trouble you with them. I'll keep my new light to myself and preach something that you believe. Ah! that was not like Paul,—he shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God. He kept nothing back.

Stephen did not make a compromise with his persecutors, and agree not to preach Jesus and the resurrection; nor to tell them of their sins. No! he preached a sermon right there, that pricked them to the heart. True, he lost his life, but he heard the voice of Jesus saying, "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

But I have written too much. Brethren and sisters of the "sect everywhere spoken against," God bless you. Keep your lamps trimmed and burning, and let them so shine in word and deed, that those who sit in darkness may see the light and rejoice in it.

B. P. FRENCH.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

"And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."—Mal. 3:17.

Who shall be mine? Those that feared the Lord, and spake often one to another. It is a positive fact that those who in sincerity love and fear our Father in heaven, will meet together very often, and with heartfelt delight converse upon the glorious theme of salvation through Christ our great Deliverer.

But what could have been the topic of conversation, as the prophet saw them speaking to each other, and which was so pleasing in the sight of God as to call forth the great and important promise, "I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him"; referring to a period of time close to the great day of his wrath, when he would destroy the wicked, as fire would burn up the dry stubble? For the prophet refers to the time when God would make up his jewels, and then he would spare or save them from the dreadful storm of wrath that would immediately fall on the ungodly.

How precious is that promise to those who love and fear God; who love to meet together and talk about the coming and kingdom of the Savior and Life-giver. I think the prophet must have had a view of the time in which we live, and of our meetings, when we meet together and converse about our Savior's coming to set up his everlasting kingdom, and take his Bride to himself. And the words of our dear Savior elsewhere in the Bible agree with the prophet where he says, "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my Father and the holy angels." And, also, how exactly does the passage agree with the text recorded thus: "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him."

So you see, dear reader, we are perfectly safe as long as we are faithful in doing our duty before God.

But how dreadful must be the situation of those who have rejected the kind invitations of the gospel all their life, and abused the dear Redeemer by setting at naught his counsels; and according to all we can learn from [illegible]

apostle in referring to the dreadful [illegible]: "There shall be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth." You that have lived in sin all your days, come to the dear Savior while there is yet a moment's time left for you to repent, and secure an interest in this dear Friend of sinners, who is fully able and willing to shield you from the dreadful storm of wrath that is about to burst upon this ungodly world; for if you take refuge in Christ you will be perfectly safe, and our heavenly Father will remember you when he makes up his jewels, and bring you into his everlasting kingdom.

And now I would say a few words to those who believe the soul of man is immortal, and will be preserved alive in misery to all eternity! How is it that Inspiration brings to view the fire that burns as an oven, and the wicked as stubble (the very picture of destruction), to show that the punishment of the wicked is extinction of being, if the wicked are immortal, and are to be kept alive in misery forever? We want the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and may the good Lord help us to search for it as for hidden treasure of infinite value.

But how are the wicked dead going to be punished if they are not raised to life, as some say they will not be? I wish some one would tell me if they know how it can be done; for a dead sinner cannot feel any punishment if he is not raised to life; and we do not wish to believe that our heavenly Father is partial in punishing the wicked who are alive when Christ comes, by burning them up in fire and brimstone, and at the same time let the wicked dead remain dead and get clear of deserved punishment, when many of the wicked dead were ten times as guilty as those who are alive and to be destroyed when Christ comes! O consistency! thou art a jewel!

Let us have all the truth, and we will try to profit thereby; and we know that the truth in all parts of the Bible will harmonize with itself; but false constructions given to the word of God will make it clash badly. May the good Lord lead us into all the truth, and prepare us for his coming and kingdom, and take us to himself when he comes to make up his jewels.

B. P[illegible].

Brattleboro, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CONTRAST.

"For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time (or during our sojourn here) are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."—Rom. 8:18.

Now for the contrast. Here we labor; there we rest. Here stripes above measure may be inflicted upon us; there we shall reign with Jesus. Here we may be put in prisons for our true faith in Christ; but there we shall enjoy glorious liberty. Here the saints suffer death; but there the gift of God is eternal life. Here the poor saints of God have been in perils of water, and robbers; and in perils by the heathen, in the city, in the wilderness, in the sea, and among false brethren; but there is to be an inheritance awarded to all the humble followers of the Lamb, that shall be incorruptible, undefiled, and that will never fade away. Yes, glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life shall we have; and our bodies fashioned like Christ's most glorious body, too!

That is not all; we shall have salvation with eternal glory, and an abundant entrance into God's everlasting kingdom, there to sit with Christ on his throne, and reign forever and ever with him. Here we may suffer weariness and painfulness; but there shall be no more pain. Here is our night for watching and praying; but there shall be no night, and no need of supplications. Here we are made to suffer from hunger and thirst; but there they will hunger and thirst no more. Here we are called to the duty of fasting often; but there we shall have right to the tree of life, and never fast. Here we may suffer from cold and nakedness; but there we shall put on immortality.

So that we may justly conclude, that our light afflictions which are but for a moment, are not worthy to be compared with that far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Amen!

P. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

EXAMPLE BETTER THAN PRECEPT.

Precept, without example, is as fruitless as the earth without the rain and sunshine. This pointing out the way without first walking in it, amounts to very little. It is not the way the apostles did, nor even the great men of the world. For instance, Napoleon, the most idolized of all generals, shared the privations of his followers. And the successes of Washington were gained many times by making example go hand in hand with precept.

And the illustrious One left not alone the divine precept; but, filled with compassion and humility, he trod the earth with dusty sandals and sweaty brow. When ever he met the lowliest, he passed them not by, but with words of love and deeds of mercy. In his discourses he taught us fortitude and resignation, and in his daily walks set for us the example. For an example of resignation he struggled in Gethsemane, with drops of blood oozing from every pore. He also exhibited the thrilling magnitude of his mission upon the cross, while the rocks were rent and the sun veiled its face, refusing to look upon the awful scene. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

AN UNTENABLE POSITION ABANDONED.

Editor of Crisis:—The account, published in the Crisis, of the proceedings of the "Advent Christian Association," at its late annual meeting, has doubtless given your readers the impression that—as a preacher—I claimed a seat with said body, as I had done in former years. Such was the fact. The Association repudiated my claim, and that of other brethren similarly situated with myself; and it did so on the ground that those of its former members who had joined the "Life and Advent Union" ought to be considered as having withdrawn from the Association. Honestly regarding this view of the matter as not tenable, I opposed it at Wilbraham, and afterwards I alluded approvingly in the Herald of Life to what another had written of the Association's action as a "guillotine" operation. Quite recently, however, my convictions on the subject have changed; and, with your permission, I would like, by publishing this note, to set myself right before the members of the Association. Its substance, as you are aware, has already appeared in the Herald of Life.

My claim to a seat in the Association I based, as you will remember, on the constitutional ground of "cooperation;" and the ground of such "co-operation," you will also remember, I founded on the coincidence between the views of the Association and my own on various important points of Bible doctrine, and on the fact that I was gratified with the wide increase of circulation with which the Crisis had been favored. But I have become satisfied that my reasoning in the premises, plausible as to me it then appeared, was not sound. I am convinced that —whatever may be said of the line of policy pursued by the Association up to its session in 1863 (concerning which I have an opinion that you will doubtless prefer I should not disclose in this letter)—no person can meet the obligations imposed by the Constitution of the "Life and Advent Union," and, at the same time, render to the Advent Christian Association that kind and degree of "co-operation" which the Constitution of the latter organization rightfully exacts as a condition of membership. The Union, in fact, was organized for the purpose of achieving all those objects which believers in the non-resurrection of the wicked could properly labor for in the Association. The Constitution of the Union requires its members "to use all available means to promulgate the doctrine of Life only in Christ, the personal, proximate advent of our Lord Jesus, and all sentiments calculated to spread vital godliness." The declared "objects" of the Association are—in the words of its Constitution—"the promulgation of Bible truth and the promotion of vital piety by the formation of a Christian Publication Society for the issue of books, tracts, and periodicals." Now, while the members of the Union cheerfully acknowledge their duty to help on "Bible truth" and "vital piety," yet they have, as it seems to me, no longer anything to do, in a legitimate way, with "the formation" of the "C. P. Society." For myself, I must admit that I am now seeking to accomplish through the Union what once I hoped might be done through the Society; and I freely concede, therefore, that the Advent Christian Association had an undoubted right to consider me "as having withdrawn" from it, by my act in becoming identified with the Life and Advent Union. My not supposing, at the time, that I was doing this, does not seem to alter the fact.

I think it may be fairly questioned whether the Association possessed the constitutional right to exclude me also from sitting as a Delegate from the Salem (a "co-operating") Church, which had duly appointed me and given me proper credentials; but I have no desire to argue or press that point.

Rufus Wendell.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 4, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

QUERY.

How can Adventists convince the world that they believe the Lord is soon coming to destroy their earthly possessions, when they hold on to them with such tenacity? A brother recently said to me,—"We as a sect are becoming more covetous than other sects." True, there are some noble exceptions! There is talking enough about "the Faith," singing, shouting, praying, etc.; but where is the sacrificing?

I once heard of a poor church-member, with a large family dependent on him,—who, by carelessness, broke his leg very badly in mid-winter. Several of the church came in, sympathized very warmly with him; wept, prayed, etc. Finally, a neighbor came in, who did not profess religion. He spake roughly to the man for being so careless, thus depriving his family of his support for some time, and abruptly left. Soon after, a cart came to the door loaded with meal, flour, molasses, sugar, butter, etc.; then another cart loaded with wood, all cut for the stove. All these things sent by the rough man, out of the church. Ye poor, suffering ones, which would you prefer to visit you,—those weeping, praying professors, or the rough, apparently heartless, man?

My brethren, suffer the word of exhortation. While we talk so much of the fulfillment of Matt. 24th, let us not forget Matt. 25th, 35–40. While we hurl anathemas at the wicked rich of this world, from James 5th, 1–5, let us not neglect to look at James, 2d chapter, 5th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th verses.

J. T. Dixon.

Correction.

Bro. Grant:—Will you please say through the Crisis that the poetry in the Crisis of Aug. 23d, headed, "Long we have waited," was selected from the Advent Review and Herald.

Lucinda B. Weaver.

[illegible]—It is wonderful to see the [illegible] of the human mind; we avoid Christ [illegible] ourselves, as we would a tyrant, and we are as much afraid of his service as we are of sickness or of a misfortune, and when any of us are pressed into it (I speak of unconverted people), we are very uneasy under it, and glad when it is over; while we are held to it we are birds kept in the unnatural, heated place of a human hand, and when we are let go and the service is over, we are birds in the natural expanse, [illegible] and that way, to [illegible] rather than into the hand that once held us [illegible].

To Soften Old Putty.—Take a common [illegible], at a dull red heat, and move it slowly over the old putty, say at the rate of two feet per minute, and you can easily cut it off with a pocket-knife.

The World's Crisis and Second Advent Messenger.

Boston, Tuesday, Nov. 15, 1864.

☞ We now hope to be able to fill all orders for Bro. Thurman's excellent Chronology.

LEND A HELPING HAND.

Now is the time to be in earnest in the vineyard of the Lord. There is a great work to be done in a short time. Let us work in proportion to its importance. If we do our whole duty, we shall see great and glorious results. People are starving for want of light on the Scriptures; and just such light too as is shed forth by the little tracts that are waiting for the means to bear their expenses in their visits to those wandering in darkness. Let us all keep at work doing what we can to supply the earnest calls that come from all parts of the land. Many like the following might be given if the whole was told:—

Mrs. J. C. Hunter writes from Pt. Hunter, N. Y.:—"Within about ten miles from here are many hundreds of youth whom I have helped to teach Satan's lie ("man's natural immortality" is nothing else); for, in my school-teaching, I have always made my religious faith quite prominent. I feel bound to aid the Tract Fund in future, that the truth may be sent here. Tracts brought light and joy to my heart, when I was searching the Scriptures. May they be sent to many other blind ones, that they, too, may escape Satan's "strong delusion." O, brethren, scatter them freely far and wide."

Shall these calls be made in vain, when it is in our power to "lend a helping hand"? Many have done nobly, but let the number be doubled at once. It will not do to delay. Men are perishing all around us for lack of knowledge. Let us do what we can for their relief. Give cheerfully, as giving to the Lord, and not unto men, and much good will result to the receiver and giver. Come, try it, before it is too late.

THE 2300 DAYS.

In the 8th chapter of Daniel, we have an account of a vision seen by the prophet, in which was shown to him "a ram, which had two horns," and a "rough goat." In the 20th and 21st verses, the angel Gabriel informs Daniel that "the ram" which he saw represents "the kings (or kingdoms) of Media and Persia; and the rough goat . . . the king (or kingdom) of Grecia." The question is asked in the 13th verse, "how long shall be the vision, . . . to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" The following answer is given in the 14th verse:—"And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days, then shall the sanctuary be cleansed."

The first use of the word sanctuary occurs in Ex. 15: 17. When Moses was speaking of what the Lord would do with Israel, he says, "Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in; in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." In Ps. 78: 54, David says:—"And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased." Thus we ascertain that the first and primary use of the word sanctuary signifies the land promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and to Christ, which they are yet to possess; but it is to "be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21: 24.

As the 2300 days extend to the time when the sanctuary is cleansed, it is certain they have not yet run out, because the sanctuary is still "trodden under foot" by the Gentiles. This fact proves that the 2300 days are not literal; for if they were, they would represent a period only about six and one half years long. The vision included the Medo-Persian kingdom, as symbolized by the ram; the Grecian kingdom, represented by the goat, and the kingdom indicated by the "little horn," that "waxed exceeding great;" but if the 2300 days were literal, instead of giving the length of time in which the events seen in the vision were to transpire, they only reach a small distance into the Medo-Persian kingdom. So long as the sanctuary is "trodden under foot," we may be confident that the 2300 days are not ended.

As the prophecy is symbolical, it is reasonable to conclude that the time is also symbolical; that is, each day for a year. We find other instances where a day is used for a year. In Num. 14: 33, 34, we read, "And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and bear your whoredoms, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness. After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, and ye shall know my breach of promise." Also in Ezek. 4: 4–6, "Lie thou also upon thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear their iniquity. For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee each day for a year."

Daniel says, when he "sought for the meaning of the vision," he heard one say, "Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision. So he came near where I stood; and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face; but he said unto me, Understand, son of man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision;" or, as Prof. Stuart renders it, "Mark well that the vision is for the time of the end," that is, for the special benefit of those who may live in "the time of the end." We learn from the 12th chapter of Daniel the vision, so far as the time is concerned, was to be sealed up till "the time of the end;" then "the wise shall understand it." This favors Stuart's rendering, that the vision is for the time of the end."

After the angel Gabriel is requested to make Daniel "understand the vision," he informs him what the ram and goat signify, as before noticed; but gave no light on the 2300 days. At the close of the eighth chapter Daniel says:—"And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, and did the king's business; and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it." He certainly must have understood the meaning of the ram and rough goat. At the beginning of the ninth chapter, Daniel says he "understood by books the number of years whereof the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem." He then commenced "prayer and supplications" for his people, and continues praying till we come to the 19th verse, where he says:—

"O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O my God: for thy city and thy people are called by thy name. And while I was speaking and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the Lord my God for the holy mountain of my God; yea, while I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding. At the beginning of thy supplications the commandment came forth, and I am come to shew thee; for thou art greatly beloved: therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy."—Dan. 9: 19–24.

The angel says; "I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding, . . . therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision." What vision? Why the one in the eighth chapter, which Gabriel is required to make Daniel "understand." As before remarked, Daniel said at the close of the eighth chapter that he did not understand "the vision." When the angel came again to make him "understand the matter," we may expect him to talk about that part of the vision that Daniel did not understand. The very first instruction at his second visit was about time, as shown in the twenty-fourth verse.

In our next we purpose to give Bro. Thurman's date for the commencement of the seventy weeks and 2300 days.

FURTHER INQUIRIES.

To the Rev. Miles Grant:—Dear Sir,—I have just read your second series of answers to my inquiries, for which I again return my thanks, and acknowledge the candor, plainness, and courtesy manifested. I fully appreciate such favors, and most gladly excuse you for not noticing my letter before.

I think I fully understand your meaning in regard to the term man. Light begins to break in in regard to your system of theology, and a few more such clear expositions, and I shall be fully satisfied. Man is a "living organism." "A living being" is a "living soul." "All creatures endued with animal life are living beings, living souls." "He is called man before he lived, and after he is dead."

In view of these plain declarations, I want you to answer one question: What is the difference, then, between man and a beast? Permit me, kind sir, to make a further demand upon your time and patience in a few strictures upon your remarks on the word spirit. After quoting ten passages to show that your fourth sense of the word ruach in Heb., pneuma in Greek, means "the air we breathe," called "breath of life," you draw the following conclusion: that "there is one spirit taken from man at death, which is in his nostrils, without which he cannot live." Hence, you say, we conclude that nothing leaves man at death but "the breath," or "spirit of life, which is in his nostrils."

This language is plain and clear. If I mistake not, I fully understand it. Now, then, we have man composed of two elements; viz., dust and air. I am called upon to believe this. Before I can do so, I must have more light.

1. In what sense can you use the word sleep to a lump of dust in the ground and a portion of air in God?

2. What can you mean by waking up a lump of dust in the ground?

3. What is the element of thought?

4. If this compound of dust and air seeks immortality, what is the element of that immortality, and to which does it adhere, the dust or the air? What part of man is to possess it?

With your explanation of man, I cannot possibly understand the philosophy of "obtaining immortality by patient continuance in well doing." When does he get it, and where? The air or breath is gone, and the dust is mingled with dust. It looks dark to me; yea, it is very dark. And unto you, O minister, I call for light, light!

Again, you say "that the word ruach in Heb., and pneuma in Greek, are used in four senses: 1st, to represent a being; 2d, an influence proceeding from a being; 3d, a state of mind; 4th, the air we breathe, called the "breath of life."

Here permit me to inquire what authority you have for such an arrangement of senses? Is it divine or human? My Hebrew dictionary tells me that ruach is used for "the soul, spirit, immortal part in man," in Gen. 6: 17, Ps. 31: 6, Eccles. 3: 19. My Greek dictionary gives to pneuma thirty-nine meanings.

In consequence of the ambiguity of language, is it not impossible to settle such abstruse points by the use of equivocal words? It seems so to me? Moreover, it seems to me impossible, yea, utterly impossible, to form a correct system of theology from the Bible; and more especially to defend doctrine in the use of words, even though taken from the original. In view of the host of dictionaries published, various translations, emendations, by every one who attempts to preach, and innumerable opinions held forth with zeal, and all called truth of God, I'm almost confounded, and gaze in wonder, mazes lost.

Again. "Wholly mortal, or wholly immortal." You tell me it is absurd to suppose a being can be both at the same time. It may be so, but I cannot as yet see it in that light. "Mortal," as you say, "applies to that which is liable to die." Now, as man is a compound of air and dust, then to die is merely a removal of the air or breath out of his nostrils. This is death, as I understand you. You say the air we breathe is called the "breath of life." What, then, is the "breath of lives," in the margin of our Bibles? Now the phrase "of life" is changed in Hebrew, meaning lives, living principles. What is the breath of living principles? Are these in his nostrils? If so, in what sense are they to be interpreted? So, if life, or lives, never die, which it seems that they do not, if it returns to God, why then does it not follow that man is both mortal and immortal at the same time, because he is carrying never-dying principles as long as they co-exist in their compound unity.

To conclude. [illegible] I have [illegible] you, [illegible] presented [illegible] subject; and I hope you or some others of your fraternity will condescend to meet my inquiries, and find time to open to my understanding the deep things of God. I am advised not to remain in ignorance for the want of asking; also, to seek and find.

Corinna, Me. J. H. Sawyer.

We ever take pleasure in answering the honest inquiries of those seeking for light and truth, as appears to be the case with Bro. Sawyer. We trust he will yet see the way clearly.

In answer to his first inquiry,—"What is the difference, then, between man and a beast?"—we would say that man was made in the "image," or "likeness of his Creator, and the beast was not. See Gen. 1: 26, 27. We will here repeat our definition of man:—"A being made of the dust of the ground in the "likeness" of his Creator."

We will now notice in order the numbered inquiries "1, 2, 3, 4."

1. We do not understand the Scriptures to teach that the word "sleep" has any application to the spirit, or "breath of life," in man's nostrils, but to the man himself. "The breath of life" is never said to have life, be awake, or fall asleep. The word is always in the neuter gender when applied to man. Neither do we understand that it is a component part of man, any more than the wind is a part of the sail that it fills. The Bible does not teach that man is composed of "dust and air," but says man was made "of the dust of the ground." Then after he was made God "breathed" or "blew" "into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." Gen. 2: 7. This breath of life is what causes the man to live and move, as does the steam the engine, but it formed no part of man when he was created, more than did the wind when the sail was made; hence the sleep of man in death has no reference to "the breath of life."

2. In answer to the second inquiry, we would remark, we mean just what we think the Bible teaches, when it says, "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust." David says in Ps. 103: 13–14, "The Lord pitieth them that fear him; for he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust." In Ps. 104: 29, we read,—"Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled, thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust." Again, the wise man says, "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."—Eccl. 3: 20. Now, if "the dust" is never awakened, then there is no "resurrection of the dead;" and Paul says, "if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; . . . and if Christ be not raised, . . . then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." All these sad results must follow then, if the "dust of the ground," that composed the man, is not awakened. Said Job,—"Now shall I sleep in the dust of the earth."—Job 7: 21. How long will he thus sleep? "So man lieth down, and riseth not, till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep."—Job 14: 12. When Paul was speaking of those who saw Christ after his resurrection, he says: "He was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep."—1 Cor. 15: 6. Where do they sleep? Says the prophet Daniel, "Them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."—Dan. 12: 2.

We do not see how language can more plainly teach that man, the accountable being, sleeps in the dust of the ground between death and the resurrection, at which time he is to awake from the dust. Said the Lord to Adam, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 19. And from other Scriptures we have learned that he must "sleep" in the dust of the earth" till the time arrives for them to "awake and sing," which is at the second coming of Christ. Says Paul, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep."—1 Thess. 4: 13. Why not? "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first."—1 Thess. 4: 16.

3. We do not know as we fully comprehend our Bro.'s third inquiry, "What is the element of thought?" If he intends to ask, what is thought? we answer, it is the result of an active brain. Thought is no more an entity, or being, than is pain, love, or hatred. Man cannot think only when his brain is acting; hence when his brain is dead, he stops thinking. Says David, when speaking of the nature of man, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth: in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. We say a watch "keeps time." Time is no part of the watch, but the result of an active mechanism. So thought is the result of an active brain, and exists no longer than the action continues. When the watch stops, it ceases to keep time; when the brain is dead, the man does not think. The time is no part of the watch, formed by the watchmaker, and then put into the watch, to be taken out when the watch is ruined and put into another watch; so thought is no part of the man that continues to live when he is dead. When the brain is deranged, we have deranged thought; when the frontal brain is nearly wanting, then we have idiotic thoughts; before the brain is developed, we have infantile thoughts; and when worn out with age, we have childish thoughts again; and when dead, no thoughts at all.

4. Our Bro. asks in the fourth place, "what part of man is to possess" immortality? We answer, the whole man. "This mortal must put on immortality."—1 Cor. 15: 53. The one that puts it on is the one that seeks for it; and the one that seeks it is the intelligent agent; hence he has not got immortality; for if he had, he would not be exhorted to seek for it "by patient continuance in well doing."—Rom. 2: 7.

As the air is not a component part of the man, it does not enter into the account. That is a constant agent for living beings. If we were to have an immortal ship, we would not seek to immortalize the wind that moves it, but the materials of which the ship is made. So if we would have an immortal man, it is not "the breath of life," which is a constant agent, that needs to be made immortal, but the man himself, who is made "of the dust of the ground," and lives by means of the air, or "breath of life."

Our brother inquires by what authority we say, that ruach in the Hebrew, and pneuma in the Greek, the words rendered spirit, are used in four senses? We answer, the use of the words as found in the Bible. We find, from a careful examination of all the passages where these words occur, that the four mentioned senses cover all the uses of the words. When the "dictionary" says "that ruach is used for 'the soul,'" it says what theologians teach; but there is not one passage in the Bible where ruach is rendered soul. Of course, when men put a wrong construction upon the use of a word, then the whole subject may become "abstruse." If the popular theology of the day is correct in teaching that man has an "immortal soul," we most freely admit that it is "impossible; yea, utterly impossible" to harmonize such a theology with the Bible. We choose to follow the Bible, if it spoils all the theories of men.

Lastly, our Bro. wishes to know the meaning of the phrase "breath of lives." In Gen. 2: 7, where it reads, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life," the word life is plural in the original, and reads "breath of lives." In Gen. 7: 15, where we have an account of the beasts that went into Noah's ark, we read, "And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life." The Hebrew for "breath of life" in this last passage is the same as in Gen. 2: 7,—"the breath of lives;" hence just as applicable to the beasts as to men. The plural form simply signifies that the air, or "breath of life," is common to all. Consequently, the wise man says, when speaking of man and beast, "they have all one breath;" therefore it is "the breath" of all lives. But let it be remembered that this "breath of lives" is never spoken of as a living being, to be rewarded or punished while man is slumbering in the dust, awaiting the resurrection "at the last day."

AN INQUIRY.

Please answer the following question through the Crisis: If, according to the belief of some, our Savior is to appear for the deliverance of his people within four years, why are so many of them in darkness of the great fact, when it is expressly declared that "the wise shall understand?" Yours in hope of that precious life,

Catherine L. Gregory.

In answer to the foregoing question, we would say to Sister Gregory, we believe the scripture quoted will be fulfilled before the coming of our Savior; and we believe the prophetic periods are now being unsealed by the light thrown on them by Bro. Thurman's Chronology. If his arrangement, in the main, is correct, as we believe, then the church of Christ, or the bride of the Lamb, will see it in due season to prepare for the marriage. When the sealed time is opened it will appear plain to the friends of Jesus. Let us wait patiently, with prayer and watchfulness, that we may be ready to receive the light as fast as it comes. Do not stop to save a good name among the enemies of the Lord, but come out from the world and be separate, and prepare as fast as possible for the coming of the Son of man. Half-hearted christianity will not be able to stand against the temptations of these last days. We must have a fixed principle to do right at all times, in order to overcome and be ready for translation. It is too late to lean on others. We must have oil in our own vessels. The Bridegroom is soon coming. Be ready to meet him.

RIGHT AND WRONG.

Through the influence of demons men have erected a new standard of right and wrong. We find it expressed in the following resolution, passed at the Chicago National Spiritual Convention, Sunday, Aug. 14th, 1864:—

"Resolved, That the authority of each individual soul is absolute and final in deciding questions for himself or herself as to what is true or false in principle, or right or wrong in practice; therefore the individual, the Church, or the State that attempts to control the opinions or the practice of any man or woman by an authority or power outside of his or her own soul, is guilty of a flagrant wrong."

Such is the system of government the spiritualists, and those whom they have seduced, are purposing to establish soon upon our planet. The authority of the Lord and his word are laid aside for the teachings of the lying demons. They do not allow that the holy Lord has a right to give man a statute book to regulate his actions, words, and thoughts, but claim "that the authority of each individual soul is absolute and final." These are strange times!

TO CANADA SUBSCRIBERS.

Subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, will find it to their advantage, when remitting to this office, to do so in Provincial bank bills, or gold. For every $1.00 of such money sent us, we will give $2.00 credit, more or less, according to its current value when received.

Tuesday, Nov. 8th, Gold is worth to-day $2.43. Canada bills, $2.40.

Sunday Hymns.—The edition is exhausted. We shall have another in a few weeks, if the Lord will. Be patient. H. L. Hastings.

THE NEW SERIES OF TRACTS.

We, the undersigned, agree to pay the sums set to our names, for the purpose of raising [illegible] DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$423.26
J. W. Trumbull pd	.50
Hannah Bowen pd	1.00
N. S. Bastion (tracts sold) pd	.50
A friend pd	.25
Friends in Nova Scotia pd	1.00
Wm. M. Ingham pd	1.00
Deacon pd	4.00
J. Richard Brown pd	2.00

ITALIAN MISSION.

Previous donations	$242.65
M. Steere pd	.50
J. Richard Brown pd	10.00
Hannah G. Brown pd	1.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$291.07
F. Schellinger pd	2.50
H. C. pd	7.50
E. W. Brown pd	.25
Sr. Eastman pd	1.00
D. E. Lyon pd	1.00
M. B. Lyon pd	1.00
S. Lyon pd	.50
James Lord pd	2.50
Edward Allen pd	2.50
B. H. pd	5.10
S. L. S. pd	2.50
M. Steere pd	.50
Chas. Corprew pd	2.40
John T. Dixon pd (for poor in his town)	2.50
M. G. pd	1.00
O. R. H. pd	1.00
H. B. Cross pd	2.00
A. Richards pd	2.50
Rachel Oliver pd	1.00
E. Treat pd	.30
R. B. pd	1.50
A friend pd	5.00
Joel Smith pd	.75
L. P. Hastings pd	2.50
B. J. C. pd	1.00
Sidney Hall pd	5.00
C. A. H. pd	1.00
Hopeful pd	5.00
J. Richard Brown pd	2.00
M. F. P. pd	1.00
Connor Sweeney pd	.50

THE BANK OF THE LORD'S POOR.

I see in the Crisis, among the list of R. I. poor, one from my own Village of Rocky Brook. I know not who it is, but I wish, for our Rhode Island Churches, to wipe out that poor debt immediately, for God's glory, and their own soul's benefit. I therefore take a share in the Bank of the Lord's Poor, and send you $2.50, which you will please credit for the Crisis for one year to that poor one in Rocky Brook. But if the brethren in R. B. have paid for that poor one, credit it to another R. I. poor, and if the Churches in R. I. have sent you pay for the whole twenty-one poor in R. I. (as they ought to have done as soon as they saw the list,) then credit is to that "John —, Jr.," who is almost blind, saws wood for six, and eats nothing but corn-bread and salt fish, and much oblige one of the poor.

Laporte, Ind. John T. Dixon.

A few more responses like the above, and a little more action in every State, such as Bro D. recommends, and the poor debt will be wiped out at once.

FROM A MINISTER IN ILLINOIS.

I see in the Crisis your urgent call upon all your subscribers who are in arrears, or who are receiving the paper free. I hardly know on which list you would place my name. One thing I do know, which is this,—I cannot do without the Crisis.

I began four years ago to preach the near approach of our Savior in propria persona, the unconscious state of the dead, a literal resurrection, and the second death as the reward of sin. Since then I have received some persecution from the sects, and very little from the world,—perhaps not enough from either to keep me as humble as I should be,—and have seen some penitent souls embrace the Savior through my humble labors.

I write this to say that I am very much pressed in pecuniary matters, having a large family of small children; and, having no land or other source from which to get a support, and being entirely dependent on my labor and the liberality of my hearers for a living, I find it very hard for us to press through from one year to another; but the Lord has provided thus far, and always will. H.

We have cancelled your indebtedness for the past, and marked you free for the future; and trust you will, in return, do what you can to extend the circulation of the Crisis in your field of labor.

"CHLOE LANKTON: OR, LIGHT BEYOND THE CLOUDS."

I read, with much interest and sympathy, the letters from the poor; but my sympathy was increased an hundred-fold when I read (in the last Crisis) the letter of "Chloe." In a Sabbath-school book, with the title of "Chloe Lankton," I have read the story of her unparalelled sorrows; of the dark cloud that gathered over her, until it shut out all earth's sunshine with a blackness that could be felt; of the invisible chain that for nearly thirty years, has held her in one place; and of the acute agony that has been her constant companion. Think of her, ye that think your lines have fallen in unpleasant places. Think of her, ye sorrowful ones of earth, and ye that are full of this world's cares. Count the months, the weeks, the days, the hours, comprised in thirty years of imprisonment, suffering, and poverty. Think of the many summers, with their long pleasant days, which she has seen only through the one little window of her prison room; of the green grass that her feet have not pressed in all these years, and the blue sky, of which she sees so small a place. And now, another Winter is coming to take its place beside all those long dreary ones that have passed since they laid her there, and even more than the others it will be hard for her. Even the most charitable sometimes forget those whose claims are most pressing, and those who live near have heard her story so long that it may not seem pitiful as at first. And yet it is really more so, for to all the years of her trials are to be added those that intervene between this and our Lord's return, for she is not old, except in suffering. May God protect and care for her still. May the Saviour's arms be placed tenderly and lovingly beneath her, and, above all, may He hasten the glad day when there shall be no more pain, and when all tears shall be wiped away. C. A. H.

P. S. I enclose $1.00. My Saviour knows it is all I can send. Let it pay for Chloe's paper for six months, or if others pay it, please send it to her, and will you give her address in the Crisis.

Peace Dale, R. I.

☞ The story of "Chloe Lankton," published some years ago in the New York Observer, and now in book form by the American Sunday School Union, may be had at the Crisis office, for 15 cents or 25 cents by mail. It is a touching story of suffering and sorrow; is well written, and will interest old and young. An excellent book for our Sabbath Schools. Chloe's address is New Hartford, [illegible]

[illegible] all will be mended.

Illinois Free List.

It is proposed that the churches and brethren, in each town and county, do what they can to supply their own poor with the Crisis for the coming year. Will the brethren in the following places take the matter in hand, and see what they can do?

Aurora	1	Ionia	2
Amboy	1	Moline	1
Atkinson?	1	Milroy	1
Assumption?	1	Mount Sterling	1
Barry	1	Monmouth?	1
Bulkley	1	Ottawa	1
Belvidere	1	Oxford	3
Bunker Hill	1	Perry	1
Chicago	2	Prairie Pond	1
Cordovia	1	Plum River	1
Deer Park	1	Rock Island	1
De Kalb Centre	1	Stanton	1
Earlville	1	Sterling	1
Elizabeth	1	Tonica	1
Posterburg	1	Troy Grove	1
Grafton?	1	Winnebago?	1
Harvard	1	Yorkville?	1
Havana	2	Total	42

Any More?

"Please take my name from the free list, and put it on the paying list. It is a great comfort to me to read the Crisis, and I feel that I cannot do without it. I enclose $2.50 to pay for the paper the coming year."

Litchfield Co., Ct. Mary.

"You will find in this $1.25 for M. T., who has hitherto been on the free list, but now wishes to become a paying subscriber." M.

We shall be glad to hear from any more such. No doubt there are some, perhaps not a few, who, though once unable to pay, can now. We would not distress any, by asking them to pay when they cannot; but we would remind all that they will feel better themselves, by doing what they can.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. McKillister

Bro. Grant:—It is nearly a year since the Crisis through your generous bounty has been a more than welcome visitor at my humble home, bringing weekly its messages of hope and joy to my weary heart, cheering and encouraging me to struggle on in this day of peril,—for which I have implored blessings upon your head and the truth you advocate, daily. I thank you a thousand times. Indeed words fail to express the gratitude I feel, for it has proved a blessing beyond price to me. O! I rejoice in the truth contained in its pages. I will give you a brief history of my past life, that you may better understand the situation in which I am placed.

When about ten years of age, I received injury while at school, from which I was confined entirely to the house, and for the most of the time to my bed, for fourteen long, weary years. It is now two years since, through the goodness of God, I have been able to ride out, and to attend meetings some, where the true gospel is proclaimed. It is a marvelous thing to my friends that I am recovering. I had many physicians, of various schools, who with one unanimous voice pronounced my case incurable. Since I could look for no help from man, I turned with an eye of faith to the great Physician, who, I felt, was mighty, and able, and ready to save all who put their trust in him.

Years passed, and still I remained a weary invalid, my body racked with pain, yet still with unfaltering faith I looked to God to restore me, fully believing that he would raise me up if I but trusted in him. How gladly would I draw a veil over what followed; but the truth must come, however painful it is to me to speak.

Five years ago this present month there came to our door one morning an oldish man, who asked if there was not a sick girl here? saying that "as he was passing he thought he would call and see her." Said he had "the gift of healing," and thought he could restore me to health. He said he was no Spiritualist, but was as much opposed to it as any one could be;—which declaration, spoken in the most humble meekness, to all outward appearance greatly prepossessed him in my favor, as I was at that time, and had ever been, greatly opposed to Spiritualism. So in the foolishness of my heart, as a drowning man catches at a straw, I thought this might be a servant of God whom he had sent to heal me. Ah! dreadful, fatal delusion! Step by step, I was led on by the ignis fatuus, till I was lost in an endless maze that I could not solve. And must I say it? Ere I was aware whither my steps were tending, I was a Spiritualist, a prey to that fatal delusion, snared in the "toils of the enemy."

Thus passed one long, one dreadful year, at the end of which I was in a truly sad condition. I was in an agony of body and mind. But, glory be to God! who of his great mercy showed me that I was lost forever if I remained where I was. O! how mightily I cried unto God in the horror and anguish of my soul, "Be pleased, O Lord, to deliver me! O Lord, make haste to help me! and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God." I felt a perfect submission. Then I could say from my heart, Thy will, oh God, not mine be done! I felt willing to be sick, to be well, to live or to die, just as he would have me.

O! then it was that a brighter, clearer, holier faith was given me. Trusting no longer in an arm of flesh, leaning wholly upon God, we looked to him alone for help. Though there were many who had for some time made a profession, yet there seemed to be no living christians in the place at this time, with the exception of two or three saints who worshiped God in secret. We had no preaching, no meetings,—all was worldliness, ungodliness around us. But at this time a spirit of prayer was given me. O! how earnestly I prayed to God that he would pour out his Spirit upon the young people of our place. The burden I felt was not for the old, but all for the young. I prayed until the victory was given me. Glory be to God! who giveth the victory through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

I prayed if it might be consistent with his will, he would raise me up, that I might meet with his children when the gracious outpouring of his Spirit should come, as I fully believed it would. I prayed that the true gospel might be preached unto us when the time of refreshing should come from the Lord. O praise to his holy name! who hears and answers the prayer of faith, who in the hours of deepest affliction bade me look up, saying, "Thou shalt yet live and praise my name." O glory be to God for ever and ever! who heareth the cry of the humble.

It seemed to dawn upon my mind that I had never had a right understanding of the Bible. And I prayed upon bended knee, lying prostrate upon my weary bed, that the word of God might be revealed unto me, that the truth might make me free. And, beloved [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

AN UNTENABLE POSITION ABANDONED.

EDITOR OF CRISIS:—The account, published in the Crisis, of the proceedings of the "Advent Christian Association," at its late annual meeting, has doubtless given your readers the impression that—as a preacher—I claimed a seat with said body, as I had done in former years. Such was the fact. The Association repudiated my claim, and that of other brethren similarly situated with myself; and it did so on the ground that those of its former members who had joined the "Life and Advent Union" ought to be considered "as having withdrawn" from the Association. Honestly regarding this view of the matter as not tenable, I opposed it at Wilbraham; and afterwards I alluded approvingly in the Herald of Life to what another had written of the Association's action as a "guillotine" operation. Quite recently, however, my convictions on the subject have changed; and, with your permission, I would like, by publishing this note, to set myself right before the members of the Association. Its substance, as you are aware, has already appeared in the Herald of Life.

My claim to a seat in the Association I based, as you will remember, on the constitutional ground of "coöperation;" and the fact of such "coöperation," you will also remember, I founded on the coincidence between the views of the Association and my own on various important points of Bible doctrine, and on the fact that I was gratified with the wide increase of circulation with which the Crisis had been favored. But I have become satisfied that my reasoning in the premises, plausible as to me it then appeared, was not sound. I am convinced that —whatever may be said of the line of policy pursued by the Association up to its session in 1863, (concerning which I have an opinion that you will doubtless prefer I should not disclose in this letter)—no person can meet the obligations imposed by the Constitution of the "Life and Advent Union," and, at the same time, render to the Advent Christian Association that kind and degree of "co-operation" which the Constitution of the latter organization rightfully exacts, as a condition of membership. The UNION, in fact, was organized for the purpose of achieving all those objects which believers in the non-resurrection of the wicked could properly labor for in the ASSOCIATION. The Constitution of the Union requires its members "to use all available means to promulgate the doctrine of Life only in Christ, the personal, proximate advent of our Lord Jesus, and all sentiments calculated to spread vital godliness." The declared "objects" of the Association are—in the words of its Constitution—"the promulgation of Bible truth and the promotion of vital piety by the formation of a Christian Publication Society for the issue of books, tracts, and periodicals." Now, while the members of the Union cheerfully acknowledge their duty to help on "Bible truth" and "vital piety," yet they have, as it seems to me, no longer anything to do, in a legitimate way, with "the formation" of the "C. P. Society." For myself, I must admit that I am now seeking to accomplish through the Union what once I hoped might be done through the Society; and I freely concede, therefore, that the Advent Christian Association had an undoubted right to consider me "as having withdrawn" from it, by my act in becoming identified with the Life and Advent Union. My not supposing, at the time, that I was doing this, does not seem to alter the fact.

I think it may be fairly questioned whether the Association possessed the constitutional right to exclude me also from sitting as a Delegate from the Salem (a "co-operating") Church, which had duly appointed me and given me proper credentials; but I have no desire to argue or press that point.

RUFUS WENDELL.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 4, 1864.

For the World's Crisis.

QUERY.

How can Adventists convince the world that they believe the Lord is soon coming to destroy their earthly possessions, when they hold on to them with such tenacity? A brother recently said to me,—"We as a sect are becoming more covetous than other sects." True, there are some noble exceptions! There is talking enough about "the Faith," singing, shouting, praying, etc., but where is the sacrificing?

I once heard of a poor church-member, with a large family dependent on him,—who, by carelessness, broke his leg very badly in mid-winter. Several of the church came in, sympathized very warmly with him; wept, prayed, etc. Finally, a neighbor came in, who did not profess religion. He spake roughly to the man for being so careless, thus depriving his family of his support for some time, and abruptly left. Soon after, a cart came to the door loaded with meal, flour, molasses, sugar, butter, etc.; then another cart loaded with wood, all cut for the stove. All these things sent by the rough man, out of the church. Ye poor, suffering ones, which would you prefer to visit you,—those weeping, praying professors, or the rough, apparently heartless, man?

My brethren, suffer the word of exhortation. While we talk so much of the fulfillment of Matt. 24th, let us not forget Matt. 25th, 35—46. While we hurl anathemas at the wicked rich of this world, from James 5th, 1—3, let us not neglect to look at James, 2d chapter, 5th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th verses.

J. T. DIXON.

Correction.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you please say through the Crisis that the poetry in the Crisis of Aug. 23d, headed, "Long we have waited," was taken from the Advent Review and Herald.

LUTHER B. WEAVER.

[illegible]—It is wonderful to [illegible] of the human mind; we [illegible] Christ, left to ourselves, as we would a tyrant, and we are as much afraid of his service as we are of sickness or of a misfortune, and when any of us are pressed into it (I speak of unconverted people), we are very uneasy under it, and glad when it is over; while we are held to it we are birds kept in the unnatural, heated place of a human hand, and when we are let go and the service is over, we [illegible] and [illegible], this way and that way, to [illegible] than into the hand that once held us.—Robinson.

[illegible]

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Nov. 15, 1864.

☞ We now hope to be able to fill all orders for Bro. Thurman's excellent Chronology.

LEND A HELPING HAND.

Now is the time to be in earnest in the vineyard of the Lord. There is a great work to be done in a short time. Let us work in proportion to its importance. If we do our whole duty, we shall see great and glorious results. People are starving for want of light on the Scriptures; and just such light too as is shed forth by the little tracts that are waiting for the means to bear their expenses in their visits to those wandering in darkness. Let us all keep at work doing what we can to supply the earnest calls that come from all parts of the land. Many like the following might be given if the whole was told:—

Mrs. J. C. Hunter writes from Ft. Hunter, N. Y.:—"Within about ten miles from here are many hundreds of youth whom I have helped to teach Satan's lie ("man's natural immortality" is nothing else); for, in my school-teaching, I have always made my religious faith quite prominent. I feel bound to aid the Tract Fund in future, that the truth may be sent here. Tracts brought light and joy to my heart, when I was searching the Scriptures. May they be sent to many other blind ones, that they, too, may escape Satan's "strong delusion." O, brethren, scatter them freely far and wide."

Shall these calls be made in vain, when it is in our power to "lend a helping hand"? Many have done nobly, but let the number be doubled at once. It will not do to delay. Men are perishing all around us for lack of knowledge. Let us do what we can for their relief. Give cheerfully, as giving to the Lord, and not unto men, and much good will result to the receiver and giver. Come, try it, before it is too late.

THE 2300 DAYS.

In the 8th chapter of Daniel, we have an account of a vision seen by the prophet, in which was shown to him "a ram, which had two horns," and a "rough goat." In the 20th and 21st verses, the angel Gabriel informs Daniel that "the ram" which he saw represents "the kings (or kingdoms) of Media and Persia; and the rough goat . . . the king (or kingdom) of Grecia." The question is asked in the 13th verse, "how long shall be the vision, . . . to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" The following answer is given in the 14th verse:—"And he said unto me, Unto two thousand and three hundred days, then shall the sanctuary be cleansed."

The first use of the word sanctuary occurs in Ex. 15: 17. When Moses was speaking of what the Lord would do with Israel, he says, "Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in; in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." In Ps. 78: 54, David says:—"And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased." Thus we ascertain that the first and primary use of the word sanctuary signifies the land promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and to Christ, which they are yet to possess; but it is to "be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21: 24.

As the 2300 days extend to the time when the sanctuary is cleansed, it is certain they have not yet run out, because the sanctuary is still "trodden under foot" by the Gentiles. This fact proves that the 2300 days are not literal; for if they were, they would represent a period only about six and one half years long. The vision included the Medo-Persian kingdom, as symbolized by the ram; the Grecian kingdom, represented by the goat, and the kingdom indicated by the "little horn," that "waxed exceeding great;" but if the 2300 days were literal, instead of giving the length of time in which the events seen in the vision were to transpire, they only reach a small distance into the Medo-Persian kingdom. So long as the sanctuary is "trodden under foot," we may be confident that the 2300 days are not ended.

As the prophecy is symbolical, it is reasonable to conclude that the time is also symbolical; that is, each day for a year. We find other instances where a day is used for a year. In Num. 14: 33, 34, we read, "And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years, and bear your whoredoms, until your carcases be wasted in the wilderness. After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year, shall ye bear your iniquities, even forty years, and ye shall know my breach of promise." Also in Ezek. 4: 4–6, "Lie thou also upon thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear their iniquity. For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days: so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee each day for a year."

Daniel says, when he "sought for the meaning of the vision," he heard one say, "Gabriel, make this man to understand the vision. So he came near where I stood; and when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face; but he said unto me, Understand, son of man; for at the time of the end shall be the vision;" or, as Prof. Stuart renders it, "Mark well that the vision is for the time of the end;" that is, for the special benefit of those who may live in "the time of the end." We learn from the 12th chapter of Daniel the vision, so far as the time is concerned, was to be sealed up till "the time of the end;" then the wise shall understand. This favors Stuart's rendering, "that the vision is for the time of the end."

After the angel Gabriel is requested to make Daniel "understand the vision," he informs him what the ram and goat signify, as before noticed; but gave no light on the 2300 days. At the close of the eighth chapter Daniel says,—"And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, and did the king's business; and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it." He certainly must have understood the meaning of the ram and rough goat. At the beginning of the ninth chapter, Daniel says he "understood by books the number of years whereof the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem." He then commenced "prayer and supplications" for his people, and continues praying till we come to the 19th verse, where he says:—

"O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O my God: for thy city and thy people are called by thy name. And while I was speaking and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the Lord my God for the holy mountain of my God; yea, while I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding. At the beginning of thy supplications the commandment came forth, and I am come to shew thee; for thou art greatly beloved: therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy."—Dan. 9: 19–24.

The angel says; "I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding, . . . therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision." What vision? Why the one in the eighth chapter, which Gabriel is required to make Daniel "understand." As before remarked, Daniel said at the close of the eighth chapter that he did not understand "the vision." When the angel came again to make him "understand the matter," we may expect him to talk about that part of the vision that Daniel did not understand. The very first instruction at his second visit was about time, as shown in the twenty-fourth verse.

In our next we purpose to give Bro. Thurman's date for the commencement of the seventy weeks and 2300 days.

FURTHER INQUIRIES.

TO THE REV. MILES GRANT:—Dear Sir,—I have just read your second series of answers to my inquiries, for which I again return my thanks, and acknowledge the candor, plainness, and courtesy manifested. I fully appreciate such favors, and most gladly excuse you for not noticing my letter before.

I think I fully understand your meaning in regard to the term man. Light begins to break in in regard to your system of theology, and a few more such clear expositions, and I shall be fully satisfied. Man is a "living organism." "A living being" is a "living soul." "All creatures endued with animal life are living beings, living souls." "He is called man before he lived, and after he is dead."

In view of these plain declarations, I want you to answer one question: What is the difference, then, between man and a beast? Permit me, kind sir, to make a further demand upon your time and patience in a few strictures upon your remarks on the word spirit. After quoting ten passages to show that your fourth sense of the word ruach in Heb., pneuma in Greek, means "the air we breathe," called "breath of life," you draw the following conclusion: that "there is one spirit taken from man at death, which is in his nostrils, without which he cannot live." Hence, you say, we conclude that nothing leaves man at death but "the breath," or "spirit of life, which is in his nostrils."

This language is plain and clear. If I mistake not, I fully understand it. Now, then, we have man composed of two elements; viz., dust and air. I am called upon to believe this. Before I can do so, I must have more light.

1. In what sense can you use the word sleep to a lump of dust in the ground and a portion of air in God?

2. What can you mean by waking up a lump of dust in the ground?

3. What is the element of thought?

4. If this compound of dust and air seeks immortality, what is the element of that immortality, and to which does it adhere, the dust or the air? What part of man is to possess it?

With your explanation of man, I cannot possibly understand the philosophy of "obtaining immortality by patient continuance in well doing." When does he get it, and where? The air or breath is gone, and the dust is mingled with dust. It looks dark to me; yea, it is very dark. And unto you, O minister, I call for light, light!

Again, you say "that the word ruach in Heb., and pneuma in Greek, are used in four senses: 1st, to represent a being; 2d, an influence proceeding from a being; 3d, a state of mind; 4th, the air we breathe, called the "breath of life."

Here permit me to inquire what authority you have for such an arrangement of senses? Is it divine or human? My Hebrew dictionary tells me that ruach is used for "the soul, spirit, immortal part in man," in Gen. 6: 17, Ps. 31: 6, Eccles. 3: 19. My Greek dictionary gives to pneuma thirty-nine meanings.

In consequence of the ambiguity of language, is it not impossible to settle such abstruse points by the use of equivocal words? It seems so to me? Moreover, it seems to me impossible, yea, utterly impossible, to form a correct system of theology from the Bible; and more especially to defend doctrine in the use of words, even though taken from the original. In view of the host of dictionaries published, various translations, emendations, by every one who attempts to preach, and innumerable opinions held forth with zeal, and all called truth of God, I am almost confounded, and gaze in wonder, mazes lost.

Again. "Wholly mortal, or wholly immortal." You tell me it is absurd to suppose a being can be both at the same time. It may be so, but I cannot as yet see it in that light. "Mortal," as you say, "applies to that which is liable to die." Now, as man is a compound of air and dust, then to die is merely a removal of the air or breath out of his nostrils. This is death, as I understand you. You say the air we breathe is called the "breath of life." What, then, is the "breath of lives," in the margin of our Bibles? Now the phrase "of life" is changed in Hebrew, meaning lives, living principles. That is, the breath of living principles. Are these in his nostrils? If so, in what sense are they to be interpreted? So, if life, or lives, never die, which it seems that it does not, if it returns to God, why then does it not follow that man is both mortal and immortal at the same time? because he is carrying never-dying lives; as long as they co-exist in their compound unity.

To conclude. [illegible] I have said I hope I have not [illegible] you, [illegible] presented [illegible] deeply interested in the subject; and I hope you or some others of your fraternity will condescend to meet my inquiries, and find time to open to my understanding the deep things of God. I am advised not to remain in ignorance for the want of asking; also, to seek and find.

Corinna, Me. J. H. SAWYER.

We ever take pleasure in answering the honest inquiries of those seeking for light and truth, as appears to be the case with Bro. Sawyer. We trust he will yet see the way clearly.

In answer to his first inquiry,—"What is the difference, then, between man and a beast?"—we would say that man was made in the "image," or "likeness of his Creator, and the beast was not. See Gen. 1: 26, 27. We will here repeat our definition of man:—"A being made of the dust of the ground in the "likeness" of his Creator."

We will now notice in order the numbered inquiries "1, 2, 3, 4."

1. We do not understand the Scriptures to teach that the word "sleep" has any application to the spirit, or "breath of life," in man's nostrils, but to the man himself. "The breath of life" is never said to have life, be awake, or fall asleep. The word is always in the neuter gender when applied to man. Neither do we understand that it is a component part of man, any more than the wind is a part of the sail that it fills. The Bible does not teach that man is composed of "dust and air," but says man was made "of the dust of the ground." Then after he was made God "breathed" or "blew" "into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." Gen. 2: 7. This breath of life is what causes the man to live and move, as does the steam the engine, but it formed no part of man when he was created, more than did the wind when the sail was made; hence the sleep of man in death has no reference to "the breath of life."

2. In answer to the second inquiry, we would remark, we mean just what we think the Bible teaches, when it says, "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in DUST." David says in Ps. 103: 13–14, "The Lord pitieth them that fear him; for he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are DUST." In Ps. 104: 29, we read,—"Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled, thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their DUST." Again, the wise man says, "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."—Eccl. 3: 20. Now, if "the dust" is never awakened, then there is no "resurrection of the dead;" and Paul says, "if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; . . . and if Christ be not raised, . . . then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." All these sad results must follow then, if the "dust of the ground," that composed the man, is not awakened. Said Job,—"Now shall I sleep in the dust of the earth."—Job 7: 21. How long will he thus sleep? "So man lieth down, and riseth not, till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep."—Job 14: 12. When Paul was speaking of those who saw Christ after his resurrection, he says: "He was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep."—1 Cor. 15: 6. Where do they sleep? Says the prophet Daniel, "Them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."—Dan. 12: 2.

We do not see how language can more plainly teach that man, the accountable being, sleeps in the dust of the ground between death and the resurrection, at which time he is to awake from the dust. Said the Lord to Adam, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 19. And from other Scriptures we have learned that he must "sleep" in the dust of the earth" till the time arrives for them to "awake and sing," which is at the second coming of Christ. Says Paul, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep."—1 Thess. 4: 13. Why not? "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first."—1 Thess. 4: 16.

3. We do not know as we fully comprehend our Bro.'s third inquiry, "What is the element of thought?" If he intends to ask, what is thought? we answer, it is the result of an active brain. Thought is no more an entity, or being, than is pain, love, or hatred. Man cannot think only when his brain is acting; hence when his brain is dead, he stops thinking. Says David, when speaking of the nature of man, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth: in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. We say a watch "keeps time." Time is no part of the watch, but the result of an active mechanism. So thought is the result of an active brain, and exists no longer than the action continues. When the watch stops, it ceases to keep time; when the brain is dead, the man does not think. The time is no part of the watch, formed by the watchmaker, and then put into the watch, to be taken out when the watch is ruined and put into another watch; so thought is no part of the man that continues to live when he is dead. When the brain is deranged, we have deranged thought; when the frontal brain is nearly wanting, then we have idiotic thoughts; before the brain is developed, we have infantile thoughts; and, when worn out with age, we have childish thoughts again; and when dead, no thoughts at all.

4. Our Bro. asks in the fourth place, "what part of man is to possess immortality?" We answer, the whole man. "This mortal must put on immortality."—1 Cor. 15: 53. The one that puts it on is the one that seeks for it; and the one that seeks is the intelligent agent; hence he has not got immortality; for if he had, he would not be exhorted to seek for it by patient continuance in well doing."—Rom. 2: 7.

As the air is not a component part of the man, it does not enter into the account. That is a constant agent for living beings. If we were to have an immortal ship, we would not seek to immortalize the wind that moves it, but the materials of which the ship is made. So if we would have an immortal man, it is not "the breath of life," which is a constant agent, that needs to be made immortal, but the man himself, who is made "of the dust of the ground," and lives by means of the air, or "breath of life."

Our brother inquires by what authority we say that ruach in the Hebrew, and pneuma in the Greek, the words rendered spirit, are used in four senses? We answer, the use of the words as found in the Bible. We find, from a careful examination of all the passages where these words occur, that the four mentioned senses cover all the uses of the words. When the "dictionary" says "that ruach is used for 'the soul,'" it says what theologians teach; but there is not one passage in the Bible where ruach is rendered soul. Of course, when men put a wrong construction upon the use of a word, then the whole subject may become "abstruse." If the popular theology of the day is correct in teaching that man has an "immortal soul," we most freely admit that it is "impossible; yea, utterly impossible" to harmonize such a theology with the Bible. We choose to follow the Bible, if it spoils all the theories of men.

Lastly, our Bro. wishes to know the meaning of the phrase "breath of lives." In Gen. 2: 7, where it reads, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life," the word life is plural in the original, and reads "breath of lives." In Gen. 7: 15, where we have an account of the beasts that went into Noah's ark, we read, "And they went in unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh, wherein is the breath of life." The Hebrew for "breath of life" in this last passage is the same as in Gen. 2: 7,—"the breath of lives," hence just as applicable to the beasts as to men. The plural form simply signifies that the air, or "breath of life," is common to all. Consequently, the wise man says, when speaking of man and beast, "they have all one breath;" therefore it is "the breath" of all lives. But let it be remembered that this "breath of lives" is never spoken of as a living being, to be rewarded or punished while man is slumbering in the dust, awaiting the resurrection "at the last day."

AN INQUIRY.

Please answer the following question through the Crisis: If, according to the belief of some, our Savior is to appear for the deliverance of his people within four years, why are so many of them in darkness of the great fact, when it is expressly declared that "the wise shall understand?" Yours in hope of that precious life,

CATHERINE L. GREGORY.

In answer to the foregoing question, we would say to Sister Gregory, we believe the scripture quoted will be fulfilled before the coming of our Savior; and we believe the prophetic periods are now being unsealed by the light thrown on them by Bro. Thurman's Chronology. If his arrangement, in the main, is correct, as we believe, then the church of Christ, or the bride of the Lamb, will see it in due season to prepare for the marriage. When the sealed time is opened it will appear plain to the friends of Jesus. Let us wait patiently, with prayer and watchfulness, that we may be ready to receive the light as fast as it comes. Do not stop to save a good name among the enemies of the Lord, but come out from the world and be separate, and prepare as fast as possible for the coming of the Son of man. Half-hearted christianity will not be able to stand against the temptations of these last days. We must have a fixed principle to do right at all times, in order to overcome and be ready for translation. It is too late to lean on others. We must have oil in our own vessels. The Bridegroom is soon coming. Be ready to meet him.

RIGHT AND WRONG.

Through the influence of demons men have erected a new standard of right and wrong. We find it expressed in the following resolution, passed at the Chicago National Spiritual Convention, Sunday, Aug. 14th, 1864:—

"Resolved, That the authority of each individual soul is absolute and final in deciding questions for himself or herself as to what is true or false in principle, or right or wrong in practice; therefore the individual, the Church, or the State that attempts to control the opinions or the practice of any man or woman by an authority or power outside of his or her own soul, is guilty of a flagrant wrong."

Such is the system of government the spiritualists, and those whom they have seduced, are purposing to establish soon upon our planet. The authority of the Lord and his word are laid aside for the teachings of the lying demons. They do not allow that the holy Lord has a right to give man a statute book to regulate his actions, words, and thoughts, but claim "that the authority of each individual soul is absolute and final." These are strange times!

TO CANADA SUBSCRIBERS.

Subscribers in the Canadas, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, will find it to their advantage, when remitting to this office, to do so in Provincial bank bills, or gold. For every $1.00 of such money sent us, we will give $2.00 credit, more or less, according to its current value when received.

Tuesday, Nov. 8th, Gold is worth to-day $2.43. Canada bills, $2.40.

[illegible]—The edition is exhausted. We shall have more in a few weeks, if the Lord will. Be patient. H. L. HASTINGS.

THE NEW $5000 TRACT FUND.

We, the [illegible] our names, [illegible] DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$423.26
J. W. Trumbull pd	.50
Hannah Bowne pd	1.00
N. S. Bastion (tracts sold) pd	.50
A friend pd	.25
Friends in Nova Scotia pd	1.00
Wm. M. Ingham pd	1.00
Downs pd	4.00
J. Richard Brown pd	2.00

ITALIAN MISSION.

Previous donations	$242.65
M. Steere pd	.50
J. Richard Brown pd	10.00
Hannah G. Brown pd	1.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$291.07
P. Schellinger pd	2.50
H. C. pd	7.50
E. W. Brown pd	.25
Sr. Eastman pd	1.00
D. E. Lyon pd	1.00
M. B. Lyon pd	1.00
S. Lyon pd	.50
James Lord pd	2.50
Edward Allen pd	2.50
B. H. pd	5.10
S. L. S. pd	2.50
M. Steere pd	.50
Chas. Corpron pd	2.60
John T. Dixon pd (for poor in his town)	2.50
N. G. pd	1.00
O. R. H. pd	1.00
H. B. Cross pd	2.00
A. Richards pd	2.50
Rachel Oliver pd	1.00
E. Treat pd	.30
R. B. pd	1.50
A friend pd	5.00
Joel Smith pd	.75
L. P. Hastings pd	2.50
S. J. C. pd	1.00
Sidney Hall pd	5.00
C. A. H. pd	1.00
Hopeful pd	5.00
J. Richard Brown pd	2.00
M. F. F. pd	1.00
Connor Sweeney pd	.50

THE BANK OF THE LORD'S POOR.

I see in the Crisis, among the list of R. I. poor, one from my own Village of Rocky Brook. I know not who it is, but I wish, for our Rhode Island Churches, to wipe out that poor debt IMMEDIATELY, for God's glory, and their own soul's benefit. I therefore take a share in the Bank of the Lord's Poor, and send you $2.50, which you will please credit for the Crisis for one year to that poor one in Rocky Brook. But if the brethren in R. B. have paid for that poor one, credit it to another R. I. poor, and if the Churches in R. I. have sent you pay for the whole twenty-one poor in R. I. (as they ought to have done as soon as they saw the list,) then credit it to that "John —, Jr.," who is almost blind, saws wood for six, and eats nothing but corn-bread and salt fish, and much oblige one of the poor.

Laporte, Ind. JOHN T. DIXON.

A few more responses like the above, and a little more action in every State, such as Bro D. recommends, and the poor debt will be wiped out at once.

FROM A MINISTER IN ILLINOIS.

I see in the Crisis your urgent call upon all your subscribers who are in arrears, or who are receiving the paper free. I hardly know on which list you would place my name. One thing I do know, which is this,—I cannot do without the Crisis.

I began four years ago to preach the near approach of our Savior in propria persona, the unconscious state of the dead, a literal resurrection, and the second death as the reward of sin. Since then I have received some persecution from the sects, and very little from the world,—perhaps not enough from either to keep me as humble as I should be,—and have seen some penitent souls embrace the Savior through my humble labors.

I write this to say that I am very much pressed in pecuniary matters, having a large family of small children; and, having no land or other source from which to get a support, and being entirely dependent on my labor and the liberality of my hearers for a living, I find it very hard for us to press through from one year to another; but the Lord has provided thus far, and always will. H.

We have cancelled your indebtedness for the past, and marked you free for the future; and trust you will, in return, do what you can to extend the circulation of the Crisis in your field of labor.

"CHLOE LANKTON: OR, LIGHT BEYOND THE CLOUDS."

I read, with much interest and sympathy, the letters from the poor; but my sympathy was increased an hundred-fold when I read (in the last Crisis) the letter of "Chloe." In a Sabbath school book, with the title of "Chloe Lankton," I have read the story of her unparalelled sorrows; of the dark cloud that gathered over her, until it shut out all earth's sunshine with a blackness that could be felt; of the invisible chain that for nearly thirty years, has held her in one place; and of the acute agony that has been her constant companion. Think of her, ye that think your lines have fallen in unpleasant places. Think of her, ye sorrowful ones of earth, and ye that are full of this world's cares. Count the months, the weeks, the days, the hours, comprised in thirty years of imprisonment, suffering, and poverty. Think of the many summers, with their long pleasant days, which she has seen only through the one little window of her prison room; of the green grass that her feet have not pressed in all these years, and the blue sky of which she sees so small a place. And now, another Winter is coming to take its place beside all those long dreary ones that have passed since they laid her there, and even more than the others it will be hard for her. Even the most charitable sometimes forget those whose claims are most pressing, and those who live near have heard her story so long that it may not seem pitiful as at first. And yet it is really more so, for to all the years of her trials are to be added those that intervene between this and our Lord's return, for she is not old, except in suffering. May God protect and care for her still. May the Saviour's arms be placed tenderly and lovingly beneath her, and, above all, may He hasten the glad day when there shall be no more pain, and when all tears shall be wiped away. C. A. H.

P. S. I enclose $1.00. My Saviour knows it is all I can send. Let it pay for Chloe's paper for six months, or if others pay it, please send it to her, and will you give her address in the Crisis.

Peace Dale, R. I.

☞ The story of "Chloe Lankton," published some years ago in the New York Observer, and now in book form by the American Sunday School Union, may be had at the Crisis office, for 25 cents or 33 cents by mail. It is a touching story of suffering and sorrow, is well written, and will interest old and young. An excellent book for our Sabbath Schools. Chloe's address is New Hartford, [illegible] all will be mended.

Illinois Free List.

It is proposed that the churches and brethren, in each town and county, do what they can to supply their own poor with the Crisis for the coming year. Will the brethren in the following places take the matter in hand, and see what they can do?

Aurora	1	Ionia	2
Amboy	1	Moline	1
Atkinson ?	2	Milroy	1
Assumption ?	1	Mound Sterling	1
Barry	1	Monmouth ?	1
Bulkley	1	Ottawa	1
Belvidere	1	Oxford	2
Bunker Hill	1	Perry	1
Chicago	2	Prairie Pond	1
Cordova	1	Plum River	1
Deer Park	1	Rock Island	1
De Kalb Centre	1	Stanton	1
Earlville	1	Sterling	1
Elizabeth	1	Tonica	1
Fosterburg	1	Troy Grove	1
Grafton ?	1	Winnebago ?	1
Harvard	1	Yorktown	1
Havana	3	Total	43

Any More?

"Please take my name from the free list, and put it on the paying list. It is a great comfort to me to read the Crisis, and I feel that I cannot do without it. I enclose $2.50 to pay for the paper the coming year."

Litchfield Co., Ct. MARY.

"You will find in this $1.25 for M. T., who has hitherto been on the free list, but now wishes to become a paying subscriber." M.

We shall be glad to hear from any more such. No doubt there are some, perhaps not a few, who, though once unable to pay, can now. We would not distress any, by asking them to pay when they cannot; but we would remind all that they will feel better themselves, by doing what they can.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. McAllister

BRO. GRANT:—It is nearly a year since the Crisis through your generous bounty has been a more than welcome visitor at my humble home, bringing weekly its messages of hope and joy to my weary heart, cheering and encouraging me to struggle on in this day of peril,—for which I have implored blessings upon your head and the truth you advocate, daily. I thank you a thousand times. Indeed words fail to express the gratitude I feel, for it has proved a blessing beyond price to me. O! I rejoice in the truth contained in its pages. I will give you a brief history of my past life, that you may better understand the situation in which I am placed.

When about ten years of age, I received injury while at school, from which I was confined entirely to the house, and for the most of the time to my bed, for fourteen long, weary years. It is now two years since, through the goodness of God, I have been able to ride out, and to attend meetings some, where the true gospel is proclaimed. It is a marvelous thing to my friends that I am recovering. I had many physicians, of various schools, who with one unanimous voice pronounced my case incurable. Since I could look for no help from man, I turned with an eye of faith to the great Physician, who, I felt, was mighty, and able, and ready to save all who put their trust in him.

Years passed, and still I remained a weary invalid, my body racked with pain, yet still with unfaltering faith I looked to God to restore me, fully believing that he would raise me up if I but trusted in him. How gladly would I draw a veil over what followed; but the truth must come, however painful it is to me to speak.

Five years ago this present month there came to our door one morning an oldish man, who asked if there was not a sick girl here? saying that "as he was passing he thought he would call and see her." Said he had "the gift of healing," and thought he could restore me to health. He said he was no Spiritualist, but was as much opposed to it as any one could be;—which declaration, spoken in the most-humble meekness, to all outward appearance greatly prepossessed him in my favor, as I was at that time, and had ever been, greatly opposed to Spiritualism. So in the foolishness of my heart, as a drowning man catches at a straw, I thought this might be a servant of God whom he had sent to heal me. Ah! dreadful, fatal delusion! Step by step, I was led on by the ignis fatuus, till I was lost in an endless maze that I could not solve. And must I say it? Ere I was aware whither my steps were tending, I was a Spiritualist, a prey to that fatal delusion, snared in the "toils of the enemy."

Thus passed one long, one dreadful year, at the end of which I was in a truly sad condition. I was in an agony of body and mind. But, glory be to God! who of his great mercy showed me that I was lost forever if I remained where I was. O! how mightily I cried unto God in the horror and anguish of my soul, "Be pleased, O Lord, to deliver me! O Lord, make haste to help me! and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God." I felt a perfect submission. Then I could say from my heart, Thy will, oh God, not mine be done! I felt willing to be sick, to be well, to live or to die, just as he would have me.

O! then it was that a brighter, clearer, holier faith was given me. Trusting no longer in an arm of flesh, leaning wholly upon God, we looked to him alone for help. Though there were many who had for some time made a profession, yet there seemed to be no living christians in the place at this time, with the exception of two or three saints who worshiped God in secret. We had no preaching, no meetings,—all was worldliness, ungodliness around us. But at this time a spirit of prayer was given me. O! how earnestly I prayed to God that he would pour out his Spirit upon the young people of our place. The burden I felt was not for the old, but all for the young. I prayed until the victory was given me. Glory be to God! who giveth the victory through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

I prayed if it might be consistent with his will, he would raise me up, that I might meet with his children when the gracious outpouring of his Spirit should come, as I fully believed it would. I prayed that the true gospel might be preached unto us when the time of refreshing should come from the Lord. O praise to his holy name! who hears and answers the prayer of faith; who in the hours of deepest affliction bade me look up, saying, "Thou shalt yet live and praise my name." O glory be to God for ever and ever! who heareth the cry of the humble.

It seemed to dawn upon my mind that I had never had a right understanding of the Bible. And I prayed upon bended knee, lying prostrate upon my weary bed, that the word of God might be revealed unto me, that the truth might make me free. And, beloved [illegible]

Bro., when I think how God of his great mercy had heard and answered the prayer of his unworthy child, my very soul is lost in wonder, love and praise! From the hour I gained the victory in prayer, I began to amend. Every time I poured out my whole soul to God in prayer, I received new strength of mind and body. Blessed be God! Thus he blessed me from day to day.

Two years ago last July I was enabled to ride out. I must not stop to tell the joy I then felt, but pass on a few months later, when the glorious revival began among the young people. We had had no meetings all this time, but the new song was in the mouth of the young, even praise unto our God. And still God's Spirit was poured out upon the young, and although many aged backsliders were reclaimed, yet there were no old sinners converted; which fact shows me that those who pass through revivals and resist the influence of the Spirit are in danger of sinning beyond repentance.

Through the goodness and mercy of God, I was permitted to attend the house of worship for the first time in fourteen years. And when I arose at the close of the meeting, and told them how God had raised me up, rendering to him the praise and glory, every heart of that vast assembly seemed melted to tears. I told them how I had promised the Lord, if he would raise me up, my life, my all, should be consecrated to his service. And by the grace of God assisting me I will keep my vow.

Through the goodness of God in sending his servant Eld. Nathan Wheeler of Cabot to us (who is a self-denying man of God), and in blessing our beloved pastor, Eld. Daniel Braley, the true gospel has been preached to us. And let me add, through the reading of the Crisis, which he has labored to circulate, the truth has been greatly blessed to us. I am dependent upon a widowed mother, and a younger sister who works out for her livelihood. My mother has raised a small piece of corn this year, all we have, cultivating it entirely with her own hands, although sixty-three years of age. She has taken care of her little stock for the last three winters, which consists of a cow and a few sheep. Her health is poor indeed. I do not sit up all day myself, yet wait upon myself, and do a little light work, but not much.

O! Bro. Grant, press the battle upon Spiritualism,—give it no quarter. My very soul rejoices when I see christian ministers wearing "the whole armor of God," being able thereby to stand against the wiles of the devil. I have done what I could to circulate the Crisis; have borne witness to the truth in every available place, in public and private circles. I wish I had something to send you, but God in his righteous providence has so ordered it that I have nothing to give but my thanks and prayers. Can I give up the Crisis, that I have learned to love so well? My heart would indeed grow weary of the absence of that cherished friend. Can I spare it? It seems that I can not. Heavenly Father! open the hearts of thy believing children, whom thou hast abundantly blest with this world's goods, to give, that the "poor may have the gospel preached to them." Once more I thank you, in the name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who will reward you at his appearing for the good you have done me; and give us to meet in that unending kingdom where all shall be peace and joy forevermore. Your unworthy Sister in the faith, ANNA E. MCELLISTER.

East Roxbury, Vt.

From Bro. J. R. Preston.

BRO. GRANT:—Since I wrote you from Decorah that I was drafted, I have been home to counsel the brethren with regard to the course I should pursue. Our first conclusion was that I should go on into the Hospital. But after more mature consideration the brethren thought best to buy me—[or rather to persuade me to commute].

I left Decorah on Saturday, Oct. 29th, to go home, with orders to report at Dubuque on Thursday, Nov. 3rd, or at West Union, where I could pay the three hundred dollars. At the solicitation of the brethren I went to West Union as per order. But on my arrival learned that I must have an order from the Captain or certificate that I was entitled to the benefit of the 17th Sec. of the enrollment law, which I had not got. Consequently I was compelled to come to Dubuque to find the Captain. I arrived yesterday at 2 o'clock, P. M., but could not obtain an interview last night.

This morning all drafted men were ordered forward to Davenport at six o'clock, A. M. But fortunately I was at Bro. Cook's "pilgrim home," and did not know that I was to be sent forward. On my arrival at the Marshal's office I was called a deserter, &c. But I kept quiet, knowing that the Master had said "In your patience possess ye your souls."

To-day at ten A. M. roll was called. We were taken into "Globe Hall" (not as you and I were there in August) to answer to our names. A guard was placed at the door. I went to him and desired to pass for the purpose of seeing the Captain; on which I was escorted to the office of Capt. Adams, who, remembering me, immediately gave me the necessary documents to show that I had the right to commute, my proof being satisfactory.

Thus I am free. Praise the Lord. I have been praying all the time that the will of the Lord might be done. I have tried to be passive in his hands, and now all is well. Praise the Lord with me, brethren, for his love to one so unworthy. I feel that Jesus is at the helm of the old ship Zion, and will guide her safe into the port of glory. Let us trust him more fully, brethren. "Wait on the Lord and he will save thee" is the promise of his word. I now intend to give myself more fully to the Master's work than ever. Pray for me, brethren. Yours, in hope of eternal life, when the Lord comes, JARED R. PRESTON.

Floyd, Iowa, Nov. 5th.

From Sr. F. A. Gard.

BRO. GRANT:—I am one of the readers of the Crisis, also a believer in the soon coming of Jesus to reign King of kings and Lord of lords. I therefore deem it a duty resting upon us as his followers to do all we can to warn a sleeping world of that great event. For my Bible teaches me that probation will end at his coming, and what a dreadful condition will those be in who have no oil in their lamps when the Bridegroom cometh. I am poor in this world's goods, but know I ought to do something for the cause of my Master and will [illegible] the Crisis [illegible] you can afford [illegible] in which you are engaged is a good one, and I hope your reward will be eternal life in the kingdom of God.

Brethren and sisters, take courage. Earth's trials and sorrows will soon be over. The rude monster death has torn from my embrace two dear little ones, but I hope soon to meet them and you in that land where the inhabitants will no more say, I am sick. What a glorious thought, that Jesus is soon coming to wipe away all tears from our eyes! Let us be faithful unto death, and he has promised that he will give us a crown of life. Your sister in Christ,

Earlville, Iowa. FRANCES A. GARD.

From Sr. M. A. Starr.

BRO. GRANT:—I hope this blessed paper may be instrumental in saving my soul from death. I was in early years brought up under the Presbyterian doctrine, which hardened my heart, and caused me to look upon the Almighty as an unjust, unmerciful king, to inflict such torment as "endless misery" even on sinners. My heart rebelled against him. I feared his judgments, but could not love the Author of such judgments. Then the examples of some of our popular preachers increased my unbelief. My heart became less susceptible to belief in any religion, till of late my attention has been called to the Crisis and its doctrines, finding it accords with Bi'le truths. My eyes are opened, and I find that I, like many others, have been deluded and deceived; that our heavenly Father is a just, merciful Being, one who can be loved instead of feared. I fear the false doctrines and bad examples of some of our ministers is hardening more hearts, consequently destroying more souls, doing more injury than is fully realized

I am sorely afflicted with physical debility, and my impaired mind will not allow a concentration of thought on a subject any length of time. I know and feel that I am a great sinner; when I would be good, sin is present with me. For the past year I have been confined to my bed, can converse or read but little, and the influence around me is not conducive to my spiritual welfare. I feel at times my afflictions are greater than I can bear. I humbly ask your prayers and the prayers of your church in my behalf, that I may have grace sufficient for my strength, and be made to feel that "He doeth all things well."

Brookfield, Ct. MARY A. STARR.

From Bro. F. Douglas.

BRO. GRANT:—Myself and companion are still on our pilgrimage to the land promised to the patriarchs. The journey is attended with many difficulties sorely trying to human nature, yet we press forward, in full faith that the City lies beyond, for the Chart points it out. My companion's great physical affliction at times almost paralyzes her faith; but the rays of mercy's sun invigorate and revivify it. It will be five years this winter since she has walked, and we know not as she will ever in this life be blessed with that privilege. The Crisis is to her, especially, a mental fountain of encouragement, and sustainer of hope. Its visits are pleasurably anticipated and well improved. Its growth in interest evinces divine favor. Its extended influence betokens the spread of truth. Its moral radiance begets love and respect, and its scriptural bearing challenges imitation. Its perusal st mulates my faith and makes it more effective. Though temporal embarrassments depress, and earthly cares weigh down, yet the sunlight of hope pierces the future, and faith triumphs.

To the scattered loved ones we send kind remembrances and words of encouragement, for the Lord is gracious and greatly to be praised. Time shortens and redemption hastens. Prospective release will soon be present liberty. The language of our hearts is—

Break away! thou night of ages,
Usher in the natal morn;
When earth's sleeping saints awaken,
Resurrected, Spirit-born.

Rochester, N. Y. FRED. DOUGLAS.

From Bro. Wm. Kay.

BRO. GRANT:—To-day I got my paper from the post-office, (I live about six and one-half miles from Moline), and was glad to see it as I always am. It is always as honey to my taste, or marrow in my bones! It is always carefully explored. I have no fault to find. I take another Advent paper, but the productions of some of the writers I do not admire. We all have our faults; some have one big one, and some two little ones; but should it ever be our lot for this mortal to put on immortality, then we shall be all right. Amen.

I see in the Crisis that there is a great movement in the tract department. That is good. It will hardly ever be known in time the good that is done by the free circulation of tracts. I wish it God speed. Yours, waiting. WILLIAM KAY.

Rock Island, Ill.

Obituaries.

CAPT. DAVID PIERCE.

Died in Southport, Me., Oct. 11th, 1864, of paralysis, Bro. David Pierce, aged eighty-six years.

SISTER PIERCE.

Died in Southport, Sept. 27th, 1864, of dropsy, the wife of Bro. David Pierce, aged seventy-nine years.

Thus within a space of two weeks' time these two humble and aged servants of God fell quietly asleep in Jesus, in the joyful hope of being soon raised up to immortality when Christ shall come in all his glory. They had spent nearly all their days together. Sought and found Jesus in early life, followed him until death. Their house was a pilgrim house. About 1842, they received, through papers and books, the stirring message that Jesus was soon coming. This added to their joys, and they longed to hear it preached. Some twelve years ago I visited that island, and, with some perplexity, obtained the M. E. meeting-house, and preached the message, to the great joy of this family. Subsequently, I visited them again, and by their request baptized them both, as they had been only sprinkled into the Methodist church, some forty years before, but were not satisfied with it. They were earnest and faithful servants of the Lord, letting all know when they saw the truth, making no compromise with skeptics or scoffers. A number of their large family still survive to mourn their death; but some of them enjoy the same blessed hope which cheered these parents. May God enable them all so to live as to gain eternal rest. I. C. WELLCOME.

L. E. SANBORN.

[illegible] wife of Joseph B. Sanborn, and daughter of [illegible]

[illegible] years of hopeful life had scarcely passed, and a sweet little cherub had just been given to bless the eyes of the young mother, when lo! the loving and the loved, in spite of tears and entreaties, are ruthlessly torn apart. O! how unwelcome to our dear homes is the approach of the pale horse and its rider. We implore him to pass on, but he lurks in every flower. The choicest ones we have he is sure to grasp, and leave us to bury them out of our sight. But the fiat of Jehovah has gone forth. His word cannot return to him void. He hath spoken; it will stand fast; "I will be thy plague, O death; I will be thy destruction, O grave." Then will the holy and the good live again,

"And fears of parting chill Never, no, never!"

That he who is desolate and smitten may cherish the blessed gospel hope which embraces the re-living of our loved ones laid away in death, is the earnest prayer of the writer. L. DAMMAN.

MEELE COUCH.

Fell asleep in Jesus, in Webster, (formerly Boscawen, N. H.) Oct. 13th, two o'clock P. M., Meele Couch, wife of the late Joseph Couch of B., aged eighty-four years.

She with her husband became a believer in the life, sacrifice, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ in the reformation times of Elias Smith, Peter Young, Frederic Plummer, and Abner Jones. They became pioneers in the christian cause in Boscawen for many years, administering to the wants of the poor and needy both in church and out, and always kept the pilgrim's home for all who loved Jesus, and also entertained strangers in need. She trained up a family of six children in the admonition of the Lord. Her husband died in 1832, Aug. 1st, and the youngest son in 1846, Nov. 20th, likewise the youngest daughter (Sarah) April 3d, 1860. All thus far have fallen asleep in Jesus. The subject of this notice first became a firm believer in the speedy coming of Jesus Christ in 1843, and ever sustained her faith in Jesus' coming quickly to restore and give possession of this earth to the saints of the Most High. She ever sustained the family altar of prayers established by her companion in their younger days. The following hymn, read by the Rev. Mr. Buxton at the funeral, will express her belief in Jesus:

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the dread of foes.

Asleep in Jesus! peaceful rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest;
No fear, no foe, shall dim that hour
Which manifests the Savior's power."

B. H. COUCH.

W. H. and C. J. FAIRBANKS.

Died in North Adams, Oct. 8th, 1864, of diphtheria, Willie H., son of Henry A. and Juliett A. Fairbanks, aged four months, sixteen days.

Also, Oct. 9th, 1864, of scarlet fever, Clara J., daughter of Henry A. and Juliett A. Fairbanks, aged four years, nine months.

Funeral discourse by the writer from Isa. 25: 8; "He will swallow up death in victory, and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces." Thus those lovely children yielded to the power of death, and were laid side by side in one coffin in the cold grave, where they will sleep unconscious of good or ill until Jesus comes, when they will live and bloom in immortal beauty. May the Lord give the needed grace, and prepare the parents to meet them where death never enters.

Sleep on, sweet children, side by side,
Till the last awful trump shall sound
That breaks the slumbers of the dead,
And wakes the nations under ground.

And thou, lone mother, from whose breast
Thy tender offspring have been torn,
If good, thou 'lt reign among the blest,
Where mothers never more shall mourn.

WM. J. BLANCHARD.

ISAAC A. LAWTON.

Died in South Troy, N. Y., Oct. 3d, 1864, Isaac A. Lawton, formerly of Pittstown, aged thirty-one years and three months.

He was sick but one week, and his sufferings were very great, but I am told that he bore them patiently. His mother, wife and three small children, together with numerous friends mourn his loss. He embraced the doctrines taught by the "Adventists," some four years ago, and was baptized in 1861, by Eld. Miles Grant, in the Chicopee River, during the Wilbraham campmeeting of that year. And although encountering many reverses in business life, he still tried for the most part of the time, to aid in spreading the "Gospel of the Kingdom." Just before he breathed his last he made some confessions and expressed a hope in Christ.

Eld. Wm. J. Blanchard of Savoy, Mass., preached the funeral sermon. May the consolations of "the word of God" cheer the widow and children, together with all the mourning ones.

JACOB WILBUR.

MARTHA A. WATSON.

Died in Natick village, Warwick, R. I., Oct. 20th, 1864, Sister Martha A. Watson, aged twenty-seven years, six months and twelve days.

Sister Martha was a firm believer in the Advent faith from her early youth. She had been sick the most of the time for two years. Notwithstanding her sufferings were great, her greatest desires were that her friends would prepare to meet her, that when Christ should come they might make a family entire in the kingdom. She seemed ready to meet death at any time, for she exclaimed, "Sister Mary, I have fought a good fight, and kept the faith; henceforth there is a crown laid up for me, and not for me only, but for all that love his appearing."

Funeral discourse by the writer from Mark 13: 27. At the close of the service the brethren and sisters sung the hymn!

"Sister, thou wast mild and lovely."

WM. S. DEVEREUX.

CYNTHIA M. LANFAIR.

Died in North Hoosick, Aug. 13th, 1864, of typhoid fever, Sister Cynthia M. Lanfair, aged twenty-eight years and six months.

Sister Lanfair was called to part with her companion some three years since, when she was left a widow, with an only child of about two summers. In a few short months he, too, was laid away to await the resurrection morn. They sleep in Jesus, and such will God bring with him. Sr. L. lived the life of a christian, and died with the blessed hope of having a part in the "first resurrection."

"O, then the loved of earth shall meet,
Whom death has sundered here;
The prophets and patriarchs there will greet,
And all that worship at Jesus' feet,
No more separation to fear."

Words of comfort were spoken to the bereaved friends by Bro. I. Blanchard, of Stamford, Vt.

FLORA R. LEONARD.

WM. DRAPER.

Died in South Danvers, July 25th, 1864, at the residence of his grandparents (Wm. and Alice B. Draper), and on the anniversary of their fiftieth wedding day, William Draper, son of Jose B. and Lydia E. B. Oliver, aged sixteen months and six days.

Sleep, precious babe, in calm repose,
Naught shall disturb thy rest;
Thou shalt arise as Jesus rose,
And be forever blest.
Sleep, then, till thou art called away
To spend with him an endless day.
Thy little form so beautiful,
With grief we've laid away,
Expecting soon our Lord's return
To usher in that day.
When thou with all the ransomed throng
Will wake and sing the joyful song.

ALICE B. DRAPER.

My dear wife fell asleep in Jesus Oct. 10th, after a sickness of eighteen days, aged forty-seven years, [illegible]

ELIZABETH F. FLANDERS.

Died at West Alton, Sept. 3d, of typhoid fever, Sister Elizabeth F., wife of Bro. Enoch Flanders, aged thirty-nine years, seven months.

Her sickness was short, but very distressing. She felt she should not live, and told her companion she was going to leave him.

Sister Flanders experienced religion in 1851, and was baptized by Eld. J. G. Smith. She lived an exemplary life, was kind and affectionate in her family, and beloved by her neighbors and friends. She has left a husband, four children, a widowed mother, one sister, with many other friends to mourn for her. She was buried on the fifth. Discourse by the writer. JOHN KNOWLES.

GEORGE RIELY.

Died in New Orleans, La., September, 1864, of typhoid fever, George Riely, son of George R. and Sarah Lamb of Providence, R. I., aged eighteen years.

The dread enemy death has stricken another blooming youth from the stage of life. Deeply indeed is the stroke felt by his parents and sisters. But they do not despair, for they have the hope of the gospel to comfort them in their affliction. They expect to meet him again, where death shall no more separate them. C. H. SWEET.

HARRIET B. YOUNG.

Died in Livermore, Sept. 29th, 1864, Sister Harriet B., wife of Bro. Lucius A. Young, aged twenty-four years and seven months.

Their youngest child, Harry L., they had recently buried. He died Sept. 13th, aged four months and twenty-three days. May God's grace be manifest to sustain our deeply afflicted brother. Funeral attended by the writer. Text, 1 Cor. 15: 44.

"How sweet the christian's hope to me,
While here I'm called to roam;
It points me to a better land,
That I may call my home."

E. M. HAGGETT.

I. E. POLLEY.

Died in West Point, Oct. 15th, of croup diphtheria, Ira Ernest, son of the late Ira and Mrs. C. M. Polley, aged three years.

Cherub one! dear, darling "Ernie,"
For thee the teardrops fall;
Very soon ended our little lamb's journey,
He went at the Shepherd's call.

ETTA B. DODGE.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

[From Queenstown the 30th ult.]

The Emperors of France and Russia had long interviews at Nice on the 27th and 28th.

THE DANISH QUESTION.

There were again rumors of further delay in the conclusion of peace. Intelligence unfavorable to peace is said to have reached Copenhagen on the 27th, and the Council of States was suddenly summoned. The Prussian commander in Jutland was ruling with a high hand, and had forbidden all exports and imports by sea. Orders to the Danish military tend to confirm the unfavorable news.

AUSTRIA.

The resignation of Count Reichberg and the appointment of Count Mensdorff as his successor is confirmed.

ITALY.

The armor-clad frigate Redi Portugallo, recently built at New York for the Italian Government, had arrived at Naples.

Contradictory reports are current in regard to the insurgents in Venetia. Private letters assert that numerous bands exist, while other accounts say the insurgents are reduced to a small number, not having found followers among the people. The Dirneto of Turin has been again seized for publishing a proclamation by Seno Cainoli, calling on the people to support the insurrection.

The Venetia Committee of the Italian Chamber has declared in favor of a convention and transfer of the capital to Florence.

[Liverpool Nov. 3d, Londonderry 4th.]

FRANCE.

Political news unimportant.

The French troops were to make simultaneous attacks on the insurgents at different points in Algeria about the 5th of November, cutting off their retreat. Decisive results were expected.

ITALY.

The Marquis Deaze Glio publishes a letter in the journals that the great question for Italy to consider is not the mere choice of a capital. He recommends the acceptance of the Convention.

Cardinal Antonelli has prepared a reply to the French dispatch, defending the course of the Papal Government, and attacking that of Victor Emanuel. The government does not desire the disbanding the French army in Rome.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor of Russia arrived at Potsdam on the 2d of November on a visit to the King of Prussia, and would remain until the 5th.

IMPENDING WAR IN JAPAN.—The latest news from Japan indicates that by this time a combined naval force, consisting of eight British, three French, five Dutch war vessels and one chartered American steamer—seventeen vessels in all—has attacked the forces of the Tycoon with a view to force an opening of the inland sea. It is said that the Japanese possess several very strong forts, heavily armed, and enough is known of the character and determination of that people to justify the conclusion that this fleet will meet no insignificant foe. Besides their land defenses the Japanese also have several armed vessels, but these are, of course, no match for any of the allied fleet.

DOMESTIC.

New York, The Herald's dispatch from Sheridan's army, dated 8th, says Gen. Sheridan has received information that the rebels intended to resume the offensive immediately. Elwell has superseded Early. Fitz Hugh Lee's division was at Wardensville Monday on the Cacapon river. Imboden was also reported there. The rebel force there is over 5000 strong. Moseby has been reinforced by a regiment of Virginia cavalry. A raid is expected on Winchester or on Sheridan's lines of communication. The rebel movements have been counteracted. Our cavalry moved this morning.

To-day a small force of Gen. Kelley's successfully attacked a rebel force that was moving toward Moorefield. A general engagement is expected in a day or two. There are indications that the rebels will attempt to flank Sheridan's position at Cedar Creek. Early has gone to Richmond.

The Herald's Army of the Potomac dispatch reports that the rebels attacked our extreme left Sunday forenoon, but were quickly sent back within their own lines. Gen. Grant had previously issued orders for extra vigilance in all our lines.

Atlanta, Ga., has been burned and Gen. Sherman is en route for Charleston, S. C.

The Times' Washington special dispatch says of Sherman's movements: "He determined that it was necessary to pursue Hood with his whole army, and with three corps started for Atlanta. It is thought he would touch at Macon, and reach Savannah in twenty-five days. The route is two hundred miles, with no rivers to pass, and through the most flourishing part of Georgia. Milledgeville, the capital, will be reached in six days. He will have rations for thirty-six days, but expects to find supplies and forage on the route. His force will be from 40,000 to 70,000, fully equipped.

Doubtless there will be considerable destruction of property on the way, and tens of thousands of huddled slaves in Georgia will be freed and added to the army.

Troops have gone from Atlanta to Tennessee to destroy all the bridges and all the important railroad routes. Rome will be evacuated and damaged. We will hold the outposts in Georgia south of Chattanooga to guard East Tennessee. Hood's entire army is nearly five hundred miles in the rear of Sherman. Gen. Thomas has a sufficient army to take care of Hood, and is already prepared to fight him. If Hood goes into Western Kentucky he falls into a trap. The rebels have nothing in Georgia that can oppose Sherman. We shall probably get our first news from Sherman at Savannah or Charleston."

The Herald's Fortress Monroe correspondent says an exchange of 10,000 prisoners has been negotiated, and that the first installment of rebels left for the Savannah river on Tuesday.

St. Louis, Nov. 10. Dispatches to headquarters confirm the fight with Price at Newtonia on the 28th ult. The rebel loss was 400 killed and wounded and fifty wagons destroyed. The rebels were again overtaken at Fayetteville, Ark., and a sharp skirmish had with their flank. They are supposed to have crossed the Arkansas river before this, unless Gen. Steele intercepted them.

Montreal, Nov. 10. The examination of the prisoners in the St. Albans raid case proceeds slowly. [illegible] the United Kingdom [illegible]

Quebec, Nov. 10. Prominent men from the Northern States are here urging the Canadian Government to an energetic co-operation with the American authorities to preserve the peace of the frontier. Efficient measures on the part of the Canadian Government have been taken.

New York, Nov. 11. The Times' Nashville dispatch, dated 10th, says Gen. Gillem has utterly routed the enemy in East Tennessee, driving him in great confusion forty-four miles. His advance is ninety miles east of Knoxville. The rebels are at Bristol, being strengthened by Virginia militia.

The reports concerning the destruction of Government property on the land at Johnsonville are greatly exaggerated. No apprehensions are entertained in regard to its safety. The destruction of Government and private property on the river is complete, involving an immense loss.

The Herald's New Orleans correspondence says our gunboats are watching the mouth of the Red River for three formidable rebel rams expected down when the water rises.

The cotton crop of Texas, like that of Louisiana, is reported destroyed by worms. The yield of corn is abundant.

Jeff. Davis' currency is almost entirely set aside in Texas and gold and silver only are accepted. Kirby Smith stopped 150 car loads of cotton belonging to private individuals, destined for Mexico. Only shipments on rebel account are allowed.

Torpedoes have been placed in the Mississippi river along the Louisiana shore by the rebels, but will soon be removed.

At Mobile our gunboats make experiments in shelling the city three hours a day.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says information has been received that the rebels in the Valley are being reinforced and are attempting to flank Gen. Sheridan so as to threaten Maryland and Pennsylvania, but Gen. Sheridan is prepared for them, having on Wednesday issued marching orders to his army.

Dispatches from the front say the rebels some days ago were in force at Staunton, and that it was their intention to move on our lines at once.

We learn from Little Rock, Ark., that on the 23d ult., a small body of Steele's force captured the entire rebel train, consisting of thirty-five wagons, after four hours hard fighting. Two hundred horses and $11,000 were also captured, and the force guarding the train were scattered in the mountains. This was probably Price's train sent ahead.

The Herald's dispatches from Matamoras 26th say that Cortinas having become an imperialist, he was sent out on an expedition after his brother at the head of a band of guerrillas. Juarez is at Chihuahua with two thousand troops fortifying, and is determined to stand a siege.

At a public dinner one of Maximillian's officers toasted the union of the Southern Confederacy and Mexico, which was received with applause and the performance by the band of the "Bonnie Blue Flag."

☞ Lord Lyons is lying dangerously ill of typhoid fever at Washington.

Notices.

An Important Meeting.

GENERAL ADVENT CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE OF THE NORTH WEST.

This conference will hold its first session in Buchanan, Berrien Co., Mich., to commence Dec. 8, 1864.

Eld. Wm. C. Thurman has been invited, and has consented to meet with us, and aid us in the examination of the "times and seasons." Other Bible students, sympathizing in this good work, are invited to be present and take part in our deliberations.

The following important questions may receive attention:

I. Are the "times and seasons" to be understood before the Advent?

II. The 2300 days of Daniel 8: 14. When did they begin? Are the 70 weeks a part of this number? What decree or commandment marks their beginning? that of Cyrus or that of Artaxerxes? and what year B. C. was the decree given?

III. The age of the world, and the Great Sabbath, or Millenium.

IV. The Seven Times. Lev. 26: 28.

V. The Great Jubilee.

VI. The year of Release.

VII. The 1260, 1290 and 1335 years of Dan. 7 and 12. When will Daniel stand in his lot?

OTHER QUESTIONS.

1. The gospel of the kingdom, Matt. 24: 14. Knowledge increasing, Dan. 12: 4. The first angel's message, Rev. 14: 6. Are they the same?

2. Can the second and third angels' messages be applied to the Protestant church by any correct system of interpretation?

3. Are the Jews to be restored to Palestine, and if so, when, and for what object?

4. Will the meek inherit the earth at the coming of Christ, and dwell therein forever? And will the wicked be finally punished with everlasting destruction; or live eternally, in indescribable misery and torment?

The conference will hold its sittings about ten days; all of which will be filled up with work, holding three sessions a day.

All are invited, who have an interest in, and can contribute to the good of the meeting. Look the subjects over; prepare your views; come prepared to present them—write them out, and then review them, and re-write, if necessary, and perfect them. Put them into the smallest possible compass. See that you apply the laws of interpretation rightly, and thus get the true meaning of the Holy Spirit.

We are in the "time of the end," and many are "running to and fro," and "searching to and fro," "and knowledge is increasing." There is more light to come! Let us be ready for it. Let us seek for it as hid treasure. According to the best authorities on Chronology and prophetic interpretation we stand on the margin of the new world. Only a few years are to elapse before we shall see the King in his beauty. And if this be so, then as watchmen, we ought to know, and proclaim the time of night. Let us, like Daniel, having found out by the sacred books (Dan. 9: 2) that the time is nigh for the deliverance of God's people, give ourselves to prayer, and fasting, and confession. Let us ask our God to give us light on these grand and all important themes, and he will help us, and show us wondrous things out of his law.

Until the conference shall meet, let us make it a subject of daily prayer. Let all the churches, and isolated believers do this. Let us be in earnest about this matter, and like Daniel, not give it up till all is plain. Let us confess our sins, as he did. "We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and thy judgments; neither have we hearkened to thy servants, the prophets, which spake in thy name." Let us plead for the scattered flock, for the tried and tempted ones without shepherds. Let us plead with him to raise up shepherds, to feed and prepare the flock for the judgment; and so gather his people out from all classes and associations, that they may be pure and all ready for the day of the Lord.

Thurman's Astronomical Tables.

Eld. Thurman in his letter to Eld. Sheldon, remarks:

"That taking nothing on trust you may be enabled to fathom the foundation, we intend to publish astronomical tables, with which you can, by the truth-testing powers of astronomy, know whether our chronology will stand."

Also in his "Sealed Book of Daniel Opened,"—p. 301 we find the following:

"If those who being unwilling to take anything on trust you desire, and will send in a sufficient number of subscribers to defray the expense of doing so, we will prepare an astronomical table, arranged on a plan so simple that any schoolboy that understands simple addition and multiplication can in a few days learn to calculate any eclipse of the sun or moon that has occurred within the limits of the last six thousand years."

As there has been considerable interest manifested to obtain these tables, we have concluded to take the responsibility of publishing them by subscription. As soon as we receive subscriptions for 100 copies we shall place the work in the hands of the printer. The subscription price will be $1.00 per copy. This work will be invaluable to the investigators of chronology and prophecy, as also to astronomical students generally. Send in your subscriptions at once, that this important work may be published immediately.

Address, J. V. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.

Notice.

The Iowa Annual Christian Conference will meet Thursday, before the last Lord's day in November, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa. We hope to see a general turn out, as we have important business on hand. Each one is expected to be there in person or report by letter, as some who have neglected to do so may be dropped from our record. Teams will be at the depot on the 24th, to convey brethren to the meeting.

P. S. W. DEYO, Conference Clerk.

Notice.

The semi-annual Illinois Advent Christian Conference will meet at De Kalb, [illegible] the following Sabbath. E. ROYCE, Sec.

G. W. Stetson's Appointments.

Every first Sabbath in each month at the Kinsley school-house, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M. Same day at the Dingle house, in North Fairfield, 7 P. M.

Every second Sunday in each month in Berlin, Erie Co., O., at the school-house near Bro. D. C. Jeffreyson's, 11 A. M., and same day at the M. E. Chapel, 7 P. M.

Every third Sunday in the school-house near Bro. A. McCombs, in Fairfield Tp., half-past 10 A. M.

Every fourth Sunday in Clark's Hall, in Norwalk, half-past 1 P. M.

The appointment for every third Sunday is an incidental one, and if brethren from abroad desire my services in proclaiming the truth, they should so arrange as to call me from this third Sabbath appointment. Or when there is a fifth Sunday in a month, I may be absent. When two weeks evening meetings are desired, arrange from the first Tuesday after the second Sunday, over the third to Friday before the fourth Sunday. In case of absence the deacons will take charge of this meeting and prayer and conference prevail.

Olena, Huron Co., O. G. W. STETSON.

A Quarterly Conference at Portsmouth, N. H.

A quarterly session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire, will be held in Portsmouth, commencing Dec. 1st, and continue over the following Sunday. We hope those who come to this meeting, will come filled with the spirit of the Master, prepared to labor for the upbuilding of the saints, and the salvation of those who are out of Christ, that great good may be done. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Meetings in West Brookfield, Mass.

If the Lord will, I propose to commence a series of meetings in the Town Hall in West Brookfield, Mass., on Friday evening, Nov. 25th, and continue them over Sunday, or longer, as the Lord may guide. Pray for us. H. L. HASTINGS.

Lost.

In the strangers tent at the Alton Bay campmeeting, a long double shawl, red and green. If any one can give information in regard to it, please address SARAH A. JONES, London Village, N. H.

Meetings in New York City.

Advent meetings are held in Cooper Institute, Room 18, New York. Brethren visiting the city are invited to give us a call.

M. E. GREEN, for the church.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Edwin Burnham.........Sundays, Nov. 20th and 27th
S. S. Brewer.........Sundays, Dec 4th and 11th
Miles Grant.........Sunday, Dec. 18th

West Winsted, Ct., at Camp's Hall.........Nov. 20th
Newfield, Ct., Tuesday evening, Nov. 22nd, and every evening during the week, and over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting. MILES GRANT.

Portsmouth, N. H.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
H. L. HASTINGS.

Yarmouth.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Biddeford.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
and Sunday, Dec. 4th. A. MUSSEY.

Lynn, Mass.........Nov. 20th
C. C. RAMSAY.

Philadelphia.........Nov. 20th and remain as long as the Lord will.
F. H. BURBANK.

Windsor, Ct. (where Bro. Terry may appoint), Nov. 20th
North Canton, Ct.........Nov. 27th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Springfield, Mass.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Dover, N. H., (Backriver school-house), Sunday, Nov. 27th. J. G. SMITH,
J. PINKHAM.

New Hartford Center, Ct., (at the dwelling of Salmon D. Case), evening, Nov. 19th.
Avon, (Lovely Street school-house, or as Bro Case may arrange), Nov. 20th.
Pleasant Valley.........Dec. 4th
Barkhamsted, (dwelling of Josiah Beach at the gate), evening, Dec. 7th. H. ROCKWELL.

Windham Center, Me.........Nov. 20th
Bath, Me.........Nov. 27th
Yarmouth, Me.........Dec. 4th
I. C. WELLCOME.

Yarmouth, Me.........Nov. 27th
R. R. YORK.

Bath, Me.........Dec. 4th
WM. H. MITCHELL.

Danielsonville, Ct.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Hitchcockville, Ct.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Springfield, (Barnes' Hall).........Sunday, Dec. 4th
IRA MORGAN.

New Hampton, N. H., (at the dwelling house of Bro. E. Pike), Saturday evening, Nov. 26th, and Sunday, 27th.
Meredith, N. H., (at the Pottle meeting-house), Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3d and 4th. A. SIMPSON.

Hartford, Ct.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Warehouse Point, Ct.........Tuesday evening, Nov. 21st
Wednesday evening will be at conference meeting, Holliston, and also the following Sabbath, Nov. 7th.
H. K. FLAGG.

Yalesville, Ct.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Forestville, Ct.........Sunday, Nov 27th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

West Hoosic, N. Y., (Advent Chapel).........Nov. 26th
and over the following Sabbath.
North Bennington, Vt.........Dec. 2d
and over the following Sabbath.
WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Conway, (where Bro. Mason may arrange)...Nov. 20th
Goshen.........Nov 23d, 24th, and 26th
B. WM. WILKINS.

Lee, N. H.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
C. S. EMERSON.

East Bowdoinham, Me., (Lancaster school-house), evenings of Nov. 17th, 18th, 19th, and over the following Sunday.
R. R. YORK,
H. D. REED.

I will preach in the following places, as brethren resident in the same may appoint:—
South Butler, N. Y.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Mannsville, N. Y.........Dec. 1st to 4th
Harrisburgh, N. Y.........Dec. 9th to 11th
West Martinsburgh, N. Y.........Dec. 16th to 18th
Copenhagen, N. Y.........Dec. 23d to 25th
Scipio, N. Y.........Dec. 30th to Jan. 1st, 1865
Westbury, N. Y.........Jan. 3d, 1865
and over the following Sunday.
Seneca Falls, N. Y.........Jan. 15th
N. B. If brethren at other places in Jefferson Co. wish me to preach for them on intervening week day evenings, and they so inform me either by letter or upon seeing me at Mannsville, Dec. 4th, I will do as best I can for them. Address C. F. Sweet, Mannsville, Jefferson Co., N. Y., care of Milton Miles, until Dec. 4th.
C. F. SWEET.

Montreal.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Champlain.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Montreal.........Sunday, Dec. 4th
Massena.........Sundays, Dec. 11th and 18th
D. T. TAYLOR.

Orford, Quinttown.........Nov. 20th
L. C. GLAZIER.

South Farmington.........Nov. 20th
N. HARTSHORN.

New Hartford, Ct., (Garret school-house).........Nov. 20th
S. WOODRUFF.

Concord.........Nov. 20th
Melvin Village.........Nov. 27th
T. W. PIPER.

Charlemont, Mass., (as Brn. may arrange)...Nov. 20th
Griswoldville, Mass.........Nov. 22d
Northfield, Mass.........Nov. 23d
Bro. Morgan's.........Nov. 27th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Charlemont, at Bro. H. A. Hicks'.........Nov. 20th
In the evening at Bro. R. M. Hicks'.
South Adams, Mass.........Nov. 27th
Hoosick, N. Y., (Advent Chapel).........Dec. 4th
Bennington, Vt.........Dec. 11th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Collinsville, Ct.........Nov. 13th
New Britain, Ct.........Nov. 20th
New Haven, Ct.........Nov. 27th
J. S. WHITE, East Boston.

Hollis.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
Portland.........Sunday, Nov. 27th
Biddeford.........Tuesday, Nov. 29th
Bro. Town's.........Wednesday, Nov. 30th
Kennebunkport.........Sunday, Dec. 4th
and between as often as convenient.
B. SPAULDING.

Haverhill, Mass.........Sunday, Nov. 20th
[illegible]
Clinton, Mass.........Nov. 27th
[illegible]
G. GOODSPEED.

[illegible]

Business.

[illegible]

T. Lane, Wm. E. [illegible]

[illegible]

Address Wanted.

Can any one furnish us the address of the following persons, and confer a favor? [illegible]

J. M. WITHINGTON [illegible]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

O. B. Rust.—If you paid to No. 466, close of last volume.

A O Holland—Yes.

[illegible]

H Rockwell—The price of Thurman's Chronology by mail is $1.70.

David Hastings—Paid to No. 517.

H W Norville—The price of the book sent is $1.00.

[illegible]

P. N.—It was sent Nov. 8th.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

[illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By MAIL.—J Watkins, N S Bastion, E Willard, J A Cleaveland, F Burr, J Y Heckler, [illegible], A Good, C Colman, S J Buswell, H W Norville.

By EXPRESS.—J M Snooks, H K Flagg.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

[illegible]

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

F. H. Burbank, Philadelphia, Penn.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

[illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Lord. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. [illegible]

What is Man? [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

I. Signs of the Times. [illegible]

II. [illegible]

III. [illegible]

IV. [illegible]

V. [illegible]

WAITING FOR CHRIST.

We wait for thee, all-glorious One!
We long for thine appearing!
[illegible]
We see thy presence cheering.
[illegible]
And with him bliss ascending.

We wait for thee [illegible]
In patient self-denial;
We know that thine our guilt hath borne [illegible]
Upon thy cross of trial [illegible]
And well may we
Submit with thee
To bear the cross and [illegible]
[illegible]
We wait for thee, already thine,
Hast all our heart's submission;
[illegible]
We long for [illegible]
[illegible]
And [illegible]
[illegible]
When [illegible] and singing,
The [illegible]

—Selected by Wm. L. Carroll.

For the World's Crisis.

THE REWARD OF THE RIGHTEOUS.

BY A. PIERCE.

I.—THE PLACE OF THEIR REWARD.

The reward of the righteous is a subject of vast importance to man, especially to the christian. It is of intense interest to every true believer—to every one who entertains a well-grounded hope of attaining unto an immortal existence in the world to come, and partaking of the joys, the blessedness and the glory of heaven. (By the term heaven I here mean the kingdom of Christ and his redeemed people). Hence it demands our attention and serious reflection. Like all subjects or doctrines of God's word, it is necessary that it be investigated, in order that we may come to the knowledge of the truth. We should "prove all things" and "hold fast that which is good." We should seek to vindicate the ways of God to man, according to the light and ability which he has given us, and the opportunities for improvement and information afforded us, by ever taking our stand in defense of truth and right.

"I like the independent mind,
That's not to selfish views confined;
That upholds right, because 'tis right,
Denouncing wrong in virtue's might;
That does not fear the truth to seek,
And, finding it, fears not to speak."

Truth is precious—a treasure of more lasting value than riches, or aught else that this world can afford. We should therefore lay hold of the truth wherever it may be found, with a desire and willingness to follow submissively whithersoever it may lead us, not forgetting to lean upon its eternal Author with implicit confidence, and imploring his aid and direction. What is truth we know is just, and it will continue to be truth whether we believe it or not. If it conflicts with our preconceived opinions, or the popular doctrines of the day, such as we have been taught from infancy and never questioned, but believed as a matter of course, let these give way, and let the true light shine upon our minds. Let us not be hasty, but "inquire diligently;" and, like the noble Bereans, "Search the Scriptures daily, whether these things were so." Acts 17: 11. Let us then, upon the important subject of a future retribution, consult the divine "testimony of the Bible." "If" any "speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them. Isa. 8: 20.

Returning to our subject more strictly we will present the Scripture evidence as to where, when and how the righteous shall be rewarded. In the first place we will consider the location of the kingdom of Christ, (the heavenly kingdom), or the place where the saints shall receive their reward, which will be their home or abiding place, throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity, as obedient and loyal subjects and joint rulers with King Jesus, who redeemed them by his blood.

"Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth." Prov. 11: 31.

"For the upright shall dwell in the land, and the perfect shall remain in it." Prov. 2: 21.

"But the meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Ps. 37: 11. Matt. 5: 5.

"And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, (firmament) shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom (though on the earth—renewed, of course—is a heavenly kingdom; i. e., made heavenly, holy, pure) is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions (the righteous and immortal rulers, etc., with Christ) shall serve and obey him." Dan. 7: 27, and verses 14, 18, 22; Ps. 145: 13; Isa. 60: 12, 21, and context.

"And I (Jesus) appoint unto you, (my followers, who believe in me) a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table, in my kingdom, and sit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Luke 22: 29, 30; 12: 32; 1 Cor. 9: 25; Matt. 25: 34; Rev. 5: 10; 6: 21; 20: 4.

"But in the last days it shall come to pass that the mountain (rule, or government), of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains, (of the earth—mountains and hills symbolize governments, great and small), and it shall be exalted above the hills; and the people (of the redeemed) shall flow unto it. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; [illegible] (those at present [illegible] on earth). They (i. e. the redeemed) shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree, and none shall make them afraid (1 Kings 4: 25; [illegible]): for the mouth of the Lord of Hosts hath spoken it." Micah, [illegible]

"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were voices in heaven, saying, the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, (the anointed king) and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. [illegible] Amos [illegible]

"The righteous shall inherit the land, and [illegible] Ps. 37: [illegible] Gen. 13: 14-17; [illegible] Amos 9: [illegible]

[illegible] testimony we learn that the reward of the righteous in [illegible]

[illegible] beyond the bounds of time and space, [illegible] according to scholastic theology—an imaginary [illegible]

[illegible]

gave at the creation, but made immortal, by bestowing upon them (all who love his appearing," and not the wicked) that inestimable free gift at his second coming; an organization capable of enjoying LIFE—eternal life—with all its blessings and glories, surrounded by and inhabiting a material universe; and he has plainly revealed to man the things pertaining to the inheritance of his everlasting kingdom. He has not left us to vaguely conjecture as to where and what heaven will be, but has given us all necessary information, to ASSURE us where it shall be; and that it consists in something—something real.

When one man engages to labor for another, he in the outset wishes to know what his wages shall be, or what reward he is to receive for his labor; and, having ascertained this, he goes to work in good earnest; and the prospect of his pay urges him on, and encourages him in his toil. So with the christian: God has held out before him the most glowing inducements—the richest blessings—the most glorious promises—in order to allure him onward in His service and in the path of duty; not that he has need of puny man's service or praise, but for man's own good and happiness, and that he (man) may have perpetuity of existence.

God is supremely benevolent, and delights in the happiness of his creatures. He tests man by obedience to his laws and precepts, in order to develop in him a higher and nobler character—a spiritual nature—and if he thus proves himself worthy of continued existence, by properly improving his probationary time, God is then justified in bestowing upon him the gift of immortality, or eternal life, through the merits and atonement of Jesus Christ.

But if man refuses obedience and submission to the just and reasonable requirements of his Creator—rejects the offers of divine favor and salvation—and goes on in wickedness and rebellion against him who "is love," and the giver of all good, he fully proves himself unworthy of eternal life; and therefore deserves to have taken from him that which he hath, and suffer the penalty of the law, which is "death"—"the wages of sin." Rom. 6: 23. All God's threatenings against the wicked will be duly executed, by turning them back into that state of non-existence from whence they came, also his promises to the righteous cannot fail: he will give them eternal life—the earth—a glorious kingdom—for their everlasting inheritance.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.—WHAT IS IT?

There seems to be a prevalent idea extant in the world, that spiritualism is a peculiarity of these latter days. That it does prevail more generally and more alarmingly than ever before; that it is more varied in its phases and more subtle in its workings, I doubt not; at the same time, we have abundant evidence that it has existed in all ages of the world's history in some form. Some of the clearest instances upon record may be found in the Bible, a book in these days which a certain class pretend to affirm is far behind the times, and yet we find the fullest description of witchcraft, ventriloquism, magnetism, spiritualism, and nearly every other ism, under different names, it is true; but all preceding from the same agency. Throughout the Bible, we find the most fearful denunciations upon such means of obtaining knowledge. See Isa. 7: 19; Deut. 18: 10, 11, 12; also Lev. 20: 6.

In the case of Saul and the witch of Endor, we have a most perfect illustration of magnetic and psychological power. Given up by God to his own wicked heart, Saul had gone the entire length of his chain in crime, and now he resorts to this abandoned woman. Her keen, magnetic power soon holds him at her will, and then she readily detects all that is in his mind. She professes to call up Samuel, and the communication begins.

This instance of Bible history has often been cited to prove that the spirits of the dead can be called back, but to my mind it is one of the best proofs we have of the falsity of such doctrines. Even allowing that such a thing were possible, how perfectly nonsensical the idea, that Samuel would appear at the call of a vile woman and lost man. Any person at all conversant with the subject of mesmerism, will at once see that the witch only did what any clairvoyant might do in magnetic connection with a person.

From the days of the witch of Endor, down to the modern spiritual medium of the present day, all have declared this power to be of supernatural agency; but science clearly and fully shows it to be but the workings of (mysterious, we admit, yet purely) natural, physical and mental laws. The enemy of our souls has availed himself largely of the perversion of this power, which in its purity is God-given, as much as any other faculty, although it is dragging down thousands every year to perdition, because in some instances it so nearly resembles the operations of the Spirit of truth.

And again he would deceive on the other hand, by telling some who have had a genuine experience in the deep things of God, and to whom God has unmistakably spoken, perhaps in revelations and visions, that it is but the workings of demons. Oh! the devil is a cunning serpent, and, methinks, I see some victims of his wiles asking in tones akin to despair—How, O! how may we know the truth? Let me reply, the word of God is sure, and if we humbly follow its teachings the Spirit will bear witness with our spirit that we are upon the rock Christ Jesus, and we shall know of a truth it is so. I cannot better illustrate the falsity of this great delusion of these latter days, than by employing the language of one to whom I am greatly indebted for many of these thoughts.

"It is a significant fact that all the literature of spiritualism has not added one new thought to the world of mind. It cultivates an idle curiosity. It is used to make money. Think of a sign in Broadway, N. Y., where a woman professes to call up the spirit of your dead mother for twenty-five cents! It is employed to promulgate dangerous error and destroy confidence in the holy Bible.

It is painfully amusing to observe that every argument that spiritualists have against christianity, can be found stereotyped in the books of old infidels: so that the truth vanquished on the battle-fields of history, science and literature, in former days, in these last times has come up under a new garb, with a [illegible] form, new name, but with its old heart filled with enmity to the God-[illegible], sin-condemning, [illegible] soul-saving religion of Jesus. Moreover, spiritualism [illegible] attention from the [illegible] of life. Just think of it! What has spiritualism done? What is it doing? What charitable institution has it founded? What poor has it clothed? What hungry has it fed? What household has it made happier? Alas! into how many has it carried disorder, jealousy and death!

More than this: it leads to a neglect of the word of God. It leads to a neglect of God himself, by filling up the mind with bodiless spirits. It annihilates prayer to Omnipotence, by substituting prayer to imaginary beings. It dishonors Christ, as the Savior, by his atoning merit and efficacious grace, of human souls—by making each his own Savior, or saved by other spirits than Christ's. Tell me honestly whether true science, developing the deep principles of nature, which is God's elder Scripture, does not supply all our material wants?

Tell me, ye who know what there is in spiritual christianity, genuine Bible religion, what hope, fear, desire, or yearning of soul it does not supply? O Bible christianity; sure word of prophecy—lamp of our feet—illuminator of our reason; blessed christianity! sealed by the blood of Christ—attested by genuine miracles, signets of the Almighty—confirmed by the testimony of bleeding martyrs and the history of eighteen centuries; precious christianity! I bow my soul before thee in humility and awe, in thanksgiving. Thou art our rock and all is sea beside. It is the boast of spiritualism the numbers of professors of christianity are decreasing; that soon the Bible will be but a relic of the past; that churches will be broken up, etc., etc. What awaits us I know not.

That christianity is to be attacked more fiercely than ever before, that there will be a great falling off of nominal professors, that the church is to be sifted, the prophecies of my Bible assure me. For aught I know christianity may again as in the past, suffer a temporary defeat, its true followers suffer bitter persecutions, and error seem to have the ascendancy.

But I do know that the once crucified but now glorified Jesus, the friend of the needy and the oppressed, on whose immaculate brow triumphant error once wreathed the crown of thorns, shall yet wear the resplendent crown of all the world,—shall see of the travail of his soul in a redeemed humanity, and be satisfied. I do know, though I with all other professors should turn our backs on true religion, and wander after every "ism" that may start up and draw its thousands after, that still 'He shall have a seed to serve him,' that still in this very world in whose soil his gory cross was planted, whose air was vocal with his death groans! yea, this earth, the scene of his ignominy, shall yet be the theatre of the glory of his conquering grace, and as it revolves in its orbit shall send up to the throne of the God of the Bible, anthems of praises loud as seven thunders and melodious as the choruses of eternity-trained angels. . .

The heathen oracle is no more, the witchcraft of past days is no more. In that form, delusions which have beclouded the minds of men are fast disappearing before true religion and true science, but 'Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the traditions of men and the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.'"

H. P. Van Kirk.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BIBLE.

It breathes sweet hope the sad to cheer,
To dry the mourner's flowing tear;
It wreaths bright flowers around the tomb,
And robs it of its wonted gloom;
To wanderers that homeless roam,
It gives the promise of a home.

To those who toil by earth unblest,
It brings to view a heavenly rest;
To those bereft of earthly friends,
It offers love that never ends;
On its blest pages we may find
"Faith, Hope and Love" for all, combined.

Rockville, Ct. Laura A. Davis.

For the World's Crisis.

"BE OF GOOD CHEER"!

"It is I; be not afraid."—Matt. 14: 27.

As husband was reading to me the extensive plot in the north for the overthrow of the government, I felt as if we were upon a powder plot, and all it wanted was to touch the fuse and we are in a blaze. When left alone I involuntarily fell upon my face and cried to God in Jesus Christ for help, and I felt that he heard me. Yea, as assured did I feel that he heard my cry, as that an affectionate parent would hear the cry of a tender and helpless child, as it stands reaching to him with outstretched arms and imploring countenance for the help which he alone can render. Then the love of God in giving his Son came to strengthen my faith.

"Yes, "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things," even deliverance from temporal calamities? Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall peril or sword? Nay, in all these things, even, we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. O how I am comforted in God! Therefore comfort one another with these words. Your Sister in Christ,

Hammonton, N. J. E. S. Willard.

For the World's Crisis.

RELIGION AT HOME.

